The Berkshires are all set for their customary busy summer. By far the most ambitious project, of course, will be the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Director Charles Munch. For many years, these programs have been presented Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays. However, this season a change has been effected, with concerts on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, July 31 through Aug. 16. The change was made to permit music lovers from New York and Boston to attend all the concerts during an average week end.

Friday and Saturday concerts in the Music Shed will be at 8.30 p. m. Sunday programs will be at 2.30 p. m. this year instead of 3 as previously, a change made necessary because they will be broadcast from that hour until 4 over the Columbia Broadcasting System "Festivals of the World" series. This year the "Little Festival" opens in the Concert Theater at Tanglewood on July 11 and 12, and will continue Saturday nights at 8.30 and Sundays at 2.30 p. m. through July 26. The final Sunday program will go out on the air as the first Tanglewood presentation of the "Festivals of the World" series.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT

MAY 2 - 1953

Some of Tanglewood Programs Revised; Broadcasts Planned

Programs for several of the Berkshire festival concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, in July and August have been revised, it was announced today by Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Generally speaking, Mr. Munch said, the compositions previously announced will be played although some on different dates than originally announced. There have been a few substitutions on the programs, however.

Mr. Munch said four of the six Sunday afternoon concerts, those on July 26 and Aug. 2, 9 and 16 will be broadcast coast to coast by the CBS as part of its summer program of international music festivals. Because of the broadcasts, all of the Sunday afternoon concerts will start at 2.30 instead of at 3 as in the past summers. This will be the first time in several seasons that Tanglewood concerts have gone on the air.

The festival opens on July 11 and will consist of three week-ends of Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts in the theater concert hall and then three of Friday evening, Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts in the huge music shed.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUN 7 - 1953

Music News

Join Tanglewood List

Three artists have been added to the list of soloists in this summer's Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano, will sing in Ravel's "Scheherazade" and in Mahler's second symphony under Leonard Bernstein Saturday, Aug. 8. Jorge Bolet will play the B flat minor piano concerto in Pierre Monteux', Tchaikovsky program Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2, and Vera Zorina will be the narrator in Lukas Foss' "Parable of Death" Sunday afternoon, July 26.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

MAY 12 1953

Chavez Opera Is Commissioned

Carlos Chavez, noted Mexican composer and conductor, has been commissioned by Lincoln Kirstein, president of Ballet Society and managing director of the New York City Center, to compose a three-act opera, "The Tuscan Players" with a libretto by Chester Kallman. The work is to be finished by August, 1954. The commission does not guarantee a production, but it is understood that the opera will be first offered to the New York City Opera Company for performance at the City Center.

Ballet Society also announced yesterday that it is planning new commissions to cover its activity for the next five years, including commissions for ballets to Harold Shapero, American composer, and Gottfried von Einem, Austrian composer.

Mr. Chavez will be the [illegible] teacher of composition this summer at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Mr. Kallman is [illegible] with W. H. Auden of [illegible] of Igor Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress," which the Metropolitan Opera produced [illegible] February. Among recent commissions arranged through Ballet Society are Samuel Barber's not yet produced ballet "Souvenirs" and John Coleman's ballet "The Filly" which the New York City Ballet will produce on Tuesday May 19.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

MAY 17 1953

Mountain Music

The Berkshire Music Festival will be held from ~~July 11~~ to Aug. 16 at the Tanglewood Estate in Lenox, Mass.,

---

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
TRAVELER

APR 8 - 1953

BERKSHIRE AUDITIONS

Auditions for young musicians seeking admission and scholarships at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school in Tanglewood, Lenox, will be held at Symphony Hall Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Many applications have already been filed at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters in the hall.

[119]

THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1953.

BERKSHIRE OPENS CENTER ON JULY 5

11th Session in Tanglewood Will Feature Enlargement of Chamber Music Unit

The eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center will open at Tanglewood, Mass., on July 5. Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the school. Aaron Copland is assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz is dean.

Carlos Chavez will join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, with Irving Fine as assistant. The chamber music department will be enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, with Will Kroll as associate and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature, and Mr. Kroll plans a special course on the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued--the awarding of tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active pre-professional division and the activity of the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study for music educators and amateurs conducted by Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who with Pierre Monteux will be a guest conductor of Berkshire Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments of the Berkshire Music Center, assisted by Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss.

Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Alifers and Lorna DeVaron. Boris Goldovsky will direct the opera department, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

FESTIVAL ADDS 3 SOLOISTS

Tourel, Bolet and Zorina Will Appear at Tanglewood

Three soloists have been added to the list already announced for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. They are Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina.

Miss Tourel will be the soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade" and Mahler's Symphony No. 2, with Leonard Bernstein conducting, Aug. 8. Mr. Bolet will play Tchaikovsky's Concerto No. 1 with Pierre Monteux the conductor, Aug. 2. Miss Zorina will be the narrator in the cantata "A Parable of Death" by Lucas Foss, who will lead it, July 26.

This is the last week for series subscriptions, which may be obtained by writing the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston. After June 1 tickets for single concerts will be on sale by mail or telephone to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., phone Lenox 600.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

MAY 3 - 1953

Columbia to Broadcast Four Berkshire Concerts

The Columbia Broadcasting System will air four concerts of the Boston Symphony from Tanglewood this Summer. The hookup [illegible] for the concerts [illegible] Sundays of July 26, [illegible] and 16. This will be the [illegible] American [illegible] in the C. B. S. [illegible] of weekly programs of international music festivals which include broadcasts from Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will share conducting the concerts, with Mr. Munch taking the larger number. These Sunday afternoon programs will begin at 2.30 instead of 3, as formerly.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

MAY 1 - 1953

Boston Symphony Revises Programs For Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six week ends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15. An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6,000-seat Shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afteroons, July 31-Aug. 16; with the chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat Concert Hall, as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour and a half, on July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16 will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, commencing today (Sunday, May 3), which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh Festivals in Europe.

Because the Columbia broadcasts commence at 2:30 p.m, Charles Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3 p.m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4 p.m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

Music lovers planning to attend the Berkshire Festival concerts still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of Shed concerts (July 31 to August 16), which entitles them to priority of seating, a saving in price, and admission to any of the six July concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Subscriptions are being handled at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., which will file orders received at this time for seats for single concerts and fill them when their sale begins on June 1.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

MAY 17 1953

Berkshire Music Center To Open Season July 5

Student applications for the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts, considerably surpass those in previous years, according to Ralph Berkowitz, Dean and before the eleventh annual six-week season opens at Lenox, Mass. on July 5, will provide the best congregation of advanced musical talent in some years. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, again serves as the Berkshire Music Center's Director, with Aaron Copland as Assistant Director.

To date the Center's office at Symphony Hall, Boston, is considering 500 applications, and anticipates more than 1,000 additional inquiries, for the summer school in the Berkshire hills.

While the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Munch's direction, and with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor, is currently making its first coast-to-coast tour, five weeks of concerts in 26 cities, auditions are being held, mainly on instrumentalist candidates, in 14 cities: Columbus, Cincinnati, Knoxville, New Orleans, Dallas, Tucson, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Provo, Denver, Chicago, Ann Arbor, Toronto and Montreal.

Openings still exist in all five divisions of the school: instrumental music, which includes orchestral conducting, orchestra chamber music; choral music, including choral conducting, small choir, festival chorus; composition; opera, divided into opera dramatics for singers, associates and auditors, song repertoire, coaching and stage directing, scenery and costuming; and the Tanglewood Study Group.

The Tanglewood Study Group, initiated last season, is a department of general music study which makes the resources of Tanglewood available to music educators and amateurs. Those unable to attend the full six-week session may enroll in one of three two-week sessions or two four-week sessions. These enrollments are kept open during the summer.

Eminent Mexican composer-conductor, Carlos Chavez, will join Aaron Copland this summer as teacher of composition, a post previously occupied by such distinguished visitors as Paul Hindemith, Bohuslav Martinu, Samuel Barber, Nikolai Lopatnikov, Arthur Honegger, Darius Nilhaud, Jacques Ibert, Olivier Messaien, Luigi Dallapiccola. In 1928 Mr. Chazvez organized the Symphony Orchestra of Mexico, which he has built into one of the finest ensembles on the continent. Since 1946 he has also been Mexico's Director of Fine Arts. He is the composer of several symphonies including the "Sinfonia India," composed in 1935-36, and given its first concert performance in April 1936, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which will be heard on the final Saturday evening program by the orchestra in the Berkshire Festival, on August 15 at Tanglewood.

Another newcomer to the regular faculty will be Lorna Cooke de Varon, who will with James Aliferis, of the University of Minnesota, assist Hugh Ross, head of the choral music department. Mrs. de Varon was a Tanglewood music student for three years, during summers of 1946-47-48 and since that time has been conductor of the chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

The chamber music department is headed by Richard Burgin, Boston Symphony Orchestra concertmaster, with William Kroll, who leads the Kroll Quartet,, as associate, and Gregor Piatigorsky as special guest instructor for part of the session. Principals and other members of the Boston Orchestra will hold classes, with retired members Jean Bedetti, cello; Fernand Gillet, oboe; Georges Laurent, flute; Willem Valkenier, horn; and Miss Ruth Posselt giving special courses in violin and piano sonata literature.

Leonard Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss assisting. Boris Goldovsky will be assisted in the opera department by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo Van Witsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner. Irving Fine of Brandeis University, having returned from a year's leave of absence, assists Mr. Copland and Mr. Chavez in composition.

THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

MAY 1 - 1953

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, which will visit San Francisco for concerts at the Opera House on May 7 and 9 will hold instrumental auditions for students applying for admission and scholarship at the Orchestra's Summer School of Music at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Candidates for audition, to be held at 6 p.m. on May 9 at the Opera House, are requested to contact the San Francisco Symphony Office at the Opera House, UN 1-4008, prior to May 8, giving names and instruments played.

The auditions are open only to performers on orchestral instruments and the piano, and accompanists are not required.

* * *

This Clipping From
WALLACE, IDAHO
PRESS-TIMES

APR 24 [illegible]

Artists' Series Piano Trio Praised

American Piano Trio

Each member of the American Piano Trio—one of three attractions of the Greater Artists Series which the Wilma Theater is sponsoring for the 1953-54 season—is a brilliant virtuoso in his own right, according to Conrad Shelhamer, Wilma Theater manager.

Graduate of the Royal Academy of Music in Hungary and pupil of Zolton Kodaly, Stephen Kovacs has cooncertized all over Europe, won the international Franz Liszt competition for pianists and honorary wards from the cities of Vienna and Budapest, Shelhamer said. Kovacs has supplied musical arrangements for many celebrated piano teams and toured for four years with the Four-Piano Ensemble, according to Shelhamer.

Esther Fernandez, a native of Oregon, made her debut at the age of 14 in San Francisco, and since has won an impressive number of competitions and awards, Shelhamer said. She attended the Julliard School of Music in New York for five years on scholarships, and studied with Rosina Lhevinne and Nadia Reisenberg. In the summer of 1951, she won a scholarship to Tanglewood, where she studied and then performed at the Berskshire Music Center.

Annette Corot, a scholarship student of Mme. Olga Samaroff's, obtained most of her musical education in France, where she studied with Isidore Phillipp and made her formal debut in the Salle Pleyel in Paris. In this country, she had an impressive success after her first New York appearance in a Town Hall recital, when the New York Times commented especially on her, brilliant technique, Shelhamer reported.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 15 1953

BERKSHIRE OPENS CENTER ON JULY 5

11th Session in Tanglewood Will Feature Enlargement of Chamber Music Unit

The eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center will open at Tanglewood, Mass., on July 5. Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the school, Aaron Copland is assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz is dean.

Carlos Chavez will join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, with Irving Fine as assistant. The chamber music department will be enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, with Will Kroll as associate and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature, and Mr. Kroll plans a special course on the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the awarding of tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active pre-professional division and the activity of the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study for music educators and amateurs conducted by Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who with Pierre Monteux will be a guest conductor of Berkshire Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments of the Berkshire Music Center, assisted by Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss.

Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Alifers and Lorna DeVaron. Boris Goldovsky will direct the opera department, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1953.

BERKSHIRE OPENS CENTER ON JULY 5

11th Session in Tanglewood Will Feature Enlargement of Chamber Music Unit

The eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center will open at Tanglewood, Mass., on July 5. Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the school. Aaron Copland is assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz is dean.

Carlos Chavez will join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, with Irving Fine as assistant. The chamber music department will be enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, with Will Kroll as associate and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature, and Mr. Kroll plans a special course on the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the awarding of tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active pre-professional division and the activity of the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study for music educators and amateurs conducted by Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who with Pierre Monteux will be a guest conductor of Berkshire Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments of the Berkshire Music Center, assisted by Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss.

Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Alifers and Lorna DeVaron. Boris Goldovsky will direct the opera department, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 24 1953

FESTIVAL ADDS 3 SOLOISTS

Tourel, Bolet and Zorina Will Appear at Tanglewood

Three soloists have been added to the list already announced for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the summer at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. They are Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina.

Miss Tourel will be the soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade" and Mahler's Symphony No. 2, with Leonard Bernstein conducting, Aug. 8. Mr. Bolet will play Tchaikovsky's Concerto No. 1 with Pierre Monteux the conductor, Aug. 2. Miss Zorina will be the narrator in the cantata "A Parable of Death" by Lucas Foss, who will lead it, July 26.

This is the last week for series subscriptions, which may be obtained by writing the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston. After June 1 tickets for single concerts will be on sale by mail or telephone to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., phone Lenox 600.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

MAY 3 – 1953

Columbia to Broadcast Four Berkshire Concerts

The Columbia Broadcasting System will air four concerts of the Boston Symphony from Tanglewood this Summer. The hookup will be coast-to-coast for the concerts of the Sundays of July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16. This will be the only American event in the C. B. S. series of weekly programs of international music festivals which include broadcasts from Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will share conducting the concerts, with Mr. Munch taking the larger number. These Sunday afternoon programs will begin at 2:30 instead of 3, as formerly.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

MAY 1 – 1953

Boston Symphony Revises Programs For Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six week ends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15. An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6,000-seat Shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afteroons, July 31-Aug. 16; with the chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat Concert Hall, as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour and a half, on July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16 will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, commencing today (Sunday, May 3), which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh Festivals in Europe.

Because the Columbia broadcasts commence at 2:30 p.m, Charles Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3 p.m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4 p.m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

Music lovers planning to attend the Berkshire Festival concerts still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of Shed concerts (July 31 to August 16), which entitles them to priority of seating, a saving in price, and admission to any of the six July concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Subscriptions are being handled at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., which will file orders received at this time for seats for single concerts and fill them when their sale begins on June 1.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 15 1953

BERKSHIRE OPENS CENTER ON JULY 5

11th Session in Tanglewood Will Feature Enlargement of Chamber Music Unit

The eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center will open at Tanglewood, Mass., on July 5. Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the school, Aaron Copland is assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz is dean.

Carlos Chavez will join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, with Irving Fine as assistant. The chamber music department will be enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, with Will Kroll as associate and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature, and Mr. Kroll plans a special course on the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the awarding of tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active pre-professional division and the activity of the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study for music educators and amateurs conducted by Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who with Pierre Monteux will be a guest conductor of Berkshire Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments of the Berkshire Music Center, assisted by Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss.

Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Alifers and Lorna DeVaron. Boris Goldovsky will direct the opera department, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

MAY 17 1953

Berkshire Music Center To Open Season July 5

Student applications for the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts, considerably surpass those in previous years, according to Ralph Berkowitz, Dean and before the eleventh annual six-week season opens at Lenox, Mass. on July 5, will provide the best congregation of advanced musical talent in some years. Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, again serves as the Berkshire Music Center's Director, with Aaron Copland as Assistant Director.

To date the Center's office at Symphony Hall, Boston, is considering 500 applications, and anticipates more than 1,000 additional inquiries, for the summer school in the Berkshire hills.

While the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Munch's direction, and with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor, is currently making its first coast-to-coast tour, five weeks of concerts in 26 cities, auditions are being held, mainly on instrumentalist candidates, in 14 cities: Columbus, Cincinnati, Knoxville, New Orleans, Dallas, Tucson, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Provo, Denver, Chicago, Ann Arbor, Toronto and Montreal.

Openings still exist in all five divisions of the school: instrumental music, which includes orchestral conducting, orchestra chamber music; choral music, including choral conducting, small choir, festival chorus; composition; opera, divided into opera dramatics for singers, associates and auditors, song repertoire, coaching and stage directing, scenery and costuming; and the Tanglewood Study Group.

The Tanglewood Study Group, initiated last season, is a department of general music study which makes the resources of Tanglewood available to music educators and amateurs. Those unable to attend the full six-week session may enroll in one of three two-week sessions or two four-week sessions. These enrollments are kept open during the summer.

Eminent Mexican composer-conductor, Carlos Chavez, will join Aaron Copland this summer as teacher of composition, a post previously occupied by such distinguished visitors as Paul Hindemith, Bohuslav Martinu, Samuel Barber, Nikolai Lopatnikov, Arthur Honegger, Darius Nilhaud, Jacques Ibert, Olivier Messaien, Luigi Dallapiccola. In 1928 Mr. Chazvez organized the Symphony Orchestra of Mexico, which he has built into one of the finest ensembles on the continent. Since 1946 he has also been Mexico's Director of Fine Arts. He is the composer of several symphonies including the "Sinfonia India," composed in 1935-36, and given its first concert performance in April 1936, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which will be heard on the final Saturday evening program by the orchestra in the Berkshire Festival, on August 15 at Tanglewood.

Another newcomer to the regular faculty will be Lorna Cooke de Varon, who will with James Aliferis, of the University of Minnesota, assist Hugh Ross, head of the choral music department. Mrs. de Varon was a Tanglewood music student for three years, during summers of 1946-47-48 and since that time has been conductor of the chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

The chamber music department is headed by Richard Burgin, Boston Symphony Orchestra concertmaster, with William Kroll, who leads the Kroll Quartet,, as associate, and Gregor Piatigorsky as special guest instructor for part of the session. Principals and other members of the Boston Orchestra will hold classes, with retired members Jean Bedetti, cello; Fernand Gillet, oboe; Georges Laurent, flute; Willem Valkenier, horn; and Miss Ruth Posselt giving special courses in violin and piano sonata literature.

Leonard Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments with Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss assisting. Boris Goldovsky will be assisted in the opera department by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo Van Witsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner. Irving Fine of Brandeis University, having returned from a year's leave of absence, assists Mr. Copland and Mr. Chavez in composition.

THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

MAY 1 – 1953

* * *

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, which will visit San Francisco for concerts at the Opera House on May 7 and 9 will hold instrumental auditions for students applying for admission and scholarship at the Orchestra's Summer School of Music at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

Candidates for audition, to be held at 6 p.m. on May 9 at the Opera House, are requested to contact the San Francisco Symphony Office at the Opera House, UN 1-4008, prior to May 8, giving names and instruments played.

The auditions are open only to performers on orchestral instruments and the piano, and accompanists are not required.

* * *

This Clipping From
WALLACE, IDAHO
PRESS-TIMES

APR 24 [illegible]

Artists' Series Piano Trio Praised

American Piano Trio

Each member of the American Piano Trio—one of three attractions of the Greater Artists Series which the Wilma Theater is sponsoring for the 1953-54 season—is a brilliant virtuoso in his own right, according to Conrad Shelhamer, Wilma Theater manager.

Graduate of the Royal Academy of Music in Hungary and pupil of Zolton Kodaly, Stephen Kovacs has coончertized all over Europe, won the international Franz Liszt competition for pianists and honorary wards from the cities of Vienna and Budapest, Shelhamer said. Kovacs has supplied musical arrangements for many celebrated piano teams and toured for four years with the Four-Piano Ensemble, according to Shelhamer.

Esther Fernandez, a native of Oregon, made her debut at the age of 14 in San Francisco, and since has won an impressive number of competitions and awards, Shelhamer said. She attended the Julliard School of Music in New York for five years on scholarships, and studied with Rosina Lhevinne and Nadia Reisenberg. In the summer of 1951, she won a scholarship to Tanglewood, where she studied and then performed at the Berskshire Music Center.

Annette Corot, a scholarship student of Mme. Olga Samaroff's, obtained most of her musical education in France, where she studied with Isidore Phillipp and made her formal debut in the Salle Pleyel in Paris. In this country, she had an impressive success after her first New York appearance in a Town Hall recital, when the New York Times commented especially on her brilliant technique, Shelhamer reported.

NEWARK, N. J.
STAR-LEDGER

MAY 3 - 1953

RADIO AND TELEVISION

Previews to be opened today of 'World Music Festivals'

By JOHN LESTER

A broadcasting event of first importance, a series of famous "World Music Festivals," will be brought to the American public by CBS radio, beginning today from 2:30 to 4 P. M. This is one of the most ambitious musical series of its kind in broadcasting and the only one ever to carry the major European music festivals.

"World Music Festivals" will be a consecutive series of 23 hour-and-a-half weekly broadcasts extending through the summer and will take over the time-period currently occupied by the New York Philharmonic Sympony programs.

James Fassett, director of music for CBS radio and for the past four years commentator for the New York Philharmonic Symphony broadcasts, is in charge of the series and will account for its commentary on the air.

* * *

TODAY, ON THE SERIES premiere, Fassett will present a preview broadcast of presentations (this preview will be continued for the next three Sundays using various musical groups to be heard in the full series) of the London Philharmonic Orchestra, the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra and the orchestra of the Maggio Musicale, of Florence, Italy.

Other groups to be heard will include the Bayreuth Wagnerian Opera Festival, in Germany; the first International Bergen Music Festival, in Norway; the Edinburgh International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland; the Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland, and the Tanglewood Music Festival in Stockbridge, Mass., which will be the American contribution to the series.

Fassett is also negotiating for the presentation of a concert by the Santa Cecelia Orchestra of Rome, conducted by Leopold Stokowski.

* * *

THIS IS A PRIME series for more than one reason.

Most American music lovers, as you no doubt know, have been unable to visit the great European festivals.

Now, however, through the "World Music Festivals" series, they will be able to hear the actual performance of world-renowned music festivals of the old world, in addition to an American festival, which matches most of them in fame and prestige.

The American contribution will be four concerts of the famous Berkshire Festival, to be broadcast directly from Tanglewood, Mass.

These particular concerts won't be heard until July [illegible], Aug. 2, 9 and 16, however.

They will be played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch, with the exception of the Aug 2 concert, which will be conducted by Pierre Monteux.

* * *

THESE BERKSHIRE concerts, famous with classical music lovers all over the country, began in 1934.

The Boston Symphony was engaged in 1936 and the concerts were planned and realized under the direction of the late Serge Koussevitzky.

The scope of the festival and its attendance of 100,000 people, is drawn from all parts of the United States but, huge as this audience is, it will be no match for the estimated 10,000,000 or so who will be tuned in beginning this afternoon.

"World Music Festivals" is largely the result of a trend, a definite and substantial upswing in classical music interest in this country that has taken place in the last 20 years, especially in the last five.

Interest in classical music in that latter period has increased as much as 1500 per cent, according to figures gathered by recording companies and audience checks by producers of musical series on radio and television.

* * *

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 10 1953

Berkshire Festival Programs Announced

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces the programs for the Berkshire Festival Concerts to be given at Tanglewood, this orchestra's summer home in Lenox, Mass. The Festival will extend from July 11 to Aug. 16. In the first three weekends concerts will be given on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, the first week being devoted to the music of Bach, the second to Mozart and the third to Haydn and to contemporary composers (Strauss, Milhaud, Ravel and Foss).

The concerts in the great Music Shed will be given on Friday evenings (in place of the customary Thursdays), Saturday evening and Sunday afternoons. The programs for Series A (July 31, Aug. 1, 2) will include: Beethoven—Overture to Leonore No. 3; Mendelssohn—Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Copland — Appalachian Spring Ravel:—"Bolero"; All-Tchaikovsky program, Pierre Monteux, guest conductor—"Hamlet" Overture, Suite "Mozartiana," "Romeo and Juliet" Overture, Symphony No. 5. Schumann—"Manfred" Overture; Foss—Piane Concerto (the composer as soloist); Mendelssohn—"Italian Symphony; Liszt—"Mephisto Waltz."

Series B (Aug. 7, 8, 9): Handel—"Water Music"; Barber—Adagio for Strings"; Saint-Saens—Cello Concerto (soloist, Gregor Piatigorsky); Strauss—"Don Quixote"; Berlioz—Dramatic Symphony "Romeo and Juliet"; Koussevitzky Memorial Concert (Leonard Bernstein, guest conductor); Haydn — Symphony No. 102; Mahler — Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection").

Series C (Aug. 14, 15, 16): Cherubini — "Anacreon Overture" Schubert — "Unfinished Symphony; Ravel — Piano Concerto for the Left Hand (soloist, Seymour Lipkin); Wagner—Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan," "A Siegfried Idyl," "Die Meistersinger," excerpts from Act III; Hindemith—Concerto for Strings and Brass— Brahms Symphony No. 2; Chavez—"Sinfonia India" (Leonard Bernstein, guest conductor); Brahms—"Requiem."

Charles Munch will conduct each concert except on Aug. 1, 9 and 15. The Berkshire Music Center will be under his direction also and will hold its 11th term concurrent with the Festival season at Tanglewood. Subscriptions are being taken at Symphony Hall, Boston, for the Shed Series A, B and C.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
BROOKLYN DAILY
APR 29 1953

Youth Hosteling Project Set At Local "Y"

Once again, the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association of Williamsburg has come across with a very commendable project for helping the teen-ager, the adolescent and the adult, in planning for an unusual summer vacation. The newest project is known as Youth Hosteling or the inauguration of a series of subsidized bicycle tours and hiking trips.

The program calls for an adventure in hosteling. It is an inexpensive and enjoyable way of traveling and vacationing. On these trips, young men and women will travel on bicycles or by foot stopping at hostels (dormitories), camps, and state parks. These facilities have separate sleeping quarters and washrooms for men and women. Trained and experienced group leaders will be on each trip.

Many trips are being planned for the summer months, and the fun and spirit of camping will be experienced by the participants amid a constant change of shifting scenery. Trips will be of six, twelve and seventeen days in length. The first trip will start late in June and will cover parts of New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Other trips have been arranged for the Connecticut Valley, Berkshire Music Festival, Cape Ann, Cape Cod, Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
MAY 3 - 1953

World Music Festivals Open Today

For the first time in radio history, the major European music festivals will be brought to the American people in a consecutive series of 23 hour-and-a-half weekly broadcasts this Summer, according to a joint announcement by Ward M. Canaday, president of Willys-Overland Motors Inc., which will sponsor the broadcasts, and Adrian Murphy, president of the CBS Radio Network.

The music festival broadcasts will begin today at 2.30 p. m. over WTAG.

James Fassett, director of music for CBS Radio and for the past four years commentator for the New York Philharmonic-Symphony broadcasts, will be in charge of the music festival programs.

In Europe he will visit seven music festivals to record the high points of their music making and to add his own colorful commentary. Later he will visit Tanglewood to cover this most famous American fastival. The series will continue 23 weeks, until the resumption of the Philharmonic broadcasts next Fall.

Four concerts of the famous Berkshire Festival, broadcast directly from Tanglewood, will be heard on July 26, August 2, 9 and 16. The concerts will be played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch, with the exception of the concert of August 2, which will be conducted by Pierre Monteux.

WILMINGTON, DEL.
JOURNAL-EVERY EVENING

MAY 4 - 1953

Kiwanis Club to Hear 'Song Portrait' of U. S.

Miss Frances Lehnerts

Miss Frances Lehnerts, concert mezzo-soprano, will present a "Song Portrait of America" at the meeting of the Wilmington Kiwanis Club in the Hotel DuPont at noon Wednesday.

Miss Lehnerts, a winner of the Juilliard Fellowship, has been soloist with such conductors as Dimirti Metropoulos, Leonard Bernstein, and Thor Johnson, and has sung in opera with the Mexico Opera Nationale, the Berkshire Festival, Chautauqua Festival, and the New Opera Company.

The program was arranged by Clark Maynard, director of music for the Wilmington public schools, and chairman of the club's music committee.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM

MAY 17 1953

Tanglewood Series To Be Broadcast

The planned schedule for WTAG-CBS' "World Music Festivals" broadcasts of seven major European music events and the Tanglewood Festival in Massachusetts has been announced.

The series, first of its kind in radio history, will begin its broadcasts of European music of 1953 on Sunday, May 31, and will continue to present highlights and sidelights of the world's major music festivals each Sunday afternoon through Oct. 4.

James Fassett, CBS director of music, has already left for Europe to visit the festivals there, record their highlights and add his own commentary.

The schedule follows:

Sunday, May 31, Santa Cecilia Orchestra of Rome, Leopold Stokowski, guest conductor, performing at the Academia di Santa Cecilia.

June 7, Maggio Musicale of Florence, Italy. The seldom-performed opera "Medea" by the early 19th century composer Luigi Cherubini will be presented during this festival, and excerpts from this performance are scheduled to be broadcast.

Oslo Philharmonic

June 14 and 21, First International Festival of Bergen, including concerts of the Oslo Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Odd Gruner-Hegge and the Bergen Symphony Orchestra conducted by Carl Garaguly and Otto Klemperer.

These broadcasts also will include excerpts from concerts given at Troldhaugen, the home of Edvard Grieg; as well as folk music, drama and folklore of Norway.

June 28 and July 5, Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland. Music of Sibelius and other Finnish composers will be performed by the Helsinki City Symphony Orchestra and the Finnish Radio Symphony Orchestra, under Leopold Stokowski as guest conductor, as well as under their regular conductors, Tauno Hannikainen, Nils-Eric Fougstedt and Jussi Jalas.

July 12 and 19, Holland Festival at The Hague, Schveningen and Amsterdam. This full-month festival will present orchestral concerts by five distinguished symphonic groups, in addition to operas, choral concerts, lieder recitals, chamber music, ballet and drama.

Berkshire Concerts

July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. These four broadcast concerts will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch as conductor for three of the programs. The concert of Aug. 2 will be conducted by Pierre Monteux.

Aug. 23 and 30—Salzburg Festival, originating in the German city where Mozart made his home. Mr. Fassett plans to present a concert by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, the world's oldest orchestra, conducted during the festival by Guido Cantelli, Wilhelm Furtwangler and Bruno Walter, among others. Excerpts from operatic and dramatic performances also are scheduled for broadcast.

Sept. 6, Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, the little German town where Wagner made his home and built his famous opera house. Scenes from one of the "Ring" operas are scheduled for broadcast, as performed under the direction of the composer's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland Wagner.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

APR 19 1953

Boston Symphony Announces Plans For Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony [illegible] tra, which has been [illegible] in Hartford since the 188[illegible] will return for its [illegible] tive year on the Bushnell [illegible] phony Series next season [illegible] just announced detailed pla[illegible] its summer concerts at [illegible] wood in the Berkshires

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

Summer Music Festivals Are Making Early Plans

By ARTHUR BERGER

[illegible] New [illegible] Summer Festival [illegible] New [illegible] held from [illegible] of Rennie [illegible] one program a day [illegible] Mozart [illegible] Concerto in A major [illegible] soloist [illegible] composer as [illegible] Clarence Adler [illegible] the final concert [illegible] Ravel's piano concerto [illegible] Among the contemporary [illegible] In the course [illegible] festival besides the [illegible] William Schuman's Fifth Symphony and Dinu [illegible] Suite, "Tziganes."

• • •

Bach and Mozart will again be [illegible] in the programs by the [illegible] Boston Symphony in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood on the three consecutive week ends starting July 11. As before, the concerts will be held Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, and Charles Munch will be the conductor. Five of Bach's Brandenburg Concertos, two of his orchestral suites and his cantata, "Jesu der Du Meine Seele," are listed for the first week end's pair of concerts. The Mozart programs, on the second week end, will include the Violin Concerto in G major, with Isaac Stern as soloist, as well as the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies, Sinfonie Concertante, Divertimento (K. 136) and Serenade (K. 361). The last week end, before the major concert series opens in the Tanglewood Shed, will provide the occasion for Lukas Foss to conduct his cantata, "A Parable of Death." Haydn's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100 and his "St. Theresa" Mass are also scheduled for the final week end.

* * *

Berkshire Festival Programs Announced

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces the programs for the Berkshire Festival Concerts to be given at Tanglewood, this orchestra's summer home in Lenox, Mass. The Festival will extend from July 11 to Aug. 16. In the first three week-ends concerts will be given on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, the first week being devoted to the music of Bach, the second to Mozart and the third to Haydn and to contemporary composers (Strauss, Milhaud, Ravel and Foss).

The concerts in the great Music Shed will be given on Friday evenings (in place of the customary Thursdays), Saturday evening and Sunday afternoons. The programs for Series A (July 31, Aug. 1, 2) will include: Beethoven—Overture to Leonore No. 3; Mendelssohn—Violin Concerto (soloist, Zino Francescatti); Copland — Appalachian Spring Ravel:—"Bolero"; All-Tchaikovsky program, Pierre Monteux, guest conductor—"Hamlet" Overture, Suite "Mozartiana," "Romeo and Juliet" Overture, Symphony No. 5. Schumann—"Manfred" Overture; Foss—Plane Concerto (the composer as soloist); Mendelssohn—"Italian Symphony; Liszt—"Mephisto Waltz."

Series B (Aug. 7, 8, 9): Handel—"Water Music"; Barber—'Adagio for Strings"; Saint-Saens—Cello Concerto (soloist, Gregor Piatigorsky); Strauss—"Don Quixote"; Berlioz—Dramatic Symphony "Romeo and Juliet"; Koussevitzky Memorial Concert (Leonard Bernstein, guest conductor); Haydn — Symphony No. 102; Mahler — Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection").

Series C (Aug. 14, 15, 16): Cherubini — "Anacreon Overture" Schubert — "Unfinished Symphony; Ravel — Piano Concerto for the Left Hand (soloist, Seymour Lipkin); Wagner—Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan," "A Siegfried Idyl," "Die Meistersinger," excerpts from Act III; Hindemith—Concerto for Strings and Brass— Brahms Symphony No. 2; Chavez—"Sinfonia India" (Leonard Bernstein, guest conductor); Brahms—"Requiem."

Charles Munch will conduct each concert except on Aug. 1, 9 and 15. The Berkshire Music Center will be under his direction also and will hold its 11th term concurrent with the Festival season at Tanglewood. Subscriptions are being taken at Symphony Hall, Boston, for the Shed Series A, B and C.

BOSTON, MASS.
TRAVELER

[illegible] 1953

Berkshire Chamber Series Announced

Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, on three successive weekends from July 11 to July 26 as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, have been announced for the 19th Berkshire Festival.

Seats for the concerts, to be given by the Boston Symphony with Charles Munch conducting on Saturdays at 8:30 P. M. and Sundays at 3 P. M., are available at this time only to subscribers for one of the three series of Shed concerts which follow from July 31 to August 16.

Priority of seating and a saving in price is given series members. Orders are being accepted now at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

Two Bach programs, Saturday, July 11 and Sunday, July 12, will include the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5 (concert master Richard Burgin, violin solo; Doriot Anthony, first flute, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and 6. Also Suite 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriot Anthony, soloist); Suite 3; and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seele" for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

A pair of Mozart programs will be played Saturday, July 18, and Sunday, July 19, to include Divertimento, K. 136 for Strings; Violin Concerto in G, K. 216 (Isaac Stern, soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361; the "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern violin, Joseph de Pasquale, first viola, soloists); "Eine kleine Nachtmusik"; the "Jupiter Symphony."

A feature of the final weekend of theater concerts, one of contemporary works, one of Haydn, Saturday, July 25, and Sunday, July 26, will be the Cantata, "A Parable of Death," by Lukas Foss, young American composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., Orchestra and had its world premiere there March 11. As on that occasion, the composer has been invited to conduct, and Vera Zorina will be the narrator. For narrator, chorus, tenor soloist and orchestra, "A Parable of Death" is from "Geschichten vom lieben Gott" by the Austrian poet Rainer Maria Rilke, English version by Anthony Hecht.

The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin), Darius Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde," Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program will contain the St. Theresa Mass for Chorus, Soloists and Orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor); Symphonies 93 and 100 ("Military").

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 1 - 1953

CHANGE AT TANGLEWOOD

Dates Shifted for Monteux and Bernstein—Broadcast Planned

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced revisions in its schedule for the Berkshire Music Festival, which opens July 11 with an all-Bach program in the concert hall at Tanglewood, Mass.

Under the new arrangements Pierre Monteux will conduct on Sunday, Aug. 2, and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15. Charles Munch is the regular conductor.

Parts of the festival, beginning with the program of Sunday, July 26, will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System, marking the first network presentation of the open-air concerts.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS

MAY 2 - 1953

TIME CHANGES ARE ANNOUNCED AT TANGLEWOOD

National Broadcast of Sunday Afternoon Concerts Set This Year

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six week ends of concerts in the theater-concert hall and in the music shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15. An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6000-seat shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 31—Aug. 16; with the chamber concerts in the 1200-seat concert hall, as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

National Hookup

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour-and-a-half, on July 26, Aug. 2, 9, and 16, will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, commencing tomorrow, which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh Festivals in Europe.

Time Change

Because the Columbia broadcasts commence at 2.30 p. m. Charles Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4, Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

Music lovers planning to attend the Berkshire Festival concerts still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of shed concerts (July 31 to Aug. 16), which entitles them to priority of seating, a saving in price, and admission to any of the six July concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall. Subscriptions are being handled at the Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, which will file orders received at this time for seats for single concerts and fill them when their sale begins on June 1.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

MAY 3 - 1953

Four Tanglewood Sunday Concerts to Be Broadcast

Boston, May 2 — The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six week ends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15.

An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6000-seat shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 31-Aug. 16; with the chamber concerts in the 1200-seat Concert Hall as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

Starting Time Advanced

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour and a half, on July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16, will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals.

The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, commencing today (Sunday, May 3), which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh Festivals in Europe.

Because the Columbia broadcasts commence at 2.30 p. m., Mr. Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3 p. m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4 p. m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

Music lovers planning to attend the Berkshire Festival concerts still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of Shed concerts.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

MAY 1 - 1953

Festival Program Is Revised; Sunday Concerts To Be Aired

The Boston Symphony Orchestra today announces revisions in its programs to be heard at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, on the six week-ends beginning July 11 and ending Aug. 16. Principal changes are in the music for the Sunday afternoon concerts, which will be broadcast over a nation-wide network by Columbia Broadcasting Company.

The Tanglewood concerts will be the only American programs in the weekly international festival series, which will start Sunday afternoon at 2.30, and will include the European summer festivals of Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Monteux, Bernstein Guests

Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct all concerts excepting those of Aug. 2, when Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor, and Aug. 8 and 15, when Leonard Bernstein will occupy the podium.

To accommodate the broadcasts all Sunday concerts at Tanglewood will start at 2.30, instead of 3, as in previous years. The evening programs will open at 8.30 as usual. The last four Sunday concerts will be heard on the air.

Tickets for the Shed concerts at season rates are available until June 1. A series ticket entitles the holder to priority in seating, a saving in price and the privilege of purchasing tickets for any of the chamber concerts on the first three week ends in the theatre. Single seats for all programs will be on sale beginning June 1. Information and tickets are sent on request to Symphony Hall, Boston.

The revised programs follow:

IN THE THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

July
11 Brandenburg concertos, 1, 2, 3, 5, ... Bach
Lukas Foss, soloist.
12 Cantata No. 78, Jesu, der mu meine Seelo .... Bach Suites 2 and 3.
Hugh Ross, conductor.
18 Divertimento for Strings, K. 136; Concerto for violin in G major...Mozart
Isaac Stern, soloist.
Serenade for 13 Winds; Symphony in D major, Prague .... Mozart
19 Overture to The Marriage of Figaro; Symphony Concertante for violin and viola .... Mozart Isaac Stern and Joseph DePasquale, soloists.
Eine Kleine Nachtmusik; Symphony in C major, Jupiter .... Mozart
25 St. Theresa's Mass; Symphony No. 95; Symphony No. 100, Military .. Haydn
Hugh Ross, conductor.
26 Divertimento after Couperin;..Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin ...... Ravel
Classical Symphony .... Prokofieff
La Creation du Monde ...... Mihaud
A Parable of Death .... Foss
Cantata with narrator, chorus, tenor and orchestra, conducted by the composer.
Vera Zorina, narrator.

IN THE MUSIC SHED

31 Overture to Lenore .... Beethoven
Violi Concerto in E minor, ... Mendelssohn Zino Francescatti, soloist.
Appalachian Spring .... Copland
Bolero .... Ravel
Aug.
1 Overture to Manfred .... Schumann
Piano Concerto (composer as soloist), ... Foss
Italian Symphony ...... Mendelssohn
Symphoic Metamorphosis on Themes of Weber .... Hindemith
2 Serenade for Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto ...... Tchaikovsky Jorge Bolet, soloist.

SERIES B

7 Romeo and Juliet .... Berlioz Dramatic Symphony with Chorus and Soloists.
8 Symphony No. 102 in B flat .. Haydn
Symphony No. 2, Resurrection, ... Mahler
9 Symphony in B flat, No. [illegible] .... Schubert
Adagio for Strings .... Barber
Don Quixote .... Strauss
Gregor Piatigorsky and Joseph de Pasquale, soloists.
Concerto for Cello ...... Saint-Saens
Piatigorsky, soloist.

SERIES C

14 A German Requiem .... Brahms
15 Symphony No. 4 .... Sibelius
Sinfonia India .... Chavez
Symphony No. 2 .... Brahms
16 Unfinished Symphony ...... Schubert
Bourree Fantasque .... Chabrier
Prelude and Love-Death, Tristan and Isolde .... Wagner
A Siegfried Idyl, Die Meistersinger, excerpts from Act 3 .... Wagner
Piano Concerto for the left hand, ... Ravel
Seymour Lipkin, soloist.

THE NEW YORK TIMI

MUSIC FESTIVAL OPENS IN BERKSHIRES JULY 11

The nineteenth Berkshire Music Festival will open at Tanglewood, Mass., Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with a pair of all-Bach programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Works to be heard are the "Brandenburg" concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5, Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine Seele."

A pair of Mozart programs will be played on July 18 and 19 by Mr. Munch and the orchestra, featuring the Violin Concerto in G (K. 216), with Isaac Stern as soloist; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

At the final week-end of Tanglewood concerts the offerings will be the "St. Theresa Mass" of Haydn; that composer's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100; and works of Lukas Foss, Richard Strauss, Milhaud and Ravel.

Auditions for scholarships at the Berkshire Music Center will start at Carnegie Recital Hall this week. Singers will be heard Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, instrumentalists Monday, April 13, at 10. Those desiring to audition should notify the Berkshire Music Center office in Symphony Hall, Boston.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

APR [illegible] 0 1953

European Music Fetes Listed

Recorded versions of major European music festivals will be broadcast each Sunday from 2:30 to 4 P. M. for twenty-three weeks by the C. B. S. radio network, beginning May 3. James Fassett, the network's director of music, who is leaving soon for Europe, will be in charge of the programs.

He has started negotiations with the Baireuth Wagnerian Opera Festival in Germany, the first International Bergen Music Festival in Norway, the Edinburgh International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland, the Festival of Music and Drama in the Netherlands, the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy; the Salzsburg Festival in Austria and the Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland. The summer series also will cover the Tanglewood ~~Music Festival~~ in Stockbridge, Mass.

The broadcasts will be sponsored by Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., and will continue until the New York Philharmonic-Symphony programs resume in the fall.

24 SYRACUSE HERALD-AMERICAN, Sunday, April 5, 1953

Note Conductors Symposium In Philadelphia in Fall; Music in Tanglewood

This date in music: 1809 Albert Roussel, French composer born; 1914, first performance, in Paris, of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," as an orchestra piece.

By E. V. W.

WORD COMES from the American Symphony Orchestra League offices in Charleston, W. Va., that the Philadelphia Orchestra and the League will have a second presentation of the Conductors Symposium in Philadelphia Sept. 28-Oct. 2 next. The Symposium is widely recognized as a first step of U. S. professional symphonies to "offer study, opportunities, recognition and encouragement" to the nation's community symphony directors.

CONDUCTORS in attendance at the Symposium will work closely with Eugene Ormandy, conductors of the Philadelphia Orchestra. They will attend all Philadelphia Orchestra rehearsals and concerts and will participate in seminars and consultations with Philadelphia Orchestra members and administrative staff during their Philadelphia visit. Mrs. Helen M. Thompson, executive secretary of the American Symphony Orchestra League, states that many applications have been received in the hope that the Symposium will be repeated. Conductors from all sections of the nation are eligible to apply for certification to the Symposium.

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces that the Berkshire Festival concerts to be given in "Tanglewood," near Lenox, Mass., the Orchestra's summer home, will extend from July 11 to Aug. 16. In the first three weekends, concerts will be presented Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in the Theater Concert Hall. The first week will be devoted to the music of Bach; the second to Mozart; the third to Haydn and to contemporary composers: Strauss, Milhaud, Ravel, Lukas Foss.

IN THE GREAT Music Shed, concerts will be given on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. In the past there have been Thursday night programs in the Shed. These concerts, Series A, B, C. The dates: Series A, July 31, Aug. 1-2; Series B, Aug. 7-9 inclusive; Series C, Aug. 14-16 inclusive. Conductor Munch will conduct each concert except Aug. 9 and Aug. 15 when Leonard Bernstein will conduct. The Berkshire Music Center will be under direction of Conductor Munch, with the eleventh term concurrent with the Festival season in "Tanglewood."

AARON COPLAND will be assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center with Ralph Berkowitz, dean. The six-week session will begin on July 5 and close Aug. 14. Carlos Chavez will come from Mexico to join Aaron Copland as teacher of composition, a post previusly filled by such eminent visitors as Hindemith, Mirtinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen and Dallapiccola. The chamber music department of the Center will be enlarged considerably under leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster and the Boston Symphony Orchestra with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as special guest instructor during part of the session. Major part of the Chamber Music faculty will consist, as usual, of principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members. Miss Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature; William Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

* * *

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-JOURNAL

APR 28 1953 4/

Mrs. Strebel will go to Toronto to hear the "Met" in three night performances and a matinee, including "Rigoletto" and "Samson and Delilah." The "Met" will sing in Toronto a week. Mr. and Mrs. Strebel regularly attend Berkshire Festival concerts in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., in July-August.

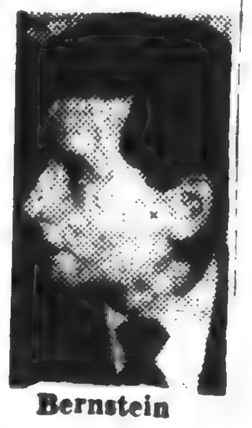
* * *

Jane Craner Will Sing in Brandeis June Festival

MISS JANE Craner, Syracuse contralto who has been on tour this season with the Robert Shaw Chorale, will go to Waltham, Mass., in June to sing in the Poulenc comic opera, "Les Mamelles de Tiresias," under direction of Leonard Bernstein, professor of music in Brandeis University. The festival, second annual program of creative arts, is set for June 10-14 inclusive. The opera bouffe, to be produced by the Leomade Opera Co. of New York City, will be directed by Lemonade's Max Leavitt.

MAESTRO BERNSTEIN, also in "Tanglewood" during the Berkshire Festival season, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Soprano Phyllis Curtin will have a leading role in the opera and Metropolitan Opera members also will be in the cast. The Poulenc opera will be performed in the outdoor Adolph Ullman amphitheater, completed last year on the university's 190-acre campus in time for the first Brandeis Festival. The Lemonade Opera Company, which has run three successful seasons, earned its reputation doing opera off Broadway in Greenwich Mews Playhouse. Richmond Louis Gale, Syracuse concert pianist, was accompanist during an early season.

Craner



Bernstein

WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE

APR 7 - 1953

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL STARTS IN JULY
Charles Munch Directing Orchestra at Tanglewood

Tanglewood's Music Festival Opens July 11

LENOX, April 7—The 19th Berkshire Music Festival will open at "Tanglewood" Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with a pair of all-Bach programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Works to be heard are the "Brandenburg" concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5, Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine Seele."

A pair of Mozart programs will be played on July 18 and 19 by Mr. Munch and the orchestra, featuring the Violin Concerto in G (K. 216), with Isaac Stern as soloist; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

At the final weekend of Tanglewood concerts the offerings will be the "St. Theresa Mass" of Haydn; that composer's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100; and works of Lukas Foss, Richard Strauss, Milhaud and Ravel.

Auditions for scholarships at the Berkshire Music Center started at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York this week. Those desiring to audition should notify the Berkshire Music Center office in Symphony Hall, Boston.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

APR 5 - 1953

MUSIC FESTIVAL OPENS IN BERKSHIRES JULY 11

The nineteenth Berkshire Music Festival will open at Tanglewood, Mass., Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with a pair of all-Bach programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Works to be heard are the "Brandburg" concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5, Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine Seele."

A pair of Mozart programs will be played on July 18 and 19 by Mr. Munch and the orchestra, featuring the Violin Concerto in G (K. 216), with Isaac Stern as soloist; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

At the final week-end of Tanglewood concerts the offerings will be the "St. Theresa Mass" of Haydn; that composer's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100; and works of Lukas Foss, Richard Strauss, Milhoud and Ravel.

Auditions for scholarships at the Berkshire Music Center will be held at Carnegie Recital Hall next week. Singers will be heard Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, instrumentalists Monday, April 13, at 10. Those desiring to audition should notify the Berkshire Music Center office in Symphony Hall, Boston.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN

'53

Notes:

Resorts Feature Art Study

Ole Olsen Leases Hotel

LENOX, Mass. — Free art lessons will be given vacationists at Seven Hills, Berkshire resort, this Summer by [illegible] Jurin, painter and [illegible]grapher. These lessons, which begin on July 1, will be a daily feature of the hotel program. Seven Hills is five minutes from the Tanglewood concert area.

* * *

N. Y. Times

CHANGE AT TANGLEWOOD

Dates Shifted for Monteux and Bernstein—Broadcast Planned

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced revisions in its schedule for the Berkshire Music Festival, which opens July 11 with an all-Bach program in the concert hall at Tanglewood, Mass.

Under the new arrangements Pierre Monteux will conduct on Sunday, Aug. 2, and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15. Charles Munch is the regular conductor.

Parts of the festival, beginning with the program of Sunday, July 26, will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System, marking the first network presentation of the open-air concerts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

APR 19 1953

WORLD OF MUSIC: SUMMER WILL BE FE

From Tanglewood to Carmel Annual Series Continue Throughout the Nation

By ROSS PARMENTER

AFTER the May festivals come the summer festivals, and the United States, as usual, will have its generous helpings of summer music. There will be music again at Tanglewood, Aspen, Central City, Brevard, Carmel, and most of the other centers where annual festivals have been made going concerns, and most of the large cities will have their outdoor series.

The Central City Opera festival in Colorado will open on June 27 and will consist of "Carmen" alternating with Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" for four weeks. The Aspen Festival, also in Colorado, will open on June 29 under the direction of Joseph Rosenstock. The Berkshire Festival will open at Tanglewood on July 11. The Bach Festival at Carmel, Calif., will run from July 20 to 27, and the Brevard Festival in North Carolina will be launched by Joseph Szigeti on Aug. 7 and conclude with James Christian Pfohl conducting Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on Aug. 23.

BOSTON, MASS.
RECORD

MAR 26 1953

PLAN AUDITIONS FOR TANGLEWOOD

Auditions for players of orchestral instruments applying for admission to the Berkshire Music Center will be held on Friday, April 10, at Symphony Hall, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Auditions will be held for all orchestral instruments and piano. Tuition scholarships are awarded to advanced students who qualify for admission. The Music Center is the summer school of music maintained at Tanglewood, Lenox, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its Berkshire Festival Concerts. Charles Munch, music director of the orchestra, is also director of the school with composer Aaron Copland as assistant director. The school will be in session for its 11th season from July 5 to Aug. 16 this year.

Festival Th
Listed by B

The Boston Symphony O
today announces the progr soloists for the Berkshire concerts in the theatre hall at Tanglewood. Charles will conduct the princip other members of the orch six performances on the th
urday evenings and Sunda
noons from July 11 to 26.

Two Bach programs
opening week end will incl
Brandenburg Concertos 1, and 6 with soloists: Concer
Richard Burgin, violin; Mis
Anthony, first flute, flute;
kas Foss, piano. Miss Anth be soloist also in Suite 2
works on the program will
3 and Cantata 78, "Jesu meine Seele," for solo quart us and orchestra, conduc
Hugh Ross.

A pair of Mozart progra
18 and 19 will include Divert
K. 136 for Strings; Violin C in G, K. 216, with Isaac Ste ist; Serenade for 13 Wind ments, K. 361; the "Prague
phony; Overture to "The M of Figaro"; Sinfonia Conc for Violin and Viola, with M
and Joseph de Pasquale, fir soloists; "Eine Kleine Nacht
and the "Jupiter Symphony

To Give Foss Work

A feature of the final we
of theatre concerts will cantata, "A Parable of De Lukas Foss, a former Tang student, who returned as ber of the faculty and was f years pianist with the or Commissioned by the Lo
Ky., orchestra, the work w performed in Louisville Ma conducted by the compose has been invited to lead
Tanglewood.

Written for narrator,
tenor soloist and orchestr
words are by the Austria Rainer Maris Rilke. The
version is by Anthony Hech
Zorina will be the narrato

NEW YORK, N.
HERALD TRIBU

APR 20 19

CBS to Carr
Music Fetes

Major European music
vals will be heard on tw
three Sunday afternoon b casts beginning May 3 ov
Columbia Broadcasting S and under the sponsorsh Willys-Overland Motors,
was announced yesterday.

The broadcasts will be 2:30 to 4 p. m., the tim occupied by the Philharm Symphony Society's S broadcasts, whose seaso end Sunday. James Fasse rector of music for C B S will be in charge of the f broadcasts, and will leav for Europe. He is now ating with the Bayreuth W festival in Germany, the Festival in Bergen, Norwe International Festival in burgh, Scotland; the E Festival of Music and T the "Maggio Musicale" in ence, Italy; the Salzburg val in Austria and the S Festival in Helsinki, Finla

Mr. Fassett is also nego for broadcasts of the Be Festival, Tanglewood,
Mass., and of a concert
Santa Cecilia Orchestra in under Leopold Stokowsk
rection.

24 SYRACUSE HERALD-AMERICAN, Sunday, April 5, 1953

Note Conductors Symposium In Philadelphia in Fall; Music in Tanglewood

This date in music: 1809 Albert Roussel, French composer born; 1914, first performance, in Paris, of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," as an orchestra piece.

By E. V. W.

WORD COMES from the American Symphony Orchestra League offices in Charleston, W. Va., that the Philadelphia Orchestra and the League will have a second presentation of the Conductors Symposium in Philadelphia Sept. 28-Oct. 2 next. The Symposium is widely recognized as a first step of U. S. professional symphonies to "offer study, opportunities, recognition and encouragement" to the nation's community symphony directors.

CONDUCTORS in attendance at the Symposium will work closely with Eugene Ormandy, conductors of the Philadelphia Orchestra. They will attend all Philadelphia Orchestra rehearsals and concerts and will participate in seminars and consultations with Philadelphia Orchestra members and administrative staff during their Philadelphia visit. Mrs. Helen M. Thompson, executive secretary of the American Symphony Orchestra League, states that many applications have been received in the hope that the Symposium will be repeated. Conductors from all sections of the nation are eligible to apply for certification to the Symposium.

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces that the Berkshire Festival concerts to be given in "Tanglewood" near Lenox, Mass., the Orchestra's summer home, will extend from July 11 to Aug. 16. In the first three weekends, concerts will be presented Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in the Theater Concert Hall. The first week will be devoted to the music of Bach; the second to Mozart; the third to Haydn and to contemporary composers: Strauss, Milhaud, Ravel, Lukas Foss.

IN THE GREAT Music Shed, concerts will be given on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. In the past there have been Thursday night programs in the Shed. These concerts, Series A, B, C. The dates: Series A, July 31, Aug. 1-2; Series B, Aug. 7-9 inclusive; Series C, Aug. 14-16 inclusive. Conductor Munch will conduct each concert except Aug. 9 and Aug. 15 when Leonard Bernstein will conduct. The Berkshire Music Center will be under direction of Conductor Munch, with the eleventh term concurrent with the Festival season in "Tanglewood."

AARON COPLAND will be assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center with Ralph Berkowitz, dean. The six-week session will begin on July 5 and close Aug. 14. Carlos Chavez will come from Mexico to join Aaron Copland as teacher of composition, a post previusly filled by such eminent visitors as Hindemith, Mirtinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen and Dallapiccola. The chamber music department of the Center will be enlarged considerably under leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster and the Boston Symphony Orchestra with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as special guest instructor during part of the session. Major part of the Chamber Music faculty will consist, as usual, of principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members. Miss Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature; William Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

* * *

[illegible]
HERALD-JOURNAL
APR 28 1953
4

Mrs. Strebel will go to Toronto to hear the "Met" in three night performances and a matinee, including "Rigoletto" and "Samson and Delilah." The "Met" will sing in Toronto a week. Mr. and Mrs. Strebel regularly attend Berkshire Festival concerts in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., in July-August.

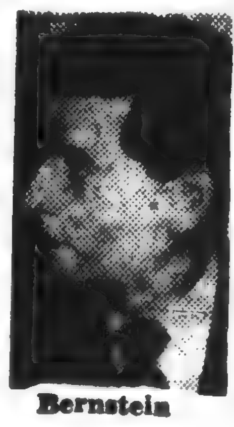
• • •

Jane Craner Will Sing in Brandeis June Festival

MISS JANE Craner, Syracuse contralto who has been on tour this season with the Robert Shaw Chorale, will go to Waltham, Mass., in June to sing in the Poulenc comic opera, "Les Mamelles de Tiresias," under direction of Leonard Bernstein, professor of music in Brandeis University. The festival, second annual program of creative arts, is set for June 10-14 inclusive. The opera bouffe, to be produced by the Leomade Opera Co. of New York City, will be directed by Lemonade's Max Leavitt.

MAESTRO BERNSTEIN, also in "Tanglewood" during the Berkshire Festival season, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Soprano Phyllis Curtin will have a leading role in the opera and Metropolitan Opera members also will be in the cast. The Poulenc opera will be performed in the outdoor Adolph Ullman amphitheater, completed last year on the university's 190-acre campus in time for the first Brandeis Festival. The Lemonade Opera Company, which has run three successful seasons, earned its reputation doing opera off Broadway in Greenwich Mews Playhouse. Richmond Louis Gale, Syracuse concert pianist, was accompanist during an early season.

Craner



Bernstein

WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE
APR 7 - 1953

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL STARTS IN JULY
Charles Munch Directing Orchestra at Tanglewood

Tanglewood's Music Festival Opens July 11

LENOX, April 7 — The 19th Berkshire Music Festival will open at "Tanglewood" Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with a pair of all-Bach programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Works to be heard are the "Brandenburg" concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5, Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine Seele."

A pair of Mozart programs will be played on July 18 and 19 by Mr. Munch and the orchestra, featuring the Violin Concerto in G (K. 216), with Isaac Stern as soloist; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" symphonies; the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

At the final weekend of Tanglewood concerts the offerings will be the "St. Theresa Mass" of Haydn; that composer's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100; and works of Lukas Foss, Richard Strauss, Milhaud and Ravel.

Auditions for scholarships at the Berkshire Music Center started at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York this week. Those desiring to audition should notify the Berkshire Music Center office in Symphony Hall, Boston.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
APR 5 - 1953

MUSIC FESTIVAL OPENS IN BERKSHIRES JULY 11

The nineteenth Berkshire Music Festival will open at Tanglewood, Mass., Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with a pair of all-Bach programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Works to be heard are the "Brandburg" concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5, Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine Seele."

A pair of Mozart programs will be played on July 18 and 19 by Mr. Munch and the orchestra, featuring the Violin Concerto in G (K. 216), with Isaac Stern as soloist; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

At the final week-end of Tanglewood concerts the offerings will be the "St. Theresa Mass" of Haydn; that composer's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100; and works of Lukas Foss, Richard Strauss, Milhoud and Ravel.

Auditions for scholarships at the Berkshire Music Center will be held at Carnegie Recital Hall next week. Singers will be heard Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, instrumentalists Monday, April 13, at 10. Those desiring to audition should notify the Berkshire Music Center office in Symphony Hall, Boston.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
JUN 21 1953

Notes:

Resorts Feature Art Study

Ole Olsen Leases Hotel

LENOX, Mass. — Free art lessons will be given vacationists at Seven Hills, Berkshire resort, this Summer by Lily Jurin, painter and lithographer. These lessons, which begin on July 1, will be a daily feature of the hotel program. Seven Hills is five minutes from the Tanglewood concert area.

• • •

N. Y. TIMES
5/1

CHANGE AT TANGLEWOOD

Dates Shifted for Monteux and Bernstein—Broadcast Planned

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced revisions in its schedule for the Berkshire Music Festival, which opens July 11 with an all-Bach program in the concert hall at Tanglewood, Mass.

Under the new arrangements Pierre Monteux will conduct on Sunday, Aug. 2, and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15. Charles Munch is the regular conductor.

Parts of the festival, beginning with the program of Sunday, July 26, will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System, marking the first network presentation of the open-air concerts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
APR 19 1953

WORLD OF MUSIC: SUMMER WILL BE FE

From Tanglewood to Carmel Annual Series Continue Throughout the Nation

By ROSS PARMENTER

AFTER the May festivals come the summer festivals, and the United States, as usual, will have its generous helpings of summer music. There will be music again at Tanglewood, Aspen, Central City, Brevard, Carmel, and most of the other centers where annual festivals have been made going concerns, and most of the large cities will have their outdoor series.

The Central City Opera festival in Colorado will open on June 27 and will consist of "Carmen" alternating with Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor" for four weeks. The Aspen Festival, also in Colorado, will open on June 29 under the direction of Joseph Rosenstock. The Berkshire Festival will open at Tanglewood on July 11. The Bach Festival at Carmel, Calif., will run from July 20 to 27, and the Brevard Festival in North Carolina will be launched by Joseph Szigeti on Aug. 7 and conclude with James Christian Pfohl conducting Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on Aug. 23.

BOSTON, MASS.
RECORD
MAR 26 1953

PLAN AUDITIONS FOR TANGLEWOOD

Auditions for players of orchestral instruments applying for admission to the Berkshire Music Center will be held on Friday, April 10, at Symphony Hall, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Auditions will be held for all orchestral instruments and piano. Tuition scholarships are awarded to advanced students who qualify for admission. The Music Center is the summer school of music maintained at Tanglewood, Lenox, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with its Berkshire Festival Concerts. Charles Munch, music director of the orchestra, is also director of the school with composer Aaron Copland as assistant director. The school will be in session for its 11th season, from July 5 to Aug. 16 this year.

Festival Th
Listed by

The Boston Symphon
today announces the p soloists for the Berksh concerts in the the hall at Tanglewood. Ch will conduct the pri other members of the o six performances on the urday evenings and Sun
noons from July 11 to
Two Bach programs
opening week end will in Brandenburg Concertos 1 and 6 with soloists: Conc Richard Burgin, violin; Mi
Anthony, first flute, flute;
kas Foss, piano. Miss An be soloist also in Suite
works on the program will
3 and Cantata 78, "Jesu
meine Seele," for solo quart us and orchestra, condu
Hugh Ross.
A pair of Mozart progra
18 and 19 will include Dive K. 136 for Strings; Violin in G, K. 216, with Isaac St
ist; Serenade for 13 Wind
ments, K. 361; the "Pragu
phony; Overture to "The M of Figaro"; Sinfonia Con
for Violin and Viola, with M
and Joseph de Pasquale, fir
soloists; "Eine Kleine Nacht
and the "Jupiter Symphony

To Give Foss Work

A feature of the final we
of theatre concerts will cantata, "A Parable of De Lukas Foss, a former Tan
student, who returned as ber of the faculty and was years pianist with the or Commissioned by the Lo
Ky., orchestra, the work w performed in Louisville M conducted by the compose
has been invited to lead
Tanglewood.
Written for narrator,
tenor soloist and orchestr
words are by the Austria
Rainer Maris Rilke. The
version is by Anthony Hech
Zorina will be the narrato

NEW YORK, N.
HERALD TRIBU
APR 20 1

CBS to Carr
Music Fetes

Major European music
vals will be heard on tw
three Sunday afternoon
casts beginning May 3 ov
Columbia Broadcasting and under the sponsor Willys-Overland Motors,
was announced yesterday.
The broadcasts will b
2:30 to 4 p. m., the ti occupied by the Philhar Symphony Society's broadcasts, whose seas end Sunday. James Fas rector of music for C B will be in charge of the broadcasts, and will lea
for Europe. He is now ating with the Bayreuth festival in Germany, the Festival in Bergen, Norw International Festival in burgh, Scotland; the Festival of Music and the "Maggio Musicale"
ence, Italy; the Salzbur val in Austria and the Festival in Helsinki, Finl
Mr. Fassett is also neg for broadcasts of the Festival, Tanglewood
Mass., and of a concert
Santa Cecilia Orchestra under Leopold Stokows
rection.

Festival Theatre Concerts Listed by Boston Symphony

The Boston Symphony Orchestra today [illegible] the programs and [illegible] Berkshire Festival [illegible] theatre-concert [illegible] at Tanglewood. Charles Munch [illegible] conduct the principals and other members of the orchestra in six performances on the three Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons from July 11 to 26.

Two Bach programs for the opening week end will include the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6 with soloists: Concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin; Miss Doriot Anthony, first flute, flute; and Lukas Foss, piano. Miss Anthony will be soloist also in Suite 2. Other works on the program will be Suite 3 and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seele," for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra, conducted by Hugh Ross.

A pair of Mozart programs July 18 and 19 will include Divertimento, K. 136 for Strings; Violin Concerto in G K. 216, with Isaac Stern, soloist; Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361; the "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, with Mr. Stern and Joseph de Pasquale, first viola, soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusic"; and the "Jupiter Symphony."

To Give Foss Work

A feature of the final week end of theatre concerts will be the cantata, "A Parable of Death" by Lukas Foss, a former Tanglewood student, who returned as a member of the faculty and was for some years pianist with the orchestra. Commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., orchestra, the work was first performed in Louisville March 11, conducted by the composer, who has been invited to lead it at Tanglewood.

Written for narrator, chorus, tenor soloist and orchestra, the words are by the Austrian poet, Rainer Maris Rilke. The English version is by Anthony Hecht. Vera Zorina will be the narrator.

The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin); Darius Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde" and Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program, also for the final week end, will include the St. Theresa Mass for Chorus, Soloists and Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Ross; and Symphonies 93 and 100 ("Military').

Seats for the theatre concerts are available at this time only to subscribers to one or more series of the Festival concerts in the shed, which will follow on the three week ends beginning July 31. Orders for single concerts in any series are accepted, however, to be filled after June 1, when the subscription period ends. Complete program and ticket information may be obtained by addressing Symphony Hall, Boston.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
AR 18 1953

Berkshire Fest Preps 11th Tanglewood Year

Lenox, Mass., March 17.

The 11th season of the Berkshire Music Centre and Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood here, will begin July 5, running six weeks to Aug. 16. Charles Munch will be director of the overall setup, with Aaron Copland as assistant director, overseeing the Centre school. Ralph Berkowits will be dean. Carlos Chavez, Gregor Piatigorsky, Ruth Posselt will join the teaching staff.

Festival concerts, as before, will consist of two series, with the chamber concerts July 11, 18 and 25 in the smaller theatre, and the full Boston Symphony Orchestra series in the 6,000-seat shed weekends of July 31-Aug. 1-2, Aug. 7-8-9 and Aug. 14-15-16. Munch will conduct most of the concert, with Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein as guest conductors.

N. Y. STAATS-ZEITUNG UND HEROLD, MONTAG, den 4. MAI 1953

Aus der Musikwelt:

Die "Marien-Vesper" von Monteverdi in Carngie Hall

Von FRED LOW

Paul Boepple leitete in der Carnegie Hall die Aufführung der "Marien Vesper" (Vespera e Magnificat) von Monteverdi; die Aufführenden waren die Dessoff Chöre, das New York Blechbläser-Ensemble, verstärkt durch Streicher und Holzbläser, und sechs Vokalsolisten sowie drei Instrumental-Solisten.

Die "Marien Vesper" ist zweifellos das bedeutendste Werk des Kirchenmusikers Monteverdi; sie stellt nach den Worten H. F. Redlichs den grandiosen Versuch dar, die überlieferten Formen der alten Psalm-Antiphonien und Hymnen mit dem aufwühlenden Gehalt und den revolutionären Methoden der jungen, opernmäßig inspirierten Instrumentalmusik zu erfüllen.

Paul Boepple verwendete statt der alten Instrumente für Continuo-Cembalo und Cello und außerdem den reichen Bläserchor der Blechinstrumente. Er verstand seinen disziplinierten Chor hervorragend zu leiten und in der Nuancierung besonders manche dramatischen Elemente hervortreten zu lassen; auch die zarten Passagen kamen zu schönster Geltung. Von den mitwirkenden Solisten seien Leslie Chabay (Tenor), dessen Stimme für die Kirchenmusik besonders geeignet erscheint, der warme, satte Bariton Robert McFerrins und die beiden Sopranistinnen Phyllis Curtin und Dorothy Stahl erwähnt.

Wir fanden im dritten Teil "Antiphon: Nigra Sum" die Passagen der Sopransoli mit Begleitung des Cembalo in der Klangmischung besonders reizvoll, die Koloraturen der Tenöre im Antiphon "Duo Seraphin" in der eigenartig angelegten Komposition bemerkenswert, und manchmal kündigt sich in den Chorstellen der Opernmusiker Monteverdi unverkennbar an. Es war einer der musikalisch interessantesten Abende der Saison.

Trio Concertante in Town Hall

Das "Trio Concertante" (Flöte, Cello und Klavier) debütierte letzte Woche in der Town Hall; Frances Blaisdell, Lucien Kirsch Laporte und Lucille Burnham spielten Werke für alle möglichen Kombinationen der drei Instrumente mit sicherem Stilgefühl und musikalischem Vortrag. Ein neues Werk war Anis Fuleihans Sonate für Flöte und Cello, melodienreich und für die Klangfarben der Instrumente geschrieben; im Programm waren ferner Werke von Bach, Händel u. a. m.

Drusilla Hufmaster

Die Pianistin Drusilla Hufmaster spielte in der Town Hall ein Programm von Werken, das von Bach bis Prokofieff führte; die Technik ist sauber, doch bleibt die Interpretation noch an der Oberfläche und die Tonkontrolle läßt zu wünschen übrig.

Drei Tanglewood-Konzerte im Radio übertragen

Das Sommerprogramm internationaler Musikfeste von CBS hat eine wertvolle Bereicherung durch die Übertragung von Teilen dreier Konzerte in Tanglewood erfahren. Es ist das erste Mal in der Geschichte des Berkshire Musikfestes, daß solche Vereinbarungen getroffen wurden, und neben den Sendungen aus Florenz, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh (europäische Musikfeste) bildet die Übertragung von Konzerten aus Tanglewood eine interessante Ergänzung dieses großangelegten Radioprogramms.

Um diese Übertragung zu ermöglichen, hat Charles Munch den Beginn dieser Konzerte auf 2.30 Uhr (statt wie ursprünglich 3 Uhr) festgelegt. Das Publikum wird den zweiten Teil dieser Konzerte, der um 4 Uhr beginnt, hören können; die Sendungen sind auf 2.30 Uhr bis 4 Uhr festgesetzt.

Das Programm der ersten Veranstaltungen im Theater in Tanglewood ist wie folgt abgeändert: Samstag, 11. Juli, und Sonntag, 12. Juli: Bach-Programm; Samstag und Sonntag, 12. und 13. Juli: Mozart; Samstag, 25. Juli: Haydn, und Sonntag, 26. Juli: Strauß, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, Foss. Zur Übertragung kommt von diesen Konzerten die Veranstaltung vom 26. Juli, und zwar Strauß, "Divertimento nach Couperin", Ravel, "Le Tombeau de Couperin", die "Klassische Symphonie" von Prokofieff und Milhauds "La Creation du monde".

Von den großen Konzerten in der Freilufthalle, deren genaues Programm wir noch bekanntgeben werden, kommen zur Sendung im CBS: 2., 9. und 16. August; das erste: Tschaikowski, Serenade für Streicher, Symphonie Nr. 5; das zweite: Schubert, Symphonie Nr. 5, Barber, Adagio für Streicher, Strauß, "Don Quixote", Solist Piatigorsky, und das dritte: Schuberts H-Moll-Symphonie, Werke von Chabrier und Richard Wagner.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
APR 5 - 1953

Busiest Symphony Season Berkshire Festival Will End

Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., given in three successive week-ends from July 11 to July 26, are announced today for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducting.

The Summer of 1953 will mark the 19th Berkshire Festival since the open-[illegible] concerts were inaugurated in 1934, the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge.

Seats for the six July theatre concerts, on Saturday evenings at 8:30 p. m. and Sunday afternoons at 3 p. m. are available at this time only to subscribers of one of the three series of Shed concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16. Orders are being accepted at the Festival Office—Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Bach programs, Saturday, July 11, and Sunday, July 12: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 (Richard Burgin, violin solo; Doriot Anthony, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and No. 6, Suite No. 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriot Anthony, soloist); Suite No. 3; and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu der du meine Seele," for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

Mozart programs, Saturday, July 18, and Sunday, July 19: Divertimento, K. 136, for Strings; Violin Concerto in G, K. 216 (Isaac Stern, soloist); Serenade "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern, violin; Joseph de Pasquale, first violo); "Eine kleine Nachtmusik"; the "Jupiter Symphony."

Contemporary Music

The final weekend of theatre concerts, one of contemporary works, one of Haydn, Saturday, July 25 and Sunday, July 26, will feature the Cantata, "A Parable of Death" by Lukas Foss, the composer conducting. Vera Zorina will be the Narrator. The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin), Darius Milhaud's "La Creation du monde," Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

The Haydn program will contain the St. Theresa Mass for Chorus, Soloists and Orchestra (Hugh Ross conductor); Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100 ("Military").

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6,000-seat Shed by the Boston Orchestra's full couplement of 104 will follow on the three weekends July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; Aug. 14, 15, 16. This year for the first time the three series concentrated into three-day weekends on Friday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15.

Complete program information will be sent on request: address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes the most active of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. On April 21 in Detroit the Orchestra inaugurates its first transcontinental tour, 29 concerts in 26 cities, through May 22. Under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, who toured a "Pops" Orchestra for 10 weeks in 65 concerts last Winter, the annual May and June "Pops" Concerts will be given at Symphony Hall, Boston, to be followed by the annual three weeks of Charles River Esplanade free concerts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
[illegible]

CBS to Carry Music Fetes

Major European music festivals will be heard on twenty-three Sunday afternoon broadcasts beginning May 3 over the Columbia Broadcasting System and under the sponsorship of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., it was announced yesterday.

The broadcasts will be from 2:30 to 4 p. m., the time now occupied by the Philharmonic-Symphony Society's Sunday broadcasts, whose season will end Sunday. James Fassett, director of music for C B S radio, will be in charge of the festival broadcasts, and will leave soon for Europe. He is now negotiating with the Bayreuth Wagner festival in Germany, the Bergen Festival in Bergen, Norway; the International Festival in Edinburgh, Scotland; the Holland Festival of Music and Drama; the "Maggio Musicale" in Florence, Italy; the Salzburg Festival in Austria and the Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland.

Mr. Fassett is also negotiating for broadcasts of the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., and of a concert by the Santa Cecilia Orchestra in Rome under Leopold Stokowski's direction.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
MAR 29 1953

Plans Announced for Eleventh Season of the Berkshire Music Center

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will serve as director of the 11th season of Berkshire Music Center this Summer. Aaron Copland will be assistant director; Ralph Berkowitz, dean. The six-week session will begin July 5 and close Aug. 16.

Special features of the session will include the coming of Carlos Chavez from Mexico to join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition. The chamber music department will be considerably enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, the concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as a special guest instructor for a part of the season.

The major part of the faculty for chamber music will consist as before of the principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members Jean Bedetti, cello, Fernand Gillet, oboe, Georges Laurent, flute, and William Valkenier, horn. Ruth Posselt, the violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature. Mr. Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the policy of awarding tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active, pre-professional divisions, and the highly successful activity for music educators and amateurs, the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study under Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who, with Pierre Monteux, will be a guest conductor of the Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments with the help of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss; Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Aliferis and Lorna deVaron; Boris Goldovsky, head of opera, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner. Irving Fine will assist Mr. Copland and Mr. Chavez in composition.

Information and catalogs about the Berkshire Festival concerts and the Music Center may be secured from Symphony Hall, Boston.

NEWARK, N. J.
NEWS
APR 5 - 1953

Englewood

19th Berkshire Music Festival Set

BOSTON — Six concerts to be performed on three successive week-ends, from July 11 to July 26, will serve as an introduction to the 19th Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The series will be presented under auspices of the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Charles Munch conducting.

Two Bach programs, July 11 and 12, will be followed by a pair of Mozart concerts, July 18 and 19. Contemporary works will be performed July 25 and a Haydn program July 26. Nine major concerts will follow the three weekend introductory series.

BOSTON, MASS.
ADVERTISER
APR 5 - 1953

Tanglewood Auditions Here

Young musicians have already filed many applications at the office of the Berkshire Music Center in the Boston Symphony Orchestra headquarters at Symphony Hall, Boston. Auditions for those seeking admission and scholarships at the orchestra's unique summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts, will be held at Symphony Hall on Friday morning, April 10, at 10 o'clock.

NOVEMB[illegible] 1951

GETTING YOUNGER

By Richard Williams

Last summer I went. as usual, to the Berkshires, to the Tanglewood Festival given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. As usual, the opening night was favored by the weather. (When it comes to weather, the Boston Symphony seems to have a special arrangement with God.) The crowd was so large, so punctual, and so enthusiastic that the evening seemed more like a prayer meeting of a particularly pleasant and suave sect than like a mere concert. Billy Sunday might have [illegible] Marie Antoinette. All kinds [illegible] people were there, variously outfitted, from ladies dressed in slacks which were too tight, to Bostonians dressed in tuxedos which were too loose.

All this was what I expected. It was nothing new. What struck me as new and different was the presence of very many young people, more young people than I remember seeing before. Was it the romantic program — Schumann's Fourth and Berlioz's Fantastic Symphony—which had drawn them to the concert? Was it the beautiful summer evening which brought them out? I don't know. But there they were, most attractive young people, a few in the higher-priced seats but most of them sitting, sprawling, lolling on the lawn outside of the Shed. Whole parties of six or eight had arrived together, but most had arrived in couples. Many brought blankets; some, a picnic basket; a few, camp chairs. One rather dashing young lady was enthroned on one of those modern and comfortable curved chairs. As you took your walk during intermission. threading your way in the semi-dark through the field, you had to be careful not to step on arms or legs. You were among a newly recruited but peaceful army bivouacking here for the sake of music. And a most attentive army it proved to be, serious and silent, though no doubt there was some smooching going on while the orchestra played.

I must say that the sight of this young audience filled me with happiness. I thought of them while the music played and I got quite sentimental about them. For they form good evidence to the continuity of music. New audiences with new enthusiasm are not only important in themselves as customers for the present music makers. but they are important also as the material from which future talent will spring.

You hear quite a lot of discussion about the lack of creative talent [illegible] our age. Where are. we ask. our great composers, comparable to those of the past? Where are the Chopins or Brahmses? Where. to come closer, are the new Stravinskys or Richard Strausses? Strauss is dead; Stravinsky is old. It is true that the present age is not blessed with creative talent. Perhaps it is not even distinguished in first-class executant talent. Can you name a young conductor that promises to become another Toscanini? Can you name a successor to Rosa Ponselle or Lotte Lehmann or Pablo Casals? But where there is enthusiasm there is hope. And where there is hope there is creation. If youth takes an interest in music. then the chances are good that youth will develop new composers and new musicians to keep the interest supplied. the enthusiasm satisfied.

(Continued on page 179)

MY SON is eighteen years old. He loves music. So do his friends. I listen to their talk whenever they permit me to do so. Those boys know what's good. They love what's good. And they have no inhibitions about certain music being too heavy. They plow into Hindemith with equal lightness of heart with which they plow into Schubert. They are not. of course. always right in their judgments. They get impatient quickly. No matter. I have respect for them and I am happy that they turn on the phonograph or turn up at Tanglewood.

It is my impression that an enormous development of musical taste and of love for music is going on under our very eyes. or rather under our very ears. It is my belief that the next ten or fifteen years will show so appreciable an increase in listening. in record buying. in attendance at concerts and what is most important—in the playing of music that it will make the increase of the last generation look small. The children who grew to be teen-agers during the war and who experienced in some way or other war's unpleasantness. the youngsters who now face an equivocal future in which bright opportunity is mixed with so many black clouds that the horizon looks to be dirty gray—these youngsters turn to some form of inspiration which has nothing to do with and lies above "the realities of life." Music furnishes such inspiration.

The young people have even invaded the world of opera. traditionally the realm of the older people who possess a si[illegible] [illegible]mond tiara. You don[illegible] many young people at the Metropolitan. But in New York City a new organization has come into being whose accent is definitely on youth. both behind and in front of the footlights. This is the New York City Opera Company. which last year completed its sixth season and which has now become so popular that seats for most of the performances are difficult to get.

IT is significant that the New York City Opera Company has not confined itself to the standard operas. and perhaps part of their success with young people is due to their fresh repertoire. (Part of it is due to the low prices—$3 top. And part to the fact that the singers. male and female. are presentable. their behavior on the stage intelligent.) The company has experimented with such out-of-the-way works as Richard Strauss's "Ariadne in Naxos" and Prokofieff's "Love for Three Oranges." They have dared to present so complex a work as "The Meistersinger" and one so small as Massenet's Manon. They have given Menotti's Amelia Goes to the Ball, and are planning to give the American premiere of Tamkin's The Dybbuck this fall. Among the standard works they have done well are Carmen. Traviata. The Marriage of Figaro and Don Giovanni. They do not do everything well: for example. their Aida I thought was pretty awful.

ONE further piece of evidence to the ascendancy of youth is to be found in a report from Princeton University. This study has been written by Professor J. Merrill Knapp. acting chairman of the Music Department. It shows that enrollment in music courses at Princeton has increased from 30 students in 1935 to about 600 last year. This represents one out of five graduates. The report states:

"The growth of music at Princeton is an educational phenomenon of more than local interest in that music has come of age without the imposition of any required courses and without the creation of any special machinery."

Eagle July 2

Munch Ends Vacation In France

Charles Mun[illegible] the Boston Sym[illegible] who will fly [illegible] to speak at the [illegible] Berkshire Music [illegible] at Tanglewood Sunday [illegible] to open the theatre [illegible] Berkshire Fest[illegible] Saturday [illegible]ring, July 11, has [illegible] a month's vacation in France. He flew to Paris from Montreal at the conclusion of the orchestra's transcontinental tour May 21.

In France Mr. M[illegible] conducted five concerts: Fo[illegible] in Paris [illegible] Théatre des Champs-Elysé[illegible] one in his native city of Stras[illegible] He led the Orchestra Nationa[illegible] Radiodiffusion, the French [illegible] broadcasting orchestra wi[illegible] he toured the Unit[illegible] Sta[illegible] 1948-49, before his [illegible] succeed Serge K[illegible] permanent conduc[illegible] orchestra.

On the program [illegible] five selections [illegible] he [illegible]duct at the Be[illegible] Berlioz dramat[illegible] [illegible]meo and Juliet [illegible] rée Fantastique [illegible] 3 of Wagner's "Die M[illegible] Schubert's symphony [illegible] (Unfinished); and S[illegible] overture to "Manfr[illegible]"

Introdced American Works

The conducto[illegible] first performanc[illegible] French music during [illegible] years with the Boston orche[illegible] returned the compliment [illegible]ducing to Fran[illegible] American compo[illegible] 4 Paris program [illegible] premiere of Wa[illegible] fourth symph[illegible] Haieff's pian[illegible] Smit as soloist. [illegible]tion won the N[illegible] Critics' Circle Aw[illegible] American orchestra [illegible] year. Mr. Munch [illegible] works last season in B[illegible] New York.

The June 18 Paris [illegible] the occasion of the premiere [illegible] Darius Milhaud's "Concertan[illegible] Orchestra and Piano" [illegible] Henriot, 1952 Tanglew[illegible] at the piano. His Stras[illegible] gram included the B[illegible] "Eroica" Symphony with [illegible] opened last year's Tangl[illegible] season.

NEW YORK
TIMES
FEB 17

PROGRAM SH FOR TANGL

Munch, Festival Hea
Thursday Concert
Night, Adds Mod

The traditional Th concerts of the Berk will be dropped thi favor of concerts on Charles Munch, cond
Boston Symphony O
nounced yesterday
plans for Tanglewood
This is the major festival, which Mr. M ect for the third su
It means that the w certs will be grouped Formerly, persons w
the Thursday concer to return home or w day night to hear a s
Another change
Mr. Munch is the inclu by modern composers of smaller concerts first three week-ends tre-Concert Hall. Ric Darius Milhaud, Rav
Foss will be the co resented.
Pierre Monteux wil
all-Tchaikovsky prog
1, and Leonard Berns
the concerts of Aug.
twelve remaining co
led by Mr. Munch, serve as director of Music Center, which to hold its eleventh rently with the festi
Bach will be the co
first two concerts in Concert Hall on Jul Mozart will be playe
ond pair on July 18
July 25 concert will Haydn, while music o will be played the n
The Music Shed con gin July 31, with the consisting of Beethov to Leonore No. 3, the Violin Concerto wit cescatti as soloist an land's "Appalachian
One of Mr. Bernste will be the Koussevit Concert, in which th will be Mahler's " Brahms' Requiem w work employing the of the Music Center.
Contemporary wor
cluded in the Shed
Lukas Foss' Piano C
the composer as so Barber's Adagio for S mith's Concerto for Brass, and Carlos Ch
India.

Music News and Notes

Tanglewood Plans

The Berkshire Music Center, founded by the late Serge Koussevitzky and maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will hold its eleventh session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for six weeks, from July 5 through Aug. 16, with Charles Munch as director. Aaron Copland as assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz as dean. The guest who will share the teaching of composition with Mr. Copland and Irving Fine this summer is the noted Mexican musician. Carlos Chavez. Richard Burgin will direct an enlarged chamber music department, with William Kroll as associate head and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Leonard Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments. with the assistance of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss. Hugh Ross will be in charge of choral music, and Boris Goldovsky of opera.

Tuition grants will again be awarded from the Tanglewood Revolving Fund to students in the active pre-professional divisions. The Tanglewood Study Group, for music educators and amateurs, will continue under Ingolf Dahl. Full information may be obtained from the Boston Symphony Orchesrta, Symphony Hall, Boston.

INTERNAT
• MUSIC
OFFICIAL JOURNA
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF THE UNITED STATES

A real acoustical wonde
Concert Hall at Tangl nen, after he had finis outdid himself in co
nance chamber. If y loudspeaker built in s larger than the other from the sound sourc
they would telescope visualize Saarinen's p concert hall seating which is almost perfe
and Kammeroper. Th and it seems to have When you are outside night, you must take c that is formed by lines the building, and curvi outside these "sound" li so accurately has Saarin tion to channelize the s is of course a marvelou

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
NEWS
[illegible]AR 12 1953

SUMMER MUSIC SCHOOL HEADS PICKED FOR '53

Boston Symphony Orchestra Specialists Named for Festival Sessions

The Boston Symphony Orchestra leaders have announced plans for the 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music it maintains at Tanglewood in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts. Charles Munch, music director of the orchestra, will serve as director, and Aaron Copland as assistant director. Ralph Berkowitz is dean. The six week session will begin on July 5 and close on Aug. 16.

Special features of the session will include the coming of Carlos Chaves from Mexico to join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, a post previously occupied by a number of eminent visitors—Hindemith, Martinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen, Dallapiccola. The chamber music department will be considerably enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, the concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as a special guest instructor for a part of the session. The major part of the faculty for chamber music will consist as before of the principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members Jean Bedetti, cello, Fernand Gillet, oboe, Georges Laurent, flute, and Willem Valkenier, horn. Miss Ruth Posselt, the violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature. Mr. Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Tuition Grants

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the policy of awarding tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active, pre-professional divisions, and the highly successful activity for music educators and amateurs, the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study under Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who, with Pierre Monteux, will be a guest conductor of the Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments with the help of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss; Hugh Ross will be head of choral music assisted by James Aliferis and Lorna deVaron; Boris Goldovsky, head of opera, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner. Irving Fine will assist Mr. Copland and Mr. Chavez in composition.

Information and catalogs about the Berkshire Festival concerts and the Music Center may be secured from Symphony Hall, Boston.

H[illegible] Beautiful
NOVEM[illegible] 1951

GETTING YOUNGER

By Richard Williams

Last summer I went, as usual, to the Berkshires, to the Tanglewood Festival given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. As usual, the opening night was favored by the weather. (When it comes to weather, the Boston Symphony seems to have a special arrangement with God.) The crowd was so large, so punctual, and so enthusiastic that the evening seemed more like a prayer meeting of a particularly pleasant and suave sect than like a mere concert. Billy Sunday might have [illegible] Marie Antoinette. All kinds [illegible] people were there, variously outfitted, from ladies dressed in slacks which were too tight, to Bostonians dressed in tuxedos which were too loose.

All this was what I expected. It was nothing new. What struck me as new and different was the presence of very many young people, more young people than I remember seeing before. Was it the romantic program — Schumann's Fourth and Berlioz's Fantastic Symphony—which had drawn them to the concert? Was it the beautiful summer evening which brought them out? I don't know. But there they were, most attractive young people, a few in the higher-priced seats but most of them sitting, sprawling, lolling on the lawn outside of the Shed. Whole parties of six or eight had arrived together, but most had arrived in couples. Many brought blankets; some, a picnic basket; a few, camp chairs. One rather dashing young lady was enthroned on one of those modern and comfortable curved chairs. As you took your walk during intermission, threading your way in the semi-dark through the field, you had to be careful not to step on arms or legs. You were among a newly recruited but peaceful army bivouacking here for the sake of music. And a most attentive army it proved to be, serious and silent, though no doubt there was some smooching going on while the orchestra played.

I must say that the sight of this young audience filled me with happiness. I thought of them while the music played and I got quite sentimental about them. For they form good evidence to the continuity of music. New audiences with new enthusiasm are not only important in themselves as customers for the present music makers, but they are important also as the material from which future talent will spring.

You hear quite a lot of discussion about the lack of creative talent of our age. Where are, we ask, our great composers, comparable to those of the past? Where are the Chopins or Brahmses? Where, to come closer, are the new Stravinskys or Richard Strausses? Strauss is dead; Stravinsky is old. It is true that the present age is not blessed with creative talent. Perhaps it is not even distinguished in first-class executant talent. Can you name a young conductor that promises to become another Toscanini? Can you name a successor to Rosa Ponselle or Lotte Lehmann or Pablo Casals? But where there is enthusiasm there is hope. And where there is hope there is creation. If youth takes an interest in music, then the chances are good that youth will develop new composers and new musicians to keep the interest supplied, the enthusiasm satisfied.

(Continued on page 179)

MY SON is eighteen years old. He loves music. So do his friends. I listen to their talk whenever they permit me to do so. Those boys know what's good. They love what's good. And they have no inhibitions about certain music being too heavy. They plow into Hindemith with equal lightness of heart with which they plow into Schubert. They are not, of course, always right in their judgments. They get impatient quickly. No matter. I have respect for them and I am happy that they turn on the phonograph or turn up at Tanglewood.

It is my impression that an enormous development of musical taste and of love for music is going on under our very eyes, or rather under our very ears. It is my belief that the next ten or fifteen years will show so appreciable an increase in listening, in record buying, in attendance at concerts and —what is most important—in the playing of music that it will make the increase of the last generation look small. The children who grew to be teen-agers during the war and who experienced in some way or other war's unpleasantness, the youngsters who now face an equivocal future in which bright opportunity is mixed with so many black clouds that the horizon looks to be dirty gray—these youngsters turn to some form of inspiration which has nothing to do with and lies above "the realities of life." Music furnishes such inspiration.

The young people have even invaded the world of opera, traditionally the realm of the older people who possess a si[illegible]mond tiara. You do[illegible] many young people at [illegible]politan. But in New York City a new organization has come into being whose accent is definitely on youth, both behind and in front of the footlights. This is the New York City Opera Company, which last year completed its sixth season and which has now become so popular that seats for most of the performances are difficult to get.

IT is significant that the New York City Opera Company has not confined itself to the standard operas, and perhaps part of their success with young people is due to their fresh repertoire. (Part of it is due to the low prices—$3 top. And part to the fact that the singers, male and female, are presentable, their behavior on the stage intelligent.) The company has experimented with such out-of-the-way works as Richard Strauss's "Ariadne in Naxos" and Prokofieff's "Love for Three Oranges." They have dared to present so complex a work as "The Meistersinger" and one so small as Massenet's Manon. They have given Menotti's Amelia Goes to the Ball, and are planning to give the American premiere of Tamkin's The Dybbuck this fall. Among the standard works they have done well are Carmen, Traviata, The Marriage of Figaro and Don Giovanni. They do not do everything well: for example, their Aida I thought was pretty awful.

ONE further piece of evidence to the ascendancy of youth is to be found in a report from Princeton University. This study has been written by Professor J. Merrill Knapp, acting chairman of the Music Department. It shows that enrollment in music courses at Princeton has increased from 30 students in 1935 to about 600 last year. This represents one out of five graduates. The report states:

"The growth of music at Princeton is an educational phenomenon of more than local interest in that music has come of age without the imposition of any required courses and without the creation of any special machinery."

Eagle July 2

Munch Ends Vacation In France

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will fly from Paris today to speak at the opening of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon at 3.30, and to open the theatre concerts of the Berkshire Festival Saturday evering, July 11, has completed a month's vacation in France. He flew to Paris fro mMontreal at the conclusion of the orchestra's transcontinental tour May 21.

In France Mr. Munch conducted five concerts: Four in Paris at the Théatre des Champs-Elysées and one in his native city of Strasbourg. He led the Orchestra National de la Radiodiffusion, the French national broadcasting orchestra with whom he toured the United States in 1948-49, before his invitation to succeed Serge Koussevitzky as permanent conductor of the Boston orchestra.

On the programs in France were five selections which he will conduct at the Berkshire Festival: The Berlioz dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet"; Chabrier's "Bourrée Fantastique;" excerpts from Act 3 of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger"; Schubert's symphony in B minor (Unfinished); and Schumann's overture to "Manfred."

Introdced American Works

The conductor, who has given first performances of much modern French music during his three years with the Boston orchestra, returned the compliment by introducing to France two works by American composers. On the June 4 Paris program were the European premiere of Walter Piston's fourth symphony and Alexei Haieff's piano symphony, with Leo Smit as soloist. The latter composition won the New York Music Critics' Circle Award as the best American orchestral work of the year. Mr. Munch conducted both works last season in Boston and New York.

The June 18 Paris concert was the occasion of the premiere of Darius Milhaud's "Concertante for Orchestra and Piano," with Nicole Henriot, 1952 Tanglewood soloist, at the piano. His Strasbourg program included the Beethoven "Eroica" Symphony with which he opened last year's Tanglewood season.

N Y

Music News and Notes

Tanglewood Plans

The Berkshire Music Center, founded by the late Serge Koussevitzky and maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will hold its eleventh session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for six weeks, from July 5 through Aug. 16, with Charles Munch as director, Aaron Copland as assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz as dean. The guest who will share the teaching of composition with Mr. Copland and Irving Fine this summer is the noted Mexican musician, Carlos Chavez. Richard Burgin will direct an enlarged chamber music department, with William Kroll as associate head and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Leonard Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments, with the assistance of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss. Hugh Ross will be in charge of choral music, and Boris Goldovsky of opera.

Tuition grants will again be awarded from the Tanglewood Revolving Fund to students in the active pre-professional divisions. The Tanglewood Study Group, for music educators and amateurs, will continue under Ingolf Dahl. Full information may be obtained from the Boston Symphony Orchesrta, Symphony Hall, Boston.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
NEWS
MAR 12 1953

SUMMER MUSIC SCHOOL HEADS PICKED FOR '53

Boston Symphony Orchestra Specialists Named for Festival Sessions

The Boston Symphony Orchestra leaders have announced plans for the 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music it maintains at Tanglewood in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts. Charles Munch, music director of the orchestra, will serve as director, and Aaron Copland as assistant director. Ralph Berkowitz is dean. The six week session will begin on July 5 and close on Aug. 16.

Special features of the session will include the coming of Carlos Chaves from Mexico to join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, a post previously occupied by a number of eminent visitors—Hindemith, Martinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen, Dallapiccola. The chamber music department will be considerably enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, the concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as a special guest instructor for a part of the session. The major part of the faculty for chamber music will consist as before of the principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members Jean Bedetti, cello, Fernand Gillet, oboe, Georges Laurent, flute, and Willem Valkenier, horn. Miss Ruth Po[illegible], the violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature. Mr. Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Tuition Grants

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the policy of awarding tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active, pre-professional divisions, and the highly successful activity for music educators and amateurs, the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study under Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who, with Pierre Monteux, will be a guest conductor of the Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments with the help of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss; Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Aliferis and Lorna deVaron; Boris Goldovsky, head of opera, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner. Irving Fine will assist Mr. Copland and Mr. Chavez in composition.

Information and catalogs about the Berkshire Festival concerts and the Music Center may be secured from Symphony Hall, Boston.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

PROGRAM SHIFTED FOR TANGLEWOOD

Munch, Festival Head, Moves Up Thursday Concerts to Friday Night, Adds Modern Works

The traditional Thursday night concerts of the Berkshire Festival will be dropped this summer in favor of concerts on Friday nights, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced yesterday in revealing plans for Tanglewood this summer.

This is the major change in the festival, which Mr. Munch will direct for the third successive year. It means that the week-end concerts will be grouped more closely. Formerly, persons who came for the Thursday concerts either had to return home or wait till Saturday night to hear a second concert.

Another change instituted by Mr. Munch is the inclusion of works by modern composers in the series of smaller concerts given on the first three week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Richard Strauss, Darius Milhaud, Ravel and Lukas Foss will be the composers represented.

Pierre Monteux will conduct the all-Tchaikovsky program on Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein will lead the concerts of Aug. 9 and 15. The twelve remaining concerts will be led by Mr. Munch, who also will serve as director of the Berkshire Music Center, which is scheduled to hold its eleventh term concurrently with the festival period.

Bach will be the composer in the first two concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 11 and 12. Mozart will be played at the second pair on July 18 and 19. The July 25 concert will be devoted to Haydn, while music of the moderns will be played the next day.

The Music Shed concerts will begin July 31, with the first program consisting of Beethoven's Overture to Leonore No. 3, the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist and Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring."

One of Mr. Bernstein's programs will be the Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, in which the major work will be Mahler's "Resurrection." Brahms' Requiem will be another work employing the choral forces of the Music Center.

Contemporary works to be included in the Shed programs are Lukas Foss' Piano Concerto, with the composer as soloist; Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings, Hindemith's Concerto for Strings and Brass, and Carlos Chavez' Sinfonia India.

EXPERIMENT IN OPERA

Tanglewood Commissions Will Add Practical Aid

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

TANGLEWOOD will embark on a fresh experiment this summer. It will attempt to set up a helpful environment for the creation of new operas by American composers, and if it has any kind of luck with this venture, it will be showing a fruitful way to other institutions in the United States.

The plan is simple and practical. Two or three young composers will be commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center within the next few weeks to write one-act operas. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation has supplied $1,500 to make possible grants of $750 each to at least two composers, and if a third composer is found with potentialities for writing an opera, another $750 will be raised somehow.

The difference in this approach from other commissioning schemes is that the composers, once they have received their grants, will not be left to their own devices. They will be expected to spend the summer at Tanglewood, where they will be the guests of the Berkshire Music Center, and they will have the advice and guidance of the people connected with Tanglewood's opera department.

A committee of established composers consisting of Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein has been asked to recommend a number of candidates for these commissions. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, will make the final choices from these recommendations, and he hopes to choose the applicants who seem to him to hold out the most promise of writing stageworthy operas.

Start This Summer

During the 1953 Tanglewood sessions the composers who win the commissions will be expected to have certain fragments of their projected operas completed. Then the real work of aiding the composer will begin. All the members of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at his disposal, and he will have a chance to get a practical view of all manner of theatre problems. He will consult with technicians on costumes, scenery, make-up and lighting. He will be helped to analyze musical construction as it affects writing for theatre.

By the end of the summer the composer should be clear in his own mind as to what shape his opera will take. The framework of the piece will be established, and he will know what his story line will be, what orchestral means he will employ and what scenic and technical advantages and disadvantages he must cope with. Then he will have almost a full year in which to complete his opera. And if all goes well, there will be premières of the finished pieces at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954.

On paper this looks like a sound approach. Mr. Goldovsky has reason to believe that it will work. Last summer there was a case in point, although the composer in question happened to be a man of considerable theatre experience.

Leonard Bernstein, you will remember, wrote his one-act "Trouble in Tahiti" for a première at the first festival of the arts held at Brandeis University last June. Some weeks later it was done at Tanglewood, and for this production Mr. Bernstein made revisions. Some of these changes were made after conferences with Tanglewood's opera staff, and the composer agreed that suggestions from men and women experienced in putting on opera were helpful.

Change of Mind

This experience caused Mr. Goldovsky to alter his own conviction that commissioning operas by American composers for Tanglewood might turn out to be more of an embarrassment than an asset. It had been his belief that composers new to writing for the theatre might not produce works suitable to the performing talents available for Tanglewood, that they might present technical problems beyond the reach of the center's facilities, that the operas might have serious theatrical deficiencies.

A lot of operas are being written in the United States. American composers are eager to tackle the theatre. It is not their fault, of course, that we do not have in this country dozens of professional opera houses eager to produce exciting new works as do Italy and Central Europe. They have no way of getting a practical grounding in the problems of the theatre, and without this know-how they are bound to make grave errors.

The Tanglewood plan will be worth watching. Not that the Tanglewood authorities look for the production of masterworks under the new plan. But they will feel that it has justified itself if the outcome is one or two one-act operas that are workmanlike and effective theatre pieces.

If this much is accomplished, they will feel that the scheme should be embodied in the regular activities of the center. In that case there will be a set of fresh commissions every other year.

It could be that institutions like the Metropolitan and San Francisco Operas would be moved to adopt similar plans, if the Tanglewood idea proves successful. The problems of writing for a large opera house with an exigent subscription audience and an exacting repertoire are much more difficult, and the task of composing a work to fill out an entire evening's entertainment adds to the hazards.

But if we are to have an operatic school of our own, the composers must learn their craft in the opera house. Richard Wagner and Richard Strauss conducted in opera houses before they wrote their enduring works. Italian masters like Giuseppe Verdi and Giacomo Puccini had the theatre in their background and in their blood, and yet they learned only by trial and error, and they were helped, particularly at the outset, by impresarios, theatre staffs and publishers.

Impressive Record

The remarkable thing is that quite a few impressive operas have been written in this country. Consider the works of Gershwin, Menotti, Blitzstein, Bernstein and Thomson, to name but a handful of our composers, and you have a record of which we need not be ashamed. But nearly all of their operas have been produced in the first instance by organizations other than our leading opera companies.

Unfortunately, there has been no continuous program for the comfort and instruction of composers with an aptitude for the theatre. Tanglewood's plan will be useful as far as it goes. But this center operates only six weeks a year during the summer, and while it will do its share, the lead must be taken ultimately by organizations with completer plants and a wider range of experienced advisers.

It is not enough to say to composers in general, "Write a good opera and we will produce it." It may be assumed that we have the composers and that they are eager to try their hands at operas. But they cannot be expected to devote all the energy and time required for a full-length opera purely on speculation. Some creditable operas have emerged in this way. The risks can never be exiled from creative effort, but if they can be diminished, it is certainly worth trying.

INTERNATIONAL
• MUSICIAN •
OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS
OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

A real acoustical wonder is the Theater and Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Here Elie Saarinen, after he had finished the big Music Shed, outdid himself in constructing a perfect resonance chamber. If you can imagine a giant loudspeaker built in sections, each one a little larger than the other as they get more distant from the sound source, and so constructed that they would telescope into each other, you can visualize Saarinen's procedure. The result is a concert hall seating perhaps eight hundred, which is almost perfection for chamber music and Kammeroper. The wood is left exposed, and it seems to have aged like an old violin. When you are outside the hall on a summer night, you must take care to be within the area that is formed by lines prolonging the sides of the building, and curving in the same way; for outside these "sound" lines you hear only silence: so accurately has Saarinen gauged his construction to channelize the sound waves. The result is of course a marvelous listening situation.

Albany Times Union
Jan 22

Boston 'Pops' Concert Delights Troy Audience

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

Some 4,000 deliriously happy music lovers converged at the RPI Field House in Troy Tuesday night to give vent to their uninhibited approval of the infectious music of the Boston "Pops" touring orchestra, founded and conducted by that "Proper Bostonian," Arthur Fiedler.

Troy got the kick-off of a tour of 70 cities which ends, two months hence, in Florida. Members of the orchestra, recruited from all over the United States proved to be a remarkably integrated ensemble.

Arthur Fiedler's musical ideas are unique. He caters to the fellow-or girl—for whom a whole evening of symphonic music leaves him or her cold. How often have we heard members of a local concert audience remark "Some of that highbrow music was way over my head. But I loved the encores!" That's where the Boston Pops begin to function.

MANY ENCORES

Mr. Fiedler offers as the meat of his musical banquet, encores and more encores, and even these choice tidbits have encores of their own: Four, in fact for the Troy concert; running the gamut from minuets, polkas, tangoes ("Jealousie") and the final one: "Stars and Stripes Forever" with piccolos, drums, whistles, 'n' everything, from the built-in sound effects department, a circumstance which should rate an orchid from the Hollywood studios of 20th Century-Fox.

Maybe the Lowells and the Cabots speak only to the Deity in Boston. But Fiedler and his men converse,volubly, with the Joneses the Smiths, and quite conveivably, to the Saltonstalls and the Lodges of the nation, a democracy of music much to be desired.

THE PROGRAM

Let's reprise the Troy program: Berlioz, Richard Strauss, Chabrier, Tchaikovski and Ravel for the first half. For popular competition, such short-haired tunes as "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," "Singin' In the Rain," "Chairmaine," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Fiddle Faddle," all dressed up in the orchestral habiliments of a Bach, a Beethoven or a Brahms. After all, these musical titans were not above taking a folk tune and turning it into a symphony, or at least, a tone poem. And for the final programmed number, "Ride of the Valkyries" by Richard Wagner, no less.

And for definite eye and ear perfume, Mr. Fiedler brought forth the lovely Hilde Somer, Austrian-born pianist who gave an exciting and technically thrilling performance of a Liszt Hungarian fantasy, played with the orchestra. Not since the days of the fabulous Spanish woman virtuoso, Theresa Carreno, have we encountered a more stimulating bit of keyboard wizardry, allied to innate musicianship than that which is the divine gift of Miss Somer.

Incidentally, impresario Jack Garren can thank the large contingent of Albanians which drove to Troy for this outstanding musical fiesta. But just wait (sic) until Albany gets its own municipal auditorium.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

APR 5 - 1953

Plans for Early Concerts At Tanglewood Announced

Berkshire Festival Programs and Soloists for Series In Theater-Concert Hall On Three July Week Ends Include Contemporary Works

Boston, April 4—Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, to be given in three successive week ends from July 11 to July 26, as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, were announced today for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducting.

19th Festival

The summer of 1953 will mark the 19th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in 1934, the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge, and the ninth continuous year concerts have been held in the 1200-seat theater.

Seats for the six July theater concerts, on Saturday evenings at 8.30 p. m. and Sunday afternoons at 3 p. m. are available at this time only to subscribers of one of the three series of Shed concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16. Orders are being accepted at the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

Two Bach programs, Saturday, July 11 and Sunday, July 12, will include the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5 (concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin solo; Miss Doriat Antony, first flute, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and 6. Also Suite 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriat Antony, solist); Suite 3; and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seale" for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

Mozart Programs

A pair of Mozart programs will be played Saturday, July 18 and Sunday, July 19, to include Divertimento K. 136 for Strings; Violin Concerto in G. K. 216 (Isaac Stern, Soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments K. 361; the "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro;" Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, first viola soloists); "Eine leine Nachtmusik;" the "Jupiter" Symphony.

A feature of the final week end of theater concerts, one of contemporary works, one of Haydn, Saturday, July 25 and Sunday, July 26, will be the cantata, "A Parable of Death" by Lukas Foss, young American composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., Orchestra and had its world premiere there March 11. As on that occasion, the composer has been invited to conduct, and Vera Zorina will be the narrator. For narrator, chorus, tenor soloist and orchestra. "A Parable of Death" is from "Geschicten vom lieben Gott" by the Austrian post Rainer Maria Rilke, English version by Anthony Hecht.

The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin), Dorius Milhaud's "La Creation du monde," Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program will contain the St. Theresa Mass for chorus, soloists and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor); Symphonies 93 and 100 ("Military").

Nine Shed Concerts

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat Shed by the Boston Orchestra's full complement of 104 will follow on the three week ends July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; Aug. 14, 15, 16, this year for the first time the three series concentrated into three-day week ends, on Friday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15.

Complete program information will be sent on request. Address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. On April 21 in Detroit the orchestra inaugurates its first transcontinental tour, 29 concerts in 26 cities, through May 22. Under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, who toured a "Pops" Orchestra for 10 weeks in 65 concerts last winter, the annual May and June "Pops" Concerts will be given at Symphony Hall, Boston, to be followed by the annual three weeks Charles River Esplanade free concerts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

FEB 17 1953

PROGRAM SHIFTED FOR TANGLEWOOD

Munch, Festival Head, Moves Up Thursday Concerts to Friday Night, Adds Modern Works

The traditional Thursday night concerts of the Berkshire Festival will be dropped this summer in favor of concerts on Friday nights, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced yesterday in revealing plans for Tanglewood this summer.

This is the major change in the festival, which Mr. Munch will direct for the third successive year. It means that the week-end concerts will be grouped more closely. Formerly, persons who came for the Thursday concerts either had to return home or wait till Saturday night to hear a second concert.

Another change instituted by Mr. Munch is the inclusion of works by modern composers in the series of smaller concerts given on the first three week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Richard Strauss, Darius Milhaud, Ravel and Lukas Foss will be the composers represented.

Pierre Monteux will conduct the all-Tchaikovsky program on Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein will lead the concerts of Aug. 9 and 15. The twelve remaining concerts will be led by Mr. Munch, who also will serve as director of the Berkshire Music Center, which is scheduled to hold its eleventh term concurrently with the festival period.

Bach will be the composer in the first two concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 11 and 12. Mozart will be played at the second pair on July 18 and 19. The July 25 concert will be devoted to Haydn, while music of the moderns will be played the next day.

The Music Shed concerts will begin July 31, with the first program consisting of Beethoven's Overture to Leonore No. 3, the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist and Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring."

One of Mr. Bernstein's programs will be the Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, in which the major work will be Mahler's "Resurrection." Brahms' Requiem will be another work employing the choral forces of the Music Center.

Contemporary works to be included in the Shed programs are Lukas Foss' Piano Concerto, with the composer as soloist; Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings, Hindemith's Concerto for Strings and Brass, and Carlos Chavez' Sinfonia India.

N.Y. Times - [illegible]

EXPERIMENT IN OPERA

Tanglewood Commissions Will Add Practical Aid

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

TANGLEWOOD will embark on a fresh experiment this summer. It will attempt to set up a helpful environment for the creation of new operas by American composers, and if it has any kind of luck with this venture, it will be showing a fruitful way to other institutions in the United States.

The plan is simple and practical. Two or three young composers will be commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center within the next few weeks to write one-act operas. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation has supplied $1,500 to make possible grants of $750 each to at least two composers, and if a third composer is found with potentialities for writing an opera, another $750 will be raised somehow.

The difference in this approach from other commissioning schemes is that the composers, once they have received their grants, will not be left to their own devices. They will be expected to spend the summer at Tanglewood, where they will be the guests of the Berkshire Music Center, and they will have the advice and guidance of the people connected with Tanglewood's opera department.

A committee of established composers consisting of Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein has been asked to recommend a number of candidates for these commissions. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, will make the final choices from these recommendations, and he hopes to choose the applicants who seem to him to hold out the most promise of writing stageworthy operas.

Start This Summer

During the 1953 Tanglewood sessions the composers who win the commissions will be expected to have certain fragments of their projected operas completed. Then the real work of aiding the composer will begin. All the members of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at his disposal, and he will have a chance to get a practical view of all manner of theatre problems. He will consult with technicians on costumes, scenery, make-up and lighting. He will be helped to analyze musical construction as it affects writing for theatre.

By the end of the summer the composer should be clear in his own mind as to what shape his opera will take. The framework of the piece will be established, and he will know what his story line will be, what orchestral means he will employ and what scenic and technical advantages and disadvantages he must cope with. Then he will have almost a full year in which to complete his opera. And if all goes well, there will be premières of the finished pieces at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954.

On paper this looks like a sound approach. Mr. Goldovsky has reason to believe that it will work. Last summer there was a case in point, although the composer in question happened to be a man of considerable theatre experience.

Leonard Bernstein, you will remember, wrote his one-act "Trouble in Tahiti" for a première at the first festival of the arts held at Brandeis University last June. Some weeks later it was done at Tanglewood, and for this production Mr. Bernstein made revisions. Some of these changes were made after conferences with Tanglewood's opera staff, and the composer agreed that suggestions from men and women experienced in putting on opera were helpful.

Change of Mind

This experience caused Mr. Goldovsky to alter his own conviction that commissioning operas by American composers for Tanglewood might turn out to be more of an embarrassment than an asset. It had been his belief that composers new to writing for the theatre might not produce works suitable to the performing talents available for Tanglewood, that they might present technical problems beyond the reach of the center's facilities, that the operas might have serious theatrical deficiencies.

A lot of operas are being written in the United States. American composers are eager to tackle the theatre. It is not their fault, of course, that we do not have in this country dozens of professional opera houses eager to produce exciting new works as do Italy and Central Europe. They have no way of getting a practical grounding in the problems of the theatre, and without this know-how they are bound to make grave errors.

The Tanglewood plan will be worth watching. Not that the Tanglewood authorities look for the production of masterworks under the new plan. But they will feel that it has justified itself if the outcome is one or two one-act operas that are workmanlike and effective theatre pieces.

If this much is accomplished, they will feel that the scheme should be embodied in the regular activities of the center. In that case there will be a set of fresh commissions every other year.

It could be that institutions like the Metropolitan and San Francisco Operas would be moved to adopt similar plans, if the Tanglewood idea proves successful. The problems of writing for a large opera house with an exigent subscription audience and an exacting repertoire are much more difficult, and the task of composing a work to fill out an entire evening's entertainment adds to the hazards.

But if we are to have an operatic school of our own, the composers must learn their craft in the opera house. Richard Wagner and Richard Strauss conducted in opera houses before they wrote their enduring works. Italian masters like Giuseppe Verdi and Giacomo Puccini had the theatre in their background and in their blood, and yet they learned only by trial and error, and they were helped, particularly at the outset, by impresarios, theatre staffs and publishers.

Impressive Record

The remarkable thing is that quite a few impressive operas have been written in this country. Consider the works of Gershwin, Menotti, Blitzstein, Bernstein and Thomson, to name but a handful of our composers, and you have a record of which we need not be ashamed. But nearly all of their operas have been produced in the first instance by organizations other than our leading opera companies.

Unfortunately, there has been no continuous program for the comfort and instruction of composers with an aptitude for the theatre. Tanglewood's plan will be useful as far as it goes. But this center operates only six weeks a year during the summer, and while it will do its share, the lead must be taken ultimately by organizations with completer plants and a wider range of experienced advisers.

It is not enough to say to composers in general, "Write a good opera and we will produce it." It may be assumed that we have the composers and that they are eager to try their hands at operas. But they cannot be expected to devote all the energy and time required for a full-length opera purely on speculation. Some creditable operas have emerged in this way. The risks can never be exiled from creative effort, but if they can be diminished, it is certainly worth trying.

INTERNATIONAL
• MUSICIAN •
OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS
OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

A real acoustical wonder is the Theater and Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Here Elie Saarinen, after he had finished the big Music Shed, outdid himself in constructing a perfect resonance chamber. If you can imagine a giant loudspeaker built in sections, each one a little larger than the other as they get more distant from the sound source, and so constructed that they would telescope into each other, you can visualize Saarinen's procedure. The result is a concert hall seating perhaps eight hundred, which is almost perfection for chamber music and Kammeroper. The wood is left exposed, and it seems to have aged like an old violin. When you are outside the hall on a summer night, you must take care to be within the area that is formed by lines prolonging the sides of the building, and curving in the same way; for outside these "sound" lines you hear only silence: so accurately has Saarinen gauged his construction to channelize the sound waves. The result is of course a marvelous listening situation.

Albany Times Union
Jan 22

Boston 'Pops' Concert Delights Troy Audience

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

Some 4,000 deliriously happy music lovers converged at the RPI Field House in Troy Tuesday night to give vent to their uninhibited approval of the infectious music of the Boston "Pops" touring orchestra, founded and conducted by that "Proper Bostonian," Arthur Fiedler.

Troy got the kick-off of a tour of 70 cities which ends, two months hence, in Florida. Members of the orchestra, recruited from all over the United States proved to be a remarkably integrated ensemble.

Arthur Fiedler's musical ideas are unique. He caters to the fellow or girl—for whom a whole evening of symphonic music leaves him or her cold. How often have we heard members of a local concert audience remark "Some of that highbrow music was way over my head. But I loved the encores!" That's where the Boston Pops begin to function.

MANY ENCORES

Mr. Fiedler offers as the meat of his musical banquet, encores and more encores, and even these choice tidbits have encores of their own: Four, in fact for the Troy concert; running the gamut from minuets, polkas, tangoes ("Jealousie") and the final one: "Stars and Stripes Forever" with piccolos, drums, whistles, 'n' everything, from the built-in sound effects department, a circumstance which should rate an orchid from the Hollywood studios of 20th Century-Fox.

Maybe the Lowells and the Cabots speak only to the Deity in Boston. But Fiedler and his men converse, volubly, with the Joneses the Smiths, and quite conceivably, to the Saltonstalls and the Lodges of the nation, a democracy of music much to be desired.

THE PROGRAM

Let's reprise the Troy program: Berlioz, Richard Strauss, Chabrier, Tchaikovski and Ravel for the first half. For popular competition, such short-haired tunes as "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," "Singin' In the Rain," "Chaimaine," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Fiddle Faddle," all dressed up in the orchestral habiliments of a Bach, a Beethoven or a Brahms. After all, these musical titans were not above taking a folk tune and turning it into a symphony, or at least, a tone poem. And for the final programmed number, "Ride of the Valkyries" by Richard Wagner, no less.

And for definite eye and ear perfume, Mr. Fiedler brought forth the lovely Hilde Somer, Austrian-born pianist who gave an exciting and technically thrilling performance of a Liszt Hungarian fantasy, played with the orchestra. Not since the days of the fabulous Spanish woman virtuoso, Theresa Carreno, have we encountered a more stimulating bit of keyboard wizardry, allied to innate musicianship than that which is the divine gift of Miss Somer.

Incidentally, impresario Jack Garren can thank the large contingent of Albanians which drove to Troy for this outstanding musical fiesta. But just wait (sic) until Albany gets its own municipal auditorium.

[126]

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

APR 5 - 1953

Plans for Early Concerts At Tanglewood Announced

Berkshire Festival Programs and Soloists for Series In Theater-Concert Hall On Three July Week Ends Include Contemporary Works

Boston, April 4—Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, to be given in three successive week ends from July 11 to July 26, as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, were announced today for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducting.

19th Festival

The summer of 1953 will mark the 19th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in 1934, the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge, and the ninth continuous year concerts have been held in the 1200-seat theater.

Seats for the six July theater concerts, on Saturday evenings at 8.30 p. m. and Sunday afternoons at 3 p. m. are available at this time only to subscribers of one of the three series of Shed concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16. Orders are being accepted at the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

Two Bach programs, Saturday, July 11 and Sunday, July 12, will include the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5, (concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin solo; Miss Doriat Antony, first flute, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and 6. Also Suite 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriat Antony, solist); Suite 3; and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seale" for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

Mozart Programs

A pair of Mozart programs will be played Saturday, July 18 and Sunday, July 19, to include Divertimento K. 136 for Strings; Violin Concerto in G. K. 216 (Isaac Stern, Soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments K. 361; the "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro;" Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, first viola soloists); "Eine leine Nachtmusik;" the "Jupiter" Symphony.

A feature of the final week end of theater concerts, one of contemporary works, one of Haydn, Saturday, July 25 and Sunday, July 26, will be the cantata, "A Parable of Death," by Lukas Foss, young American composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., Orchestra and had its world premiere there March 11. As on that occasion, the composer has been invited to conduct, and Vera Zorina will be the narrator. For narrator, chorus, tenor soloist and orchestra, "A Parable of Death" is from "Geschicten vom lieben Gott" by the Austrian post Rainer Maria Rilke, English version by Anthony Hecht.

The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin), Dorius Milhaud's "La Creation du monde," Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program will contain the St. Theresa Mass for chorus, soloists and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor); Symphonies 93 and 100 ("Military").

Nine Shed Concerts

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat Shed by the Boston Orchestra's full complement of 104 will follow on the three week ends July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; Aug. 14, 15, 16, this year for the first time the three series concentrated into three-day week ends, on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15.

Complete program information will be sent on request. Address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. On April 21 in Detroit the orchestra inaugurates its first transcontinental tour, 29 concerts in 26 cities, through May 22. Under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, who toured a "Pops" Orchestra for 10 weeks in 66 concerts last winter, the annual May and June "Pops" Concerts will be given at Symphony Hall, Boston, to be followed by the annual three weeks Charles River Esplanade free concerts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

PROGRAM SHIFTED FOR TANGLEWOOD

Munch, Festival Head, Moves Up Thursday Concerts to Friday Night, Adds Modern Works

The [illegible] and Thursday night [illegible] of the Berkshire Festival will be dropped this summer in favor of concerts on Friday nights, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced yesterday in revealing plans for Tanglewood this summer.

This is the major change in the festival, which Mr. Munch will direct for the third successive year. It means that the week-end concerts will be grouped more closely. Formerly, persons who came for the Thursday concerts either had to return home or wait till Saturday night to hear a second concert.

Another change instituted by Mr. Munch is the inclusion of works by modern composers in the series of smaller concerts given on the first three week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Richard Strauss, Darius Milhaud, Ravel and Lukas Foss will be the composers represented.

Pierre Monteux will conduct the all-Tchaikovsky program on Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein will lead the concerts of Aug. 9 and 15. The twelve remaining concerts will be led by Mr. Munch, who also will serve as director of the Berkshire Music Center, which is scheduled to hold its eleventh term concurrently with the festival period.

Bach will be the composer in the first two concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 11 and 12. Mozart will be played at the second pair on July 18 and 19. The July 25 concert will be devoted to Haydn, while music of the moderns will be played the next day.

The Music Shed concerts will begin July 31, with the first program consisting of Beethoven's Overture to Leonore No. 3, the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist and Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring."

One of Mr. Bernstein's programs will be the Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, in which the major work will be Mahler's "Resurrection." Brahms' Requiem will be another work employing the choral forces of the Music Center.

Contemporary works to be included in the Shed programs are Lukas Foss' Piano Concerto, with the composer as soloist; Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings, Hindemith's Concerto for Strings and Brass, and Carlos Chavez' Sinfonia India.

EXPERIMENT IN OPERA

Tanglewood Commissions Will Add Practical Aid

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

TANGLEWOOD will embark on a fresh experiment this summer. It will attempt to set up a helpful environment for the creation of new operas by American composers, and if it has any kind of luck with this venture, it will be showing a fruitful way to other institutions in the United States.

The plan is simple and practical. Two or three young composers will be commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center within the next few weeks to write one-act operas. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation has supplied $1,500 to make possible grants of $750 each to at least two composers, and if a third composer is found with potentialities for writing an opera, another $750 will be raised somehow.

The difference in this approach from other commissioning schemes is that the composers, once they have received their grants, will not be left to their own devices. They will be expected to spend the summer at Tanglewood, where they will be the guests of the Berkshire Music Center, and they will have the advice and guidance of the people connected with Tanglewood's opera department.

A committee of established composers consisting of Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein has been asked to recommend a number of candidates for these commissions. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, will make the final choices from these recommendations, and he hopes to choose the applicants who seem to him to hold out the most promise of writing stageworthy operas.

Start This Summer

During the 1953 Tanglewood sessions the composers who win the commissions will be expected to have certain fragments of their projected operas completed. Then the real work of aiding the composer will begin. All the members of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at his disposal, and he will have a chance to get a practical view of all manner of theatre problems. He will consult with technicians on costumes, scenery, make-up and lighting. He will be helped to analyze musical construction as it affects writing for theatre.

By the end of the summer the composer should be clear in his own mind as to what shape his opera will take. The framework of the piece will be established, and he will know what his story line will be, what orchestral means he will employ and what scenic and technical advantages and disadvantages he must cope with. Then he will have almost a full year in which to complete his opera. And if all goes well, there will be premières of the finished pieces at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954.

On paper this looks like a sound approach. Mr. Goldovsky has reason to believe that it will work. Last summer there was a case in point, although the composer in question happened to be a man of considerable theatre experience.

Leonard Bernstein, you will remember, wrote his one-act "Trouble in Tahiti" for a première at the first festival of the arts held at Brandeis University last June. Some weeks later it was done at Tanglewood, and for this production Mr. Bernstein made revisions. Some of these changes were made after conferences with Tanglewood's opera staff, and the composer agreed that suggestions from men and women experienced in putting on opera were helpful.

Change of Mind

This experience caused Mr. Goldovsky to alter his own conviction that commissioning operas by American composers for Tanglewood might turn out to be more of an embarrassment than an asset. It had been his belief that composers new to writing for the theatre might not produce works suitable to the performing talents available for Tanglewood, that they might present technical problems beyond the reach of the center's facilities, that the operas might have serious theatrical deficiencies.

A lot of operas are being written in the United States. American composers are eager to tackle the theatre. It is not their fault, of course, that we do not have in this country dozens of professional opera houses eager to produce exciting new works as do Italy and Central Europe. They have no way of getting a practical grounding in the problems of the theatre, and without this know-how they are bound to make grave errors.

The Tanglewood plan will be worth watching. Not that the Tanglewood authorities look for the production of masterworks under the new plan. But they will feel that it has justified itself if the outcome is one or two one-act operas that are workmanlike and effective theatre pieces.

If this much is accomplished, they will feel that the scheme should be embodied in the regular activities of the center. In that case there will be a set of fresh commissions every other year.

It could be that institutions like the Metropolitan and San Francisco Operas would be moved to adopt similar plans, if the Tanglewood idea proves successful. The problems of writing for a large opera house with an exigent subscription audience and an exacting repertoire are much more difficult, and the task of composing a work to fill out an entire evening's entertainment adds to the hazards.

But if we are to have an operatic school of our own, the composers must learn their craft in the opera house. Richard Wagner and Richard Strauss conducted in opera houses before they wrote their enduring works. Italian masters like Giuseppe Verdi and Giacomo Puccini had the theatre in their background and in their blood, and yet they learned only by trial and error, and they were helped, particularly at the outset, by impresarios, theatre staffs and publishers.

Impressive Record

The remarkable thing is that quite a few impressive operas have been written in this country. Consider the works of Gershwin, Menotti, Blitzstein, Bernstein and Thomson, to name but a handful of our composers, and you have a record of which we need not be ashamed. But nearly all of their operas have been produced in the first instance by organizations other than our leading opera companies.

Unfortunately, there has been no continuous program for the comfort and instruction of composers with an aptitude for the theatre. Tanglewood's plan will be useful as far as it goes. But this center operates only six weeks a year during the summer, and while it will do its share, the lead must be taken ultimately by organizations with completer plants and a wider range of experienced advisers.

It is not enough to say to composers in general, "Write a good opera and we will produce it." It may be assumed that we have the composers and that they are eager to try their hands at operas. But they cannot be expected to devote all the energy and time required for a full-length opera purely on speculation. Some creditable operas have emerged in this way. The risks can never be exiled from creative effort, but if they can be diminished, it is certainly worth trying.

INTERNATIONAL
•MUSICIAN•

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS
OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

A real acoustical wonder is the Theater and Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Here Elie Saarinen, after he had finished the big Music Shed, outdid himself in constructing a perfect resonance chamber. If you can imagine a giant loudspeaker built in sections, each one a little larger than the other as they get more distant from the sound source, and so constructed that they would telescope into each other, you can visualize Saarinen's procedure. The result is a concert hall seating perhaps eight hundred, which is almost perfection for chamber music and Kammeroper. The wood is left exposed, and it seems to have aged like an old violin. When you are outside the hall on a summer night, you must take care to be within the area that is formed by lines prolonging the sides of the building, and curving in the same way; for outside these "sound" lines you hear only silence: so accurately has Saarinen gauged his construction to channelize the sound waves. The result is of course a marvelous listening situation.

Albany Times Union
Jan 22

Boston 'Pops' Concert Delights Troy Audience

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

Some 4,000 deliriously happy music lovers converged at the RPI Field House in Troy Tuesday night to give vent to their uninhibited approval of the infectious music of the Boston "Pops" touring orchestra, founded and conducted by that "Proper Bostonian," Arthur Fiedler.

Troy got the kick-off of a tour of 70 cities which ends, two months hence, in Florida. Members of the orchestra, recruited from all over the United States proved to be a remarkably integrated ensemble.

Arthur Fiedler's musical ideas are unique. He caters to the fellow-or girl—for whom a whole evening of symphonic music leaves him or her cold. How often have we heard members of a local concert audience remark "Some of that highbrow music was way over my head. But I loved the encores!" That's where the Boston Pops begin to function.

MANY ENCORES

Mr. Fiedler offers as the meat of his musical banquet, encores and more encores, and even these choice tidbits have encores of their own: Four, in fact for the Troy concert; running the gamut from minuets, polkas, tangoes ("Jealousie") and the final one: "Stars and Stripes Forever" with piccolos, drums, whistles, 'n' everything, from the built-in sound effects department, a circumstance which should rate an orchid from the Hollywood studios of 20th Century-Fox.

Maybe the Lowells and the Cabots speak only to the Deity in Boston. But Fiedler and his men converse,volubly, with the Joneses the Smiths, and quite conveivably, to the Saltonstalls and the Lodges of the nation, a democracy of music much to be desired.

THE PROGRAM

Let's reprise the Troy program: Berlioz, Richard Strauss, Chabrier, Tchaikovski and Ravel for the first half. For popular competition, such short-haired tunes as "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," "Singin' In the Rain," "Chairmaine," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Fiddle Faddle," all dressed up in the orchestral habiliments of a Bach, a Beethoven or a Brahms. After all, these musical titans were not above taking a folk tune and turning it into a symphony, or at least, a tone poem. And for the final programmed number, "Ride of the Valkyries" by Richard Wagner, no less.

And for definite eye and ear perfume, Mr. Fiedler brought forth the lovely Hilde Somer, Austrian-born pianist who gave an exciting and technically thrilling performance of a Liszt Hungarian fantasy, played with the orchestra. Not since the days of the fabulous Spanish woman virtuoso, Theresa Carreno, have we encountered a more stimulating bit of keyboard wizardry, allied to innate musicianship than that which is the divine gift of Miss Somer.

Incidentally, impresario Jack Garren can thank the large contingent of Albanians which drove to Troy for this outstanding musical fiesta. But just wait (sic) until Albany gets its own municipal auditorium.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

APR 5 - 1953

Plans for Early Concerts At Tanglewood Announced

Berkshire Festival Programs and Soloists for Series In Theater-Concert Hall On Three July Week Ends Include Contemporary Works

Boston, April 4—Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, to be given in three successive week ends from July 11 to July 26, as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, were announced today for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducting.

19th Festival

The summer of 1953 will mark the 19th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in 1934, the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge, and the ninth continuous year concerts have been held in the 1200-seat theater.

Seats for the six July theater concerts, on Saturday evenings at 8.30 p. m. and Sunday afternoons at 3 p. m. are available at this time only to subscribers of one of the three series of Shed concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16. Orders are being accepted at the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

Two Bach programs, Saturday, July 11 and Sunday, July 12, will include the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5 (concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin solo; Miss Doriat Antony, first flute, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and 6. Also Suite 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriat Antony, solist); Suite 3; and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seale" for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

Mozart Programs

A pair of Mozart programs will be played Saturday, July 18 and Sunday, July 19, to include Divertimento K. 136 for Strings; Violin Concerto in G. K. 216 (Isaac Stern, Soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments K. 361; the "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro;" Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, first viola soloists); "Eine leine Nachtmusik;" the "Jupiter" Symphony.

A feature of the final week end of theater concerts, one of contemporary works, one of Haydn, Saturday, July 25 and Sunday, July 26, will be the cantata, "A Parable of Deatl." by Lukas Foss, young American composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., Orchestra and had its world premiere there March 11. As on that occasion, the composer has been invited to conduct, and Vera Zorina will be the narrator. For narrator, chorus, tenor soloist and orchestra. "A Parable of Death" is from "Geschicten vom lieben Gott" by the Austrian post Rainer Maria Rilke, English version by Anthony Hecht.

The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin), Dorius Milhaud's "La Creation du monde," Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program will contain the St. Theresa Mass for chorus, soloists and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor); Symphonies 93 and 100 ("Military").

Nine Shed Concerts

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat Shed by the Boston Orchestra's full complement of 104 will follow on the three week ends July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; Aug. 14, 15, 16, this year for the first time the three series concentrated into three-day week ends, on Friday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15.

Complete program information will be sent on request. Address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. On April 21 in Detroit the orchestra inaugurates its first transcontinental tour, 29 concerts in 26 cities, through May 22. Under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, who toured a "Pops" Orchestra for 10 weeks in 65 concerts last winter, the annual May and June "Pops" Concerts will be given at Symphony Hall, Boston, to be followed by the annual three weeks Charles River Esplanade free concerts.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

FEB 17 1953

PROGRAM SHIFTED FOR TANGLEWOOD

Munch, Festival Head, Moves Up Thursday Concerts to Friday Night, Adds Modern Works

The traditional Thursday night concerts of the Berkshire Festival will be dropped this summer in favor of concerts on Friday nights, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announced yesterday in revealing plans for Tanglewood this summer.

This is the major change in the festival, which Mr. Munch will direct for the third successive year. It means that the week-end concerts will be grouped more closely. Formerly, persons who came for the Thursday concerts either had to return home or wait till Saturday night to hear a second concert.

Another change instituted by Mr. Munch is the inclusion of works by modern composers in the series of smaller concerts given on the first three week-ends in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Richard Strauss, Darius Milhaud, Ravel and Lukas Foss will be the composers represented.

Pierre Monteux will conduct the all-Tchaikovsky program on Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein will lead the concerts of Aug. 9 and 15. The twelve remaining concerts will be led by Mr. Munch, who also will serve as director of the Berkshire Music Center, which is scheduled to hold its eleventh term concurrently with the festival period.

Bach will be the composer in the first two concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall on July 11 and 12. Mozart will be played at the second pair on July 18 and 19. The July 25 concert will be devoted to Haydn, while music of the moderns will be played the next day.

The Music Shed concerts will begin July 31, with the first program consisting of Beethoven's Overture to Leonore No. 3, the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto with Zino Francescatti as soloist and Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring."

One of Mr. Bernstein's programs will be the Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, in which the major work will be Mahler's "Resurrection." Brahms' Requiem will be another work employing the choral forces of the Music Center.

Contemporary works to be included in the Shed programs are Lukas Foss' Piano Concerto, with the composer as soloist; Samuel Barber's Adagio for Strings, Hindemith's Concerto for Strings and Brass, and Carlos Chavez' Sinfonia India.

N.Y. Times
5/17

EXPERIMENT IN OPERA

Tanglewood Commissions Will Add Practical Aid

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

TANGLEWOOD will embark on a fresh experiment this summer. It will attempt to set up a helpful environment for the creation of new operas by American composers, and if it has any kind of luck with this venture, it will be showing a fruitful way to other institutions in the United States.

The plan is simple and practical. Two or three young composers will be commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center within the next few weeks to write one-act operas. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation has supplied $1,500 to make possible grants of $750 each to at least two composers, and if a third composer is found with potentialities for writing an opera, another $750 will be raised somehow.

The difference in this approach from other commissioning schemes is that the composers, once they have received their grants, will not be left to their own devices. They will be expected to spend the summer at Tanglewood, where they will be the guests of the Berkshire Music Center, and they will have the advice and guidance of the people connected with Tanglewood's opera department.

A committee of established composers consisting of Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein has been asked to recommend a number of candidates for these commissions. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, will make the final choices from these recommendations, and he hopes to choose the applicants who seem to him to hold out the most promise of writing stageworthy operas.

Start This Summer

During the 1953 Tanglewood sessions the composers who win the commissions will be expected to have certain fragments of their projected operas completed. Then the real work of aiding the composer will begin. All the members of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at his disposal, and he will have a chance to get a practical view of all manner of theatre problems. He will consult with technicians on costumes, scenery, make-up and lighting. He will be helped to analyze musical construction as it affects writing for theatre.

By the end of the summer the composer should be clear in his own mind as to what shape his opera will take. The framework of the piece will be established, and he will know what his story line will be, what orchestral means he will employ and what scenic and technical advantages and disadvantages he must cope with. Then he will have almost a full year in which to complete his opera. And if all goes well, there will be premières of the finished pieces at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954.

On paper this looks like a sound approach. Mr. Goldovsky has reason to believe that it will work. Last summer there was a case in point, although the composer in question happened to be a man of considerable theatre experience.

Leonard Bernstein, you will remember, wrote his one-act "Trouble in Tahiti" for a première at the first festival of the arts held at Brandeis University last June. Some weeks later it was done at Tanglewood, and for this production Mr. Bernstein made revisions. Some of these changes were made after conferences with Tanglewood's opera staff, and the composer agreed that suggestions from men and women experienced in putting on opera were helpful.

Change of Mind

This experience caused Mr. Goldovsky to alter his own conviction that commissioning operas by American composers for Tanglewood might turn out to be more of an embarrassment than an asset. It had been his belief that composers new to writing for the theatre might not produce works suitable to the performing talents available for Tanglewood, that they might present technical problems beyond the reach of the center's facilities, that the operas might have serious theatrical deficiencies.

A lot of operas are being written in the United States. American composers are eager to tackle the theatre. It is not their fault, of course, that we do not have in this country dozens of professional opera houses eager to produce exciting new works as do Italy and Central Europe. They have no way of getting a practical grounding in the problems of the theatre, and without this know-how they are bound to make grave errors.

The Tanglewood plan will be worth watching. Not that the Tanglewood authorities look for the production of masterworks under the new plan. But they will feel that it has justified itself if the outcome is one or two one-act operas that are workmanlike and effective theatre pieces.

If this much is accomplished, they will feel that the scheme should be embodied in the regular activities of the center. In that case there will be a set of fresh commissions every other year.

It could be that institutions like the Metropolitan and San Francisco Operas would be moved to adopt similar plans, if the Tanglewood idea proves successful. The problems of writing for a large opera house with an exigent subscription audience and an exacting repertoire are much more difficult, and the task of composing a work to fill out an entire evening's entertainment adds to the hazards.

But if we are to have an operatic school of our own, the composers must learn their craft in the opera house. Richard Wagner and Richard Strauss conducted in opera houses before they wrote their enduring works. Italian masters like Giuseppe Verdi and Giacomo Puccini had the theatre in their background and in their blood, and yet they learned only by trial and error, and they were helped, particularly at the outset, by impresarios, theatre staffs and publishers.

Impressive Record

The remarkable thing is that quite a few impressive operas have been written in this country. Consider the works of Gershwin, Menotti, Blitzstein, Bernstein and Thomson, to name but a handful of our composers, and you have a record of which we need not be ashamed. But nearly all of their operas have been produced in the first instance by organizations other than our leading opera companies.

Unfortunately, there has been no continuous program for the comfort and instruction of composers with an aptitude for the theatre. Tanglewood's plan will be useful as far as it goes. But this center operates only six weeks a year during the summer, and while it will do its share, the lead must be taken ultimately by organizations with completer plants and a wider range of experienced advisers.

It is not enough to say to composers in general, "Write a good opera and we will produce it." It may be assumed that we have the composers and that they are eager to try their hands at operas. But they cannot be expected to devote all the energy and time required for a full-length opera purely on speculation. Some creditable operas have emerged in this way. The risks can never be exiled from creative effort, but if they can be diminished, it is certainly worth trying.

INTERNATIONAL
• MUSICIAN •
OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE
AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS
OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

A real acoustical wonder is the Theater and Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Here Elie Saarinen, after he had finished the big Music Shed, outdid himself in constructing a perfect resonance chamber. If you can imagine a giant loudspeaker built in sections, each one a little larger than the other as they get more distant from the sound source, and so constructed that they would telescope into each other, you can visualize Saarinen's procedure. The result is a concert hall seating perhaps eight hundred, which is almost perfection for chamber music and Kammeroper. The wood is left exposed, and it seems to have aged like an old violin. When you are outside the hall on a summer night, you must take care to be within the area that is formed by lines prolonging the sides of the building, and curving in the same way; for outside these "sound" lines you hear only silence: so accurately has Saarinen gauged his construction to channelize the sound waves. The result is of course a marvelous listening situation.

Albany Times Union
Jan 22

Boston 'Pops' Concert Delights Troy Audience

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

Some 4,000 deliriously happy music lovers converged at the RPI Field House in Troy Tuesday night to give vent to their uninhibited approval of the infectious music of the Boston "Pops" touring orchestra, founded and conducted by that "Proper Bostonian," Arthur Fiedler.

Troy got the kick-off of a tour of 70 cities which ends, two months hence, in Florida. Members of the orchestra, recruited from all over the United States proved to be a remarkably integrated ensemble.

Arthur Fiedler's musical ideas are unique. He caters to the fellow or girl—for whom a whole evening of symphonic music leaves him or her cold. How often have we heard members of a local concert audience remark "Some of that highbrow music was way over my head. But I loved the encores!" That's where the Boston Pops begin to function.

MANY ENCORES

Mr. Fiedler offers as the meat of his musical banquet, encores and more encores, and even these choice tidbits have encores of their own: Four, in fact for the Troy concert; running the gamut from minuets, polkas, tangoes ("Jealousie") and the final one: "Stars and Stripes Forever" with piccolos, drums, whistles, 'n' everything, from the built-in sound effects department, a circumstance which should rate an orchid from the Hollywood studios of 20th Century-Fox.

Maybe the Lowells and the Cabots speak only to the Deity in Boston. But Fiedler and his men converse,volubly, with the Joneses the Smiths, and quite conveivably, to the Saltonstalls and the Lodges of the nation, a democracy of music much to be desired.

THE PROGRAM

Let's reprise the Troy program: Berlioz, Richard Strauss, Chabrier, Tchaikovski and Ravel for the first half. For popular competition, such short-haired tunes as "Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered," "Singin' In the Rain," "Charmaine," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Fiddle Faddle," all dressed up in the orchestral habiliments of a Bach, a Beethoven or a Brahms. After all, these musical titans were not above taking a folk tune and turning it into a symphony, or at least, a tone poem. And for the final programmed number, "Ride of the Valkyries" by Richard Wagner, no less.

And for definite eye and ear perfume, Mr. Fiedler brought forth the lovely Hilde Somer, Austrian-born pianist who gave an exciting and technically thrilling performance of a Liszt Hungarian fantasy, played with the orchestra. Not since the days of the fabulous Spanish woman virtuoso, Theresa Carreno, have we encountered a more stimulating bit of keyboard wizardry, allied to innate musicianship than that which is the divine gift of Miss Somer.

Incidentally, impresario Jack Garren can thank the large contingent of Albanians which drove to Troy for this outstanding musical fiesta. But just wait (sic) until Albany gets its own municipal auditorium.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

APR 5 - 1953

Plans for Early Concerts At Tanglewood Announced

Berkshire Festival Programs and Soloists for Series In Theater-Concert Hall On Three July Week Ends Include Contemporary Works

Boston, April 4—Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, to be given in three successive week ends from July 11 to July 26, as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, were announced today for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducting.

19th Festival

The summer of 1953 will mark the 19th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in 1934, the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge, and the ninth continuous year concerts have been held in the 1200-seat theater.

Seats for the six July theater concerts, on Saturday evenings at 8.30 p. m. and Sunday afternoons at 3 p. m. are available at this time only to subscribers of one of the three series of Shed concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16. Orders are being accepted at the festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

Two Bach programs, Saturday, July 11 and Sunday, July 12, will include the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5, (concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin solo; Miss Doriat Antony, first flute, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and 6, also Suite 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriat Antony, soloist); Suite 3; and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seele" for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

Mozart Programs

A pair of Mozart programs will be played Saturday, July 18 and Sunday, July 19, to include Divertimento K. 136 for Strings; Violin Concerto in G. K. 216 (Isaac Stern, Soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments K. 361; the "Prague" Symphony; Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro;" Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph De Pasquale, first viola soloists); "Eine kleine Nachtmusik;" the "Jupiter" Symphony.

A feature of the final week end of theater concerts, one of contemporary works, one of Haydn, Saturday, July 25 and Sunday, July 26, will be the cantata, "A Parable of Death," by Lukas Foss, young American composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., Orchestra and had its world premiere there March 11. As on that occasion, the composer has been invited to conduct, and Vera Zorina will be the narrator. For narrator, chorus, tenor soloist and orchestra, "A Parable of Death" is from "Geschichten vom lieben Gott" by the Austrian poet Rainer Maria Rilke, English version by Anthony Hecht.

The balance of the contemporary program will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86 (after Couperin), Dorius Milhaud's "La Creation du monde," Maurice Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program will contain the St. Theresa Mass for chorus, soloists and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor); Symphonies 93 and 100 ("Military").

Nine Shed Concerts

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat Shed by the Boston Orchestra's full complement of 104 will follow on the three week ends July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; Aug. 14, 15, 16, this year for the first time three series concentrated into three-day week ends, on Friday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15.

Complete program information will be sent on request. Address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. On April 21 in Detroit the orchestra inaugurates its first transcontinental tour, 29 concerts in 26 cities, through May 22. Under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, who toured a "Pops" Orchestra for 10 weeks in 55 concerts last winter, the annual May and June "Pops" Concerts will be given at Symphony Hall, Boston, to be followed by the annual three weeks Charles River Esplanade free concerts.

Boston Symphony Revises Schedule, Adds Concerts At Tanglewood

CBS Broadcasts Are Innovation

Special to The Blade

BOSTON, May 9—The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest, Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein, Aug. 8 and 15.

An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6,000-seat Shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon, July 31-Aug. 16, with the chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat Concert Hall, as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

* * *

THIS 16TH Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th in which the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network.

The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour-and-a-half, on July 26, Aug. 2, 9, and 16, will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, and Edinburgh festivals in Europe.

* * *

BECAUSE THE Columbia broadcasts commence at 2:30 p.m. Charles Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3 p.m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4 p.m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

Music lovers planning to attend the Berkshire Festival concerts still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of Shed concerts (July 31 to Aug. 16), which entitles them to priority of seating, a saving in price, and admission to any of the six July concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Subscriptions are being handled at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., which will file orders received at this time for seats for single concerts and fill them when their sale begins on June 1.

Foss Cantata Listed For Final Week

Special to The Blade

BOSTON, May 9—A cantata by Lucas Foss, "A Parable of Death," commissioned by the Louisville, Ky., Symphony Orchestra, will be performed July 26 in the final weekend of theater concerts at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

Mr. Foss, born in Germany and become an American citizen, is a pupil of Hindemith in composition. He has had several important works performed throughout the country, including "The Prairie," a cantata set to a text by Carl Sandburg. Mr. Foss has been staff pianist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for many years.

HANOVER, PA.
SUN

MAY 2 - 1953

MUSIC

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as Guest Conductor on August 1; Leonard Bernstein on August 8 and 15. An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6,000-seat Shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 31-August 16; with the chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat Concert Hall, as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour-and-a-half, on July 26, August 2, 9, and 16, will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, commencing tomorrow (Sunday, May 3), which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh Festivals in Europe.

Because the Columbia broadcasts commence at 2:30 p. m. Charles Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3 p. m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4 p. m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

* * *

KINGSPORT, TENN.
TIMES

APR 12 1953

Annual Berkshires Festival To Begin With Bach's Music

NEW YORK (UP) — The annual musical festival built around the Boston Symphony in the Berkshires, at Tanglewood, Mass., will begin this year the week end of July 11 with two Bach programs made up of the Brandenburg concertos, two orchestra suits, and a cantata.

The following week end will be concentrated on Mozart. The week end after that will mingle such contemporary composers as Darius Milhaud and Richard Strauss with Ravel and Haydn.

These are concerts in the Tanglewood theater. The concerts in the open air from the "shed" will be three series—A, July 31, Aug. 1 and 2; B, Aug. 7, 8 and 9; C, Aug. 14, 15, 16. The orchestra will be under its regular conductor, Charles Munch, and two guest conductors, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein.

Prades Festival

The Berkshire Music Center, which is a summer school of music held with the festival, will offer Carlos Chavez, the Mexican composer, and Aaron Copland as teachers of composition. Gregor Piatigorsky, the 'cellist, will be a special guest instructor in the chamber music department. Monteux and Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments.

TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE

APR 26 1953

Berkshire Festival Lists Performances And Soloists

Special to The Blade

BOSTON, April 25—Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, weekends from July 11 to July 26, as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, are announced for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch conducting.

The summer of 1953 will mark the 19th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in 1934, the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge, and the ninth continuous year concerts have been held in the 1,200-seat theater.

* * *

SEATS FOR the six July theafer concerts, on Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at 3 p.m. are available at this time only to subscribers of one of the three series of Shed concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16. Priority of seating and a saving in price is given to series members. Orders are being accepted at the Festival office—Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.—for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

Two Bach programs, Saturday, July 11 and Sunday, July 12, will include the Brandenburg concerti 1, 2, 3, 5 (concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin solo; Doriot Anthony, first flute, flute solo; Lukas Foss, piano), and No. 6, also Suite No. 2 for Flute and Strings (Doriot Anthony, soloist); Suite No. 3; and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu der du Meine Seele" for solo quartet, chorus and orchestra (Hugh Ross, conductor).

* * *

A pair of Mozart programs will be played Saturday, July 18 and Sunday, July 19, to include Divertimento (K. 136) for Strings; violin concerto in G (K. 216) (Isaac Stern, soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments (K. 361); the "Prague" Symphony; overture to "The Marriage of Figaro;" Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola (Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, first viola, soloists); "Eine kleine Nachtmusik"; the "Jupiter" Symphony.

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6,000-seat Shed by the Boston Orchestra's full complement of 104 will follow on the three weekends July 31, August 1, 2; August 7, 8, 9; August 14, 15, 16, this year for the first time the three series concentrated into three-day weekends, on Friday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on August 1; Leonard Bernstein on August 9 and 15.

PEORIA, ILL.
SUNDAY JOURNAL STAR

APR 19 1953

Boston Symphony Reveals Program For Tanglewood

BOSTON—Programs and soloists for six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., given in three successive weekends from July 11 to July 26, as introduction to the main concert series in the Shed, are announced for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will be conducting.

The summer of 1953 will mark the Nineteenth Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in 1934, and the eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra assumed charge, and the ninth continuous year concerts have been held in the 1,200-seat theater.

Orders are being accepted at the Festival office — Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass. — for seats for single concerts, and these will be filled after June 1.

* * *

Cir. (D 71,974) (S 124,271)

This Clipping From SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
EXPRESS

APR 26 1953

Berkshire and Prades Music Festival Plans Announced

BY UNITED PRESS

NEW YORK — The annual musical festival built around the Boston Symphony in the Berkshires, at Tanglewood, Mass., will begin this year the week end of July 11 with two Bach programs made up of the Brandenburg concertos, two orchestra suites, and a cantata.

The following week end will be concentrated on Mozart. The week end after that will mingle such contemporary composers as Darius Milhaud and Richard Strauss with Ravel and Haydn.

These are concerts in the Tanglewood theater. The concerts in the open air from the "shed" will be three series — A, July 31, Aug. 1 and 2; B, Aug. 7, 8, and 9; C, Aug. 14, 15, 16. The orchestra will be under its regular conductor, Charles Munch, and two guest conductors, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein.

The Berkshire Music Center, which is a summer school of music held with the festival, will offer Carlos Chavez, the Mexican composer, and Aaron Copland as teachers of composition. Gregor Piatigorsky, the 'cellist, will be a special guest instructor in the chamber music department. Monteux and Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments.

PEORIA, ILL.
SUNDAY JOURNAL STAR

MAR 15 1953

Tanglewood Summer School Of Music To Open Again In July

The Boston Symphony orchestra has announced plans for the 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music it maintains at Tanglewood in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts. Charles Munch, the music director of the orchestra, will serve as director, and Aaron Copland as assistant director. Ralph Berkowitz is dean. The six-week session will begin on July 5 and close on Aug. 16.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN

[illegible] 1953

'Tanglewood' Music In July, August: Three Series

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony O[illegible] announces programs for the B[illegible]shire Festival in "Tan[illegible]" Lenox, Mass., July 11-A[illegible] the first three weeken[illegible] in the Theater Concer[illegible] given Saturday nights [illegible] afternoons. The first [illegible] devoted to the music [illegible] second to Mozart; [illegible] Haydn and to contem[illegible] posers: Strauss, M[illegible], Ra[illegible] and Foss.

CONCERTS IN the great Music Shed in Tanglewood will be presented Friday nights in pla[illegible] the customary Thurs[illegible] Sat[illegible]day nights and Sunday [illegible] The Series A, July 3[illegible] Au[illegible] will include the Over[illegible]nore No. 3, by Beethoven; the Mendelssohn Violin Con[illegible] Zino Francescatti soloist; [illegible] Copland's "Appalachian S[illegible]" and Ravel's "Bolero." P[illegible] guest conduct[illegible] Tschaikowsky program. [illegible] program in the series will [illegible] the "Manfred" Overture of Schumann; the Piano Conc[illegible] Lukas Foss with the compos[illegible] soloist; Mendelssohn's "Ita[illegible]" Symphony and the "Me[illegible] Waltz" by Liszt.

SERIES B, Aug. 7-9 inclusive, will include the Koussevitzky

This Clipping From

Tanglewood Schedules Three Chamber Music Concerts For July

With the generous coop[illegible] of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, three concerts of chamber music will be p[illegible] by the Berkshire Music C[illegible] Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., [illegible] successive Wednesday [illegible] T[illegible] will occur during the [illegible] the Berkshire Festiv[illegible] which comprises six weekends of c[illegible] by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 11 through Au[illegible]

The chamber music [illegible] will open on July 15 with [illegible] recital by the Baroque Trio, c[illegible]sisting of Fernando Va[illegible] harpsichord; Julius Bak[illegible] Daniel Saidenberg, cello. Th[illegible] program includes works of Te[illegible]mann, Domenico Scarlatti, L[illegible] Loeillet, and Ram[illegible]

A sonata recital on July [illegible] will be given by R[illegible] P[illegible] violinist, Gary Gr[illegible]

Miss Posselt is [illegible] Berkshire Music C[illegible] They will play music by Hindemith, Faure, Bach and P[illegible] July 29

The final p[illegible] will feature the Hun[illegible] Quartet: Zoltan Szekely, [illegible] Alexander Moskowsky, [illegible] Reilich, viola; Vilmo[illegible] cello, in works by H[illegible] (Quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1), Piston (Quartet No. 4), Beethoven (Quartet in B flat major, OP. 130, ending with the "Grosse Fuge," OP. 133).

These concerts will be held in Tanglewood's Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30, as in previous years. They will be open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. All who are interested in summer activities at Tanglewood are invited to join this Society through which contributions help to support the school.

The sale of tickets for each of the fifteen concerts of the Berkshire Festival has now opened at the box office at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Mail and telephone orders will be received.

SYRACUS
HERALD-AM

APR 5 -

Note Cond
In Philade
Music in T

This date born; 1914, first per Spring," as an orch

WORD COMES fr offices in Charleston, V League will have a sec in Philadelphia Sept.
ognized as a first st
study, opportunities, community symphony

CONDUCTORS in the Symposium will with Eugene Ormandy of the Philadelphia
They will attend all Orchestra rehearsals and will participate and consultations wi phia Orchestra memb ministrative staff d
Philadelphia visit. M
Thompson, executive the American Symph tra League, states th plications have been the hope that the Sy be repeated. Conduc sections of the nation to apply for certific Symposium.

CHARLES MUN of the Boston Symph tra, announces that Festival concerts to "Tanglewood," near the Orchestra's summ extend from July 11
In the first three certs will be pre nights and Sunday
the Theater Concer first week will be d music of Bach; the s zart; the third to H contemporary compo
Milhaud, Ravel, Luk

IN THE GREAT concerts will be give and Saturday nights afternoons. In the p been Thursday night
the Shed. These co
A, B, C. The dates:
31, Aug. 1-2; Series B clusive; Series C, A clusive. Conductor Mu duct each concert e and Aug. 15 when L
stein will conduct.
Music Center will be tion of Conductor Mu eleventh term concu
Festival season in

AARON COPLAN
sistant director of Music Center with witz, dean. The six will begin on July 5
14. Carlos Chav
Mexico to join Aar teacher of compositi viously filled by such tors as Hindemith, ber, Lopatnikoff, H
haud, Ibert, M cola. The c ment of the larged consid ship of Rich master and
Orchestra
associate head of t
Miss Ruth Pos give courses in sonata literature plans a special co four quartets of

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN

APR [illegible] 1953

Note Conductors Symposium In Philadelphia in Fall; Music in Tanglewood

[illegible] Albert Roussel, French composer [illegible] first [illegible] in Paris, of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," as an orchestra piece.

By E. V. W.

WORD COMES from the American Symphony Orchestra League offices in Charleston, W. Va., that the Philadelphia Orchestra and the League will have a second presentation of the Conductors Symposium in Philadelphia Sept. 28-Oct. 2 next. The Symposium is widely recognized as a first step of U. S. professional symphonies to "offer [illegible] recognition and encouragement" to the nation's [illegible] community symphony directors.

CONDUCTORS in attendance at the Symposium will work closely with Eugene Ormandy, conductors of the Philadelphia Orchestra. They will attend all Philadelphia Orchestra rehearsals and concerts and will participate in seminars and consultations with Philadelphia Orchestra [illegible] and administrative staff during their Philadelphia visit. Mrs. Helen M. Thompson, executive secretary of the American Symphony Orchestra League, states that many applications have been received in the hope that the Symposium will be repeated. Conductors from all sections of the nation are eligible to apply for certification to the Symposium.

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, announces that the Berkshire Festival concerts to be given in "Tanglewood," near Lenox, Mass., the Orchestra's summer home, will extend from July 11 to Aug. 16. In the first three weekends, concerts will be presented Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in the Theater Concert Hall. The first week will be devoted to the music of Bach; the second to Mozart; the third to Haydn and to contemporary composers: Strauss, Milhaud, Ravel, Lukas Foss.

IN THE GREAT Music Shed, concerts will be given on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. In the past there have been Thursday night programs in the Shed. These concerts, Series A, B, C. The dates: Series A, July 31, Aug. 1-2; Series B, Aug. 7-9 inclusive; Series C, Aug. 14-16 inclusive. Conductor Munch will conduct each concert except Aug. 9 and Aug. 15 when Leonard Bernstein will conduct. The Berkshire Music Center will be under direction of Conductor Munch, with the eleventh term concurrent with the Festival season in "Tanglewood."

AARON COPLAND will be assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center with Ralph Berkowitz, dean. The six-week session will begin on July 5 and close Aug. 14. Carlos Chavez will come from Mexico to join Aaron Copland as teacher of composition, a post previously filled by such eminent visitors as Hindemith, Mirtinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen and Dallapiccola. The chamber music department of the Center will be enlarged considerably under leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster and the Boston Symphony Orchestra with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as special guest instructor during part of the session. Major part of the Chamber Music faculty will consist, as usual, of principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members. Miss Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature; William Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

* * *

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
MAY 2 - 1953

Tanglewood Concert Series Set

The main concert series of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the 1953 Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., has been scheduled for the weekends of July 31 to Aug. 16 with Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, conducting all but three of the performances.

The concerts will be presented in the 6,000-seat shed consecutively on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons on each of the three weekends. Pierre Monteux will conduct Aug. 1 and Leonard Bernstein Aug. 8 and 15.

The main concert series will be preceded by chamber concerts in the concert hall Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons for three successive weekends from July 11 to 26.

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
MAR 15 1953

Plans Announced for Berkshire Music Center

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced plans for the 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music it maintains at Tanglewood in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts. Charles Munch, the music director of the orchestra, will serve as director, and Aaron Copland as assistant director. Ralph Berkowitz is dean. The six-week session will begin on July 5 and close on August 16.

Special features of the session will include the coming of Carlos Chavez from Mexico to join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition. The chamber music department will be considerably enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, the concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with William Kroll as associate head of the department and Gregor Piatigorsky as a special guest instructor for a part of the session. The major part of the faculty for chamber music will consist as before of the principals and other members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with retired members Jean Bedetti, cello; Fernand Gillet, oboe; Georges Laurent, flute, and Willem Valkenier, horn. Miss Ruth Posselt, the violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature. Mr. Kroll plans a special course in the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the policy of awarding tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active, pre-professional divisions, and the highly successful activity for music educators and amateurs, the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study under Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who, with Pierre Monteux, will be a guest conductor of the Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
MAY 23 1953

Student Enrollment Still Open At Berkshire Music Center

Student enrollment is still open in all five divisions of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts starting in July.

The center's office at Symphony Hall, Boston, is considering 500 student applications and inticipates more than 1,000 additional inquiries regarding the summer school before the festival season opens July 5.

Ralph Berkowitz, dean, said applications considerably exceed those of previous years and will provide the best congregation of advanced musical talent for several years.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, again will serve as the music center's director, with Aaron Copland as assistant.

Auditions are being conducted mainly for instrumentalist candidates in 14 cities during the orchestra's current coast to coast tour.

Divisions of the school include instrumental music, choral music, composition, opera and the Tanglewood Study Group.

The study group, initiated last season, is a department of general music study which makes the resources of Tanglewood available to music educators and amateurs. Those unable to attend the full six-week session may enroll in one of three two-week sessions. These enrollments are kept open during the summer.

Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer-conductor, will join Aaron Copland as teacher of composition.

Hugh Ross will head the choral music department, Richard Burgin will be in charge of the chamber music department and Leonard Bernstein will direct the conducting and orchestral departments. Boris Goldovsky will direct the opera department.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUN 21 1953

HARRY DUBBS IS DEAD; MUSICIAN IN BOSTON

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOSTON, June 20 — Harry Dubbs, a member of the first violin section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, died today in Massachusetts Memorial Hospital after a long illness. He was 42 years old.

Mr. Dubbs made his debut as a violinist at the age of 6. He studied under Timothee Adamowski and Felix Winternitz and joined the Boston Symphony fourteen years ago.

Founder and conductor of the Boston Symphonette, he acted as guest conductor at Boston Pops and Esplanda Concerts and served on the faculty of the Boston University College of Music. His home was in Brookline, Mass.

Surviving are his widow, Marion; a son, Paul; a sister, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dubbs.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
NEWS

MAY 1[illegible]

BERKSHIRE MUSIC

Tanglewood's Four Concerts Will Be Aired

NEW YORK—As the American contribution to CBS Radio's 23-week summer series of "World Music Festivals," four concerts of the famous Berkshire Festivals, broadcast directly from Tanglewood, Mass., will be heard on the network Sunday, July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16.

The concerts will be played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, with the exception of the concert of Aug. 2, which will be conducted by Pierre Monteux.

James Fassett, CBS radio director of music, will serve as commentator for the broadcasts.

For the first time, the Berkshire Festival concerts will start at 2:30 p. m. instead of the customary 3 because of the broadcasts. The concerts will be broadcast in their entirety, one hour and a half.

The first Berkshire Festival concerts were given in 1934 for the summer community. The Boston Symphony Orchestra was engaged in 1936, and the concerts were planned and realized under the direction of the late Serge Koussevitzky.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
MAY 23 1953

Tanglewood Lists 3 More Soloists

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced three additions to its roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival summer concerts on six weekends in July and August at Tanglewood. They are Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina.

Miss Zorina will narrate in the performance of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, on the afternoon of July 26.

Bolet will perform Tchaikovsky's piano concerto in the all-Tchaikovsky program which Pierre Monteux will conduct Aug. 2. Miss Tourel will be soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade" and in Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "Resurrection," which Leonard Bernstein will conduct Aug. 8.

One week remains for festival series subscriptions. Subscribers to any of the three weekend shed concerts will have priority of seating.

The shed concerts will be given on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons on three successive weekends beginning July 31. The shed concerts will be preceded by the chamber concerts in the theater concert hall Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 11 to 26.

Series subscriptions may be made by writing the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston, until June 1. After that date remaining tickets for single concerts will be on sale at the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

This Clipping From
ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
APR 8 - 1953

Munch Plans 6 Concerts For Theater

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced the programs for six concerts for the Berkshire Festival in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., which will be given on three successive weekend from July 11 to July 26. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will be the conductor.

The theater concerts will precede the main series of nine major concerts in the Shed on three weekends from July 31 through Aug. 16.

The six theater concerts will be given at 8:30 p. m. Saturdays and at 3 p. m. Sundays.

Two Bach programs to be offered July 11 and 12 will include all the six Brandenburg Concertos except the fourth and Suite No. 2, for flute and strings, Suite No. 3 and Cantata 78, "Jesu der du meine Seele."

Mozart programs to be played July 18 and 19 will include Divertimento K. 136 for strings, Violin Concerto in G, K. 216, Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361, the "Prague" Symphony, the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola; "Eine kleine Nachtmusik," and the "Jupiter" Symphony.

The final weekend of theater concerts, July 25 and 26, will include one program of contemporary works and one of Haydn works.

[128]

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1953

Tanglewood Well Represented On International Music Board

Eight of the 11 members of the international music advisory board of the Congress for Cultural Freedom who recently selected 12 composers to compete for the newly-established 20th Century Masterpiece Awards have been active at Tanglewood. With the European Center of Culture and the Italian National Radio Network the congress will sponsor the contest in Rome next spring.

Four members of the board have been resident teachers of composition at the Berkshire Music Center and a fifth, Carlos Chavez, will come from Mexico to occupy the position for the coming season. Former Tanglewood teachers on the board are Samuel Barber, American composer; Luigi Dallapiccola, Italian; and Arthur Honegger, and Darius Milhaud, French. Igor Stravinsky has heard his music played in the Tanglewood Shed, Benjamin Britten came from England to assist in the first American presentation of his opera, "Peter Grimes," and Virgil Thomson, principal music critic of the New York Herald Tribune, has lectured at the school. Others on the board are Boris Blacher, Francesco Malipiero and Frank Martin.

12 Composers Accept

Acceptances have been received from all 12 composers whose works will be judged in performance by celebrated composers, performing artists and music critics during an international conference April 5 to 15. A winning work will be selected from each of three categories. A violin concerto with a prize of $3000, competed for by Ben Weber, U.S.A., Mario Peragallo, Italy, Carmago Guarnieri, Brazil, and Peter Racine Fricker, Great Britain; for a short symphonic work, approximately $2000, Conrad Beck of Switzerland, Vladimir Vogel, expatriate, Henri Dutilleux, France, and Giselhard Kleber, Germany; and for works for voice and chamber orchestra, about $1200, Camillo Togni, Italy, Jean-Louis Martinet, France and Lou Harrison, U.S.A.

In addition to cash awards, the prize-winning compositions are promised performance by three major European and three major American orchestras, publication, and recording by a leading company. The remaining entries also will be published. The Italian government will contribute the Rome radio orchestra for the performance of the competing works. The prizes are part of a cultural freedom awards program headed by Julius Fleischmann of Cincinnati, Ohio, who was instrumental in sending the Boston Symphony Orchestra to Europe last spring.

Nicholas Nabokov, secretary-general of the congress, announces "The contest is designed to encourage gifted young musicians from all lands to provide an opportunity for having their works performed. The plan will help remove parochial barriers in contemporary music, and at the same time will enlarge the world's repertoire by adding works of superior quality to the programs of symphony orchestras, chamber music groups and individual performers everywhere."

WILMINGTON, DEL.
STAR
MAY 3 - 1953

Tanglewood Week-End Plans Changed Because Of Broadcasts

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the 1953 Berkshire Festival.

Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor, Aug. 1; Leonard Bernstein, Aug. 8 and 15.

An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6,000-seat Shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 31-Aug. 16; with the chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat Concert Hall, as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network.

The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour and a half, July 26; Aug. 2, 9, and 16, will be carried by CBS Radio as part of its summer program of international music festivals.

Because the broadcasts commence at 2:30 p. m., Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afernoon programs, which in other years have started at 3:00 p. m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4:00 p. m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
MAY 24 1953

Soloists Are Announced For Berkshire Festival

Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist; and Vera Zorina have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. this summer. The six week ends of summer concerts commence July 11, continue through August 16 with its Music Director, Charles Munch, as conductor.

Miss Tourel will be soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade," and in Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "Ressurection," which Leonard Bernstein conducts August 8. Mr. Bolet will perform Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in the all-Tchaikovsky program which Pierre Monteux conducts August 2 (afternoon). Miss Zorina will narrate in the first New England performance of Lukas Foss" cantata, "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, on the afternoon of July 26.

Others of the summer's soloists, previously announced, are Mr. Foss, as pianist in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 on July 11, and as soloist for his own Piano Concerto on August 1; Isaac Stern, soloist in the Mozart Concerto for Violin in G major, July 18, and with Joseph de Pasquale in Mozart's Sinfonia Concertantee for Violin and Viola on July 19 (afternoon); Zino Francescatti, in Mendelssohn's Concerto for Violin in E minor, July 3; Gregor Piatigorsky, as soloist in the Darius Milhaud Concerto for Cello, August 9 (afternoon) and with Joseph de Pasquale in Strauss' Don Quixote; Seymour Lipkin, in the Piano Concerto for the Left Hand, by Ravel, on August 16 (afternoon).

This is the final week for series subscriptions. Subscribers to any of the three week end Shed concerts: Friday and Saturday evenings, 8:30, Sunday afternoons, 2:30, on July 31, August 1, 2; August 7, 8, 9; and August 14, 15, 16, have choice of locations and effect a saving on the cost of the six Bach-Mozart-Haydn preliminary concerts, July 11-26 in the Theater Concert Hall. Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.; after June 1, any remaining tickets for single concerts are on sale by mail or telephone to the boxoffice, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Phone Lenox 600.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra which sponsors the Berkshire Festival, returned May 22 from its first coast-to-coast tour of 26 cities in five weeks, and on Monday (May 25) resumes its activities as the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, at Symphony Hall until July 1.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
APR 4 - 1953

Weekend Concerts Set for Tanglewood

Three weekends of six concerts in all will be presented this summer in the Theater Concert Hall at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, outside of Lenox, Mass.

The three weekends, to be devoted to the orchestral music of Bach, Mozart, Haydn and modern composers, will be held from July 11 to July 26 and will be an introduction to the main concerts of the season in the Music Shed.

Saturday, July 11, and Sunday, July 12, will be devoted to Bach and will include performances of the Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6, the Secand Suite for flute and strings, and Cantata 78.

The second weekend, July 18 and 19, will be devoted to Mozart and will include a Divertimento, a violin concerto with Isaac Stern as soloist, the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, the Prague Symphony, the Jupiter Symphony, and other works.

The final weekend will be devoted to modern works including pieces by Lukas Foss, Strauss, Millhaud and Ravel and will include one program of works by Haydn including the St. Theresa Mass and Symphonies 93 and 100.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
APR 4 - 1953

Tanglewood

By THEODOLINDA C. BORIS

THE COMING of springlike weather is an appropriate time to list the programs and soloists for the six concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., given during three successive week-ends from July 11 to July 26, as an introduction to the principal Berkshire Festival concert series. Charles Munch will conduct.

Seats for the six concerts are available at this time only to subscribers to one of the three concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16.

Bach programs, July 11 and 12, will include Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3 and 5; Suites 2 and 3, and Cantata No. 78. A pair of Mozart programs will be played July 18 and 19—to include Divertimento, K: 136, for Strings; Violin Concerto in G (Isaac Stern, soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; Sinfonia Concertante, and "Eine kleine Nachtmusik."

A feature of the final week-end of concerts—one devoted to contemporary works, the other to works of Haydn—will be the cantata, "A Parable of Death," by Lukas Foss, young composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville Orchestra and given its world premiere in Louisville on March 11. Text of the work is taken from "Geschichten vom lieben Gott," by the Austrian poet, Rainer Maria Rilke, the English version by Anthony Hecht. Other contemporary works will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde," Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program contains the St. Theresa Mass and Symphonies 93 and 100.

This festival will climax the most active of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. Information on the festival can be obtained by writing the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

ST. PAUL, MINN.
PIONEER PRESS
MAY 31 1953

Aliferis To Return To Tanglewood

James Aliferis, associate professor of music at the University of Minnesota, again will join the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Mass., this summer.

He will assist Hugh Ross, director of the Schola Cantorum of New York, in preparing two choruses for performances with the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Last year Aliferis, who directs the University chorus and Chamber Singers, spent the summer at Tanglewood. This season, the center's eleventh, will run from July 5 to Aug. 16.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE

Berkshire [illegible] Programs [illegible]

CHARLES MU[illegible] of the Boston S[illegible] announces the progra[illegible] Berkshire Festival [illegible] July 11-Aug. 16 [illegible] orchestra's Summ[illegible] Mass. In the [illegible] concerts will be [illegible] evenings and S[illegible]

First week [illegible] music of Bach, the [illegible] zart and the [illegible] to [illegible] contemporary [illegible] Milhaud, Ravel and Foss.

Concerts in the [illegible] will be given on [illegible] in place of the [illegible] days), Saturday evenings [illegible] day afternoons.

Programs for Series [illegible] Aug. 1, 2) will include: [illegible] Overture to Leonore No. 3; Mendelssohn—Violin Concerto [illegible] Zino Francescatti; Copland—Appalachian Spring; Ravel—[illegible] All-Tschaikowsky, Pierre Monteux, guest conductor—Hamlet Overture, Suite Mozartiana, Romeo and [illegible] Overture, Symphony No. 5; Schumann — Manfred Overture; [illegible] Piano Concerto (composer as soloist); Mendelssohn—Italian Symphony; Liszt—Mephisto Waltz.

Series B (Aug. 7, 8, 9): Handel Water Music; Barber—Adagio for Strings; Saint-Saens—Cello Concerto (soloist Gregor Piatigorsky); Strauss—Don Quixote; Berlioz—Dramatic Symphony Romeo and Juliet; Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, Leonard Bernstein conductor: Haydn—Symphony No. 102; Mahler—Symphony No. 2.

Series C (Aug. 14, 15, 16): Cherubini—Anacreon Overture; Schubert—Unfinished Symphony; Ravel—Piano Concerto for Left Hand (soloist Seymour Lipkin); Wagner—Prelude and Love-Death "Tristan," Siegfried Idyll, excerpts from Die Meistersinger; Hindemith—Concerto for Strings and Brass; Brahms—Symphony No. 2; Chavez—[illegible] India (Bernstein, guest conductor); Brahms—Requiem.

* * *

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 22 1953

Jennie Tourel To Be Soloist At Tanglewood

Jennie Tourel, soprano, has been added to the list of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood. She will sing in Ravel's "Sheherazade" and Mahler's Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection"), which Leonard Bernstein will conduct Aug. 8. It will be Miss Tourel's first appearance in Western Massachusetts.

The subscription season for the concerts in the Shed will close June 1. Until that date, series tickets may be obtained, entitling the holders to priority in seating, a price saving and the privilege of immediate reservation of seats for the early programs in the theatre. Orders and inquiries should be sent to Symphony Hall, Boston. The sale of single-concert tickets will start June 2.

ER, N. Y.
& CHRONICLE
1 - 1953

ed

CH, conductor Symphony, ans for the Berkerts to be given Tanglewood, the home in Lenox, three weekends,
ven on Saturday
ay afternoons.
e devoted to the e second to Mod to Haydn and omposers Strauss, nd Foss.
great Music Shed
Friday evenings customary Thursvenings and Suneries A (July 31, lude: Beethoven—ore No. 3; Men-Concerto (soloist ); Copland — Ap-
Ravel — Bolero;
Pierre Monteux,
-Hamlet Overture,
Romeo and Juliet
ony No. 5; Schu-Overture; Foss—composer as solo-—Italian Symephisto Waltz.
7, 8, 9): Handel—arber—Adagio for ns—Cello Concerto Piatigorsky); Strauss Berlioz—Dramatic
neo and Julieut;
morial Concert,
n conductor, Haydn
102; Mahler—
14, 15, 16): Cheru-Overture; Schubert mphony; Ravel — or Left Hand (solo-kin); Wagner—Pre-Death "Tristan," A excerpts from Die
Hindemith—Concerto
Brass; Brahms —
2; Chavez—Sinfonia n, guest conductor);
em.

SFIELD, MASS.
KSHIRE EAGLE
AY 22 1953

e Tourel e Soloist nglewood

[illegible] rano, has been [illegible] soloists for the [illegible] by the Boston Orchestra at Tangle-will sing in Ravel's [illegible] Mahler's Sym-2 ("Resurrection"), nard Bernstein will cons. It will be Miss Tour-appearance in Western [illegible] cription season for the
in the Shed will close Until that date, series
ay be obtained, entitling rs to priority in seating, ving and the privilege of reservation of seats for programs in the theatre.
d inquiries should be sent hony Hall, Boston. The single-concert tickets will e 2.

HUDSON, N. Y.
DAILY STAR

MAR 18 1953

BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER SCHEDULE FOR SEASON LISTED

[illegible]

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 3 - 1953

Hub Symph's 1st Nat'l Tour Sock With 169G Take

Boston, June 2.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has returned from its first transcontinental tour, a triumphant 8,100-mile trek across country and back that included 29 concerts in 26 cities, and that grossed $169,000, or an average of $5,830 a concert. Tour opened April 21 in Detroit and ended May 22 in Burlington, Vt.

Management, according to manager George E. Judd, budgeted $200,000 for the trip, for payrolls, transportation, etc., with anticipation of a $30,000 deficit, and the tour came within $1,000 of the estimate. Prestigewise, and from a practical standpoint, by way of expected hypoed future sales on BSO disks, the orch gained greatly by the trip.

Biz was okay everywhere, with exception of Texas. Three Chi concerts, though well attended, were reportedly hard to sell. In Los Angeles, however, on May 4, at the huge Shrine Auditorium, orch drew 6,000 people at a $6.50 top, for a whopping $18,400 gross (as much as some legiters take in in a week). The BSO reportedly got 65% of the net, the Southern California Symphony Assn. (its local sponsor) the other 35%. In Frisco, in two concerts May 7 and 9, at the 3,250-seater Opera House, at $5 top, the symph drew $24,200 for the two dates. In Salt Lake City, May 11, at a $4 top, there were 3,500 people at the 4,500-seater Tabernacle, for a $6,000 take.

Orch reportedly was in at Salt Lake on a $5,000 guarantee, plus 60% of take over expenses. Orch was sold at straight fee of $6,000 in most places (as in Montreal), with a few others at $5,500 or $5,000. Otherwise, it was guarantee against percentage. In several spots the BSO was presented by local symphony associations.

Letters

Eagle 5/18/53

Berkshire's Drum-Beaters Out of Tune?

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

As a Berkshire County taxpayer and real estate developer, I view with alarm the cultural-recreational-resort-industry problems confronting Berkshire County.

What bothers me immediately is the fact that a great many innkeepers and other business people who cater mainly to out-of-town visitors are simply not making a living. The best proof of this is in the listing files of the real estate agencies. Possibly half of all Berkshire inns are for sale! Ask local banks what attitude they take on loans to inns. Many local business people are feeling the pinch from this situation and the tax collectors of local towns will also feel it if something is not done soon.

* * *

I'd like to try to develop my ideas on correction. First, I believe that the orientation of town governments, local business and civic organizations has been confused, including the very organization set up to keep clarity. I refer to the Berkshire Hills Conference. The wide, glaring white line between those who are for and those who are against further cultural-recreational development in the Berkshires has been kept hidden. One can appreciate that chief opposition to development comes from a few well-to-do summer residents, the "good-old-days" advocates who can remember when the rich summer residents held dominance over all affairs, economic, civic and political. Some of these opposed—and still oppose—Tanglewood and the changes it wrought in the section. They have allies in some who have only enjoyed the "good old days" vicariously. And in certain tax-exempt schools. The anti-development forces love the quiet, deserted calm of Berkshire fields, streams, streets and shops.

The other natural alignment, of which I am a partisan, is of those who believe in planned, dignified cultural-recreational development of the Berkshires. Here we have almost all of the county's business people, home owners, professional people, followers of the arts, town governments. We also have the support of the many thousands of Berkshire devotees from other parts of Massachusetts and from neighboring states and distant states and far-off lands.

Correspondence to this column on topics of public interest is welcome. Short letters are preferred. Communications, particularly if over 200 words, are subject to condensation. Letters must bear a genuine signature.

Once we decide, as we must, to make the Berkshires one of the leading cultural-recreational centers of this nation and of the world, with a well-rounded program for all the arts and for all of the high-class recreational attractions, then we must associate ourselves to do some serious public-relations and promotional work for the section. And here we come to the most serious criticism that can be made of the work of the Berkshire Hills Conference: It has been too much of a staid advertising agency to the corresponding neglect of public relations and promotion.

* * *

Recent proof of this unfortunate emphasis is the oversight by the Conference of the announcement by the Boston Symphony Orchestra that one day a week of the main concert season will be eliminated this season by switching the traditional Thursday evening concerts to Friday evenings. I think the Conference should have immediately called a section-wide meeting to discuss the ill effect this decision is apt to have on the Berkshire resort business.

Tanglewood should help us lengthen our resort season, not constrict it. Goodness knows, it presents the towns and the business people with enough problems—together with the many benefits, of course—for the all-too-brief season that the main concerts are held. Just as the section needs Tanglewood, so does Tanglewood need the community. People would not come to the concerts without charming, comfortable inns to accommodate them. Parking bodies is as important as parking cars. Town boards should also consider this when they are asked to grant licenses of all sorts, including liquor, to resort businesses. There should be proper liaison between our public relations and promotional organizations and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, so that mutual assistance can be given. Had this liaison been established, the BSO would not have arbitrarily moved up its Thursday concerts to Friday.

* * *

In solving our over-all problem of lengthening and publicizing the Berkshire resort season, we must make fuller use of the wonderful facilities owned at Tanglewood by the BSO. Let us work out a plan in co-operation with the BSO, as joint host, by which other major attractions are brought to the Berkshires both before and after the present concert season. Many ideas have been suggested, such as, visiting orchestras from this country and Europe; national competition of high school music groups with valuable prizes; national folk music, art and song festivals and competition with sizable prizes, etc.

Immediately a section-wide conference of only those who are in favor of further Berkshire development should be called to work out plans. To this conference should be invited professional public relations experts to advise us.

WALTER WILSON.
East Chatham, N.Y.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUN 17 1953

MALCOLM H. HOLMES DIES

Dean of New England Music Conservatory Was 46

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOSTON, June 16—Malcolm Haughton Holmes, dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and conductor of the Harvard University Band, died today after a long illness. He was 46 years old.

Mr. Holmes also was conductor of the Conservatory Orchestra and until 1950 he had directed the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra. He was graduated in 1928 from Harvard.

He had served also as conductor of the Pierian Sodality and was for eleven years on the music faculty of Wellesley College, where he conducted the college orchestra, taught chamber music and managed the Wellesley College Series. On many occasions he was guest conductor at Boston Pops and Esplanade concerts.

Mr. Holmes was on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center and was a member of the Tanglewood String Quartet. He was vice president of the Harvard Musical Association and director of its orchestra. He was the author of the book "Conducting the Amateur Orchestra."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wales Holmes of Wellesley Hills, survive.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced plans for the eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music it maintains at Tanglewood in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts. Charles Munch, the Music Director of the Orchestra, will serve as Director, and Aaron Copland as Assistant Director. Ralph Berkowitz is Dean. The six week session will begin on July 5 and close on August 16.

Leonard Berstein, who, with Pierre Monteux, will be a guest conductor of the Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments with the help of Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss; Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Aliferis and Lorna deVaron; Boris Goldovsky, head of opera, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo Van Witsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner. Irving Fine will assist Mr. Copland and Mr. Chavez in composition.

For the first time in its 72 years, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will make a transcontinental tour of the United States. The Orchestra will open the five week tour on April 21 in Detroit, will cross the South and the Southwest to California, returning through Denver and Chicago to Canada, closing the tour in Burlington, Vermont. The Orchestra will play 29 concerts in 26 cities. Charles Munch, the Orchestra's Music Director, has invited Pierre Monteux to share the honors of conducting as guest, as he did on the Orchestra's trip to Europe last spring.

Following the transcontinental tour the Orchestra will continue to give concerts in various series until late summer: the Pop Concerts at Symphony Hall under Arthur Fiedler, the Charles River Esplanade free concerts, and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood until August 16. On January 20 a Boston Pops Tour Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler began a ten-week tour of 65 concerts as far west as Texas. Altogether the 1952-53 season will include 293 concerts given under the aegis of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 103 cities of the United States and Canada.

Orpheum.

~~Post~~ Herald - June 7

2 Festivals Open This Week, Both of Much Interest

By RUDOLPH ELIE

There is hardly any room to doubt that in their second year of existence, two local festivals have become fixed annual events to enrich the life of the city for many years to come. One is the Boston Art Festival, which will be officially opened today by Mayor Hynes at three o'clock in the Public Garden; the other is the Festival of the Creative Arts at Brandeis University, which begins on Wednesday with what promises to be a most engaging symposium on the comic spirit by such eminent comedians and humorists as Fred Allen, S. J. Perelman, Irwin Corey and others.

Both festivals had their beginnings last year, and both immediately established themselves out of sheer rightness and spirit of their missions. That Brandeis' festival could hardly fail was evident at the time. Universities and cultural organizations are equipped to sponsor festivals in the arts and lend, moreover, the right atmosphere. Cities, however, especially such cities as Boston, whose cultural activities have traditionally been ignored and even hampered by the political elements and whose lack of sense of civic pride and boosting is probably unequalled anywhere, are hardly imagined the best auspices for presenting anything but parades. Thus when the city announced it was to sponsor an exhibition of contemporary paintings in the Public Garden in an outdoor art festival last June, few imagined it would turn out to be anything but another noble experiment.

MAYOR'S SUPPORT

It might have been just that, too, if it hadn't been for the fact that Mayor Hynes, an enlightened city administrator who if not a connoisseur of the arts himself is at least oriented to them, got behind the idea and achieved support from his administration. The original idea was that of Jerome Rosenfeld, a Boston publisher. He, with Daniel Ahern, Jr., approached the mayor with it and found him receptive. A committee of leaders in the art world headed by Nelson Aldrich went on from there with hardly any notion that the idea would succeed as it did.

The budget for the first festival was $15,000, of which the city itself paid about $6500. One of the conditions set by the committee was that the city could exercise no control over the paintings chosen; that the judges alone could select the exhibits without interference or political intrusion. This stipulation probably was, when all is said and done, the major factor in establishing the festival from the outset. For while some of the 200,000 people who visited the first festival may not have been exactly won over to contemporary art by all the paintings, it was more than evident to all that here was not merely a group of pretty pictures but a collection of the best paintings by the best artists of the day.

That 200,000 people would turn out to see the exhibit was enough: the second festival was assured. This year, however, the base has been broadened to include music and, like the art itself, it is restricted to the best . . . and with no concessions to popular taste, either. Thus, this evening, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society under G. Wallace Woodworth, will give a program ranging from Latin motets to French chansons. Tomorrow night the New England Conservatory will present a program of mostly new music by advanced soloists of the school, while the Tuesday evening program presents the New England Conservatory orchestra under Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the Boston Symphony, in a program offering Creston's Fourth Symphony and the first movement of Khachaturian's Piano Concerto with John Moriarty as soloist.

The feature of the week's musical programs comes on Wednesday when the New England Opera Theater under Boris Goldovsky gives a complete performance, in English, of Rossini's "Barber of Seville." This is made possible by the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Boston Musicians' Union, which is subsidizing the orchestra and should be particularly interesting for Mr. Goldovsky's novel placing of the orchestra behind the performance.

Thursday's feature is the Chorus Pro Musica under Alfred Nash Paterson doing Brahms' "Liebeslieder" Waltzes and other choral works. Friday's is the New England Conservatory chorus conducted by Lorna Cooke DeVaron in a fine choral program. Saturday's is a non-musical affair involving a symposium with Al Capp, Faye Emerson, Skitch Henderson, Victor Jory, Henry Morgan and Alexis Smith. And Sunday's is a concert by members of the Boston Symphony conducted by Harry Ellis Dickson.

It is, in fine, a most admirable series of musical events that, in the beautiful setting of the Garden, should add particular distinction to the second festival.

The theme of Brandeis University's second festival is "Three Centuries of the Comic Spirit." Directing the festival, which will again be centered in the Adolph Ullman Amphitheater, is Leonard Bernstein, and the program of events is blue ribbon throughout. Beginning on Wednesday with the symposium of comedians and humorists, it continues on Thursday with the world premiere of Kronenberger's comedy "The International Set" starring Edna Best and Melville Cooper; on Friday with a selection of classic comic sequences of the movies, and on Saturday with a discussion of comic poetry. On Saturday night Mr. Bernstein will conduct a Concerto for Tap Dancer and orchestra by Morton Gould and the one-act opera "The Breasts of Tiresias" by Poulenc. This event will be repeated on Sunday night, to bring to a close Boston's dual spring festivals . . . May they long exist!

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MAY 31 1953

ART AND NATURE ALLIED IN BERKSHIRES

By BARBARA DUBIVSKY

LENOX, Mass.—Innkeeping has completed the full cycle in Massachusetts where the country's first hotels first flourished as post houses on the post roads. The coffee houses and stagecoach inns gradually developed over the years into lavish citified hotels, and now they are reverting to their prototype with the construction of motels along New England's byways. Here in the Berkshire Hills, where everything so far has managed pretty much to remain in scale and in keeping with the modest altitudes of the mountains, it is satisfying to find the newly built motels, and those still rising, conforming to Colonial architecture. So much so that were it not for the omnipresent sign, "TV in Every Room," the wandering spirits of the founding fathers might feel quite comfortably at home.

Driving through the Berkshires is really quite soul-satisfying, especially when the mountain greenery opens up and you look down across a valley over to the next hill shaded in light and dark tones by the white clouds overhead, and then catch sight of a small glen "busily full of sunshine." The towns are almost too perfect, with their white houses, broad avenues, sweeping lawns and the tall white steeple of the church on the hill dominating the countryside. Best of all, there are almost no billboards to interfere with the view.

Berkshire Hills Conference

Lakeside trail at Sheffield, Mass.

Three new motels, less than half an hour from the music and dance festival centers at Tanglewood and Jacob's Pillow, are, or will be, ready for the July openings. One is right in Pittsfield on West Housatonic Street, another on the Pittsfield-Lenox road and the third in Lee. Two other motels on the Pittsfield-Lenox road are completing additions, and one in Cheshire has added a dining room. In addition to the above, two motor courts, slightly farther south, are scheduled to be completed sometime early this summer, one in Great Barrington, the other in Sheffield. Rates vary, but $10 per couple per night during the busy Festival season (July through August) would be about average. Modest restaurant facilities are close by.

Ready for Guests

The visitor who plans to stay longer than a Festival week-end has not been forgotten in the tourist accommodation boom. North Egremont boasts two newly renovated inns, while Dalton lays claim to one of the largest reconstruction jobs with a completely modernized inn set to open early in June. In the Lenox area, one of the recreation resorts has added a new bunkhouse accommodating thirty-five people (3-4-5 in a room). Many other guest houses have been enlarged or redecorated, and a few have added dining rooms or cocktail lounges. Almost all have spruced up in some way—a new paint job, landscaping, flower boxes or a new driveway.

An overnight stay at a guest house averages $2.50 to $3 per person. Many serve a light breakfast for a small fee. Inns offering a single room with private bath, American plan, charge about $9 a day. The visitor who comes to stay for a week or longer can find accommodations for two, with bath, American plan, from $60 a week on up. Rates at guest houses and inns show a slight tendency to increase as one approaches the Tanglewood area.

Enough Restaurants

Fortunately, expansion of eating facilities has kept pace with the building boom throughout the region.

The reason for it all, the Berkshire Music Festival, opens at Tanglewood on July 11 and runs through Aug. 16. Situated on the Lenox-Stockbridge boundary line (the ticket office is in Stockbridge, but the Shed lies within the limits of Lenox), Tanglewood is easily accessible from all parts of the Berkshires since it is more or less in the center of the hills. Large parking areas are available within the estate for those driving their own cars, and special concert buses are operated from all parts of the area on concert week-ends for those who have come up by train or bus. Concerts are held on Friday and Saturday evenings and on Sunday afternoons. Tickets range from $2.50 or $3.50 for Shed concerts, to $4 to $5 for theatre concerts.

The huge lawn outside the Shed has just had its first cutting of the season and is being put in shape for the many music lovers who prefer hearing their Mozart and Haydn outdoors with the rolling hills and sky as a natural cyclorama. The unusual construction of the Shed, pie-wedge shaped with the semi-circular end completely open, allows for both an indoor and outdoor audience.

Cultural activities abound in the Berkshires in the summertime. Perhaps the second most popular program offered is the dance festival at Jacob's Pillow in Lee, where Ted Shawn presents week-end matinee and evening performances, featuring great dancers from all over the world. This year the season will begin on July 3 and continue on through Sept. 5. Since Tanglewood and Jacob's Pillow are only a few miles apart, many people combine dance and music recitals in their week-end program of entertainment.

Plays at Stockbridge

Another great drawing card is the lovely Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, where Broadway's plays will be performed by stage and screen personalities from June 22 through Labor Day. The South Mountain Concerts take over when Tanglewood closes, with chamber music programs on Sunday afternoons, continuing on through September.

Although there is great emphasis on the various festivals the Berkshires are not just dance, music and drama country. Long before the Boston Symphony moved in, the many lakes, forest trails, and invigorating climate lured visitors to these Massachusetts hills. There are 112 brooks and streams in the county to tempt the fisherman. More than a dozen golf courses are available ($2 greens fee). Swimming and sailing are extremely popular at Laurel, Pontoosuc, Onota and other lakes. Riding stables are scattered throughout the area, and bicycles can be hired by the hour, day or week at most inns and resorts. Hikers may obtain maps for any of the sixteen state forests from any of the county or state offices.

Places of interest in the county include the Indian Mission House in Stockbridge; the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield, which sponsors a foreign film series in the summertime; a small Shaker village at Hancock (West Pittsfield); Hawthorne House (just back of the Tanglewood estate) where "The House of Seven Gables" was written.

Cabbage Paper

At the Crane Museum in Dalton visitors can see an exhibition of the paper manufactured there for use by the United States Government in making paper money. Pleasant Valley Bird Sanctuary and the Berkshire Garden Center, with their displays of birds, animals, flowers and shrubbery native to the region, are also very popular with visitors. Polo fans can attend matches on Sunday afternoons from the end of May to the first of October on the grounds of the Pittsfield Riding and Polo Association for a 65-cent admission charge. There is also a horse show in August and Great Barrington holds an old-fashioned country fair in September.

Transportation to this delightful vacation spot is varied and plentiful. Many people come by car, of course, since this gives them the best opportunity to take in the entire region. From New York a good route is via the Saw Mill River Parkway to Hawthorne Circle, off the Circle on Taconic State Parkway and north to Lafayetteville and thence to Millbrook, then on Route 44 to Canaan, north of Canaan on Route 7.

Two trains are scheduled daily to the area from New York, with an extra one on Friday night and Saturday afternoon during the summer months. The fare is $5.59 one way. For those who prefer a bus ride, one bus leaves New York daily, and the fare on it is $3.85. The visitor in a hurry can fly to Boston, and from there take one of two daily flights to Pittsfield for a one-way cost of $10.24, including tax.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

MA

500 Apply For Admission To Music Center

More than 500 [illegible] been received [illegible] dents by the [illegible] ter, which will [illegible] son at Tanglewood July [illegible] ing to Dean Ralph Berk[illegible] anticipates 1000 [illegible] quiries.

"The interest, which [illegible] that of previous years [illegible] promises the best [illegible] advanced musical tal[illegible] years," Mr. Berkowitz [illegible]

Openings still exist [illegible] divisions of the school [illegible] instrumental music, [illegible] choral directing, [illegible] chamber music, opera [illegible] phases, and the Tanglewood [illegible] Group, initiated last season [illegible] sic educators and amateur [illegible] enroll for from two to [illegible] through the summer.

BOSTON, MASS.
ADVERTISER

Soloists for Tanglewood

Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., this summer. The six weekends of summer concerts commence July 11, continue through Aug. 16 with its music director, Charles Munch, as conductor.

Cir. (D 503,999) (S 1,096,738)

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

MUSIC STUDY GROUP OPEN

Tanglewood Festival Course Still Has Some Vacancies

Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. This is a new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

The season at Tanglewood will open officially on Sunday, June [illegible] and the first of the theatre concerts will be given the following Saturday evening, when Charles Munch will conduct Boston Symphony players in the six Brandenburg Concertos by Bach.

Boston Symphony Revises Week-Ends Schedule of Concerts in The Shed

This date in music: 1810, first performance, private, of Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture, in Vienna; born, in England, Richard Hoffman, pianist and teacher in New York from 1847. He was on American tour with Jenny Lind. Malvina Hoffman, the sculptor, was his youngest daughter; Ruth Draper, monologist, his granddaughter.

BY E. V. W.

THE 1953 BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., has a revised schedule in its six weekends of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed in July and August, according to announcement from the Boston Symphony Orchestra offices.

CONCERTS IN the 6,000-seat Shed will be performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, July 31-Aug. 16. The Chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat Theater-Concert Hall will be played, as usual, on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, July 11-16. Charles Munch, the Orchestra music director, will conduct, with Pierre Monteux as Guest Conductor Aug. 1 and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15.

BECAUSE the broadcasts commence at 2:30 P.M. Director Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs in The Shed which in other years have started at 3 o'clock. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in these Columbia weekly broadcasts, which began early this month with broadcasts of the Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh Festivals, in Europe.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN

MAY 24 1953

SOLOISTS IN the Theater-Concert Hall concerts during the season will include Lukas Foss, pianist; Isaac Stern, violinist; Joseph de Pasquale, violist. Hugh Ross will conduct the J. S. Bach Cantata, "Jesu, de du meine Seele" and the Haydn St. Theresa Mass. Lukas Foss will conduct his own "A Parable of Death" with Vera Zorina, Narrator. Among other Theater-Concert Hall music; Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and the Mozart "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; and the "Classical" symphony by Prokofieff.

THE FIRST concert in the Music Shed on July 31, will have Zino Francescatti, violinist, as soloist in the Mendelssohn Concerto in E Minor. The program also will include Beethoven, Copland and Ravel works. On Aug. 1, Lukas Foss, pianist, will play his Concerto with Orchestra. Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony and the Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes of Weber, are among symphonic selections. The Aug. 2 concert, conducted by Pierre Monteux, will comprise Tschaikowsky's Serenade for String and the Fifth Symphony; and, following broadcast, the same composer's Piano Concerto with Jorge Bolet, soloist.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

MAY 24 1953

Berkshire Festival Soloists Announced

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, May 23—Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, here this Summer. The six weekends of Summer concerts commence July 11, continue through Aug. 16 with its music director, Charles Munch, as conductor.

Miss Tourel will be soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade," and in Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "Resurrection," which Leonard Bernstein conducts Aug. 8. Mr. Bolet will perform Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto" in the all-Tchaikovsky program which Pierre Monteux conducts Aug. 2 (afternoon). Miss Zorina will narrate in the first New England performance of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, on the afternoon of July 26.

Cir. (D 89,838)

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

Berkshire Footlights

The echo of steady be[illegible] mers upon nail is already [illegible] ing the fast approaching summer season in the Berkshires. [illegible] are nearing completion at Tanglewood in Lenox, the Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge, and Jacob's Pillow in Becket. Soon George Judd of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Billy Miles at the Playhouse and Ted Shawn at the Pillow will be welcoming artists for another season.

[121]

Counties of Western Mass. Ready for Vacation Season

Berkshire Hills Conference, Pioneer Valley Association and Mohawk Trail Association Point Up Scenic and Recreational Attractions of This Area

Merchants and tourist caterers in four Western Massachusetts counties are readying for an anticipated booming vacation season. Natural and historical attractions throughout the length and breadth of Berkshire, Franklin, Hampshire and Hampden Counties and several score recreational outposts in the area are expected to draw tens of thousands of visitors between June 1 and Labor Day.

The vacation business in Western Massachusetts not generally hailed as a major enterprise until recently, will bring several million dollars income to area businessmen. As reported as a feature article in the May edition of Hi-Lines, Western Massachusetts Electric Co. publication, declares, our scenery, historic places cultural aspects, fishing and other natural and recreational attractions will be for sale over and over again.

Three Area Groups

Responsible for a large part of the section's promotion as a tourist and vacation land are three area groups—Berkshire Hills Conference, Pioneer Valley Association, and the Mohawk Trail Association.

Also playing a part is the Electric Company's Area Development Department, of which John M. Turnbull, the Hi-Lines article's author, is director.

In "Turning the Hills to Gold," Turnbull contends "The recreation business—peculiar in many respects—is a cash-and-carry trade. The customers come for our goods leaving their cash but we sell the same goods over and over again—We have a perpetual invention at no cost."

The three promotional organizations jointly sponsored a Western Massachusetts booth at the New York Sportsmen's Show held in Grand Central Place, New York, last February. Their principal and individual endeavors, however, are to boost by intensive advertising the popularity of their own localities.

Berkshire Hills Conference Turnbull explains in the article, organexplains in the article, was organized in 1926 and incorporated in 1938 to "disseminate and bring to the attention of the public by various publicity methods, information concerning the cultural, scenic and recreational facilities of Berkshire County; by a program of education and publicity, education and co-operation to assist existing organizations within Berkshire County which are engaged in extending and increasing the facilities."

Vacation Guide

One of the groups, publications is a vacation guide and map, offering information on train and bus connections, motor trip routes, and pointing out the county's most scenic locations. Listed are more than a dozen golf courses and country clubs; world reknown Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood; Stockbridge Summer Playhouse; 3505 foot Greylock Mountain, highest point in the state; numerous state forests and game preserves; polo matches in Pittsfield; dance festivals at Jacob's Pillow in Otis; and—for the fall—Great Barrington Fair and autumn scenery on the Mohawk, Skyline, Berkshire, Knox, and Taconic Trails.

A representative from each of 32 Berkshire towns comprises the Berkshire Hills Association's board of directors, Turnbull explains. Paid membership exceeds 500 and supplemented by county funds, the organization spends about $15000 annually for conservation and advertising. More than two thirds of its funds go directly into advertising.

During the last summer for which figures are available, Turnbull states, visitors to Berkshire County spent $5,413,000 alone for accomidations in hotels, guest houses and summer camps.

The Mohawk Trail Association promotes a 42 mile section of Massachusetts Route 2 and bordering sections as "The Shortest—Most Scenic Highway Between Boston and Buffalo, N. Y."

"It (the Association) not only pushes its sales when tourists arrive," says Turnbull "But also goes out into the travel market and develops its business by such methods as contacting delegates to conventions in Boston and inducing them to either come or return via the Mohawk Trail."..

The group's special events committee arranges other promotional activities, such as the Western Massachusetts Music Festival at Turners Falls that took place May 16, and Yankee Doodle Days in Charlemont, August 14. Greenfield observes its 200th anniversary June 10-14 and Williamstown its bicentennial September 23.

Some Highlights

Highlights on the broad newly-widened highway from the New York State line to Greenfield are Williams College campus and Haystack Monument, both in Williamstown, Natural Bridge outside North Adams; Mount Greylock, Hoosac [illegible] Trail State Park, the Bridge of Flowers in Turners Falls and other sights at the Greenfield-Deerfield end of the Trail.

The complete Trail organization encompasses the Mohawk and Taconic Trail Associations the latter comprising Route 2's New York 20—through the Hudson Valley.

Membership in the Massachusetts organization, Turnbull disclosed, is well distributed over the trail, with representation from Charlemont, Florida, Greenfield, North Adams, Shelburne and Shelburne Falls and Williamstown.

Tthe Pioneer Valley Association—with newly-founded offices in Northampton—promotes recreation and general development in Franklin, Hampshire and Hampden counties.

Its purpose—as listed by Turnbull—are the following:

1. To build a large volume tourist business for the 70 cities and towns in the three counties;
2. To make new desirable residents from some of the families who will vacation here and eventually establish permanent residences;
3. To bring additional income increases to stores and trading centers, in light of the facts that 80 cents of the tourist dollar is spent for food, gasoline and amusement and 20 cents for accommodations;
4. To increase sales of native farm produce;
5. To co-operate with local groups in featuring industrial advantages of the valley;
6. Follow legislation, conservation and developments on related subjects; and
7. To maintain permanent headquarters and engage in necessary studies.

Guide Map

A guide map to the Pioneer Valley has received wide acclaim by the section's residents who have located—some for the first time—scenic and historic places in their own backyards. With a 100,000 printing nearly depleted, the Association is contemplating further printing of the informative bulletin.

Central landmark in Pioneer Valley is of course, Connecticut River. The section includes wide variances in topography, from high hills to the north and portions west to fertile and low lying farm lands along the Connecticut's route.

The valley is dotted with several hundred varied-sized water bodies—including Quabbin Reservoir with 130 miles of shore line—the larger of which have become summer resorts.

Relics of King Philip's Indian Wars of the late 17th century are prevalent including stone houses which once served as stockades and the locations of bloody massacres—Bloody Brook in South Deerfield and the Hatfields, for example.

Co-operating in the work of the tri-sectional organizations is the Western Massachusetts Electric Co. Area Development Committee. "We believe," Turnbull writes, "that the efforts of our department and of others to develop travel potential can best be channelled into the splendid efforts of these regional associations. We gladly do what we can to assist in the excellent promotion of our area.

"Western Massachusetts," he concludes, "has six great features: substantial home ownership; diversified industry; prosperous agriculture; well-established commerce; unsurpassed educational opportunities; and, last but not least, year-round recreation.

"We are fortunate in having such alert, capable and well established associations so active in the promotion of our rich recreational advantages."

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

MAY 24 1953

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

MAY 31 1953

Berkshires Ready for Festivals

By RICHARD V. HAPPEL

PITTSFIELD, Mass.

The Berkshires are all set for their customary busy summer. By far the most ambitious project, of course, will be the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra [redacted] Director Charles Munch. For many years, these programs have been presented Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays. However, this season a change has been effected, with concerts on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, July 31 through Aug. 16. The change was made to permit music lovers from New York and Boston to attend all the concerts during an average week end.

Friday and Saturday concerts in the Music Shed will be at 8.30 p. m. Sunday programs will be at 2.30 p. m. this year instead of 3 as previously, a change made necessary because they will be broadcast from that hour until 4 over the Columbia Broadcasting System "Festivals of the World" series. This year the "Little Festival" opens in the Concert Theater at Tanglewood on July 11 and 12, and will continue Saturday nights at 8.30 and Sundays at 2.30 p. m. through July 26. The final Sunday program will go out on the air as the first Tanglewood presentation of the "Festivals of the World" series.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, dir[redacted]ed Shawn, will present ten wee[redacted]dern, ballet and ethnic work from July 4 to Labor Day. They will be staged in the afternoon and evening, Fridays and Saturdays each week, except during the Tanglewood Festival period, July 28 through Aug. 15, when seven performances will be put on, Tuesdays through Saturdays, weekly. The University of the Dance at Jacob's Pillow will run for nine weeks, starting July 6 for undergraduates and a six-week course will start the same time for graduate students. Teachers will include Mr. Shawn, Antony Tudor, Margaret Craske, Myra Kinch, Mrs. La Meri and Dr. Elizabeth Burchenal.

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, a few miles from Jacob's Pillow, will present a summer-long program of stage attractions, directed by William Miles. A resident company and visiting stars will be featured during the season. A musical theater-in-the-round also is proposed in Lenox.

For motorists there are six scenic drives through the Berkshires; the Mohawk Trail, Taconic Trail, Berkshire Trail, Lafayette Trail, Skyline Trail and Knox Trail. In addition, the main routes over Lebanon Mountain and Jacob's Ladder are extremely picturesque, with turnoffs to park at scenic points.

The Berkshires offer sixteen state forests, all accessible by car and most of them with picnic facilities. The largest is Mt. Greylock Reservation, the highest mountain in the state. A motor road leads to the summit where a fieldstone lodge is open for refreshments, and the memorial beacon tower from the top of which views are possible for fifty miles.

Golfers will find thirteen courses in the Berkshires, and outdoors fans will have available many miles of bridle paths with saddle horses for hire at a number of stables. Lake and stream fishing also is provided at the many bodies of water that dot the area. Polo matches also will be played at the Pittsfield Riding and Polo Club at the field a short distance from the center of town.

Festival House in Lenox plans theater-in-the-round, to open July 1 with "Street Scene." The new venture will present student actors, with the theater set up in the carriage house of the former Morgan estate. Seating capacity will be 200. Performers will come from the Drama Lab, a theater school at 115 W. 52d St., New York. A ten-week season is contemplated.

Also in Lenox, the Pleasant Valley Sanctuary will be open daily to visitors interested in nature study and native birds There are several miles of nature trails on the property, a beaver colony and a new trail-side museum of nature exhibits. The barn tearoom will serve luncheons and dinners. At Stockbridge, the Mission House will be open to visitors who will see an early American home in perfect preservation and fully furnished with objects and dining and cooking utensils of that period.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.
REPORTER-DISPATCH

MAY 25 1953

This Is Last Week

This is the final week in which to purchase series tickets for the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood ~~this~~ Summer. There are three series of three concerts each. Series A covers July 31, Aug. 1 and Aug 2; Series B will be Aug. 7, 8 and 9, and Series C will cover Aug. 14, 15 and 16. Applications may be sent to the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

Berkshire Soloists Added to Roster

Jennie Tourel, soprano, Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer. The six weekends of summer concerts begin July 11, continue through Aug. 16 with Charles Munch as conductor.

Miss Tourel will be soloist in Ravel's "Scheherazade," and in Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "Resurrection," which Leonard Bernstein conducts Aug. 8. Mr. Bolet will perform Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto in the all-Tchaikovsky program which Pierre Monteux conducts Aug. 2 (afternoon). Miss Zorina will narrate in the first New England performance of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, on the afternoon of July 26.

BOSTON, MASS.
TRAVELER

MAY 25 1953

HUDSON, N. Y.
DAILY STAR

MAY 20 1953

REVISED PROGRAM AT TANGLEWOOD

The Boston Symphony Orchestra announces revisions in its six weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall and in the Music Shed, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct; with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor August 1, Leonard Bernstein on August 8 and 15. An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6,000-seat shed, performed consecutively Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 31-August 16, with the chamber concerts in the 1,200-seat concert hall, as always, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-26.

This 16th Berkshire Festival since the open-air concerts were inaugurated in the hills of western Massachusetts, in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will mark the first summer in several seasons when Sunday afternoon concerts will be simultaneously broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. The first portion of the concerts, lasting an hour and a half, July 26, August 2, 9, and 16, will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System as part of its summer program of international music festivals. The Berkshire Festival will be the only American event in weekly programs, which will include broadcasts of the Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth, and Edinburgh Festivals in Europe.

Because the Columbia broadcasts commence at 2:30 p. m., Mr Munch has advanced to that hour all of this season's six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival programs which in other years have started at 3 p. m. Although the broadcast portion of the program ends at 4 p. m., Tanglewood audiences will hear the remainder of the concerts, following an intermission.

Music lovers planning to attend the Berkshire Festival concerts still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of Shed concerts (July 31 to August 16), which entitles them to priority of seating, a saving in price, and admission to any of the six July concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Subscriptions are being handled at the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass., which will file orders received at this time for seats for single concerts and fill them when their sale begins June 1.

Chamber Music Set for Tanglewood

With the generous co-operation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, three concerts of chamber music will be presented by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on successive Wednesday evenings. This will occur during the course of the Berkshire Festival which comprises six week-ends of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 11 through August 16.

The chamber music concerts will open on July 15 with a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, 'cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, and Rameau.

A sonata recital on July 22 will be given by Ruth Posselt, violinist, Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. They will play music by Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

The final program, July 29, will feature the Hungarian Quartet: Zoltan Szekely, violin; Alexander Moskowsky, violin; Joseph Reilich, viola; Vilmos Palotai, 'cello, in works by Haydn (Quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1) Piston (Quartet No. 4), Beethoven (Quarter in B flat major, Op. 130, ending with the "Grosse Fuge," Op. 133).

These concerts will be held in Tanglewood's Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30, as in previous years. They will be open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The sale of tickets for each of the 15 concerts of the Berkshire Festival has now opened at the box office at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Mail and telephone orders will be received.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 31 1953

Berkshire Residents Asked To Aid Tanglewood School

Invitation Issued to Join Society of Friends of Music Center to Support Summer Program

(Special to The Republican)

Berkshire Hills, May 30—An invitation has been issued to Berkshire County residents to join the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center for the purpose of supporting Boston Symphony orchestra's summer ~~school at~~ Tanglewood, Lenox. Membership is by voluntary contribution. In a letter mailed this past week to former members by Dr. Lewis Perry, headmaster emeritus of Philips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and chairman of the Society, he mentioned the fact that since the school was founded in 1940, more than 3500 young musicians have studied there. The letter added that benefits derived at the school can be evinced by the fact that more than 10 per cent of the membership of major symphony orchestras in the nation are former students at the Tanglewood school. These include singers in the Metropolitan opera and New York City opera companies. Others have received awards in composition, and other are engaged in concert engagements and teaching music.

A revolving scholarship has been established to pay for tuition of talented students. Dr. Perry reported that in the past year $2000 has been returned to the fund by students who held scholarships at the school in former years. It was brought out that the money received from students who can afford to pay for their studies does not cover the cost of the school's operation.

Donations in any amount are being solicited. They should be mailed to Symphony Hall, Boston. Membership cards will be issued before the school opens.

Members On Advisory Board

The importance of Tanglewood as a music center can be gleaned from the fact that eight of 11 members of the international music advisory board of the Congress of Cultural Freedom are associated with the Tanglewood festival, or have taught at the music school. The advisory board recently selected 12 composers to compete in the newly-organized 20th Century Masterpiece awards in a contest to be held in Rome next spring. The European Center of Culture and the Italian National Radio network will sponsor the contest.

Four members of the board of advisors have been resident teachers at the Music Center and the fifth, Carlos Chavez of Mexico, will teach at the Center this coming season. Among these on the board are Samuel Barber, American composer; Luigi Dallapiccola, Italian; Arthur Honegger and Darius Milhaud, French; Igor Stravinsky, Benjamin Britten, Virgil Thomson, the latter music critic of the New York Herald Tribune; Boris Blacher, Francesco Malipiero and Frank Martin.

Cash and others awards will be given to winners. In addition, prize-winning compositions are promised performance by three major European and three major American orchestras. The Italian government will contribute the Rome radio orchestra for the performance of the competing works.

Symphonette Concert

BOSTON, MASS.
TRAVELER
JUN 3 - 1953

Chamber Music At Tanglewood

Three concerts of chamber music open by invitation to members of the society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, are scheduled on successive Wednesday evenings during the Berkshire Festival, July 11 through August 16.

The first will be a recital July 15 by the Baroque Trio: Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. A sonata recital will be given July 22 by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. The final prog4am July 29 will feature the Hungarian Quartet: Zoltan Szekely violin; Alexander Moskowsky, violin; Joseph Reilich, viola, and Vilmos Palotai, cello.

The concerts, made possible by co-operation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, will be in Tanglewood's Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30. The society helps to support the summer school of music maintained there by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Sale of tickets for the fifteen concerts of the Boston Symphony's Berkshire Festival ~~has opened~~ at the Tanglewood box office.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 21 1953

BSO Concert at Bennington Will Wind Up National Tour

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will finish its first transcontinental tour tomorrow night in Bennington, Vt. In the past month, it has made the circuit of 26 cities, playing 29 concerts to enthusiastic, overflow audiences.

In San Francisco more than 6000 persons, the musicians' largest audience away from Tanglewood, paid $18,500 to hear them. They played to crowded houses in Los Angeles, despite the competition of the opening of the West Coast production of "Carousel" and of Henry Fonda in "Point of No Return."

As on the European tour last spring, the orchestra and Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux, who shared the conducting, were welcomed everywhere, often by persons not known for their interest in music, but who realized that the visit would help to raise the standards of their local orchestra and contribute to the culture of their communities. Keys to numerous cities were presented, and the conductors and musicians were feted. In Los Angeles the Jaycees gave a dinner to the entire orchestra and took them on a tour of the city.

Critics Enthusiastic

Critics wrote rave notices.

Paul Jones, in the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution: "A brilliance associated only with America's finest orchestras closed the Music Club's series before a turn-away throng of 5000 . . . The audience left only after the house lights had been turned on."

In the Cincinnati Enquirer, Arthur Darack, wrote: "The Boston orchestra and its conductor, Charles Munch, brought cheers and wonder, but it also brought the kind of orchestral performance which makes a work like the Brahms fourth symphony seem like a discovery. The orchestra is claimed by Boston, but it is national in the same sense as the New York Yankees. Over the years the Boston orchestra has probably done as much to establish the standards in orchestral playing as the Yankees in their own field."

Alfred Frankenstein said in the San Francisco Chronicle: "The company which goes by the name of the Boston Symphony Orchestra is something phenomenal, as the whole world knows."

Writing in the New Orleans Times Picayune, Ed Brooks spoke of the orchestra's "instantaneous precision of response" and "its teamwork and artistic excellence. For two hours last night there was available in the Municipal Auditorium the greatest orchestral playing heard in New Orleans in our memory, and probably in the memory of the oldest concertgoer in the hall."

Net Loss of $30,000

Many critics commented on the influence on the standards of local orchestras that would result from the visit. Howard Taubman, New York Times critic, who traveled with it, wrote of the tour: "The current journey is a fresh reminder of the good that is done for musical life in this country by such ambitious enterprises. . . . Nevertheless the Boston Symphony probably will end with a net loss of about $30,000 for the tour. The supporters of the orchestra who must find the funds to meet this added deficit should not feel too distressed about this fresh burden. The orchestra has made a host of new friends, who might even turn up in Boston or Tanglewood some day."

Mr. Munch will board a plane for France in Montreal tonight. He is planning to conduct in Paris a performance of all-American music before his return for the Tanglewood season in July.

Pops Start Monday

The orchestra will return to Boston Saturday and under Arthur Fiedler start a six-week engagement of Pops concerts at Symphony Hall Monday night. The Pops will continue until July 3, when it will close after 62 concerts.

Beginning July 5, the orchestra, minus the principals of the Boston Symphony, who will come to Tanglewood to be on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, will play free concerts six nights a week for three weeks on the Charles River Esplanade. After that, the Symphony members will come to Tanglewood.

June 9 Mon.

Chamber Music fo

Unusual Concerts on List For Berkshire Music Center

Three concerts of chamber music will be presented at Tanglewood this summer by the Berkshire Music Center with the cooperation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. These will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall on successive Wednesday evenings beginning July 15.

The July 15 concert will feature the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute, and Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program will include works by Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, and Rameau.

A sonata recital on July 22 will be given by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. They will play music by Hindemith, Fauré, Bach, and Prokofiev.

The final program on July 29 will offer the Hungarian Quartet—comprised of Zoltan Szekely and Alexander Moskowsky, violins; Joseph Reilich, viola, and Vilmos Palotai, cello—in works by Hadyn (Quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1), Piston (Quartet No. 4), and Beethoven (Quartet in B-flat major, Op. 130, ending with the Grosse Fuge, Op. 133).

These three concerts will be open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Those interested in summer activities at Tanglewood are invited to join this society through which contributions help to support the school.

The sale of tickets for each of the 15 concerts of the Berkshire Festival has now opened at the box office at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Mail and telephone orders will be received.

[From Late Editions of Yesterday's TIMES]

MUSIC FESTIVAL OPENS IN BERKSHIRES JULY 11

The nineteenth Berkshire Music Festival will open at Tanglewood, Mass., Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with a pair of all-Bach programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Works to be heard are the "Brandenburg" concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 5, Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine Seele."

A pair of Mozart programs will be played on July 18 and 19 by Mr. Munch and the orchestra, featuring the Violin Concerto in G (K. 216), with Isaac Stern as soloist; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik."

At the final week-end of Tanglewood concerts the offerings will be the "St. Theresa Mass" of Haydn; that composer's Symphonies Nos. 93 and 100; and works of Lukas Foss, Richard Strauss, Milhaud and Ravel.

Auditions for scholarships at the Berkshire Music Center will start at Carnegie Recital Hall this week. Singers will be heard Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, instrumentalists Monday, April 13, at 10. Those desiring to audition should notify the Berkshire Music Center office in Symphony Hall, Boston.

Festival Program Is Revised; Sunday Concerts To Be Aired

The Boston Symphony Orchestra today announces revisions in its programs to be heard at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, on the six week-ends beginning July 11 and ending Aug. 16. Principal changes are in the music for the Sunday afternoon concerts, which will be broadcast over a nation-wide network by Columbia Broadcasting Company.

The Tanglewood concerts will be the only American programs in the weekly international festival series, which will start Sunday afternoon at 2.30, and will include the European summer festivals of Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Monteux, Bernstein Guests

Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct all concerts excepting those of Aug. 2, when Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor, and Aug. 8 and 15, when Leonard Bernstein will occupy the podium.

To accommodate the broadcasts all Sunday [illegible] will start a [illegible] in previous [illegible] programs will [illegible] usual. The last [illegible] concerts will be [illegible]

Tickets for [illegible] season rates [illegible] June 1. A [illegible] the holder to [illegible] a saving in price [illegible] of purchasing tickets [illegible] the chamber concerts [illegible] three week ends [illegible] gle seats for all [illegible] on sale beginning [illegible] mation and tickets [illegible] quest to Symphony Hall [illegible]

The revised programs follow:

IN THE THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

July

11 Brandenburg conce[illegible]
Lukas Foss [illegible]

12 Cantata No. 78 Je[illegible] Seele [illegible]
Suites 2 and [illegible]
Hugh Ross, con[illegible]

18 Divertimento [illegible] Concerto for [illegible]
Isaac Stern [illegible]
Serenade [illegible] D major, Prague [illegible]

19 Overture to The Marriage of Figaro [illegible] Symphonie Concertante [illegible]
Isaac Stern and [illegible] DePasquale [illegible]
Eine Kleine Nachtmusik [illegible] Symphony in C major, Jupiter [illegible]

25 St. Theresa's Mass [illegible] Symphony No. [illegible]
Hugh Ross, conductor

26 Divertimento after [illegible]
Le Tombeau de Couperin [illegible]
Classical Symphony [illegible]
La Création du Monde [illegible]
A Parable of Death [illegible]
Cantata [illegible] and orchestra, conducted [illegible] poser
Vera Zorina, narra[illegible]

IN THE MUSIC SHED

31 Overture to Lenore [illegible]
Violin Concerto [illegible]
Zino Francescatti [illegible]
Appalachian Suite [illegible]
Bolero [illegible]

Aug.

1 Overture [illegible]
Piano Con[illegible]
Italian Symphony [illegible]
Symphonic Metamorphoses of Weber [illegible]
Serenade for Strings [illegible]
Piano Concerto [illegible]
Jorge Bolet

SERIES B

[illegible] Romeo and Juliet [illegible]
Dramatic Symphony [illegible]
Soloists.
[illegible] Symphony No. 102 [illegible]
Symphony No. 2 [illegible]
[illegible] Symphony in B flat [illegible]
Adagio for Strings [illegible]
Don Quixote [illegible]
Gregor Piatigorsky [illegible]
Concerto [illegible]

SERIES C

14 A German [illegible]
15 Symphony N[illegible]
Sinfonia [illegible]
Symphony [illegible]
16 Unfinished [illegible]
Bour[illegible]
Prelude [illegible]
Isolde [illegible]
A Sinfonia [illegible] excerpts [illegible]
Piano Con[illegible]
Se[illegible]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

CHAMBER MUSIC LISTED

Programs on July 15, 22 and 29 Set for Berkshire Festival

Three chamber music [illegible] will be presented by the Berkshire Music Center, with the cooperation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, on Wednesdays, July 15, 22 and 29 at 8:30 P. M., in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., during the forthcoming Berkshire Festival.

The first of the programs will be given by the Baroque Trio, composed of Fernando Valenti, harpsichordist, Julius Baker, [illegible] and Daniel Saidenberg, [illegible] will play works by Telemann, Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet and Rameau.

Music by Bach, Hindemith, Fauré and Prokofieff will be [illegible] by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist, at the second concert. At the last the Hungarian Quartet will be heard in works by Haydn, Beethoven and P[illegible]

[133]

Chamber Music Set for Tanglewood

With the generous co-operation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, three concerts of chamber music will be presented by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on successive [illegible] evenings. This [illegible] course of [illegible] Festival which [illegible] thousands of con[illegible] Symphony [illegible] through [illegible]

[illegible] music concerts [illegible] with a reci[illegible] Trio, consist[illegible], harp[illegible] flute [illegible] Saidenberg, cello. The program [illegible] works of Telemann, [illegible] Scarlatti, Lotti, [illegible]

[illegible] July 22 will [illegible] violin[illegible] pianist Miss [illegible] of the [illegible] Center faculty. [illegible] music by Hindemith, [illegible] Bach and Prokofieff.

The final program, July 29, will feature the Hungarian Quartet: Zoltan Szekely, violin; Alexander Moskowsky, violin; Joseph [illegible], viola; Vilmos Palotai, [illegible] works by Haydn (Quartet [illegible] major, Op. 77, No. 1) Piston (Quartet No. 4), Beethoven (Quartet in B flat major Op. 130, ending with the "Grosse Fuge," Op. 133).

These concerts will be held in Tanglewood's Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30, as in previous years. They will be open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The sale of tickets for each of the 15 concerts of the Berkshire Festival has now opened at the box office at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Mail and telephone orders will be received.

SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1953.

Two Get Commissions to Write Operas

Leonard Rosenman

Louis Mennini

Leonard Rosenman of this city and Louis Mennini of Rochester, N. Y., have each received a commission of $750 to write operas for the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., it was announced yesterday.

Under the commission plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, the composers will work in close collaboration with the department. They will be guests at Tanglewood this summer and will begin work on their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department faculty and staff.

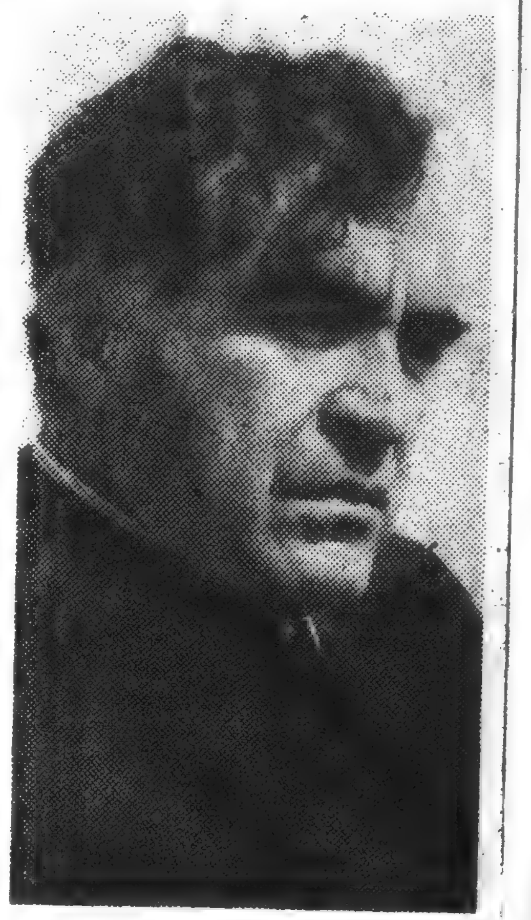
Full agreement will first be reached on subject matter, libretto and other technical details. By the end of the Tanglewood summer session it is expected that parts of the operas will be completed and ready for experimental staging.

The composers then will have nearly a full year to complete their scores in time for performance during the summer of 1954.

Selection of the two composers was made from recommendations by Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein.

Berkshire Eagle - June 2, 1953

Mexican To Teach Composition At Music Center This Summer



Carlos Chavez

Carlos Chavez, composer-conductor who will come next month to teach composition at the Berkshire Music Center, is Mexico's director of fine arts. Organizer of the Symphony Orchestra of Mexico in 1928, he was appointed director of the National Conservatory in 1933 and chief of the Department of Fine Arts of the Secretariat of Public Education under President Aleman's regime.

Born 54 years ago near Mexico City, one of seven children, Chavez took his first piano lessons from his brother, Manuel, and began to compose as a child, writing his first symphony at the age of 19. From a later teacher, Manuel M. Ponce, composer of the well-known song "Estrellita," he became interested in the hitherto neglected music of the Indians. In 1921 he wrote his String Quartet, and in the same year was commissioned to write, "El Fuego Nuevo," a Mexican ballet, by Jose Vasconcelos, secretary of education who helped bring about the Mexican artistic renaissance by commissioning Diego Rivera to paint the now-famous frescoes in the Secretariat.

On visits to the United States from 1923 to 1936 he came to admire the power and originality of jazz and the work of engineers in recording and radio laboratories. His orchestra gave concerts for workers and peasants in a park on the outskirts of the city, with no admission. It now has a large subscription audience in the Palace of Fine Arts.

Among his important compositions are the "Sinfonia India," in which Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra Aug. 15 at Tanglewood, and which was given its first concert performance by the same orchestra, conducted by the composer, in April 1936; "Sinfonia de Antigona"; "Dark Meadow," a ballet for Martha Graham, commissioned by the Library of Congress; and his Fourth Symphony, commissioned by the Louisville Philharmonic Society, and given its first performance under the baton of the composer last February by the Louisville orchestra.

At present working on a symphony commissioned by Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, ambassador to Italy, in memory of her daughter, Ann Clare Brokaw, Chavez will start this fall an orchestral work commissioned by Chester Kallman, co-author of the libretto for Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress," to be finished by August, 1954 and to be offered first to the New York City Opera Company.

Aaron Copland, with whom he will be associated at Tanglewood, wrote of him, "Carlos Chavez has gradually evolved a style which is racial and still his own. Composing to him is a natural function, like eating or sleeping. His music is not a substitute for living but a manifestation of life. If exemplifies the complete overthrow of 19th century Germanic ideals which tyrannized over music for more than 100 years. It propounds no problems, no metaphysics. Chavez' music is extraordinarily healthy, it is clear and clean-sounding, without shadows or softness. Here is absolute music, if ever there was any."

TUCSON, ARIZ.
CITIZEN

MAY 6 1953

BYRD'S EYE VIEW

Tanglewood Festival To Be Broadcast In Part

BY BYRD STANLEY

The Boston Symphony orchestra's very fine concert here last Saturday seems to have inspired many Tucsonians to attend all or part of the Symphony's noted Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood.

Music lovers still have until June 1 to subscribe to one of the three series of Shed concerts (July 31 to August 16), which entitles them to priority [illegible] saving in price and [illegible] the six July concerts in the Theater-Concert [illegible] Subscriptions are being [illegible] Festival office, Symphony Hall, Boston. Orders [illegible] now for seats for [illegible] and filled when [illegible] June 1.

[illegible] interested in checking [illegible] of programs is welcome [illegible] a look at my list, [illegible] Shed and the Theater-[illegible]

[illegible] Tucsonians who [illegible] at Tanglewood [illegible] For the first [illegible] seasons, the first [illegible] Sunday after[illegible] lasting an hour [illegible] will be broadcast [illegible] part of its summer [illegible] international music [illegible] Berkshire Festival [illegible] 26, August 2, 9 [illegible] only American [illegible] named. Others [illegible] last Sunday) in[illegible] from Florence, [illegible] and Edin-

---

WILMINGTON, DEL.
STAR

JUN 7 - 1953

Music Festival Starts July 11 At Tanglewood

The annual musical festival built around the Boston Symphony in the Berkshires, at Tanglewood, Mass., will begin this year the week end of July 11 with two Bach programs made up of the Brandenburg concertos, two orchestra suites, and a cantata.

The following week end will be concentrated on Mozart. The week end after that will mingle such contemporary composers as Darius Milhaud and Richard Strauss with Ravel and Haydn.

These are concerts in the Tanglewood theater. The concerts in the open air from the "shed" will be three series—A, July 31, Aug. 1 and 2; B, Aug. 7, 8, and 9; C, Aug. 14, 15, 16. The orchestra will be under its regular conductor, Charles Munch, and two guest conductors, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein.

The Berkshire Music Center, which is a summer school of music held with the festival, will offer Carlos Chavez, the Mexican composer, and Aaron Copland as teachers of composition. Gregor Piatigorsky, the 'cellist, will be a special guest instructor in the chamber music department. Monteux and Bernstein will head the conducting and orchestral departments.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

MAY 17 1953

Tanglewood Applications Increasing

Special to The Standard-Times

BOSTON, May 16—Student applications for the Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts, considerably surpass those in previous years, according to Ralph Berkowitz, dean, and before the 11th annual six-week season opens at Lenox on July 5, will provide the best congregation of advanced musical talent in some years. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, again serves as the Berkshire Music Center's director, with Aaron Copland as assistant director.

To date the center's office at Symphony Hall, Boston, is considering 500 applications, and anticipates more than 1,000 additional inquiries, for the Summer school in the Berkshire hills.

While the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Munch's direction, and with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor, is currently making its first coast-to-coast tour, five weeks of concerts in 26 cities, auditions are being held, mainly of instrumentalist candidates, in 14 cities: Columbus, Cincinnati, Knoxville, New Orleans, Dallas, Tucson, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Provo, Denver, Chicago, Ann Arbor, Toronto and Montreal.

Openings still exist in all five divisions of the school: Instrumental music, which includes orchestral conducting, orchestra and chamber music; choral music, including choral conducting, small choir, festival chorus; composition; opera, divided into opera dramatics for singers, associates and auditors, song repertoire, coaching and stage directing, scenery and costuming, and the Tanglewood Study Group.

Monteux, Stern And Bernstein At Lewisohn

Eagle 5/27/53

The two guest conductors at Tanglewood in the coming season will lead five of the 12 complete programs honoring past and present composers at Lewisohn Stadium, New York.

Leonard Bernstein will conduct the first of two all-Brahms evenings June 29, with Isaac Stern, violinist, who will play at the Berkshire Festival. Mr. Bernstein also will lead the first program of Tchaikovsky's music June 30, the all-Schumann and all-Mozart programs.

Pierre Monteux, who shared the podium on the Boston Symphony Orchestra's recent transcontinental tour, will conduct the second all-Tchaikovsky evening, and the all-Mozart and all-Beethoven programs.

Other conductors will be Alexander Smallens, in a third all-Tchaikovsky concert, the second all-Brahms and an all-Gershwin; Salvatore Ded 'Isola, a Richard Rodgers program; Frederick Dvonch, a concert of the music of Jerome Kern; and Thomas Schippers, a former Tanglewood student, an evening in Gian-Carlo Menotti.

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JUN 11 1953

THE Post's NEWS FOR WOMEN

You'll be the belle of the yacht club set in these tub-loving denim shorts by White Stag, racquet-checked in exciting colors. The versatile Sta-Bra can be worn strapless or with detachable shoulder straps.

The Sun Never Sets on Shorts

BY ELEANOR ROBERTS
Women's Editor

Remember that sage bit of advice given by mother in a properly prunes-and-prisms voice, "A place for everything and everything in its place?"

It came to our mind the other day as we watched a parade of shapely mannequins model the newest in sportswear and like the old lady of 80 who remembered back when, we muttered nostalgically, "How times have changed!"

The Berkshire Music Center people are the only ones we know of who keep a supply of extra skirts on hand for guests who arrive at concerts in shorts. On certain crowded Festival nights even these decorous souls throw up their hands in despair after all the skirts have been passed out and admit music lovers attired in the universal favorite of summertime.

FOR ACTIVE SPORTS

A great change has taken place in sportswear since the days of the too-brief, too-tight variety of shorts that embarrassed bystanders and inspired thundering sermons from every pulpit.

Today's carefully-creased shorts are well-tailored and teamed with smart looking tops. They're done in perfectly pressed Irish linen, grease-monkey denim, satiny striped pima cotton and crisp white pique.

Depending on the time, the place and the girl they can be casual and easy-going

---

This Clipping From
OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.
OKLAHOMAN

JUN 17 1953

Arts Department In Cabinet Talked

NEW YORK, June 16 —(AP)— James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, met Tuesday with managers of [illegible] symphony orchestras to discuss prospects for creation of a federal department of the arts at cabinet level.

Petrillo, who was among the first to advocate creation of such a department, said the AFM is gathering the opinions of all interested groups.

The committee said [illegible] cure an expression from the directing boards of 20 symphony orchestras and meet with Petrillo again in January.

The symphony representatives attending were George Judd, Boston symphony; Boris Sokoloff, New York Philharmonic; Alex Taylor, Los Angeles symphony; John S. Edwards, National symphony, Washington; Ralph Black, Buffalo symphony, and Mrs. Lucy May Smith, Tulsa, Okla.

Springfie

Notable In

Berkshire Summ Open July 11, M

By WILLARD M.

The first complet subject to revision, shire Festival have and they indicate a able concerts by Symphony Orchestra rection of Charles M Monteux and Leonar

There are few such, but one will hea Concerto No. 2, by with the composer as "Sheherazade" of Ra nie Tourel as soloist; vez "Sinfonia India."

As usual, there will of concerts in the Th Hall, each Saturday n day afternoon betwee July 26, all conducte Munch.

Concert Hall

The opening Th Hall program on Jul given over entirely "Brandenburg Conce cept No. 5 will be pla gram July 12 will inc "Cantata No. 28" for soloists, Hugh Ros "Suite No. 2 in B mi and strings," soloist thony; and "Suite No jor."

July 18 the program voted to Mozart inclu vertimento in D for 136; "Concerto for Vi 216; Isaac Stern, sol nade for Thirteen W and "Symphony in D 504. The program Jul voted to Mozart; wil Overture to "Figaro Concertante for Violi K 364, with Isaac Ster de Pasquale as solo Kleine Nachtmusik," "Symphony in D ma tor."

Joseph Haydn is fea July 25 program with Mass," conducted by Symphony in C mino Symphony in G, No.

A diversified progra for July 26 by Mr. M open with the Stra mento (after Couperi tinue with Ravel's " de Couperin"; Proko sical Symphony"; M Creation du Monde," "A Parable of Death Foss.

Shed Conce

The Concerts in the given each Friday night and Sunday a first concert, July 3 rected by Charles Mu include Beethoven's "Leonora" No. 3; "V in E minor," Mende Zino Francescatti as land's "Appalachian Ravel's "Bolero."

Saturday evening, program will include Overture to "Manfre piano concerto; "Italian" symphony mith's "Symphonic M of Themes by Webe

The Sunday aftern Aug. 2, directed by teux, will be an all- program including for Strings"; "Symph E minor" and "Piano 1" with Jorge Bolet

The Series B conce

NEW YORK POST, MONDAY, JUNE 15, 1953 30

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Opens July 11

The 16th Berkshire Festival, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated, opens at Tanglewood, Mass., July 11, featuring this season three conductors and an assortment of special attractions. Charles Munch, the orchestra's regular maestro, will conduct all of the six concerts to be held in the Theater-Concert Hall on three consecutive week-ends beginning July 11. These events, which take place Saturday nights at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30, will comprise the following: July 11-12, all-Bach; July 18-19, all-Mozart; July 25, all-Haydn, featuring the "Theresa Mass" with chorus and soloists; July 26, Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud; Foss, "A Parable of Death," Vera Zorina, soloist.

Because of the relatively small seating capacity of this hall, it is advisable for those interested to order tickets immediately.

For the first time this season, the three series of concerts in the 6,000-seat Music Shed will be given Friday and Saturday nights, and Sunday afternoon, over three consecutive week-ends beginning Friday night, July 31. Previously, the initial concert in each series was held Thursday. Munch will conduct the first two concerts in Series A while Pierre Monteux will lead the concluding concert in the series, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2.

Munch will also conduct two concerts in Series B: Friday, Aug. 7 and Sunday, Aug. 9. "Romeo and Juliet," dramatic Symphony by Berlioz, with chorus and soloists, will be the program for Aug. 7.

The concert, Saturday night, Aug. 8, will be conducted by Leonard Bernstein and will be in memory of the orchestra's late distinguished conductor, Serge Koussevitsky. Mahler's Second Symphony the "Resurrection," will be the main work which also includes Ravel's "Sheherazade" for soprano and orchestra. Jennie Tourel will be soloist in both the Mahler and Ravel works.

Series C opens Aug. 14 with the Brahms' "Requiem," chorus and soloists conducted by Munch. Bernstein conducts Aug. 15 a program of Sibelius, Chavez and Brahms. The festival concludes Sunday with a miscellaneous program led by Munch.

Further information regarding tickets and programs can be secured by writing the Festival Ticket Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Those hardy folk who will take a chance on the weather can purchase general admission to the grounds for $2 and listen with the grass as cushion.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

~~JUN 7 - 1953~~

Concerts At Tanglewood

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., June 6.—With the co-operation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, three chamber music concerts will be given by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood on Wednesday evenings, July 15, 22 and 29.

The Baroque Trio (Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute, and Daniel Saidenberg, cello) will play 17th and 18th century music in the first concert. Ruth Posselt and Gary Graffman will play music for violin and piano by Hindemith, Bach, Fauré and Prokofiev in the second, and the Hungarian Quartet will play works by Haydn, Walter Piston and Beethoven in the third.

These concerts, which take place during the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival, July 11 to Aug. 16, are open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

---

on grounds [illegible]

TO DISCUSS ADVERTISING

Pittsfield, June [illegible] Commission [illegible] Berkshire Hills [illegible] Mohawk Trail Association [illegible] court house Tuesday [illegible] cuss appropriations [illegible] the Berkshires. The [illegible] Conference is [illegible] secretary because of [illegible] tion of Paul W. [illegible] turned to newspaper [illegible] home town of [illegible] number of applications [illegible] have come in for the [illegible]

The week-end [illegible] brought a total of [illegible] defaulted [illegible] this [illegible] were [illegible] end.

This Clipping From CHARM
NEW YORK, N. Y.

that strikes your fancy. [illegible] scenery you prefer, New England can provide that, too, in abundance, in the Green Mountains and the Berkshires; and if you like music with your mountains, you can attend the famed Berkshire Music Festival, July 11 to August 16, with concerts by the great Boston Symphony. There are innumerable summer resorts throughout this region; many of them are situated on lakes, so that you can enjoy water sports as well as woodland riding or hiking.

HARTFORD, C
TIMES
JUN 8 -

3 Chamber

Special to The Har

Lenox, Mass.—Th of chamber music sented by the Berk Center at Tanglewo cessive Wednesday e ing the Berkshire F

The chamber mu will open July 15 w by the Baroque Tri Valenti, harpsichord ker, flute; Daniel cello. The progra works of Telemann Scarlatti, Lotti, Loei nieau.

A sonata recital

[135]

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JUN 11 1953

You'll be the belle of the yacht club set in these tub-loving denim shorts by White Stag, racquet-checked in exciting colors. The versatile Sta-Bra can be worn strapless or with detachable shoulder straps.

THE Post's NEWS

FOR WOMEN

The Sun Never Sets on Short

BY ELEANOR ROBERTS
Women's Editor

Remember that sage bit of advice given by mother in a properly prunes-and-prisms voice, "A place for everything and everything in its place?"

It came to our mind the other day as we watched a parade of shapely mannequins model the newest in sportswear and like the old lady of 80 who remembered back when, we muttered nostalgically, "How times have changed!"

The Berkshire Music Center people are the only ones we know of who keep a supply of extra skirts on hand for guests who arrive at concerts in shorts. On certain crowded Festival nights even these decorous souls throw up their hands in despair after all the skirts have been passed out and admit music lovers attired in the universal favorite of summertime.

FOR ACTIVE SPORTS

A great change has taken place in sportswear since the days of the too-brief, too-tight variety of shorts that embarrassed bystanders and inspired thundering sermons from every pulpit.

Today's carefully-creased shorts are well-tailored and teamed with smart looking tops. They're done in perfectly pressed Irish linen, grease-monkey denim, satiny striped pima cotton and crisp white pique.

Depending on the time, the place and the girl they can be casual and easy-going

---

This Clipping From
OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.
OKLAHOMAN

JUN 17 1953

Arts Department In Cabinet Talked

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP)—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, met Tuesday with managers of six symphony orchestras to discuss prospects for creation of a federal department of the arts at cabinet level.

Petrillo, who was among the first to advocate creation of such a department, said the AFM was gathering the opinions of all interested groups.

The committee said it would secure an expression from the directing boards of 30 symphony orchestras and meet with Petrillo again in January.

The symphony representatives attending were George Judd, Boston symphony; Boris Sokiloff, New York Philharmonic; Alice Taylor, Los Angeles symphony; John S. Edwards, National symphony, Washington; Ralph Black, Buffalo symphony, and Mrs. Lucy May Smith, Tulsa, Okla.

NEW YORK POST, MONDAY, JUNE 15, 1953 30

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Opens July 11

The 16th Berkshire Festival, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra has participated, opens at Tanglewood, Mass., July 11, featuring this season three conductors and an assortment of special attractions. Charles Munch, the orchestra's regular maestro, will conduct all of the six concerts to be held in the Theater-Concert Hall on three consecutive week-ends beginning July 11. These events, which take place Saturday nights at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30, will comprise the following: July 11-12, all-Bach; July 18-19, all-Mozart; July 25, all-Haydn, featuring the "Theresa Mass" with chorus and soloists; July 26, Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud; Foss, "A Parable of Death," Vera Zorina, soloist.

Because of the relatively small seating capacity of this hall, it is advisable for those interested to order tickets immediately.

For the first time this season, the three series of concerts in the 6,000-seat Music Shed will be given Friday and Saturday nights, and Sunday afternoon, over three consecutive week-ends beginning Friday night, July 31. Previously, the initial concert in each series was held Thursday. Munch will conduct the first two concerts in Series A while Pierre Monteux will lead the concluding concert in the series, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2.

Munch will also conduct two concerts in Series B: Friday, Aug. 7 and Sunday, Aug. 9. "Romeo and Juliet," dramatic Symphony by Berlioz, with chorus and soloists, will be the program for Aug. 7.

The concert, Saturday night, Aug. 8. will be conducted by Leonard Bernstein and will be in memory of the orchestra's late distinguished conductor, Serge Koussevitsky. Mahler's Second Symphony the "Resurrection," will be the main work which also includes Ravel's "Sheherazade" for soprano and orchestra. Jennie Tourel will be soloist in both the Mahler and Ravel works.

Series C opens Aug. 14 with the Brahms' "Requiem," chorus and soloists conducted by Munch. Bernstein conducts Aug. 15 a program of Sibelius, Chavez and Brahms. The festival concludes Sunday with a miscellaneous program led by Munch.

Further information regarding tickets and programs can be secured by writing the Festival Ticket Office, Tanglewood, Lenox Mass.

Those hardy folk who will take a chance on the weather can purchase general admission to the grounds for $2 and listen with the grass as cushion.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUN 7 - 1953

Concerts At Tanglewood

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., June 6.—With the co-operation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, three chamber music concerts will be given by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood on Wednesday evenings, July 15, 22 and 29.

The Baroque Trio (Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute, and Daniel Saidenberg, cello) will play 17th and 18th century music in the first concert. Ruth Posselt and Gary Graffman will play music for violin and piano by Hindemith, Bach, Fauré and Prokofiev in the second, and the Hungarian Quartet will play works by Haydn, Walter Piston and Beethoven in the third.

These concerts, which take place during the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival, July 11 to Aug. 16, are open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

---

on grounds of neglect to provide

TO DISCUSS ADVERTISING

Pittsfield, June 15—The County Commission will meet with the Berkshire Hills Conference and Mohawk Trail Associates in the court house Tuesday at 11 to discuss appropriations for advertising the Berkshires. The Berkshire Hills Conference is without an executive secretary because of the resignation of Paul W. Foster who has returned to newspaper work in his home town of Great Barrington. A number of applications are said to have come in for the position.

The week-end crop of speeders brought a total of $115 in fines and defaulted bail in District Court this morning. Eighteen speeders were picked up over the week end.

This Clipping From CHARM
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 1953

that strikes your fancy. If it's mountain scenery you prefer, New England can provide that, too, in abundance, in the Green Mountains and the Berkshires; and if you like music with your mountains, you can attend the famed Berkshire Music Festival. July 11 to August 16, with concerts by the great Boston Symphony. There are innumerable summer resorts throughout this region; many of them are situated on lakes, so that you can enjoy water sports as well as woodland riding or hiking.

[135]

AEN

on Shor

Clipping From
OMA CITY, OKLA.
OKLAHOMAN
JUN 1? 1953

epartment inet Talked

K, June 16—(AP)—James president of the Amer-tion of Musicians, met
th managers of six orchestras to discuss r creation of a federal of the arts at cabinet

ho was among the first creation of such a de-aid the AFM was gathpinions of all interested mittee said it would se-xpression from the di-rds of 30 symphony or-nd meet with Petrillo nuary.

phony representatives at-re George Judd, Boston
, Boris Sokiloff, New
armonic; Alice Taylor, s symphony; John S. Ed-ional symphony, Wash-lph Black, Buffalo sym-
Mrs. Lucy May Smith,

---

s of neglect to provide.
USS ADVERTISING
June 15—The County n will meet with the Hills Conference and Trail Associates in the e Tuesday at 11 to dis-priations for advertising
res. The Berkshire Hills is without an executive because of the resigna-l W. Foster who has re-newspaper work in his n of Great Barrington. A applications are said to o in for the position.

ekend crop of speeders total of $115 in fines and District Court
Eighteen speeders up over the week

Clipping From CHARM
YORK, N. Y.
JUN - 1953

r fancy. If it's mountain efer, New England can o, in abundance, in the ns and the Berkshires;
music with your moun-attend the famed Berktival, July 11 to August ts by the great Boston re are innumerable sumughout this region; many uated on lakes, so that water sports as well as or hiking.

Thomson, secretary treasurer of the Westove

Springfield Union
June 15-

Notable Festival Promised In Outline of Program

Berkshire Summer Concerts of Boston Symphony Open July 11, Munch, Monteux, Bernstein to Conduct

By WILLARD M. CLARK

[illegible] programs, [illegible] the Berk- [illegible] eased [illegible] not- [illegible] Boston [illegible] the di- [illegible] Pierre [illegible] stein. [illegible] as [illegible] "Piano [illegible] Foss, [illegible] soloist; the [illegible] Ravel with Jen- [illegible] the Cha- [illegible]

[illegible] the series [illegible] Theater-Concert [illegible] night and Sun- [illegible] July 11 and [illegible] by Charles [illegible]

Concert Hall Series

[illegible] Theater-Concert [illegible] July 11 will be [illegible] the Bach [illegible] All ex- [illegible] played. The pro- [illegible] "Bach, [illegible] for chorus and [illegible] Ross, director; [illegible] minor, for flute [illegible] Andante [illegible] No. 3 in D ma- [illegible]

[illegible] program will be de- [illegible] including the "Di- [illegible] in D for Strings," K [illegible] Concerto for Violin in G," K [illegible] Stern, soloist; "Sere- [illegible] Thirteen Winds," K 361; [illegible] Symphony in D," Prague, K. [illegible] program July 19, also devoted to Mozart, will include the Overture to "Figaro," "Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola," K 364 with Isaac Stern and Joseph [illegible] as soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," K 525, and "Symphony in D major," "Jupiter."

Joseph Haydn is featured on the July 25 program with his "Theresa Mass," conducted by Hugh Ross; Symphony in C minor, No. 95 and Symphony in G, No. 100.

A diversified program is planned July 26 by Mr. Munch. It will [illegible] the Strauss "Divertimento (after Couperin)"; and [illegible] Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin"; Prokofieff's "Classical Symphony"; Milhaud's "La Création du Monde," and end with "A Parable of Death" by Lukas Foss.

Shed Concerts

The Concerts in the Shed will be given each Friday and Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. The first concert, July 31 will be directed by Charles Munch and will [illegible] Beethoven's "Overture to Leonore" No. 3; "Violin concerto [illegible]," Mendelssohn, with Zino Francescatti as soloist; Copland's "Appalachian Suite" and [illegible] "Bolero."

[illegible] evening, Aug. 1, the [illegible] will include Schumann's [illegible] to "Manfred," The Foss, [illegible] concerto; Mendelssohn's [illegible] symphony and Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphosis [illegible] Themes by Weber."

The Sunday afternoon concert, Aug. 2, directed by Pierre Monteux, will be an all-Tschaikowsky program including the "Serenade [illegible]," "Symphony No. 5 in [illegible]" [illegible] "Piano Concerto No. [illegible]" [illegible] Bolet as soloist.

[illegible] B concerts open Aug. 5 and the program will provide one of the rare hearings of Berlioz's dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet," with chorus and soloists. The program Saturday night will be the annual Koussevitzky Memorial, and will be conducted by Leonard Bernstein. The program includes the Overture to "Khovanstchina" by Moussorgsky; the Ravel "Sheherazade" and Mahler's "Resurrection" symphony with chorus and soloists."

Mr. Munch will conduct the Sunday afternoon concert, Aug. 9, and will open the program with Schubert's "Symphony No. 5." Samuel Barber's "Adagio for Strings"; Strauss's "Don Quixote"; Milhaud's "Concerto for Cello," with Gregor Piatigorsky as soloist, and Wagner's Overture to "Tannhauser" make up this program.

Series C Concerts

The three final concerts of the season open Aug. 14 with the Brahms' "Requiem," directed by Mr. Munch. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the program Aug. 15, including on the program the Sibelius "Symphony No. 4 in A minor; the "Sinfonia India" by Chavez and Brahms' "Symphony No. 2 in D major."

Charles Munch will direct the final concert Aug. 16. It will include the Schubert "Unfinished" symphony; "Bourree Fantasque" by Chabrier; the Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" by Wagner; the same composer's "A Siegfried Idyll" and excerpts from the third act of "Die Meistersingers." The program will be conducted by Ravel's "Piano Concerto for Left Hand" with Seymour Lipkin as soloist and Ravel's "La Valse."

Tent Theatre Petition Is Denied

12 June 53
EAGLE

LENOX—The Zoning Board of Appeals here last night unanimously rejected the request of Roger Bower of Sheffield for permission to erect a tent theatre-in-the-round on Route 7.

The decision followed a joint meeting of the Zoning Board, Planning Board and Board of Selectmen at the Town Hall.

Consensus of the discussion at the meeting was that the decision to be made should be part of a consistent policy on zoning. Granting permission for a "non-conforming use" of the residential property of Route 7 so that land there could be used for a theatre would not be justified unless similar permits were granted for business uses in other residential areas, it was agreed.

One town official pointed out, however, that if these areas are going to be strictly reserved for residential uses, something should be done about getting home-owners to build there so the property will bring in its share of taxes.

The tent theatre issue was the subject of a hearing held by the Zoning Board Tuesday evening at which spokesmen appeared both for and against the proposal. Submitted previous to last night's meeting was a letter signed by six guest house operators endorsing the proposed theatre on the ground that it would improve the tourist business.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUN 8 -

3 Chamber Music Concerts at Lenox

Special to The Hartford Times

Lenox, Mass.—Three concerts of chamber music will be presented by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, on successive Wednesday evenings, during the Berkshire Festival.

The chamber music concerts will open July 15 with a recital by the Baroque Trio: Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, and Rameau.

A sonata recital July 22 by Ruth Posselt, violinist, Gary Graffman, pianist, will offer music by Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

The final program, July 29, will feature the Hungarian Quartet: Zoltan Szekely, violin; Alexander Moskowsky, violin; Joseph Reilich, viola; Vilmos Palotai, cello, in works by Haydn (Quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1) Piston (Quartet No. 4), Beethoven (Quartet in B flat major, Op. 130, ending with the "Grosse Fuge", Op. 133).

These concerts will be held in Tanglewood's Theater - Concert Hall at 8:30, as in previous years.

ALBANY, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
JUN 7 - 1953

Music Notes:

Berkshire Festival Dates Set

The Berkshires are all set for their customary busy summer. By far the most ambitious project will be the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under director Charles Munch.

For many years these programs have been presented Thursday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon. However, this season, a change has been effected, with concerts on Friday and Saturday nights and on Sunday afternon, July 31 through August 16. The change was made to permit music lovers from New York and Boston to attend all concerts over the week end.

Friday and Saturday concerts in the Music Shed will be at 8:30 P. M. Sunday programs will be at 2:30 P. M. this year instead of 3 as previously, a change made necessary because they will be broadcast from that hour until 4 over the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Festival of the World" series.

JULY 11 OPENING

This year the "Little Festival" opens in the Concert Theatre in Tanglewood on July 11 and 12 and will continue Saturday nights at 8:30 and Sundays at 2:30 P. M. through July 26. The final Sunday program will go out over the air as the first Tanglewood presentation of the "Festivals of the World" series.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, directed by Ted Shawn will present 10 weeks of modern, ballet and ethnic works from July 4 to Labor Day. They will be staged in the afternoon and evening, Fridays and Saturdays each week, except during the Tanglewood Festival when additional performances will be put on, Tuesdays through Saturdays, weekly.

The University of the Dance at Jacob's Pillow will run for nine weeks starting July 6 for undergraduates and a six-week's course will start the same time for graduate students. Teachers will include Mr. Shawn, Anthony Tudor, Margaret Kraske Myra Kinch, Mme. La Mer and Dr. Elizabeth Burchenal

---

Munch Expected For Tanglewood Exercises Sunday

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, is expected by plane from France in time to greet students and guests at the opening exercises of the school's 11th annual session Sunday afternoon at 3.30 in the Tanglewood theatre.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, again will preside and Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which maintains the school, will speak briefly, as will Aaron Copland, assistant director.

According to the tradition established at the opening of the center in 1940, Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia," written for the occasion by Randall Thompson.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden, following the exercises.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN
JUN 7 - 1953

THREE CONCERTS of chamber music will be presented by Berkshire Music Center in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., on July 15, 22 and 29 during the course of the Berkshire Music Festival. These concerts are made possible with generous cooperation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who has done much to further music.

The first program will be played by the Baroque Trio: Fernando Valenti, harpichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. Valenti played in Syracuse a few seasons ago, both in a Crouse auditorium recital, Syracuse University campus and in Mizpah auditorium with the Krasner Ensemble.

A Sonata recital will be given by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist, on July 22. Graffman, as a boy prodigy, appeared in Syracuse with the Sinfonietta, Murray Bernthal conducting. The final chamber music program will feature the Hungarian Quartet in works by Haydn, Walter Piston and Beethoven.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 7 - 1953

CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERTS IN JULY AT TANGLEWOOD

Three Wednesday Evening Programs Arranged for Festival

Boston, June 6—With the generous co-operation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, three concerts of chamber music will be presented by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, on successive Wednesday evenings. This will occur during the course of the Berkshire Festival which comprises six week ends of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 11 through Aug. 16.

First July 15

The chamber music concerts will open on July 15 with a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatii, Lotti, Loeillet and Rameau.

A sonata recital on July 22 will be given by Ruth Posselt, violinist, Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the Berkshire Music Center faculty. They will play music by Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

The final program, July 29, will feature the Hungarian Quartet: Zoltan Szekely, violin; Alexander Moskowsky, violin; Joseph Reilich, viola; Vilmos Palotai, cello, in works by Haydn (Quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1) Piston (Quartet No. 4), Beethoven (Quartet in B flat major, Op. 130, ending with the "Grosse Fuge," Op. 133).

These concerts will be held in Tanglewood's Theater-Concert Hall at 8.30, as in previous years. They will be open by invitation to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. All who are interested in summer activities at Tanglewood are invited to join this society through which contributions help to support the school.

The sale of tickets for each of the 15 concerts of the Berkshire Festival has now opened at the box office at Tanglewood, Lenox. Mail and telephone orders will be received.

Tent Theatre Application Is Tabled

Eagle 6/10/53

Lenox Officials To Confer With Planning Board

LENOX—The Zoning Board of Appeals here last night tabled, pending a meeting with the Planning Board, a request by Roger Bower of Sheffield for permission to erect a tent theatre-in-the-round on Route 7.

A request by Fred G. Bashara for permission to move his Cardinal Inn business to a barn about a quarter of a mile north of the fire gutted ruins of the old inn on the Pittsfield road was denied. Also denied was a petition from Mrs. Elizabeth Minotti of West Street for permission to operate a boarding house at her home.

The decisions were made by the three-member board of James Dixon, chairman, Robert Hibbard, clerk, and John Blake following a sparsely attended hearing in the Town Hall.

The applications of Mr. Bashara and Mrs. Minotti were for uses of property permitted by the town's zonin bylaws but requiring the approval of a majority of the Board of Appeals. Mr. Bower's request is for a "non-conforming use" of property zoned for other purposes but requiring unanimous approval of the board.

Voice Objections

Objections to the proposed theatre were made in a letter by Mrs. Eleanor Frothingham of Heathcroft on Walker Street and in person by K. O. William Sandberg of Schermerhorn Park.

Mr. Sandberg told the board that he and several of his neighbors feel that Route 7 is already carrying a near capacity of traffic in the summer time. A tent theatre seating 1500 people, he estimated, would mean an additional 750 cars in the area. It would also require the town to pay the expense of added policemen.

In response, Mr. Bower said that even with a full house every night, only 500 to 600 cars would be likely in the area. He stated that a large parking lot was planned for the theatre's customers.

Mr. Sandberg replied that in addition to the objection of increased traffic, several people in Schermerhorn Park felt that the theatre would create a "honky tonk atmosphere." He said the success of a tent theatre in Hyannis was accompanied by refreshment stands and other "carnival" businesses.

Mr. Bower emphasized that the last thing he had in mind was a "honky tonk atmosphere"—that any refreshments sold would be of the sort ordinarily available at a theatre. The carnival atmosphere of Hyannis, he said, preceded the tent theatre there.

Walter Wilson of Canaan, N.Y., who owns property abutting the proposed theatre, pointed out that the Zoning Board of Appeals would still have the power to prevent the development of objectionable businesses in the theatre area.

Conference Favors Plan

Going on record as favoring the proposed theatre were Frank J. Prinz, president of the Berkshire Innkeepers' Association, and Donald B. Miller, president of the Berkshire Hills Conference. Mr. Miller said it was up to the people of Lenox whether or not the theatre should be located here, but that the conference felt it should be located somewhere in the Berkshires.

Mr. Bashara's application to move his business to a barn on the Pittsfield road pending the replacement of his Cardinal Inn that burned last March was opposed by Mrs. Leland S. Briggs of the Dormers on the Pittsfield road. Mrs. Briggs wrote the board that she feared the proposed new location would increase fire insurance rates in the area and might also cause some tenants of hers in a near-by house to move.

John R. Dudley, an abutter to the proposed location, told the board he would have no objections to the proposed move "provided it is done right."

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
MAY 24 1953

Three Soloists Are Added To Berkshire Festival List

Jennie Tourel, Jorge Bolet and Vera Zorina Engaged To Appear at Tanglewood

Boston, May 23—Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist; and Vera Zorina have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer. The six week ends of summer concerts commence July 11, continue through Aug. 16 with its music director, Charles Munch, as conductor.

Two Appearances

Miss Tourel will be soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade," and in Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "Resurrection," which Leonard Bernstein conducts Aug. 8. Mr. Bolet will perform Tchaikovsky's piano concerto in the all-Tchaikovsky program which Pierre Monteux conducts Aug. 2 (afternoon). Miss Zorina will narrate in the first New England performance of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, on the afternoon of July 26.

Others of the summer's soloists, previously announced, are Foss, as pianist in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 July 11, and as soloist for his own piano concerto Aug. 1; Isaac Stern, soloist in the Mozart Concerto for violin in G major, July 18, and with Joseph de Pasquale in Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola on July 19 (afternoon): Zino Francescatti, in Mendelssohn's concerto for violin in E minor, July 3; Gregor Piatigorsky, as soloist in the Darius Milhaud concerto for cello, Aug. 9, (afternoon) and with Joseph de Pasquale in Strauss' "Don Quixote"; Seymour Lipkin, in the piano concerto for the left hand, by Ravel, Aug. 16 (afternoon).

Series Subscriptions

This is the final week for series subscriptions. Subscribers to any of the three week-end Shed concerts Friday and Saturday evenings, 8.30, Sunday afternoons, 2.30, on July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; or Aug. 14, 15, 16, have choice of locations and effect a saving on the cost of the six Bach-Mozart-Haydn preliminary concerts, July 1-26 in the Theater Concert Hall.

Until June 1, subscriptions may be purchased by writing the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15; after June 1, any remaining tickets for single concerts are on sale by mail or telephone to the box office, Tanglewood, Lenox; phone Lenox 600.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, which sponsors the Berkshire Festival, returned yesterday from its coast-to-coast tour of 26 cities in five weeks, and on Monday resumes its activities as the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, at Symphony Hall until July 1.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
MAY 23 1953

Friends List 40 Performances At Tanglewood This Summer

Residents of Berkshire County are invited to join the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. Membership is by voluntary contribution toward the support of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Shed on Thursday or Friday evenings; chamber music programs Sunday mornings at 10; also three chamber music concerts on Wednesday evenings in July, the gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge; several evenings of opera and a major production; organ recitals by E. Power Biggs on two Saturday afternoons; composers' forums Sunday evenings; and choral concerts, directed by Hugh Ross.

3500 Study at Center

In a leaflet, mailed last week to former members, Dr. Lewis Perry, headmaster emeritus of Phillips Academy, Exeter, N.H., who is chairman of the Friends, states that since the school was founded in 1940 more than 3500 young musicians have studied there. Former students now form over 10 per cent of the membership of major symphony orchestras in the United States, are singing in the Metropolitan and New York City Opera Companies, hold awards in composition, and concertize and teach music all over this country and in fact the world.

Contributions go into the revolving scholarship fund to pay the tuition of talented students. Dr. Perry reports that in the past year $2000 has been returned to the fund by students who held scholarships in former years. Tuition receipts from the half of the student body who can afford to pay the $150 do not nearly cover the cost of the school. The loss on the school represented most of the orchestra's deficit for last year.

Donations in any amount are requested. They should be mailed to Symphony Hall, Boston. Membership cards will be issued before the school opens.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
MAY 31 1953

Gale Pension Fund Show Set for June 7

"Colossal" is the word for an event which will take place in Symphony Hall when two famous attractions journey from Chicago and Hollywood respectively to join the Pops Orchestra and Arthur Fiedler in a "triple-threat" show for the benefit of the Boston Symphony Pension Fund. The concert will take place on Sunday evening, June 7, and will be the only Sunday Pops concert of the season.

The features will be Kukla, Fran and Ollie of TV fame and Johnny Green Music Director of M.G.M. who will fly from Hollywood together with his associate of the same studio, Andre Previn, the pianist who has scored and conducted many pictures and appeared many times in the Hollywood Bowl. Johnny Green will conduct the Pops Orchestra in all-Gershwin program including Robert Russell Bennett's arrangement from "Porgy and Bess" and "An American in Paris" which he directed as a picture. Gershwin's Piano Concerto in F and the Rhapsody in Blue will be played by Andre Previn. Johnny Green, the composer of such hits as "Body and Soul," is also to join his class at Harvard for their 25th reunion.

The cast of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show will present the world premier of an operetta, "St. George and the Dragon" which will be conducted by Mr. Fiedler leading the Pops Orchestra. The operetta is the joint effort of Jack Fascinato and Burr Tillstrom, the latter being the originator of the famous TV show starring Fran Allison and her puppet performers. The show will be televised over the NBC network at four o'clock on the afternoon of June 7 and will be repeated as a live performance in the evening following the Gershwin program.

Berkshire Festival

The 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass., extends from July 5 to Aug. 16 this year. One of the students who will be there on a scholarship will be T. Donley Thomas, a music major at Peabody college, and a cellist with the Nashville Symphony.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will again be director of the Center, and Aaron Copland, noted composer, and a visitor to Peabody and the final Nashville Symphony concert this spring, will be assistant director.

Boris Goldovsky, who has appeared at Ward Belmont in piano lecture-recital, and who is well-known for his opera intermission broadcast features, will again be head of opera.

Gregor Piatigorsky, who has been heard in recital on Community Concerts and as soloist with the Nashville Symphony, will instruct in chamber music a part of the season.

Six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood given on three successive weekends from July 11 to July 26 will be devoted to Bach (2), Mozart (2), Haydn and contemporary works.

Isaac Stern, soloist with the Nashville Symphony last year, will be a soloist in the Mozart programs.

The nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat shed by the Boston Symphony's full complement of 104 will be given on the next three Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein Aug. 8 and 15. Soloists in this series will include Piatigorsky and Zino Francescatti.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes the most active of the Boston Symphony's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada.

The first portion (1 and ½ hours) of the July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16 programs will be carried by CBS as part of its summer program of international music festivals. This will be the only American event in the series.

Francescatti And Bernstein To Open Stadium

Two Berkshire summer residents will take the principal parts in the opening program of Lewisohn Stadium's 36th concert in New York Monday evening. Leonard Bernstein, head of the orchestra and conducting departments at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra and Zino Francescatti of Stockbridge will play the solo in Mendelssohn's violin concerto in E minor.

Mr. Francescatti will appear with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Charles Munch in the same concerto at the opening program of the Berkshire Festival concerts in the Tanglewood music shed July 31.

Mr. Bernstein also will conduct the Stadium orchestra Tuesday and Wednesday evening.

BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST
JUN 12 1953

19TH ANNUAL FESTIVAL

Berkshire Music Fete Will Open On July 11

The nineteenth Berkshire Music Festival in Massachusetts will open on July 11 when the first of three successive week-end concerts will begin, with Saturday night concerts at 8.30, and Sunday afternoons at three. These will be held in the 1,200 seat theater-concert hall.

Two Bach programs will start the series, followed on the second week end by a pair of Mozart programs, the closing pair to include programs of Mozart works and of contemporary music.

Nine major concerts [illegible] wood's 6,000 [illegible] be [illegible] phony [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] Bernstein assisting [illegible] Munch, as guest conductors.

* * *

THESE THREE series will be held on the week ends of [illegible] August 7 and August [illegible] season being the first [illegible] three series were concentrated into three-day week ends with concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings, and Sunday afternoons.

For information and tickets address the orchestra, at Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass. The Festival, which is supplemented by the work of the school Music Centre, opening July 6, climaxes the most active of the orchestra's 72 seasons, with a grand total of 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the U. S. and Canada.

H. A. F. P.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUN 30 1953

Hotel Plans for Visitors To Berkshire Music Festival

Many families planning to attend the Berkshire Festival, starting July 11, will be gratified to learn that Berkshire Pines, West Copake, N. Y., has made special plans for them.

An expert staff of counselors will look after the children while the parents are visiting the festival. The Berkshire Pines has a 70-acre campus for children, complete camp activities, night patrol, resident physician and nurse and separate dining rooms. For the adults there is golf, tennis, swimming and nightly entertainment.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
WORLD-TELEGRAM & SUN
JUN 11 1953

Music

Gretry's 'Richard' On Berkshire Bill

By ROBERT BAGAR.

Interesting news may not be withheld, so here's an item: The opera scheduled for the Berkshire Music Festival this summer is Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion." The work has a libretto by J. H. Sedaine, which will be given in a translation by Boris Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell.

This production, of course, springs from the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center, at Tanglewood, of which Mr. Goldovsky is the head. To be performed and staged by students of the Center with a student orchestra in the pit under Mr. Goldovsky, "Richard Coeur-de-Lion"—in three acts—is slated for the evenings of Aug. 10 and 11.

Premiered Early.

Oddly enough, the work is by no means a total stranger to this country, although I wouldn't call it one well-known here. New York experienced a performance in 1800, just 16 years after its Parisian premiere, on Oct. 21, 1784, although it had already showed, as they say, in Boston in 1797, and Philadelphia in 1798.

Considered Gretry's best work, "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" is only one of many pieces he composed for the lyric stage. He was especially successful with opera comique. And to think that this brilliant French composer had been dismissed as impossible by several noted instructors during his student days! It seems that he just couldn't make the grade in counterpoint.

The operas of this "Moliere of Music" have been described as being "remarkable for spantaneity, grace and fervor of dramatic effect and general charm, but open to serious criticism as works of formal art." Whether or not that assertion applies to his "Richard," we shall have to wait, to see.

This Clipping From
BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
APR 4 - 1953

Tanglewood

By THEODOLINDA C. BORIS

THE COMING of springlike weather is an appropriate time to list the programs and soloists for the six concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., given during three successive week-ends from July 11 to July 26, as an introduction to the principal Berkshire Festival concert series. Charles Munch will conduct.

Seats for the six concerts are available at this time only to subscribers to one of the three concerts, which follow from July 31 to Aug. 16.

Bach programs, July 11 and 12, will include Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3 and 5; Suites 2 and 3 and Cantata No. 78. A pair of Mozart programs will be played July 18 and 19—to include Divertimento, K: 136, for Strings; Violin Concerto in G (Isaac Stern, soloist); Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments; the "Prague" and "Jupiter" Symphonies; Sinfonia Concertante and "Eine kleine Nachtmusik."

A feature of the final week-end of concerts—one devoted to contemporary works, the other to works of Haydn—will be the cantata, "A Parable of Death," by Lukas Foss, young composer-pianist, which was commissioned by the Louisville Orchestra and given its world premiere in Louisville on March 11. Text of the cantata is taken from "Geschichten vom lieben Gott," by the Austrian poet Rainer Maria Rilke. The English version by Anthony Hecht. Other contemporary works will be Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde," Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin." The Haydn program contains the St. Theresa Mass and Symphonies 93 and 100.

This festival will climax the most active of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada. Information on the festival can be obtained by writing the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

[137]

Fete
y 11
ival in Massast of three suc-
Saturday night
t three. These rt hall.
programs will s, followed on k end by a pair grams, the closclude programs
rks and of con-sic.
oncerts in Tangle-at "Shed," will he Boston Sym-
's 104 musicians.
teux and Leonard ting Charles conductors.

EE series will be k end of July 31, August 14, this e first when the re concentrated week ends, with lay and Saturday Sunday after-tion and tickets chestra, at Symoston 15, Mass.
which is supple-e work of the Centre, opening es the most achestra's 72 sea-and total of 305 in 103 cities of Canada.
H. A. F. P.

lipping From LO, N. Y.
NEWS
R 4 - 1953

glewood

LINDA C. BORIS
NG of springlike is an appropriate e programs and solo-concerts at Tangle-Mass., given during ve week-ends from y 26, as an introducprincipal Berkshire ert series. Charles nduct.
he six concerts are this time only to one of the three ch follow from July ams, July 11 and 12, Brandenburg Concer-nd 5; Suites 2 and 3,
No. 78. A pair of Mos will be played July include Divertimen-
r Strings; Violin Con-(Isaac Stern, soloist);
13 Wind Instruments;
' and "Jupiter" Sym-onia Concertante, and Nachtmusik." of the final week-end
—one devoted to con-works, the other to ydn—will be the can-arable of Death," by s, young composer-ch was commissioned isville Orchestra and rld premiere in Louis-ch 11. Text of the work om "Geschichten vom
" by the Austrian poet,
ia Rilke, the English Anthony Hecht. Other ry works will be auss' Divertimento, Mil-Creation du Monde," Tombeau de Couperin.
program contains the Mass and Symphonies val will climax the most
the Boston Symphony
72 seasons, with 305 ven in 103 cities of the ies and Canada. Inforthe festival can be ob-writing the Boston Symhestra, Symphony Hall,
Mass.

From: Geo. L. Geiger
Managing Editor

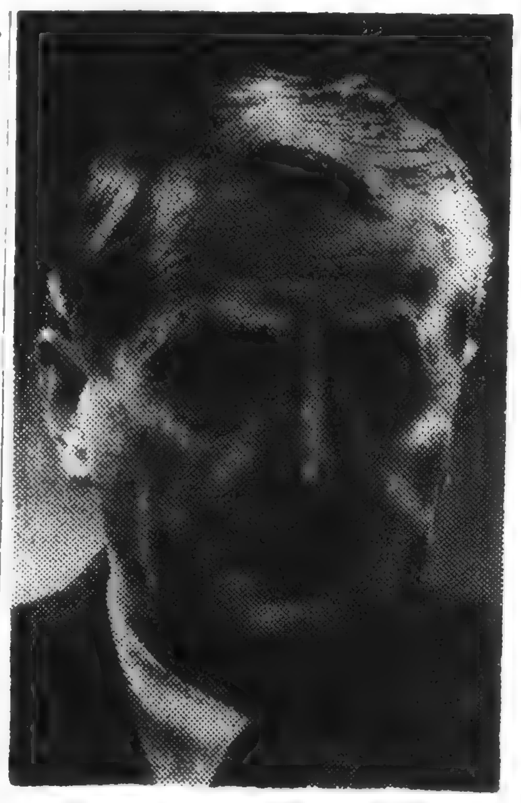
SUNDAY

Programs Are Announced By Berkshire Music Center

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 13 — Summer music programs at the Berkshire Festival have been announced by Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and music director.

Concerts in the theater-concert hall will begin at 8:30 p. m. on Saturdays, 2:30 p. m. on Sundays. Program for these concerts:



CHARLES MUNCH

Saturday July 11—Charles Munch
Brandenburg Concertos ... Bach
No. 1 in F
No. 2 in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
No. 3 in G (strings)
No. 5 in D (with piano, flute and violin)
No. 6 in B-flat (strings)

Sunday July 12—Charles Munch
Cantata No. 78 ... Bach
(with chorus and soloists conducted by Hugh Ross)
Suite No. 2 in B minor ... Bach
for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony)
Suite No. 3 in D major ... Bach

Saturday July 18 — Charles Munch
Divertimento in D, for Strings (K.136) ... Mozart
Concerto for Violin in G (K. 216) Mozart
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361) .. Mozart
Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504) .. Mozart

Sunday July 19 — Charles Munch
Overture to "Figaro" .... Mozart
Sinfonia Concertante, ... Mozart
for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale
Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525) Mozart
Symphony in D major ("Jupiter"), K. 551 ... Mozart

Saturday July 25 — Charles Munch
Theresa Mass ... Haydn
(with chorus and soloists conducted by Hugh Ross)
Symphony in C minor No. 95 Haydn
Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100 ... Haydn

Sunday July 26 — Charles Munch
Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86 .. Strauss
"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite Ravel
"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25 Prokofieff
"La Creation du Monde" ... Milhaud
"A Parable of Death" ... Foss
(conducted by the composer)
(Narrator: Vera Zorina)

Concerts in the shed are split into three series, A, B and C. Programs for the trio follow:

SERIES A

Friday July 31 — Charles Munch
Overture to "Leonore," No. 3 Beethoven
Violin Concerto in E minor Mendelssohn
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)
"Appalachian Spring" .... Copland
"Bolero" .... Ravel

Saturday Aug. 1 — Charles Munch
Overture to "Manfred" .... Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2 .... Foss
(The composer as soloist)
Symphony No. 4 "Italian" Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber ... Hindemith

Sunday Aug. 2 — Pierre Monteux
Pierre Monteux, guest conductor
Serenade for Strings .... Tchaikovsky
Symphony No. 5, in E minor .. Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat minor .. .. Tchaikovsky
(Soloist: Jorge Bolet)

SERIES B

Friday Aug. 1 — Charles Munch
"Romeo and Juliet," Dramatic Symphony .... Berlioz
(With chorus and soloists)

Saturday Aug. 8 — Leonard Bernstein
Koussevitzky Memorial Concert
Prelude to "Khovanstchina" Moussorgsky
"Sheherazade" for Soprano and Orchestra .... Ravel
Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") .. Mahler
(With chorus and soloists)
(Soloist: Jennie Tourel)

Sunday Aug. 9 — Charles Munch
Symphony No. 5, in B-flat ...... Schubert
Adagio for Strings .... Barber
"Don Quixote" .... Strauss
(with cello and viola solo)
Concerto for Cello, No. 1 .... Milhaud
Overture to "Tannhauser" ..... Wagner
(Soloist: Gregor Piatigorsky)

SERIES C

Friday Aug. 14 — Charles Munch
Requiem .... Brahms
(with chorus and soloists)

Saturday Aug. 15 — Leonard Bernstein
Symphony No. 4, in A minor ..... Sibelius
Sinfonia India .... Chavez
Symphony No. 2, in D major ..... Brahms

Sunday Aug. 16 — Charles Munch
Symphony in B minor ("Unfinished") .. .. Schubert
Bouree Fantasque .... Chabrier
Prelude and Love-Death, "Tristan und Isolde" .... Wagner
A Siegfried Idyll .... Wagner
"Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg" Wagner
Excerpts from Act III
Piano Concerto for the Left Hand .. Ravel
(Soloist: Seymour Lipkin)
"La Valse" .... Ravel

Festival Series Ticket Sales Far Ahead of the 1952 Season

The sale of series tickets has topped that of the 1952 season for the three week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts in the Tanglewood Music Shed, starting July 31, and continuing Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons until Aug. 16. The total of $59,000 is $1000 above that of last year, according to George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager.

Bookings also are reported substantially above those of 1952 for the concerts in the theatre-concert hall, starting July 11 and including Saturday evening and Sunday afternoons through July 26.

Tickets are still available for all concerts. For the early concerts in the theatre, best locations are for the opening Bach programs and for the Haydn and contemporary week end of July 25 and 26.

The box office is open daily for tickets and information, as is the office of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose members are invited to performances by the school.

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

Student to Leave For Music Center

Robbins, Dallas violinist, Friday for the Berkshire Music Center at Lenox, Mass., has been awarded a full scholarship from the Revolving Scholarship will play in the student orchestra under the direction of Leonard Bernstein and the chamber department under Pierre Miss Robbins also has to participate in the composers symposium. pupil of Phillip Williams Southern Methodist University. Miss Robbins is the daughter of Evelyn Robbins, orchestra director at J. L. Long Junior High School and Woodrow Wilson High School.

РУССКОЕ ОБОЗРЕНИЕ
RUSSIAN REVIEW

Published Weekly
2117 West Grand Avenue
Chicago 12, Ill.
Phone SEeley 3—3125

В музыкальном центре Танглвуд открытие летнего сезона состоится в июне. Концерты Бостонского Симфонического оркестра будут управляться известными дирижерами.

Недалеко от Танглвуда в «Джейкобс пилоу» (Подушка Якова) будут даваться вечера балета и характерных танцев Главой этого центра является известный танцор Тэд Шоун.

Анна Гордон.

Eagle
July 1

Choral Conductor Joins Faculty at Music Center

Lorna Cooke deVaron

A newcomer to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be Lorna Cooke deVaron, conductor of the chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. A Tanglewood student for the 1946-48 sessions, she will be associated with Hugh Ross, head of the choral music department, and James Aliferis of the University of Minnesota, his assistant.

A graduate of Wellesley College, where she majored in music, Mrs. deVaron received her master's degree in music from Radcliffe College, where she assisted G. Wallace Woodworth in the Radcliffe Choral Society. Before joining the faculty of the New England Conservatory she conducted the Bryn Mawr College chorus from 1944 to 1948.

A student of harmony with Nadia Boulanger of Wellesley, choral composition with Dr. Archibald Davison of Harvard and composition with Walter Piston, Mrs. deVaron studied conducting with Mr. Woodworth and Robert Shaw.

During the current season Tanglewood choral students will participate in three works with the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Haydn's "St. Theresa Mass," Mahler's Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") and Brahms' "A German Requiem."

Guest Composer

CARLOS CHAVEZ
Leader of the Mexican Symphony Orchestra and also Mexican minister of fine arts, Mr. Chavez will be guest composer in the composition class at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, during the 1953 Berkshire Festival.

---

345 Enroll For Music Center

Of 450 students expected for the 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, 345 already have enrolled for the six-week season, which will open July 5.

The list of 14 from foreign countries includes eight from Canada, two from Mexico and one each from Holland, South Korea, Sweden and France. More students than usual are coming from Western states, as a result of auditions by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in such cities on its recent transcontinental tour as Columbus and Cincinnati, Ohio; Knoxville, Tenn.; New Orleans, La.; Dallas, Texas; Tucson, Ariz.; Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal., and Toronto and Montreal, Canada.

Ninety-two students are expected in the Tanglewood Study Group, the department for music educators, amateurs and others who wish to spend two, four or six weeks absorbing music. Thirty-three are listed for the full period; nine for four weeks and 40 for a fortnight.

Perry Arrives Tomorrow

Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the school, and his secretary, Miss Patsy Hayes, will arrive from Philadelphia next week. Dr. Lewis Perry of Boston, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will come tomorrow to spend two weeks at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, to set in motion the organization whose members contribute to the support of the school, and form the invited audience for 40 performances by the students and faculty. Mrs. William W. Moore of Lenox again will assist in the Friends' office.

Expected next week from Symphony Hall, Boston, are George E. Judd, orchestra manager; John N. Burk, and Miss Lillian MacDougall and Miss K. C. Roys, their secretaries.

Gail Rector of Ann Arbor, assistant manager of the University of Michigan musical society, who is heading the grounds reception, Wayne Dunlap, also of Ann Arbor, conductor of the university's orchestra, who will assist in the school office, and Mrs. Minette Scheid of Boston, switchboard operator, arrived this week.

Elm Court Opens Season Tomorrow

LENOX—Elm Court will open tomorrow for its sixth season with reservations well ahead of last year and the hotel completely booked for the festival season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. George Wilde, owners, announced yesterday that Rev. Robert L. Curry, headmaster of Lenox School, will again be manager.

Among the guests who will be staying this summer at the Court are Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Pierre Monteux, guest conductor, and Isaac Stern, guest soloist. Miss Alicia Markova, who will appear at Jacob's Pillow, and her sister will also be among the guests at the Court.

Other guests will be Eugene Wulsin, Philip Wyman, James Mixter and John Ortiz, who are officials of the Baldwin Piano Company of Cincinnati, Ohio; Gregor Piatigorsky, who will be at Elm Court through the Festival series, and many other guests of previous seasons.

GÖRBE TÜKÖR

Irja: LUKACS ERNŐ

12/7/53

Ezen a nyáron öt remek hangversenyben gyönyörködtünk a Berkshire Music Festival központjában Tanglewoodon. Ámbár azt hiszem, ezt a helyet nyugodtan lehetne nevezni a világ zeneközpontjának...

Tanglewood kétségtelenül Amerika legszebb parkja. Egy 2800 láb magas egészen valószinütlenül gyönyörü platon terül el. Dus lombozatu fenyőktől szegélyezett sétányok százai és az alagutszerüen egymásba boruló lugasok, szökőkutak és exotikus virággruppok egy mesebeli tündérkertbenyomását teszi a szemlélőre. Végül, hogy a panoráma teljes legyen, mindezt a völgyben csillogó csodás tavak veszik körül... Egyik napon átrándultunk a kies fekvésü Northamptonba. Tényleg kies fekvésü, mert egészen kies-ik a forgalomból. Éppen azért még ma is magánviseli a vén Anglia évszázados hatásait. Az egész város hegyekkel és őserdőkkel van körülvéve és az egész egy nagy antik muzeum benyomását teszi. Tényleg majdnem minden házban van egy antik stor, ahol "valódi antik" holmikat lehet kapni. Mi is vettünk egy pár szép emléktárgyat. Ennek a kis antik városnak még egy nevezetessége van az országos hirü Smith kollégium, melynek egy remek képgyüjteménye is van, számos modern képekkel, melyeket nem nagyon szeretek, kivéve a francia Renoir müveit.

Voltunk többször Huntingtonban, Westfielden, Springfielden. Itt is megnéztünk egy szép képkiálitást. Megemlithetném még Lenox városkát, mely Tanglewoodhoz mindössze egy mérföldre van, igy tehát tulajdonképen a nagy zene központnak az előcsarnoka. Egyéb nevezetessége az, hogy a felsőtizezrek fényüzően berendezett szállodája a hires Curtis Hotel itt terpeszkedik. Ide a földi halandó csak akkor juthat be, ha harminc nappal előbb megrendeli a 30-50 dollár közt váltakozó szobáját. Ezt a hotelremeket többször megnéztük magunknak, de más különben elhanyagoltuk...

Hogy a vakációs visszaemlékezésem teljes legyen meg kell emlitenem a worthingtoni istállóban tartott szombat esti táncmulatságokgt az ugynevezett "szkver" táncokat. (Magyarul kockatánc). De nem tudtam kitalálni, hogy miért kocka. tánc, csak azt tudom, hogy az én idegeimet kockára tették vele.

A környéki farmokról összesereglett fiatalság indiánokat megszégyenitő üvöltözés közben rugja a barn padlóját és közben a nőt ugy dobják jobbról-balra, hogy csakugy nyekkennek belé.

A farmerlegények a nőket egymástól lopták és a másikhoz dobták, közben a táncot vadul ropták. (Rimek halmaza szerk.) Hetvenöt cent volt a belépőjegy ára, de a belépőjegy helyett nagy szivalaku kék pecsétet ütöttek a kezünk fejére, amiből napok mulva is alig tudtunk kimosakodni. Én és hü párom kétszer jelentünk meg ezen a csábitó vagy inkább kábitó mulatságon. Először és utoljára...

—ss-New Bedford, Mass 6/14

From: Geo. L. Geiger
Managing Editor

SUNDAY

Programs Are Announced By Berkshire Music Center

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 13 — Summer music programs at the Berkshire Festival have been announced by Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and music director.

Concerts in the theater-concert hall will begin at 8:30 p. m. on Saturdays, 2:30 p. m. on Sundays. Program for these concerts:

Saturday July 11—Charles Munch

Brandenburg Concertos .... Bach
No. 1, in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday July 12—Charles Munch

Cantata No. 28 .... Bach
with chorus and soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)

Suite No. 2 in B minor ..... Bach
for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony)

Suite No. 3, in D major .... Bach

Saturday July 18 — Charles Munch

Divertimento in D, for Strings (K.136) .. .. Mozart

Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) Mozart
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)

Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361) .. .. Mozart

Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504) .. .. Mozart

Sunday July 19 — Charles Munch

Overture to "Figaro" .... Mozart

Sinfonia Concertante, ... Mozart
for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale

Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525) . Mozart

Symphony in D major ("Jupiter"), (K. 551) .... Mozart

Saturday July 25 — Charles Munch

Theresa Mass .... Haydn
with chorus and soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)

Symphony in C minor, No. 95 .. Haydn

Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100 . ... Haydn

Sunday July 26 — Charles Munch

Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86.. .... Strauss

"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite Ravel

"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25 .. Prokofieff

"La Creation du Monde" ...... Milhaud

"A Parable of Death" .... Foss
(Conducted by the composer)
(Narrator: Vern Zorina)

Concerts in the shed are split into three series, A, B and C. Programs for the trio follow:

SERIES A

Friday July 31 — Charles Munch

Overture to "Leonore," No. 3 .. Beethoven

Violin Concerto in E minor .. Mendelssohn
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)

"Appalachian Spring" .... Copland

"Bolero" .... Ravel

Saturday Aug. 1 — Charles Munch

Overture to "Manfred" .... Schumann

Piano Concerto No. 2 .... Foss
(The composer as soloist)

Symphony No. 4, "Italian" Mendelssohn

Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber .... Hindemith

Sunday Aug. 2 — Pierre Monteux

Pierre Monteux, guest conductor

CHARLES MUNCH

Serenade for Strings .... Tchaikovsky

Symphony No. 5, in E minor .. Tchaikovsky

Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat minor .. .. Tchaikovsky
(Soloist: Jorge Bolet)

SERIES B

Friday Aug. 7 — Charles Munch

"Romeo and Juliet," Dramatic Symphony .... Berlioz
(With chorus and soloists)

Saturday Aug. 8 — Leonard Bernstein
Koussevitsky Memorial Concert

Prelude to "Khovanstchina" Moussorgsky

"Sheherazade" for Soprano and Orchestra .... Ravel

Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") .. Mahler
(With chorus and soloists)
(Soloist: Jennie Tourel)

Sunday Aug. 9 — Charles Munch

Symphony No. 2, in B-flat ...... Schubert

Adagio for Strings .... Barber

"Don Quixote" .... Strauss
(with cello and viola solo)

Concerto for Cello, No. 1 ...... Milhaud

Overture to "Tannhauser" ..... Wagner
(Soloist: Gregor Piatigorsky)

SERIES C

Friday Aug. 14 — Charles Munch

Requiem .... Brahms
(with chorus and soloists)

Saturday Aug. 15 — Leonard Bernstein

Symphony No. 4, in A minor ..... Sibelius

Sinfonia India .... Chavez

Symphony No. 2, in D major ..... Brahms

Sunday Aug. 16 — Charles Munch

Symphony in B minor ("Unfinished") .. .. Schubert

Bourree Fantasque .... Chabrier

Prelude and Love-Death, "Tristan und Isolde" .... Wagner

A Siegfried Idyll .... Wagner

"Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg" Wagner
Excerpts from Act III

Piano Concerto for the Left Hand .. Ravel
(Soloist: Seymour Lipkin)

"La Valse" .... Ravel

Festival Series Ticket Sales Far Ahead of the 1952 Season

The sale of series tickets has topped that of the 1952 season for the three week ends of Berkshire Festival concerts in the Tanglewood Music Shed, starting July 31, and continuing Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons until Aug. 16. The total of $59,000 is $1000 above that of last year, according to George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager.

Bookings also are reported substantially above those of 1952 for the concerts in the theatre-concert hall, starting July 11 and including Saturday evening and Sunday afternoons through July 26.

Tickets are still available for all concerts. For the early concerts in the theatre, best locations are for the opening Bach programs and for the Haydn and contemporary week end of July 25 and 26.

The box office is open daily for tickets and information, as is the office of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose members are invited to performances by the school.

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

JUN 2 5

Student to Leave For Music Center

Roxelyn Robbins, Dallas violinist, will leave Friday for the Berkshire Music Center at Lenox, Mass., where she has been awarded a full musical scholarship from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund.

She will play in the student orchestra under the direction of Leonard Bernstein and the chamber music department under Pierre Monteux. Miss Robbins also has been invited to participate in the modern composers symposium.

A violin pupil of Phillip Williams at Southern Methodist University, Miss Robbins is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Robbins, orchestra director at J. L. Long Junior High School and Woodrow Wilson High School.

May 16 1953

РУССКОЕ ОБОЗРЕНИЕ
RUSSIAN REVIEW
Published Weekly
2117 West Grand Avenue
Chicago 12, Ill.
Phone SEeley 3—3125

В музыкальном центре Танглвуд открытие летнего сезона состоится в июне. Концерты Бостонского Симфонического оркестра будут управляться известными дирижерами.

Недалеко от Танглвуда в «Джейкобс пилоу» (Подушка Якова) будут даваться вечера балета и характерных танцев. Главой этого центра является известный танцор Тэд Шоун.

Анна Гордон.

Eagle
July 1

Choral Conductor Joins Faculty at Music Center

Lorna Cooke deVaron

A newcomer to the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be Lorna Cooke deVaron, conductor of the chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. A Tanglewood student for the 1946-48 sessions, she will be associated with Hugh Ross, head of the choral music department, and James Aliferis of the University of Minnesota, his assistant.

A graduate of Wellesley College, where she majored in music, Mrs. deVaron received her master's degree in music from Radcliffe College, where she assisted G. Wallace Woodworth in the Radcliffe Choral Society. Before joining the faculty of the New England Conservatory she conducted the Bryn Mawr College chorus from 1944 to 1948.

A student of harmony with Nadia Boulanger of Wellesley, choral composition with Dr. Archibald Davison of Harvard and composition with Walter Piston, Mrs. deVaron studied conducting with Mr. Woodworth and Robert Shaw.

During the current season Tanglewood choral students will participate in three works with the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Haydn's "St. Theresa Mass," Mahler's Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection")and Brahms' "A German Requiem."

Guest Composer

CARLOS CHAVEZ
Leader of the Mexican Symphony Orchestra and also Mexican minister of fine arts, Mr. Chavez will be guest composer in the composition class at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, during the 1953 Berkshire Festival.

Standard-Times
New Bedford—Ma.
6/21

---

345 Enroll For Music Center

Eagle
6/19

Of 450 students expected for the 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, 345 already have enrolled for the six-week season, which will open July 5.

The list of 14 from foreign countries includes eight from Canada, two from Mexico and one each from Holland, South Korea, Sweden and France. More students than usual are coming from Western states, as a result of auditions by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in such cities on its recent transcontinental tour as Columbus and Cincinnati, Ohio; Knoxville, Tenn.; New Orleans, La.; Dallas, Texas; Tucson, Ariz.; Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal., and Toronto and Montreal, Canada.

Ninety-two students are expected in the Tanglewood Study Group, the department for music educators, amateurs and others who wish to spend two, four or six weeks absorbing music. Thirty-three are listed for the full period; nine for four weeks and 40 for a fortnight.

Perry Arrives Tomorrow

Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the school, and his secretary, Miss Patsy Hayes, will arrive from Philadelphia next week. Dr. Lewis Perry of Boston, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will come tomorrow to spend two weeks at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, to set in motion the organization whose members contribute to the support of the school, and form the invited audience for 40 performances by the students and faculty. Mrs. William W. Moore of Lenox again will assist in the Friends' office.

Expected next week from Symphony Hall, Boston, are George E. Judd, orchestra manager; John N. Burk, and Miss Lillian MacDougall and Miss K. C. Roys, their secretaries.

Gail Rector of Ann Arbor, assistant manager of the University of Michigan musical society, who is heading the grounds reception, Wayne Dunlap, also of Ann Arbor, conductor of the university's orchestra, who will assist in the school office, and Mrs. Minette Scheid of Boston, switchboard operator, arrived this week.

Eagle
6/19

Elm Court Opens Season Tomorrow

LENOX—Elm Court will open tomorrow for its sixth season with reservations well ahead of last year and the hotel completely booked for the festival season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. George Wilde, owners, announced yesterday that Rev. Robert L. Curry, headmaster of Lenox School, will again be manager.

Among the guests who will be staying this summer at the Court are Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Pierre Monteux, guest conductor, and Isaac Stern, guest soloist. Miss Alicia Markova, who will appear at Jacob's Pillow, and her sister will also be among the guests at the Court.

Other guests will be Eugene Wulsin, Philip Wyman, James Mixter and John Ortiz, who are officials of the Baldwin Piano Company of Cincinnati, Ohio; Gregor Piatigorsky, who will be at Elm Court through the Festival series, and many other guests of previous seasons.

GÖRBE TÜKÖR

Irja:
LUKACS ERNŐ

12/18/52

Ezen a nyáron öt remek hangversenyben gyönyörködtünk a Berkshire Music Festival központjában Tanglewoodon. Ámbár azt hiszem, ezt a helyet nyugodtan lehetne nevezni a világ zeneközpontjának. . .

Tanglewood kétségtelenül Amerika legszebb parkja. Egy 2800 láb magas egészen valószinütlenül gyönyörü platon terül el. Dus lombozatu fenyőktől szegélyezett sétányok százai és az alagutszerüen egymásba boruló lugasok, szökőkutak és exotikus virággruppok egy mesebeli tündérkert benyomását teszi a szemlélőre. Végül, hogy a panoráma teljes legyen, mindezt a völgyben csillogó csodás tavak veszik körül. . . Egyik napon átrándultunk a kies fekvésü Northamptonba. Tényleg kies fekvésü, mert egészen kies-ik a forgalomból. Éppen azért még ma is magánviseli a vén Anglia évszázados hatásait. Az egész város hegyekkel és őserdőkkel van körülvéve és az egész egy nagy antik muzeum benyomását teszi. Tényleg majdnem minden házban van egy antik stor, ahol "valódi antik" holmikat lehet kapni. Mi is vettünk egy pár szép emléktárgyat. Ennek a kis antik városnak még egy nevezetessége van az országos hirü Smith kollégium, melynek egy remek képgyüjteménye is van, számos modern képekkel, melyeket nem nagyon szeretek, kivéve a francia Renoir müveit.

Voltunk többször Huntingtonban, Westfielden, Springfielden. Itt is megnéztünk egy szép képkiállitást. Megemlithetném még Lenox városkát, mely Tanglewoodhoz mindössze egy mérföldre van, igy tehát tulajdonképen a nagy zene központnak az előcsarnoka. Egyéb nevezetessége az, hogy a felsőtizezrek fényüzően berendezett szállodája a hires Curtis Hotel itt terpeszkedik. Ide á földi halandó csak akkor juthat be, ha harminc nappal előbb megrendeli a 30-50 dollár közt váltakozó szobáját. Ezt a hotelremeket többször megnéztük magunknak, de más különben elhanyagoltuk...

Hogy a vakációs visszaemlékezésem teljes legyen meg kell emlitenem a worthingtoni istállóban tartott szombat esti táncmulatságokat az ugynevezett "szkver" táncokat. (Magyarul kockatánc). De nem tudtam kitalálni, hogy miért kocka. tánc, csak azt tudom, hogy az én idegeimet kockára tették vele.

A környéki farmokról összeseréglett fiatalság indiánokat megszégyenitő üvöltözés közben rugja a barn padlóját és közben a nőt ugy dobják jobbról-balra, hogy csakugy nyekkennek belé.

A farmerlegények a nőket egymástól lopták és a másikhoz dobták, közben a táncot vadul ropták. (Rimek halmaza szerk.) Hetvenöt cent volt a belépőjegy ára, de a belépőjegy helyett nagy szivalaku kék pecsétet ütöttek a kezünk fejére, amiből napok mulva is alig tudtunk kimosakodni. Én és hü párom kétszer jelentünk meg ezen a csábitó vagy inkább kábitó mulatságon. Először és utoljára. . .

[138]

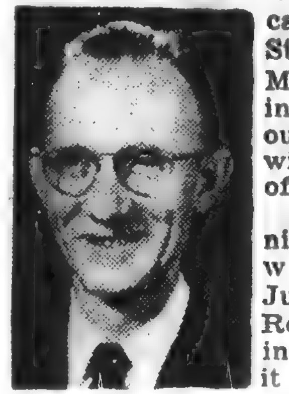
Music in Review

NASHVILLE TENNESSEAN

St. Louis Opera Schedules Attractions for Summer

By LOUIS NICHOLAS

The lull in local musical doings gives a rare opportunity to look farther afield at music elsewhere.



Nicholas

Nearest us is the series of musicals presented by St. Louis' famed Municipal opera in Forest Park's outdoor theater, with a capacity of 12,000.

For its 35th anniversary season, which began June 4 with Romberg's "Up in Central Park," it lists the following attractions: "Bloomer Girl," June 15-21; "Cyrano de Bergerac," June 22-28; "Rio Rita," June 29-July 5; "Blossom Time," July 6-12; "Rip Van Winkle," July 13-19; "No, No, Nanette," July 20-26; "Carmen," July 27-Aug. 2; "One Touch of Venus," Aug. 3-9; "Bitter Sweet," Aug. 10-16; and "Kiss Me, Kate," Aug. 17-30.

Edwin McArthur, the musical director of the "Muny" opera for a number of years, is the composer of the new musical version of "Rip Van Winkle." McArthur, who was the center of the dispute between Kirsten Flagstad and Lauritz Melchoir over who should conduct the operas in which both sang at the Met before World War II, conducted the Charles L. Wagner presentation of "Martha" at Ryman auditorium in 1945.

McArthur was Flagstad's accompanist and coach, so, desirous of advancing the young man's career, she stipulated that he should conduct the performances in which she sang. Melchoir got the idea he was being pushed around, and decided he could throw considerable weight around too. Both singers got verbal spankings from General Manager Edward Johnson.

Principals of "Bloomer Girl" cast include Priscilla Gillette, John Tyers, Olive Reeves-Smith, Sondra Lee, Joe E. Marks, Mabel Taliaferro, and Edwin Steffe who is a friend of Nashville composer-pianist Julia Robards Herbert.

Berkshire Festival

The 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass., extends from July 5 to Aug. 16 this year. One of the students who will be there on a scholarship will be T. Donley Thomas, a music major at Peabody college, and a cellist with the Nashville Symphony.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, will again be director of the Center, and Aaron Copland, noted composer, and a visitor to Peabody and the final Nashville Symphony concert this spring, will be assistant director.

Boris Goldovsky, who has appeared at Ward Belmont in piano lecture-recital, and who is well-known for his opera intermission broadcast features, will again be head of opera.

Gregor Piatigorsky, who has been heard in recital on Community Concerts and as soloist with the Nashville Symphony, will instruct in chamber music a part of the season.

Six concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood given on three successive week-ends from July 11 to July 26 will be devoted to Bach (2), Mozart (2), Haydn and contemporary works.

Isaac Stern, soloist with the Nashville Symphony last year, will be a soloist in the Mozart programs.

The nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat shed by the Boston Symphony's full complement of 104 will be given on the next three Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein Aug. 8 and 15. Soloists in this series will include Piatigorsky and Zino Francescatti.

The Berkshire Festival climaxes the most active of the Boston Symphony's 72 seasons, with 305 concerts given in 103 cities of the United States and Canada.

The first portion (1 and ½ hours) of the July 26, Aug. 2, 9 and 16 programs will be carried by CBS as part of its summer program of international music festivals. This will be the only American event in the series.

20-minute recital) at the national convention of Sigma Alpha Iota, music sorority, in Chicago in August. This is an honor usually reserved for nationally known honorary members. Miss Brown has also been asked to give the first performance of the song winning this year's SAI award.

Maribel Benton, former Ward Belmont piano teacher, who has been teaching at Bethel college, Hopkinsville, Ky., this year, has had two of her students accepted as scholarship pupils at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for next season. Jean Richardson, a high school senior and daughter of Bethel's president, and Peggy Shannon, a graduating music major, will both study with Dr. Karol Liszniewski, Miss Benton's former teacher.

Cyrus Daniel, director of music at Vanderbilt university, is searching for a tenor to complete the

---

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
HERALD
JUN 28 1953

Ticket Sale Tops '52 at Tanglewood

The sale of series tickets for the Shed Concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the 1953 Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., has surpassed that of the Summer of 1952.

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the box office. Mail orders for single concerts are also received: checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelop for return of tickets.

ALL TANGLEWOOD GROUPS PREPARE FOR BIG SEASON

Berkshire Festival Concert Series to Start Saturday, July 11

Lenox, June 19—In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the orchestra has moved from its Symphony Hall, Boston, headquarters, to its summer home at Tanglewood in Lenox, where it is being augmented by local and district officers.

Box Office Open

Alan Smith, treasurer, and Josephine Testa, of Pittsfield, his assistant, have opened the box office at Tanglewood, where seats may now be purchased for individual concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Six concerts are given in the Theatre-Concert Hall by [illegible] the Boston Symphony [illegible] Charles Munch conducting [illegible] urday evenings and Sunday [illegible] noons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-[illegible] nine programs are held in the [illegible] tival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings [illegible] Sunday afternoons July 31 [illegible] 1-2; August 7-8-9 August [illegible] Tickets may be reserved [illegible] to the box office, or by [illegible] to Lenox 600.

Activity at the Berkshire [illegible] Center headquarters is [illegible] swing, with details comp[illegible] far of the registration, [illegible] housing and arrival of so[illegible] out of the 450 students ex[illegible] from all over the U[illegible] Canada, and foreign [illegible] These details are in the h[illegible] Thomas D. Perry, Jr., [illegible] secretary; Edith Bo[illegible] trar; Jean Fraser, se[illegible] Leonard Burkat, libra[illegible] Boston. They are joined th[illegible] by Heidi Bakker, of Gr[illegible] rington. The school's dean, [illegible] Berkowitz of Philadelphia, [illegible] rive next week, to be assis[illegible] Miss Patsy Hayes, of Phila[illegible]

Tanglewood Study Group

Registrations are still [illegible] the Tanglewood Study G[illegible] new department in w[illegible] sional and amateur [illegible] enroll for two, four [illegible] to study and participate in [illegible] formance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of E[illegible] national chairman of the F[illegible] of the Berkshire Festival, [illegible] rive this week end at [illegible] two weeks, to set in [illegible] program of approximately [illegible] formances this summer [illegible] friends may attend by invitation. These will include the first three week ends of festival chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert [illegible] three chamber music con[illegible] donated by Mrs. Elizabeth Sp[illegible] Coolidge, student opera p[illegible] tions scheduled on Aug. 3, [illegible] 11, recitals by visiting [illegible] artists, and a number of [illegible] concerts. Contributions [illegible] the Boston Symphony O[illegible] Inc., made to the friend[illegible] at Tanglewood, are de[illegible] under federal income [illegible] and entitle donors to [illegible] performances. In [illegible] friends' office now are [illegible]

Kennard and Roger Hi[illegible] of the Lenox School, [illegible] by Mrs. William Moo[illegible]

MUSIC FESTIVAL TICKETS OFFERED

Subscription Sale Surpassed Last Summer's

Stockbridge, June 25—The sale of series tickets for the shed concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the 1953 Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, has surpassed that of the summer of 1952, manager George E. Judd announces.

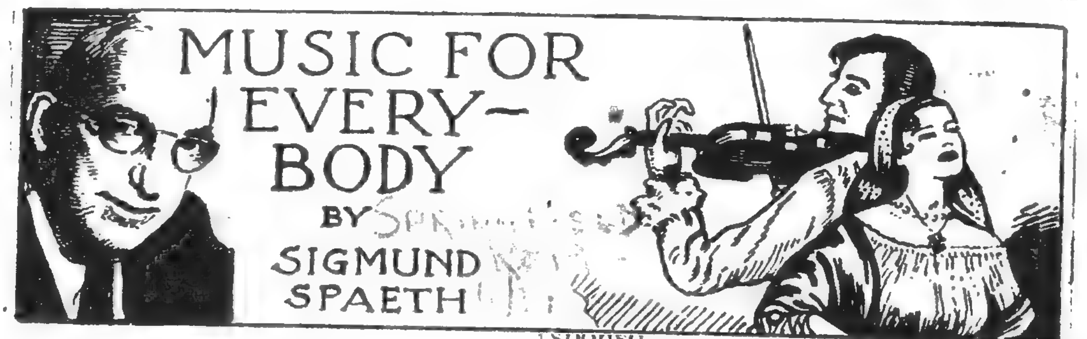
Subscribers for the 1953 Berkshire Festival purchased $59,000 in tickets for Series A, July 31-Aug. 1-2; for Series B, Aug. 7-8-9; for Series C, Aug. 14-15-16, an increase of more than $1000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the box office (telephone Lenox 600), which is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Commencing July 5, when the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center starts, the box office will also be open on Sundays. Mail orders for single concerts are also received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

Festival Opens July 11

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens on Saturday, July 11, at 8.30 p. m. with the first of a week-end pair of Bach concerts, tickets for which are $5 and $4. Seats for the July 18-19 brace of Mozart concerts, for which Isaac Stern is soloist, remain only at the $5 price. The Theater-Concert Hall preliminary concerts close July 25-26 with a program devoted to Haydn, and one to Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss, with Vera Zorina as narrator of Mr. Foss' cantata "A Parable of Death," at $5 and $4.

With the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing, under Mr. Munch's direction, the week-end shed concerts start on Friday, July 31, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor Aug. 2 afternoon, Leonard Bernstein guest conductor Aug. 8 and Aug. 15. Soloists include Zino Francescatti, Lukas Foss, Jorge Bolet, Jennie Tourel, Gregor Piatigorsky, Lois Marshall, Seymour Lipkin. Prices are: Box seats, $6.50; front sections, center, $5.50; front sections, sides, $4; rear sections, $3.50, $3 and $2.50.



MUSIC FOR EVERY-BODY

BY SIGMUND SPAETH

trial firms contributing $1000 each and receiving 1000 tickets to distribute among their employees.

Bay State Festivals

The famous Hollywood Bowl has fewer problems of a meteorological nature and more opportunities for spectacular effects. The Aspen Festival in Colorado, the Bevard in North Carolina, Central City, the Zoo Opera in Cincinnati, even Phil Maxwell's Chiagoland, Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell and the historic Chautauqua series may all easily turn geographical advantages into musical ones.

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood has had a consistent record of success, and the youthful Brandeis University at Waltham has just completed another Festival of the Creative Arts, fittingly directed by the prodigious Leonard Bernstein. Boston's traditional "Pops," conducted by Arthur Fiedler, have the spirit of recreation and relaxation, even though they are technically indoor concerts.

Music Center Office Opens At Tanglewood

Offices of the Berkshire Music Center and its Friends Society opened this week at Tanglewood. The advance staff from Symphony Hall, Boston, is reinforced by three Berkshire residents who have served in previous summers. More staff members will arrive next week, and the complete force for school and Festival activities will be in residence June 29.

Thomas D. Perry Jr., executive secretary of the school; Miss Jean Fraser, his secretary; Miss Edith Bossler, registrar; and Miss Heidi Bakker of Great Barrington, her assistant, are at work in the school office at the main house. Leonad Burkat, school librarian and secretary to Charles Munch, the director, also has returned.

Spencer Kennard and Roger Hinman, of the faculty of Lenox Preparatory School for Boys, are in the Friends' office, and Joseph LePlante of Salem is back to head the music store. Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante, who were married last week, are occupying a cottage at South Mountain.

The box office is again headed by Allen Smith, assisted by Miss Josephine Testa of 71 Stoddard Avenue, and the Symphony Hall staff.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
JUN 13 1953

Saengerfest i

By THEODOLINDA BORIS

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" by the French composer Gretry will be the major production of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this Summer. The performances (in English) will take place Aug. 10 and 11.

Three rarely-heard one-act operas will be on one bill, Aug. 3: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed), Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son) and "Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education) by Chabrier.

27 in

CONCERT TICKETS MOVING

Tanglewood's Subscription Sale Surpasses Last Year's

The sale of series subscription tickets to this year's Berkshire Festival concerts at Tanglewood, Mass., has surpassed that of 1952, George E. Judd, manager, announced yesterday.

Subscribers have purchased $59,000 in tickets for the three series of concerts, an increase of $1,000 over the 1952 advance sale. The advance subscription deadline was extended ten days from June 1 for the convenience of purchasers.

All remaining tickets for the season are now on sale at the Tanglewood box office Mondays through Saturdays. Beginning July 5, the box office will also be open Sundays. Mail orders may be sent to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., of Tanglewood.

★★ The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Saturday, June 20, 1953—15

South Berkshire Weekly

Too Many Eggs in One Basket

By A. G. Rud

GREAT BARRINGTON — To [illegible] of Berkshire business- [illegible] of people [illegible] wettest [illegible] decades, the [illegible] signs [illegible] and has already [illegible] an extraordinary [illegible] fine June days.

* * *

WITH THE agreeable weather [illegible] of reservations and [illegible] The Berkshire Hills [illegible] the county's clearing- [illegible] for tourist transactions, [illegible] advance bookings as well as [illegible] from the partly-convinced [illegible] well ahead of last year. The [illegible] comes from many of [illegible] resort owners, with sev- [illegible] a remarkable up- [illegible] within the past week or so. [illegible] who make their living [illegible] the county take heart from [illegible] ture of potential patrons and in-flowing cash, but make at least two reservations themselves. One concerns Tanglewood's new policy of presenting the first concert of each of the [illegible] Shed series on Friday night instead of Thursday night. The other, a long-standing complaint, is based upon the brevity of the summer season.

So far as the Boston Symphony Orchestra goes, the advantages of the Friday night concerts are already apparent at the box office. While reservations for the first three week ends of concerts in the theatre-concert hall are running about even with those of last year, bookings for the A, B and C Series in the Shed are far ahead, and in fact are already nudging the 1952 totals.

* * *

THIS INDICATES that the condensed week end of music will draw bigger crowds. Whether it will be an over-all gain for the area is another question. For the big hotels like Red Lion Inn and Heaton Hall in Stockbridge, the thing seems to even itself out, with a decrease in Thursday night reservations counter-balanced by an increase in Friday, Saturday and Sunday night bookings. It shouldn't make much difference, either, to the medium-sized recreational resorts like Avaloch in Lenox, which seek reservations for at least five days, and to the sports centers like Jug End Barn in South Egremont, which don't attract many music lovers anyway.

But for the small operators, the owners of the 300 private rooms to let in Lenox, for instance, the program shift may mean the difference between a three-night and a two-night week end. When there are only half a dozen such week ends in a year, that difference can be important.

The change will also have an effect upon Jacob's Pillow, which formerly benefited by the open Friday night. People up for the long Thursday-Sunday week end often took in a little ballet on the one night Tanglewood was closed. Now they'll have to skip a program somewhere or sandwich in a matinee.

* * *

THE MORE IMPORTANT qualification to be made about the comparatively rosy tourist picture, however, does not concern a simple shift of three concert dates. It has to do with the need for lengthening the summer season so that the tourist business continues active at least to Labor Day and perhaps beyond.

Up to 1935 or so, vacation trade held up through Labor Day, dropped off in mid-September and picked up again for the foliage season. In recent years, though, it has been a Fourth of July skyrocket that reached its peak early in August and dropped kerplunk after the last Festival concert. The consequence has been that resorts in Lenox and Stockbridge have not been able to capitalize fully on the summer. Facilities that could take care of the enormous influx during the three big concert week ends would be white elephants the other 49 weeks of the year.

The situation derives from the fact that Tanglewood has been dominating the county's tourist trade much as the GE has been dominating its industrial economy. And just as the area would be strengthened by more diversification of industry, so would the vacation business become sounder as more tourist attractions were added.

T Wharf, Boston

TRAVEL & RESORTS

It's Festival Time in Yankeeland!

Here we go again! Another New England summer is about to begin and Chambers of Commerce, resort owners and proprietors of roadside shops and stores have already shifted into high gear, and the tub-thumping can be heard resounding from the hills. Antique collectors have been scouring the countryside all winter for old chairs and bottles for their shops. Summer theatre people have been making up schedules of plays, and even the smallest of towns have schemed up some attraction to lure the wary tourist within the town limits.

Festivals seem to be high on the list of summer attractions. On June 7th-14th the Contemporary Art Festival will again be held on Boston's Public Garden. Hundreds of New England artists will be represented, and the sponsors confidently expect 400,000 people to attend. Mr. Fiedler and the Boston Pops, Boris Goldovsky and the New England Opera Theatre will supply the music for evening concerts under the stars. Well worth a trip to Bean Town, we think.

Music and art are combined in a summer-long program at Castle Hill in Ipswich, Mass. Now in its fourth year of operation, Castle Hill is well established as a music and art center for the North Shore community. Classes in art are held for the seven week season, and thousands of people attend the weekend concerts which are performed in the beautiful formal gardens of the magnificent Crane Estate. Full information on classes and other activities may be obtained from the Castle Hill Foundation, Ipswich, Mass.

At Old Sturbridge Village in Sturbridge, Mass., a six week program of folk opera, drama and ballet, the first of its kind on the eastern seaboard, will run from July 13th to August 31st. Stephen Vincent Benet's famous New England classic, "The Devil and Daniel Webster" will be the feature of the Festival. The work will be performed nightly, except Monday, in the newly constructed 1600 seat outdoor amphitheatre. Old Sturbridge Village is located at the junction of Route 20 and Route 15, and is an ideal spot for a whole day's outing.

Needless to say, The Boston Symphony Orchestra will again be at Tanglewood, for the 19th Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass. There are to be six Theatre concerts on Saturdays and Sundays on three successive weekends from July 11th through 26th. This will be in addition to the regular concerts under the Shed which take place from July 31st through August 16th. Complete program information will be sent on request; address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The beautiful town of Camden, Me., which overlooks Penobscot Bay, has a summer-long schedule of events which seem quite interesting to us. On June 21st, the Senior Fishing Derby takes place, with headquarters at the Association Club House, Megunticook Lake. July 7th marks the opening of the famous Camden Hills Summer Playhouse. On July 16th, flower lovers will make the grand tour of Camden's and Rockport's famous gardens. Headquarters for this event is at the St. Thomas Episcopal Parish House. Camden will honor Edna St. Vincent Millay during the week of July 16th-19th. Many interesting events make up this program. The Main, Coast Artists Show will take place

76 JUNE 1953 YANKEE

Two Young Composers Commissioned To Write Tanglewood Operas for '54

LENOX, June 26 (AP) — Two youthfl composers have been commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center to write new operas for presentation at the 1954 Tanglewood season, the center announced today.

Leonard Rosenman of New York city and Louis Mennini, Rochester, N. Y., will receive grants of $750 each from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

Boris Goldovsky, director of Tanglewood's opera department, said the commissions were an experiment by which "it is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition will some workmanlike and effective theater pieces."

Rosenman's compositions have been performed by the Composers' Forum, San Francisco, at the University of California and by the League of Composers, New York.

Mennini, 32, is a native of Erie, Pa., and studied music at Oberlin College. He is a teacher at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, and previously taught at the University of Texas. In 1949, he won the National Institute of Arts and Letters award.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUN 13 1953

Alvin Epstein Wins Stay at Tanglewood

Alvin Epstein

Alvin Epstein, member of the Hartt College composition staff, has been selected from applicants throughout the nation as one of two recipients for a Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarship of $250 for study at Tanglewood this Summer. Announcement was made this week by Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

Born in Hartford, Mr. Epstein attended Weaver High School, the University of Connecticut, and the University of Maine before entering Hartt College where he majored in composition with Dr. Isadore Freed and Arnold Franchetti. He was graduated from Hartt in 1950 with the bachelor of music degree and in 1952 he received his master of music degree.

Berkshire Music Center School to Open July 5

Festival Concerts at Tanglewood Start On July 11; Tickets Are Now Available

Berkshire Hills, June 27—Summer activities will begin to be in full sway a week hence with the start of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, which opens for a six-week summer school of music. The school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which stages that annual music festival at the Shed, will begin on July 5. Alan Smith, treasurer, and Miss Josephine Testa of Pittsfield, assistant treasurer, have opened the boxoffice at Tanglewood where tickets may now be purchased for the individual concerts of the festival, which begin on July 11.

At the Music Center, the headquarters are in full swing for the summer school. The staff is busily engaged with registration, curriculum, and housing of about 450 students expected to be on hand this year from all parts of the country, Canada and many foreign countries. The details for all of this work are in the hands of Thomas D. Perry, executive secretary, Edith Bessler, registrar, Jean Fraser, secretary, and Leonard Burkat, librarian, all of Boston. Miss Heidi Bakker of Great Barrington is also assisting the group this year. Ralph Berkowitz, the school's dean, will arrive this coming week from Philadelphia, and he will be assisted by Miss Patsy Hayes, also of Philadelphia.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry of Boston, the national chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Festival, arrived this week end at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks. He will arrange the program of about 50 performances this summer which friends may attend by invitation.

Evidence that the festival concerts are gaining in popularity each ear, is shown by the fact that the cket sales this year surpass those the 1952 season, George E. Judd, anager of the Boston Symphony rchestra announced this week. cket sales for the theater-concert ll, also show an increase over st year, giving evidence that it ll be a busy season musically in e Berkshires this summer.

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week begin-

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

[140]

 The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Saturday, June 20, 1953—15

South Berkshire Weekly

Too Many Eggs in One Basket

By A. G. Rud

GREAT BARRINGTON — To the delight of Berkshire businessmen and the despair of people who come here to get away from it all, the signs point to a humdinger of a summer tourist season.

Last summer was active but this one looks feverish. After a spring that was even more miserable than ever and included the wettest March and April in decades, the weather has begun to show signs of reason and has already chalked up an extraordinary number of fine June days.

* * *

WITH THE agreeable weather comes a pile of reservations and inquiries. The Berkshire Hills Conference, the county's clearinghouse for tourist transactions, says advance bookings as well as queries from the partly-convinced are well ahead of last year. The same story comes from many of the big resort owners, with several reporting a remarkable upswing within the past week or so. Those who make their living inside the county take heart from this picture of potential patrons and in-flowing cash, but make at least two reservations themselves. One concerns Tanglewood's new policy of presenting the first concert of each of the big Shed series on Friday night instead of Thursday night. The other, a long-standing complaint, is based upon the brevity of the summer season.

So far as the Boston Symphony Orchestra goes, the advantages of the Friday night concerts are already apparent at the box office. While reservations for the first three week ends of concerts in the theatre-concert hall are running about even with those of last year, bookings for the A, B and C Series in the Shed are far ahead, and in fact are already nudging the 1952 totals.

* * *

THIS INDICATES that the condensed week end of music will draw bigger crowds. Whether it will be an over-all gain for the area is another question. For the big hotels like Red Lion Inn and Heaton Hall in Stockbridge, the thing seems to even itself out, with a decrease in Thursday night reservations counter-balanced by an increase in Friday, Saturday and Sunday night bookings. It shouldn't make much difference, either, to the medium-sized recreational resorts like Avaloch in Lenox, which seek reservations for at least five days, and to the sports centers like Jug End Barn in South Egremont, which don't attract many music lovers anyway.

But for the small operators, the owners of the 300 private rooms to let in Lenox, for instance, the program shift may mean the difference between a three-night and a two-night week end. When there are only half a dozen such week ends in a year, that difference can be important.

The change will also have an effect upon Jacob's Pillow, which formerly benefited by the open Friday night. People up for the long Thursday-Sunday week end often took in a little ballet on the one night Tanglewood was closed. Now they'll have to skip a program somewhere or sandwich in a matinee.

* * *

THE MORE IMPORTANT qualification to be made about the comparatively rosy tourist picture, however, does not concern a simple shift of three concert dates. It has to do with the need for lengthening the summer season so that the tourist business continues active at least to Labor Day and perhaps beyond.

Up to 1935 or so, vacation trade held up through Labor Day, dropped off in mid-September and picked up again for the foliage season. In recent years, though, it has been a Fourth of July skyrocket that reached its peak early in August and dropped kerplunk after the last Festival concert. The consequence has been that resorts in Lenox and Stockbridge have not been able to capitalize fully on the summer. Facilities that could take care of the enormous influx during the three big concert week ends would be white elephants the other 49 weeks of the year.

The situation derives from the fact that Tanglewood has been dominating the county's tourist trade much as the GE has been dominating its industrial economy. And just as the area would be strengthened by more diversification of industry, so would the vacation business become sounder as more tourist attractions were added.

T Wharf, Boston

TRAVEL & RESORTS

It's Festival Time in Yankeeland!

Here we go again! Another New England summer is about to begin and Chambers of Commerce, resort owners and proprietors of roadside shops and stores have already shifted into high gear, and the tub-thumping can be heard resounding from the hills. Antique collectors have been scouring the countryside all winter for old chairs and bottles for their shops. Summer theatre people have been making up schedules of plays, and even the smallest of towns have schemed up some attraction to lure the wary tourist within the town limits.

Festivals seem to be high on the list of summer attractions. On June 7th-14th the Contemporary Art Festival will again be held on Boston's Public Garden. Hundreds of New England artists will be represented, and the sponsors confidently expect 400,000 people to attend. Mr. Fiedler and the Boston Pops, Boris Goldovsky and the New England Opera Theatre will supply the music for evening concerts under the stars. Well worth a trip to Bean Town, we think.

Music and art are combined in a summer-long program at Castle Hill in Ipswich, Mass. Now in its fourth year of operation, Castle Hill is well established as a music and art center for the North Shore community. Classes in art are held for the seven week season, and thousands of people attend the weekend concerts which are performed in the beautiful formal gardens of the magnificent Crane Estate. Full information on classes and other activities may be obtained from the Castle Hill Foundation, Ipswich, Mass.

At Old Sturbridge Village in Sturbridge, Mass., a six week program of folk opera, drama and ballet, the first of its kind on the eastern seaboard, will run from July 13th to August 31st. Stephen Vincent Benet's famous New England classic, "The Devil and Daniel Webster" will be the feature of the Festival. The work will be performed nightly, except Monday, in the newly constructed 1600 seat outdoor amphitheatre. Old Sturbridge Village is located at the junction of Route 20 and Route 15, and is an ideal spot for a whole day's outing.

Needless to say, The Boston Symphony Orchestra will again be at Tanglewood, for the 19th Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass. There are to be six Theatre concerts on Saturdays and Sundays on three successive weekends from July 11th through 26th. This will be in addition to the regular concerts under the Shed which take place from July 31st through August 16th. Complete program information will be sent on request; address Boston Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

The beautiful town of Camden, Me., which overlooks Penobscot Bay, has a summer-long schedule of events which seem quite interesting to us. On June 21st, the Senior Fishing Derby takes place, with headquarters at the Association Club House, Megunticook Lake. July 7th marks the opening of the famous Camden Hills Summer Playhouse. On July 16th, flower lovers will make the grand tour of Camden's and Rockport's famous gardens. Headquarters for this event is at the St. Thomas Episcopal Parish House. Camden will honor Edna St. Vincent Millay during the week of July 16th-19th. Many interesting events make up this program. The Main, Coast Artists Show will take place

---

Two Young Composers Commissioned To Write Tanglewood Operas for '54

LENOX, June 26 (AP) — Two youthfl composers have been commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center to write new operas for presentation at the 1954 Tanglewood season, the center announced today.

Leonard Rosenman of New York city and Louis Mennini, Rochester, N. Y., will receive grants of $750 each from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

Boris Goldovsky, director of Tanglewood's opera department, said the commissions were an experiment by which "it is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition will some workmanlike and effective theater pieces."

Rosenman's compositions haye been performed by the Composers' Forum, San Francisco, at the University of California and by the League of Composers, New York city.

Mennini, 32, is a native of Erie, Pa., and studied music at Oberlin College. He is a teacher at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, and previously taught at the University of Texas. In 1949, he won the National Institute of Arts and Letters award.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUN 13 1953

Alvin Epstein Wins Stay at Tanglewood

Alvin Epstein, member of the Hartt College composition staff, has been selected from applicants throughout the nation as one of two recipients for a Margaret Lee Crofts Scholarship of $250 for study at Tanglewood this Summer. Announcement was made this week by Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center.

Alvin Epstein

Born in Hartford, Mr. Epstein attended Weaver High School, the University of Connecticut, and the University of Maine before entering Hartt College where he majored in composition with Dr. Isadore Freed and Arnold Franchetti. He was graduated from Hartt in 1950 with the bachelor of music degree and in 1952 he received his master of music degree.

Berkshire Music Center School to Open July 5

Festival Concerts at Tanglewood Start On July 11; Tickets Are Now Available

Berkshire Hills, June 27—Summer activities will begin to be in full sway a week hence with the start of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, which opens for a six-week summer school of music. The school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which stages that annual music festival at the Shed, will begin on July 5. Alan Smith, treasurer, and Miss Josephine Testa of Pittsfield, assistant treasurer, have opened the boxoffice at Tanglewood where tickets may now be purchased for the individual concerts of the festival, which begin on July 11.

At the Music Center, the headquarters are in full swing for the summer school. The staff is busily engaged with registration, curriculum, and housing of about 450 students expected to be on hand this year from all parts of the country, Canada and many foreign countries. The details for all of this work are in the hands of Thomas D. Perry, executive secretary, Edith Bessler, registrar, Jean Fraser, secretary, and Leonard Burkat, ibrarian, all of Boston. Miss Heidi 3akker of Great Barrington is also ssisting the group this year. Ralph Berkowitz, the school's dean, will rrive this coming week from Philadelphia, and he will be assisted by Miss Patsy Hayes, also of Philadelphia.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry of Boston, the ational chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Festival, arrived his week end at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks. He will arange the program of about 50 perormances this summer which riends may attend by invitation.

Evidence that the festival conerts are gaining in popularity each ear, is shown by the fact that the cket sales this year surpass those the 1952 season, George E. Judd, anager of the Boston Symphony rchestra announced this week. cket sales for the theater-concert ll, also show an increase over st year, giving evidence that it ll be a busy season musically in e Berkshires this summer.

[140]

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week begin-

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

Young Composers to Write New Operas for Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center to Experiment With Commissioned Works for Student Groups

Lenox, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the practical assistance of the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's 11th six-week summer session on July 5, and Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

Two Commissions

From recommendations made by American composers. Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the summer of 1954.

Eye to Future

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Goldovsky explains, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important function of the school whose founder, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, was much interested in musical theater. Mr. Goldovsky has been head of the opera department since 1946. Under his tenure such novel works have been performed in past summers at Tanglewood as Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" (1946) and "Albert Herring" (1949); Mozart's "Idomeneo" (1947), "La Finta Giardiniera' (1950) and "Titus" (1952); Ibert's "Le Roid'Yvetot" (1950); Rossini's "The Turk in Italy" (1948); Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" (1949) Tchaikowsky's "Pique Dame" (1951).

In the season about to open, the opera department will produce Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 10 and 11; and three one-act operas on Monday, Aug. 3: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee."

ACTIVITY GROWS AT TANGLEWOOD AS OPENING NEARS

Boston Symphony Personnel Moving Into Lenox For Summer

Lenox, June 27—In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the orchestra has moved from its Symphony Hall, Boston, headquarters, to its summer home at Tanglewood in Lenox, where it is being augmented by local and district officers.

Seats on Sale

Alan Smith, treasurer, and Josephine Testa, of Pittsfield, his assistant, have opened the boxoffice at Tanglewood, where seats may now be purchased for individual concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Six concerts are given in the Theater-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9 Aug. 14-15-16.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with details completed so far of the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U. S. and Canada, and from foreign countries. Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group, the new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, national chairman of the Friends for the Berkshire Festival, will arrive this week end at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks, to set in motion the program of approximately 40 performances this summer which Friends may attend by invitation. These will include the first three week ends of Festival chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, three chamber music concerts donated by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, student opera productions scheduled on Aug. 3, 10 and 11, recitals by visiting concert artists, and a number of student concerts.

Two Operas Commissioned

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., June 27.—Leonard Roseman, of New York, and Louis Mennini, of Rochester, N. Y., have been commissioned to compose two operas for production here next summer by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood.

Both composers, who will receive $750 each from the Koussevitzky Foundation, will be guests of the center during this summer's session which begins July 5 and will have th eassistane cof its opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal.

by Boris Goldovsky, head of the department, agreement will first be reached on the subject, Libretto, orchestra and scenic and technical details of the operas.

By midsummer, it is expected that parts of the operas will be ready as subjects for stage and technical experiments, and the framework of the operas, it is hoped, will be substantially set by the end of the summer. The two composers were chosen from recommendations made by Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein.

Eagle - June 27 '53

Two Composers To Write Operas For 1954 Season at Tanglewood

Louis Mennini

Leonard Rosenman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester have been commissioned to compose one-act operas to be performed at Tanglewood in the 1954 Festival season. Announced a few weeks ago by Boris Goldovsky, head of the Berkshire Music Center's opera department, the awards include $750 each by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and residence at Tanglewood as guests of the school for the current session.

The composers were chosen from recommendations from composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein. They will commence work with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty, and may draw on its facilities. It is expected that by midsummer, portions of the works will be completed, so that the composers can experiment in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting and orchestra. At the end of the summer, when it is hoped the framework will be substantially set, a year will remain for completion of the operas, in time for performance next season by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra.

"It is our earnest hope that this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Mr. Goldovsky explained, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theatre pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

Mr. Rosenman, who spent last summer studying composition at Tanglewood, on a Crofts scholarship, is a New Yorker. After studying piano and analysis with Julia Herford, he spent three years in the U.S. Air Transport Command in the Pacific area. He first composed for special services radio shows. On his release from the Army he studied with the late composer, Arnold Schoenberg, in Los Angeles, and then with Roger Sessions of the University of California, Berkeley. He composed for radio in Berkeley and San Francisco, and was producer and commentator for a program, "Meet the Composer." He also performed a series of rarely-heard Haydn piano sonatas, with analyses.

Born in Erie, Pa., Mr. Mennini studied music at Oberlin College, Ohio. After three years in the U.S. Army Air Force in England, he resumed study at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, graduating in 1947 as a bachelor and master in music. After teaching for a season at the University of Texas, Austin, he returned to Eastman to teach. He won the 1949 National Institute of Arts and Letters award.

Among the compositions are the one-act opera, "The Well," Overture Breve, commissioned by the Springfield, Ohio, Symphony Orchestra and Sonatina for Cello and Piano, commissioned by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

French Opera To Be Staged

To Be Major Work Of Berkshire Group

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 27 — "Richard Coeur-de-Lion," an opera written shortly before the French Revolution, will be the major production of the opera department at the Berkshire Music Center.

Boris Goldovsky, well-known in New Bedford, announced the opera—a three-act affair written by Andre Ernest-Modeste Gretry—will be given in English. The translation was made by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. Two performances of the opera—which had its world premiere in Paris in 1784 and its U. S. premiere in Boston in 1797—will be given Aug. 10 and 11.

In the cast will be students of the Berkshire Music Center—the Summer music school run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Scenery will employ projected views using a special slide mechanism.

In addition to the French opera dealing with Britain's hero king, three rarely-heard one-act operas will also be staged by the students: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne" ("The Drunkard Reformed"); Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" ("The Prodigal Son"), and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee" ("An Incomplete Education").

All three operas will be presented Aug. 3 and the Gluck and Chabrier compositions will be sung in English. Like all student performances at Tanglewood, admission is not by tickets, but is open by invitation to the friends of the music center whose contributions aid the school.

Tanglewood Advisory Group Meets Wednesday

Th Tanglewood Advisory Committee will meet Wednesday at 12.30 PM at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox. With them, from Boston, will be George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager, and Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Omission

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

I'm enclosing a music column by Bruno Ussher from the San Diego Evening Tribune.

Suddenly I find that Lenox and Stockbridge are by-passed and that the Berkshire Festival is located in Tanglewood, Mass. I have written a note to Mr. Ussher setting him right and saying that as a former Berkshirite, I resent his omission of Lenox.

THURSTON (TED) HOLMES.
San Diego, Cal.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: The Danish composer, Carl Nielsen, will be honored with a festival of his music in Copenhagen from Aug. 31 to Sept. 4. It will include his opera "Saul and David" and his First, Third, Fifth and Sixth Symphonies. . . . The Northern California Harpists Association is offering a $125 prize for a work for harp alone and another prize of the same amount for a work for harp with one or more instruments. . . . The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center will again use Paul Planer's projected scenery for its major opera of the season, Grétry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion." . . .

28, 1953

New Operas Commissioned

Two Composers Given Grants at Tanglewood

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers this Summer.

The plan, evolved by Bo[illegible] Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and wi[illegible] assistance of the Koussevi[illegible] Music Foundation, is being [illegible] into effect immediately, at [illegible] start of the Berkshire Music Center's season next Sunday. Mr. Goldovsky hopes it will [illegible] fruit by the Summer of 1954 when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Mr. Goldovsky announces that commiss[illegible] have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York and to Louis Mennini of Rochester, N. Y. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzy Music Foundation grant of $1,500 towards the project.

To Work at Center

Mr. Rosenman and Mr. [illegible]nini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through [illegible] season, and will commence [illegible] upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By the end of the Summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, giving the composers almost a full year to complete their works for performance next season.

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important [illegible] tion of the school whose foun[illegible] the late Dr. Serge Kousse[illegible] was much interested in m[illegible] theater. Mr. Goldovsky ha[illegible] head of the opera depa[illegible] since 1946.

Meanwhile, the sale of tickets for the shed concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood has surpa[illegible] that of the Summer of 1952 [illegible] ager George E. Judd [illegible]

Subscribers for the 1953 [illegible] shire Festival pur[illegible] in tickets for Series A, Ju[illegible] and Aug. 1 and 2; fo[illegible] Aug. 7-8 and 9, and for Series [illegible] Aug. 14, 15 and 16 an increase of more than $1,000 from last [illegible] son's advance [illegible] subs[illegible] tion sale, offic[illegible] was extended [illegible] for the convenien[illegible] Berk[illegible] County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining [illegible] Tanglewood season are [illegible] sale at the boxoffice [illegible] for single concerts a[illegible] ceived; checks [illegible] are payable to [illegible] phony Orchest[illegible] be accompanied [illegible] self-addressed [illegible] turn of tickets.

With Charle[illegible] rector, conducting [illegible] the Boston Symph[illegible] the Berkshire F[illegible] July 11

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 29 1953

Tanglewood Advisory Group Meets Wednesday

Th Tanglewood Advisory Committee will meet Wednesday at 12.30 PM at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox. With them, from Boston, will be George E. Judd, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager, and Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

[141]

When you go with BINGLER
to the

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL

You Get a Complete Package

ALL TRANSPORTATION
ALL TAXES
HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS
Including 2 breakfasts
$27.65 Plus $1.35 Tax

TWO $2 TICKETS TO SAT. EVENING AND SUN. AFT. PERFORMANCES
Swimming, Tennis, other recreation free
OPTIONAL: JACOBS PILLOW, $3.55 add.
Leave every Fri. Eve., 6:30 P.M.
July 17 to Aug. 14—Return Sun. Eve.
Reserve Now! See your Travel Agent or
BINGLER VACATION TOURS
203 W. 41 St., N. Y. WI 7-5550

Single Sale NOW
for each concert of the
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12-18, 19-25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

Something really new has been added to Lenox, Mass., the MUSIC FESTIVAL TOWN

the Corner House

Guests • Restaurant • Art Gallery

Faculty Arriving at Tanglewood

Faculty and staff members of the Berkshire Music Center are arriving at Tanglewood to prepare for the 11th annual six-week session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school, which will open Sunday afternoon at 4.

Boris Goldovsky of Brookline, head of the opera department, with Mrs. Goldovsky, daughter, Marina, and son, Michael, are occupying a cottage on Stockbridge Bowl. Also on the Bowl at Mahkeenac are Mr. and Mrs. Gail Rector and three children and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dunlap and family, all of Ann Arbor, Mich., where Mr. Dunlap is conductor of the University of Michigan orchestra and Mr. Rector, manager. Mr. Rector is in charge of guiding and other Tanglewood grounds relations and Mr. Dunlap is in the school office.

Also in Stockbridge are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ulanowsky and family of New York. Coach in the opera department, Mr. Ulanowsky was formerly Lotte Lehmann's accompanist. Ralph Pottle of Hammond, La., assistant in the bookshop, is living at the Tanglewood boathouse, of which he is in charge, with shore activities.

In Lenox, at Chef Karl's, will be Hugh Ross of New York, director of choral music and conducting. Also in Lenox, at Heathercroft, are Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Zirner, who conduct, at Lenox School, the opera associates. They recently returned from a trip to England, Scotland and their native Austria. At Hawthorne Hill will be Ingolf Dahl, of the University of Southern California, who directs the Tanglewood Study Group. He will again be assisted by Miss Florence M. Dunn of Williamstown, who will live on West Street. Stoddard Spader, Brooks (North Andover) School teacher, lieutenant of guides, is at the home of Miss Lillian Cooper of Tucker Street.

Leonard Bernstein, leader of orchestral conducting and the school orchestra, with Mrs. Bernstein and their daughter will arrive Wednesday in Hillsdale, N.Y., where they have a house for the summer.

William Kroll of New York, who with Richard Burgin will head the chamber music department, will commute from his summer home in Woodstock, N.Y., with his daughter, Barbara, viola player in the school orchestra.

Boxholders Are Listed For Festival

24 Subscribers Are Residents of Berkshire County

Twenty-four of the 79 subscribers to boxes for one or more concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood are permanent or summer residents of Berkshire County.

Local boxholders are: Pittsfield, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Whittlesey, Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Blau, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Jalonack; Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane Jr.; Lenox, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn; Stockbridge, Miss Mabel Choate, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoving, Mrs. Walter Janney, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Karrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Procter, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood, McA. Donald Ryan; Housatonic, Robert Anderson and Dr. Walter VanHorst.

Also, Great Barrington, Mr. and Mrs. Willam Felton Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Blodgett, Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood R. Burdsall, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Wheeler, Richard L. Strobridge and Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Straus 2d; Otis, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sokolsky; and Williamstown, Dr. and Mrs. James Phinney Baxter 3d.

Others From Area

Others from the Berkshire area are: Old Chatham, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. John S. Williams; Salisbury, Conn., William W. Gibson, Miss Edith Scoville, Mrs. Donald J. Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whitridge; Sharon, Conn., Mrs. Harold Hatch and Mrs. Edwin C. Jameson; Norfolk, Conn., Henry S. Redmond; and Millbrook, N.Y., Gordon Mendelssohn.

Among other boxholders are: Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawling, N.Y., Frederick W. Beinecke and Merrill H.Whitney of New York, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller of Boston and Little Boar's Head, N.H., and Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield of Marblehead.

Single Sale Now

for each concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19-25, 26; $4 and $5
Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16—$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box Seats, $6.50
Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600

NEW LEBANON, N. Y.

At Berkshire Festival

CHARLES MUNCH
Conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra

Berkshire Music Center Opens July 11th

In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with their Berkshire Festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the Orchestra has moved to its summer home at Tanglewood in Lenox, where it is being augmented by local and district officers.

The boxoffice at Tanglewood is now open and seats may be purchased for individual concerts of the Festival. Six concerts are given in the Theatre-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the Festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9; August 14-15-16. Tickets may be reserved by mail or at the boxoffice.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U.S. and Canada, and from foreign countries.

Single Sale NOW
for each concert of the
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26; $4 and $5.
Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50; Box seats, $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

TANGLEWOOD
Last Weeks of Series Sale
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. afts.—Series A—July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Series B—Aug. 7, 8, 9; Series C—Aug. 14, 15, 16.

Season tickets for each shed series of 3 concerts: $15, $11, $10, $7.50, $6.

Address Festival Offices,
Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

Schenectady Gazette
May 9 1953

Second must for your summer's pleasure is a visit to Tanglewood, home of the Boston Symphony's Berkshire Festival. Here again, getting your tickets in advance saves much frantic scurrying around later this July and August. While you're about it, do take out a membership as a Friend of Music. Your contribution entitles you to student concerts and special events and helps provide the funds to advance the musical training of top flight students.

This Clipping From
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUN 12 1953

Opera By Gretry To Be Presented At Tanglewood

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, Julp 11-August 16.

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Selaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on October 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New Yory in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music Center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 10 and 11.

Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery, which will employ the Paul Planer GKP projections, a slide mechanism which is used in the larger opera houses of Europe and which was introduced to the U. S. in the Tanglewood production last summer of the Mozart opera "Titus."

TANGLEWOOD
BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER
CHARLES MUNCH, Director
July 5—August 16

Courses for advanced students, music educators and amateurs. All students join the Festival Chorus in performance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Brahms' "Requiem," Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," and the Mahler "Resurrection Symphony."

For catalog, please address
T. Bossler, Registrar, Symphony Hall
Boston 15, Massachusetts

Munch Expected For Tanglewood Exercises Sunday

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, is expected by plane from France in time to greet students and guests at the opening exercises of the school's 11th annual session Sunday afternoon at 3.30 in the Tanglewood theatre.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, again will preside and Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which maintains the school, will speak briefly, as will Aaron Copland, assistant director.

According to the tradition established at the opening of the center in 1940, Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia," written for the occasion by Randall Thompson.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden, following the exercises.

BOSTON, MASS.
ADVERTISER
JUN 21 1953

Festival in Berkshires

LENOX—In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the orchestra has moved from its Symphony Hall, Boston, headquarters.

When you go with BINGLER to the

BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL

You Get a Complete Package

ALL TRANSPORTATION
ALL TAXES
HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS including 2 breakfasts

$27.65 Plus $1.35 Tax

TWO $2 TICKETS TO SAT. EVENING AND SUN. AFT. PERFORMANCES
Swimming, Tennis, other recreation free
OPTIONAL: JACOBS PILLOW, $3.55 add.
Leave every Fri. Eve., 6:30 P.M.
July 17 to Aug. 14—Return Sun. Eve.
Reserve Now! See your Travel Agent or

BINGLER VACATION TOURS
203 W. 41 St., N. Y. WI 7-5550

Single Sale NOW
for each concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12-18, 19-25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

Something really new has been added to Lenox, Mass., the MUSIC FESTIVAL TOWN

the Corner House

Guests • Restaurant • Art Gallery

EAGLE – 6/30

Faculty Arriving at Tanglewood

Faculty and staff members of the Berkshire Music Center are arriving at Tanglewood to prepare for the 11th annual six-week session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school, which will open Sunday afternoon at 4.

Boris Goldovsky of Brookline, head of the opera department, with Mrs. Goldovsky, daughter, Marina, and son, Michael, are occupying a cottage on Stockbridge Bowl. Also on the Bowl at Mahkeenac are Mr. and Mrs. Gail Rector and three children and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dunlap and family, all of Ann Arbor, Mich., where Mr. Dunlap is conductor of the University of Michigan orchestra and Mr. Rector, manager. Mr. Rector is in charge of guiding and other Tanglewood grounds relations and Mr. Dunlap is in the school office.

Also in Stockbridge are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ulanowsky and family of New York. Coach in the opera department, Mr. Ulanowsky was formerly Lotte Lehmann's accompanist. Ralph Pottle of Hammond, La., assistant in the bookshop, is living at the Tanglewood boathouse, of which he is in charge, with shore activities.

In Lenox, at Chef Karl's, will be Hugh Ross of New York, director of choral music and conducting. Also in Lenox, at Heathercroft, are Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Zirner, who conduct, at Lenox School, the opera associates. They recently returned from a trip to England, Scotland and their native Austria. At Hawthorne Hill will be Ingolf Dahl, of the University of Southern California, who directs the Tanglewood Study Group. He will again be assisted by Miss Florence M. Dunn of Williamstown, who will live on West Street. Stoddard Spader, Brooks (North Andover) School teacher, lieutenant of guides, is at the home of Miss Lillian Cooper of Tucker Street.

Leonard Bernstein, leader of orchestral conducting and the school orchestra, with Mrs. Bernstein and their daughter will arrive Wednesday in Hillsdale, N.Y., where they have a house for the summer.

William Kroll of New York, who with Richard Burgin will head the chamber music department, will commute from his summer home in Woodstock, N.Y., with his daughter, Barbara, viola player in the school orchestra.

EAGLE – 6/30

Boxholders Are Listed For Festival

24 Subscribers Are Residents of Berkshire County

Twenty-four of the 79 subscribers to boxes for one or more concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood are permanent or summer residents of Berkshire County.

Local boxholders are: Pittsfield, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Whittlesey, Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Blau, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Jalonack; Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane Jr.; Lenox, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn; Stockbridge, Miss Mabel Choate, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoving, Mrs. Walter Janney, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Karrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Procter, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood, McA. Donald Ryan; Housatonic, Robert Anderson and Dr. Walter VanHorst.

Also, Great Barrington, Mr. and Mrs. William Felton Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Blodgett, Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood R. Burdsall, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Wheeler, Richard L. Strobridge and Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Straus 2d; Otis, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sokolsky; and Williamstown, Dr. and Mrs. James Phinney Baxter 3d.

Others From Area

Others from the Berkshire area are: Old Chatham, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. John S. Williams; Salisbury, Conn., William W. Gibson, Miss Edith Scoville, Mrs. Donald J. Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whitridge; Sharon, Conn., Mrs. Harold Hatch and Mrs. Edwin C. Jameson; Norfolk, Conn., Henry S. Redmond; and Millbrook, N.Y., Gordon Mendelssohn.

Among other boxholders are: Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawling, N.Y., Frederick W. Beinecke and Merrill H. Whitney of New York, Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller of Boston and Little Boar's Head, N.H., and Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield of Marblehead.

Single Sale Now
for each concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19-25, 26; $4 and $5

Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16—$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box Seats, $6.50

Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, [illegible] Phone Lenox 600

THE ECHO
NEW LEBANON, N. Y.

At Berkshire Festival

CHARLES MUNCH
Conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra

Berkshire Music Center Opens July 11th

In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with their Berkshire Festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the Orchestra has moved to its summer home at Tanglewood in Lenox, where it is being augmented by local and district officers.

The boxoffice at Tanglewood is now open and seats may be purchased for individual concerts of the Festival. Six concerts are given in the Theatre-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the Festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9; August 14-15-16. Tickets may be reserved by mail or at the boxoffice.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U.S. and Canada, and from foreign countries.

Munch Expected For Tanglewood Exercises Sunday

Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, is expected by plane from France in time to greet students and guests at the opening exercises of the school's 11th annual session Sunday afternoon at 3.30 in the Tanglewood theatre.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, again will preside and Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which maintains the school, will speak briefly, as will Aaron Copland, assistant director.

According to the tradition established at the opening of the center in 1940, Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia," written for the occasion by Randall Thompson.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden, following the exercises.

Single Sale NOW
for each concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26; $4 and $5.
Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50; Box seats, $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

TANGLEWOOD

Last Weeks of Series Sale

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the

BOSTON SYMPHONY Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. afts.—Series A—July 31, Aug. 1, 2; Series B—Aug. 7, 8, 9; Series C—Aug. 14, 15, 16.

Season tickets for each shed series of 3 concerts: $15, $11, $10, $7.50, $6.

Address Festival Offices, Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass.

Schenectady Gazette
May 9, 1953

Berk. County Post
June

Second must for your summer's pleasure is a visit to Tanglewood, home of the Boston Symphony's Berkshire Festival. Here again, getting your tickets in advance saves much frantic scurrying around later this July and August. While you're about it, do take out a membership as a Friend of Music. Your contribution entitles you to student concerts and special events and helps provide the funds to advance the musical training of top flight students.

TANGLEWOOD

BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER
CHARLES MUNCH, Director
July 5—August 16

Courses for advanced students, music educators and amateurs. All students join the Festival Chorus in performance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra: Brahms' "Requiem," Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet," and the Mahler "Resurrection Symphony."

For catalog, please address
T. Bossler, Registrar, Symphony Hall
Boston 15, Massachusetts

This Clipping From
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUN 12 1953

Opera By Gretry To Be Presented At Tanglewood

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, Julp 11-August 16.

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Selaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on October 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New Yory in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music Center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 10 and 11.

Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery, which will employ the Paul Planer GKP projections, a slide mechanism which is used in the larger opera houses of Europe and which was introduced to the U. S. in the Tanglewood production last summer of the Mozart opera "Titus."

BOSTON, MASS.
ADVERTISER
JUN 21 1953

Festival in Berkshires

LENOX—In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the orchestra has moved from its Symphony Hall, Boston, headquarters.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUN 7 - 1953

EXPERIMENT IN OPERA

Tanglewood Commissions Will Add Practical Aid

By HOWARD TAUBMAN

TANGLEWOOD will embark on a fresh experiment this summer. It will attempt to set up a helpful environment for the creation of new operas by American composers, and if it has any kind of luck with this venture, it will be showing a fruitful way to other institutions in the United States.

The plan is simple and practical. Two or three young composers will be commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center within the next few weeks to write one-act operas. The Koussevitzky Music Foundation has supplied $1,500 to make possible grants of $750 each to at least two composers, and if a third composer is found with potentialities for writing an opera, another $750 will be raised somehow.

The difference in this approach from other commissioning schemes is that the composers, once they have received their grants, will not be left to their own devices. They will be expected to spend the summer at Tanglewood, where they will be the guests of the Berkshire Music Center, and they will have the advice and guidance of the people connected with Tanglewood's opera department.

A committee of established composers consisting of Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein has been asked to recommend a number of candidates for these commissions. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, will make the final choices from these recommendations, and he hopes to choose the applicants who seem to him to hold out the most promise of writing stageworthy operas.

Start This Summer

During the 1953 Tanglewood sessions the composers who win the commissions will be expected to have certain fragments of their projected operas completed. Then the real work of aiding the composer will begin. All the members of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at his disposal, and he will have a chance to get a practical view of all manner of theatre problems. He will consult with technicians on costumes, scenery, make-up and lighting. He will be helped to analyze musical construction as it affects writing for theatre.

By the end of the summer the composer should be clear in his own mind as to what shape his opera will take. The framework of the piece will be established, and he will know what his story line will be, what orchestral means he will employ and what scenic and technical advantages and disadvantages he must cope with. Then he will have almost a full year in which to complete his opera. And if all goes well, there will be premières of the finished pieces at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954.

On paper this looks like a sound approach. Mr. Goldovsky has reason to believe that it will work. Last summer there was a case in point, although the composer in question happened to be a man of considerable theatre experience.

Leonard Bernstein, you will remember, wrote his one-act "Trouble in Tahiti" for a première at the first festival of the arts held at Brandeis University last June. Some weeks later it was done at Tanglewood, and for this production Mr. Bernstein made revisions. Some of these changes were made after conferences with Tanglewood's opera staff, and the composer agreed that suggestions from men and women experienced in putting on opera were helpful.

Change of Mind

This experience caused Mr. Goldovsky to alter his own conviction that commissioning operas by American composers for Tanglewood might turn out to be more of an embarrassment than an asset. It had been his belief that composers new to writing for the theatre might not produce works suitable to the performing talents available for Tanglewood, that they might present technical problems beyond the reach of the center's facilities, that the operas might have serious theatrical deficiencies.

A lot of operas are being written in the United States. American composers are eager to tackle the theatre. It is not their fault, of course, that we do not have in this country dozens of professional opera houses eager to produce exciting new works as do Italy and Central Europe. They have no way of getting a practical grounding in the problems of the theatre, and without this know-how they are bound to make grave errors.

The Tanglewood plan will be worth watching. Not that the Tanglewood authorities look for the production of masterworks under the new plan. But they will feel that it has justified itself if the outcome is one or two one-act operas that are workmanlike and effective theatre pieces.

If this much is accomplished, they will feel that the scheme should be embodied in the regular activities of the center. In that case there will be a set of fresh commissions every other year.

It could be that institutions like the Metropolitan and San Francisco Operas would be moved to adopt similar plans, if the Tanglewood idea proves successful. The problems of writing for a large opera house with an exigent subscription audience and an exacting repertoire are much more difficult, and the task of composing a work to fill out an entire evening's entertainment adds to the hazards.

But if we are to have an operatic school of our own, the composers must learn their craft in the opera house. Richard Wagner and Richard Strauss conducted in opera houses before they wrote their enduring works. Italian masters like Giuseppe Verdi and Giacomo Puccini had the theatre in their background and in their blood, and yet they learned only by trial and error, and they were helped, particularly at the outset, by impresaries, theatre staffs and publishers.

Impressive Record

The remarkable thing is that quite a few impressive operas have been written in this country. Consider the works of Gershwin, Menotti, Blitzstein, Bernstein and Thomson, to name but a handful of our composers, and you have a record of which we need not be ashamed. But nearly all of their operas have been produced in the first instance by organizations other than our leading opera companies.

Unfortunately, there has been no continuous program for the comfort and instruction of composers with an aptitude for the theatre. Tanglewood's plan will be useful as far as it goes. But this center operates only six weeks a year during the summer, and while it will do its share, the lead must be taken ultimately by organizations with completer plants and a wider range of experienced advisers.

It is not enough to say to composers in general; "Write a good opera and we will produce it." It may be assumed that we have the composers and that they are eager to try their hands at operas. But they cannot be expected to devote all the energy and time required for a full-length opera purely on speculation. Some creditable operas have emerged in this way. The risks can never be exiled from creative effort, but if they can be diminished, it is certainly worth trying.

N.Y. Times 5/15

MUSEMENTS

BERKSHIRE OPENS CENTER ON JULY 5

11th Session in Tanglewood Will Feature Enlargement of Chamber Music Unit

The eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center will open at Tanglewood, Mass., on July 5. Charles Munch, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is director of the school, Aaron Copland is assistant director and Ralph Berkowitz is dean.

Carlos Chavez will join Mr. Copland as teacher of composition, with Irving Fine as assistant. The chamber music department will be enlarged under the leadership of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, with Will Kroll as associate and Gregor Piatigorsky as guest instructor. Ruth Posselt, violinist, will give courses in violin and piano sonata literature, and Mr. Kroll plans a special course on the last four quartets of Beethoven.

Two features initiated last season will be continued—the awarding of tuition grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund to all students in the active pre-professional division and the activity of the Tanglewood Study Group, a department of general music study for music educators and amateurs conducted by Ingolf Dahl.

Leonard Bernstein, who with Pierre Monteux will be a guest conductor of Berkshire Festival concerts, will head the conducting and orchestral departments of the Berkshire Music Center, assisted by Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss.

Hugh Ross will be head of choral music, assisted by James Alifers and Lorna DeVaron. Boris Goldovsky will direct the opera department, assisted by Sarah Caldwell, Paul Ulanowsky, Felix Wolfes, Leo VanWitsen and Ludwig and Laura Zirner.

Cir. (D 93,339) (S 126,831)

This Clipping From
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
TRIBUNE

MAY 24 1953

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of Boston Symphony, talks to Anna J. Hoyt and Ted Wight, auditioned for "Tanglewood."

Young Musicians Heard at Y., Collegium Musicum Dated

A number of outstanding young Utah musicians were auditioned by the Boston Symphony Orchestra when it appeared in Provo May 12. The auditions were for students applying for admission and scholarships at the orchestra's famed summer school of music at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., beginning July 6.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the orchestra, conducted the auditions held in the Joseph Smith Building Auditorium. Dr. John R. Halliday and Prof. Lawrence Sardoni of the Brigham Young University music department assisted.

Those accepted from auditions conducted all over the United States will be announced later.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE

JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Offers Boston Symphony

Six weekends of summer concerts at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will begin on July 11. All will be given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch will conduct all but three of the fifteen concerts. Pierre Monteaux will conduct on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2 and Leonard Bernstein on Saturday evening, Aug. 8, and Saturday evening, Aug. 15. Distinguished soloists will appear on most of the concerts.

The Berkshire Music Center offers a six-week summer session, for music study at Tanglewood in connection with the Berkshire Festival Concerts. Facilities include a study group, school orchestra, chorus, and departments for composing, conducting, opera and chamber music.

[143]

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUN 27 1953

Tanglewood Sets Opera Experiment

The Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has completed plans to experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan has been evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head o Tanglewood's opera department, and will be put into effect at the start of Berkshire Music Center's summer session July 5.

Commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1,500 towards the project.

The completed works will be performed by student casts at the Berkshire Festival concerts in the summer of 1954.

Remaining tickets for this year's Tanglewood concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra are now on sale at the Tanglewood box office.

The festival will open July 11 when the first of a weekend pair of Bach concerts will be presented in the Theater-Concert Hall, with Charles Munch, music director, conducting.

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

JUN 21 1953

Guest Composer

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Leader of the Mexican Symphony Orchestra and also Mexican minister of fine arts, Mr. Chavez will be guest composer in the composition class at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, during the 1953 Berkshire Festival.

This Clipping From
WATERBURY, CONN.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 21 1953

Tanglewood Concerts To Open July 11

Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra have moved from from Symphony Hall, Boston to Lenox, Mass., in preparation for the opening of the Berkshire Music Center on July 5. The orchestra runs a six - week summer school of music at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Tanglewood summer concerts begin on Saturday, July 11.

Alan Smith, treasurer, and Josephine Testa, Pittsfield, his assistant, have opened the box office at Tanglewood where seats may be obtained for individual concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Six concerts will be given in the Theater - Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11 - 12, 18 - 19, 25-26. Nine programs will be held in the Festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31 - Aug. 1 - 2: Aug. 7 - 8 - 9, Aug. 14-15-16. Tickets may be reserved by mail to the box office, or by telephone to Lenox 600.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing with details completed so far of the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U. S. and Canada, and from foreign countries. These details are in the hands of Thomas D. Perry, Jr., executive secretary; Edith Bossler, registrar; Jean Fraser, secretary, and Leonard Burkat, librarian, all of Boston. They are joined this year by Heidi Bakker of Great Barrington. The school's dean, Ralph Berkowitz of Philadelphia, will arrive next week to be assisted by Miss Patsy Hayes, of Philadelphia.

New Department

Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group, the new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, national chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Festival, will arrive today at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks. He will set in motion the program of approximately 40 performances this summer which Friends may attend by invitation. These will include the first three week ends of Festival chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, three chamber music concerts donated by Mrs. Elizabeth Spreague Coolidge, student opera productions scheduled on August 3, 10 and [illegible] recitals by visiting concert artists, and a number of student concerts. Contributions payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc. made to the Friends' Office at Tanglewood are deductible under Federal Income Tax laws, and entitle donors to attend these performances. In charge of the Friends' office now are Spencer Kennard, and Roger Hinman, both of the Lenox School, assisted by Mrs. William Moore, Lenox.

Expected from the Boston Symphony Orchestra's headquarters in Symphony Hall next week are George E. Judd, orchestra manager; John N. Burk, press representative; Mrs. [illegible] MacDougall and Miss [illegible] secretaries.

- COVER ONLY -
CONTENTS AVAILABLE
ELSEWHERE IN ARCHIVES

Next Stop:
TANGLEWOOD,
U. S. A.

THE TANGLEWOOD TIMES

Vol. 8 (Copyright 1953 by The Tanglewood Times) No. 1
SUMMER, 1953

15¢ IN WESTERN MASS.

Israeli Shoe Shine Man Talks Like Music Critic By Violinist Zino Francescatti .... Page 9
Musical Bells in England By Leslie E. Wells .... Page 10
Irish "Dispatch" .... Page 5
I Like The Yankees says Violinist Isaac Stern .... Page 2
Tanglewood Program .... Page 7
Oasis In The Desert By Esther Ostroff .... Page 10
5 Young Great Pianists .... Page 3
Battle In Rome .... Page 8
Versatility Is The Thing By Zoya Leporska .... Page 9

Music - Theatre - Dance - Films - Recreation

PROGRAMS:
JACOB'S PILLOW
BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE
FESTIVAL THEATRE
PAGE 11

Henry, stop at Tanglewood or I'll break your neck.

TRUTH IS A NOBLE VIRTUE - - - By OLLI

(Olli, whose real name is Vaino Nuorteva, is a columnist for the Helsinki newspaper Uusi Suomi.)

I.

"Fellow citizens," said the philosopher Anticrates, "truth is a noble virtue. Let us seek the truth, let us choose the path of truth; and we shall become noble and virtuous citizens. That is the truth about truth."

This happened in ancient Greece. But Anticrate's fellow citizens gave not a fig for the philosopher's fantasies about truth that ennobles people. For party politics was all the rage in Athens at that time.

To become noble did not require truth, nor did it require any other such philosophic nonsense. People belonging to one's own party were noble without any further ado. And even the rascals in the opposition party could become noble and virtuous people in the twinkling of an eye merely by changing their party.

Many were even of the opinion that Anticrate's preoccupation with the truth might do harm to the conduct of politics as usual. So, miraculously enough, everyone was unanimous for once in supporting the politicians' decision to banish Anticrates from the land for five years and two months.

II.

After five years and two months Anticrates returned.

He looked around to see if there might perhaps be some construction work going on. He intended to ask for work as a hodcarrier. After all, it was useless to continue with the profession of philosopher, since all he had to offer was such a poorly-received product as the truth.

continued on last page

Wood Bros. Pittsfield's Oldest Music Store - 421 North St.
Instruments — Sheet Music — R. C. A., Decca, Columbia and Capitol Records
Boston Symphony Orchestra Recordings, Munch Conducting

CHEF KARL'S Corner Church and Walker Streets - Lenox Featuring Elegant Breakfasts - Luncheons - Dinners
KARL GROSSER, Prop.

Boston Sym quarters in t week are chestra man-press repren MacDougall
s, secretaries.

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 8 - 1953

0 Attend
lco Tea
Lenox

SO Musicians ear Phonorama t Curtis Hotel

OX—The world premiere of ilco Corporation's new Phoa, a radio-phonograph comn embodying high fidelity uction with full dimension drew an enthusiastic crowd ut 250 to a tea in the music of the Curtis Hotel yesterday oon.

ie J. Woods, vice-president in of research for Philco, who d the development of the nstrument over a five-year , was introduced to the Berk-County guests by Jay C. Ro-d of Pittsfield, music critic of agle.

res "Acoustic Lens"

re the demonstration started, Voods explained features of honorama, emphasizing that nusual design of the tone er is keyed to an "acoustic that literally floods a room ound rather than channelling narrow path in front of the t. It is through the "acousis" that a panoramic sweep of is brought into the rooms, Voods explained. The cabinet as a visual tone blender that the range of sound level gh the use of bass and treble on an illuminated scale.

new record changer on the rama has a "distortion free" system that picks up the full of high fidelity recordings, feeds them into the sound n, exactly as they are pro- on the record, Mr. Woods

Records Played

g playing records of per-inces by the Boston Symphony stra with Charles Munch cting were played for the al director of the BSO when tered the music room for the nstration. Recordings by the with the late Dr. Serge Kous-ky conducting also were d during the afternoon for ate conductor's wife, Mrs. Olga sevitzky, who attended with iece, Mrs. Joseph de Pasquale, of the first violist with the n Symphony.

ers from the Berkshire Music r and Tanglewood who turned or the tea and demonstration Zino Francescatti, who will r in the first Music Shed con-with the BSO July 31 as soloist endelssohn's violin concerto in inor; Hugh Ross, choral con-r at the Berkshire Music Center; Lucas Foss, concert pianist, who will be the soloist in his own composition, the piano concerto No. 2 on Aug. 1; Seymour Lipkin, concert pianist, who will be soloist in Ravel's piano concerto for the left hand at the concluding Festival concert Aug. 16; Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the BSO and his wife, Ruth Posselt, concert violinist; Roger Voisin, first trumpet with the BSO.

Resnikoff Present

Also Vladimir Resnikoff, violinist and Mrs. Resnikoff; Alfred Kripps, assistant concertmaster of the BSO; Mrs. Bruce Crane of Dalton, president of the Pittsfield Community Music School; Miss Marthe Poncy, piano teacher at the Community Music School; Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn of Minneapolis and Lenox; Leonard Berkat, librarian at the Berkshire Music Center and secretary to Mr. Munch; Thomas D. Perry, assistant manager of the BSO and executive secretary of the Berkshire Music Center and Mrs. Perry; Miss Irene Poirier, librarian at the Lenox Library; Mrs. Cornelia Colton Hollister and her sister, Miss Olive Colton of Toledo.

[144]

THE HOLLYWOOD RESTAURANT
69 New West Street
Telephone 2-7989
Pittsfield

VISIT THE MERRY-GO-ROUND BAR

All Legal Beverages

NG and ENTERTAINMENT

OTO
OP
Red Horse
Con s Motor Sales
Prop.
T 326
Route 20
Mechanics on Cars

LEE SUPER MARKET
Fine Foods
Main Street — Lee
Tyler St. — Pittsfield

ORS — 5
FRANK'S BEAUTY SALON
Custom Permanent Waving
TEL. 581
LENOX

Chester H. Morton
JEWELER
WATCHES
WARE
26 Dunham St. — Pittsfield
317 Main St. -- Gt. Barrington

Rossi's Restaurant
Main Street — Lee
●
DINNERS

"Rogue's March" Fast-Paced Film

Action and suspense keynote "Rogue's March."

Starring in the new drama are Peter Lawford, Richard Green and Janice Rule, with Leo G. Carroll and John Abbott heading a large supporting cast.

Lawford plays the role of a captain cashiered out of the British Army after having been unjustly convicted of treason. The manner in which he vindicates his honor in a battle between his regiment, which he has rejoined surreptitiously, and a band of Afghan raiders makes for a rapid-paced adventure yarn.

The picture marks the second appearance on the M-G-M lot of Janice Rule, talented newcomer recently seen opposite Gig Young in "Holiday for Sinners."

"Rogue's March" was filmed in the tradition of "Kim," with its story shifting from the England of Victoria's day to the borders of India. It was written and produced by Leon Gordon, producer of "Kim," and was directed by Allan Davis.

Jack's Delicatessen
Featuring HOT PASTRAMI
Wide Variety of COMBINATION SANDWICHES

104 Columbus Ave.
A Few Feet From North St.
PITTSFIELD

C. L. HALVORSON, Tree Service
NING — SPRAYING — FEEDING
FLY and MOSQUITO CONTROL
Pittsfield, Mass.
Telephone 2-6000

THE HOME OF CULINARY FINESSE
THE RAINBOW RESTAURANT
PIZZA NIGHTLY AFTER 7 P. M.
ITALIAN and AMERICAN FOOD
109 First St. Pittsfield, Mass. Tel. 9415

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival

(8 miles east of Lee)

All matinees begin promptly at 4

All eve. performances, promtly at 9

July 3, 4, mat. & eve.: Melissa Hayden, ballerina, Ballet Theatre, and Jacob Sanders (Classical). Lester Horton Calif. group in PRADO de Pena. La Meri (Far East dances).

July 10, 11, mat. & eve.: NYC Choreographers Workshop program, Scaramouche, Umpadeedle, new ballets by Joffrey; Winter Age by Englund, The Afflicted Children by Marian Scott, 2 new works; Armenian Folk Suite by Karoun Tootikian and her Armenian Ballet. Music: Alan Hovhaness.

July 16, mat; July 17, 18, mat. & eve.: Glen Tetley & Ensemble, AMahl and The Night Visitor and other works by John Butler. GAMES (world premiere) by Donald McKayle, Ensemble. Iva Kitchell, famed dance satirist.

July 23, mat.; July 24, 25, mat & eve.: Alicia Markova, eminent danseuse noble; Myra Kinch (Modern); La Meri & Di Falco (Spanish, Oriental).

July 28, 29, eve.; July 30, mat.; July 31; Aug. 1st mat. & eve.: All Modern: Jose Limon & Co. The Moor's Pavane, Night Spell, La Malinche, Visitation, Fantasy & Fugue (Mozart), Preludes & Fugue (Bach).

Aug. 4, 5, eve.; Aug. 6, mat.; Aug. 7, 8, mat. & eve.: First Appearance in U.S., The National Ballet of Canada includes Lilac Garden, Afternoon of a Faun, Coppelia.

Aug. 11, 12, eve.; Aug. 13, mat.; Aug. 14, 15, mat. & eve.: All Ethnic: El Amor Brujo . . . La Meri, Carola Goya, Ted Shawn, Di Falco, and ensemble. Premiere, Drishyakava and The Seasons by La Meri. Jean Leon Destine & Co. in Festival In Haiti.

Aug. 21, 22, mat. & eve.: Ted Shawn, world premiere, The Shropshire Lad, choreography, Gilbert Reed, music, John Hawkins. Shivaram, Hindu Temple Dancer (only appearance in U.S.)

Aug. 28, 29, mat. & eve.: Yvonne Choteau, Gilbert Reed (Classic); Myra Kinch in 2 Modern world premieres; Sahomi Tachibana. Japanese dances.

Sept. 4, 5, mat. & eve.: Ballet Quartet, Tatiana Grantzeva, Polaqenko, Zoya Leporska, Peter Nelson; Ruth St. Denis (in person); La Meri's Bosquejos IBERICOS (Premiere).

Berkshire Playhouse

Stockbridge

PROGRAM

Plays Run One Week

July 6 — Leo G. Carroll in "You Never Can Tell," by George Bernard Shaw.

July 13 — "The Velvet Glove."

July 20 — Katherine Alexander and Barbara Brady in "The Marquise."

July 27 — Francesca Bruning in "Jane."

Aug. 3—"The Three-Toed Pony," a new comedy by Sidney Michaels with Romney Brent.

Aug. 10 — "Affairs of State," with Gaye Jordan, William Roerick.

Aug. 17 — "Gigi," with Deirdre Owens, Viola Roache, Doris Patson.

Aug. 24 — "Buntv Pulls the Strings," by Graham Moffatt, with Gaye Jordan, John W. Austin, Deirdre Owens.

Aug. 31 — "Mr. Roberts," with Thomas Coley, Rusty Lane.

S. S. PIERCE Distribution
ALL WINES and LIQUORS
Send for Pamphlet
Lenox Package Store
Church St. Lenox, Mass.

Festival Theatre, Lenox

PROGRAM

Week of July 1—Street Scene
" " " 7—Lysistrata
" " " 14—House of Bernarda Alba
" " " 21—Madwoman of Chaillot
" " " 27—Down in the Valley
(Private life of master race)
Week of Aug. 3—Crime and Punishment
" " " 10—Lysistrata
" " " 17—House of Bernarda Alba
" " " 25—Street Scene
Week of Sept. 1—Madwomen of Chaillot

Art's Cleaners
COVERING ALL
SOUTHERN BERKSHIRE
2 Delivery Trucks
2 Housatonic St. Tel. 47
Lenox, Mass.
COLLECT CALLS ACCEPTED

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 8 - 1953

250 Attend Philco Tea In Lenox

BSO Musicians Hear Phonorama At Curtis Hotel

LENOX—The world premiere of the Philco Corporation's new Phonorama, a radio-phonograph combination embodying high fidelity reproduction with full dimension sound, drew an enthusiastic crowd of about 250 to a tea in the music room of the Curtis Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Leslie J. Woods, vice-president in charge of research for Philco, who directed the development of the new instrument over a five-year period, was introduced to the Berkshire County guests by Jay C. Rosenfeld of Pittsfield, music critic of The Eagle.

Features "Acoustic Lens"

Before the demonstration started, Mr. Woods explained features of the Phonorama, emphasizing that the unusual design of the tone chamber is keyed to an "acoustic lens" that literally floods a room with sound rather than channelling it to a narrow path in front of the cabinet. It is through the "acoustic lens" that a panoramic sweep of sound is brought into the rooms, Mr. Woods explained. The cabinet also has a visual tone blender that shows the range of sound level through the use of bass and treble notes on an illuminated scale.

The new record changer on the Phonorama has a "distortion free" arm system that picks up the full range of high fidelity recordings, and feeds them into the sound system, exactly as they are produced on the record, Mr. Woods said.

BSO Records Played

Long playing records of performances by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Charles Munch conducting were played for the musical director of the BSO when he entered the music room for the demonstration. Recordings by the BSO with the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky conducting also were played during the afternoon for the late conductor's wife, Mrs. Olga Koussevitzky, who attended with her niece, Mrs. Joseph de Pasquale, wife of the first violist with the Boston Symphony.

Others from the Berkshire Music Center and Tanglewood who turned out for the tea and demonstration were Zino Francescatti, who will appear in the first Music Shed concert with the BSO July 31 as soloist in Mendelssohn's violin concerto in E minor; Hugh Ross, choral conductor at the Berkshire Music Center; Lucas Foss, concert pianist, who will be the soloist in his own composition, the piano concerto No. 2 on Aug. 1; Seymour Lipkin, concert pianist, who will be soloist in Ravel's piano concerto for the left hand at the concluding Festival concert Aug. 16; Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the BSO and his wife, Ruth Posselt, concert violinist; Roger Voisin, first trumpet with the BSO.

Resnikoff Present

Also Vladimir Resnikoff, violinist and Mrs. Resnikoff; Alfred Kripps, assistant concertmaster of the BSO; Mrs. Bruce Crane of Dalton, president of the Pittsfield Community Music School; Miss Marthe Poncy, piano teacher at the Community Music School; Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn of Minneapolis and Lenox; Leonard Berkat, librarian at the Berkshire Music Center and secretary to Mr. Munch; Thomas D. Perry, assistant manager of the BSO and executive secretary of the Berkshire Music Center and Mrs. Perry; Miss Irene Poirier, librarian at the Lenox Library; Mrs. Cornelia Colton Hollister and her sister, Miss Olive Colton of Toledo.

THE HOLLYWOOD RESTAURANT
69 New West Street Telephone 2-7989
Pittsfield
VISIT THE MERRY-GO-ROUND BAR
All Legal Beverages
DANCING and ENTERTAINMENT

[illegible] DESOTO
STOP
At Sign of Flying Red Horse
Con's Motor Sales
[illegible], Prop.
Tel. 326 Lee Route 20
[illegible] Mechanics [illegible] Service on [illegible] Cars

LEE SUPER MARKET
The Home of Fine Foods
Main Street — Lee
Tyler Street — Pittsfield

5 OPERATORS — 5
FRANK'S BEAUTY SALON
Custom Permanent Waving
TEL. 581
CHURCH STREET - LENOX

Chester H. Morton
JEWELER
DIAMONDS, WATCHES SILVERWARE
26 Dunham St. — Pittsfield
317 Main St. — Gt. Barrington

Rossi's Restaurant
Main Street — Lee
●
COMPLETE DINNERS

"Rogue's March" Fast-Paced Film

Action and suspense keynote "Rogue's March."

Starring in the new drama are Peter Lawford, Richard Green and Janice Rule, with Leo G. Carroll and John Abbott heading a large supporting cast.

Lawford plays the role of a captain cashiered out of the British Army after having been unjustly convicted of treason. The manner in which he vindicates his honor in a battle between his regiment, which he has rejoined surreptitiously, and a band of Afghan raiders makes for a rapid-paced adventure yarn.

The picture marks the second appearance on the M-G-M lot of Janice Rule, talented newcomer recently seen opposite Gig Young in "Holiday for Sinners."

"Rogue's March" was filmed in the tradition of "Kim," with its story shifting from the England of Victoria's day to the borders of India. It was written and produced by Leon Gordon, producer of "Kim," and was directed by Allan Davis.

Jack's Delicatessen
Featuring HOT PASTRAMI
Wide Variety of COMBINATION SANDWICHES
104 Columbus Ave.
A Few Feet From North St.
PITTSFIELD

C. L. HALVORSON, Tree Service
PRUNING — SPRAYING — FEEDING
FLY and MOSQUITO CONTROL
Pittsfield, Mass. Telephone 2-6000

THE HOME OF CULINARY FINESSE
THE RAINBOW RESTAURANT
PIZZA NIGHTLY AFTER 7 P.M.
ITALIAN and AMERICAN FOOD
109 First St. Pittsfield, Mass. Tel. 9415

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival

(8 miles east of Lee)

All matinees begin promptly at 4
All eve. performances, promtly at 9

July 3, 4, mat. & eve.: Melissa Hayden, ballerina, Ballet Theatre, and Jacob Sanders (Classical). Lester Horton Calif. group in PRADO de Pena. La Meri (Far East dances).

July 10, 11, mat. & eve.: NYC Choreographers Workshop program, Scaramouche, Umpadeedle, new ballets by Joffrey; Winter Age by Englund, The Afflicted Children by Marian Scott, 2 new works; Armenian Folk Suite by Karoun Tootikian and her Armenian Ballet. Music: Alan Hovhaness.

July 16, mat; July 17, 18, mat. & eve.: Glen Tetley & Ensemble, AMahl and The Night Visitor and other works by John Butler. GAMES (world premiere) by Donald McKayle, Ensemble. Iva Kitchell, famed dance satirist.

July 23, mat.; July 24, 25, mat & eve.: Alicia Markova, eminent danseuse noble; Myra Kinch (Modern); La Meri & Di Falco (Spanish, Oriental).

July 28, 29, eve.; July 30, mat.; July 31; Aug. 1st mat. & eve.: All Modern: Jose Limon & Co. The Moor's Pavane, Night Spell, La Malinche, Visitation, Fantasy & Fugue (Mozart), Preludes & Fugue (Bach).

Aug. 4, 5, eve.; Aug. 6, mat.; Aug. 7, 8, mat. & eve.: First Appearance in U.S., The National Ballet of Canada includes Lilac Garden, Afternoon of a Faun, Coppelia.

Aug. 11, 12, eve.; Aug. 13, mat.; Aug. 14, 15, mat. & eve.: All Ethnic: El Amor Brujo . . . La Meri, Carola Goya, Ted Shawn, Di Falco, and ensemble. Premiere, Drishyakava and The Seasons by La Meri. Jean Leon Destine & Co. in Festival In Haiti.

Aug. 21, 22, mat. & eve.: Ted Shawn, world premiere, The Shropshire Lad, choreography, Gilbert Reed, music, John Hawkins. Shivaram, Hindu Temple Dancer (only appearance in U.S.)

Aug. 28, 29, mat. & eve.: Yvonne Choteau, Gilbert Reed (Classic); Myra Kinch in 2 Modern world premieres; Sahomi Tachibana. Japanese dances.

Sept. 4, 5, mat. & eve.: Ballet Quartet, Tatiana Grantzeva, Polaqenko, Zoya Leporska, Peter Nelson; Ruth St. Denis (in person); La Meri's Bosquejos IBERICOS (Premiere).

Berkshire Playhouse

Stockbridge

PROGRAM

Plays Run One Week

July 6 — Leo G. Carroll in "You Never Can Tell," by George Bernard Shaw.

July 13 — "The Velvet Glove."

July 20 — Katherine Alexander and Barbara Brady in "The Marquise."

July 27 — Francesca Bruning in "Jane."

Aug. 3—"The Three-Toed Pony," a new comedy by Sidney Michaels with Romney Brent.

Aug. 10 — "Affairs of State," with Gaye Jordan, William Roerick.

Aug. 17 — "Gigi," with Deirdre Owens, Viola Roache, Doris Patson.

Aug. 24 — "Buntv Pulls the Strings," by Graham Moffatt, with Gaye Jordan, John W. Austin, Deirdre Owens.

Aug. 31 — "Mr. Roberts," with Thomas Coley, Rusty Lane.

S. S. PIERCE Distribution
ALL WINES and LIQUORS
Send for Pamphlet
Lenox Package Store
Church St. Lenox, Mass.

Festival Theatre, Lenox

PROGRAM

Week of July 1—Street Scene
" " " 7—Lysistrata
" " " 14—House of Bernarda Alba
" " " 21—Madwoman of Chaillot
" " " 27—Down in the Valley
(Private life of master race)
Week of Aug. 3—Crime and Punishment
" " " 10—Lysistrata
" " " 17—House of Bernarda Alba
" " " 25—Street Scene
Week of Sept. 1—Madwomen of Chaillot

Art's Cleaners
COVERING ALL
SOUTHERN BERKSHIRE
2 Delivery Trucks
2 Housatonic St. Tel. 47
Lenox, Mass.
COLLECT CALLS ACCEPTED

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 8 - 1953

250 Attend Philco Tea In Lenox

BSO Musicians Hear Phonorama At Curtis Hotel

LENOX—The world premiere of the Philco Corporation's new Phonorama, a radio-phonograph combination embodying high fidelity reproduction with full dimension sound, drew an enthusiastic crowd of about 250 to a tea in the music room of the Curtis Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Leslie J. Woods, vice-president in charge of research for Philco, who directed the development of the new instrument over a five-year period, was introduced to the Berkshire County guests by Jay C. Rosenfeld of Pittsfield, music critic of The Eagle.

Features "Acoustic Lens"

Before the demonstration started, Mr. Woods explained features of the Phonorama, emphasizing that the unusual design of the tone chamber is keyed to an "acoustic lens" that literally floods a room with sound rather than channelling it to a narrow path in front of the cabinet. It is through the "acoustic lens" that a panoramic sweep of sound is brought into the rooms, Mr. Woods explained. The cabinet also has a visual tone blender that shows the range of sound level through the use of bass and treble notes on an illuminated scale.

The new record changer on the Phonorama has a "distortion free" arm system that picks up the full range of high fidelity recordings, and feeds them into the sound system, exactly as they are produced on the record, Mr. Woods said.

BSO Records Played

Long playing records of performances by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Charles Munch conducting were played for the musical director of the BSO when he entered the music room for the demonstration. Recordings by the BSO with the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky conducting also were played during the afternoon for the late conductor's wife, Mrs. Olga Koussevitzky, who attended with her niece, Mrs. Joseph de Pasquale, wife of the first violist with the Boston Symphony.

Others from the Berkshire Music Center and Tanglewood who turned out for the tea and demonstration were Zino Francescatti, who will appear in the first Music Shed concert with the BSO July 31 as soloist in Mendelssohn's violin concerto in E minor; Hugh Ross, choral conductor at the Berkshire Music Center; Lucas Foss, concert pianist, who will be the soloist in his own composition, the piano concerto No. 2 on Aug. 1; Seymour Lipkin, concert pianist, who will be soloist in Ravel's piano concerto for the left hand at the concluding Festival concert Aug. 16; Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the BSO and his wife, Ruth Posselt, concert violinist; Roger Voisin, first trumpet with the BSO.

Resnikoff Present

Also Vladimir Resnikoff, violinist and Mrs. Resnikoff; Alfred Kripps, assistant concertmaster of the BSO; Mrs. Bruce Crane of Dalton, president of the Pittsfield Community Music School; Miss Marthe Poncy, piano teacher at the Community Music School; Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn of Minneapolis and Lenox; Leonard Berkat, librarian at the Berkshire Music Center and secretary to Mr. Munch; Thomas D. Perry, assistant manager of the BSO and executive secretary of the Berkshire Music Center and Mrs. Perry; Miss Irene Poirier, librarian at the Lenox Library; Mrs. Cornelia Colton Hollister and her sister, Miss Olive Colton of Toledo,

Eagle July 2

Stone, Wood Sculpture Exhibit At Tanglewood Main Gate

John Rood

Five pieces of stone sculpture are exhibited in the Tanglewood gardens and three in wood are in the reception room at the main gate. The sculptor is John Rood of Minneapolis.

Artist in residence at the University of Minnesota, the sculptor, who usually works in wood, has had more than 100 exhibitions in the United States, including 12 one-man shows in New York, since he turned his attention from writing and publishing to sculpture in 1936. He currently is associated with the New Gallery of New York, where the first examples in his new medium will be shown in the autumn, after the Tanglewood season.

Born in Athens, Ohio, 51 years ago, Mr. Rood turned in his teens from the study of painting to music and writing. After a year of European travel, he returned to enter the printing and publishing business. Between 1933 and 1936, while he was art and literary magazine, "Manuscript." For a time he was typography instructor at Ohio State University and co-manager of the Lawhead Press there.

An early interest in sculpture was brought to a head when he met a wood carver near Perigueux, France. Beginning in 1937, for six consecutive years he had a one-man show at the Passedoit Gallarey, New York, becoming one of the Associated American Artists, in whose galleries he exhibited in 1946 and 1950. He won a first prize in sculpture in the 1940 West Virginia state exhibition and several firsts in Columbus Art League shows.

Exhibited at Library

His was judged one of the 10 best sculpture exhibits in New York in 1943 at the Durand-Ruel Gallaries. His work is represented in many private collections and at Ohio University, tht Cranbrook Museum of Art, Massilon Museum, Addison Museum, Everhart Museum and in the Minneapolis Institute of Fine Arts, which gave him a retrospective show in 1945. Last summer an exhibition of 15 small sculptures at the Lenox Library made his work known in the Berkshires. His most recent works, before commencing the stone figures now at Tanglewood, were an entrance court for Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn., and a wrought iron and stained glass decorative sculpture for a modern home in Edina, Minn.

In the Tanglewood gardens are "Prometheus," modeled in cement and cast in stone; "Winged Figure," cast in bronze; "Seated Figure" and "Multiple Figure," of Alabama limestone; and "Homage to Igor Stravinsky," inspired by a 1952 Berkshire Festival performance of "Sacred de Printemps," whose music seemed to the artist to have angularities, sharpness of color and broken rhythms he has worked into what he calls a "sculptural exuberance," fashioned of wrought iron and stained glass, or "structachrome."

A small structa-chrome, "Colored Shapes in Space," is in the reception hall, with a wood carving of the artist's earlier period, "Choir Singer," and one of walnut entitled "Man Spilling Out of Himself," which is Mr. Rood's first finished figure based on the appearance of element-exposed driftwood

---

18—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Friday, July 3, 1953

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY Tel. 561-M

Resort Business in High Gear As Berkshire Festival Nears

LENOX—Following a relatively slack month of June in some areas of the resort and tourist business here, the 4th of July week end is expected to begin the busy season—to be maintained by the Berkshire Festival which begins next week.

Reports on June business have been mixed, with some types of vacation businesses thriving and others reporting a disappointing month. Most all, however, expect a busy July and August.

Among those reporting a prosperous June was George Turain, owner-manager of the Curtis Hotel. He said his house count was up 20 per cent for the month and that food and liquor business was up 30 per cent. Part of this increase was due to several conventions held there during June. Requests for reservations through the non-convention season are also well above normal, however.

Resorts reporting increases were Music Inn, Seven Hills and Festival House, but all explain the increase by the fact that their businesses were relatively new last year. Philip Barber of Music Inn says that reservations there were up 15 per cent during June. Business is expected to continue on a high level there with the Tanglewood concerts beginning next week end, followed by Music Inn's own jazz round table.

Motels Cutting In

Most of the reports of relatively slack business during June come from the small guest house operators. One claim is that the new series of motels on the Pittsfield road siphons off much of this transient business. Another claim is that poor weather during early June and a trend towards later season vacations are the cause.

Another problem mentioned by some of the operators is the fact that many people who used to reserve rooms for the entire week as they planned to come to Lenox by Thursday anyway, are now coming up for the week ends only because of the shift in concert nights at Tanglewood. The concert which used to be Thursday evenings has been switched to Friday evenings.

But with no concerts scheduled for this week end, there will still be well over a thousand vacationers in town, many of them to remain throughout the week. Eastover alone has 430 reservations for the week end, some of them farmed out at accommodations all the way up to Church Hill. Accommodations on the Eastover grounds have been booked solid well into August.

Also overflowing this week end and booked near capacity into August are several of the smaller resorts with accommodations for between 75 and 125 each.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUN 13 1953

Berkshire Music Center To Have Gretry Opera

"RICHARD Coeuer-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, will be the major production of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this Summer.

The Berkshire Music Center is the Summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra directed by Charles Munch July 11-Aug. 1 The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Sedaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris Oct. 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800.

Two performances staged by students of the Berkshire Music Center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 10 and 11.

* * *

LEO VAN WITSEN will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery, which will employ the Paul Planer GKP projections, a slide mechanism which is used in the larger opera houses of Europe and which was introduced to the U. S. in the Tanglewood production last Summer of the Mozart opera "Titus."

Mr. Goldovsky also announces an evening of three rarely-heard one-act operas, to be similarly performed on one bill Monday, Aug. 3.

Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed), will have the English translation of Giovanni Cardelli which G. Schirmer Inc. is publishing. Originally in two acts when it had its Vienna premiere in April, 1760, it has a libretto by L. Anseaume. So far as is known this will be its first American production.

Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son), which had its premiere in operatic form at Covent Garden, London, Feb. 28, 1910, with a libretto by E. Guinand, was the composer's Prix de Rome cantata, published in 1884. Boston had the first American production in 1910 in French.

"Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education), of Emmanuel Chabrier, hitherto heard in the U.S. only with piano accompaniment, will be sung in English, in the translation of Henry Reese. The Chabrier one-act opera, with a text by Eugene Leterrier and Albert Vanloo, was originally privately produced at the Cercle de la Presse, Paris, with piano accompaniment May 1, 1879; given first with orchestra in the French capital in 1913.

* * *

LIKE ALL student performances at Tanglewood, the two performances of "Richard Coeur-de-lion" and the evening of one-act operas planned for the last weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Summer school are not sold publicly, but are open by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose contributions help the school. Gifts to the Berkshire Music Center are deductible under the Federal Income Tax laws, and entitle the donor to membership in the Friends.

Contributions may be mailed to Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. and details of the opera, chamber music, student concerts and other programs and events open to members will be furnished on request.

---

old subscribers [illegible] either [illegible]

N.Y.T. July 3 '53

BOSTON HALL TAX FREE

Home of Symphony Exempted Retroactive to Last Year

BOSTON, [illegible] — The Boston Board of Assessors has voted to exempt Symphony Hall, home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from taxation [illegible] retroactive to 1952 [illegible]

Symphony Orchestra, Inc., will have $33,[illegible] refunded for 1952 and the $[illegible] due for 1953 will be waived by the city, according to Edmund J. Burke, chairman of the assessors. The hall was assessed for $500,000.

June 28 5

8 B

Das Berksh
beginnt am

Von FRED LOW

Das Berkshire Musikfest
mit den Konzerten im auf dem Gelände des Fes am 11. Juli seinen Anfang les Munch wird ebenso Vorjahr den Großteil der staltungen leiten und ha die Direktion des Berksh sic Center übernommen.

Die Programme im Thea

Bach, Mozart, Haydn u zeitgenössische Komponist in den Programmen im saal vertreten, die mit Au von zwei Werken von Munch dirigiert werden.
öffnungsabend am 11.
fünf "Brandenburgischen zerten" von Johann S
Bach gewidmet, die
Soli werden von den Mi
der Boston Syhmphonie, schon seit vielen Jahren orchester darstellt, gesp gleiche Komponist regie im Konzert Sonntag nach
12. Juli, das die Suite N
H-Moll und die Suite No und außerdem die Kanta mit Chor und Solisten gramm hat. Hugh Ross Kantate, Charles Munch
den anderen Werke. Das ende am 18. und 19. J ausschließlich Werke vo
vor. Divertimento in D konzert in G (Solist Isaa
Serenade für 13 Bläser Prager Symphonie in das Programm des Ouvertüre zu Figaro, Sy Concertante (Isaac Ste und Joseph de Pasqua sind die Solisten), "Ein Nachtmusik" und die
Symphonie werden Son getragen. Die beiden let zerte im Theatersaale Haydn Programm am und eine Veranstaltung
genössischen Kompon Sonntag. Lukas Foss seine "Parabel des To Vera Zorina (Rezitation Munch bringt das Di von Strauß (Couper Tombeau de Couperin"
die "Klassische Symph Prokofieff und Milh creation du monde" zu

Die Konzerte in der Freilufthalle

Freitag, 31. Juli, be großen Konzerte des gen Boston Symphoniein der Freilufthalle, di im Theater werden merorchester der Bo
stritten.

Charles Munch ha
Leitung der beiden
zerte am 31. Juli, und Zino Francescatti is Mendelssohns Violink kas Foss erscheint a seinem eigenen Werk vierkonzert No. 2, zu
langen zum Vortrag
Beethoven, Copland,
Schumann, Mendel
Hindemith. Sonntag
übernimmt Pierre M
Leitung des Boston
Orchesters in einem ky-Programm, das
Symphonie, die Se
Streicher und das K
B-Moll bringt. Jor
Solist im Klavierkon

New Bedford St. Times May 24

PAGE 23

Berkshire Festival Soloists Announced

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, May 23—Jennie Tourel, soprano; Jorge Bolet, pianist, and Vera Zorina have been added to the roster of soloists for the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, here this Summer. The six weekends of Summer concerts commence July 11, continue through Aug. 16 with its music director, Charles Munch, as conductor.

Miss Tourel will be soloist in Ravel's "Sheherazade," and in Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "Resurrection," which Leonard Bernstein conducts Aug. 8. Mr. Bolet will perform Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto" in the all-Tchaikovsky program which Pierre Monteux conducts Aug. 2 (afternoon). Miss Zorina will narrate in the first New England performance of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, on the afternoon of July 26.

HE NEW YORK TIMES

July 5

BERKSHIRE SEASON OPENS

Munch to Address Music Groups Today at Eleventh Meeting

An address this afternoon by Charles Munch will open the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass. As in previous seasons, the classes will last six weeks, and will be attended by advanced students and professionals.

Dr. Louis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty. There also will be an address by Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Eagle July 2

29 Events Listed for Friends At Music Center This Season

Twenty-nine musical events are to be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the 11th season that will start Sunday afternoon.

Subject to change, the schedule, today mailed to members, includes performances by students, faculty and chamber music groups sponsored by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge.

The school's symphony orchestra, led by student conductors and their teachers, under direction of Leonard Bernstein, will give concerts in the Shed Friday evenings from July 10 through 24, Thursday evenings July 30 and Aug. 6 and Saturday afternoon, Aug. 15.

The student chamber music department, directed by Richard Burgin and William Kroll, will give chamber concerts every Sunday morning at 10, beginning July 12 through the season, which will close Aug. 16.

Composers' Forums

Composers' forums, under Aaron Copland, will be held in the chamber music hall Sunday evenings July 12, 19 and 26 and Wednesday evenings Aug. 5 and 12.

The small choir, under Hugh Ross, choral music director, will give programs on the evenings of July 23 and Aug. 4 and E. Power Biggs, Boston Symphony Orchestra organist, will give recitals in the Music Shedd Saturday afternoons Aug. 1 and 8.

An evening of opera scenes will be performed Tuesday evening, July 21, under direction of Boris Goldovsky. Friends will have a choice of a performance of three one-act French operas Aug. 3 or Gretry's "Richard the Lion-Hearted," Aug. 10 or 11. Reservations for one of the last three performances must be made in advance through the Friends office at Tanglewood.

Mrs. Coolidge's chamber music programs will be given July 15, 22 and 29 in the theatre.

All evening events will start at 8.30 and afternoon performances at 3.

Tanglewood on Parade, the annual open house of the school, followed by a Boston Symphony Orchestra concert, for the benefit of the Berkshire Music Center, will be held Thursday, Aug. 13.

Contributions to the support of the school, which constitutes membership in the Friends Society, may be made at the Tanglewood box office.

This Clipping From
WALTHAM, MASS.
NEWS TRIBUNE

Paul Willwerth Named Winner Of Scholarship

Paul Willwerth, son of Rev. C. I. Willwerth, [illegible] of the Church of the Nazarene in Waltham and Mrs. Willwerth of 33 Myrtle street, is one of five members of the University of Michigan Symphony Orchestra who have been awarded scholarships to the Berkshire Music Center orchestra in Tanglewood and will play in Berkshire Festival Concerts.

A trumpet player, Mr. Willwerth was graduated from Union City, Penn., high school, Bethany College in Bethany, Okla., and he holds a master's degree in musicology from the University of Michigan where he is currently working for a PhD. While at Bethany he was a member of the Oklahoma City Symphony Orchestra.

He is married to Beulah Lindley Willwerth and they live in Ann Arbor, Mich. When he receives his degree Mr. Willwerth plans to teach music.

This Clipping F
NEW YORK, N
TIMES

JUN 26

CONCERT TICKE

Tanglewood's Subs
Surpasses Las

The sale of serie
tickets to this ye
Festival concerts a Mass., has surpasse
George E. Judd,
nounced yesterday.
Subscribers have
000 in tickets for t

[145]

N Y T July 3, '53

ON HALL TAX FREE of Symphony Exempted roactive to Last Year
ecial to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
TON, July 2—The Boston of Assessors has voted to Symphony Hall, home of ston Symphony Orchestra, axation, retroactive to 1952,
me known today.
phony Orchestra, Inc., will 33,400 refunded for 1952, $35,350 due for 1953 will ed by the city, according und J. Burke, chairman of essors. The hall was as-or $500,000.

---

enter pera sh translation of delli which G.
is publishing.
wo acts when it
na premiere in has a libretto by o far as is known s first American

ssy's "L'Enfant
e Prodigal Son), ts premiere in
t Covent Garden, 28, 1910, with a uinand, was the de Rome can-in 1884. Boston merican produc-
French.
tion Manquee" Education), of abrier, hitherto U.S. only with niment, will be n, in the trans-ry Reese. The ct opera, with ne Leterrier and
., was originally ed at the Cercle
aris, with piano
May 1, 1879;
orchestra in the
in 1913.

*

tudent performewood, the two of "Richard and the evening as planned for
of the Boston
estra's Summer old publicly, but vitation to the Berkshire Music
ntributions help s to the Berk-nter are deduct-Federal Income
ntitle the donor
in the Friends.
may be mailed
Lenox, Mass.
of the operas,
student concerts
rams and events
rs will be fur-
st.

---

is Clipping From LTHAM, MASS.
EWS TRIBUNE
JUN 1-

Willwerth
d Winner
holarship

Villwerth, son of Rev.
lwerth, pastor of the the Nazarene in Wal-Mrs. Willwerth of 33
treet, is one of five of the University of Symphony Orchestra
been awarded schol-o the Berksire Music
chestra in Tanglewood play in Berkshire Fes-
certs.
pet player, Mr. Will-was graduated from ty, Penn., High School, College in Bethany, nd he holds a master's n musicology from the ty of Michigan where rrently working for a hile at Bethany he was ber of the Oklahoma
phony Orchestra. married to Beulah Lindwerth and they live in or, Mich. When he reis degree Mr. Willwerth teach music.

June 28 Staats-Zeitung und Herold

6 B UNTERHALTUNGSSEITE

Das Berkshire Musikfest beginnt am 11. Juli

Von FRED LOW

Das Berkshire Musikfest nimmt mit den Konzerten im Theater auf dem Gelände des Festplatzes am 11. Juli seinen Anfang. Charles Munch wird ebenso wie im Vorjahr den Großteil der Veranstaltungen leiten und hat auch die Direktion des Berkshire Music Center übernommen.

Die Programme im Theatersaale

Bach, Mozart, Haydn und vier zeitgenössische Komponisten sind in den Programmen im Theatersaal vertreten, die mit Ausnahme von zwei Werken von Charles Munch dirigiert werden. Der Eröffnungsabend am 11. Juli ist fünf "Brandenburgischen Konzerten" von Johann Sebastian Bach gewidmet, die einzelnen Soli werden von den Mitgliedern der Boston Syhmphonie, die nun schon seit vielen Jahren das Festorchester darstellt, gespielt. Der gleiche Komponist regiert auch im Konzert Sonntag nachmittags, 12. Juli, das die Suite No. 2 in H-Moll und die Suite No. 3 bringt und außerdem die Kantate No. 28 mit Chor und Solisten in Programm hat. Hugh Ross leitet die Kantate, Charles Munch die beiden anderen Werke. Das Wochenende am 18. und 19. Juli sieht ausschließlich Werke von Mozart vor. Divertimento in D, Violinkonzert in G (Solist Isaac Stern), Serenade für 13 Bläser und die Prager Symphonie in D bilden das Programm des Samstags, Ouvertüre zu Figaro, Symphonie Concertante (Isaac Stern, Geige und Joseph de Pasquale Viola sind die Solisten), "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" und die Jupiter Symphonie werden Sonntag vorgetragen. Die beiden letzten Konzerte im Theatersaale bieten ein Haydn Programm am Samstag und eine Veranstaltung von zeitgenössischen Komponisten am Sonntag. Lukas Foss dirigiert seine "Parabel des Todes" mit Vera Zorina (Rezitation), Charles Munch bringt das Divertimento von Strauß (Couperin), "Le Tombeau de Couperin" von Ravel, die "Klassische Symphonie" von Prokofieff und Milhauds "Le creation du monde" zum Vortrag.

Die Konzerte in der großen Freilufthalle

Freitag, 31. Juli, beginnen die großen Konzerte des vollständigen Boston Symphonie-Orchesters in der Freilufthalle, die Konzerte im Theater werden vom Kammerorchester der Bostoner bestritten.

Charles Munch hat auch die Leitung der beiden ersten Konzerte am 31. Juli, und 1. August; Zino Francescatti ist Solist in Mendelssohns Violinkonzert, Lukas Foss erscheint als Solist in seinem eigenen Werk, dem Klavierkonzert No. 2, außerdem gelangen zum Vortrag Werke von Beethoven, Copland, Ravel sowie Schumann, Mendelssohn und Hindemith. Sonntag 2. August übernimmt Pierre Monteux die Leitung des Boston Symphonie Orchesters in einem Tschaikowsky-Programm, das die fünfte Symphonie, die Serenade für Streicher und das Klavierkonzert B-Moll bringt. Jorge Bolet ist Solist im Klavierkonzert.

Am Freitag 7. August dirigiert Charles Munch die dramatische Symphonie "Romeo et Juliette" von Berlioz (mitwirkend Solisten und Chor), ein Werk, das nur sehr selten in seiner Gänze zu hören ist. Leonard Bernstein hat die Leitung des Koussevitzky-Gedenkkonzertes, 8. August in Moussorgsky "Vorspiel zu Khovanchina", Ravel "Sheherazade (für Sopran und Orchester) und der Auferstehungssymphonie von Gustav Mahler mit Solisten und Chor. Jennie Tourel wirkt in dem Konzert mit.

Charles Munch erscheint Sonntag nachmittags, 9. August, am Dirigentenpult der Bostoner und hat den Cellisten Gregor Piatigorsky als Solisten verpflichtet. Zum Vortrag kommt das Cello-Konzert Nr. 1 von Darius Milhaud und Richard Strauß "Don Quixote", in welchem Werk neben Gregor Piatigorsky der Bratschist der Bostoner Joseph de Pasquale mitwirkt. Barber, Adagio für Streicher und die Ouvertüre zu "Tannhäuser" von Richard Wagner ergänzen das Programm.

Die Konzerte werden mit der letzten Serie am 14., 15. und 16. August abgeschlossen. Charles Munch und Leonard Bernstein teilen sich in die Direktion dieser Veranstaltungen. Werke von Brahms (Requiem mit Solisten und Chor), Sibelius, Chavez, Schubert, Chabrier, Wagner und Ravel bilden die Programme dieser Konzerte.

Berkshire Music Center

Die Tätigkeit des Berkshire Music Center hat in den letzten Jahren einen derart großen Umfang angenommen, daß nur die Aufzählung der einzelnen Veranstaltungen und Kurse den Rahmen unseres Artikels bei weitem überschreiten würde. Wir beschränken uns daher heute auf den Bericht über die Opernklassen, die von Boris Goldovsky geleitet werden.

"Richard Loewenherz" von Andre E. M. Gretry

Das Hauptereignis der Opernvorstellungen bildet die Aufführung der Oper Gretrys "Richard Loewenherz", ein Werk, das kurz vor der französischen Revolution geschrieben wurde. Die Gretry Oper kommt in der englischen Fassung von Goldovsky und Sarah Caldwell zur Wiedergabe. Die erste amerikanische Aufführung fand in Boston 1797 statt, die Premiere des Opernwerks war in Paris am 21. Oktober 1784. Aufführungen in Philadelphia und New York folgten 1798 und 1800.

Zwei Vorstellungen, von den Studenten der Opernklassen des Berkshire Music Center sind vorgesehen, Boris Goldovsky leitet das Studentenorchester in der Theater Halle am Montag und Dienstag, den 10. und 11. August. Leo van Vitsen entwirft die Kostüme, John Blankenchip die Bühnenbilder und die Verwendung der Projektion, die bereits im Vorjahr bei der Aufführung des "Titus" in Tanglewood versucht wurde, soll besonders erwähnt werden. Wir werden noch Gelegenheit haben über einen Teil der restlichen Veranstaltungen zu berichten.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

CONCERT TICKETS MOVING

Tanglewood's Subscription Sale Surpasses Last Year's

The sale of series subscription tickets to this year's Berkshire Festival concerts at Tanglewood, Mass., has surpassed that of 1952, George E. Judd, manager, announced yesterday.

Subscribers have purchased $59,000 in tickets for the three series of concerts, an increase of $1,000 over the 1952 advance sale. The advance subscription deadline was extended ten days from June 1 for the convenience of purchasers.

All remaining tickets for the season are now on sale at the Tanglewood box office Mondays through Saturdays. Beginning July 5, the box office will also be open Sundays. Mail orders may be sent to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., of Tanglewood.

Eagle July 3

Tanglewood

Forty members of the staff of the Berkshire Music Center and Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this morning were present at the annual breakfast at Wheatleigh. Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Perry were guests of honor at the event, which each year precedes the opening of the school.

Charles Munch, school director, who will make his first appearance at opening exercises, Sunday afternoon, will arrive this afternoon from France, to spend the season at Elm Court.

Lukas Foss, composer-conductor and pianist, now teaching at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, is occupying the Carter summer home, Sunset Farm, in Lee. With him are his wife, mother and mother-in-law, from Philadelphia.

Aaron Copland, assistant director, has returned to the Gettys' studio in Richmond. Miss Sarah Caldwell, assistant to Boris Goldovsky on the opera faculty, is at the Steuerwald house in Lenox and Felix Wolfes, also in the opera department, is at the Cavanaugh home. Irving Fine, composer, is in Richmond and Mrs. Lorna Cooke deVaron, with her two children, will live in Stockbridge.

Seymour Lipkin, pianist and assistant in the conducting department, is at Indian Hill, Stockbridge, and Jean Bedetti, cellist, of the chamber music staff, is at the Darey home, Lenox. George Fourel, violist, is at the Gaston cottage, Stockbridge Bowl, and Alfred Zighera, cellist, is at Mahkeenac Heights.

Also living in Lenox are Ralph Gomberg, oboist, at the Gassmann house, Pittsfield road; Bernard Zighera, first harpist and pianist, at the home of Mrs. Louis F. Bressin, Hawthorne Street; and Carlos Chavez, conductor of the Mexico City Symphony Orchestra, which he founded, and minister of fine arts, who will be guest composer, will stay at Hawthorne Hill. Organist E. Power Biggs is at Apple Tree Cottage, South Mountain.

Other staff members now in residence are Harry Beall of Washington, D.C., press, in the office; Miss Betty Burnett, violist in the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, in the library; and Miss Celia Salata in the music store.

WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE

JUL 2- 1953

Aug. 1—11 a. m., matinee of Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival and the evening performance of the Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood. In case of rain, the matinee will take place, but the Tanglewood concert will be postponed to Aug. 8.

Aug. 18—5.30 p. m., night

June 25 Litchfield Enquirer

Shed Concert Series Tickets Surpass Last Year's Sales

The sale of series tickets for the Shed Concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the 1953 Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., which always attracts many music lovers from the Litchfield area, has surpassed that of the summer of 1952, manager George E. Judd announces.

Subscribers for the 1953 Berkshire Festival purchased $59,000 in tickets for Series A, July 31,—August 1-2; for Series B, August 7-8-9; for Series C, August 14-15-16, an increase of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice (telephone Lenox 600), which is open Monday through Saturday from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. Commencing July 5, when the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center starts, the boxoffice will also be open on Sundays. Mail orders for single concerts are also received: checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, Music Director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens on Saturday, July 11, at 8:30 P. M. with the first of a week-end pair of Bach concerts, tickets for which are $5.00 and $4.00. Seats for the July 18-19 brace of Mozart concerts, for which Isaac Stern is soloist, remain only at the $5.00 price. The Theatre-Concert Hall preliminary concerts close July 25-26 with a program devoted to Haydn, and one to Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss, with Vera Zorina as narrator of Mr. Foss' cantata "A Parable of Death", at $5.00 and $4.00.

With the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing, under Mr. Munch's direction, the week-end Shed concerts commence on Friday, July 31, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor August 2 afternoon, Leonard Bernstein guest conductor August 8 and August 15. Soloists include Zino Francescatti, Lukas Foss, Jorge Bolet, Jennie Tourel, Gregor Piatigorsky, Lois Marshall, Seymour Lipkin. Prices are : Box seats, $6.50: Front sections, center, $5.50: Front sections, sides, $4.00: Rear sections, $3.50, $3.00 and $2.50.

TANGLEWOOD MUSIC CENTER OPENS SEASON

Sp'fld ~~Union~~ July 6

Large Audience Applauds Dr. Munch; Ross Conducts Chorus

Lenox, July 5—Opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Centers 11th season were held in the theater concert hall at Tanglewood this afternoon. Addressing the overflow audience of students and invited guests, Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Center, noted the remarkable growth of this school of music conducted by one of the world's major symphony orchestras. He lauded the work of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, whose widow was in the audience.

Cities Growth

As of last year, the schools tenth, statistics show that more than four thousand have registered here at Tanglewood. Dr. Perry also pointed with justifiable pride that it has been determined as a fact that 10 per cent of the members of this country's major orchestras have been students at the Berkshire Music Center.

Tanglewood

Continued [illegible] Page 1

Before introducing Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Perry referred to the popular music director as the greatest conductor in the world. Modestly, Mr. Munch waved off the tribute while the audience gave their approval of the distinction with a great ovation. Refreshed and jovial following his vacation trip abroad, Mr. Munch spoke warmly to the student body and then called upon all those present to stand in a minute of silence as a tribute to his late predecessor Dr. Koussevitzky

Others addressing the group were Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees of the Boston Symphony, and Aaron Copeland, assistant director of the school, who introduced the faculty.

Concluding the program was the traditional rendition of the Randall Thompson "Alluluia" by the student chorus under the direction of Hugh Ross. The performance matched the previous highlights of this traditional program and it was noted by Dr. Perry that Mr. Ross had but one opportunity for a rehersal of the chorus before this afternoon's performance.

Eagle July 2

Hub Board May Exempt BSO From Taxes on Symphony Hall

Special to THE EAGLE

BOSTON — Edmund J. Burke, chairman of the Boston Board of Assessors, said today that chances are "excellent" that Symphony Hall, Boston, property of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be given a complete exemption from taxes this year and succeeding years.

"We have been holding conferences with the orchestra's lawyer, George Cabot," Burke told The Eagle, "and we are more sympathetic than ever with the orchestra's arrangements for complete abatement of real estate taxes. You wouldn't be wrong to say that the Boston Symphony won't be bothered by this office any more."

Burke, who was a battery mate of Pittsfield's Timmy Ryan at Holy Cross 30 years ago, said that in the light of the recent exodus of the Boston Braves baseball team to Milwaukee, the city would bend over backward to retain the orchestra, which is not only one of the Hub's great institutions but has become recognized as one of the very great musical organizations in the world.

"If," he said, "we can play some part in retaining the Boston Symphony here and keep it from going deeper in the red than it has we will do so."

Anyway, Burke said the Boston Symphony has somewhat of a legal case. Back in 1934 after the city assessors refused to grant the abatements that usually go to non-profit charitable organizations, the case was taken to the Supreme Court. That tribunal raised certain questions which hinted that Symphony Hall had some commercial aspects, thereby rendering it ineligible for full tax abatement.

Since that time the Symphony Hall officials have removed most of the legal obstacles.

Over the past half century the orchestra has paid out more than $1,000,000 in real estate taxes. The building is assessed for $500,000. In recent years liberal abatements have been granted.

This Clipping From PARENTS' MAGAZINE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 1953

LET'S TRAVEL

You and your family will enjoy these trips

As usual, the summer theatres will be busy throughout New England this year, and other cultural activities fill the calendar. There is the famous Seven Arts Festival at Pike, N. H., July 6-20, where artists, writers and newspapermen will lead discussions; the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., July 11-Aug. 16, and the annual re-enactment of "The Old Homestead," that ancient melodrama, in [illegible] H., where it was written, [illegible]

In Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., Stephen Vincent Benet's "The Devil and Daniel Webster" will be presented from July 18 through August 31. It will be performed as a folk-music drama. A special amphitheater seating 1,500 was recently built to house the production. The amphithe-

[146]

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Opens Today, First Concert Saturday

Greetings by Munch and Others to Students and Guests This Afternoon at Lenox, Program by Student Orchestra Friday Night

Lenox, July 4 The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Sympony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Hadyn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-Aug. 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Foss as Soloist

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 will include the performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following coloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2.30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting.

This afternoon at 3.30 p. m. in Theater-Concert Hall opening exercises will be held. Greetings to students and guests will be extended by Charles Munch; Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center; Herny B. Cabot, president, board of trustees Boston Symphony Orchestra; Aaron Copland, assistant director, Berkshire Music Center. Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson, and tea will be served in Tanglewood garden.

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center tomorrow at 3.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8.30 p. m., in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10 a. m. Sunday, evening at 8.30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all festival concerts. Programs for the festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

FIEDLER BRIDGE DEDICATION TODAY

25th Anniversary Concert On Esplanade

Boston, July 4—The 25th anniversary concert of the Boston Pops Orchestra on the Charles River Esplanade will be broadcast over NBC's coast-to-coast radio network tomorrow at 8:30 p. m., EDT. The full-hour program will be directed by Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the concerts since their inception on July 4, 1929. Fiedler will be honored by Gov. Christian A. Herter, who will speak briefly on the broadcast.

Fiedler Bridge

The occasion also will be the dedication of a new footbridge erected by the Boston Commonwealth for pedestrians to reach the Esplanade where the outdoor concerts take place. The bridge will be called the Fiedler Bridge in honor of the conductor who has faithfully served the people of Boston for so many years.

The musical program will open with the "Entrance of the Guests into the Wartburg" from Wagner's opera "Tannhauser." This will be followed by several sections of Handel-Harty's "Water Music Suite" and the "Fledermaus" overture by Strauss. Gov. Herter's speech will come next.

The second part of the program will include Ravel's "Bolero," a medley of waltzes by Richard Rodgers, as arranged by the Boston composer Leroy Anderson, and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," which was featured on the opening concert.

This concert will also be the opening of the season of Esplanade Concerts for 1953. The program will be broadcast through the facilities of Station WBZ in Boston.

Cir. (D 93,339) (S 126,831)

This Clipping From
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
TRIBUNE

JUN 1 4 1953

Donald Basinger, left, and Warren Burton will be spending a good part of summer at famed Tanglewood Music Festival.

Tanglewood Bids Utah Pair

Two Salt Lake musicians have accepted invitations to participate in the Tanglewood Music Festival conducted each summer by the famed Boston Symphony Orchestra ~~at Lenox, Mass~~.

They are Warren Burton, 25 E. Truman Ave., who plays the cello, and Donald Basinger, 360 E. 4th North, Bountiful, bass player.

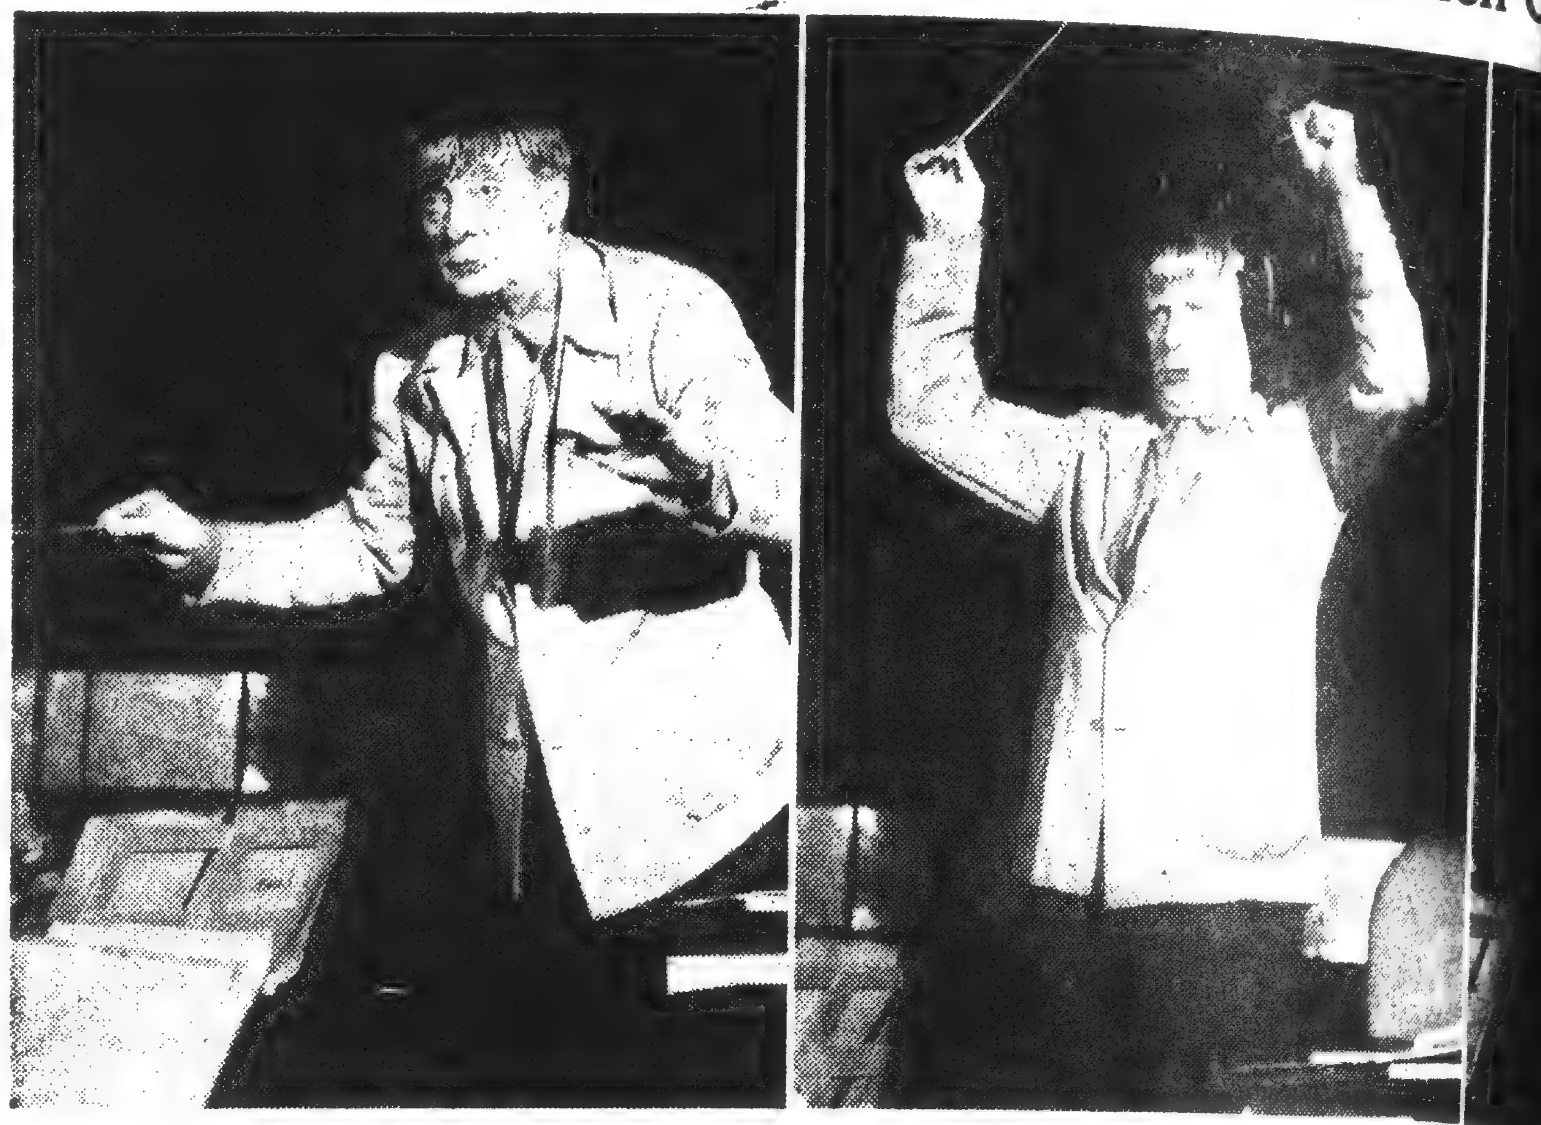
The pair were among many Utahns auditioned under direction of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the symphony, during the orchestra's recent two short stops in Utah.

The festival, which will feature instruction by principals of the orchestra, begins July 5 and continues through August 16.

Mr. Burton was named the outstanding musician at Granite High School in 1951. He won a four-year gold award in recent National Federation of Music Clubs competition.

A member of the Utah Symphony Orchestra the past two years, Mr. Basinger participated in the four-state orchestra two years ago.

Candid Sequence of Charles Munch C ting the Bo



(Photo by Fred Fehl)

This series of four hitherto unpublished pictures was taken in sequence of Charles Munch as he directed the ne phony Orchestra in rehearsal for Saturday night's opening in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood in Lenox. great conductor as he gets rehearsal under way. Then follows his urge for the session to get into full swing. greatly disturbed over a sour note in the back row of the famed musical unit. But at last perfection itself is att and says, "Ah! That was it!"

oston Sym-
e sees the pictured as unch grins

N.Y. Times July 5 53

OPENING NEXT SAT.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12; 18, 19; 25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts—Fri.. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.30, $4. $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

Berkshire Festival
Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch, conductor
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Saturday, 8:30. Bach program: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.
Sunday, July 12, 2:30. Bach program: Cantata No. 28 (Hugh Ross conducting); Suite No. 2, in B minor (flute solo, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3, in D major.

OPENING NEXT SAT.
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12; 18, 19; 25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Phone Lenox 600.

N.Y. H. Trib.
July 5, 1953

July 5, '53

HE NEW YORK TIMES

BERKSHIRE SEASON OPENS

Munch to Address Music Groups Today at Eleventh Meeting

An address this afternoon by Charles Munch will open the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood Mass. As in previous ns, the classes will last six we d will be attended by advanced students and professionals.

Dr. Louis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Aaron Copland assistant director of the school will introduce the faculty. There also will be an address by Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

442 Fulton Street, at Hoyt, BROOKLYN

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

JUN - 1953

Berkshire Festiv

The Berkshire Festival, under the direc at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on July 11 Festival since the open-air concerts were eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchest weeks, from July 11 to July 26, the concerts Concert Hall as introduction to the main s Munch conducting. The programs will n pair to Mozart, and in the final weekend o of contemporary works and one of Haydn tata "A Parable of Death," commissioned b will be performed with the composer cond rator. The balance of that program will in and Ravel.

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's com phony will follow on the three weekends, the first time the three series will be giv Sundays instead of Thursdays and the we Bernstein will be guest conductors.

In background is t
Charles Munch, co
1953 Festival and theater-concert hal

S'p'g'f'd Union July 4

OPENING NEXT SAT.
Berkshire Festival
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts — Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. — July 11, 12, 18, 19-25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts — Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. — July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

TIGHT BINDING

Tanglewood Opens Today, First Concert Saturday

Greetings by Munch and Others to Students and Guests This Afternoon at Lenox, Program by Student Orchestra Friday Night

Lenox, July 4—The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Sympony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Hadyn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-Aug. 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Foss as Soloist

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 will include the performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following coloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2.30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting.

This afternoon at 3.30 p. m. in Theater-Concert Hall opening exercises will be held. Greetings to students and guests will be extended by Charles Munch; Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center; Herny B. Cabot, president, board of trustees Boston Symphony Orchestra; Aaron Copland, assistant director, Berkshire Music Center. Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson, and tea will be served in Tanglewood garden.

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center tomorrow at 3.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8.30 p. m., in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10 a. m. Sunday, evening at 8.30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all festival concerts. Programs for the festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

FIEDLER BRIDGE DEDICATION TODAY

25th Anniversary Concert On Esplanade

Boston, July 4—The 25th anniversary concert of the Boston Pops Orchestra on the Charles River Esplanade will be broadcast over NBC's coast-to-coast radio network tomorrow at 8:30 p. m., EDT. The full-hour program will be directed by Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the concerts since their inception on July 4, 1929. Fiedler will be honored by Gov. Christian A. Herter, who will speak briefly on the broadcast.

Fiedler Bridge

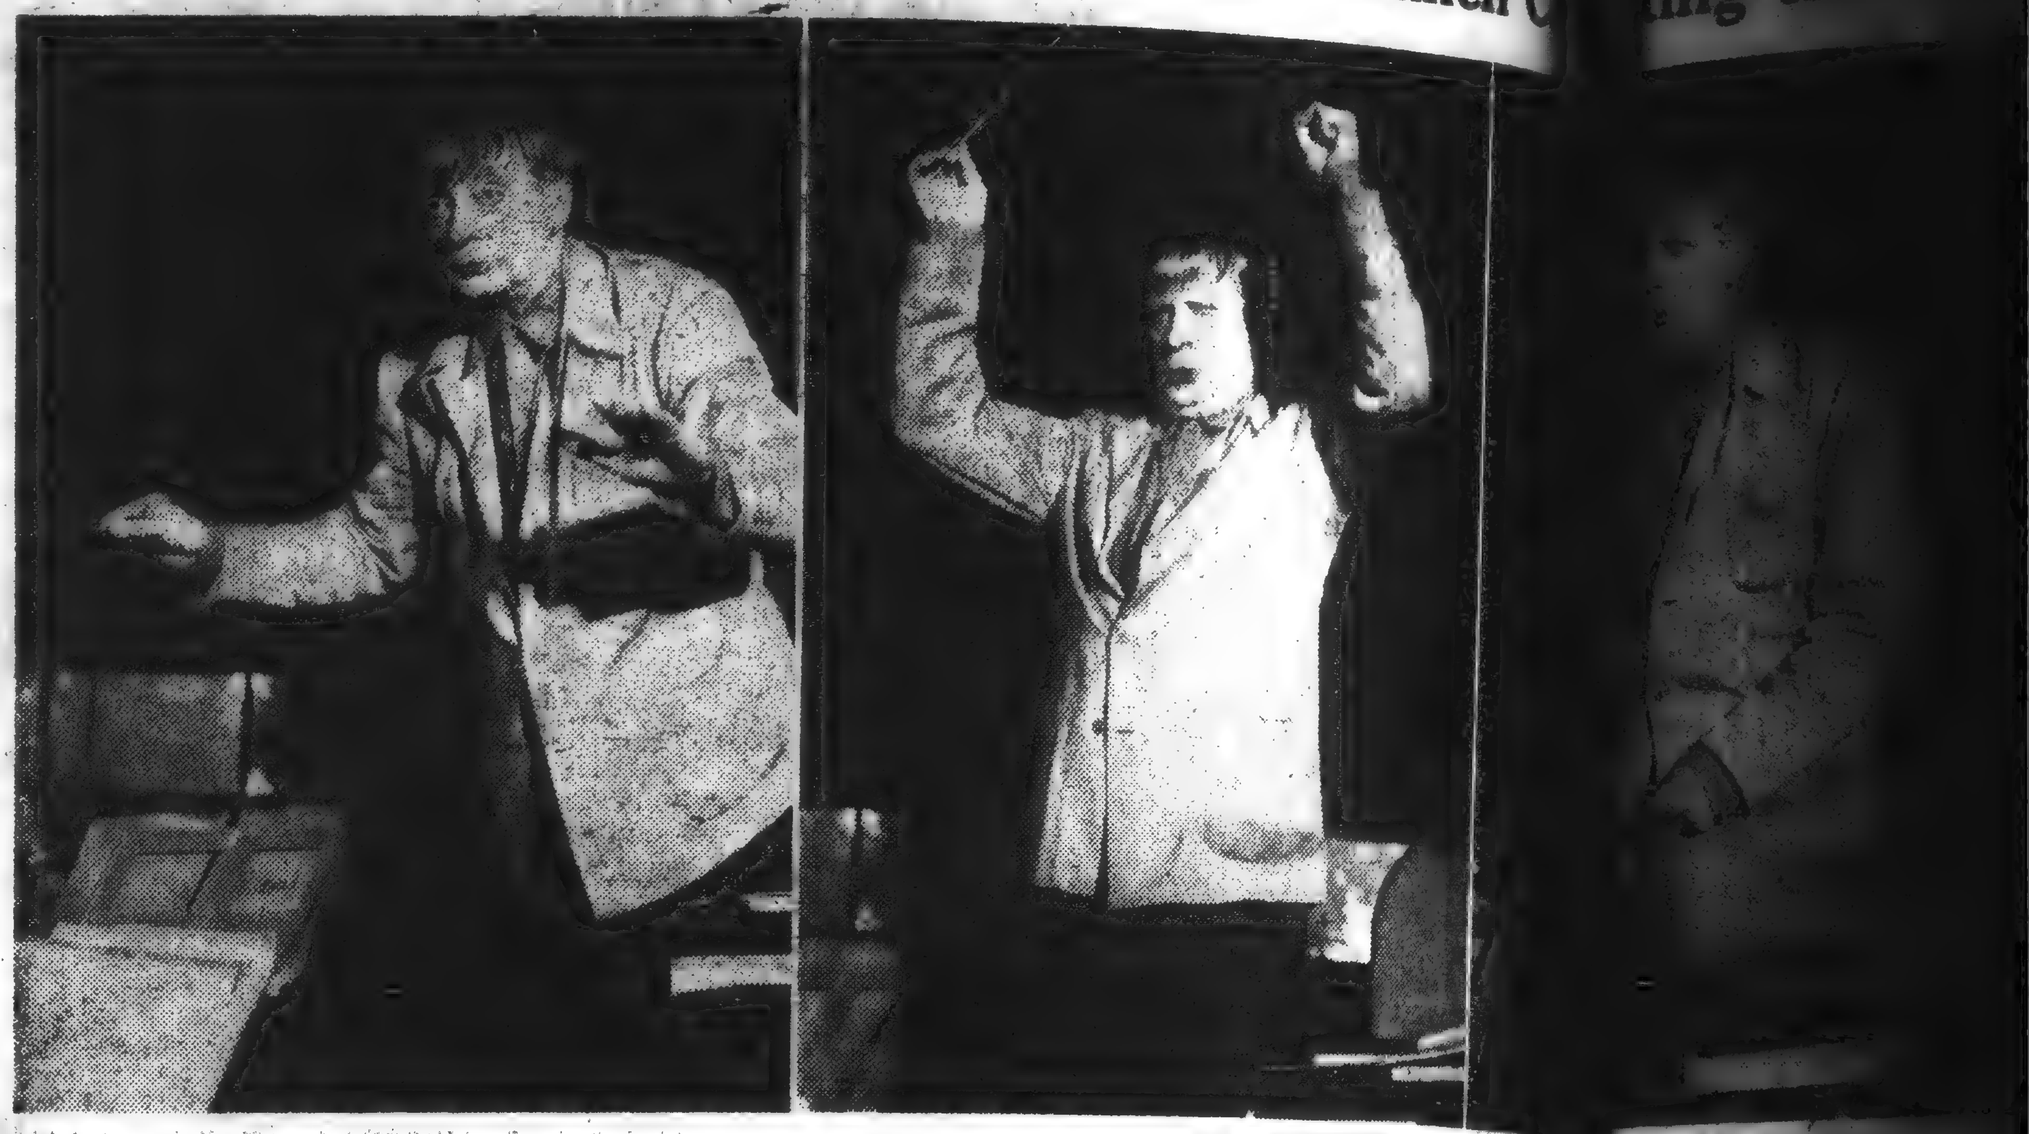
The occasion also will be the dedication of a new footbridge erected by the Boston Commonwealth for pedestrians to reach the Esplanade where the outdoor concerts take place. The bridge will be called the Fiedler Bridge in honor of the conductor who has faithfully served the people of Boston for so many years.

The musical program will open with the "Entrance of the Guests into the Wartburg" from Wagner's opera "Tannhauser." This will be followed by several sections of Handel-Harty's "Water Music Suite" and the "Fledermaus" overture by Strauss. Gov. Herter's speech will come next.

The second part of the program will include Ravel's "Bolero," a medley of waltzes by Richard Rodgers, as arranged by the Boston composer Leroy Anderson, and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," which was featured on the opening concert.

This concert will also be the opening of the season of Esplanade Concerts for 1953. The program will be broadcast through the facilities of Station WBZ in Boston.

Candid Sequence of Charles Munch C ting the



(Photo by Fred Fehl)

This series of four hitherto unpublished pictures was taken in sequence of Charles Munch as he directed the oston Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal for Saturday night's opening in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood in Lenox. sees the great conductor as he gets rehearsal under way. Then follows his urge for the session to get into full swing. pictured as greatly disturbed over a sour note in the back row of the famed musical unit. But at last perfection itself is unch grins and says, "Ah! That was it!"

N.Y. Times July 5 '53

OPENING NEXT SAT.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12; 18, 19; 25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch, conductor
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Saturday, 8:30. Bach program: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.
Sunday, July 12, 2:30. Bach program: Cantata No. 28 (Hugh Ross conducting); Suite No. 2, in B minor (flute solo, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3, in D major.

OPENING NEXT SAT.
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12; 18, 19; 25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Phone Lenox 600.

N.Y. H. Trib.
July 5, 1953

July 5, '53

HE NEW YORK TIMES

BERKSHIRE SEASON OPENS

Munch to Address Music Groups Today at Eleventh Meeting

An address this afternoon by Charles Munch will open the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass. As in previous seasons, the classes will last six weeks, and will be attended by advanced students and professionals.

Dr. Louis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty. There also will be an address by Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

442 Fulton Street, at Hoyt, BROOKLYN

Cir. (D 93,339) (S 126,831)

This Clipping From
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
TRIBUNE

JUN 14 1953

Donald Basinger, left, and Warren Burton will be spending a good part of summer at famed Tanglewood Music Festival.

Tanglewood Bids Utah Pair

Two Salt Lake musicians have accepted invitations to participate in the Tanglewood Music Festival conducted each summer by the famed Boston Symphony ~~Orchestra at Lenox, Mass.~~

They are Warren Burton, 25 E. Truman Ave., who plays the cello, and Donald Basinger, 360 E. 4th North, Bountiful, bass player.

The pair were among many Utahns auditioned under direction of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the symphony, during the orchestra's recent two short stops in Utah.

The festival, which will feature instruction by principals of the orchestra, begins July 5 and continues through August 16.

Mr. Burton was named the outstanding musician at Granite High School in 1951. He won a four-year gold award in recent National Federation of Music Clubs competition.

A member of the Utah Symphony Orchestra the past two years, Mr. Basinger participated in the four-state orchestra two years ago.

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

JUN - 1953

Berkshire Festival ans

The Berkshire Festival, under the direction at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on July 11. Thi Festival since the open-air concerts were i eighth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra weeks, from July 11 to July 26, the concerts w Concert Hall as introduction to the main seri Munch conducting. The programs will inclu pair to Mozart, and in the final weekend of Th of contemporary works and one of Haydn. On tata "A Parable of Death," commissioned by th will be performed with the composer conductin rator. The balance of that program will includ and Ravel.

Nine major concerts in Tanglewood's 6000-seat Shed by the Bos phony will follow on the three weekends, from July 31 to Aug the first time the three series will be given on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays instead of Thursdays and the weekends Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will be guest conductors.

Spg'f'd Union July 4

OPENING NEXT SAT.
Berkshire Festival
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts — Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. — July 11, 12, 18, 19-25, 26; $4 and $5. Shed Concerts — Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. — July 31; Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16; $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50. Box seats $6.50. Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.

In background
Charles Munch,
1953 Festival
theater-concert

TIGHT BINDING

INGFIELD, MASS.,

les Munch C ting the Boston Symphony les Munch as he directed the t Hall at Tanglewood in Len session to get into full swin ut at last perfection itself is it!"

oston Symsees the pictured as unch grins

July 5

E NEW YORK T

ERKSHIRE SEASON O

unch to Address Music C
Today at Eleventh Mee

An address this afterno
Charles Munch will ope eventh season of the Ber usic Center at Tangl ass. As in previous season asses will last six weeks, a e attended by advanced st nd professionals.
Dr. Louis Perry, chairman riends of the Berkshire enter, will preside at the g ceremonies. Aaron Co ssistant director of the ill introduce the faculty.
so will be an address by . Cabot, president of the bo
he Boston Symphony Orche

Fulton Street, at Hoyt, BROO

ah Pair

ps in Utah.
, which will feation by principals chestra, begins July nues through Au-

was named the musician at Gran-School in 1951. He year gold award
tional Federation Clubs competition. of the Utah Sym-
the past two singer partici-
the four-state orches-years ago.

al Plans

on of Charles Mun
This summer will mark e inaugurated in 1934 and tra took charge. The first will take place in series in the Shed with Charles nclude two devoted to Bach, of Theatre concerts
n. On July 25, Lucas
by the Louisville, Ky., ucting and Vera Zorina clude works by Strauss

00-seat Shed by the Boston Sym
, from July 31 to Aug. 16. Fo iven on Fridays, Saturdays an eekends. Monteux and Leonar

Berkshire Playhouse—Wk. of July 6 1953

Boston Symphony Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Season 1953
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

at TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Massachusetts

Concerts in the Theatre Sat. Eves. at 8:30; Sun. Afts. at 2:30
July 11,12,18,19,25,26

Concerts in the Shed Fri. and Sat. Eves. at 8:30; Sun. Afts. at 2:30
July 31. August 1,2,7,8,9,14,15,16.

Guest Conductors Pierre Monteaux (Aug. 2
Leonard Bernstein (Aug. 9 and 15)

BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER (July 5 - August 16

Inquiries are invited about Festival Concerts and all activities at Tanglewood

Tel. Lenox 600

DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, NORTHAMPTON, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 3,

Berkshire Festival Concerts To Begin Saturday, July 11

In background is the shed at beautiful Tanglewood where the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be presented starting Saturday, July 11. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, arrives at Tanglewood today after a month's vacation in Paris to assume his summer duties as conductor of the 1953 Festival and director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Two all-Bach programs in the Theatre-Concert Hall next Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon will launch the new season.

[148]

ting the Boston Symphony

oston Syms seen the pictured as unch grins

Berkshire Playhouse—Wk. of July 6 1953

Boston Symphony Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Season 1953

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

at TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Massachusetts

Concerts in the Theatre—Sat. Eves. at 8:30; Sun. Afts. at 2:30
July 11,12,18,19,25,26

Concerts in the Shed—Fri. and Sat. Eves. at 8:30; Sun. Afts. at 2:30
July 31. August 1,2,7,8,9,14,15,16.

Guest Conductors—Pierre Monteaux (Aug. 2)
Leonard Bernstein (Aug. 9 and 15)

BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER (July 5 - August 16)

Inquiries are invited about Festival Concerts and all activities at Tanglewood

Tel. Lenox 600

DAILY HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, NORTHAMPTON, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 3,

Berkshire Festival Concerts To Begin Saturday, July 11

In background is the shed at beautiful Tanglewood where the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be presented starting Saturday, July 11. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, arrives at Tanglewood today after a month's vacation in Paris to assume his summer duties as conductor of the 1953 Festival and director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Two all-Bach programs in theater-concert hall next Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon will launch the new season.

July 5 1953

ELD SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, M

Leads Festival Chorus.

Hugh Ross, choral conductor, who will be seen leading the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson during opening exercises of the school this afternoon.

Berkshire Footlights

and Mary.

Invitations have been sent out for the opening exercises of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood in Lenox this afternoon. Trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Charles Munch, director, and faculty members will participate. Dr. Lewis Perry, a graduate of Williams College and chairman of the Friends of the Center, will also address the gathering. Tea will follow in the formal gardens. One of the highlights of the afternoon program will be Hugh Ross conducting the student chorus in the "Alleluia."

---

enterprises

Washington Star

He Ranges Europe Seeking Music

By Mark Barron

Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK.

James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p.m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'Ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducted the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the Military Tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wroted. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I did not want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

~~Spfld Republican~~ July 5 1953

Ready at Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music Festival, which has achieved pre-eminence among American summer musical fixtures, opens today, with a wide variety of activities continuing until the middle of August. Besides the concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, beginning Saturday night, and the major series in the big Music Shed, starting on the 31st, there are the usual student groups in orchestral and choral work, as well as in composing, conducting, opera and chamber music.

While thousands will again have the privilege of attending the public performances in person, countless others will be able to enjoy the concord of sweet sounds on the radio, since portions of four Sunday afternoon programs are to be broadcast. Both audiences should note that all the Sunday programs are to start at 2.30, to fit into the network schedules; the broadcasts will last an hour and a half, providing rather more than half a loaf for those unable to attend. Tanglewood thus becomes part of the CBS summer international series, along with Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Another innovation at Tanglewood this year is the change from Thursday to Friday night for the three weeks of Shed concerts, those of Saturday night and Sunday afternoon being presented as usual. Last year, for the first time, the traditional Bach-Mozart concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall were broadened to include the works of several other composers, and this practice is being continued. Several new soloists and instructors have been engaged this year, and the number of students at the Berkshire Music Center has set a record.

As to the Shed programs, there is an admirable mixture of standard and modern, foreign and American compositions. Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith, Darius Milhaud and Samuel Barber, as well as Carlos Chavez of Mexico, represent New World talent, while the young Bostonian Lukas Foss will perform his own Piano Concerto No. 2; another native Bay Stater, Leonard Bernstein, will conduct the Boston Symphony on two Saturday nights.

Otherwise the orchestra will be directed by its regular leader, Charles Munch, save for a Sunday afternoon all-Tchaikowsky program with Pierre Monteux on the podium. Of the standard symphonies, one by Tchaikowsky, one by Brahams, one by Mendelssohn and two by Schubert will be performed; this may be the first time that none by Beethoven will be heard during a Tanglewood season, the master being represented only by his "Lenore" Overture, No. 3.

A great deal of clerical work is required to make ready for the six-week season at Lenox, not to mention the intensive preparation of the musicians themselves. Other similar festivals may flourish in other parts of the country, but none has quite the combination of scope and quality, setting and background, of this one so close to home. Tanglewood is generally conceded to be the summer capital of music on this side of the Atlantic.

CHARLES MUNCH, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who opens the 1953 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with an all-Bach program.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD

MAY 17 1953

Robert Evans To Sing Opera At Tanglewood

Robert Lee Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Lee Evans of 201 Homecroft rd. has been auditioned by Boris Goldovsky in Carnegie Hall, New York City, and has been selected to sing with the operatic group of the "Berkshire Music Festival" at Tanglewood, Mass., July 5 through Aug. 16.

Robert L. Evans

Evans is a tenor and will be working with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He is a pupil of Harvey Smith Spencer at Syracuse University, where he is a sophomore.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

JUN 13 1953

French Opera Scheduled by Music Center

"Richard Coeur de Lion," an opera by Andre-Ernest-Modeste Grety, will be the major production of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer, Boris Goldovsky, head of the department, announced.

Two performances of the three-act opera, written by the French composer shortly before the French Revolution, will be presented by students of the Music Center Aug. 10 and 11, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra.

The Music Center is the summer music school run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Students also will present three one-act operas on one bill Aug. 3.

[illegible] Herald July 5

Berkshire Festival Opening Saturday

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week-ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, Music Director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydin concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12, are the famous performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first women ever to become a Principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following soloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano, Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6 in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists are Sarah Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D Major.

April, 1952.

~~Eagle July~~

Tanglewood

Robert Mandell of Bronx, N.Y., orchestral conducting student, was master of ceremonies for the annual informal party held Sunday evening at Wheatleigh to welcome the 400 students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Entertainment was by "The Tangle Tones," a vocal octet composed of five college student guides: Crayton Bedford of Middlebury, Vt., Amherst; Timothy Wilson of New York, Yale; Timothy Cogan of New York, Harvard; Frederick Hoppin of Huntington, L.I., Harvard; and Harry Krout, Brooklyn, manager of the Harvard Glee Club, assisted by students Samuel Hodges of Louisville, Ky., choral conducting; Barney Childs of Reno, Nev., composition; and Raymond Parnes of Louisville, trombone.

The program also included stories and songs by Jules Hirsch of Brooklyn, N.Y., string bass; and songs by Anne English of Nahant, opera, accompanied by McHenry Boatwright of Boston, opera dramatics.

The orchestra for dancing was composed of David Jones of Highland Park, Mich., and James Brostman of Weirton, W. Va., from the Tanglewood Study Group; Edward Miller of Miami, Fla., and Al Epstein of Hartford, composition; and Neil Courtney of Rochester, N.Y., string bass.

Decorations and refreshments were provided by Frank Reynolds, Wheatleigh manager.

This Clipping From
VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 24 1953

MALCOLM H. HOLMES

Malcolm Haughton Holmes, 46, since 1944 dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and longtime director of the Harvard Univ. Band, died in Boston June 16 after a long illness. Previous to taking over the conservatory post he played violin in the Tanglewood Quartet and for several years was a member of Tanglewood faculty. A member of Harvard's class of '28, he was largely responsible for developing the band into a top-notch musical aggregation, in recognition of which his classmates recently set up a $5 000 scholarship in his name.

Parents survive.

Opening next Sat. July 11 at 8.30

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Charles Munch, Music Director

THEATRE

Sats. 8:30. Suns. at 2:30
July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26

SHED

Fri. & Sat. Eves. Sun. Afts.
July 31, Aug. 1,2-7,8 9-14,15,16
Tickets $2.50 to $5.00

Festival Office, Tanglewood
LENOX, Mass.
Phone LENOX 600

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

ANCIENT FRENCH OPERA PLANNED AT TANGLEWOOD

'Richard the Lion-Hearted' By Gretry to Be Given Aug. 10 11

Boston June 13 "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Music Center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra [illegible] August 16.

In Boston in 1797

The Gretry opera [illegible] given in English [illegible] daine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell [illegible] premiere in Paris on O[illegible] 21 1784 was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797 [illegible] was subsequently [illegible] delphia in 1798 and [illegible] in 1800. Two performances by students of the Berkshire Music Center, performed [illegible] casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra [illegible] performed in the [illegible] Hall at Tanglewood [illegible] Monday and Tuesday evenings Aug. 10 and 11.

Mr. Goldovsky [illegible] an evening of three one-act operas to be performed on [illegible] Aug. 3. Gluck's [illegible] rige" "The D[illegible]" will have [illegible] of Giovanni C[illegible]

Claude Debussy [illegible] digue" "The [illegible] had its [illegible] at Covent Garden [illegible] 1910, with [illegible] and, was [illegible] Rome cantata [illegible] Boston had the [illegible] duction in 1910 [illegible] Education [illegible] plete Education [illegible] Chabner, [illegible] U. S. only with [illegible] ment, will be sung in [illegible] the translation [illegible]

Like all student performances [illegible] Tanglewood the [illegible] of "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" [illegible] evening of one-act operas [illegible] for the last weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's [illegible] school are [illegible] are open [illegible] Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose [illegible] school.

July 5 1953

ELD SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, M

Leads Festival Chorus.

Hugh Ross, choral conductor, who will be seen leading the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson during opening exercises of the school this afternoon.

Berkshire Footlights

and Mary.

Invitations have been sent out for the opening exercises of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood in Lenox this afternoon. Trustees of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Charles Munch, director, and faculty members will participate. Dr. Lewis Perry, a graduate of Williams College and chairman of the Friends of the Center, will also address the gathering. Tea will follow in the formal gardens. One of the highlights of the afternoon program will be Hugh Ross conducting the student chorus in the "Alleluia."

Washington Star

He Ranges Europe Seeking Music

By Mark Barron

Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK.

James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p.m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'Ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducted the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the Military Tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wroted. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I did not want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

Spfld Republican July 5 1953

Ready at Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music Festival, which has achieved pre-eminence among American summer musical fixtures, opens today, with a wide variety of activities continuing until the middle of August. Besides the concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, beginning Saturday night, and the major series in the big Music Shed, starting on the 31st, there are the usual student groups in orchestral and choral work, as well as in composing, conducting, opera and chamber music.

While thousands will again have the privilege of attending the public performances in person, countless others will be able to enjoy the concord of sweet sounds on the radio, since portions of four Sunday afternoon programs are to be broadcast. Both audiences should note that all the Sunday programs are to start at 2.30, to fit into the network schedules; the broadcasts will last an hour and a half, providing rather more than half a loaf for those unable to attend. Tanglewood thus becomes part of the CBS summer international series, along with Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Another innovation at Tanglewood this year is the change from Thursday to Friday night for the three weeks of Shed concerts, those of Saturday night and Sunday afternoon being presented as usual. Last year, for the first time, the traditional Bach-Mozart concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall were broadened to include the works of several other composers, and this practice is being continued. Several new soloists and instructors have been engaged this year, and the number of students at the Berkshire Music Center has set a record.

As to the Shed programs, there is an admirable mixture of standard and modern, foreign and American compositions. Aaron Copland; Paul Hindemith, Darius Milhaud and Samuel Barber, as well as Carlos Chavez of Mexico, represent New World talent, while the young Bostonian Lukas Foss will perform his own Piano Concerto No. 2; another native Bay Stater, Leonard Bernstein, will conduct the Boston Symphony on two Saturday nights.

Otherwise the orchestra will be directed by its regular leader, Charles Munch, save for a Sunday afternoon all-Tchaikowsky program with Pierre Monteux on the podium. Of the standard symphonies, one by Tchaikowsky, one by Brahams, one by Mendelssohn and two by Schubert will be performed; this may be the first time that none by Beethoven will be heard during a Tanglewood season, the master being represented only by his "Lenore" Overture, No. 3.

A great deal of clerical work is required to make ready for the six-week season at Lenox, not to mention the intensive preparation of the musicians themselves. Other similar festivals may flourish in other parts of the country, but none has quite the combination of scope and quality, setting and background, of this one so close to home. Tanglewood is generally conceded to be the summer capital of music on this side of the Atlantic.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

JUN 13 1953

French Opera Scheduled by Music Center

"Richard Coeur de Lion," an opera by Andre-Ernest-Modeste Grety, will be the major production of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer, Boris Goldovsky, head of the department, announced.

Two performances of the three-act opera, written by the French composer shortly before the French Revolution, will be presented by students of the Music Center Aug. 10 and 11, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra.

The Music Center is the summer music school run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Students also will present three one-act operas on one bill Aug. 3.

Bstn Herald July 15

Berkshire Festival Opening Saturday

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week-ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, Music Director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydin concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 are the famous performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first women ever to become a Principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following soloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano, Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6 in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists are Sarah Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D Major.

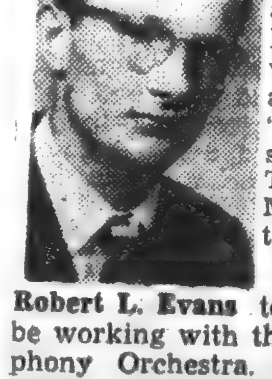
CHARLES MUNCH, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who opens the 1953 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with an all-Bach program.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD

MAY 17 1953

Robert Evans To Sing Opera At Tanglewood

Robert Lee Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Lee Evans of 201 Homecroft rd. has been auditioned by Boris Goldovsky in Carnegie Hall, New York City, and has been selected to sing with the operatic group of the "Berkshire Music Festival" at Tanglewood, Mass., July 5 through Aug. 16.



Robert L. Evans

Evans is a tenor and will be working with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He is a pupil of Harvey Smith Spencer at Syracuse University, where he is a sophomore.

April 1952.

Eagle July

Tanglewood

Robert Mandell of Bronx, N.Y., orchestral conducting student, was master of ceremonies for the annual informal party held Sunday evening at Wheatleigh to welcome the 400 students of the Berkshire Music Center.

Entertainment was by "The Tangle Tones," a vocal octet composed of five college student guides: Crayton Bedford of Middlebury, Vt., Amherst; Timothy Wilson of New York, Yale; Timothy Cogan of New York, Harvard; Frederick Hoppin of Huntington, L.I., Harvard; and Harry Krout, Brooklyn, manager of the Harvard Glee Club, assisted by students Samuel Hodges of Louisville, Ky., choral conducting; Barney Childs of Reno, Nev., composition; and Raymond Parnes of Louisville, trombone.

The program also included stories and songs by Jules Hirsch of Brooklyn, N.Y., string bass; and songs by Anne English of Nahant, opera, accompanied by McHenry Boatwright of Boston, opera dramatics.

The orchestra for dancing was composed of David Jones of Highland Park, Mich., and James Brostman of Weirton, W. Va., from the Tanglewood Study Group; Edward Miller of Miami, Fla., and Al Epstein of Hartford, composition; and Neil Courtney of Rochester, N.Y., string bass.

Decorations and refreshments were provided by Frank Reynolds, Wheatleigh manager.

This Clipping From
VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUN 24 1953

MALCOLM H. HOLMES

Malcolm Haughton Holmes, 46, since 1944 dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and longtime director of the Harvard Univ. Band, died in Boston June 16 after a long illness. Previous to taking over the conservatory post he played violin in the Tanglewood Quartet and for several years was a member of Tanglewood faculty. A member of Harvard's class of '28, he was largely responsible for developing the band into a top-notch musical aggregation, in recognition of which his classmates recently set up a $5,000 scholarship in his name.

Parents survive.

Opening next Sat. July 11 at 8:30

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

Charles Munch, Music Director

THEATRE

Sats. 8:30. Suns. at 2:30
July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26

SHED

Fri. & Sat. Eves. Sun. Afts.
July 31, Aug. 1,2-7,8,9-14,15,16
Tickets $2.50 to $5.00

Festival Office, Tanglewood
LENOX, Mass.
Phone LENOX 600

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

ANCIENT FRENCH OPERA PLANNED AT TANGLEWOOD

'Richard the Lion-Hearted' By Gretry to Be Given Aug. 10, 11

Boston, June 13—"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldorsky as the major production of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Music Center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, July 11-August 16.

In Boston in 1797

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Sedaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on Oct. 21, 1784 was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music Center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra will be performed in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox on Monday and Tuesday evenings Aug. 10 and 11.

Mr. Goldovsky also announces an evening of three rarely-heard one-act operas, to be similarly performed on one bill on Monday Aug. 3. Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed) will have the English translation of Giovanni Cardelli.

Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son) which had its premiere in operatic form at Covent Garden, London Feb. [illegible] 1910, with a libretto by [illegible] and was the composer's Prix de Rome cantata, published in [illegible]. Boston had the first American production in 1910 in French. "Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education) of Emmanuel Chabrier, hitherto heard in the U. S. only with piano accompaniment, will be sung in English in the translation of Henry Reese.

Like all student performances at Tanglewood, the two performances of "Richard Coeur-de-lion" and the evening of one-act operas planned for the last weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school are not sold publicly, but are open by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose contributions help the school.

[149]

Sfld Republican July 5 1953

Berkshire Music Center's Opening Exercises Today

Charles Munch Expected From Paris to Greet Students and Guests at Tanglewood Program

(Special to The Republican)

[illegible] Hills, July 4—Charles Munch, director of Berkshire Music Center, Lenox, and conductor of Boston Symphony Orchestra, succeeding the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, is expected to arrive today by plane from France, in time to greet students and guests at the opening exercises of the school's 11th annual session, which begins Sunday afternoon at 3.30 in Tanglewood Theater. Presiding at the exercises will be Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school. Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Aaron Copeland, assistant director, will be speakers.

A tradition established at the opening of the center in 1940 will be carried on Sunday afternoon when Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in the singing of "Alleluia," which was written for the occasion by Randall Thompson. Following exercises, tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden.

Festival Boxholders

Of the 79 boxholders for concerts at Tanglewood, 24 of these are summer or permanent residents of the Berkshires. County subscribers are Dr. and Mrs. James Phinney Baxter, 3d, of Williamstown, Mr. and Mrs. George Sokolsky of Otis, Mr. and Mrs. William Felton Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Blodgett of Great Barrington; Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood R. Burdsall of Egremont, Richard L. Strobridge of South Egremont, Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Straus 2d., of New York and Great Barrington.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane, Jr., of Dalton; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Whittlesey, and Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Blau and Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Jalonack of Pittsfield; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn of Lenox; Miss Mable Choate, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoving, Mrs. Walter Janney, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Karrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Proctor, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood and Donald Ryan, all of Stockbridge; Dr. Walter Van Vorst of Housatonic, and Robert Anderson of Great Barrington.

Others from surrounding Berkshire area include Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Old Chatham, N. Y., Miss Edith Scoville, William W. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whitridge and Mrs. Donald J. Warner of Salisbury, Conn., Mrs. Harold Hatch and Mrs. Edwin C. Jameson of Sharon, Conn., Henry S. Redmond of Norfolk, Conn., and Gordon Mendelssohn of Millbrook, N. Y.

Other boxholders are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawlings, N. Y., Frederick W. Beinecke of New York and Great Barrington, Merrill H. Whitney of New York, Mrs. A. T. Fuller of Boston and Little Boar's Head, N. H., and Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield of Marblehead.

Bernstein To Conduct

Leonard Bernstein, composer and conductor, will again act as instructor and will conduct the concert in the music shed at Tanglewood Saturday, Aug. 8. This will be the 11th year Mr. Bernstein has been associated with the music school, in addition to appearing as conductor at the regular concerts and as a general consulatant in in music affairs. He has been so much a familiar figure at the music school and annual festival that he had been called by his associates and friends "Mr. Tanglewood." Me and Mrs. Bernstein are occupying a house this season in Hillsdale, N. Y., about 20 miles from Tanglewood.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUN 23 1953

Boston Symphony in Lenox Prepares for Festival Opener

A large part of the personnel of the Boston Symphony Orchestra has moved to th eorchestra's summer home at Tanglewood, Lenox, in preparation for the opening July 5 of the Berkshire Music Center.

The music center is the six-week summer school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival concert which will commence July 11.

Six concerts will be given in the theater-concert hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, July 11 and 12, 18 and 19 and 25 and 26.

Nine programs will be conducted by the orchestra on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 31 to Aug 16. Tickets for concerts may now be reserved at the box office at Tanglewood.

Four hundred and fifty students are expected to participate in the Berkshire Music Center [illegible]

WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE
JUL 3 - 1953

Symphony Hall Tax Free

BOSTON, July 3 (INS)—The Boston Symphony Orchestra, [illegible] stood to benefit by [illegible] in back taxes after the Board of Assessors voted to declare Symphony Hall tax free. [illegible] been assessed [illegible] Orchestra trustees [illegible] sought a refund of all [illegible] the past six years, [illegible] agreement with the assessors [illegible] a rebate of [illegible] taxes. The new ruling [illegible] tax for 1953.

THE BOSTON SUNDAY GLOBE—JULY 5, 1953

In Western Massachusetts:

Nature Plus in the Berkshires

By SELMA GORDON

In 1929, the casual traveler in his Model A, out looking for a quiet spot to spend a vacation, was lured to Pittsfield and the Berkshire country with the following bits of locally issued encouragement: "Pittsfield has paved streets, eight banking institutions, one life insurance company, three fire insurance companies, 35 churches, complete railroad and trolley service and pure water in plenty."

Its attractions today lean slightly less toward the material, with the rolling country of Western Massachusetts providing perhaps as great a concentration of Summer cultural offerings per square inch of green-blue hills and small, clear lakes as any region in the nation.

By next week, the Berkshire country's man-created attractions will all be in full swing. The Summer Playhouse at Stockbridge has been in operation since June 22. Its resident group of scenery painters and set-makers can be seen at work inside and outside the theatre's big red barn almost any time you drive by.

Jacob's Pillow

This week-end is the season's opening of the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, about 9 miles south of East Lee. Off Route 20 (that winding, up and down roadway between Lenox and Springfield named Jacob's Ladder by early settlers), the Festival spot got its title of Jacob's Pillow from a large rock on the original property thus called since Colonial times.

Up to last Wednesday, Ted Shawn, the Festival's founder and director, was working in shirt sleeves with other members of his troupe, making improvements on the barn properties of the establishment. "See the callouses on my hands," he observed proudly. "When I dance a Spanish number now, I almost don't need castinets."

The results of his handiwork this year include more flagstone terracing in the theatre garden, more concrete paths for easier walking, and a number of outdoor benches installed to accommodate early arrivals who picnic before performances.

~~Bos Globe~~ July 5 1953

Of Tanglewood and Music

Tanglewood and the Berkshire Music Festival are perhaps the greatest lure the Western Massachusetts hills offer the world at large. This year, the Summer program opens July 11-12, with concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall for the first 3 weeks. For the last weeks of the season, after the full Boston Symphony Orchestra arrives, concerts are held in the great, wedge-shaped Shed. (One half the orchestra is left in Boston through the 25th of the month to provide music for the outdoor Esplanade Concerts.)

During its peak Summer weeks, Tanglewood accommodates up to 6000 people at a single performance. Tickets range from $2.50 and $3.50 for Shed concerts to $4 and $5 for offerings in the theater. General admission, which means a seat on the grass where hearing is fine but seeing is a matter of first-come-first-served, is $2.00. Grounds open an hour before concert time.

The trend toward informality which has reached new heights in recent seasons (with picnicking allowed and even dancing on the grass) has had the line drawn at ladies who arrive in shorts. For the third season, the management will politely hand any guest so attired a Tanglewood grass skirt for the concert's duration.

Though the Berkshire Festival has been around since 1936, it was not the first marriage of music and nature in Western Massachusetts. Just outside Pittsfield traveling South, there is a good cinder-covered auto road up South Mountain. Here, in the '20s, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the precurser to today's Tanglewood programs began. Chamber Music concerts, featuring some of the world's leading artists were presented each Summer. Though the South Mountain Music Foundation has since moved to Washington, D. C., the concert shed still stands on the mountain. Each year, at the end of the Tanglewood season, South Mountain takes over, for old time's sake and on a small scale, to provide concerts through September.

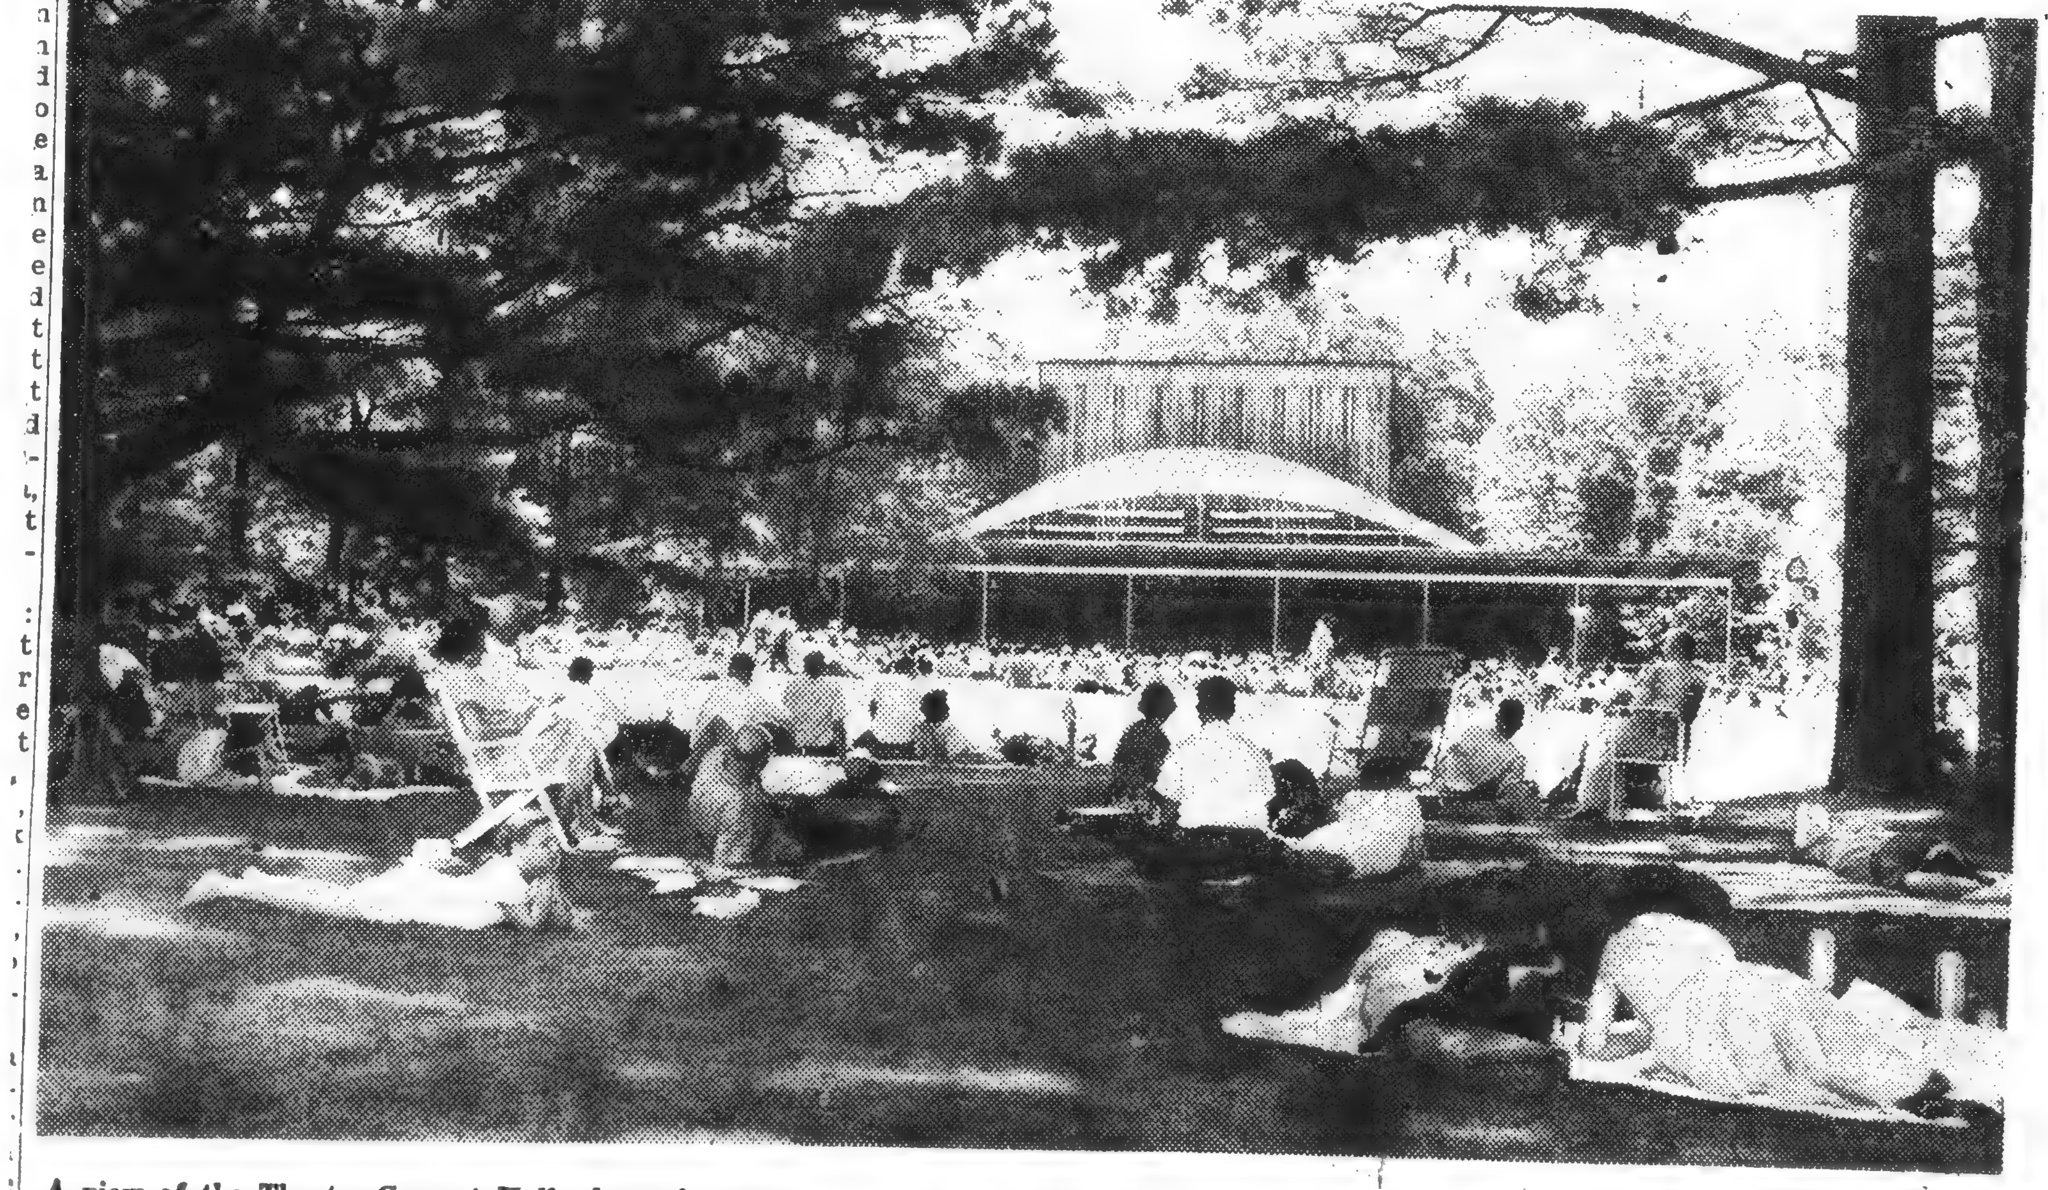
Why various forms of outdoor Summer culture chose the Berkshires as a Summer home is not hard to see. The countryside makes for an ideal natural backdrop. It would never intrude on a concert listener or a ballet viewer. It is not spectacular enough to demand constant visual attention. It is quiet, reassuring and restful. The Berkshire country can be appreciated slowly and wears well over extended periods of time.

Places of interest in the immediate vicinity of Tanglewood include the Indian Mission House and the Berkshire Garden Center (a good picnic spot) in Stockbridge; "Arrowhead" in Pittsfield where Herman Melville wrote Moby Dick; and the remains of a small Shaker Village at Hancock (West Pittsfield) although the natives will tell you there's a bigger and better Shaker Village right across the border in New York State.

WEEK-END GUIDE TO BERKSHIRES: From Boston, there is the northern route, out on 2, through Fitchburg, Greenfield and over the Mohawk Trail with its famous hairpin turn into North Adams and the Berkshire country. There is also the southern route, out 20, through Waltham, Marlboro, Old Sturbridge Village, Springfield and the Jacob's Ladder Trail into Lenox. Motels and inns are filled early and wherever possible reservations should be made in advance of trip. If you are on a day trip to Tanglewood concert, plan to arrive early and stay late to avoid traffic tie-ups. At Tolland State Forest on Rte. 8 (south of West Becket), there are tent sites and facilities for overnight camping. Savoy State Forest, on Rte. 116 south of Adams, has cabins and tent sites; Windsor State Forest just beyond Savoy on Rte. 116 has overnight camping facilities. There is good swimming at Laurel Lake (south of Lenox, Rte. 7) at Onota Lake (just west of Pittsfield) and at Pontoosuc Lake (north of Pittsfield) where it is rumored arrowheads and pottery from Indian days can still be found when the water is very low. Off on a good, dirt road north of Adams is a very famous natural marble bridge span. At Dalton, north of Pittsfield on Rte. 9, paper for paper money has been made since Revolutionary times, and the Crane Paper Museum welcomes visitors. There is a good auto route up Mt. Greylock (3500 ft.), the highest mountain in Massachusetts, reached by talking U. S. 7 north through Lanesboro. As a variation on the way home, take the Berkshire Trail (Rte. 9) from Pittsfield to Northampton, and continue on 9 through to the Worcester Turnpike and back into Boston.

N.Y. Times July [illegible] 1953

CONCERTS AT TANGLEWOOD BEGIN NEXT WEEK-END



William Plouffe Studio

A view of the Theatre-Concert Hall where the first of three week-ends of chamber orchestra programs will be led by Charles Munch

St. Times New Bed. July 5 1953

Bach Programs Set at Lenox

Tanglewood Concerts Start Next Weekend

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 4—The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will commence its six weekends of 15 concerts next Saturday night at Tanglewood. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, which precede the major Berkshire Festival July 31-Aug. 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1,152-seat auditorium.

Features of the Bach concerts next weekend will be performance by young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2.

Programs Listed

Five of the six Bach Brandenburg Concertos will be performed in the theater-concert hall at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. Next Sunday's program, set for 2:30 p. m., will feature Bach's Suites No. 2 and 3 and his Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross. Soloists in the cantata will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass.

Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school of music maintained by the orchestra, will be opened at exercises in the theater-concert hall at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon. The first school performance will be given at 8:30 p. m. Friday in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts, will be given in the Chamber Music Hall at 10 next Sunday morning and that night, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon.

Tanglewood's July 18-19 concerts will be devoted to Mozart works, with Isaac Stern as soloist; the July 25 concert will be all Haydn, including the Theresa Mass conducted by Hugh Ross; the July 26 program will be devoted to works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and will include the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Munch Arrives

Mr. Munch arrived from Paris Friday to assume his duties as conductor of the festival and director of the center. He has just completed a month's vacation in his native France, having flown to Paris from Montreal May 21 at the conclusion of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's highly successful first coast-to-coast tour of the United States and Canada.

While in France, he gave five concerts, four in Paris at the Theatre des Champs-Elysees and one in his home town of Strasbourg, at the head of his former affiliation, the Orchestre National de la Radiodiffusion, the French national broadcasting orchestra with which he toured the United States in 1948-49 before being invited to succeed Serge Koussevitzky as permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Munch now has been elevated to the rank of commandeur in the Legion of Honor by the French Government.

[illegible] New Era July 2

Vacationers—Good news for those heading towards Lenox, Mass. The Boston Symphony orchestra opens its Berkshire Festival of Music July 5. It runs for 6 weeks.

Soloist in Cantata

BETTY ALLEN

Eagle July 6 '53

College Boys Are Guides at Tanglewood

Eleven college students are employed at Tanglewood this season, 10 as guides to the grounds and buildings. They are working under the direction of Gail Rector, of the staff of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and Stoddard Spader of Brooks School, North Andover.

Tours Every Day

Conducting visitors on tours every day, they tell them the history and tradition of the estate, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Berkshire Music Center. During concerts they serve as ushers. They also proctor at the men's dormitory at Wheatleigh and have miscellaneous duties in connection with the school and the festival.

From Massachusetts are John Burchard of Bedford, who in the fall will enter the graduate school of Princeton University; David Kemler of Brookline, University of Pennsylvania student: Robert Sanborn of Boston, Rutgers University sophomore, and formerly with the Medford Daily Mercury and Malden News.

Timothy Cogan, Harvard sophomore, and Timothy Wilson, Yale, are from New York. Frederic Hoppin, Harvard, is from Huntington, Long Island, and Harry Kraut, Harvard senior and Glee Club manager, is from Brooklyn, N.Y. William Verner of Baltimore, Md., a Tanglewood guide for the past two seasons, will enter Princeton in September. Creighton Bedford, Amherst sophomore is from Middlebury, Vt. These guides are living at Wheatleigh.

Two students from Europe are Nicolas Rizopoulos, Hotchkiss senior, whose stepfather, Capt. Georgos Panayotopoulos is naval attaché at the Greek embassy, Washington, D.C., a guide; and Herbert Kafka of Vienna, Austria, who will enter Fordham University, New York, in September. The latter is lifeguard at the club house on Stockbridge Bowl, where students and staff swim and boat, when they have time.

HUDSON, N. Y.
STAR
JUL 2 - 1953

BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER TO OPEN

The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, will open its 11th season wtih exercises at 3:30 p. m. Sunday in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address the students and Henry B. Cabot, president of the orchestra board, will give a brief talk.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, will preside.

The Music Center will offer a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals. Many of the students take part in concerts of the Berkshire Music Festival conducted from July 11 to August 16.

Enrollment at the Music Center will be between 400 and 450.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUN 13 1953

Berkshire Music Center Will Give Three-Act Opera

'Richard the Lion Hearted' To Be Presented Aug. 10 and 11

"Richard Coeur de Lion" (Richard the Lion Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Music Center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, music director, July 11-Aug. 16.

Will Be Given in English

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Sedaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on Oct. 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music Center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood in Lenox on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 10 and 11.

Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery, which will employ the Paul Planer GKP projections, a slide mechanism which is used in the larger opera houses of Europe and which was introduced to the U. S. in the Tanglewood production last summer of the Mozart opera "Titus."

Mr. Goldovsky also announces an evening of three rarely-heard one-act operas, to be similarly performed on one bill on Monday, Aug. 3. Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed), will have the English translation of Giovanni Cardelli which G. Schirmer, Inc. is publishing. Originally in two acts when it had its Vienna premiere in April, 1760, it has a libretto by L. Anseaume. So far as is known this will be its first American production. Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son), which had its premiere in operatic form at Covent Garden, London, February 28, 1910, with a libretto by E. Guinand, was the composer's Prix de Rome cantata, published in 1884. Boston had the first American production in 1910 in French. "Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education), of Emmanuel Chabrier, hitherto heard in the U. S. only with piano accompaniment, will be sung in English, in the translation of Henry Reese. The Chabrier one-act opera, with a text by Eugene Leterrier and Albert Vanloo, was originally privately produced at the Cercle de la Presse, Paris, with piano accompaniment on May 1, 1879, given first with orchestra in the French capital in 1913.

Like all student performances at Tanglewood, the two performances of "Richard Couer de Lion" and the evening of one-act operas planned for the last weeks of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school are not sold publicly, but are open by invitation to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose contributions help the school. Gifts to the Berkshire Music Center are deductible under the federal income tax laws, and entitle the donor to membership in the Friends. Contributions may be mailed to Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., and details of the operas, chamber music, student concerts and other programs and events open to members will be furnished on request.

This Clipping From RETAILING DAILY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 8 - 1953

Philco Showing At Tanglewood

LENNOX, Mass., July 7.—Philco Corp. is staging the first public demonstration of its Phonorama line at a tea in honor of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, at the Curtis Hotel here this afternoon.

In addition the Phonorama line will be demonstrated at the hotel all during the Festival which opens today.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUN 20 1953

ALL TANGLEWOOD GROUPS PREPARE FOR BIG SEASON

Berkshire Festival Concert Series to Start Saturday, July 11

Lenox, June 19—In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the orchestra has moved from its Symphony Hall, Boston, headquarters, to its summer home at Tanglewood in Lenox, where it is being augmented by local and district officers.

Box Office Open

Alan Smith, treasurer, and Josephine Testa, of Pittsfield, his assistant, have opened the box office at Tanglewood, where seats may now be purchased for individual concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Six concerts are given in the Thea- [illegible]

Tanglewood Study Group

Registrations [illegible] the Tanglewood Study [illegible] new department [illegible] sional and amateur [illegible] enroll for [illegible] to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry [illegible] national chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Festival [illegible] rive this week end at Lenox [illegible] two weeks, to set [illegible] program of approximately [illegible] formances this summer [illegible] friends may attend [illegible] These will include the [illegible] week ends of festival [illegible] certs in the Theatre-Concert Hall [illegible] three chamber music [illegible] donated by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, student opera productions scheduled on Aug 3, 10 [illegible] 11, recitals by visiting [illegible] artists, and a number of student concerts. Contributions payable [illegible] the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., made to the friends of [illegible] at Tanglewood, are deductible under federal income tax [illegible] and entitle donors to attend these performances. [illegible] charge of the friends' office now are Spencer Kennard and Roger Hinman, both of the Lenox School, assisted by Mrs. William Moore, Lenox.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
JUL 5 - 1953

Goes to Tanglewood

Miss Harriet Meiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Meiss of Ford Road, Woodbridge, left yesterday to attend the six weeks' session of the Berkshire Music School at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. A sophomore at the University of Michigan, she will study the clarinet and participate in choral singing.

DAYTON, OHIO
NEWS
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Festival Concerts To Be Broadcast This Summer

BOSTON, Mass., June 27.—The Boston Symphony orchestra has announced revisions in its six weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert hall and in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for the 1953 Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will conduct, with Pierre Monteux appearing as guest conductor Aug. 1, and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 8 and 15.

An important innovation this season will see the concerts in the 6000-seat Shed performed consecutively on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 31-Aug. 16, with the chamber concerts in the 1200-seat concert hall as always on Saturday evenings and Sunday [illegible]

This 16th Fest[illegible] first summer in [illegible] when Sunday afternoon [illegible] will be simultaneous[illegible] over a coast-to-coast [illegible] first portion [illegible] ing an hour and [illegible] 26, Aug. [illegible] ried by the [illegible] System as pa[illegible] gram of [illegible] vals. The [illegible] be the on[illegible] weekly prog[illegible] broadcasts [illegible] burg. [illegible] vals in Eur[illegible]

Because [illegible] commence[illegible] Munch [illegible] all of [illegible] afternoon [illegible] grams

---

This Clipping From WEST SIDE NEWS
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 9 - 1953

Offer Escorted Tours to Music, Dance Festivals

Escorted tours to the Berkshire Musical Festival will be featured by Ski Bird Tours, Sherman Square Hotel, 2039 Broadway, starting July 10 and continuing until Aug. 1 offering departures from New York every Friday at 1 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

The tours include transportation, accommodations at the Sheraton Hotel, sports facilities, and attendance of the music festival at Tanglewood and the Dance Festival at Jacob's Pillow.

A free brochure and program may be had by writing Ski Bird Tours, 2039 Broadway, New York 23, or by phoning ENdicott 2-1405.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 9 - 1953

Berkshire Festival To Open Saturday

Special to The H[illegible]

Lenox, Mass. [illegible] Music F[illegible] ton Symphony O[illegible] Charles Munch [illegible] glewood [illegible] with the [illegible] the Theatre-Concert [illegible] voted to [illegible] Sebastian B[illegible]

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, or parts thereof, will play five of Bach's six Brandenburg Concertos, omitting No. 4, Saturday, and the program Sunday at 3:30 p. m. will be the Cantata No. 28 with Hartford's Betty Allen as contralto soloist, and the Suites No. 2 and 3.

LOWELL, MA
SUN
JUN 11 1

MUSIC

LOWELL—The combi forts of two of Lowell notable cultural groups, t ell Art association and t ell Philharmonic Orche
ciety, have each summ vided the city with an o ing musical event. This the annual outdoor "pop cert, will again be prese is dated for July.

To make the event local significant the Art ass and Philharmonic have ea set the date of the birth world famous painter, Ja Neil Whistler, as the day outdoor concert.

Through the years lo lovers and concert goer welcomed the concert. Bec the favorable acceptance cert has been establishe tradition as well as the o ing social event of the season.

The committee member senting both groups hav
bined their ideas and in again assure Lowell of a ful evening of fine musi year the concert has gr quality and entertainment
It is logical to expect th coming concert will agai Lowell high among thos
munities interested in adv
art and culture.

It is expected that the cipal band concert seri again hold the weekly sp Though no announcemen been made yet concerni series, July and August bring to light a list of we concerts.

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" ard the Lion-Hearted), an in three acts written sho fore the French Revolution prolific French composer, Ernest-Modeste Gretry, nounced by Boris Goldov
the major production of t era department of the Be Music center in Tang'ewo summer. The Berkshire center is the summer sch music run as an adjunct Berkshire Festival by the Symphony orchestra from to August 16.

The Gretry opera, whi be given in English, the J
daine text translated by M ovsky and Sarah Caldwe its premiere in Paris on O 21, 1784, was given its first ican performance in Bos 1797, and was subsequently in Philadelphia in 1798
New York in 1800. Two pe
ances, staged by students
Berkshire Music center formed by student casts, w Goldovsky conducting a s orchestra, will be perform the Theatre-Concert hall a glewood, Lenox, Mass., on day and Tuesday evening
10 and 11.

One-Act Operas

Mr. Goldovsky also ann an evening of three rarel one-act operas, to be si performed on one bill o
3. Gluck's "L'Yvrogne C
(The Drunkard Reformed have the English translat Giovanni Cardelli which G.
mer, Inc., is publishing. O
ly in two acts when it h Vienna premiere in April, 1 has a libretto by L. Anse
So far as is known this w its first American produ
Claude Debussy's "L'Enfan

This Clipping F
NEW YORK, N
TIMES
JUL 1 0

Low Fares to Berkshire

The New Haven Railroa
er special low-cost rou fares, including general to the concerts, for all six afternoon performances
Berkshire Music Festiv
ning this week-end. T leave Grand Central S Sunday mornings at and will return there a
The complete fare is cert Hall by members

ston Symphony Orchestr Munch conducting, on Sa
evenings and Sunday afte
July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; a ograms are held in the fe hed by the complete Bo mphony Orchestra on F d Saturday evenings a afternoons July 21-Augu
ugust 7-8-9 August 14-15-1 may be reserved by ma box office, or by telepho
ox 600.

ity at the Berkshire Mus headquarters is in fu with details completed the registration, curriculum and arrival of some 3
the 450 students expecte
all over the U. S. a
, and foreign countrie details are in the hands
s D. Perry, Jr., executi
ary; Edith Bossler, reg
Jean-Fraser, secretary a rd Burkat, librarian, all . They are joined this ye idi Bakker, of Great Ba
. The school's dean, Ral witz of Philadelphia, will ext week, to be assisted Patsy Hayes, of Philadelph
anglewood Study Group
strations are still open f
anglewood Study Group, epartment in which prof and amateur musicians m for two, four or six wee ly and participate in the p nce of music.

Lewis D. Perry, of Bost
al chairman of the Frie Berkshire Festival, will his week end at Lenox, weeks, to set in motion
am of approximately 40 p nces this summer wh
s may attend by invitati will include the first th ends of festival chamber c
in the Theatre-Concert H
chamber music conce
d by Mrs. Elizabeth Spra ge, student opera pro scheduled on Aug. 3, 10
citals by visiting con
[illegible] number of stud
[illegible] contributions payable [illegible] Symphony Orchest [illegible] to the friends of [illegible] donors [illegible] nances. In charge of office now [illegible]

d and Roger Hinman,
Lenox School, assisted William Moore, Lenox,

certs
Summer

th the chamber con-
200-seat concert hall,
Saturday evenings
fternoons, July 11-26.
stival will mark the
in several seasons afternoon concerts
ltaneously broadcast o-coast network. The of the concerts, last-
and a half, on July
and 16, will be carolumbia Broadcasting rt of its summer pro-rnational music festirkshire Festival will American event in the rams which includes f the Florence, Salzuth, Edinburgh Festipe.
e Columbia broadcasts
t 2:30 p. m. Charles advanced to that hour season's six Sunday erkshire Festival pro-

his Clipping From ARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUN 9 - 1953

shire Festival
Open Saturday

to The Hartford Times
. Mass. — The Berkshire
estival featuring the Bos-mphony Orchestra under Munch will open at Tan-
Saturday at 8:30 p. m. e first of two concerts in heater Concert Hall deto the music of Johan an Bach.
Boston Symphony Or
. or parts thereof, wi
ive of Bach's six Bran g Concerti, omitting N
urday, and the progra
y at 3:30 p. m. will be th a No. 28 with Hartford
Allen as contralto solo
Suites No. 2 and 3.

This Clipping From
LOWELL, MASS.
SUN

MUSIC

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL The combined efforts of two of Lowell's most [illegible] groups, the Lowell Art association and the Lowell Philharmonic Orchestral society, [illegible] each summer provide the city with an outstanding [illegible] event. This event, [illegible] annual outdoor pops" concert will again be presented. It is dated for July.

To make the event locally more significant the Art association and Philharmonic have each year set the date of the birth of the world famous painter, James McNeil Whistler, as the day for the outdoor concert.

Through the year, local art lovers and concert goers have welcomed the concert. Because of the favorable acceptance the concert has been established as a tradition as well as the outstanding social event of the summer season.

The committee members representing both groups have combined their ideas and intents to again assure Lowell of a wonderful evening of fine music. Each year the concert has grown in quality and entertainment value. It is logical to expect that the coming concert will again place Lowell high among those communities interested in advancing art and culture.

It is expected that the municipal band concert series will again hold the weekly spotlight. Though no announcement has been made yet concerning the series, July and August should bring to light a list of week-end concerts.

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the Opera department of the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Music center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony orchestra from July 11 to August 16.

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Sedaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on October 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theatre-Concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Monday and Tuesday evenings Aug. 10 and 11.

One-Act Operas

Mr. Goldovsky also announces an evening of three rarely-heard one-act operas, to be similarly performed on one bill on Aug. 3. Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed), will have the English translation of Giovanni Cardelli which G. Schirmer, Inc., is publishing. Originally in two acts when it had its Vienna premiere in April, 1760, it has a libretto by L. Anseaume. So far as is known this will be its first American production. Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son), which had its premiere in operatic form at Covent Garden, London, February 28, 1910, with a libretto by E. Guinand, was the composer's Prix de Rome cantata, published in 1884. Boston had the first American production in 1910 in French. "Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education), of Emmanuel Chabrier, hitherto heard in the U. S. only with piano accompaniment, will be sung in English, in the translation of H[illegible] Reese. The Chabrier one-

---

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 10 1953

Low Fares to Berkshire Festival

[illegible] Railroad will offer [illegible] round trip [illegible] general admission [illegible] six Sunday [illegible] performances of the Berkshire [illegible] Festival, beginning [illegible] Trains will [illegible] Station on [illegible] at 8:20 o'clock and will return [illegible] at 11:30 P. M. The complete fare is $6.95.

Eagle July 9

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY
Tel. 561-M

Jap Ambassador Due for Festival

LENOX—Among the guests at the Curtis Hotel during the Berkshire Festival season this summer will be Eikichi Araki, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

He will be accompanied here by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Funio Araki. They will be in Lenox from July 30 to Aug. 3 while they attend the Tanglewood concerts and also make the Curtis Hotel their headquarters for a tour of the Berkshires.

Tanglewood Sets Forum Series

LENOX—The public has been invited to a series of forums in Sedgwick Hall to be sponsored each Monday beginning next week by Tanglewood.

The forums are being organized by Aaron Copland, who will act as moderator. Instructors, heads of Departments and other officials of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will lecture each week on subjects within the category of music. A question and answer period will follow each week's lecture.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL

JUN 21 1953

Music For F

This Clipping From
NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUN 21 1953

MUSIC FOR EVERYBODY

Music Moves Outdoors With Coming Of Summer

By SIGMUND SPAETH

This is the time of year that music moves outdoors. Fortunately there is also a tradition that Summer music must be lighter and more popular than that heard indoors during the regular concert season.

There is no real reason why musical performances of the Fall and Winter should not also have their share of lightness and popularity. Perhaps the warm weather is merely used as an excuse to give the public what it secretly would enjoy at almost any time.

The impression has also been created that music sounds better when unconfined by the walls of an auditorium. Acoustically this is of course a fallacy. But it must be admitted that the atmosphere of informality, not having to dress up or to behave with dull propriety, may well add to the enjoyment of a concert or an opera that is actually handicapped.

"Music under the stars" inevitably has an intriguing sound. But instrumental balance is not always satisfactorily attained outdoors. The combination of microphones on stage and airplanes overhead can produce some weird effects. Strings "al fresco" generally have to be amplified, while the wind-instruments consistently cut through any volume of orchestral sound. A final hazard is the ever-present possibility of sudden rain, bad for instruments and listeners alike.

Good Record

All things considered, the current record of Summer music in America is remarkably good, with the climate co-operating in a majority of cases. New York's annual Stadium concerts have been perhaps the most frequently affected by weather conditions, but the indefatigable Minnie Guggenheimer knows no such word as fail. This year she has worked out a plan for partial sponsorship, with various industrial firms contributing $1,000 each and receiving 1,000 tickets to distribute among their employes.

The famous Hollywood Bowl has fewer problems of a meteorological nature and more opportunities for spectacular effects. The Aspen Festival in Colorado, the Bevard in North Carolina, Central City, the Zoo Opera in Cincinnati, even Phil Maxwell's Chicagoland, Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell and the historic Chautauqua series may all easily turn geographical advantages into musical ones.

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., has had a consistent record of success, and the youthful Brandeis University at Waltham, Mass., has just completed another Festival of the Creative Arts, fittingly directed by the prodigious Leonard Bernstein. Boston's traditional "Pops," conducted by Arthur Fiedler, have the spirit of recreation and relaxation, even though they are technically indoor concerts.

"Summer is i-cumen in," as it did with that first part-song of the 13th century, and music loudly sings, not necessarily with the voice of the cuckoo.

The Edward MacDowell Association and the National Federation of Music Clubs have issued an interesting report on the practical celebration of Mrs. MacDowell's 95th birthday. Approximately 2,500 music lovers contributed a total of nearly $38,000 for the continued support of the MacDowell Colony in Peterborough, N. H.

The great majority gave less than $5 apiece, the minimum was 95 cents, representing the age of the composer's widow. The largest single gift came from the federation itself, along with the services of its executive secretary, Helen Havener, and her assistant, Helen Lindsay.

The underground reports that Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande" will be presented at the Metropolitan Opera House November 27, with Theodore Uppman imported for the male title role opposite Nadine Conner.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA.
PRESS

JUN 21 1953

June 20 Eagle

Single Sale Now

For Each Concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26; $4 and $5
Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31—Aug. 1, 2;
Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, Box Seats, $6.50
Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600

This Clipping From
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE

JUN 16 1953

Music Notes

By D. E. RITZ

THE BIG MUSICAL NEWS this week is the Schenectady Symphony's annual "Pop" concert set for Saturday at Daley field, Union College campus. The committee has been using various and devious means to try to secure appropriate weather for the annual out-door session under the direction of Anthony R. Stefan. Elaborate plans have been made for the serving of appropriate refreshments and via the grapevine we have heard that hot-dogs have been added to this year's menu. The hot coffee addicts will probably have to continue to carry their own. The calendar promises a growing moon but does nothing to assure us that anyone will see it. Barring a deluge, which the Lord forbid, we will be seeing you at Daley field.

* * *

THE SOUTHERN VERMONT ART CENTER at Manchester, Vt., will sponsor a series of Sunday afternoon concerts at 4 p.m. beginning July 5 and continuing through Sept. 6 The Vermont Chamber Orchestra with Stell Andersen as soloist will present the July 5 program. Other performances will be given July 12, Jan Gerbaty, pianist; July 19, Sigurd Rascher, saxophonist; July 26, Maria Leone, soprano and Giuseppe R. Lambiase, tenor; Aug. 2, the Trapp Family Singers; Aug. 16, Grant Johannesen, pianist; Aug. 30, Salvatore Baccaloni, basso buffo of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Sept. 6, Giovanni Bagarotti, violinist. Inquiries should be directed to Miss Emily H. Brand at the Art Center.

* * *

THOMAS SCHERMAN, conductor of the Little Orchestra Society, is enough interested in new scores to be willing to try out a plan for getting them. Beginning Sept. 26 and continuing every other Saturday afternoon through the last week in March he will hold open house for composers. He is asking composers to arrange the appointments with him through the offices of the Little Orchestra Society, 35 West 53 street, New York 19.

* * *

ANDRE - ERNEST - MODESTE GRETRY'S "Richard Coeur - de - Lion" has been chosen for the major production of the Opera Department at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer.

The three-act opera was written shortly before the French Revolution and had its premiere in Paris Oct. 21, 1784. It was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797 and was presented in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800.

The Tanglewood performance, set for the evenings of Aug. 10 and 11 at the Theatre-Concert Hall, will be in an English translation made by Director Boris Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery.

Three one-act operas, rarely heard, have been chosen for performance on Aug. 3. They are Gluck's "The Drunkard Reformed" in an English translation by Giovanni Cardelli; Claude Debussy's "The Prodigal Son" and Emmanuel Chabrier's "An Incomplete Education" in a translation by Henry Reese.

Tickets for the student performances of the operas are not sold publicly but are available to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help the school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUN 11 1953

One-Act Operas Commissioned In Experiment at Tanglewood

Tanglewood will make an experiment this summer, which, if successful, may set a pattern for other institutions. It is offering commissions to two or three young composers within the next few weeks to write one-act operas at the Berkshire Music Center.

The Koussevitzky Music Foundation, at the request of Charles Munch, director of the school, has supplied $1500 to make grants of $750 each to two composers, who will come to Tanglewood for the summer, as guests of the center. They will have for their guidance and help the faculty of the opera and composition department. A third grant will be made if a third composer with qualifications for writing an opera appears.

Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school; Howard Hanson, of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester; and Leonard Bernstein, head of the orchestra and conducting department and composer of the music for the current Broadway production, "Wonderful Town," will recommend candidates and Boris Goldovsky, opera department head, will make the final choice.

Ready for 1954

The composers will be expected to complete a portion of their operas this season and to finish them for performance at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954. Mr. Bernstein's production of "Trouble in Tahiti," revised at Tanglewood after the premiere at Brandeis University, Waltham, and presented at the end of last summer, helped to set the pattern for the experiment.

The Koussevitzky Foundation, which granted an additional $1250 for living expenses of five students at Tanglewood this summer, made the operatic grant with the statement that the late Serge Koussevitzky, who set up the foundation, was vitally interested in the development of operatic art and training in this country," as is Mrs. Koussevitzky, the foundation's president.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., N. Y.
NEWSDAY

JUN 23 1953

New England Tour Takes In All Six States

The last leg of the trip tours the Berkshires with a visit at Lenox, Mass., the site of the Berkshire Music Festival in late July and early August. The concerts held here are attended by thousands.

M 19

[152]

This Clipping From
LOWELL, MASS.
SUN

MUSIC

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL — The combined efforts of two of Lowell's most notable cultural groups, the Lowell Art association and the Lowell Philharmonic Orchestral society, have each summer provided the city with an outstanding musical event. This event, the annual outdoor "pops" concert, will again be presented. It is slated for July.

To make the event locally more significant the Art association and Philharmonic have each year set the date of the birth of the world famous painter, James McNeil Whistler, as the day for the outdoor concert.

Through the years local art lovers and concert goers have welcomed the concert. Because of the favorable acceptance the concert has been established as a tradition as well as the outstanding social event of the summer season.

The committee members representing both groups have combined their ideas and intents to again assure Lowell of a wonderful evening of fine music. Each year the concert has grown in quality and entertainment value. It is logical to expect that the coming concert will again place Lowell high among those communities interested in advancing art and culture.

It is expected that the municipal band concert series will again hold the weekly spotlight. Though no announcement has been made yet concerning the series, July and August should bring to light a list of week-end concerts.

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the Opera department of the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Music center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony orchestra from July 11 to August 16.

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Sedaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on October 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theatre-Concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Monday and Tuesday evenings Aug. 10 and 11.

One-Act Operas

Mr. Goldovsky also announces an evening of three rarely-heard one-act operas, to be similarly performed on one bill on Aug. 3. Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed), will have the English translation of Giovanni Cardelli which G. Schirmer, Inc., is publishing. Originally in two acts when it had its Vienna premiere in April, 1760, it has a libretto by L. Anseaume. So far as is known this will be its first American production. Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son), which had its premiere in operatic form at Covent Garden, London, February 28, 1910, with a libretto by E. Guinand, was the composer's Prix de Rome cantata, published in 1884. Boston had the first American production in 1910 in French. "Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education), of Emmanuel Chabrier, hitherto heard in the U. S. only with piano accompaniment, will be sung in English, in the translation of H[illegible] Reese. The Chabrier one-a

---

Eagle July 9

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY
Tel. 561-M

Jap Ambassador Due for Festival

LENOX—Among the guests at the Curtis Hotel during the Berkshire Festival season this summer will be Eikichi Araki, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

He will be accompanied here by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Funio Araki. They will be in Lenox from July 30 to Aug. 3 while they attend the Tanglewood concerts and also make the Curtis Hotel their headquarters for a tour of the Berkshires.

Tanglewood Sets Forum Series

LENOX—The public has been invited to a series of forums in Sedgwick Hall to be sponsored each Monday beginning next week by Tanglewood.

The forums are being organized by Aaron Copland, who will act as moderator. Instructors, heads of Departments and other officials of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will lecture each week on subjects within the category of music. A question and answer period will follow each week's lecture.

This Clipping From
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE

JUN 16 1953

Music Notes

By D. E. RITZ

THE BIG MUSICAL NEWS this week is the Schenectady Symphony's annual "Pop" concert set for Saturday at Daley field, Union College campus. The committee has been using various and devious means to try to secure appropriate weather for the annual out-door session under the direction of Anthony R. Stefan. Elaborate plans have been made for the serving of appropriate refreshments and via the grapevine we have heard that hot-dogs have been added to this year's menu. The hot coffee addicts will probably have to continue to carry their own. The calendar promises a growing moon but does nothing to assure us that anyone will see it. Barring a deluge, which the Lord forbid, we will be seeing you at Daley field.

* * *

THE SOUTHERN VERMONT ART CENTER at Manchester, Vt., will sponsor a series of Sunday afternoon concerts at 4 p.m. beginning July 5 and continuing through Sept. 6 The Vermont Chamber Orchestra with Stell Andersen as soloist will present the July 5 program. Other performances will be given July 12, Jan Gerbaty, pianist; July 19, Sigurd Rascher, saxophonist; July 26, Maria Leone, soprano and Giuseppe R. Lambiase, tenor; Aug. 2, the Trapp Family Singers; Aug. 16, Grant Johannesen, pianist; Aug. 30, Salvatore Baccaloni, basso buffo of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Sept. 6, Giovanni Bagarotti, violinist. Inquiries should be directed to Miss Emily H. Brand at the Art Center.

* * *

THOMAS SCHERMAN, conductor of the Little Orchestra Society, is enough interested in new scores to be willing to try out a plan for getting them. Beginning Sept. 26 and continuing every other Saturday afternoon through the last week in March he will hold open house for composers. He is asking composers to arrange the appointments with him through the offices of the Little Orchestra Society, 35 West 53 street, New York 19.

* * *

ANDRE - ERNEST - MODESTE GRETRY'S "Richard Coeur - de - Lion" has been chosen for the major production of the Opera Department at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer.

The three-act opera was written shortly before the French Revolution and had its premiere in Paris Oct. 21, 1784. It was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797 and was presented in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800.

The Tanglewood performance, set for the evenings of Aug. 10 and 11 at the Theatre-Concert Hall, will be in an English translation made by Director Boris Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery.

Three one-act operas, rarely heard, have been chosen for performance on Aug. 3. They are Gluck's "The Drunkard Reformed" in an English translation by Giovanni Cardelli; Claude Debussy's "The Prodigal Son" and Emmanuel Chabrier's "An Incomplete Education" in a translation by Henry Reese.

Tickets for the student performances of the operas are not sold publicly but are available to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help the school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL

JUN 21 1953

Music For F

By SIGMUND SPAF

This is the time of y sic moves outdoor there is also a t
mer music m
lighte

ODY

Moves Outdoors With Coming Of Summer

By SIGMUND SPAETH

This is the time of year that music moves outdoors. Fortunately there is also a tradition that Summer music must be lighter and more popular than that heard indoors during the regular concert season.

There is no real reason why musical performances of the Fall and Winter should not also have their share of lightness and popularity. Perhaps the warm weather is merely used as an excuse to give the public what it secretly would enjoy at almost any time.

The impression has also been created that music sounds better when unconfined by the walls of an auditorium. Acoustically this is of course a fallacy. But it must be admitted that the atmosphere of informality, not having to dress up or to behave with dull propriety, may well add to the enjoyment of a concert or an opera that is actually handicapped.

"Music under the stars" inevitably has an intriguing sound. But instrumental balance is not always satisfactorily attained outdoors. The combination of microphones on stage and airplanes overhead can produce some weird effects. Strings "al fresco" generally have to be amplified, while the wind-instruments consistently cut through any volume of orchestral sound. A final hazard is the ever-present possibility of sudden rain, bad for instruments and listeners alike.

Good Record

All things considered, the current record of Summer music in America is remarkably good, with the climate co-operating in a majority of cases. New York's annual Stadium concerts have been perhaps the most frequently affected by weather conditions, but the indefatigable Minnie Guggenheimer knows no such word as fail. This year she has worked out a plan for partial sponsorship, with various industrial firms contributing $1,000 each and receiving 1,000 tickets to distribute among their employes.

The famous Hollywood Bowl has fewer problems of a meteorological nature and more opportunities for spectacular effects. The Aspen Festival in Colorado, the Brevard in North Carolina, Central City, the Zoo Opera in Cincinnati, even Phil Maxwell's Chicagoland, Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell and the historic Chautauqua series may all easily turn geographical advantages into musical ones.

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., has had a consistent record of success, and the youthful Brandeis University at Waltham, Mass., has just completed another Festival of the Creative Arts, fittingly directed by the prodigious Leonard Bernstein. Boston's traditional "Pops," conducted by Arthur Fiedler, have the spirit of recreation and relaxation, even though they are technically indoor concerts.

"Summer is i-cumen in," as it did with that first part-song of the 13th century, and music loudly sings, not necessarily with the voice of the cuckoo.

The Edward MacDowell Association and the National Federation of Music Clubs have issued an interesting report on the practical celebration of Mrs. MacDowell's 95th birthday. Approximately 2,500 music lovers contributed a total of nearly $38,000 for the continued support of the MacDowell Colony in Peterborough, N. H.

The great majority gave less than $5 apiece, the minimum was 95 cents, representing the age of the composer's widow. The largest single gift came from the federation itself, along with the services of its executive secretary, Helen Havener, and her assistant, Helen Lindsay.

The underground reports that Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande" will be presented at the Metropolitan Opera House November 27, with Theodore Uppman imported for the male title role opposite Nadine Conner.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA.
PRESS

JUN 21 1953

June 20 Eagle

Single Sale Now

For Each Concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26; $4 and $5
Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31—Aug. 1, 2; Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, Box Seats, $6.50
Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 10 1953

Low Fares to Berkshire Festival

The New Haven Railroad will offer [illegible] round trip [illegible] general admission [illegible] for all six Sunday afternoon performances, of the Berkshire Music Festival, beginning this week-end. Trains will leave Grand Central Station on Sunday mornings at 8:20 o'clock and will return there at 11:30 P. M. The complete fare is $6.95.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUN 11 1953

One-Act Operas Commissioned In Experiment at Tanglewood

Tanglewood will make an experiment this summer, which, if successful, may set a pattern for other institutions. It is offering commissions to two or three young composers within the next few weeks to write one-act operas at the Berkshire Music Center.

The Koussevitzky Music Foundation, at the request of Charles Munch, director of the school, has supplied $1500 to make grants of $750 each to two composers, who will come to Tanglewood for the summer, as guests of the center. They will have for their guidance and help the faculty of the opera and composition department. A third grant will be made if a third composer with qualifications for writing an opera appears.

Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school; Howard Hanson, of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester; and Leonard Bernstein, head of the orchestra and conducting department and composer of the music for the current Broadway production, "Wonderful Town," will recommend candidates and Boris Goldovsky, opera department head, will make the final choice.

Ready for 1954

The composers will be expected to complete a portion of their operas this season and to finish them for performance at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954. Mr. Bernstein's production of "Trouble in Tahiti," revised at Tanglewood after the premiere at Brandeis University, Waltham, and presented at the end of last summer, helped to set the pattern for the experiment.

The Koussevitzky Foundation, which granted an additional $1250 for living expenses of five students at Tanglewood this summer, made the operatic grant with the statement that the late Serge Koussevitzky, who set up the foundation, was vitally interested in the development of operatic art and training in this country," as is Mrs. Koussevitzky, the foundation's president.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., N. Y.
NEWSDAY

JUN 23 1953

New England Tour Takes In All Six States

The last leg of the trip tours the Berkshires with a visit at Lenox, Mass., the site of the Berkshire Music Festival in late July and early August. The concerts held here are attended by thousands.

M 19

ncert Hall by members
oston Symphony Orchestr es Munch conducting, on Sa
evenings and Sunday afte
July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; a rograms are held in the fe shed by the complete Bo ymphony Orchestra on F nd Saturday evenings a y afternoons July 21-Augu
August 7-8-9 August 14-15-1 ts may be reserved by ma
box office, or by telepho
nox 600.
ivity at the Berkshire Mus
r headquarters is in fu
, with details completed the registration, curriculu ng and arrival of some 3
f the 450 students expecte
all over the U. S. a da, and foreign countrie
details are in the hands
as D. Perry, Jr., executiv
tary; Edith Bossler, regi
Jean Fraser, secretary a ard Burkat, librarian, all
n. They are joined this ye Heidi Bakker, of Great Ba on. The school's dean, Ral owitz of Philadelphia, will a next week, to be assisted b
Patsy Hayes, of Philadelphi
Tanglewood Study Group
gistrations are still open f Tanglewood Study Group, t department in which profe l and amateur musicians m l for two, four or six wee udy and participate in the pe ance of music.

. Lewis D. Perry, of Bost
onal chairman of the Frie e Berkshire Festival, will this week end at Lenox,
weeks, to set in motion
ram of approximately 40 p ances this summer wh ds may attend by invitati
e will include the first th
ends of festival chamber c
in the Theatre-Concert H
chamber music conc ed by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprag dge, student opera prod scheduled on Aug. 3, 10
ecitals by singing conc s, and a number of stud
[illegible] contributions payable Boston Symphony Orchest to the Friends of wood, are deducti
[illegible] income tax la [illegible] donors to attend th rmances. In charge of s' office now [illegible] Spen rd and Roger Hinman Lenox School, assisted
rs, William Moore, Lenox.

---

ncerts
Summer

with the chamber con-1200-seat concert hall,
on Saturday evenings afternoons, July 11-26.
Festival will mark the r in several seasons
y afternoon concerts ultaneously broadcast
-to-coast network. The
of the concerts, last-
and a half, on July 9 and 16, will be car-
Columbia Broadcasting part of its summer proernational music festi-
Berkshire Festival will American event in the grams which includes of the Florence, Salz-euth, Edinburgh Festi-rope.
he Columbia broadcasts at 2:30 p. m. Charles
, advanced to that hour s' season's six Sunday
Berkshire Festival pro-

This Clipping From
ARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUN 9 - 1953

kshire Festival
Open Saturday

l to The Hartford Times
x, Mass. — The Berkshire Festival featuring the Bos-ymphony Orchestra unde
s Munch will open at Tan-d Saturday at 8:30 p. m
he first of two concerts i Theater Concert Hall de
to the music of Johan tian Bach.
Boston Symphony O
ra, or parts thereof, w five of Bach's six Bra rg Concerti, omitting N
turday, and the progra
y at 3:30 p.m. will be t a No. 28 with Hartfor
Allen as contralto solo
Suites No. 2 and 3.

ORMATION OBSCURED

This Clipping From
LOWELL, MASS.
SUN

MUSIC

By ALFRED W. BURKE

LOWELL - The combined efforts of two of Lowell's most [illegible] cultural groups, the Lowell Art association and the Lowell Philharmonic Orchestral society, have each summer provided the city with an outstanding musical event. This event, the annual outdoor "pops" concert, will again be presented. It is dated for July.

To make the event locally more significant the Art association and Philharmonic have each year set the date of the birth of the world famous painter, James McNeil Whistler, as the day for the outdoor concert.

Through the year, local art lovers and concert goers have welcomed the concert. Because of the favorable acceptance the concert has been established as a tradition as well as the outstanding social event of the summer season.

The committee members representing both groups have combined their ideas and intents to again assure Lowell of a wonderful evening of fine music. Each year the concert has grown in quality and entertainment value. It is logical to expect that the coming concert will again place Lowell high among those communities interested in advancing art and culture.

It is expected that the municipal band concert series will again hold the weekly spotlight. Though no announcement has been made yet concerning the series, July and August should bring to light a list of week-end concerts.

"Richard Coeur-de-Lion" (Richard the Lion-Hearted), an opera in three acts written shortly before the French Revolution by the prolific French composer, Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry, is announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the Opera department of the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood this summer. The Berkshire Music center is the summer school of music run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony orchestra from July 11 to August 16.

The Gretry opera, which will be given in English, the J. M. Sedaine text translated by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell, had its premiere in Paris on October 21, 1784, was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and was subsequently heard in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800. Two performances, staged by students of the Berkshire Music center, performed by student casts, with Mr. Goldovsky conducting a student orchestra, will be performed in the Theatre-Concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Monday and Tuesday evenings Aug. 10 and 11.

One-Act Operas

Mr. Goldovsky also announces an evening of three rarely-heard one-act operas, to be similarly performed on one bill on Aug. 3. Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige" (The Drunkard Reformed), will have the English translation of Giovanni Cardelli which G. Schirmer, Inc., is publishing. Originally in two acts when it had its Vienna premiere in April, 1760, it has a libretto by L. Anseaume. So far as is known this will be its first American production. Claude Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" (The Prodigal Son), which had its premiere in operatic form at Covent Garden, London, February 28, 1910, with a libretto by E. Guinand, was the composer's Prix de Rome cantata, published in 1884. Boston had the first American production in 1910 in French. "Une Education Manquee" (An Incomplete Education), of Emmanuel Chabrier, hitherto heard in the U. S. only with piano accompaniment, will be sung in English, in the translation of Henry Reese. The Chabrier one-act opera, with a text by Eugene Leterrier and Albert Vanloo, was originally privately produced at the Cercle de la Presse, Paris, with piano accompaniment on May 1, 1879, [illegible] with orchestra in [illegible] ital in 1913.

Eagle July 9

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY
Tel. 561-M

Jap Ambassador Due for Festival

LENOX—Among the guests at the Curtis Hotel during the Berkshire Festival season this summer will be Eikichi Araki, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

He will be accompanied here by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Funio Araki. They will be in Lenox from July 30 to Aug. 3 while they attend the Tanglewood concerts and also make the Curtis Hotel their headquarters for a tour of the Berkshires.

Tanglewood Sets Forum Series

LENOX—The public has been invited to a series of forums in Eedgwick Hall to be sponsored each Monday beginning next week by Tanglewood.

The forums are being organized by Aaron Copland, who will act as moderator. Instructors, heads of Departments and other officials of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will lecture each week on subjects within the category of music. A question and answer period will follow each week's lecture.

By S
This is th sic moves ado
there is also a t
mer music m
lighte

ODY

oves Outdoors With Coming Of Summer

By SIGMUND SPAETH

This is the time of year that music moves outdoors. Fortunately there is also a tradition that Summer music must be lighter and more popular than that heard indoors during the regular concert season.

There is no real reason why musical performances of the Fall and Winter should not also have their share of lightness and popularity. Perhaps the warm weather is merely used as an excuse to give the public what it secretly would enjoy at almost any time.

The impression has also been created that music sounds better when unconfined by the walls of an auditorium. Acoustically this is of course a fallacy. But it must be admitted that the atmosphere of informality, not having to dress up or to behave with dull propriety, may well add to the enjoyment of a concert or an opera that is actually handicapped.

"Music under the stars" inevitably has an intriguing sound. But instrumental balance is not always satisfactorily attained outdoors. The combination of microphones on stage and airplanes overhead can produce some weird effects. Strings "al fresco" generally have to be amplified, while the wind-instruments consistently cut through any volume of orchestral sound. A final hazard is the ever-present possibility of sudden rain, bad for instruments and listeners alike.

Good Record

All things considered, the current record of Summer music in America is remarkably good, with the climate co-operating in a majority of cases. New York's annual Stadium concerts have been perhaps the most frequently affected by weather conditions, but the indefatigable Minnie Guggenheimer knows no such word as fail. This year she has worked out a plan for partial sponsorship, with various industrial firms contributing $1,000 each and receiving 1,000 tickets to distribute among their employes.

The famous Hollywood Bowl has fewer problems of a meteorological nature and more opportunities for spectacular effects. The Aspen Festival in Colorado, the Bevard in North Carolina, Central City, the Zoo Opera in Cincinnati, even Phil Maxwell's Chicagoland, Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell and the historic Chautauqua series may all easily turn geographical advantages into musical ones.

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., has had a consistent record of success, and the youthful Brandeis University at Waltham, Mass., has just completed another Festival of the Creative Arts, fittingly directed by the prodigious Leonard Bernstein. Boston's traditional "Pops," conducted by Arthur Fiedler, have the spirit of recreation and relaxation, even though they are technically indoor concerts.

"Summer is i-cumen in," as it did with that first part-song of the 13th century, and music loudly sings, not necessarily with the voice of the cuckoo.

The Edward MacDowell Association and the National Federation of Music Clubs have issued an interesting report on the practical celebration of Mrs. MacDowell's 95th birthday. Approximately 2,500 music lovers contributed a total of nearly $38,000 for the continued support of the MacDowell Colony in Peterborough, N. H.

The great majority gave less than $5 apiece, the minimum was 95 cents, representing the age of the composer's widow. The largest single gift came from the federation itself, along with the services of its executive secretary, Helen Havener, and her assistant, Helen Lindsay.

The underground reports that Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande" will be presented at the Metropolitan Opera House November 27, with Theodore Uppman imported for the male title role opposite Nadine Conner.

This Clipping From
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE

JUN 16 1953

Music Notes

By D. E. RITZ

THE BIG MUSICAL NEWS this week is the Schenectady Symphony's annual "Pop" concert set for Saturday at Daley field, Union College campus. The committee has been using various and devious means to try to secure appropriate weather for the annual out-door session under the direction of Anthony R. Stefan. Elaborate plans have been made for the serving of appropriate refreshments and via the grapevine we have heard that hot-dogs have been added to this year's menu. The hot coffee addicts will probably have to continue to carry their own. The calendar promises a growing moon but does nothing to assure us that anyone will see it. Barring a deluge, which the Lord forbid, we will be seeing you at Daley field.

* * *

THE SOUTHERN VERMONT ART CENTER at Manchester, Vt., will sponsor a series of Sunday afternoon concerts at 4 p.m. beginning July 5 and continuing through Sept. 6 The Vermont Chamber Orchestra with Stell Andersen as soloist will present the July 5 program. Other performances will be given July 12, Jan Gerbaty, pianist; July 19, Sigurd Rascher, saxophonist; July 26, Maria Leone, soprano and Giuseppe R. Lambiase, tenor; Aug. 2, the Trapp Family Singers; Aug. 16, Grant Johannesen, pianist; Aug. 30, Salvatore Baccaloni, basso buffo of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Sept. 6, Giovanni Bagarotti, violinist. Inquiries should be directed to Miss Emily H. Brand at the Art Center.

* * *

THOMAS SCHERMAN, conductor of the Little Orchestra Society, is enough interested in new scores to be willing to try out a plan for getting them. Beginning Sept. 26 and continuing every other Saturday afternoon through the last week in March he will hold open house for composers. He is asking composers to arrange the appointments with him through the offices of the Little Orchestra Society, 35 West 53 street, New York 19.

* * *

ANDRE - ERNEST - MODESTE GRETRY'S "Richard Coeur - de - Lion" has been chosen for the major production of the Opera Department at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer.

The three-act opera was written shortly before the French Revolution and had its premiere in Paris Oct. 21, 1784. It was given its first American performance in Boston in 1797 and was presented in Philadelphia in 1798 and in New York in 1800.

The Tanglewood performance, set for the evenings of Aug. 10 and 11 at the Theatre-Concert Hall, will be in an English translation made by Director Boris Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes and John Blankenchip the scenery.

Three one-act operas, rarely heard, have been chosen for performance on Aug. 3. They are Gluck's "The Drunkard Reformed" in an English translation by Giovanni Cardelli; Claude Debussy's "The Prodigal Son" and Emmanuel Chabrier's "An Incomplete Education" in a translation by Henry Reese.

Tickets for the student performances of the operas are not sold publicly but are available to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help the school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUN 11 1953

One-Act Operas Commissioned In Experiment at Tanglewood

Tanglewood will make an experiment this summer, which, if successful, may set a pattern for other institutions. It is offering commissions to two or three young composers within the next few weeks to write one-act operas at the Berkshire Music Center.

The Koussevitzky Music Foundation, at the request of Charles Munch, director of the school, has supplied $1500 to make grants of $750 each to two composers, who will come to Tanglewood for the summer, as guests of the center. They will have for their guidance and help the faculty of the opera and composition department. A third grant will be made if a third composer with qualifications for writing an opera appears.

Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school; Howard Hanson, of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester; and Leonard Bernstein, head of the orchestra and conducting department and composer of the music for the current Broadway production, "Wonderful Town," will recommend candidates and Boris Goldovsky, opera department head, will make the final choice.

Ready for 1954

The composers will be expected to complete a portion of their operas this season and to finish them for performance at Tanglewood in the summer of 1954. Mr. Bernstein's production of "Trouble in Tahiti," revised at Tanglewood after the premiere at Brandeis University, Waltham, and presented at the end of last summer, helped to set the pattern for the experiment.

The Koussevitzky Foundation, which granted an additional $1250 for living expenses of five students at Tanglewood this summer, made the operatic grant with the statement that the late Serge Koussevitzky, who set up the foundation, was vitally interested in the development of operatic art and training in this country," as is Mrs. Koussevitzky, the foundation's president.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., N. Y.
NEWSDAY

JUN 23 1953

New England Tour Takes In All Six States

The last leg of the trip tours the Berkshires with a visit at Lenox, Mass., the site of the Berkshire Music Festival in late July and early August. The concerts held here are attended by thousands.

M19

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 10 1953

Low Fares to Berkshire Festival

The New Haven Railroad will offer [illegible] round trip [illegible] general admission [illegible] six Sunday Berkshire [illegible] performances, of the [illegible] Festival, beginning [illegible] end. Trains will [illegible] Central Station on [illegible] at 8:20 o'clock and will return [illegible] at 11:30 P. M. The complete fare is $6.95.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA.
PRESS

JUN 21 1953

June 20 Eagle

Single Sale Now

For Each Concert of the

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Theatre Concerts—Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 11, 12—18, 19—25, 26; $4 and $5
Shed Concerts—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.—July 31—Aug. 1, 2;
Aug. 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
$2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50, Box Seats, $6.50
Address Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600

[152]

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.
CITIZEN-NEWS
JUN 27 1953

MUSICAL SCORE

The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center is rehearsing "Richard the Lion-Hearted" by Andre Gretry, the most prolific opera composer of his day (just prior to the French Revolution), for performances at Tanglewood Aug. 10 and 11. "Richard" had its premiere in Paris in 1784, its first American performance in Boston in 1797 and has been gathering dust ever since. One-act operas are also popular at Tanglewood this summer with Gluck's "The Drunkard Reformed," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee" scheduled for production.

* * *

Eagle July 6, 1953

Munch Formula for Musicians: 'Work, Work and More Work'

"Work, work and more work" was described as the essential gift of a musician by Charles Munch, who yesterday afternoon appeared for the first time at the opening of the Berkshire Music Center, of which he is director. The exercises in the Tanglewood theatre, attended by 1000 students and friends, started the 11th session of the Berkshire Symphony Orchestra's summer school.

Mr. Munch, who arrived Friday by plane from France, following a five-week holiday after the close of the orchestra's transcontinental tour, described the aims of the school as "the opportunity to listen to beautiful music and to profit from the counsel of eminent musicians and teachers of great experience. Your contribution," he told the students, "are youth, good will, confidence and talent, all necessary to make music your life work. The remedy for disillusions, which follow illusions as night follows day, is work. The greatest talent must work the most.

'Deeply Impressed'

"The whole world is deeply impressed by the great interest in music and its evolution in this wonderful country, especially among the youth," the conductor said. "Of all the arts, it is yours, without doubt, that creates the links that unite all the people. You will work to bring men together, and not to divide them. Do not use music," he said, "but serve it. Make music with all your intensity, with all your conviction, with fire and flame. Play and express what you feel, frankly, without shame. I hate this objectivity so often recommended today."

Mr. Munch asked the audience to rise for a moment of silence in memory of his predecessor the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who founded the school and until his death in 1950 was its director.

Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of trustees of the Boston orchestra, told the students that it is an artist's job to produce beauty. "Ugliness," he said, "has no place in art, but beauty varies. What one person considers beautiful, another believes ugly, but beauty is real to each. For me, some passages in music are the clearest evidence that the world is not just a mechanical contraption.

"I have considerable respect for your profession," Mr. Cabot continued. "You have one of the best jobs in the world. You are in for six weeks of real satisfaction, to be associated with first-class artists and fine men. Make the most of it. I envy you."

Chavez Speaks

Introduced by Mr. Munch, Carlos Chavez of Mexico City, visiting teacher of composition, said that he was impressed by the way in which everything was so well worked out at Tanglewood, with music the aim.

Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, after introducing the faculty, who sat on the platform, paid tribute to Dr. Koussevitzky. "We want," he said, "to carry on in his spirit. What Mr. Munch said was very much in his spirit. Dr. Koussevitzky, in his 70's, kept the same enormous intensity he had when he was young. He had the understanding that music is one of the great needs of the world today, and because he was able to communicate it we are here today."

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and an orchestra trustee, presided. He spoke of the growth in 10 years of the physical plant at Tanglewood, and stated that 10 per cent of the members of major orchestras in the country had been students there.

Hugh Ross, choral conducting head, led the student body in Randall Thomson's "Alleluia," written for the opening of the school in 1940 and repeated at each opening ceremony. Later, tea was served in the garden.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 7 - 1953

Escorted Tours Scheduled

Escorted tours to the Berkshire Music Festival are featured by Ski Bird Tours July 10 to Aug. 16, offering departures every Friday at 1 and 6:30 p.m. from New York City.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 5 - 1953

CHARLES MUNCH, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who opens the 1953 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with an all-Bach program.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUN 27 1953

Two Get Commissions to Write Opera

Leonard Rosenman

Louis Mennini

Leonard Rosenman of this city and Louis Mennini of Rochester, N. Y., have each received a commission of $750 to write operas for the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., it was announced yesterday.

Under the commission plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, the composers will work in close collaboration with the department. They will be guests at Tanglewood this summer and will begin work on their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department faculty and staff.

Full agreement will first be reached on subject matter, libretto and other technical details. By the end of the Tanglewood summer session it is expected that parts of the operas will be completed and ready for experimental staging.

The composers then will have nearly a full year to complete their scores in time for performance during the summer of 1954.

Selection of the two composers was made from recommendations by Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein.

TANGLEWOOD OPENS: At opening exercises of the 1953 Berkshire Festival season at Tanglewood yesterday were, left to right, Lucas Foss, who will appear as piano soloist Aug. 1 when the Boston Symphony Orchestra plays his piano composition No. 2; Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center; Mrs. Leonard Bernstein and her composer-conductor husband, a member of the Music Center faculty and guest conductor with the BSO on Aug. 8 and Aug. 15; Hugh Ross, head of the choral department at the Music Center, who will conduct with chorus and soloists in the theatre concert hall on July 12 and July 25.

Bo[illegible]onia

Music News
May / June 1953

Fo[illegible] ors
Pr[illegible]

[illegible]

cordings [illegible]
New York [illegible] station [illegible] they are [illegible] broad[illegible] member st[illegible] Nat[illegible] Association [illegible] Broad[illegible]

Berkshire Stresses Group Experience

The eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center will be [illegible] Tanglewood under the lead[illegible] Charles Mu[illegible] music dire[illegible] the Boston Symphony Orchestra [illegible] will be a six week session sta[illegible] July 5 and continuing through August 16 with a faculty that [illegible] the principals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The courses [illegible] study [illegible] up perf[illegible] student [illegible] actively [illegible] orchestra [illegible] music, cho[illegible] operat[illegible] Individ[illegible] structi[illegible] to gro[illegible] rehear[illegible] orchestra [illegible] coachi[illegible] and [illegible] Direc[illegible] faculty [illegible] direct[illegible] Ralph [illegible]

Musical [illegible]
THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1953

Flute Soloist At Tanglewood

Doriot Anthony, the first wo[illegible] ever to hold a [illegible] the Boston Symphony [illegible] is flute soloist with th[illegible] in her first appearance [illegible] wood. Charles Munch [illegible] at the opening all-Bach [illegible] of the Berkshire Festival [illegible] July 11 (8:30 p.m.) and S[illegible] 12 (2:30 p.m.). Miss Anthony [illegible] one of the soloists in the B[illegible] Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 [illegible] F and No. 5 in D on July 11 and in the Bach Suite No. 2 [illegible] minor on July 12, in the Theatre Concert Hall.

NEW YORK, N.
TIMES

JUN 28 195

In July

A list of even and other not

11 Berkshire M
Festival, Ta
wood, Mass., to begi
1798: Modern Ma Corps created ("I'm tain Jinks of the Marines,/I often liv yond my means;/ I young ladies in teens,/ To cut a sw the army."—William gard, 1869).

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
JUN 28 1953

MUSIC

Berkshire
Awards Gi

By GORD

The Berkshire Mus
the country maintaine augurate a new progra progress in the field of the dynamic head of th persuaded the Kousse commissions to two y works, as a part of this

Leonard Rosenman, o
Rochester, N. Y., are the tw awards on recommendation
Howard Hanson, and Leona a cash award of $750 from of $1,500 toward the project.

Both Rosenman and M during the six week session Sunday. The full facilities their disposal and with the staff, the young composers new operas which, according next Summer. All the im scenario, libretto, etc., will midsummer it is expected ments completed so that the ation with technicians on co chestra. Rosenman and M to complete their works.

"It is our earnest hope during the first throes of evolve some workmanlike a performing talents availabl culties solved in advance".

Here is the schedule of Boston Symphony in the Th
Saturday, July 11, 8:30 P. M
(Lukas Foss, soloist) 6.
Sunday, July 12, 2:30 P. M meine Seele"), Hugh R
Suite No. 3.
Saturday, July 18, 8:30 P.
136; Mozart: Symphony
Stern and Joseph de Nachtmusik; Mozart: Sy
Saturday, July 25, 8:30 P.
conductor; Haydn: Sym
"Military."
Sunday, July 26, 2:30 P.
mento after Couperin, Prokofieff: "Classical Monde." Following B Cantata with Narrator, by the composer (Vera

* * *

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.
CITIZEN-NEWS
JUN 27 1953

MUSICAL SCORE

The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center is rehearsing "Richard the Lion-Hearted" by Andre Gretry, the most prolific opera composer of his day (just prior to the French Revolution), for performances at Tanglewood Aug. 10 and 11. "Richard" had its premiere in Paris in 1784, its first American performance in Boston in 1797 and has been gathering dust ever since. One-act operas are also popular at Tanglewood this summer with Gl[illegible] "The Drunkard Reformed," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee" scheduled for production.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
JUL 7 - 1953

Escorted Tours Scheduled

Escorted tours to the Berkshire Music Festival are featured by Ski Bird Tours July 10 to Aug. 16, offering departures every Friday at 1 and 6:30 p.m. from New York City.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 5 - 1953

CHARLES MUNCH, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who opens the 1953 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, July 12, with an all-Bach program.

Eagle July 6, 1953

Munch Formula for Musicians: 'Work, Work and More Work'

"Work, work and more work" was described as the essential gift of a musician by Charles Munch, who yesterday afternoon appeared for the first time at the opening of the Berkshire Music Center, of which he is director. The exercises in the Tanglewood theatre, attended by 1000 students and friends, started the 11th session of the Berkshire Symphony Orchestra's summer school.

Mr. Munch, who arrived Friday by plane from France, following a five-week holiday after the close of the orchestra's transcontinental tour, described the aims of the school as "the opportunity to listen to beautiful music and to profit from the counsel of eminent musicians and teachers of great experience. Your contribution," he told the students, "are youth, good will, confidence and talent, all necessary to make music your life work. The remedy for disillusions, which follow illusions as night follows day, is work. The greatest talent must work the most.

'Deeply Impressed'

"The whole world is deeply impressed by the great interest in music and its evolution in this wonderful country, especially among the youth," the conductor said. "Of all the arts, it is yours, without doubt, that creates the links that unite all the people. You will work to bring men together, and not to divide them. Do not use music," he said, "but serve it. Make music with all your intensity, with all your conviction, with fire and flame. Play and express what you feel, frankly, without shame. I hate this objectivity so often recommended today."

Mr. Munch asked the audience to rise for a moment of silence in memory of his predecessor the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, who founded the school and until his death in 1950 was its director.

Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of trustees of the Boston orchestra, told the students that it is an artist's job to produce beauty. "Ugliness," he said, "has no place in art, but beauty varies. What one person considers beautiful, another believes ugly, but beauty is real to each. For me, some passages in music are the clearest evidence that the world is not just a mechanical contraption.

"I have considerable respect for your profession," Mr. Cabot continued. "You have one of the best jobs in the world. You are in for six weeks of real satisfaction, to be associated with first-class artists and fine men. Make the most of it. I envy you."

Chavez Speaks

Introduced by Mr. Munch, Carlos Chavez of Mexico City, visiting teacher of composition, said that he was impressed by the way in which everything was so well worked out at Tanglewood, with music the aim.

Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, after introducing the faculty, who sat on the platform, paid tribute to Dr. Koussevitzky. "We want," he said, "to carry on in his spirit. What Mr. Munch said was very much in his spirit. Dr. Koussevitzky, in his 70's, kept the same enormous intensity he had when he was young. He had the understanding that music is one of the great needs of the world today, and because he was able to communicate it we are here today."

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and an orchestra trustee, presided. He spoke of the growth in 10 years of the physical plant at Tanglewood, and stated that 10 per cent of the members of major orches[illegible] country had been students there.

Hugh Ross, choral conducting head, led the [illegible] body in Randall Thompson's "Alleluia," written for the [illegible] of the school in 1940 [illegible] each opening ceremony [illegible] Tea was served in [illegible]

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUN 27 1953

Two Get Commissions to Write Opera

Leonard Rosenman

Louis Mennini

Leonard Rosenman of this city and Louis Mennini of Rochester, N. Y., have each received a commission of $750 to write operas for the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., it was announced yesterday.

Under the commission plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, the composers will work in close collaboration with the department. They will be guests at Tanglewood this summer and will begin work on their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department faculty and staff.

Full agreement will first be reached on subject matter, libretto and other technical details. By the end of the Tanglewood summer session it is expected that parts of the operas will be completed and ready for experimental staging.

The composers then will have nearly a full year to complete their scores in time for performance during the summer of 1954.

Selection of the two composers was made from recommendations by Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein.

TANGLEWOOD OPENS: At opening exercises of the 1953 Berkshire Festival season at Tanglewood yesterday were, left to right, Lucas Foss, who will appear as piano soloist Aug. 1 when the Boston Symphony Orchestra plays his piano composition No. 2; Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the Berkshire Music Center; Mrs. Leonard Bernstein and her composer-conductor husband, a member of the Music Center faculty and guest conductor with the BSO on Aug. 8 and Aug. 15; Hugh Ross, head of the choral department at the Music Center, who will conduct with chorus and soloists in the theatre concert hall on July 12 and July 25.

Music News May/June 1953

Bostonian[illegible] Tour

The Bos[illegible] [illegible]phony Orchestra is o[illegible] its [illegible]ontinental tour which tak[illegible] [illegible]ve week round of thirty [illegible] The orchestra during [illegible] play, for the first time [illegible] seventy years, sou[illegible] [illegible]irginia, and, for the [illegible] [illegible]915, west of the Mississi[illegible]

Foundat[illegible] [illegible]onsors Premier[illegible]

The [illegible] [illegible]vitzky Music Found[illegible] [illegible] Library of Congress [illegible] [illegible]ssevitzky Music Founda[illegible] [illegible]ve an orchestral concert [illegible] [illegible]ance of the tenth anniversary [illegible] the Koussevitzky Music Founda[illegible] Inc. on March 29 in Town Hall [illegible] New York City. Leonard Bernstein was the conductor and Ruth Poss[illegible] the soloist.

The Edward Burlingame Hill Prelude for Orchestra received its world première, Luigi Dallapiccola's Tartiniana for violin and orchestra its American première, and a Concertino for Orchestra, Opus 30, by Nikolai Lopatnikoff and a Symphony for Classical Orchestra by Harold Shapero had their New York premières. All of these works were commissioned by the Foundation. Tape recordings of the works were made by New York City's radio station WNYC; they are available for broadcasts to member stations of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

Berkshire Stresses Group Experience

The eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center will be held at Tanglewood under the leadership of Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It will be a six week session starting July 5 and continuing through August 16 with a faculty that includes the principals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The courses of study emphasize group performance; students participate actively in orchestra, chamber music, choral or operatic performances. Individual instruction is given only as it relates to group performance, in sectional rehearsals for orchestra, and in coaching for chamber music, lieder, and operatic roles. Director of the faculty is Charles Munch, assistant director Aaron Copland, and Dean is Ralph Berkowitz.

Millbrook Round Table

THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1953

Flute Soloist At Tanglewood

Doriot Anthony, the first woman ever to hold a major desk with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is flute soloist with the orchestra in her first appearance at Tanglewood, Charles Munch conducting, at the opening all-Bach concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Sat., July 11 (8:30 p.m.) and Sun., July 12 (2:30 p.m.). Miss Anthony is one of the soloists in the Bach Brandenburg Concertos No. 2, in F and No. 5 in D on July 11; and in the Bach Suite No. 2, in B minor on July 12, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Music News

Tour

May / June 1953

Symphony Orchestra transcontinental tour on a five week ... erts. The orchestra ... ur, will play ... the ... ore than sevent... hond, Virginia ... since 1915, west ...

Sponsors

Koussevitzky ... d the Library ... Koussevitzky ... nc. gave an ore... servance of th... the Koussevitz... n Inc. on Mar... New York City ... was the conduc... the soloist.

... d Burlingame H... estra received ... igi Dallapiccola ... iolin and orchestra its ... emière, and a Concer... estra, Opus 30, by Niko... ff and a Symphony for ... hestra by Harold Sha... ir New York premières. ... works were commis... e Foundation. Tape re... he works were made by ... ity's radio station WNYC ... ailable for broadcasts to ... ions of the National As... Educational Broadcasters.

Stresses Experience

...nth season of the Berk... Center will be held at ... under the leadership of ... unch, music director of ... Symphony Orchestra. It ... ix week session starting ... continuing through Au... h a faculty that includes ... als of the Boston Sym... hestra. The courses of ... hasize group performance; ... articipate actively in or... hamber music, choral or ... rformances. Individual in... s given only as it relates ... performance, in sectional ... for orchestra, and in ... or chamber music, lieder, ... tic roles. Director of the ... Charles Munch, assistant ... aron Copland, and Dean is ... rkowitz.

...e Round Table

JULY 9, 1953

...ist ...wood

...hony, the first woman ... a major desk with ... Symphony Orchestra, ... st with the orchestra ... appearance at Tangle... rles Munch conducting, ... ning all-Bach concerts ... erkshire Festival, Sat., ... :30 p.m.) and Sun., July ... p.m.). Miss Anthony is ... soloists in the Bach ... urg Concertos No. 2, in ... 5 in D on July 11; and ... ach Suite No. 2, in B ... July 12, in the Theatre-... Hall.

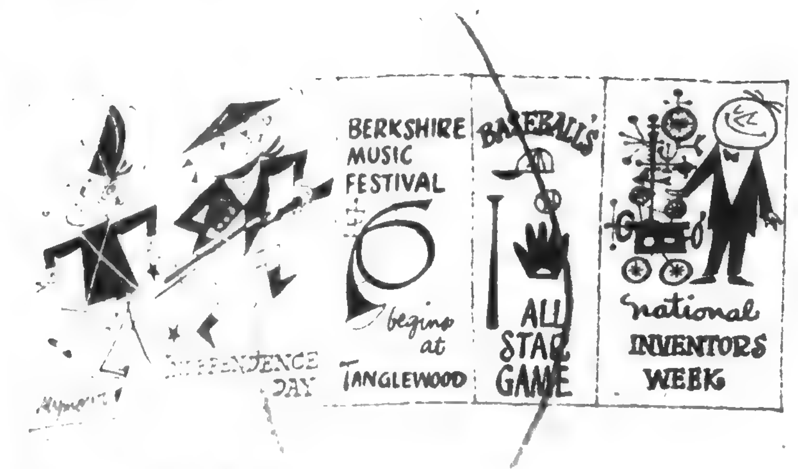
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES



In July

A list of events, anniversaries and other notable dates next month.

11 Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Mass. ... 1798: Modern ... Corps created ... "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines./I often live beyond my means;/ I sport young ladies in their teens./ To cut a swell in the army."—William Lingard, 1869).

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUN 21 1953

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUN 27 1953

2 Operas Commissioned In New Tanglewood Plan

LENOX, Mass.—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the practical assistance of the Koussvitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's 11th six-week Summer session July 5, and Mr. Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the Summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Mr. Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester.

Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1,500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with; in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the Summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the Summer of 1954.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS

JUN 24 1953

MUSIC FOR EVERYBODY

By Sigmund Spaeth

Americans Enjoy Hearing Music Played in Great Outdoors

Chautauqua Series and Hollywood Bowl Testify to Popularity of Summer Concerts

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., has had a consistent record of success, and the youthful Brandeis University at Waltham, Mass., has just completed another Festival of the Creative Arts.

"Summer is i-cumen in," as it did with that first part-song of the

---

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUN 28 1953

Two Operas Commissioned

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., June 27.—Leonard Roseman, of New York, and Louis Mennini, of Rochester, N. Y., have been commissioned to compose two operas for production here next summer by the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglew[illegible]

Both composers, who will receive $750 each from the Koussevitzky Foundation, will be guests of the center during this summer's session which begins July 5 and will have th eassistane cof its opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal.

by Bori[illegible] [illegible]ad of the depar[illegible] [illegible]eement will first be reached on the subject, Libretto, orchestra and scenic and technical details of the operas.

By midsummer, it is expected that parts of the operas will be ready as subjects for stage and technical experiments, and the framework of the operas, it is hoped, will be substantially set by the end of the summer. The two composers were chosen from recommendations made by Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUN 28 1953

MUSIC

Berkshire Music Center Awards Given Composers

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

The Berkshire Music Center, the only music school in the country maintained by a symphony orchestra, will inaugurate a new program this Summer designed to further progress in the field of American opera. Boris Goldovsky, the dynamic head of the Tanglewood opera department, has persuaded the Koussevitzky Music Foundation to award commissions to two young American composers for new works, as a part of this innovation in the school's work.

Leonard Rosenman, of New York City, and Louis Mennini, of Rochester, N. Y., are the two young composers who have received the awards on recommendations by American composers, Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson, and Leonard Bernstein. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1,500 toward the project.

Both Rosenman and Mennini will be in residence at Tanglewood during the six week sessions which get under way at the school next Monday. The full facilities of the opera department will be placed at their disposal and with the assistance of the department's faculty and staff, the young composers are expected to set the framework of their new operas which, according to the plan, will be ready for performance next Summer. All the important details concerning subject matter, scenario, libretto, etc., will be worked out at the coming sessions. By midsummer it is expected that the composers will have certain fragments completed so that these may be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, and orchestra. Rosenman and Mennini will then have a full year in which to complete their works.

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition", Goldovsky explains, "will produce some workmanlike and effective theater pieces suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance".

Here is the schedule of the opening programs to be given by the Boston Symphony in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood:

Saturday, July 11, 8:30 P. M.—Bach: Brandenburg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5 (Lukas Foss, soloist) 6.

Sunday, July 12, 2:30 P. M.—Bach: Cantata No. 78 ("Jesu, der du meine Seele"), Hugh Ross, conductor; Bach: Suite No. 2; Bach: Suite No. 3.

Saturday, July 18, 8:30 P. M.—Mozart: Divertimento for Strings, K. 136; Mozart: Symphony Concertante for Violin and Viola (Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale, soloists); Mozart: Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Mozart: Symphony in C major, "Jupiter," K. 551.

Saturday, July 25, 8:30 P. M.—Haydn: St. Theresa Mass, Hugh Ross, conductor; Haydn: Symphony No. 95; Haydn: Symphony No. 100, "Military."

Sunday, July 26, 2:30 P. M.—Broadcast by CBS: Strauss: Divertimento after Couperin, Op. 86; Ravel: Le Tombeau de Couperin; Prokofieff: "Classical Symphony"; Milhaud: "La Creation du Monde". Following Broadcast; Foss: "A Parable of Death," Cantata with Narrator, Chorus, Tenor, and Orchestra, conducted by the composer (Vera Zorina, Narrator).

* * * * * * * * * * *

[154]

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

JUN 14 1953

Programs Are Announced By Berkshire Music Center

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 13 — Summer music programs at the Berkshire Festival have been announced by Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and music director.

Concerts in the theater-concert hall will begin at 8:30 p. m. on Saturdays, 2:30 p. m. on Sundays. Program for these concerts:

Saturday July 11—Charles Munch

Brandenburg Concertos .... Bach
No. 1, in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday July 12—Charles Munch

Cantata No. 28 .... Bach
with chorus and soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Suite No. 2 in B minor ..... Bach
for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony)
Suite No. 3, in D major ..... Bach

Saturday July 18 — Charles Munch

Divertimento in D, for Strings (K.136) .... Mozart
Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) Mozart
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361) .... Mozart
Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504) .... Mozart

Sunday July 19 — Charles Munch

Overture to "Figaro" .... Mozart
Sinfonia Concertante, ... Mozart
for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists; Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale
Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525) Mozart
Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551) .... Mozart

Saturday July 25 — Charles Munch

Theresa Mass .... Haydn
with chorus and soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Symphony in C minor, No. 95 . Haydn
Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100 .... Haydn

Sunday July 26 — Charles Munch

Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86 .... Strauss
"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite Ravel
"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25 .. Prokofieff
"La Creation du Monde" ...... Milhaud
"A Parable of Death" .... Foss
(Conducted by the composer)
(Narrator: Vern Zorina)

Concerts in the shed are split into three series, A, B and C. Programs for the trio follow:

SERIES A

Friday July 31 — Charles Munch

Overture to "Leonore," No. 3 .. Beethoven
Violin Concerto in E minor .. Mendelssohn
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)
"Appalachian Spring" .... Copland
"Bolero" .... Ravel

Saturday Aug. 1 — Charles Munch

Overture to "Manfred" .... Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2 .... Foss
(The composer as soloist)
Symphony No. 4, "Italian" Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber .... Hindemith

Sunday Aug. 2 — Pierre Monteux

Pierre Monteux, guest conductor

CHARLES MUNCH

Serenade for Strings ...... Tchaikovsky
Symphony No. 5, in E minor Tchaikovsky
Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat minor .... Tchaikovsky
(Soloist: Jorge Bolet)

SERIES B

Friday Aug. 1 — Charles Munch

"Romeo and Juliet," Dramatic Symphony .... Berlioz
(With chorus and soloists)

Saturday Aug. 8 — Leonard Bernstein
Koussevitzky Memorial Concert

Prelude to "Khovanstchina" Moussorgsky
"Sheherazade" for Soprano and Orchestra .... Ravel
Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") .. Mahler
(With chorus and soloists)
(Soloist: Jennie Tourel)

Sunday Aug. 9 — Charles Munch

Symphony No. 5, in B-flat ...... Schubert
Adagio for Strings .... Barber
"Don Quixote" .... Strauss
(with cello and viola solo)
Concerto for Cello, No. 1 ...... Milhaud
Overture to "Tannhauser" .. Wagner
(Soloist: Gregor Piatigorsky)

SERIES C

Friday Aug. 14 — Charles Munch

Requiem .... Brahms
(with chorus and soloists)

Saturday Aug. 15 — Leonard Bernstein

Symphony No. 4, in A minor ..... Sibelius
Sinfonia India .... Chavez
Symphony No. 2, in D major .... Brahms

Sunday Aug. 16 — Charles Munch

Symphony in B minor ("Unfinished") .... Schubert
Bouree Fantasque .... Chabrier
Prelude and Love-Death, "Tristan und Isolde" .... Wagner
A Siegfried Idyll .... Wagner
"Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg" Wagner
Excerpts from Act III
Piano Concerto for the Left Hand .. Ravel
(Soloist: Seymour Lipkin)
"La Valse" .... Ravel

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

JUL 2 1953

French Opera To Add 'Fillip' At Berkshire

NEW YORK, July 1 (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center is readying "Richard the Lion-hearted," by Andre Ernest Modeste Gretry, for performances in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Aug. 10 and 11.

The music center is the summer music school which is part of the annual Berkshire Festival conducted by the Boston Symphony and contributing musical organizations and musicians. The revival of a Gretry opera was calculated to give this year's festival an unusual fillip.

Gretry was the most prolific opera composer of his day, which was just before the French revolution. Richard had its premiere in Paris in 1784, its first American performance in Boston in 1797.

Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, also revealed that his students are preparing three one-act operas for presentation one behind another on Aug. 3. They are Gluck's "L'Yveogne Corrige"—"The Drunkard Reformed," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee."

ATLANTA, GA.
JOURNAL-CONSTITUTION

JUL 5 1953

Boston Orchestra To Open Festival At Tanglewood

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will open with a concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday evening. Charles Munch, music director, is offering a Bach program. Each Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon during July the concerts will feature works of Mozart, Strauss, Milhaud, Ravel and Haydn. The 11th session of the Berkshire Music Center held at Tanglewood opened on Saturday and will continue for six weeks, concluding on Aug. 16. The center is under the leadership of Charles Munch.

REDUCTION
RATIO
16x

2.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz 1234567890

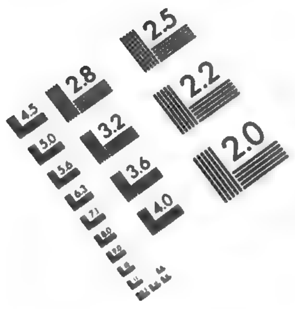
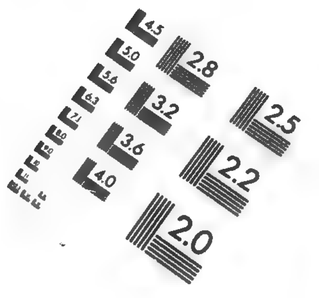
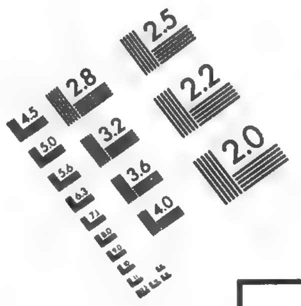
2.0 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

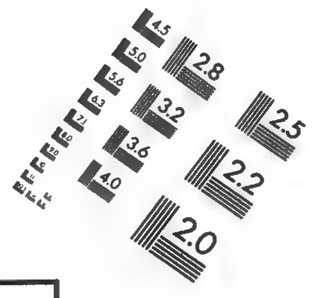
1.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

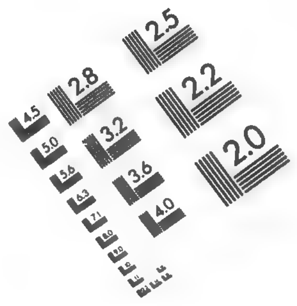


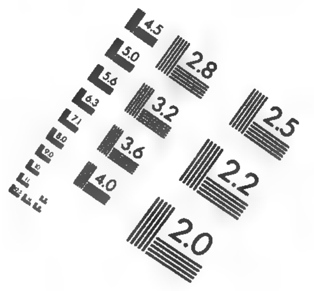


PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC





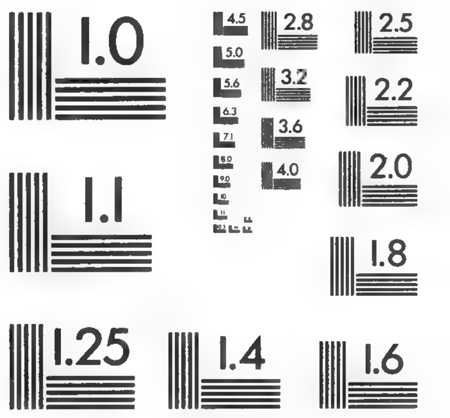




200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz 1234567890

2.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz 1234567890

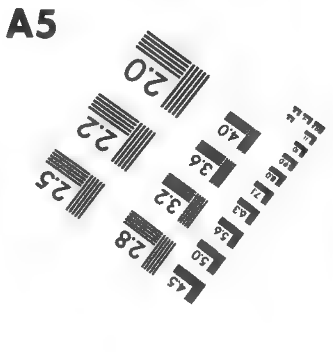
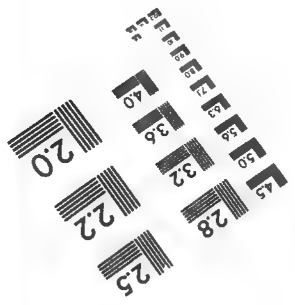
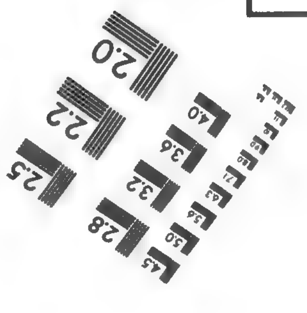
2.5 mm

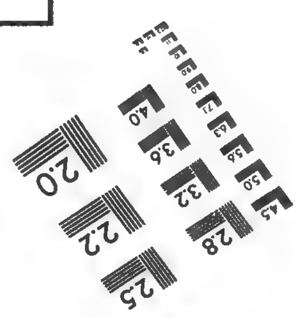
A5





A4





A3

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P 1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

4.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz 1234567890

3.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

3.0 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE
Organ de
Action Social Catholique
Rédaction et Administration
Place Jean-Talon Québec

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE

24 PAGES
8 EN COULEURS

Vol XV N

Autorisé comme envoi postal de la deuxième classe, ministère des Postes, Ottawa

"Instaurare omnia in Christo"

Dimanche, 28 juin 1953

TANGLEWOOD: LE PARADI

● A Tanglewood, le nombre des voitures stationnées donne une petite idée du nombre des auditeurs. Le triangle blanc, en forme de piano à queue, c'est la "shed"; au fond. le Stockbridge Bowl. (Lire l'article en page 3).

TIDINGS FROM TANGLEWOOD

Each year since 1945, attendance at the Berkshire Music Festival has steadily and substantially increased. Already the 1953 sale of tickets of weekend concerts (July 11-August 15) has exceeded that of 1952, requiring extension of time for the subscription sale.

The conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The soloists include Lukas Foss, Jennie Tourel, Piatigorsky and Seymour Lipkin, all against the background of the full Boston Symphony Orchestra of 104 pieces.

Perhaps a great percentage of those who attend these magnificent, justly famed concerts come for the music alone. On the other hand, who knows? Maybe no one but the critics come for the music alone. For others who demand more than that, there is much more to experience. Music out of doors, by moonlight, under the stars and amid the quiet hills is more than music alone. One must add to that the spell of summer, of gay companionship; of the knowledge that in the crowd at Tanglewood are devotees from Hawaii, Canada, Mexico mingling with folk from every state in the Union. Several times the ex-Empress of Austria came with her family. One summer, the future Queen of Holland sat at intermission penning daisies in her golden hair. Everyone loves music under the stars.

If one gets hungry or thirsty there is plenty of food and refreshments to be had. And on the journey home—for most in attendance a fairly long ride—there are places to stop for quiet supper or supper-dancing. Music at the Festival is the great lure, but there surely are many other inducements for attending the annual Festival.

For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this

n Symphony Orche ment with commis eras by American missions have been onard Rosenman, d to Louis Men ch composer will rd of $750 from sic Foundation the project. and Mennini the Berkshire this season, k upon their ce and guid department's their disposal

---

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week beginning tomorrow night. It will be the popular Edward Andrews in F. Hugh Herbert's "The Moon Is Blue". Sharing the applause will be the talented Gaye Jordan, who contributed much to the Playhouse's success in recent seasons. The young protege of Billy Miles first came into her own as the star of "Peg O' My Heart" when it was staged in Stockbridge.

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Elsie Ferguson proved that she had lost none of her talent as appeared at the Berkshire Playhouse in the Premiere of "And Two Make Four" last week. Courtney Abbott's play for acting on both the part of Miss Ferguson and her co-star, Anthony Kemble Cooper.

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

When the 12th Dance Festival opens at Jacob's Pillow next Friday and Saturday the spectators will be welcoming back two ballet stars who were last on the Berkshire scene in 1951. Melissa Hayden and Michael Maule will be seen in the pas de deux, "Don Quixote", and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake". The former served to introduce the Spanish idiom in the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow back in 1869. It is interesting also to note that "Swan Lake" was originally done in the same theater n 1877. Immedately after her appearances at the Pillow, Miss Hayden leaves for London to dance a four-week engagement wth Ballet Theater in Covent Garden.

Speaking of travel, it makes Ted Shawn happy to realize that his dance Utopia in the Berkshire Hills has become so famous that dancers are willing to come from all parts of the world this summer just to fulfill engagements at this Dance Festival. There is the Lester Horton Co. that arrives this week from California, another unit arrives later from Canada, and Virginia Tanner is bringing a group from the Children's Dance Theater in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a lecture demonstration on Sunday, July 19.

Joan Crawford has been named honorary chairman of Los Angeles' Independence week seeing-eye drive. Now starring in "Torch Song," the actress has been presented a scroll announcing her selection for the post which she will hold during Guid Dog Week, July July 19.

E. H. T

[155]

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUN 27 1953

Two Young Composers Commissioned To Write Tanglewood Operas for '54

LENOX, June 26 (AP) — Two youthfl composers have been commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center to write new operas for presentation at the 1954 Tanglewood season, the center announced today.

Leonard Rosenman of New York city and Louis Mennini, Rochester, N. Y., will receive grants of $750 each from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

Boris Goldovsky, director of Tanglewood's opera department, said the commissions were an experiment by which "it is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition will some workmanlike and effective theater pieces."

Rosenman's compositions have been performed by the Composers' Forum, San Francisco, at the University of California and by the League of Composers, New York city.

Mennini, 32, is a native of Erie Pa., and studied music at Oberlin College. He is a teacher at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester. and previously taught at the University of Texas In 1949, he won the National Institute of Arts and Letters awa

---

EWOOD

Two youthful composers have kshire Music Center to writ the 1954 Tanglewood seas

Rosenman's compositions have been performed by the Composers' Forum, San Francisco, at the University of California and by the League of Composers, New York City.

Mennini, 32, is a native of Erie, Pa., and studied music at Oberlin College. He is a teacher at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, and previously taught at the University of Texas. In 1949 he won the National Institute of Arts and Letters award.

---

land, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the summer of 1954.

Eye to Future

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Goldovsky explains, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important function of the school whose founder, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, was much interested in musical theater. Mr. Goldovsky has been head of the opera department since 1946. Under his tenure such novel works have been performed in past summers at Tanglewood as Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" (1946) and "Albert Herring" (1949), Mozart's "Idomeneo" (1947), "La Finta Giardiniera" (1950) and "Titus" (1952); Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot" (1950); Rossini's "The Turk in Italy" (1948); Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" (1949) Tchaikowsky's "Pique Dame" (1951).

In the season about to open, the opera department will produce Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" on Monday and Tuesday evenings Aug. 10 and 11, and three one-act operas on Monday, Aug. 3: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee."

---

hfield Meeting

rtha Field Featured During ainment

Tanglewood, Lenox. "Romance" b Debussy, "Apres un Reve" and "S cilienne" by Faure, a suite, "Song of Spain" by Nin including "Monta nesa," "Tonada Murcianna," "Sac ta" and "Granadina" were in Mis Field's group.

Mrs. Richard E. Field of Sout Ashfield, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a teacher of piano, was accompanist. Mrs. Donald F. Howes of Ashfield, president of the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club, introduced the musicians. She also gave a short dramatic reading.

Women's clubs represented at the meeting were the Amherst, Athol, Charlemont, Greenfield, South Deerfield, Sunderland, Shelburne Falls, Turners Falls, Orange, North Adams, Lake Pleasant, Ware and Williamsburg.

Luncheon was served by the Junior Ladies' Circle of the church. The next meeting will be in Orange in October.

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE
Organe de
l'Action Sociale Catholique
Rédaction et Administration
Place Jean-Talon Québec

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE

24 PAGES
8 EN COULEURS

Vol XV No

Autorisé comme envoi postal de la deuxième classe, ministère des Postes, Ottawa

"Instaurare omnia in Christo"

Dimanche, 28 juin 1953

TANGLEWOOD: LE PARADIS DE

● A Tanglewood, le nombre des voitures stationnées donne une petite idée du nombre des auditeurs. Le à queue, c'est la "shed"; au fond, le Stockbridge Bowl. (Lire l'article en p

TIDINGS FROM TANGLEWOOD

Each year since 1943, attendance at the Berkshire Music Festival has steadily and substantially increased. Already the 1953 sale of tickets of weekend concerts (July 11-August 15) has exceeded that of 1952, requiring extension of time for the subscription sale.

The conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The soloists include Lukas Foss, Jennie Tourel, Piatigorsky and Seymour Lipkin, all against the background of the full Boston Symphony Orchestra of 104 pieces.

Perhaps a great percentage of those who attend these magnificent, justly famed concerts come for the music alone. On the other hand, who knows? Maybe no one but the critics come for the music alone. For others who demand more than that, there is much more to experience. Music out of doors, by moonlight, under the stars and amid the quiet hills is more than music alone. One must add to that the spell of summer, of gay companionship; of the knowledge that in the crowd at Tanglewood are devotees from Hawaii, Canada, Mexico mingling with folk from every state in the Union. Several times the ex-Empress of Austria came with her family. One summer, the future Queen of Holland sat at intermission penning daisies in her golden hair. Everyone loves music under the stars.

If one gets hungry or thirsty there is plenty of food and refreshments to be had. And on the journey home—for most in attendance a fairly long ride—there are places to stop for quiet supper or supper-dancing. Music at the Festival is the great lure, but there surely are many other inducements for attending the annual Festival.

For the first time in its ten years practical assistance to young erican musicians, the Berkshire ic Center at Tanglewood, which unique in being the only music ool maintained by a symphony chestra in this country, in this se the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennin, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the project.

Foundation
and Mennini
Berkshire
this season,
upon their
and guiddepartment's their disposal.

Le paradis

TAN

DANS les m re, au fond setts, à deux droit au sud
(route 7),
fondé il y a quinze
chose qui est commu
re estival de la musi

Comme dans les s se ux, la musique y ce qui pourrait la la tuer. Tout a c
1936 par le don fait symphonique de Bost
fique domaine de deux cents acres de entretenu et amélio
plus de cent ans p
Tappan, de Boston.
avec son imagination
constructive, vit tout
parti qu'il y aurait à beau domaine en fa
musique.

Il y eut d'abord un
val d'une semaine;
kiosque en bois et une mais la pluie inonda et imposa plusieurs pendant certains con la résolution de cons
bri plus sûr.

On ne perdit pas de
qu'en juin 1938 la gra
était prête. C'est un à grande allure, en for te de tarte, immenses
té par des poutres mé
à claire-voie sur trois son plus petit côté, qu trade des musiciens, e ment fermé. La capa
plus de six mille sièges
tique est si parfaite met l'audition des pianissimo à plusieurs
de leur source, soit da soit en dehors. Auto sièges, court une large de qui permet, aux m pluie, d'abriter les mi diteurs qui écoutent le étendus sur le gazon.

Depuis, ont été la salle d'opéra (mille

● Un concert à l'"Opera que et nature, musique installés sur le gazon.

musi in Le begin to th turf,
The
to Le

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week beginning tomorrow night. It will be the popular Edward Andrews in F. Hugh Herbert's "The Moon Is Blue". Sharing the applause will be the talented Gaye Jordan, who contributed much to the Playhouse's success in recent seasons. The young protege of Billy Miles first came into her own as the star of "Peg O' My Heart" when it was staged in Stockbridge.

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Elsie Ferguson proved that she had lost none of her talent as appeared at the Berkshire Playhouse in the Premiere of "And Two Make Four" last week. Courtney Abbott's play for acting on both the part of Miss Ferguson and her co-star, Anthony Kemble Cooper.

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

When the 12th Dance Festival opens at Jacob's Pillow next Friday and Saturday the spectators will be welcoming back two ballet stars who were last on the Berkshire scene in 1951. Melissa Hayden and Michael Maule will be seen in the pas de deux, "Don Quixote", and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake". The former served to introduce the Spanish idiom in the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow back in 1869. It is interesting also to note that "Swan Lake" was originally done in the same theater n 1877. Immedately after her appearances at the Pillow, Miss Hayden leaves for London to dance a four-week engagement wth Ballet Theater in Covent Garden.

Speaking of travel, it makes Ted Shawn happy to realize that his dance Utopia in the Berkshire Hills has become so famous that dancers are willing to come from all parts of the world this summer just to fulfill engagements at this Dance Festival. There is the Lester Horton Co. that arrives this week from California, another unit arrives later from Canada, and Virginia Tanner is bringing a group from the Children's Dance Theater in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a lecture demonstration on Sunday, July 19.

Joan Crawford has been named honorary chairman of Los Angeles' Independence week seeing-eye drive. Now starring in "Torch Song," the actress has been presented a scroll announcing her selection for the post which she will hold during Guid Dog Week, July July 19.

E. H. T

[155]

Cir. (D 52,771) (S 102,474)

This Clipping From
WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
JUN 27 1953

Around New England

2 TO WRITE OPERAS FOR TANGLEWOOD

LENOX, Saturday (AP)—Two youthful composers have been commissioned by the Berkshire Music Center to write new operas for presentation at the 1954 Tanglewood season, the center announced yesterday.

Leonard Rosenman of New York City and Louis Mennini, Rochester, N. Y., will receive grants of $750 each from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

Boris Goldovsky, director of Tanglewood's opera department, said the commissions were an experiment by which "it is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces."

Rosenman's compositions have been performed by the Composers' Forum, San Francisco, at the University of California and by the League of Composers, New York City.

Mennini, 32, is a native of Erie, Pa., and studied music at Oberlin College. He is a teacher at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, and previously taught at the University of Texas. In 1949 he won the National Institute of Arts and Letters award.

land, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the summer of 1954.

Eye to Future

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Goldovsky explains, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important function of the school whose founder, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, was much interested in musical theater. Mr. Goldovsky has been head of the opera department since 1946. Under his tenure such novel works have been performed in past summers at Tanglewood as Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" (1946) and "Albert Herring" (1949); Mozart's "Idomeneo" (1947), "La Finta Giardiniera" (1950) and "Titus" (1952); Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot" (1950); Rossini's "The Turk in Italy" (1948); Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" (1949) Tchaikowsky's "Pique Dame" (1951).

In the season about to open, the opera department will produce Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 10 and 11, and three one-act operas on Monday, Aug. 3: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee."

---

hfield Meeting

rtha Field Featured During tainment

Tanglewood, Lenox. "Romance" b Debussy, "Apres un Reve" and "S cilienne" by Faure, a suite, "Song of Spain" by Nin including "Monta nesa," "Tonada Murcianna," "Sa ta" and "Granadina" were in Mis Field's group.

Mrs. Richard E. Field of Sout Ashfield, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a teacher of piano, was accompanist. Mrs. Donald F. Howes of Ashfield, president of the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club, introduced the musicians. She also gave a short dramatic reading.

Women's clubs represented at the meeting were the Amherst, Athol, Charlemont, Greenfield, South Deerfield, Sunderland, Shelburne Falls, Turners Falls, Orange, North Adams, Lake Pleasant, Ware and Williamsburg.

Luncheon was served by the Junior Ladies' Circle of the church. The next meeting will be in Orange in October.

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE
Organe de
l'Action Sociale Catholique
Rédaction et Administration
Place Jean-Talon Québec

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE

24 PAGES
8 EN COULEURS

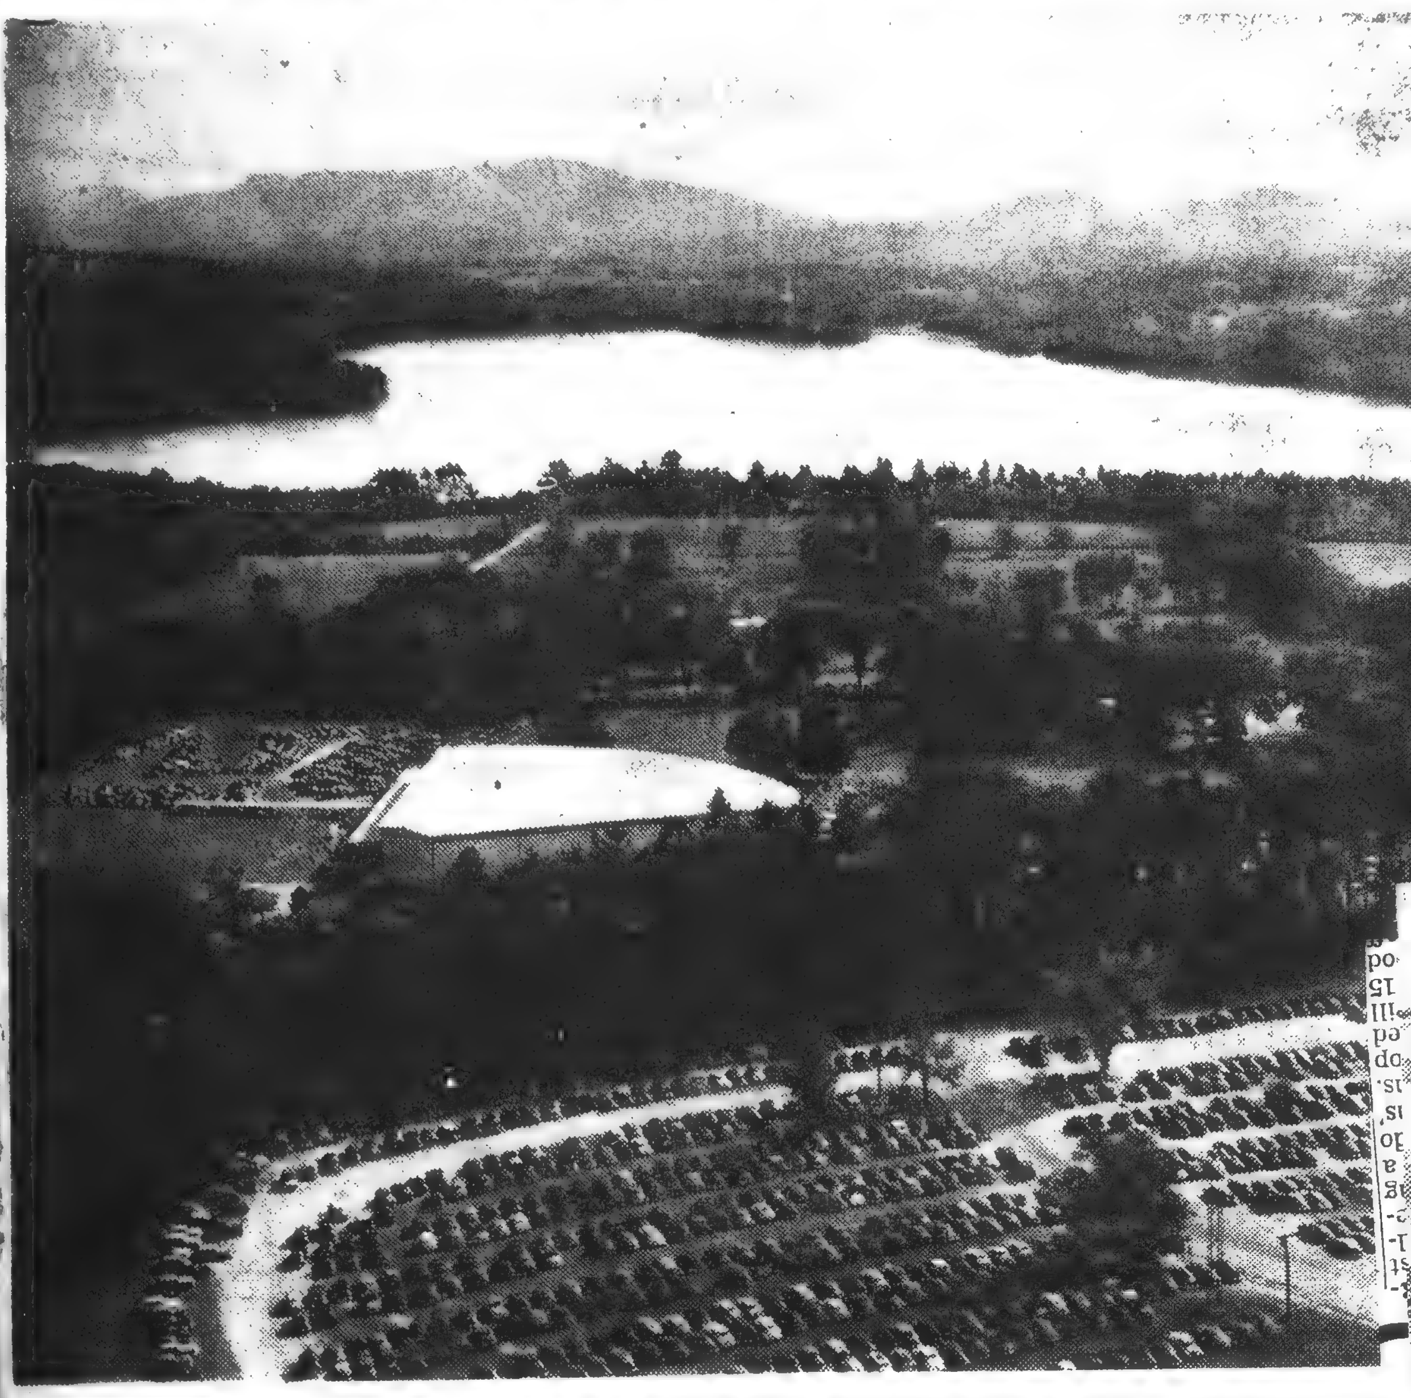
Vol XV No

Autorisé comme envoi postal de la deuxième classe, ministère des Postes, Ottawa

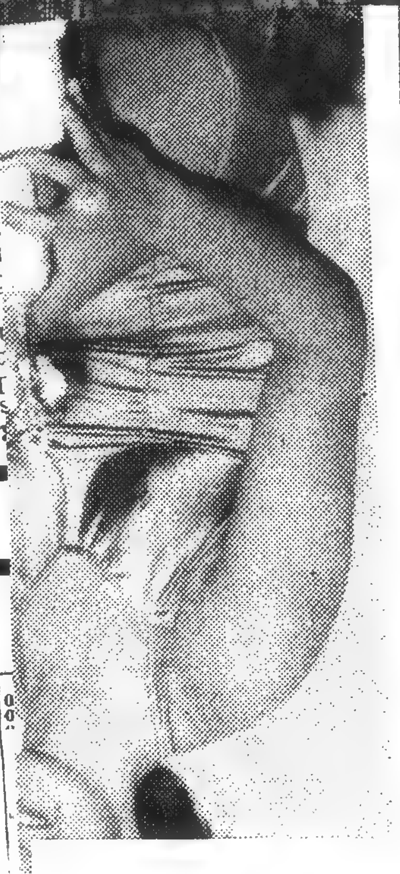
"Instaurare omnia in Christo"

Dimanche, 28 juin 1953

TANGLEWOOD: LE PARADIS DE LA MUSIQUE



● A Tanglewood, le nombre des voitures stationnées donne une petite idée du nombre des auditeurs. Le ... à queue, c'est la "shed"; au fond, le Stockbridge Bowl. (Lire l'article en p



TIDINGS FROM TANGLEWOOD

Each year, since 1945, attendance at the Berkshire Music Festival has steadily and substantially increased. Already the 1953 sale of tickets of weekend concerts (July 11-August 15) has exceeded that of 1952, requiring extension of time for the subscription sale.

The conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The soloists include Lukas Foss, Jennie Tourel, Piatigorsky and Seymour Lipkin, all against the background of the full Boston Symphony Orchestra of 1 4 pieces.

Perhaps a great percentage of those who attend these magnificent, justly famed concerts come for the music alone. On the other hand, who knows? Maybe no one but the critics come for the music alone. For others who demand more than that, there is much more to experience. Music out of doors, by moonlight, under the stars and amid the quiet hills is more than music alone. One must add to that the spell of summer, of gay companionship; of the knowledge that in the crowd at Tanglewood are devotees from Hawaii, Canada, Mexico mingling with folk from every state in the Union. Several times the ex-Empress of Austria came with her family. One summer, the future Queen of Holland sat at intermission penning daisies in her golden hair. Everyone loves music under the stars.

If one gets hungry or thirsty there is plenty of food and refreshments to be had. And on the journey home—for most in attendance a fairly long ride—there are places to stop for quiet supper or supper-dancing. Music at the Festival is the great lure, but there surely are many other inducements for attending the annual Festival.

For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the ... Music Foundation ... the project. ... Mennini ... Berkshire this season, ... upon their ... and guid... department's ... disposal ... first com... radio show ... serving with ... and in the ... producer of ... "Meet the ... Mennini ... Air Force ... ster's degree ... composer of ... the Well."

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week beginning tomorrow night. It will be the popular Edward Andrews in F. Hugh Herbert's "The Moon Is Blue". Sharing the applause will be the talented Gaye Jordan, who contributed much to the Playhouse's success in recent seasons. The young protege of Billy Miles first came into her own as the star of "Peg O' My Heart" when it was staged in Stockbridge.

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Elsie Ferguson proved that she had lost none of her talent as appeared at the Berkshire Playhouse in the Premiere of "And Two Make Four" last week. Courtney Abbott's play for acting on both the part of Miss Ferguson and her co-star, Anthony Kemble Cooper.

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

When the 12th Dance Festival opens at Jacob's Pillow next Friday and Saturday the spectators will be welcoming back two ballet stars who were last on the Berkshire scene in 1951. Melissa Hayden and Michael Maule will be seen in the pas de deux, "Don Quixote", and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake". The former served to introduce the Spanish idiom in the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow back in 1869. It is interesting also to note that "Swan Lake" was originally done in the same theater n 1877. Immedately after her appearances at the Pillow, Miss Hayden leaves for London to dance a four-week engagement wth Ballet Theater in Covent Garden.

Speaking of travel, it makes Ted Shawn happy to realize that his dance Utopia in the Berkshire Hills has become so famous that dancers are willing to come from all parts of the world this summer just to fulfill engagements at this Dance Festival. There is the Lester Horton Co. that arrives this week from California, another unit arrives later from Canada, and Virginia Tanner is bringing a group from the Children's Dance Theater in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a lecture demonstration on Sunday, July 19.

Joan Crawford has been named honorary chairman of Los Angeles' Independence week seeing-eye drive. Now starring in "Torch Song," the actress has been presented a scroll announcing her selection for the post which she will hold during Guid Dog Week, July July 19.

E. H. T

[155]

JUN 28 1953

Young Composers to Write New Operas for Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center to Experiment With Commissioned Works for Student Groups

Lenox, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the practical assistance of the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's 11th six-week summer session on July 5, and Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

Two Commissions

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the summer of 1954.

Eye to Future

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Goldovsky explains, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important function of the school whose founder, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, was much interested in musical theater. Mr. Goldovsky has been head of the opera department since 1946. Under his tenure such novel works have been performed in past summers at Tanglewood as Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" (1946) and "Albert Herring" (1949), Mozart's "Idomeneo" (1947), "La Finta Giardiniera" (1950) and "Titus" (1952); Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot" (1950); Rossini's "The Turk in Italy" (1948); Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" (1949) Tchaikovsky's "Pique Dame" (1951).

In the season about to open, the opera department will produce Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug 10 and 11, and three one-act operas on Monday, Aug 3: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrigé", Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquée."

---

its of District hfield Meeting

rtha Field Featured During ainment

Tanglewood, Lenox. "Romance" b Debussy, "Apres un Reve" and "S cilienne" by Faure, a suite, "Song of Spain" by Nin including "Monta nesa," "Tonada Murcianna," "Sac ta" and "Granadina" were in Mis Field's group.

Mrs. Richard E. Field of South Ashfield, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a teacher of piano, was accompanist. Mrs. Donald F. Howes of Ashfield, president of the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club, introduced the musicians. She also gave a short dramatic reading.

Women's clubs represented at the meeting were the Amherst, Athol, Charlemont, Greenfield, South Deerfield, Sunderland, Shelburne Falls, Turners Falls, Orange, North Adams, Lake Pleasant, Ware and Williamsburg.

Luncheon was served by the Junior Ladies' Circle of the church. The next meeting will be in Orange in October.

Le paradis

TAN

DANS les mo re, au fond setts, à deux
droit au sud
(route 7), K
fondé il y a quinze
chose qui est comme
re estival de la musi

Comme dans les sa se ux, la musique y e ce qui pourrait la f la tuer. Tout a c
1936, par le don fait symphonique de Bost
fique domaine de deux cents acres de entretenu et amélio
plus de cent ans pa
Tappan, de Boston.
avec son imagination
constructive, vit tout
parti qu'il y aurait à beau domaine en fav
musique.

Il y eut d'abord un
val d'une semaine; o kiosque en bois et une mais la pluie inonda l et imposa plusieurs i pendant certains conc la résolution de const
bri plus sûr.

On ne perdit pas de
qu'en juin 1938 la gra
était prête. C'est un b à grande allure, en for te de tarte, immenses
té par des poutres mé
à claire-voie sur trois son plus petit côté, qui trade des musiciens, es ment fermé. La capac
plus de six mille sièges, tique est si parfaite q met l'audition des p
pianissimo à plusieurs
de leur source, soit dan soit en dehors. Auto
sièges, court une large
de qui permet, aux m pluie, d'abriter les mill diteurs qui écoutent les étendus sur le gazon.

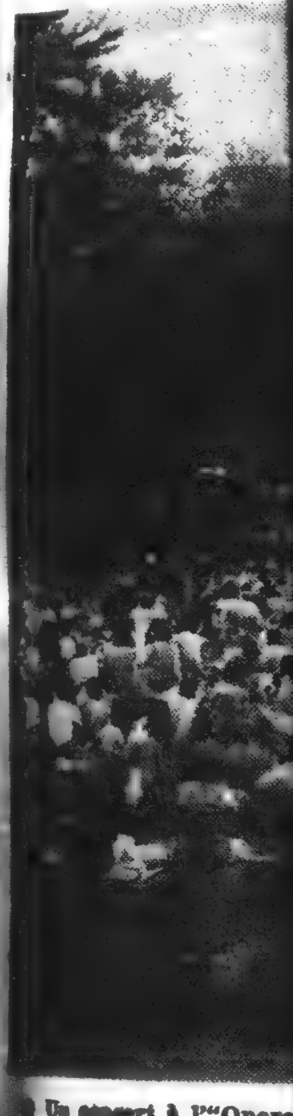
Depuis, ont été c
la salle d'opéra (mille



● Un concert à l'"Opera
... et nature, musique
... installés sur le gazon.

music
in Le begin to the turf,
The l
to Le

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE
Organe de l'Action Sociale Catholique
Rédaction et Administration
Place Jean-Talon Quebec

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE

Vol XV No
Autorisé comme envoi postal de la deuxième classe, ministère des Postes, Ottawa
"Instaurare omnia
24 PAGES 8 EN COULEURS
Dimanche, 28 juin 1953

TANGLEWOOD: LE PARADIS

● A Tanglewood, le nombre des voitures stationnées donne une petite idée du nombre des auditeurs. Le à queue, c'est la "shed"; au fond, le Stockbridge Bowl. (Lire l'article en p

---

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week beginning tomorrow night. It will be the popular Edward Andrews in F. Hugh Herbert's "The Moon Is Blue". Sharing the applause will be the talented Gaye Jordan, who contributed much to the Playhouse's success in recent seasons. The young protege of Billy Miles first came into her own as the star of "Peg O' My Heart" when it was staged in Stockbridge.

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Elsie Ferguson proved that she had lost none of her talent as appeared at the Berkshire Playhouse in the Premiere of "And Two Make Four" last week. Courtney Abbott's play for acting on both the part of Miss Ferguson and her co-star, Anthony Kemble Cooper.

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

When the 12th Dance Festival opens at Jacob's Pillow next Friday and Saturday the spectators will be welcoming back two ballet stars who were last on the Berkshire scene in 1951. Melissa Hayden and Michael Maule will be seen in the pas de deux, "Don Quixote", and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake". The former served to introduce the Spanish idiom in the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow back in 1869. It is interesting also to note that "Swan Lake" was originally done in the same theater n 1877. Immedately after her appearances at the Pillow, Miss Hayden leaves for London to dance a four-week engagement wth Ballet Theater in Covent Garden.

Speaking of travel, it makes Ted Shawn happy to realize that his dance Utopia in the Berkshire Hills has become so famous that dancers are willing to come from all parts of the world this summer just to fulfill engagements at this Dance Festival. There is the Lester Horton Co. that arrives this week from California, another unit arrives later from Canada, and Virginia Tanner is bringing a group from the Children's Dance Theater in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a lecture demonstration on Sunday, July 19.

Joan Crawford has been named honorary chairman of Los Angeles' Independence week seeing-eye drive. Now starring in "Torch Song," the actress has been presented a scroll announcing her selection for the post which she will hold during Guid Dog Week, July July 19.

E. H. T

[155]

TIDINGS FROM TANGLEWOOD

Each year since 1945, attendance at the Berkshire Music Festival has steadily and substantially increased. Already the 1953 sale of tickets of weekend concerts (July 11-August 15) has exceeded that of 1952, requiring extension of time for the subscription sale.

The conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The soloists include Lukas Foss, Jennie Tourel, Piatigorsky and Seymour Lipkin, all against the background of the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra of 104 pieces.

Perhaps a great percentage of those who attend these magnificent, justly famed concerts come for the music alone. On the other hand, who knows? Maybe no one but the critics come for the music alone. For others who demand more than that, there is much more to experience. Music out of doors, by moonlight, under the stars and amid the quiet hills is more than music alone. One must add to that the spell of summer, of gay companionship; of the knowledge that in the crowd at Tanglewood are devotees from Hawaii, Canada, Mexico mingling with folk from every state in the Union. Several times the ex-Empress of Austria came with her family. One summer, the future Queen of Holland sat at intermission penning daisies in her golden hair. Everyone loves music under the stars.

If one gets hungry or thirsty there is plenty of food and refreshments to be had. And on the journey home—for most in attendance a fairly long ride—there are places to stop for quiet supper or supper-dancing. Music at the Festival is the great lure, but there surely are many other inducements for attending the annual Festival.

For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation

the project.
and Mennini
Berkshire
this season,
upon their
and guiddepartment's disposal

first comradio show serving and in the producer of "Meet the Mennini
Air Force
ther's experience composer of the Well"

---

sers to Write or Tanglewood

to Experiment With Com-for Student Groups

Past Presidents of District Attend Ashfield Meeting

Nelga Lynn Jenkins, Martha Field Featured During Entertainment

Ashfield, June 26—The 15th District Past Presidents' Club of the Federated Women's Clubs met here yesterday. Fifty women attended the luncheon meeting in the Congregational Church parish rooms.

Mrs. Frances Streeter of Shelburne Falls, president, conducted the business session. Members heard brief talks by Mrs. Kirk Alexander of Orange, second vice-president of the federation; Mrs. George Bain of Amherst, 15th District director; and Mrs. C. Bankwitz of Turners Falls, district "topics" chairman. Mrs. Streeter paid tribute to the late Mrs. Mary Pratt Potter of Greenfield, a club member and a past state president of the Woman's Club. Mrs. Nole Bergeron of Amherst reported on highlights of the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention in Washington, D. C.

Musical Program

Entertainment which followed featured a musical program. Soprano solos were sung by Miss Nelga Lynn Jenkins of Ashfield is a former pupil of Harry pulsky of New York and Bos who is now singing over a Talent show under the n Nelga Lynn. Her selectio "Glow Worm" by Lincke, jah" by Mozart, "Mighty Rose" by Nevin and "Lo! Gentle Lark" by Sir Hen Violoncello solos were Miss Martha Field of South Ashfield, who is a graduate of Smith College and is studying for her master's degree in music at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. She is studying 'cello with Samuel Mayes, first 'cellist of the Boston Symphony and is doing recital work in New England. During the summer she will study at the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Lenox. "Romance" b Debussy, "Apres un Reve" and "S cilienne" by Faure, a suite, "Song of Spain" by Nin including "Monta nesa," "Tonada Murcianna," "Sac ta" and "Granadina" were in Mis Field's group.

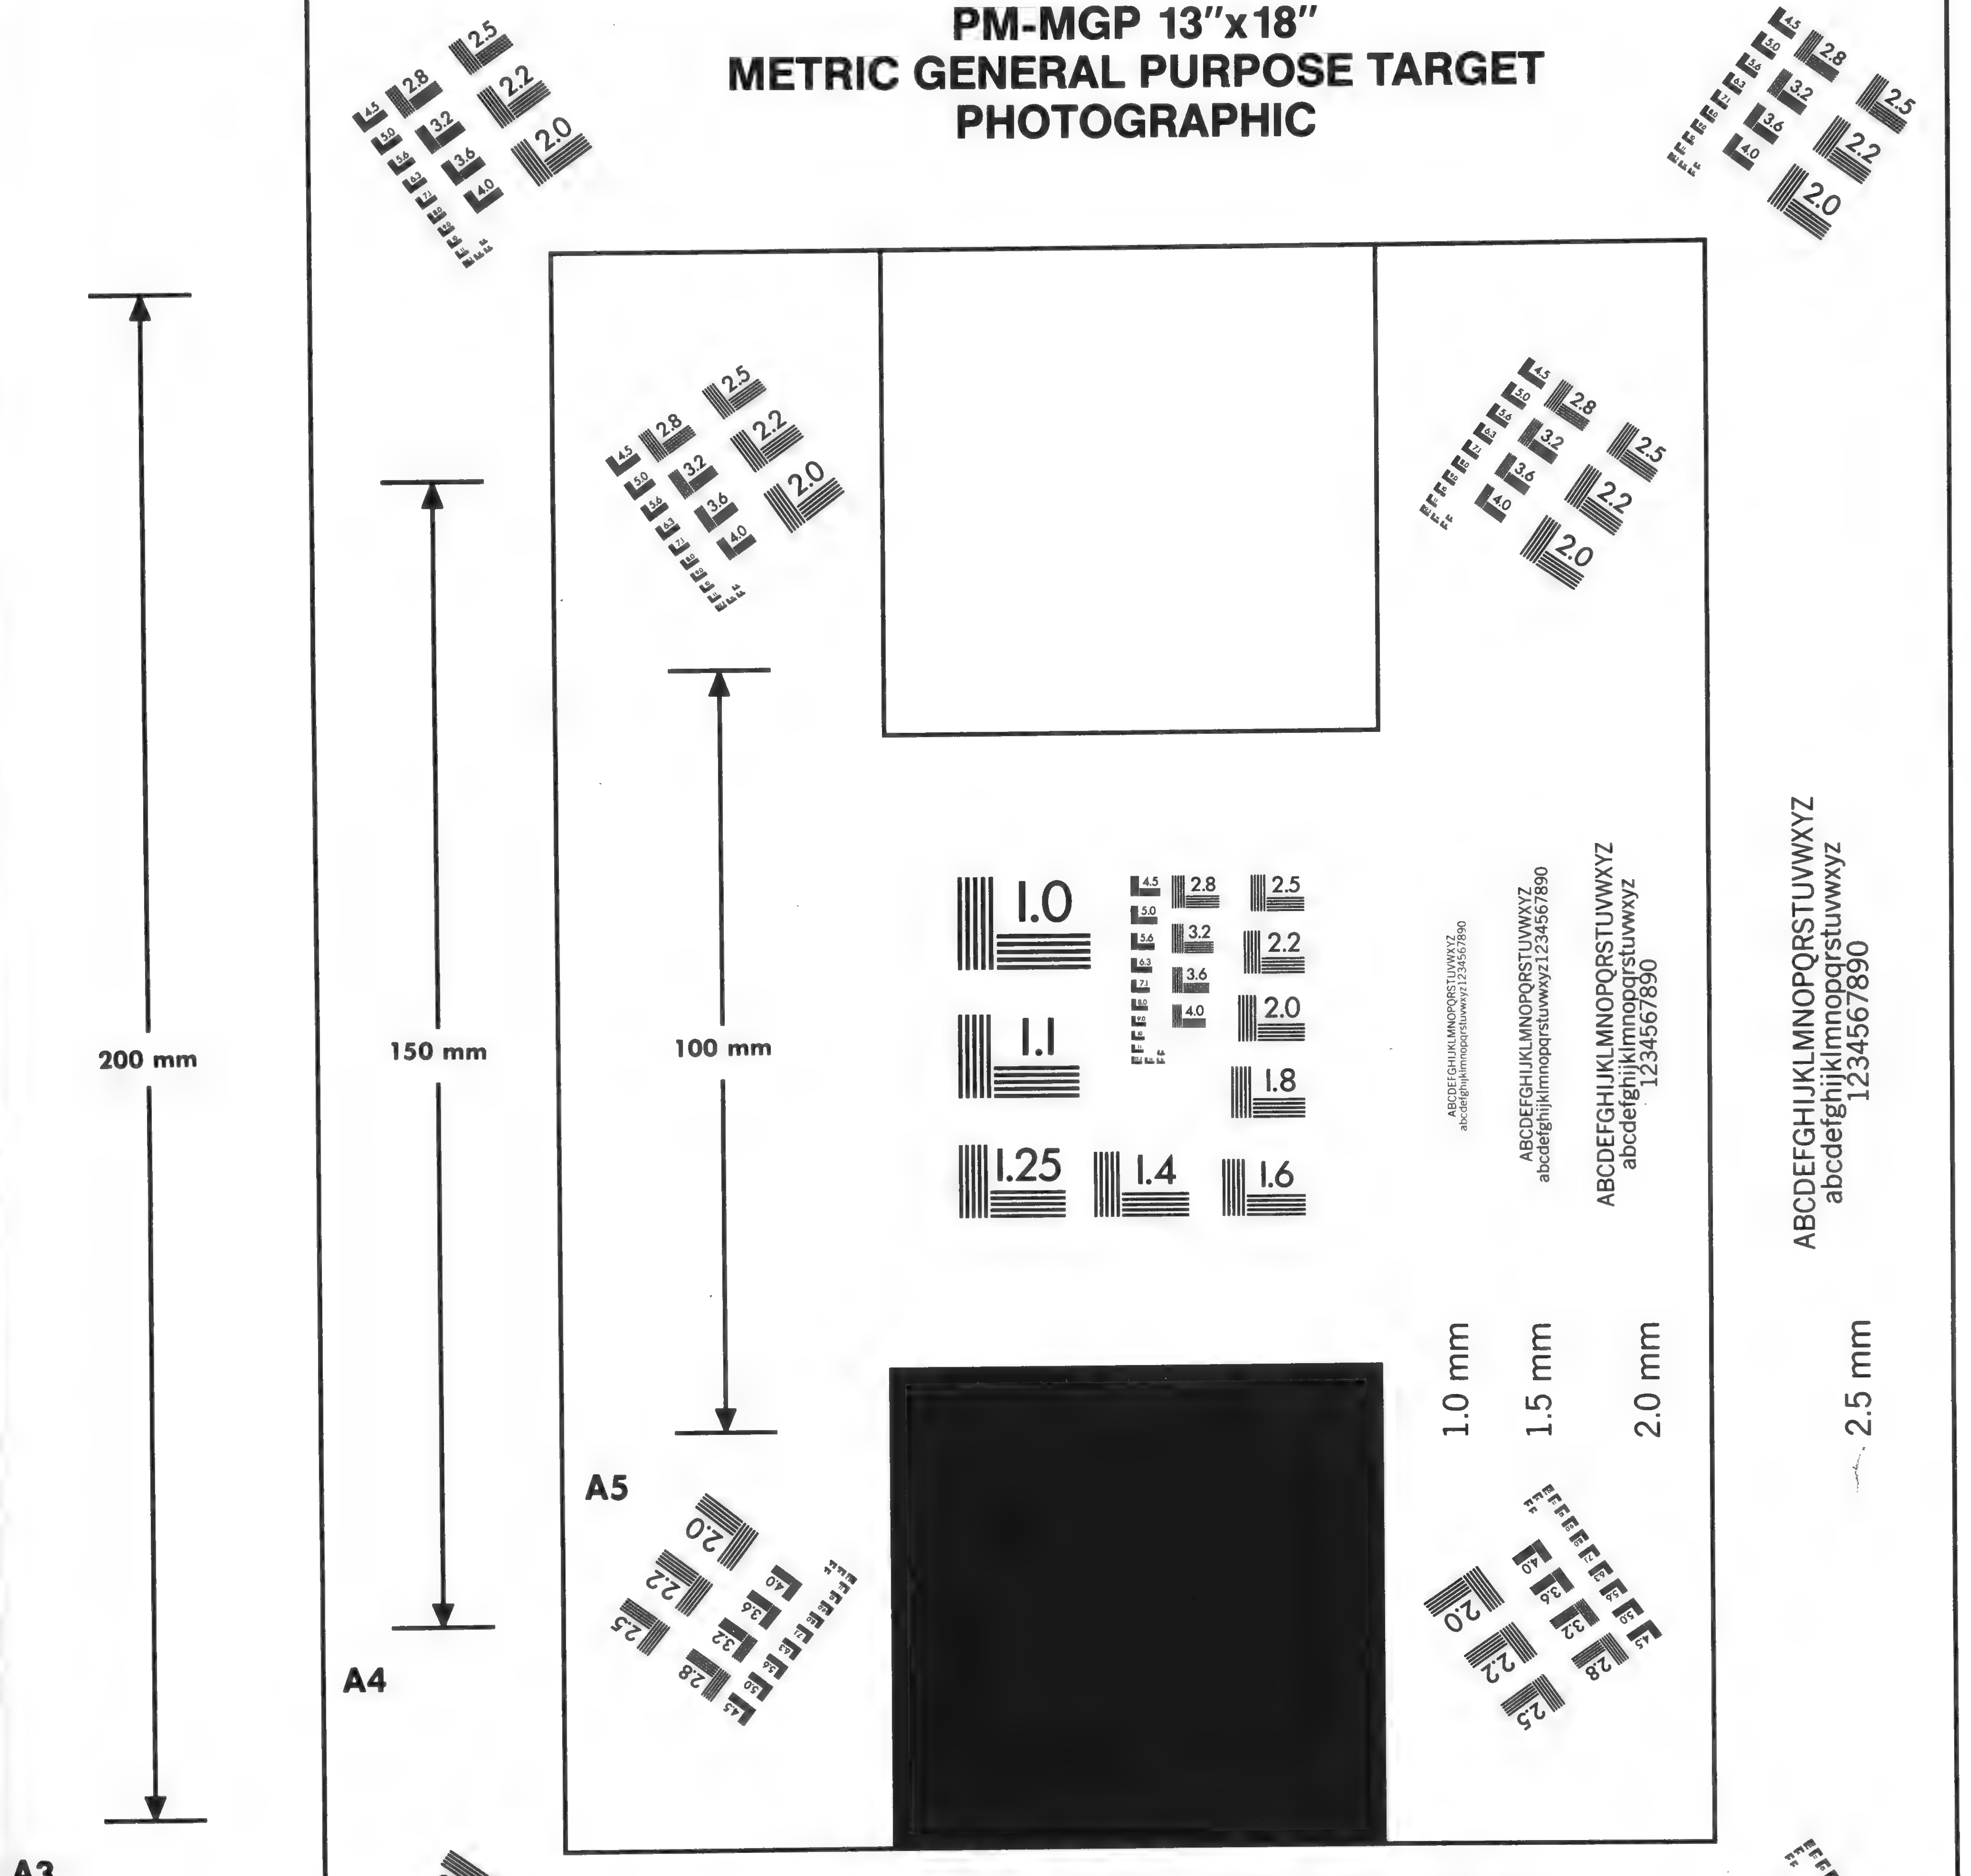
Mrs. Richard E. Field of South Ashfield, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a teacher of piano, was accompanist. Mrs. Donald F. Howes of Ashfield, president of the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club, introduced the musicians. She also gave a short dramatic reading.

Women's clubs represented at the meeting were the Amherst, Athol, Charlemont, Greenfield, South Deerfield, Sunderland, Shelburne Falls, Turners Falls, Orange, North Adams, Lake Pleasant, Ware and Williamsburg.

Luncheon was served by the Junior Ladies' Circle of the church. The next meeting will be in Orange in October.

REDUCTION
RATIO
14x

PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC



2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
2.0
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6
6.3
7.1
8.0
9.0
200 mm
150 mm
100 mm
1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz 1234567890
1.0 mm
1.5 mm
2.0 mm
2.5 mm
A5
A4
A3

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century

A&P

1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE
Organe de
L'Action Sociale Catholique
Rédaction et Administration
Place Jean-Talon, Québec

L'ACTION CATHOLIQUE

24 PAGES
8 EN COULEURS

Vol. XV No.
Autorisé comme envoi postal de la deuxième classe, ministère des Postes, Ottawa
"Instaurare omnia in Christo"
Dimanche, 28 juin 1953

TANGLEWOOD: LE PARADIS DE LA MUSIQUE

● A Tanglewood, le nombre des voitures stationnées donne une petite idée du nombre des auditeurs. Le à queue, c'est la "shed"; au fond, le Stockbridge Bowl. (Lire l'article en p

---

July 2

TIDINGS FROM TANGLEWOOD

Each year, since 1935, attendance at the Berkshire Music Festival has steadily and substantially increased. Already the 1953 sale of tickets of weekend concerts (July 11-August 15) has exceeded that of 1952, requiring extension of time for the subscription sale.

The conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The soloists include Lukas Foss, Jennie Tourel, Piatagorsky and Seymour Lipkin, all against the background of the full Boston Symphony Orchestra of 104 pieces.

Perhaps a great percentage of those who attend these magnificent, justly famed concerts come for the music alone. On the other hand, who knows? Maybe no one but the critics come for the music alone. For others who demand more than that, there is much more to experience. Music out of doors, by moonlight, under the stars and amid the quiet hills is more than music alone. One must add to that the spell of summer, of gay companionship; of the knowledge that in the crowd at Tanglewood are devotees from Hawaii, Canada, Mexico mingling with folk from every state in the Union. Several times the ex-Empress of Austria came with her family. One summer, the future Queen of Holland sat at intermission penning daisies in her golden hair. Everyone loves music under the stars.

If one gets hungry or thirsty there is plenty of food and refreshments to be had. And on the journey home—for most in attendance a fairly long ride—there are places to stop for quiet supper or supper-dancing. Music at the Festival is the great lure, but there surely are many other inducements for attending the annual Festival.

For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennin, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from [illegible] Music Foundation [illegible] the project. [illegible] Mennini [illegible] Berkshire [illegible] this season, [illegible] upon their [illegible] and guidance [illegible] department's [illegible] disposal.

[illegible] first com[illegible] radio shows [illegible] with [illegible] in the [illegible] producer of "Meet the [illegible] Mennini [illegible] Air Force [illegible] degree [illegible] composer of [illegible] Well."

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week beginning tomorrow night. It will be the popular Edward Andrews in F. Hugh Herbert's "The Moon Is Blue". Sharing the applause will be the talented Gaye Jordan, who contributed much to the Playhouse's success in recent seasons. The young protege of Billy Miles first came into her own as the star of "Peg O' My Heart" when it was staged in Stockbridge.

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Elsie Ferguson proved that she had lost none of her talent as appeared at the Berkshire Playhouse in the Premiere of "And Two Make Four" last week. Courtney Abbott's play for acting on both the part of Miss Ferguson and her co-star, Anthony Kemble Cooper.

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

When the 12th Dance Festival opens at Jacob's Pillow next Friday and Saturday the spectators will be welcoming back two ballet stars who were last on the Berkshire scene in 1951. Melissa Hayden and Michael Maule will be seen in the pas de deux, "Don Quixote", and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake". The former served to introduce the Spanish idiom in the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow back in 1869. It is interesting also to note that "Swan Lake" was originally done in the same theater n 1877. Immedately after her appearances at the Pillow, Miss Hayden leaves for London to dance a four-week engagement wth Ballet Theater in Covent Garden.

Speaking of travel, it makes Ted Shawn happy to realize that his dance Utopia in the Berkshire Hills has become so famous that dancers are willing to come from all parts of the world this summer just to fulfill engagements at this Dance Festival. There is the Lester Horton Co. that arrives this week from California, another unit arrives later from Canada, and Virginia Tanner is bringing a group from the Children's Dance Theater in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a lecture demonstration on Sunday, July 19.

Joan Crawford has been named honorary chairman of Los Angeles' Independence week seeing-eye drive. Now starring in "Torch Song," the actress has been presented a scroll announcing her selection for the post which she will hold during Guid Dog Week, July July 19.

E. H. T

JUN 28 1953

Young Composers to Write New Operas for Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center to Experiment With Commissioned Works for Student Groups

Lenox, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the practical assistance of the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's 11th six-week summer session on July 5, and Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

Two Commissions

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the summer of 1954.

Eye to Future

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Goldovsky explains, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in ad-

---

its of District shfield Meeting

rtha Field Featured During tainment

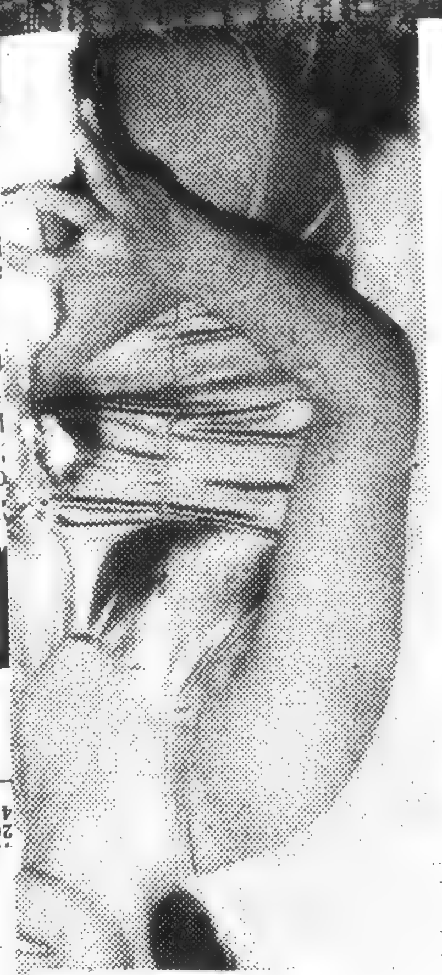
Tanglewood, Lenox. "Romance" b Debussy, "Apres un Reve" and "Sicilienne" by Faure, a suite, "Song of Spain" by Nin including "Montanesa," "Tonada Murcianna," "Saeta" and "Granadina" were in Miss Field's group.

Mrs. Richard E. Field of South Ashfield, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a teacher of piano, was accompanist. Mrs. Donald F. Howes of Ashfield, president of the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club, introduced the musicians. She also gave a short dramatic reading.

Women's clubs represented at the meeting were the Amherst, Athol, Charlemont, Greenfield, South Deerfield, Sunderland, Shelburne Falls, Turners Falls, Orange, North Adams, Lake Pleasant, Ware and Williamsburg.

Luncheon was served by the Junior Ladies' Circle of the church. The next meeting will be in Orange in October.

● A Tanglewood, le nombre des voitures stationnées donne une petite idée du nombre des auditeurs. Le
à queue, c'est la "shed"; au fond, le Stockbridge Bowl. (Lire l'article en p



Each year since [illegible] attend-ance at the Berkshire Music Festival has steadily and substantially increased. Already the 1953 sale of tickets of weekend concerts (July 11-August 15) has exceeded that of 1952, requiring extension of time for the subscription sale.

The conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The soloists include Lukas Foss, Jennie Tourel, Piatigorsky and Seymour Lipkin, all against the background of the Boston Symphony Orchestra of 104 pieces.

Perhaps a great percentage of those who attend these magnificent, justly famed concerts come for the music alone. On the other hand, who knows? Maybe no one but the critics come for the music alone. For others who demand more than that, there is much more to experience. Music out of doors, by moonlight, under the stars and amid the quiet hills is more than music alone. One must add to that the spell of summer, of gay companionship; of the knowledge that in the crowd at Tanglewood are devotees from Hawaii, Canada, Mexico mingling with folk from every state in the Union. Several times the ex-Empress of Austria came with her family. One summer, the future Queen of Holland sat at intermission penning daisies in her golden hair. Everyone loves music under the stars.

If one gets hungry or thirsty there is plenty of food and refreshments to be had. And on the journey home—for most in attendance a fairly long ride—there are places to stop for quiet supper or supper-dancing. Music at the Festival is the great lure, but there surely are many other inducements for attending the annual Festival.

For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennin, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the K[illegible] Foundation

the project.
and Mennini
Berkshire
his season,
upon their
and guidpartment's disposal

first com-dio shows ing with in the ducer of Meet the Mennini
Air Force
's degree
mposer of Well."

---

re estival de Comme dans se ux, la musiq ce qui pourrai la tuer. Tout 1936, par le do symphonique de fique domaine deux cents acr entretenu et plus de cent
Tappan, de Bos avec son imagin constructive, vi
parti qu'il y au beau domaine
musique.

Il y eut d'abo val d'une semai kiosque en bois mais la pluie in et imposa plusie pendant certain la résolution de bri plus sûr.

On ne perdit qu'en juin 1938
était prête. C'es
a grande allure, te de tarte, imm
té par des pout à claire-voie sur son plus petit c trade des musici ment fermé. La plus de six mille tique est si par met l'audition pianissimo à plu
de leur source,
soit en dehors.
sièges, court un
de qui permet, pluie, d'abriter
diteurs qui écou
étendus sur le ga
Depuis, ont
la salle d'opéra

● Un concert à l
ue et nature,
tallés sur le ga

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge goes from drama to comedy in its second week beginning tomorrow night. It will be the popular Edward Andrews in F. Hugh Herbert's "The Moon Is Blue". Sharing the applause will be the talented Gaye Jordan, who contributed much to the Playhouse's success in recent seasons. The young protege of Billy Miles first came into her own as the star of "Peg O' My Heart" when it was staged in Stockbridge.

CARLOS CHAVEZ

Elsie Ferguson proved that she had lost none of her talent as appeared at the Berkshire Playhouse in the Premiere of "And Two Make Four" last week. Courtney Abbott's play for acting on both the part of Miss Ferguson and her co-star, Anthony Kemble Cooper.

Preliminary activities are beginning to step up in tempo at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Berkshire Music Center is unique in that it will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. Evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, the plan will be put into effect with the opening of the Center's 11-week session a week hence. It is hoped that it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival Concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, and with a student orchestra performing.

Initial commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York City and N.Y. They will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation and will be guests at the Center through this season when they will begin work on their operas. The advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff will be at their disposal.

The distinguished Mexican composer and conductor, Carlos Chavez, will be the guest composer with the conducting class of the Berkshire Music Center this season. He is conductor of the Mexico City Symphony. President Aleman of Mexico named him Minister of Fine Arts of Mexico. Mr. Chavez's "Sinfonia India" will be featured at the August 15 concert of the Berkshire Festival in the shed at Tanglewood.

When the 12th Dance Festival opens at Jacob's Pillow next Friday and Saturday the spectators will be welcoming back two ballet stars who were last on the Berkshire scene in 1951. Melissa Hayden and Michael Maule will be seen in the pas de deux, "Don Quixote", and excerpts from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake". The former served to introduce the Spanish idiom in the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow back in 1869. It is interesting also to note that "Swan Lake" was originally done in the same theater n 1877. Immedately after her appearances at the Pillow, Miss Hayden leaves for London to dance a four-week engagement wth Ballet Theater in Covent Garden.

Speaking of travel, it makes Ted Shawn happy to realize that his dance Utopia in the Berkshire Hills has become so famous that dancers are willing to come from all parts of the world this summer just to fulfill engagements at this Dance Festival. There is the Lester Horton Co. that arrives this week from California, another unit arrives later from Canada, and Virginia Tanner is bringing a group from the Children's Dance Theater in Salt Lake City, Utah, for a lecture demonstration on Sunday, July 19.

Joan Crawford has been named honorary chairman of Los Angeles' Independence week seeing-eye drive. Now starring in "Torch Song," the actress has been presented a scroll announcing her selection for the post which she will hold during Guid Dog Week, July July 19.

E. H. T

[155]

JUN 28 1953

Young Composers to Write New Operas for Tanglewood

Berkshire Music Center to Experiment With Commissioned Works for Student Groups

Lenox, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, which is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this case the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the practical assistance of the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's 11th six-week summer session on July 5, and Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

Two Commissions

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York City, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Messrs. Rosenmen and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By midsummer it is expected the composers will have certain fragments completed so they can be experimented with, in collaboration with technicians on costumes, scenery, makeup, lighting, orchestra. By the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, thereupon the composers will have almost a full year to complete their works for performance during the summer of 1954.

Eye to Future

"It is our earnest hope this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition," Goldovsky explains, "will evolve some workmanlike and effective theater pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important function of the school whose founder, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, was much interested in musical theater. Mr. Goldovsky has been head of the opera department since 1946. Under his tenure such novel works have been performed in past summers at Tanglewood as Benjamin Britten's "Peter Grimes" (1946) and "Albert Herring" (1949); Mozart's "Idomeneo" (1947), "La Finta Giardiniera' (1950) and "Titus" (1952); Ibert's "Le Roid'Yvetot" (1950); Rossini's "The Turk in Italy" (1948); Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" (1949) Tchaikowsky's "Pique Dame" (1951).

In the season about to open, the opera department will produce Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Aug. 10 and 11; and three one-act operas on Monday, Aug. 3: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee."

---

ts of District hfield Meeting

rtha Field Featured During tainment

Tanglewood, Lenox. "Romance" b Debussy, "Apres un Reve" and "S cilienne" by Faure, a suite, "Song of Spain" by Nin including "Monta nesa," "Tonada Murcianna," "Sac ta" and "Granadina" were in Mis Field's group.

Mrs. Richard E. Field of South Ashfield, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and a teacher of piano, was accompanist. Mrs. Donald F. Howes of Ashfield, president of the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club, introduced the musicians. She also gave a short dramatic reading.

Women's clubs represented at the meeting were the Amherst, Athol, Charlemont, Greenfield, South Deerfield, Sunderland, Shelburne Falls, Turners Falls, Orange, North Adams, Lake Pleasant, Ware and Williamsburg.

Luncheon was served by the Junior Ladies' Circle of the church. The next meeting will be in Orange in October.

June 28, 1953

Le paradis de la musique

TANGLEWOOD

D[illegible] monts Berkshi[illegible] du Massachu[illegible] ux cents milles, [illegible] sud de Montréal, [illegible] Koussevitski a [illegible] quinze ans, quelque [illegible] est comme un sanctuai[illegible]

[illegible] sanctuaires d'oi[illegible] y est à l'abri de [illegible] la faire fuir ou [illegible] a commencé en [illegible] don fait à l'Orchestre [illegible] de Boston du magnifique domaine de Tanglewood: deux cents acres de parc solide, [illegible] et amélioré pendant [illegible] de cent ans par la famille Tappan de Boston. Koussevitski, avec son imagination ardente et constructive, vit tout de suite le parti qu'il y aurait à tirer de ce beau domaine en faveur de la musique.

Il y eut d'abord un court festival d'une semaine; on utilisa un kiosque en bois et une large tente; mais la pluie inonda les auditeurs et imposa plusieurs interruptions pendant certains concerts. D'où la résolution de construire un abri plus sur.

On ne perdit pas de temps, puisqu'en juin 1938 la grande "Shed" était prete. C'est un bâtiment qui [illegible] grande allure, en forme de pointe de tarte, immenses toit supporte par des poutres métalliques et à claire-voie sur trois côtés. Seul son plus petit côté, qui forme l'estrade des musiciens, est complètement fermé. La capacite est de plus de six mille sièges, et l'acoustique est si parfaite qu'elle permet l'audition des plus légers [illegible] a plusieurs mille pieds de leur source soit dans l'édifice, soit en dehors. Autour de ces sièges court une large promenade qui permet aux moments de pluie d'abriter les milliers d'auditeurs qui ecoutent les concerts, étendus sur le gazon.

Depuis ont été construites: la salle d'opera ([illegible] sieges) et la salle de musique de chambre (cinq cents sièges), ainsi qu'une scène en plein air pour divers exercices et pour les concerts d'opéra, et une estrade abritée d'un auvent. Et partout quand on parcourt le domaine, on trouve dans ces locaux primitifs de grands Baldwin de concert! Les salles d'opéra et de musique de chambre ont des pans mobiles qui s'enlèvent lorsqu'il fait beau, et qui permettent, par exemple, d'écouter un quatuor en ayant vue sur le Stockbridge Bowl et les grandes montagnes vertes qui l'encerclent.

Si Koussevitski a voulu un festival en pleine nature, il a voulu aussi que Tanglewood serve d'école de musique en plein air. Les professeurs sont surtout des membres de l'Orchestre de Boston; les plus grandes célébrités mondiales y sont invitées à professer: Ibert, Milhaud, Hindemith, Copeland, Messiaen, Piatigorski. . . En fait, Tanglewood est la maison de campagne de l'Orchestre symphonique de Boston, dans l'un des plus merveilleux sites au monde. Il y a plus de trois cents élèves réguliers.

Le profane, le simple auditeur a-t-il sa place dans ce paysage féérique? Oui. A certaines heures, entre les heures de cours et d'étude) le public peut y circuler et y pique-niquer. Le festival offre chaque semaine trois grands concerts de l'Orchestre symphonique de Boston: jeudi et samedi soir, dimanche après-midi. De grands ensembles de musique de chambre quatuors Juilliard, Coolidge) sont aussi fréquemments présentés en des concerts payants.

De plus, les "Amis de Tanglewood" sont admis à tous les concerts donnés par les élèves, sur simple présentation de leur carte. Une souscription de valeur indéterminée au fond des bourses donne droit à cette carte, qui vaut pour la saison. Dans quinze jours, on peut attraper une dizaine de ces concerts pour cinq ou dix dollars!

Le public répond à l'invitation. Les salles sont presque toujours combles. Si on arrive en retard, on doit se trouver un coin debout. Les grands concerts du Festival attirent une dizaine de milliers d'auditeurs, qui viennent de partout. Les plaques de licence d'automobile indiquent tous les Etats et tous les provinces. Mais de New-York, qui est à cent quarante mille, semble venir le gros contingent.

Les voisins, évidemment, après quinze ans de concerts si abondants, sont moins épatés que le premier jour, et plus sensibles aux défauts de l'organisation. Ils trouvent, par exemple que l'atmosphère est un peu trop celle d'une exposition ou d'un field day. Au moment des repas et avant les grands concerts, la foule ressemble, bien qu'en plus distingué, à celle d'une grande foire. Mais que la cloche de locomotive annonce le début du concert, et aussitôt cette foule se révèle faite de mélomanes intelligents, expéditifs à prendre leur siège et très aptes au recueillement requis. Il est très remarquable que dans cette foule, personne ne dérange ses voisins.

Une vacance à Tanglewood est une expérience très enrichissante dans une des régions les plus humanisées de l'Amérique. C'est à la fin de juillet et dans la première quinzaine d'août qu'il y a le plus d'événements intéressants à Tanglewood. Pour s'assurer une pension on peut s'adresser à la Berkshire Conference, Pittsfield, Mass.

René GIRARD, ptre.

● Un concert familier de la chorale, à Tanglewood. Un élève dirige. Le chef de cette section, Hugh Rose, est assis à gauche. On perçoit la familiarité qui s'établit entre les exécutants et les auditeurs.

● A Tanglewood, la grande "shed" qui contient 7,000 sièges et où l'orchestre de Boston donne ses concerts d'été. On compte jusqu'à 10,000 auditeurs — les 3,000 de surplus s'étendent sur le gazon, où l'on entend encore parfaitement la musique.

● Un concert à l'"Opera Hall" de Tanglewood. On saisit parfaitement l'atmosphère des concerts: musique et nature, musique et vacances... Il y a mille auditeurs dans la salle, en plus de ceux qui sont installés sur le gazon.

HARPER'S BAZAAR
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL - 1953

music there is the Berkshire concert series at Tanglewood, in Lenox, Massachusetts, conducted by Charles Munch. These begin July 11, end August 16. Apply for tickets beforehand to the Boston Symphony; or if you want to lounge on the turf, buy them at the last minute at Tanglewood's gates. The last two weeks of August bring another kind of harmony to Lenox: the jazz symposium, held at the Music Inn.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUL 3 - 1953

Tanglewood Will Present 5 Brandenburg Concertos

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood will open its program of six weekends of concerts at 8:30 p. m. July 11 when Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program consisting of five of the six Brandenburg concertos.

Lukas Foss, composer, conductor and pianist, will be heard in a piano solo in the fifth concerto.

The concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra. Other soloists will be Harold Gomberg, obie; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, violin.

The second Bach concert will open at 2:30 p. m. July 12 with the orchestra's performance of Cantata No. 28 with the Festival Chorus, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists will be Sarah Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass, and Miss Anthony.

CHARLES MUNCH
Concert Conductor

The symphony orchestra of students of the Berkshire Music Center, summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony, will appear in the first school performance at 8:30 p. m. next Friday in the Shed at Tanglewood.

[156]

June 28, 1953

Le paradis de la musique

TANGLEWOOD

DANS les monts Berkshire, au fond du Massachusetts, à deux cents milles, droit au sud de Montréal, (route 7), Koussevitski a fondé il y a quinze ans, quelque chose qui est comme un sanctuaire estival de la musique.

Comme dans les sanctuaires d'oiseaux, la musique y est à l'abri de ce qui pourrait la faire fuir ou la tuer. Tout a commencé en 1936, par le don fait à l'Orchestre symphonique de Boston du magnifique domaine de Tanglewood: deux cents acres de parc solide, entretenu et amélioré pendant plus de cent ans par la famille Tappan, de Boston. Koussevitski, avec son imagination ardente et constructive, vit tout de suite le parti qu'il y aurait à tirer de ce beau domaine en faveur de la musique.

Il y eut d'abord un court festival d'une semaine; on utilisa un kiosque en bois et une large tente; mais la pluie inonda les auditeurs et imposa plusieurs interruptions pendant certains concerts. D'où la résolution de construire un abri plus sûr.

On ne perdit pas de temps, puisqu'en juin 1938 la grande "Shed" était prête. C'est un bâtiment qui a grande allure, en forme de pointe de tarte, immenses toit supporté par des poutres métalliques et à claire-voie sur trois côtés. Seul son plus petit côté, qui forme l'estrade des musiciens, est complètement fermé. La capacité est de plus de six mille sièges, et l'acoustique est si parfaite qu'elle permet l'audition des plus légers pianissimo à plusieurs mille pieds de leur source, soit dans l'édifice, soit en dehors. Autour de ces sièges, court une large promenade qui permet, aux moments de pluie, d'abriter les milliers d'auditeurs qui écoutent les concerts, étendus sur le gazon.

Depuis, ont été construites: la salle d'opéra (mille sièges) et la salle de musique de chambre (cinq cents sièges), ainsi qu'une scène en plein air pour divers exercices et pour les concerts d'opéra, et une estrade abritée d'un auvent. Et partout quand on parcourt le domaine, on trouve dans ces locaux primitifs de grands Baldwin de concert! Les salles d'opéra et de musique de chambre ont des pans mobiles qui s'enlèvent lorsqu'il fait beau, et qui permettent, par exemple, d'écouter un quatuor en ayant vue sur le Stockbridge Bowl et les grandes montagnes vertes qui l'encerclent.

Si Koussevitski a voulu un festival en pleine nature, il a voulu aussi que Tanglewood serve d'école de musique en plein air. Les professeurs sont surtout des membres de l'Orchestre de Boston; les plus grandes célébrités mondiales y sont invitées à professer: Ibert, Milhaud, Hindemith, Copeland, Messiaen, Piatigorski. . . En fait, Tanglewood est la maison de campagne de l'Orchestre symphonique de Boston, dans l'un des plus merveilleux sites au monde. Il y a plus de trois cents élèves réguliers.

Le profane, le simple auditeur a-t-il sa place dans ce paysage féérique? Oui. A certaines heures, entre les heures de cours et d'étude) le public peut y circuler et y pique-niquer. Le festival offre chaque semaine trois grands concerts de l'Orchestre symphonique de Boston: jeudi et samedi soir, dimanche après-midi. De grands ensembles de musique de chambre quatuors Juilliard, Coolidge) sont aussi fréquemments présentés en des concerts payants.

De plus, les "Amis de Tanglewood" sont admis à tous les concerts donnés par les élèves, sur simple présentation de leur carte. Une souscription de valeur indéterminée au fond des bourses donne droit à cette carte, qui vaut pour la saison. Dans quinze jours, on peut attraper une dizaine de ces concerts pour cinq ou dix dollars!

● Un concert familier de la chorale, à Tanglewood. Un élève dirige. Le chef de cette section, Hugh Ross, est assis à gauche. On perçoit la familiarité qui s'établit entre les exécutants et les auditeurs.

Le public répond à l'invitation. Les salles sont presque toujours combles. Si on arrive en retard, on doit se trouver un coin debout. Les grands concerts du Festival attirent une dizaine de milliers d'auditeurs, qui viennent de partout. Les plaques de licence d'automobile indiquent tous les Etats et tous les provinces. Mais de New-York, qui est à cent quarante mille, semble venir le gros contingent.

Les voisins, évidemment, après quinze ans de concerts si abondants, sont moins épatés que le premier jour, et plus sensibles aux défauts de l'organisation. Ils trouvent, par exemple que l'atmosphère est un peu trop celle d'une exposition ou d'un field day. Au moment des repas et avant les grands concerts, la foule ressemble, bien qu'en plus distingué, à celle d'une grande foire. Mais que la cloche de locomotive annonce le début du concert, et aussitôt cette foule se révèle faite de mélomanes intelligents, expéditifs à prendre leur siège et très aptes au recueillement requis. Il est très remarquable que dans cette foule, personne ne dérange ses voisins.

Une vacance à Tanglewood est une expérience très enrichissante dans une des régions les plus humanisées de l'Amérique. C'est à la fin de juillet et dans la première quinzaine d'août qu'il y a le plus d'événements intéressants à Tanglewood. Pour s'assurer une pension on peut s'adresser à la Berkshire Conference, Pittsfield, Mass.

René GIRARD, ptre.

● A Tanglewood, la grande "shed" qui contient 7,000 sièges et où l'orchestre de Boston donne ses concerts d'été. On compte jusqu'à 10,000 auditeurs — les 3,000 de surplus s'étendent sur le gazon, où l'on entend encore parfaitement la musique.

● Un concert à l'"Opera Hall" de Tanglewood. On saisit parfaitement l'atmosphère des concerts: mu-ique et nature, musique et vacances... Il y a mille auditeurs dans la salle, en plus de ceux qui sont stallés sur le gazon.

HARPER'S BAZAAR
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL - 1953

music there is the Berkshire concert series at Tanglewood, in Lenox, Massachusetts, conducted by Charles Munch. These begin July 11, end August 16. Apply for tickets beforehand to the Boston Symphony; or if you want to lounge on the turf, buy them at the last minute at Tanglewood's gates. The last two weeks of August bring another kind of harmony to Lenox: the jazz symposium, held at the Music Inn.

[156]

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUL 3 - 1953

Tanglewood Will Present 5 Brandenburg Concertos

The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood will open its program of six weekends of concerts at 8:30 p. m. July 11 when Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program consisting of five of the six Brandenburg concertos.

Lukas Foss, composer, conductor and pianist, will be heard in a piano solo in the fifth concerto.

The concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra. Other soloists will be Harold Gomberg, obie; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, violin.

The second Bach concert will open at 2:30 p. m. July 12 with the orchestra's performance of Cantata No. 28 with the Festival Chorus, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists will be Sarah Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass, and Miss Anthony.

CHARLES MUNCH
Concert Conductor

The symphony orchestra of students of the Berkshire Music Center, summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony, will appear in the first school performance at 8:30 p. m. next Friday in the Shed at Tanglewood.

N.H. R.R. Travel Guide

July 1953

In the usual order are Charles Munch, Music Director, Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest conductors Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein

Berkshire Music Festival

A vacation high note

The month of July sees the principals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra assembling in Tanglewood, its 200-acre property lying between Lenox and Stockbridge, Massachusetts, in the Berkshire Hills of Western Massachusetts.

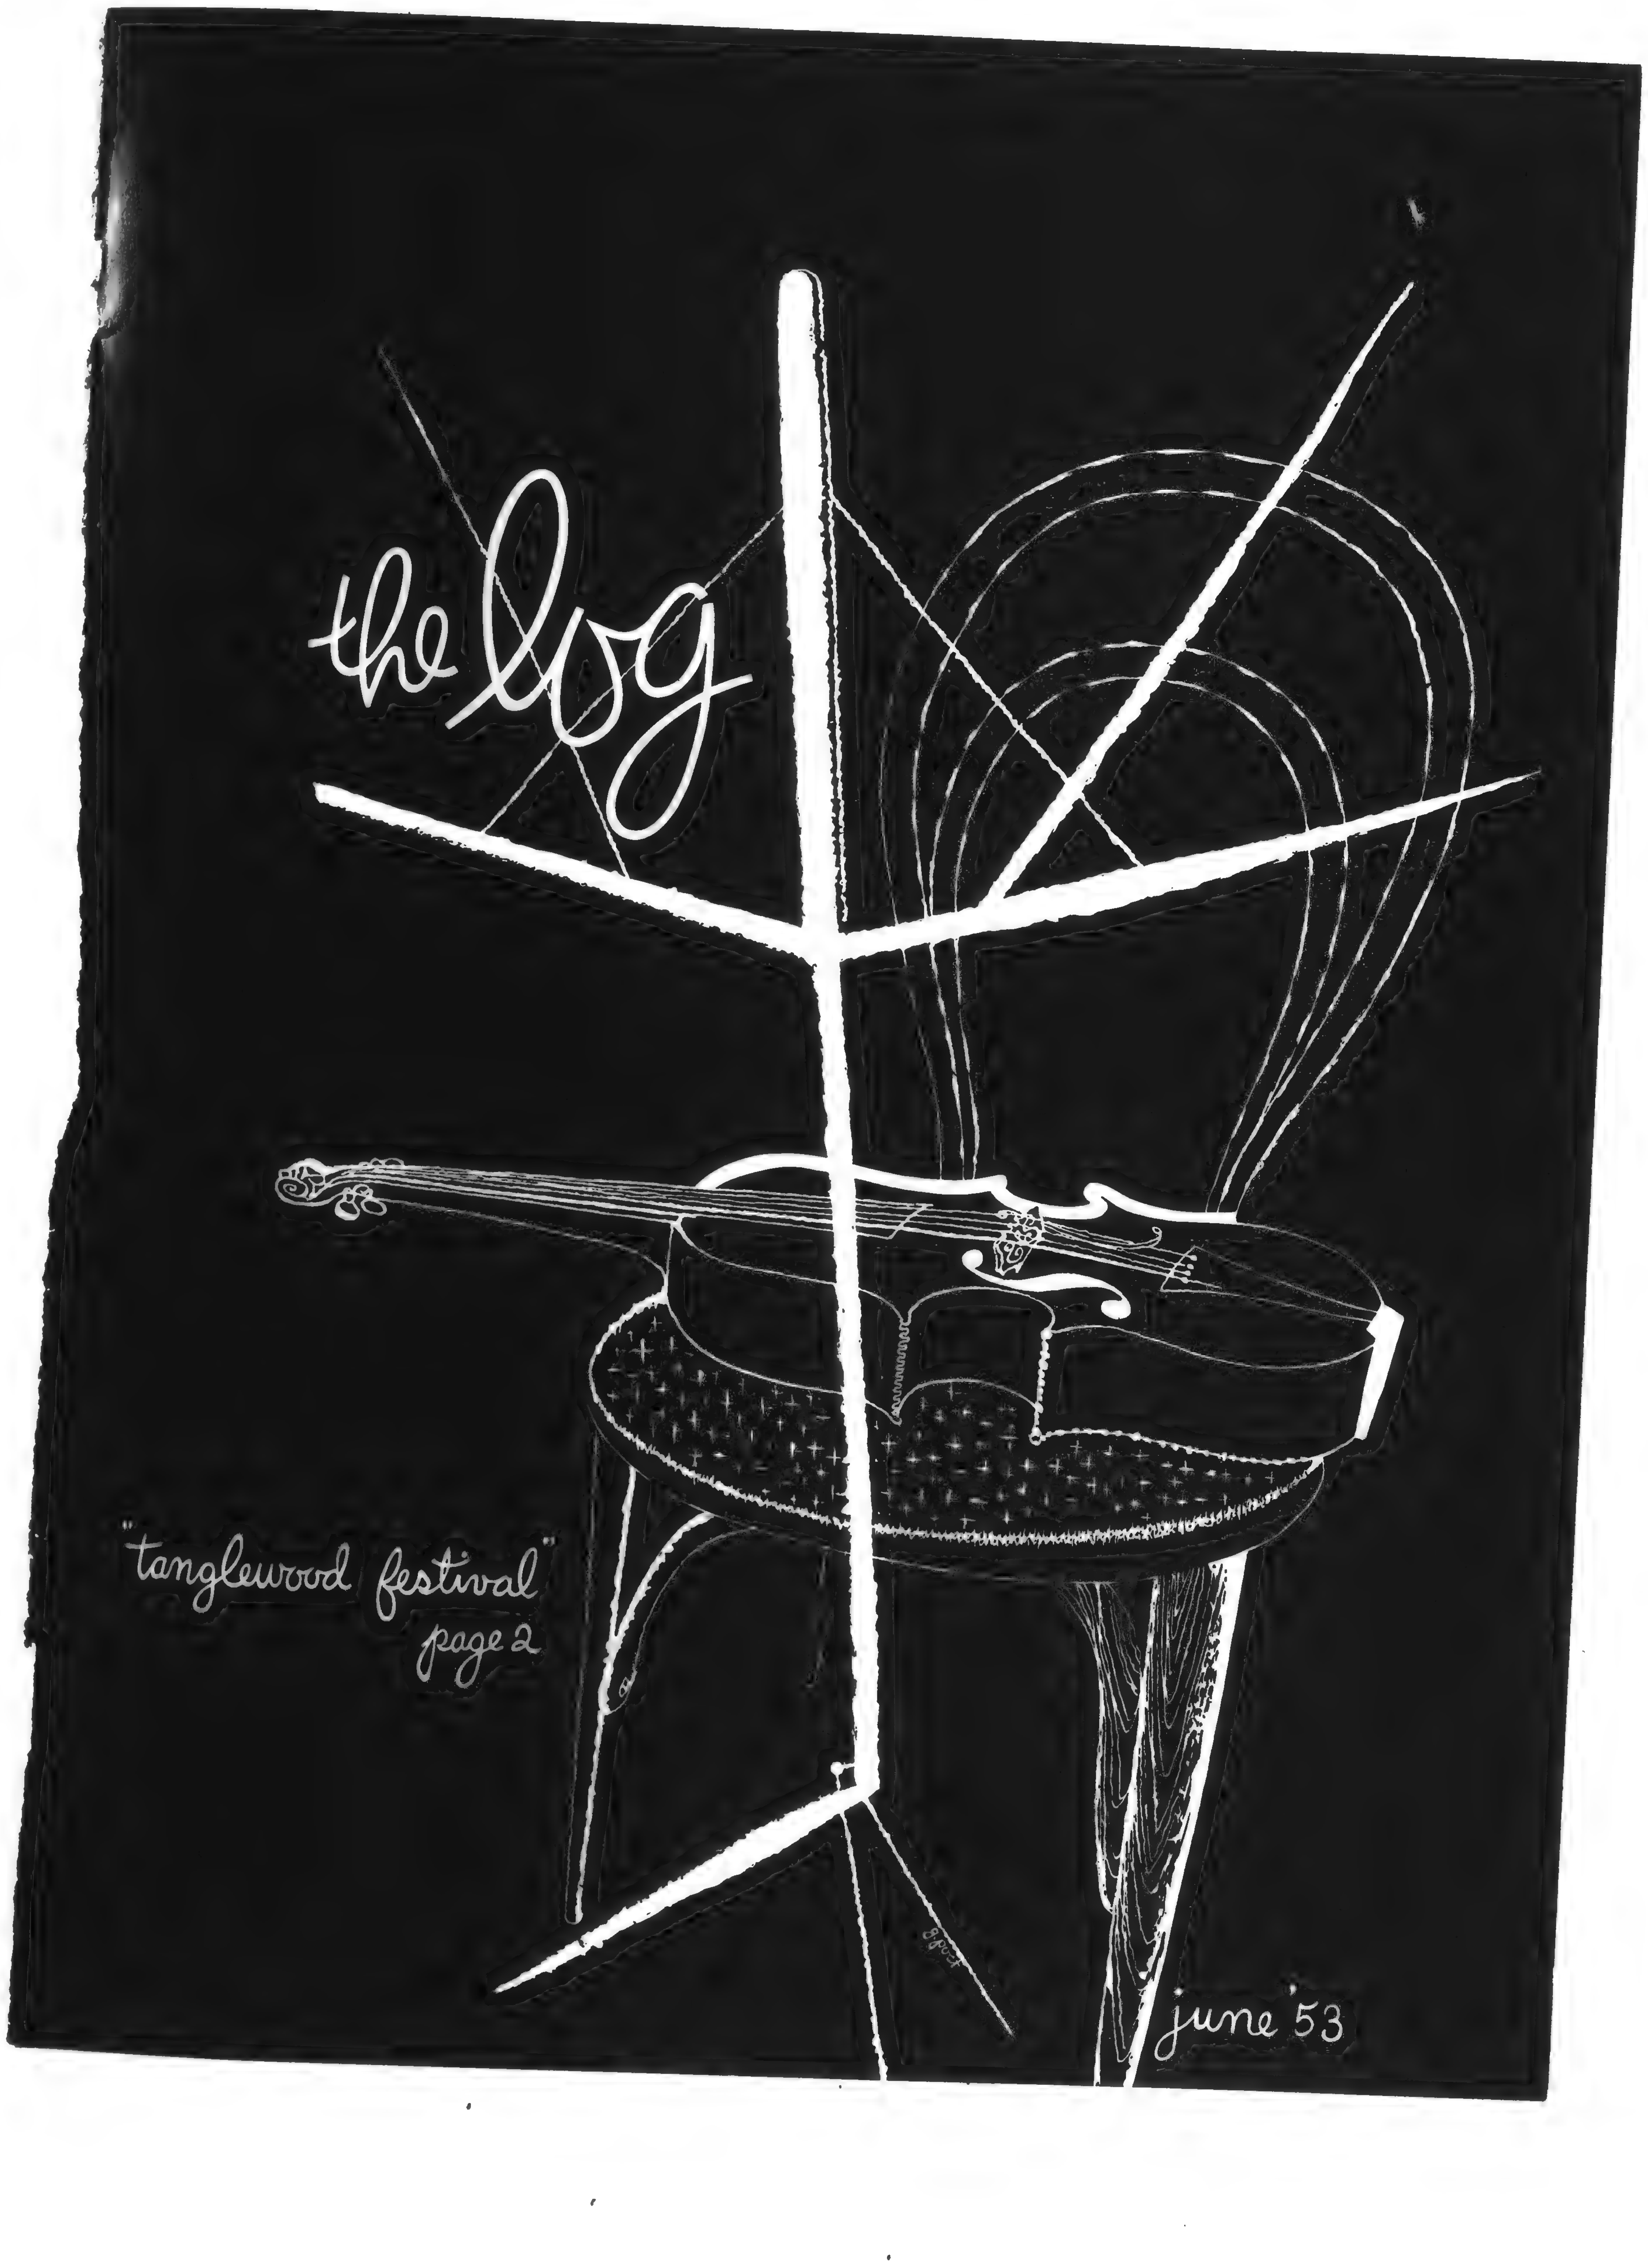
There they become part of the Faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of this orchestra. For three weeks concerts for chamber orchestra are given at Tanglewood as part of the Berkshire Festival while the balance of the orchestra performs in the free "Esplanade" concerts by the Charles River in Boston under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

Starting July 11-12, The BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL opens this summer with concerts of chamber proportion in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall for three Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; and the concerts in the great Shed will take place on the following three weekends, on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons. These concerts have an attendance of 100,000 and draw visitors from all parts of the United States to enjoy the combination of a beautiful countryside and the pleasures of symphonic music in the semi-open Shed.

The Festival orchestra is under the direction of Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and guest conductors Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The members of the orchestra practice in informal attire . . . the listeners not only attend in informal clothes, but relax on the lawns while listening — even going so far as to spread blankets on which they may stretch out.

TANGLEWOOD ON PARADE plays to music lovers in beautiful outdoor surroundings that enhance the strains of their favorite symphonies.

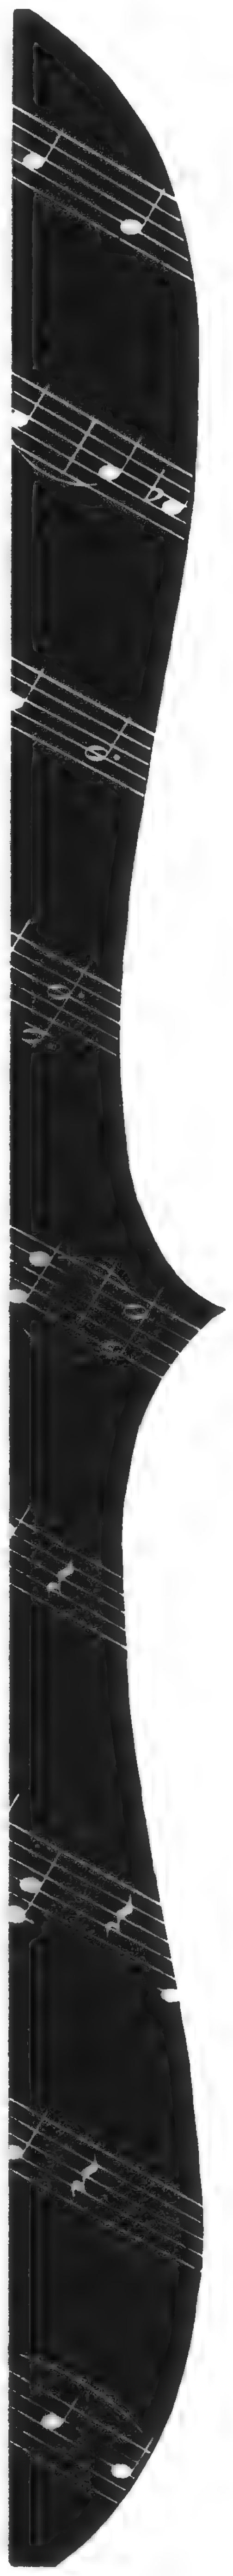
An afternoon crowd at the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival queues up for tickets. Festival dates this year are July 11 through August 18, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts



the log

"tanglewood festival"
page 2

june '53



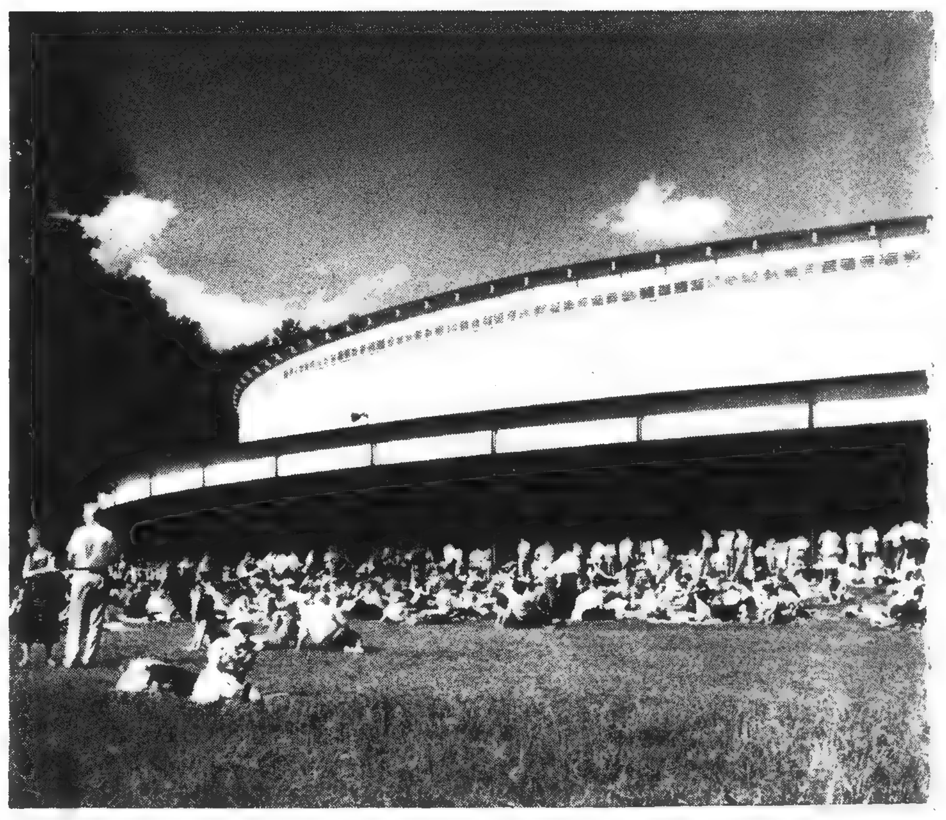
Situated, as they are, close by the Tanglewood Music Center, the members of our Pittsfield office are in a position enviable to any devotee of classical music. Office Supervisor Gladys Bell says that the Pittsfieldians appreciate their geographical blessing, enjoy its musical opportunities to the fullest.

Tanglewood Festival

FAMOUS for its giant pines and stately elms, for its lovely hemlock-hedged gardens and fairytale association with the beloved Nathaniel Hawthorne, idyllic Tanglewood is even better known as a musical center—par excellence—where an exciting festival of melody is presented each summer. From Kokomo to Timbuktu and Tel Aviv, the student, the esthete and the simply-music-loving set out for the charming outdoor auditorium in the Berkshire Hills to enjoy symphony at its best, played by the most talented of musicians, elicited by the baton-wielding-genius of some of our greatest conductors. And all in a pastoral setting of green grass and shaded wood, where the strains of strings and woodwinds may flow and sweep, unhampered, to the sky.

But Tanglewood is not just beauty and melody, it's a name to be reckoned with in the world of music; one that has grown in importance in an amazingly small space of time. Only 19 years ago, it was, that the first of the now famous Festivals was given. In comparison with the scope of todays' Festivals it might have seemed more like a Saturday night concert "on the mall," but it did have the fine music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, even as it does now. Audience response, too, was small and fairly local; in no way approaching the 100,000 world-wide travelers who now visit Tanglewood during the six weeks' musical holiday in July and August.

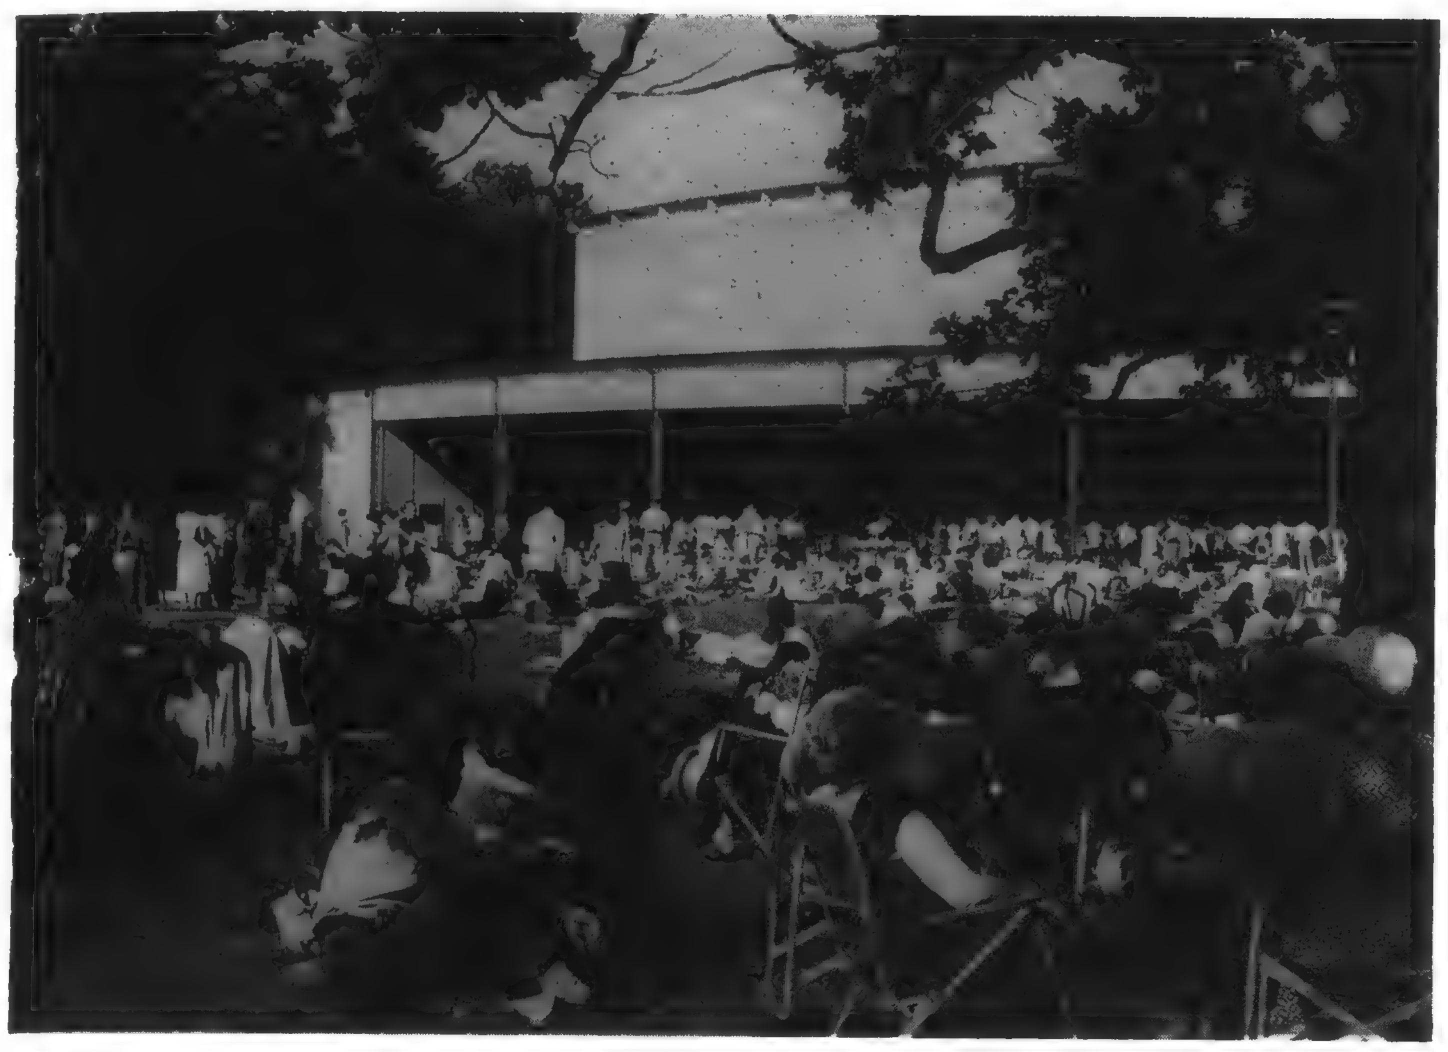
True, Tanglewood has grown with the years and with the cultural development of the public, but, too, it owes much of its fame to the loving effort poured into it by some of the greats of the musical circle—Koussevitzky, Munch, Copland, Bernstein, Goldovsky to mention but a handful.



Once the meeting place of such literary lights as Emerson, Holmes and Melville, beautiful Tanglewood was deeded to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1936. It's open for year-round inspection.

Informal is their attire, but a rehearsal for the Tanglewood Festival is no casual thing to the members of the Boston Symphony and famous conductor, Charles Munch.

Vol. 7—No. 3
Printed in U. S. A. by Prudential Press



The 6000-seat Music Shed isn't spacious enough to accommodate the additional thousands who have come to listen to a Sunday afternoon Festival concert given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

It was the late Serge Koussevitzky who started an upswing of interest in Tanglewood when, in 1940, he founded the Berkshire Music Center, an advanced summer school where budding young musicians could increase their artistic experience and study under teachers who had already received the "bravos" accorded the idols of the concert and opera. It was the realization of a long-time dream for Dr. Koussevitzky (as, undoubtedly, it has been for the young musical tyros fortunate enough to qualify for the stringent schooling). He directed the activities of the school until his death in 1951. Since then the eminent Charles Munch has held the reins of authority.

Using the unique pattern of study devised by Koussevitzky, the school grew and thrived. The opportunity it gave (and gives) its 400 students was not in simply improving their own voices or proficiency on their own instruments, but a chance to get together for ensemble work that a private teacher or small conservatory could not possibly offer.

Necessarily, the student body, while not small, is most select. Only the most promising applicants are accepted, and then only when they have proved themselves outstandingly talented with a superior sense of rhythm, style, musical articulation—among other less obvious merits. If these qualifying measures seem strict, it's essential, and even kind, since the budding instrumentalist must be able to hold his own in a top-flight student orchestra. Even so, competition is sharp and the young violinist or flutist puts forth his best auditioning efforts, knowing that there are dozens of others just waiting to "fiddle" or "obligato" him out.

There are five departments of study in the Berkshire school, and all but one (although play) involve real work. Only the students of department five, called the Tanglewood Study Group (usually teachers or musicians skilled in reading and performing), can hope for lazy days stretched out under an elm listening to the Boston Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal. And this without a qualm, since—although apparently lounging—they actually are studying: reading and following the score as it's played. The orchestra, too, is really hard at work. They're working out the kinks in the Bach or Mozart that they'll play in their 15 Festival concerts.

Aside from the artistic aspects of the concerts, they are also regarded as a most important part of the school activities. All of the students attend them, as well as the rehearsals and the concerts given by visiting artists and musical groups. It's a kind of demonstration by the masters of the theories presented during the school season.

The Tanglewood Festival concludes the school weeks and, this year, climaxes, too, the most active of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 72 seasons. But, business and busyness never cease at Tanglewood and work has already been started on the next session of this fastest-growing and most influential of the country's music centers.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Miles Kastendieck: Six Musical Weekends Scheduled at Berkshire

MILES KASTENDIECK

PLANS for the 16th Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, beginning this Saturday, include one significant change in scheduling. The concerts in the Shed formerly given on Thursday have been shifted to Friday. This desirable move not only consolidates the weekend but makes it possible for many more people to attend an entire weekend series. Otherwise, the set-up of three minor and three major weekends remains the same.

Charles Munch will conduct 12 of the 15 concerts to be given by the Boston Symphony. Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will take over the others. The programs therefore reflect Munch's taste and interests.

Traditionally the three concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall will be devoted to Bach, Mozart and Haydn. The program of July 26, however, is of special interest for its contemporary flavor. The composers listed are: Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Foss. The performance of Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde" will be significant. Foss's "A Parable of Death" with Vera Zorina as the narrator will also be performed.

Fine Mixture

The Shed programs combine standard and modern music judiciously. It is good to see Copland's "Appalachian Spring" and Hindemith's Symphonic Metamorphosis listed for the weekend of July 31.

The weekend of August 7 includes a complete performance of Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet," Mahler's "Resurrection" Symphony, and Milhaud's Cello Concerto among others.

The weekend of August 14 lists the Brahms' Requiem, Sibelius' Fourth Symphony, Chavez's Sinfonia India and Ravel's Concerto for the Left Hand along with standard fare.

Open to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center will be two operatic evenings: Gretry's "Richard Coeur-de-Lion" as the major production, and a triple bill of Gluck's "L'Yvrogne Corrige," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee." As usual these will be directed by Boris Goldovsky.

The Festival promises well.

Berkshire Festival Begins July 11

B'sn Globe July 5, 1953

The 1953 Berkshire Festival will begin its six weekends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, will have as features performance of the young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2, and Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival next Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: Nos. 1, in F; 2, in F; 3, in G (strings); 5, in D, and 6, in B-flat (strings).

Bach Cantata

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m., the program will start with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, and the program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

The Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will open its 11th season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, this afternoon.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at opening exercises, at 3:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. There will be a brief address by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president. Composer, Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross, director of its choral department, will lead the students in "Alleluia," composed for the school's opening in 1940 by Randall Thompson. Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden following the exercises.

Student Orchestra

The first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8:30, in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10. Sunday evening at 8:30, also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum, when works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tanglewood's July 18-19 concerts will be devoted to Mozart, with Isaac Stern as soloist; the July 25 concert will be all Haydn, including the "Theresa" Mass conducted by Hugh Ross; the July 26 program is to be devoted to works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and will include the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Charles Munch is Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra which opens the Berkshire Festival on Saturday night at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

---

hursday, July 9, 1953.

Eagle

Tanglewood

Leonard Bernstein, composer, pianist and conductor, who heads the orchestra and orchestral conducting departments at the Berkshire Music Center, will lead the student orchestra in the second half of their first symphonic concert of the season tomorrow evening at 8.30 in the Tanglewood Music Shed. He will conduct Anton Dvorak's "New World" Symphony.

Robert Mandell of the Bronx, N.Y., will open the program with excerpts from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and Harold Blumenfeld of St. Louis, Mo., will take the baton for Prokofieff's orchestral suite, "Lieutenant Kije."

The conductors of the first half of the program are students of Mr. Bernstein. Mr. Mandell, 23, is at Tanglewood for the third season and Mr. Blumenfeld for the fifth. With a M.S. degree from Juilliard Music School, New York, Mandell is co-musical director of the National Art Club, New York.

Mr. Blumenfeld, 29, has studied at the Zurich, Switzerland, Conservatory, Yale School of Music, Eastman School of the University of Rochester, N.Y. and Salzburg, Austria and under Hindenmith and Robert Shaw. He now is assistant professor of music and director of opera theatre at Washington University, St. Louis, and also director of the St. Louis Grand Opera Guild.

The concert will be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions aid in the support of the school. Membership may be obtained at the Tanglewood office of the Friends.

THE BOSTON SUNDAY GLOBE—JULY 5, 1953

In Western Massachusetts:

Nature Plus in the Berkshires

By SELMA GORDON

In 1929, the casual traveler in his Model A, out looking for a quiet spot to spend a vacation, was lured to Pittsfield and the Berkshire country with the following bits of locally issued encouragement: "Pittsfield has paved streets, eight banking institutions, one life insurance company, three fire insurance companies, 35 churches, complete railroad and trolley service and pure water in plenty."

Its attractions today lean slightly less toward the material, with the rolling country of Western Massachusetts providing perhaps as great a concentration of Summer cultural offerings per square inch of green-blue hills and small, clear lakes as any region in the nation.

By next week, the Berkshire country's man-created attractions will all be in full swing. The Summer Playhouse at Stockbridge has been in operation since June 22. Its resident group of scenery painters and set-makers can be seen at work inside and outside the theatre's big red barn almost any time you drive by.

Jacob's Pillow

This week-end is the season's opening of the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, about 9 miles south of East Lee. Off Route 20 (that winding, up and down roadway between Lenox and Springfield named Jacob's Ladder by early settlers), the Festival spot got its title of Jacob's Pillow from a large rock on the original property thus called since Colonial times.

Up to last Wednesday, Ted Shawn, the Festival's founder and director, was working in shirt sleeves with other members of his troupe, making improvements on the barn properties of the establishment. "See the callouses on my hands," he observed proudly. "When I dance a Spanish number now, I almost don't need castinets."

The results of his handiwork this year include more flagstone terracing in the theatre garden, more concrete paths for easier walking, and a number of outdoor benches installed to accommodate early arrivals who picnic before performances.

Of Tanglewood and Music

Tanglewood and the Berkshire Music Festival are perhaps the greatest lure the Western Massachusetts hills offer the world at large. This year, the Summer program opens July 11-12, with concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall for the first 3 weeks. For the last weeks of the season, after the full Boston Symphony Orchestra arrives, concerts are held in the great, wedge-shaped Shed. (One half the orchestra is left in Boston through the 25th of the month to provide music for the outdoor Esplanade Concerts.)

During its peak Summer weeks, Tanglewood accommodates up to 6000 people at a single performance. Tickets range from $2.50 and $3.50 for Shed concerts to $4 and $5 for offerings in the theater. General admission, which means a seat on the grass where hearing is fine but seeing is a matter of first-come-first-served, is $2.00. Grounds open an hour before concert time.

The trend toward informality which has reached new heights in recent seasons (with picnicking allowed and even dancing on the grass) has had the line drawn at ladies who arrive in shorts. For the third season, the management will politely hand any guest so attired a Tanglewood grass skirt for the concert's duration.

Though the Berkshire Festival has been around since 1936, it was not the first marriage of music and nature in Western Massachusetts. Just outside Pittsfield traveling South, there is a good cinder-covered auto road up South Mountain. Here, in the '20s, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the precurser to today's Tanglewood programs began. Chamber Music concerts, featuring some of the world's leading artists were presented each Summer. Though the South Mountain Music Foundation has since moved to Washington, D. C., the concert shed still stands on the mountain. Each year, at the end of the Tanglewood season, South Mountain takes over, for old time's sake and on a small scale, to provide concerts through September.

Why various forms of outdoor Summer culture chose the Berkshires as a Summer home is not hard to see. The countryside makes for an ideal natural backdrop. It would never intrude on a concert listener or a ballet viewer. It is not spectacular enough to demand constant visual attention. It is quiet, reassuring and restful. The Berkshire country can be appreciated slowly and wears well over extended periods of time.

Places of interest in the immediate vicinity of Tanglewood include the Indian Mission House and the Berkshire Garden Center (a good picnic spot) in Stockbridge; "Arrowhead" in Pittsfield where Herman Melville wrote Moby Dick; and the remains of a small Shaker Village at Hancock (West Pittsfield) although the natives will tell you there's a bigger and better Shaker Village right across the border in New York State.

WEEK-END GUIDE TO BERKSHIRES: From Boston, there is the northern route, out on 2, through Fitchburg, Greenfield and over the Mohawk Trail with its famous hairpin turn into North Adams and the Berkshire country. There is also the southern route, out 20, through Waltham, Marlboro, Old Sturbridge Village, Springfield and the Jacob's Ladder Trail into Lenox. Motels and inns are filled early and wherever possible reservations should be made in advance of trip. If you are on a day trip to Tanglewood concert, plan to arrive early and stay late to avoid traffic tie-ups. At Tolland State Forest on Rte. 8 (south of West Becket), there are tent sites and facilities for overnight camping. Savoy State Forest, on Rte. 116 south of Adams, has cabins and tent sites; Windsor State Forest just beyond Savoy on Rte. 116 has overnight camping facilities. There is good swimming at Laurel Lake (south of Lenox, Rte. 7) at Onota Lake (just west of Pittsfield) and at Pontoosuc Lake (north of Pittsfield) where it is rumored arrowheads and pottery from Indian days can still be found when the water is very low. Off on a good, dirt road north of Adams is a very famous natural marble bridge span. At Dalton, north of Pittsfield on Rte. 9, paper for paper money has been made since Revolutionary times, and the Crane Paper Museum welcomes visitors. There is a good auto route up Mt. Greylock (3500 ft.), the highest mountain in Massachusetts, reached by talking U. S. 7 north through Lanesboro. As a variation on the way home, take the Berkshire Trail (Rte. 9) from Pittsfield to Northampton, and continue on 9 through to the Worcester Turnpike and back into Boston.

6-11.

Berkshire Music Festival. Two Bach programs. Brandenberg Concertos 1, 2, 3, 5, 6; Suites 2 and 3 and a Cantata. July 11 at 8:30 p. m. July 12 at 2:30 p. m.

For Children: Pleasant Valley

Eagle July 6

Phonorama To Be Shown In Lenox

Philco Official To Entertain At World Premiere

LENOX—Leslie J. Woods, vice-president and director of engineering and research for the Philco Corporation, will entertain at a tea tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 7 at the Curtis Hotel, when Philco's new Phonorama, a radio-phonograph combination embodying high fidelity reproduction with full dimension sound will be given its first public showing in the world.

Mr. Woods directed the development of the Phonorama, the result of five years of secret research within the Philco laboratories. Philco corporation officials in Lenox preparing for the premiere showing tomorrow said today that the Phonorama marks the first successful design of a high fidelity system in a single cabinet with an acoustically-designed sound chamber to reproduce the full range of high and low tones.

Guests at tomorrow's tea will include Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Olga [illegible], widow of the late [illegible] Koussevitzky, founder of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood and conductor of the [illegible], members of the Berkshire Music Center and representatives of the press and radio stations in Berkshire County.

Gift to Lenox Library

After tomorrow the Phonorama will be on display and demonstrated for Festival guests and the public in the Music Room of the Curtis Hotel. All available long playing records of the [illegible] Berkshire Festival concerts which will be heard during the [illegible] demonstration at the Curtis [illegible] presented by the Philco [illegible] at the close of the [illegible] to Miss Irene Poirier, librarian at the Lenox Library, for the record room, which now features all of the recordings made by the late Dr. Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The Philco Corporation introduced the Phonorama to company representatives in Atlantic City, N.J., last month but delayed public showings until the opening of the Berkshire Music Festival this week. Later in the month the Phonorama will be demonstrated at the Music Fair in Chicago.

July 9 Lakeville Journal

Concerts

Berkshire Festival, Stockbridge, Mass.
Evenings: 8:30 p.m., July 11, 18, 25.
Afternoons: 2:30 p.m., July 12, 19, 26 (Concert Hall)
Evenings: 8:30 p.m., July 31 (Music Shed)

July 9 Lakeville Journal

Concerts

Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Stockbridge, Mass.
Evenings, 8:30 p.m. August 1, 7, 8, 14, 15 in the Music Shed Afternoons, 2:30 p.m. August 2, 9, 16, in the Shed

Variety July 8

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, flew in from Paris Friday (3), to conduct the 1953 Berkshire Festival in Lenox, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Berkowitz, and daughter, Joan, have arrived for the summer.

Berk County Post July 9

TUES., JULY 7, 1953  ALBANY, N. Y., TIMES-UNION 18

MUSIC LOVERS' MECCA—This is Tanglewood, at Lenox, Mass., where the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra are conducted. Charles Munch (inset), the orchestra's music director, conducts the Festival concerts July 11-Aug. 16.

Tanglewood Preliminary Concerts To Begin July 31 Under Munch

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

[illegible] of Nathaniel Hawthorne's [illegible] "The House of the Seven Gables" and "A Wonder Book for Girls and Boys" first saw the light of day in a small red cottage in the Berkshires, a few miles distant from the residence of his friend, Herman Melville who was busy with his own novel "Moby-Dick." That Mr. Hawthorne, in addition to his literary genius was also endowed with the gift of prophecy is very apparent when he wrote with true artist's foresight: "Tanglewood would remain . . . but occupied by an entirely different family."

From the opening performance of the Berkshire Music Festival in the horse ring on the Dan Hanna Farm, August [illegible] 1934, when Henry Hadley, leading an orchestra of 65 members of the New Pork Philharmonic-Symphony Society Orchestra for an audience of 2,000, the "family" has grown in 19 years to a not unusual attendance on a Sunday afternoon of [illegible] music lovers. The slogan of the opening three concerts was "Music Under the Stars," and it was just that.

An acoustical shed was built for the orchestra, but the members of the audience sat on improvised benches, unprotected from the elements. One of the [illegible] papers said that "provision for everything has been made except, possibly, for the [illegible] but luckless chauffeur who fell on his F sharp horn during a passage in D flat. [illegible] Neither had the sponsors provided the dog who decided to bay at the moon."

THIRD FESTIVAL

[illegible] August, [illegible] on the grounds [illegible] the property of [illegible] Margaret [illegible] in [illegible] the estate [illegible] Owing [illegible] Hadley [illegible] and the [illegible] Orchestra [illegible] A large canvas was erected and there were [illegible] untoward events to mar that [illegible]

The following year, "Tanglewood," the estate of Mrs. Andrew H. Hepburn and her aunt, Miss Aspinwall Tappan, comprising 200 acres, overlooking Lake Mankeenac (the Stockbridge Bowl), and was presented to the orchestra. The first [illegible] concerts was presented [illegible] the night [illegible] best de[illegible] Scriptures in [illegible] rains de[illegible] floods came, [illegible] and beat [illegible] during a performance of an all-Wagner program [illegible] scheduled sound [illegible]

NATURE' SYMPHONY

The concert was being broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. Dr. Koussevitzky made a number of starts with the rain on the canvas drum-top creating such a racket that it was impossible to hear the orchestra over the symphony of Nature. However, although unlike the scriptural version, the "house" did not fall. But the rain seeped down the guy poles, forming little lakes at the feet of the formaily-dressed ladies and gentlemen in the audience. It was then that Dr. Koussevitzky delivered the ultimatum that never again would he conduct his orchestra in a tent.

Through the unselfish devotion of Miss Robinson Smith, and the Trustees of the Berkshire Festival, $80,000 was raised for a permanent building. Eliel Saarinen, a Finnish architect of Detroit, designed the present shed, acoustically perfect, with a seating capacity of 6,000 dedicated Aug. 4, 1938. The festival grew by leaps and bounds until "Tanglewood" is today, the Summer Musical Capital of the world. It is not unusual to find more music lovers occupying the surrounding rounds than are seated in the great shed.

PRELIMINARY SERIES

The same architect designed the Theatre-concert hall in which are given works by a smaller orchestra, three weeks prior to the opening of the big shed with the full orchestra of 110 men. The preliminary series of concerts open Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, and continue the following two Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, under the direction of Charles Munch, the permanent conductor of the orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Beginning Friday night, July 31, and continuing Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons through August 16, the series of nine concerts will take place in the big shed.

The Berkshire Music Festival draws its audiences from every state of the Union. License plates indicates this with a generous sprinkling of visitors from Canada and Mexico. It is one of the most cosmopolitan audiences to be found in the world. But the most encouraging aspect of the festival is the preponderance of young boys and girls, many of them from summer camps, who are being exposed to the cultural advantages which the world's finest music affords. The Albany Times-Union has been a consistent backer of the festival for all of its 19 years. After all, it is virtually in the back yard of the Albany Metropolitan Area, and only 40 miles distant by car.

School's summer workshop.

Eagle July 7

Tourist Center Seeks Listings

LENOX—Mrs. John M. O'Brien, director of the tourist information center, has requested that homeowners who wish the center to accept tourist reservations for them sign up early this week.

Mrs. O'Brien explains that with the beginning of the Tanglewood concerts this week end, business at the center is expected to increase considerably Friday and Saturday. It is hoped that registrations of those who will accept reservations can be completed by Thursday.

The center will be open from 9 AM to 5 PM the remainder of the week until Friday, when it will stay open until 9 PM. Sunday the center will be open from 9 to 3.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 5 - 1953

BERKSHIRE SEASON OPENS

Munch to Address Music Groups Today at Eleventh Meeting

An address this afternoon by Charles Munch will open the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass. As in previous seasons, the classes will last six weeks, and will be attended by advanced students and professionals.

Dr. Louis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty. There also will be an address by Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Saturday, 8:30. Bach program: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.

Sunday, July 12, 2:30. Bach program: Cantata No. 28 (Hugh Ross conducting); Suite No. 2, in B minor (flute solo, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3, in D major.

Program for Tanglewood Concert Series Announced

Union July 9

Concerts and other events of interest to the public which will take place at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Friday, July 10 through Sunday, July 19, inclusive, are as follows:

Friday, July 10—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra concert by students of Department I
Saturday, July 11—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1 in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin)
No. 3 in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Lukas Foss, piano; Doriot Anthony, flute; Richard Burgin violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)
Sunday, July 12—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor
Bach ...... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
(Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass)
Bach ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony, flute)
Bach .... Suite No. 3, in D major
8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III
Wednesday, July 15—*8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge
Fernando Valenti, Harpsichord; Julius Baker Flute; Daniel Saidenberg, Cello
Trio Sonata .... Georg Telemann
Four Sonatas (Harpsichord Solo) .... Domenico Scarlatti
Sonata for Cello and Continuo (From "Der Getreue Musikmeister") .... Georg Telemann
Trio Sonata in G major .... Antonio Lotti
Sonata a Trois in B minor. .J. B. Loeillet
Sonata No. 5 for Flute and Harpsichord .... Georg Handel
Pieces de Clavecin en Concert, No. 5 .... J. P. Rameau
Friday, July 17—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra Concert by students of Department I
Saturday July 18—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart..Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) (Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart .... Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart .... Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)
Sunday, July 19—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"
Mozart .... Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale)
Mozart .. Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart .... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)
*8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 6 - 1953

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Opens Saturday

The 16th Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Saturday night with that increasingly popular event, an all-Bach concert. In fact, the Festival is scheduling two Bach concerts for its initial week-end. Conductor Charles Munch will lead the Boston Symphony in five Brandenburg Concertos in the first concert. Sunday at 2:30, the orchestra will perform two Bach Suites, one with the ensemble's distaff first flutist, as soloist. Also on this program, Hugh Ross will conduct the Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists. For further information regarding tickets and performances, write to the Berkshire Festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass

---

NYHT July 8

OPENING NEXT SAT.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
SAT. EVES. AT 8:30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2:30
JULY 11, 12 (BACH Programs) A few seats at $5
JULY 18, 19 (MOZART Programs) All seats taken
JULY 25, 26 (HAYDN and 20 Century Programs) a few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert)
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.
(Phone Lenox 600).

Art Eagle July 7

Summer Art Season Here Ushered In by Two Shows

By JUNE KIMBALL

TWO SUBSTANTIAL exhibitions of paintings have ushered in the summer art season. One is this month's one-man show for George Picken at the Berkshire Museum, and the other is the sixth annual summer-long show at the Berkshire Art Center in Canaan, N.Y.

For the moment, the Picken show is incomplete; some of its major paintings on local themes have been borrowed for a brief exhibit at Tanglewood. When they're returned, a full appraisal of Mr. Picken's recent work will be possible. Meanwhile, the pictures that remain are a bright and fresh exhibit in varied styles of landscape painting.

HOTEL GAZETTE
NEW YORK, N. Y. 14
JUL 4 - 1953

Donegan opens Crane Inn, completely redecorated

Donegan will operate the Crane Inn on a year round basis. Though it has been open but a few weeks he reports heavy advance bookings and capacity reservations for the annual Berkshire Music Festival.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 1 - 1953

Berkshire Fest Sales Up; 2 Operas Commissioned

Lenox, Mass., June 30.

The Berkshire Music Center, at Tanglewood here, has commissioned two young American composers to write operas for it. Opera director Boris Goldovsky announced that Leonard Rosenman, of N. Y., and Louis Mennini, of Rochester, have each received $750 commissions, and will be guests of the Center this summer while working on their operas. Center starts its 11th annual six-week session next Sunday (5).

Meantime, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager George E. Judd announced that the sale of tix for the 1953 Berkshire Festival has passed 1952's mark, with $59,000 of subscription sales already in. These are for the three series of BSO concerts July 31-Aug. 1-2; Aug. 7-8-9. and Aug. 14-15-16.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 5 - 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS
Theatre-Concert Hall
Lenox, Mass.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. Brandenburg Concertos: Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 ....Bach

NEXT SUNDAY, July 12, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass; Doriot Anthony, flutist. Cantata No. 28; Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings; Suite No. 3 in D ....Bach

[162]

Friends of the Berkshir Center, whose contributi to support it, are invite performances at the scho
Tanglewood's July 18
certs will be devoted to with Isaac Stern as sol July 25 concert will be a including the "Theresa" ducted by Hugh Ross;
26 program is to be de works by Richard Straus Prokofieff, Milhaud, and clude the New England of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A of Death," conducted by poser, with Vera Zorin rator.

Two
nberg Suites
July 12 at

July 6

ama Shown ox-Official ertain ld Premiere

lle J. Woods, vice-director of engineerrch for the Philco will entertain at a afternoon from 4
Curtis Hotel, when Phonorama, a radio-combination embody-y reproduction with sound will be given ld showing in the directed the develop-Phonorama, the re-

rs of secret research
Philco laboratories ration officials in ng for the premiere rrow said today that a marks the first
gn of a high fidelity ngle cabinet with an signed sound chamuce the full range of tones.
morrow's tea will in-Munch, music direc-
oston Symphony Or-Olga Koussevitzky,
late Dr. Kousser of the Berkshire at Tanglewood and the BSO, faculty
the Berkshire Music presentatives of the io stations in Berkx Library

rrow the Phonorama display and demon-stival guests and the Music Room of the
All available long ds of the 1953 Berk-concerts, which will g the public demone Curtis, will be pree Philco Corporation of the exhibition to rier, librarian at the ry; for the record
now features all of s made by the late tzky and the Boston
chestra.
Corporation intro-onorama to company
s in Atlantic City, but delayed public
the opening of the Festival this week.
ough the Phonorama rated at the Music

TUES., JULY 7, 1953 ★★★ ALBANY, N.Y., TIMES-UNION 18

MUSIC LOVERS' MECCA—This is Tanglewood, at Lenox, Mass., where the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra are conducted. Charles Munch (inset), the orchestra's music director, conducts the Festival concerts July 11-Aug. 16.

Tanglewood Preliminary Concerts To Begin July 31 Under Munch

By EDGAR S. VAN OLINDA

Two of Nathaniel Hawthorne's brain children, "The House of the Seven Gables" and "A Wonder-Book for Girls and Boys" first saw the light of day in a small red cottage in the Berkshires, a few miles distant from the residence of his friend, Herman Melville who was busy with his own novel, "Moby-Dick." That Mr. Hawthorne, in addition to his literary genius was also endowed with the gift of prophecy is very apparent when he wrote with true artistic foresight; "Tanglewood would remain . . . but occupied by an entirely different family."

From the opening performance of the Berkshire Music Festival in the horse ring on the Dan Hanna Farm, August 1934, when Henry Hadley, directing an orchestra of 65 members of the New Pork Philharmonic-Symphony Society Orchestra for an audience of 2,000, the "family" has grown in 19 years to a not unusual attendance on a Sunday afternoon of 14,000 music lovers. The slogan for the opening three concerts was "Music Under the Stars." And it was just that.

An acoustical shed was built for the orchestra, but the members of the audience sat on improvised benches, unprotected from the elements. One of the local papers said that "provision for everything has been made except, possibly, for the [illegible] but luckless chauffeur who fell on his F sharp horn during a passage in D flat major. Neither had the sponsors provided the dog who decided to bay at the moon."

THIRD FESTIVAL

The third festival in August, [illegible] was held on the grounds of "Holmwood," the property of Mrs. Margaret Emerson in Stockbridge, formerly the estate of George Westinghouse. Owing to the illness of Henry Hadley, Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra were engaged. A large canvas tent was erected and there were no untoward events to mar that season.

The following year, "Tanglewood," the estate of Mrs. Andrew H. Hepburn and her aunt, Mary Aspinwall Tappan, containing 200 acres, overlooking Lake Mahkeenac, (the Stockbridge Bowl), and was presented to the orchestra. The first series of concerts was presented under a tent. Came the night of August 11, 1938 best described by the Scriptures in Matthew 7-27: "The rains descended, and the floods came, and the wind blew and beat upon that house," during a performance of an all-Wagner program, with unscheduled sound effects.

NATURE' SYMPHONY

The concert was being broadcast over a coast-to-coast network. Dr. Koussevitzky made a number of starts, with the rain on the canvas drum-top creating such a racket that it was impossible to hear the orchestra over the symphony of Nature. However, although unlike the scriptural version, the "house" did not fall. But the rain seeped down the guy poles, forming little lakes at the feet of the formaily-dressed ladies and gentlemen in the audience. It was then that Dr. Koussevitzky delivered the ultimatum that never again would he conduct his orchestra in a tent.

Through the unselfish devotion of Miss Robinson Smith, and the Trustees of the Berkshire Festival, $80,000 was raised for a permanent building. Eliel Saarinen, a Finnish architect of Detroit, designed the present shed, acoustically perfect, with a seating capacity of 6,000 dedicated Aug. 4, 1938. The festival grew by leaps and bounds until "Tanglewood" is today, the Summer Musical Capital of the world. It is not unusual to find more music lovers occupying the surrounding rounds than are seated in the great shed.

PRELIMINARY SERIES

The same architect designed the Theatre-concert hall in which are given works by a smaller orchestra, three weeks prior to the opening of the big shed with the full orchestra of 110 men. The preliminary series of concerts open Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, and continue the following two Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, under the direction of Charles Munch, the permanent conductor of the orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Beginning Friday night, July 31, and continuing Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons through August 16, the series of nine concerts will take place in the big shed.

The Berkshire Music Festival draws its audiences from every state of the Union. License plates indicates this with a generous sprinkling of visitors from Canada and Mexico. It is one of the most cosmopolitan audiences to be found in the world. But the most encouraging aspect of the festival is the preponderance of young boys and girls, many of them from summer camps, who are being exposed to the cultural advantages which the world's finest music affords. The Albany Times-Union has been a consistent backer of the festival for all of its 19 years. After all, it is virtually in the back yard of the Albany Metropolitan Area, and only 40 miles distant by car.

School's summer workshop.

Eagle July 7

Tourist Center Seeks Listings

LENOX—Mrs. John M. O'Brien, director of the tourist information center, has requested that homeowners who wish the center to accept tourist reservations for them sign up early this week.

Mrs. O'Brien explains that with the beginning of the Tanglewood concerts this week end, business at the center is expected to increase considerably Friday and Saturday. It is hoped that registrations of those who will accept reservations can be completed by Thursday.

The center will be open from 9 AM to 5 PM the remainder of the week until Friday, when it will stay open until 9 PM. Sunday the center will be open from 9 to 3.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 5 - 1953

BERKSHIRE SEASON OPENS

Munch to Address Music Groups Today at Eleventh Meeting

An address this afternoon by Charles Munch will open the eleventh season of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass. As in previous seasons, the classes will last six weeks, and will be attended by advanced students and professionals.

Dr. Louis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty. There also will be an address by Henry B. Cabot, president of the board of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Saturday, 8:30. Bach program: Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6.

Sunday, July 12, 2:30. Bach program: Cantata No. 28 (Hugh Ross conducting); Suite No. 2, in B minor (flute solo, Doriot Anthony; Suite No. 3, in D major.

Program for Tanglewood Concert Series Announced

Union July 9

Concerts and other events of interest to the public which will take place at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Friday, July 10 through Sunday, July 19, inclusive, are as follows:

Friday, July 10—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra concert by students of Department I

Saturday, July 11—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1 in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin)
No. 3 in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Lukas Foss, piano; Doriot Anthony, flute; Richard Burgin violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday, July 12—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor
Bach ...... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
(Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass)
Bach ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony, flute)
Bach .... Suite No. 3, in D major
*8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III

Wednesday, July 15—*8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge
Fernando Valenti, Harpsichord; Julius Baker Flute; Daniel Saidenberg, Cello
Trio Sonata .... Georg Telemann
Four Sonatas (Harpsichord Solo) .... Domenico Scarlatti
Sonata for Cello and Continuo (From "Der Getreue Musikmeister") .... Georg Telemann
Trio Sonata in G major .... Antonio Lotti
Sonata a Trois in B minor .. J. B. Loeillet
Sonata No. 5 for Flute and Harpsichord .... Georg Handel
Pieces de Clavecin en Concert No. 3 .... J. P. Rameau

Friday, July 17—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra Concert by students of Department I

Saturday July 18—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart .. Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) (Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart .... Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart .... Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)

Sunday, July 19—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"
Mozart .... Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364) (Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale)
Mozart .. Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart .... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)
*8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 6 - 1953

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

Berkshire Festival Opens Saturday

The 16th Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Saturday night with that increasingly popular event, an all-Bach concert. In fact, the Festival is scheduling two Bach concerts for its initial week-end. Conductor Charles Munch will lead the Boston Symphony in five Brandenburg Concertos in the first concert. Sunday at 2:30, the orchestra will perform two Bach Suites, one with the ensemble's distaff first flutist, as soloist. Also on this program, Hugh Ross will conduct the Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists. For further information regarding tickets and performances, write to the Berkshire Festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

OPENING NEXT SAT.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

NY Her Trib July 8

SAT. EVES. AT 8:30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2:30
JULY 11, 12 (BACH Programs) A few seats at $5.
JULY 18, 19 (MOZART Programs) All seats taken
JULY 25, 26 (HAYDN and 20 Century Programs) a few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert)
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600).

Eagle July 7

Art

Summer Art Season Here Ushered In by Two Shows

By JUNE KIMBALL

TWO SUBSTANTIAL exhibitions of paintings have ushered in the summer art season. One is this month's one-man show for George Picken at the Berkshire Museum, and the other is the sixth annual summer-long show at the Berkshire Art Center in Canaan, N.Y.

For the moment, the Picken show is incomplete; some of its major paintings on local themes have been borrowed for a brief exhibit at Tanglewood. When they're returned, a full appraisal of Mr. Picken's recent work will be possible. Meanwhile, the pictures that remain are a bright and fresh exhibit in varied styles of landscape painting.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 1 - 1953

Berkshire Fest Sales Up; 2 Operas Commissioned

Lenox, Mass., June 30.

The Berkshire Music Center, at Tanglewood here, has commissioned two young American composers to write operas for it. Opera director Boris Goldovsky announced that Leonard Rosenman, of N. Y., and Louis Mennini, of Rochester, have each received $750 commissions, and will be guests of the Center this summer while working on their operas. Center starts its 11th annual six-week session next Sunday (5).

Meantime, Boston Symphony Orchestra manager George E. Judd announced that the sale of tix for the 1953 Berkshire Festival has passed 1952's mark, with $59,000 of subscription sales already in. These are for the three series of BSO concerts July 31-Aug. 1-2; Aug. 7-8-9, and Aug. 14-15-16.

HOTEL GAZETTE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 4 - 1953

Donegan opens Crane Inn, completely redecorated

Donegan will operate the Crane Inn on a year round basis. Though it has been open but a few weeks he reports heavy advance bookings and capacity reservations for the annual Berkshire Music Festival.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 5 - 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS
Theatre-Concert Hall
Lenox, Mass.

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. Brandenburg Concertos: Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 .... Bach

NEXT SUNDAY, July 12, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass; Doriot Anthony, flutist. Cantata No. 28; Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings; Suite No. 3 in D .... Bach

[162]

Tanglewood: A Musical Mecca

Thursday, July 9, 1953 THE LAKEVILLE JOURNAL 1

Tens of thousand of students, music lovers and plain tourists from all over the world stream into the central valley of Massachusetts' Berkshire hills each July and August for the Tanglewood concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The public concerts are but a small part of the activities centered at the historic estate, overlooking the lake where Nathaniel Hawthorne once lived and wrote.

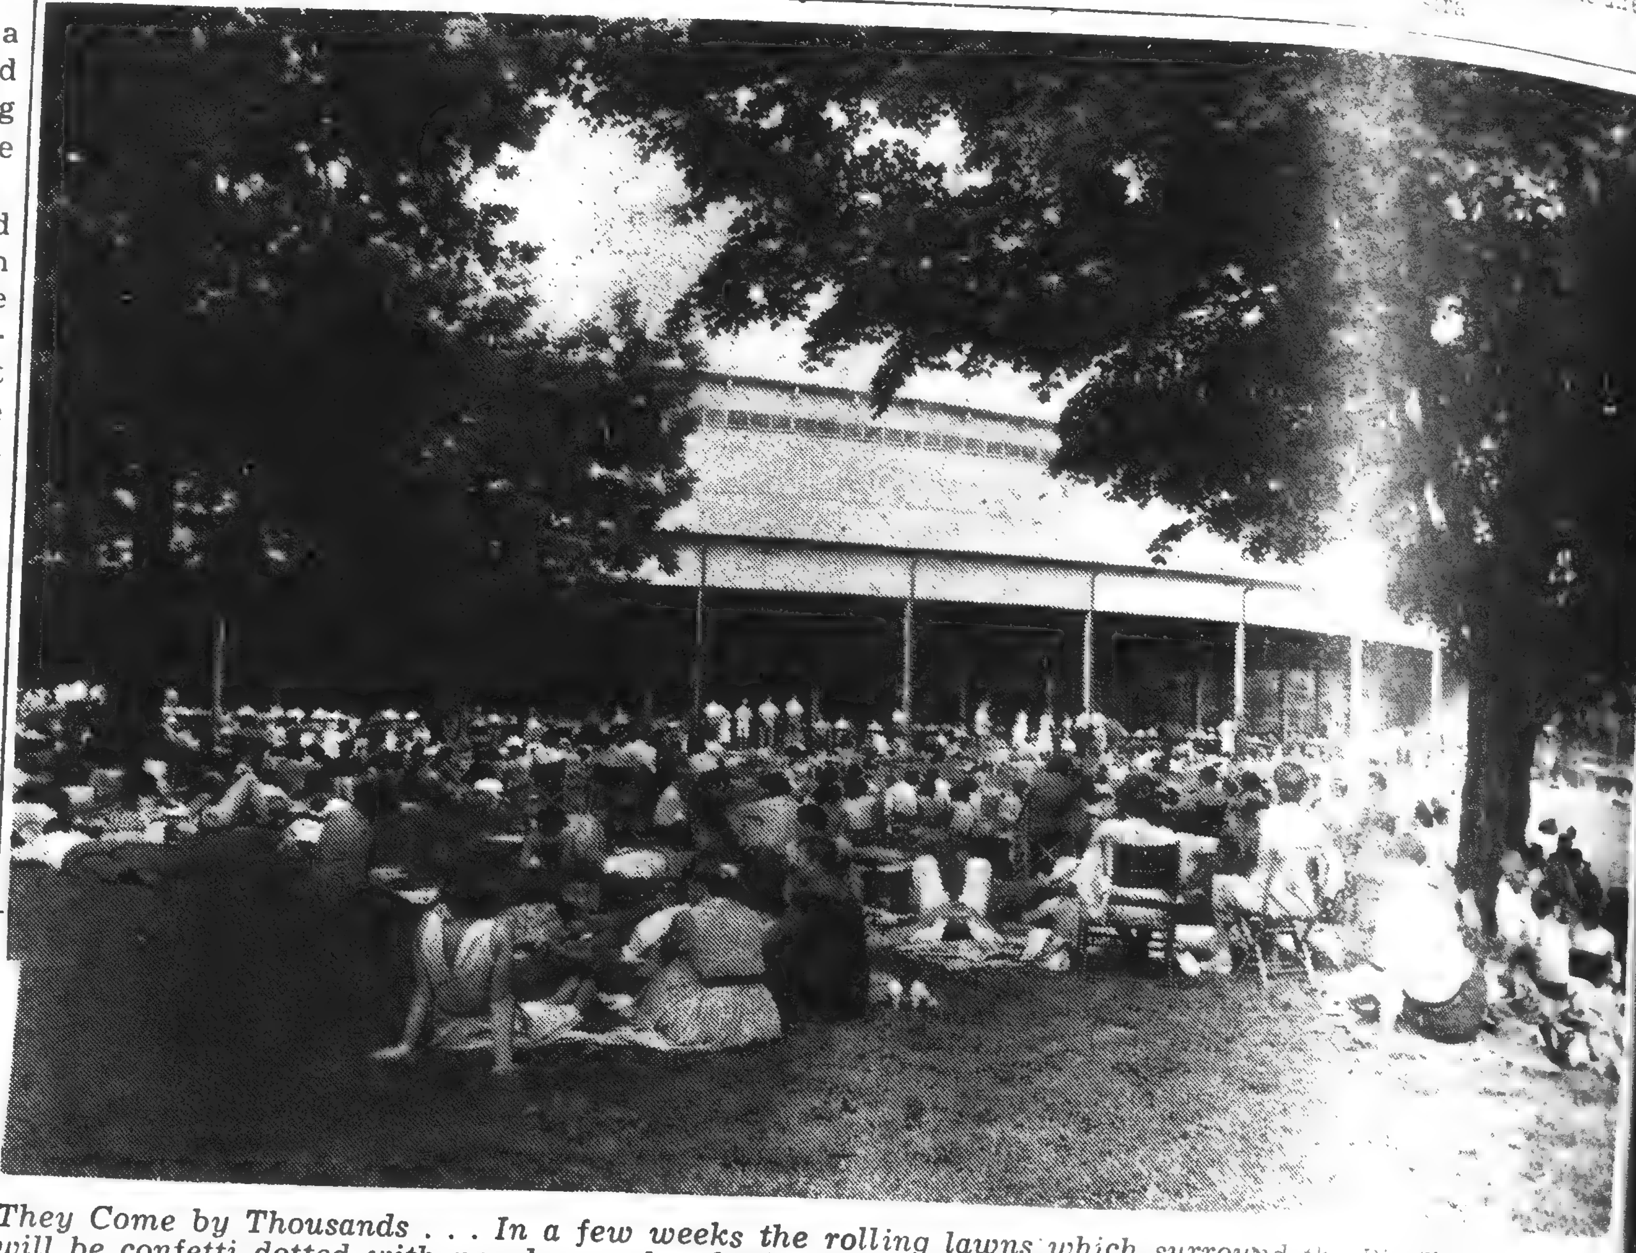
Over 400 students are registered for this summers' six-week session which is taught by members of the Boston Symphony and other international musicoligists. The student roster is made up from forty-one states as well as representatives from Korea, Japan, Sweden, Israel, France, Mexico and Canada.

The concerts began in a humble way in the summer of 1943 when they were held in a tent. In 1937 the festival assumed greater proportions — and possibilities — through the gift of the Tanglewood estate to the Boston Orchestra.

The late Serge Koussevitzky, the orchestra's director, became the moving genius behind Tanglewood and under his leadership both the public concerts and the school became the resounding successes they are today.

On the 210 acres of the estate — velvet lawns and formal gardens shaded by elm, pine and birch — the great "shed" planned by the Finnish architect, Eliel Saarinen, smaller concert halls, a theater and administrative quarters, have been built.

War [illegible] rupted Tanglewood ac- tivities. [illegible] today the crowds [illegible] bigger [illegible] Koussevitzky [illegible] gone [illegible] work has been take[illegible] up and [illegible] by Charles Munch who su[illegible] him as music direct[illegible] of the [illegible]



They Come by Thousands . . . In a few weeks the rolling lawns which surround the Big Shed at Tanglewood will be confetti-dotted with people . . . hundreds and thousands of them, coming from all parts of the country for the Berkshire Festival.

Eagle July 5

Mrs. Koussevitzky Invites Concert Aides To Meet at Seranak

The committee for the "Music for Israel" concert to be given at the Jewish Community Center Tuesday evening, July 28, will meet at Seranak, the home of Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, in Lenox next Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 to plan ticket selling.

Organized under the local chairmanship of Mrs. Stanley Shapiro and the guidance of Miss Helen Coates, national committee chairman, small groups have been invited from Pittsfield and adjacent communities.

The program, to be performed by Jean Bedetti, cellist; Leonard Bernstein, piano; William Kroll, violin; and Joseph de Pasquale, viola; will include works of Beethoven, Brahms and Mozart. The entire proceeds will be for the organization's purpose of providing scholarships, musical instrumenuts and music for music students in Israel.

July 9 Lakeville Journal

Bach Concert Will Be Season Opener Of 1953 Festival

The first 1953 Berkshire Festival concert in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall will be held Saturday night (July 11) at 8:30 p.m., when Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program consisting of five of the six Brandenburg Concertos — No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin); No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) and No. 6, in B-flat (strings). Lukas Foss will be heard in his memorable piano solo in No. 5. Members of the orchestra taking soloist roles are Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin.

The second Bach concert, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon (July 12), will open with the orchestra's first performance of the Cantata No. 28, with the Festival chorus, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program concludes with the Suite No. 3, in D mapor.

Included in the 21 Berkshire Music Center performances listed in the Tanglewood calendar of 47 events during the six-week season are several for the coming week. The first will be the symphony concert Friday night (July 10) by the student orchestra. A chamber music program by students is scheduled for Sunday morning (July 12), and a forum for composition students of Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss is Sunday evening (July 12).

The first of three concerts given to the school by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will be Wednesday evening, July 15, a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, Rameau.

Anyone who contributes to the support of the school by becoming a member of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, is invited to all school events.

At the opening exercises of the school on Sunday (July 5), Charles Munch, its director, urged nearly 400 students who will spend the next six weeks in concentrated study and participation in music to take responsibility for developing and expressing the inner life of the 44 states and eight foreign countries from which they come. "The arts are a civilizing strength, and civilization, despite its failures, is a just goal of the human spirit," he declared.

After a pair of Mozart concerts (July 18-19), and one devoted to Haydn and to modern composers (July 25-26), the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, will open in the Music Shed July 31, on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons through August 16. Programs and information on how to join the Friends' Society will be mailed on request to Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

AL Thursday, July 9, 1953

Millbrook Round Table

Berkshire Festival Opens July 11th

July 9

The opening Berkshire Festival concerts, Mr. Munch conducting, are this week end, July 11-12, with Mr. Munch conducting two all-Bach programs. Lukas Foss, pianist, and Doriot Anthony, flutist, are soloists. Sara Mae Endich, Betty Allen, John McCollum and Mac Morgan are soloists in the orchestra's first performance of the Bach Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office, Lenox, Mass., or phone 600 for all Festival concerts. Programs and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the Berkshire Music Center, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD

JUL 15 1953

Radio and TV—

Yale Law Student Twirls Classical Discs on WAGE

BY JOHN JARSTAD

Weisbond has studied conducting under Leonard Bernstein, famous conductor and composer of the hit musical, "Wonderful Town," for three seasons at the Berkshire Musical Festival at Tanglewood.

He also has studied conducting [illegible]

Berk County Post July 9

LENOX

A LETTER TO THE EDITORS

Thank you for your support of the Music Tent which Lenox has turned down because of zoning restrictions.

We are disappointed, naturally, but we still have great faith in the Berkshires as the cultural summer vacationland of the East. It would be folly on our part, of course, to try to give the people of Berkshire County fine musical comedy and operetta if they do not want it.

What amazed us – and probably dismayed you – was the sentiment against TANGLEWOOD by some of the Lenox public officials. As one official put it, "We're stuck with Tanglewood." He indicated that Lenox would not like to be "stuck" with another Tanglewood in the form of the Music Tent.

The Post is to be congratulated on its efforts to extend the tourist season.

Sincerely yours
Roger Bower

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Music Fete to Resume

The sixteenth annual Berkshire Festival of music will begin ~~Satur~~day at Lenox, Mass., with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The first two concerts, Saturday and Sunday, will be devoted to Bach, and soloists will include Lukas Foss, pianist and Doriot Anthony, the first woman flutist ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony. Saturday's opener will be devoted to five of the six Brandenburg concertos.

* * *

An organization calling itself Punch Opera will open George Antheil's new comic opera, "Volpone," at the Cherry Lane Theatre, 38 Commerce St., Tuesday evening. It is based on the Ben Jonson comedy classic. The title role will be sung by Gordon Myers.

* * *

Pierre Monteux will be the conductor of four successive concerts beginning tomorrow evening at the Lewisohn Stadium. Monday's selections will be from Tschaikowsky; Tuesday's, from Wagner and Sibelius; Wednesday's, from Schumann, and Thursday's from Beethoven, with Mischa Elman playing the D Major violin concerto. On Saturday Andre Kostelanetz will take the baton and Alec Templeton will play Rachmaninoff's concerto in C Major.

Union July 8

OPENING NEXT SAT.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music D[illegible]
THEATRE - CONCE[illegible]
SAT. EVES. AT 8:30 — SUN. AFTS. AT [illegible]

JULY 11, 12 (BACH Programs) — A few seats at $5
JULY 18, 19 (MOZART Programs) — All seats taken
JULY 25, 26 (HAYDN and 20th Century Programs — A few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. [illegible] Aug. [illegible] 8, 9; 14, 15, 16.
Address: Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. [illegible]

B'klyn Herald July 10

LUKAS FOSS, composer and pianist, will be soloist with the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch in the opening Tanglewood concert tomorrow night at 8:30.

July 10

Excursions To Tanglewood

[illegible]

The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Saturday [illegible] —5

TONIGHT AT 8:30
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Dire[illegible]
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

SAT. EVES. AT 8.30 SUN. AFTS. AT [illegible]
July 11, 12 (Bach Programs)—A few seats [illegible]
July 18, 19 (Mozart Programs)—All seats [illegible]
July 25, 26 (Haydn and 20th Century Programs—a few seats [illegible] (General Admission $2, sold on the day of the [illegible]
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. July [illegible]
7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. [illegible]
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

[163]

Eagle July 5

Mrs. Koussevitzky Invites Concert Aides To Meet at Seranak

The committee for the "Music for Israel" concert to be given at the Jewish Community Center Tuesday evening, July 28, will meet at Seranak, the home of Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, in Lenox next Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 to plan ticket selling.

Organized under the local chairmanship of Mrs. Stanley Shapiro and the guidance of Miss Helen Coates, national committee chairman, small groups have been invited from Pittsfield and adjacent communities.

The program, to be performed by Jean Bedetti, cellist; Leonard Bernstein, piano; William Kroll, violin; and Joseph de Pasquale, viola; will include works of Beethoven, Brahms and Mozart. The entire proceeds will be for the organization's purpose of providing scholarships, musical instrumenuts and music for music students in Israel.

Tanglewood: A Musical Mecca

Thursday, July 9, 1953 THE LAKEVILLE JOURNAL 1

Tens of thousand of students, music lovers and plain tourists from all over the world stream into the central valley of Massachusetts' Berkshire hills each July and August for the Tanglewood concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The public concerts are but a small part of the activities centered at the historic estate, overlooking the lake where Nathaniel Hawthorne once lived and wrote.

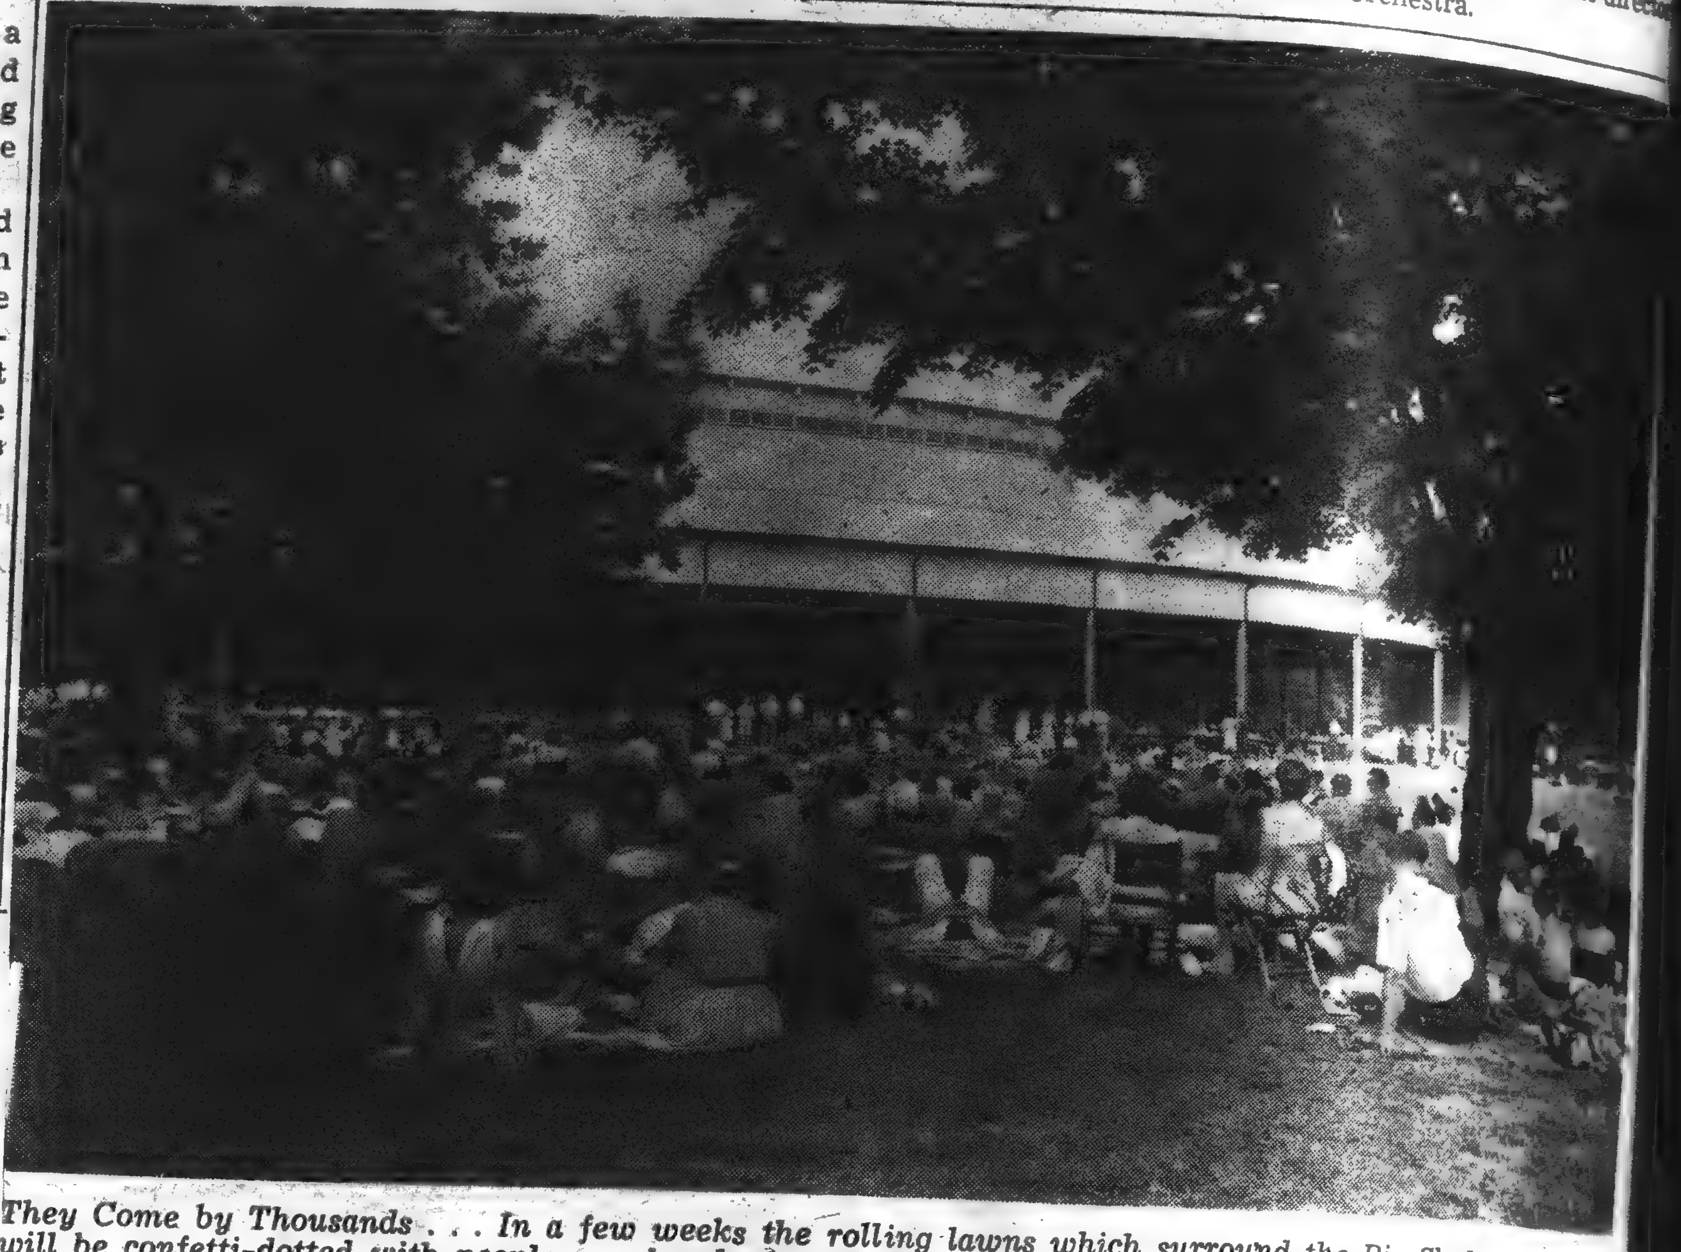
Over 400 students are registered for this summers' six-week session which is taught by members of the Boston Symphony and other international musicoligists. The student roster is made up from forty-one states as well as representatives from Korea, Japan, Sweden, Israel, France, Mexico and Canada.

The concerts began in a humble way in the summer of 1943 when they were held in a tent. In 1937 the festival assumed greater proportions — and possibilities — through the gift of the Tanglewood estate to the Boston Orchestra.

The late Serge Koussevitzky, the orchestra's director, became the moving genius behind Tanglewood and under his leadership both the public concerts and the school became the resounding successes they are today.

On the 210 acres of the estate — velvet lawns and formal gardens shaded by elm, pine and birch — the great "shed" planned by the Finnish architect, Eliel Saarinen, smaller concert halls, a theater and administrative quarters, have been built.

War interrupted Tanglewood activities, but today the crowds are bigger than ever. Koussevitzky is gone but his work has been taken up and expanded by Charles Munch who succeeded him as music director of the orchestra.



They Come by Thousands . . . In a few weeks the rolling lawns which surround the Big Shed at Tanglewood will be confetti-dotted with people . . . hundreds and thousands of them, coming from all parts of the country for the Berkshire Festival.

July 9 Lakeville Journal

Bach Concert Will Be Season Opener Of 1953 Festival

The first 1953 Berkshire Festival concert in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall will be held Saturday night (July 11) at 8:30 p.m., when Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program consisting of five of the six Brandenburg Concertos — No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin); No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) and No. 6, in B-flat (strings). Lukas Foss will be heard in his memorable piano solo in No. 5. Members of the orchestra taking soloist roles are Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin.

AL Thursday, July 9, 1953

The second Bach concert, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon (July 12), will open with the orchestra's first performance of the Cantata No. 28, with the Festival chorus, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program concludes with the Suite No. 3, in D mapor.

Included in the 21 Berkshire Music Center performances listed in the Tanglewood calendar of 47 events during the six-week season are several for the coming week. The first will be the symphony concert Friday night (July 10) by the student orchestra. A chamber music program by students is scheduled for Sunday morning (July 12), and a forum for composition students of Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss is Sunday evening (July 12).

The first of three concerts given to the school by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will be Wednesday evening, July 15, a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, Rameau.

Anyone who contributes to the support of the school by becoming a member of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, is invited to all school events.

At the opening exercises of the school on Sunday (July 5), Charles Munch, its director, urged nearly 400 students who will spend the next six weeks in concentrated study and participation in music to take responsibility for developing and expressing the inner life of the 44 states and eight foreign countries from which they come. "The arts are a civilizing strength, and civilization, despite its failures, is a just goal of the human spirit," he declared.

After a pair of Mozart concerts (July 18-19), and one devoted to Haydn and to modern composers (July 25-26), the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, will open in the Music Shed July 31, on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons through August 16. Programs and information on how to join the Friends' Society will be mailed on request to Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Millbrook Round Table

Berkshire Festival Opens July 11th

July 9

The opening Berkshire Festival concerts, Mr. Munch conducting, are this week end, July 11-12, with Mr. Munch conducting two all-Bach programs. Lukas Foss, pianist, and Doriot Anthony, flutist, are soloists. Sara Mae Endich, Betty Allen, John McCollum and Mac Morgan are soloists in the orchestra's first performance of the Bach Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office, Lenox, Mass., or phone 600 for all Festival concerts. Programs and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the Berkshire Music Center, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD
JUL 15 1953

Radio and TV—

Yale Law Student Twirls Classical Discs on WAGE

BY JOHN JARSTAD

Weisbond has studied conducting under Leonard Bernstein, famous conductor and composer of the hit musical, "Wonderful Town," for three seasons at the Berkshire Musical Festival at Tanglewood.

He also has studied conducting

Berk County Post July 9

LENOX

A LETTER TO THE EDITORS

Thank you for your support of the Music Tent which Lenox has turned down because of zoning restrictions.

We are disappointed, naturally, but we still have great faith in the Berkshires as the cultural summer vacationland of the East. It would be folly on our part, of course, to try to give the people of Berkshire County fine musical comedy and operetta if they do not want it.

What amazed us — and probably dismayed you — was the sentiment against TANGLEWOOD by some of the Lenox public officials. As one official put it, "We're stuck with Tanglewood." He indicated that Lenox would not like to be "stuck" with another Tanglewood in the form of the Music Tent.

The Post is to be congratulated on its efforts to extend the tourist season.

Sincerely yours
Roger Bower

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Music Fete to Resume

The sixteenth annual Berkshire Festival of music will begin Saturday at Lenox, Mass., with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The first two concerts, Saturday and Sunday, will be devoted to Bach, and soloists will include Lukas Foss, pianist and Doriot Anthony, the first woman flutist ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony. Saturday's opener will be devoted to five of the six Brandenburg concertos.

* * *

An organization calling itself Punch Opera will open George Antheil's new comic opera, "Volpone," at the Cherry Lane Theatre, 38 Commerce St., Tuesday evening. It is based on the Ben Jonson comedy classic. The title role will be sung by Gordon Myers.

* * *

Pierre Monteux will be the conductor of four successive concerts beginning tomorrow evening at the Lewisohn Stadium. Monday's selections will be from Tschaikowsky; Tuesday's, from Wagner and Sibelius; Wednesday's, from Schumann, and Thursday's from Beethoven, with Mischa Elman playing the D Major violin concerto. On Saturday Andre Kostelanetz will take the baton and Alec Templeton will play Rachmaninoff's concerto in C Major.

Union July 8

OPENING NEXT SAT.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

by the

BOSTON SYMPHONY

Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE - CONCERT HALL
SAT. EVES. AT 8:30 — SUN. AFTS. AT 2:30
JULY 11, 12 (BACH Programs) — A few seats at $5
JULY 18, 19 (MOZART Programs) — All seats taken
JULY 25, 26 (HAYDN and 20th Century Programs) — A few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert)
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16.
Address: Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)

B'sn Herald July 10

LUKAS FOSS, composer and pianist, will be soloist with the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch in the opening Tanglewood concert tomorrow night at 8:30.

N.Y.H.T. July 10

Excursions To Tanglewood

Excursions from New York to the six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., beginning Sunday, have been arranged by the New Haven Railroad with an inclusive rate of $6.95 including general admission to the concert, rail and bus transportation and taxes.

Tickets, which must be bought in advance at Grand Central Terminal, will be good on the train leaving New York at 8:20 a. m. for Stockbridge and the train leaving Pittsfield at 7:30 p. m. and due in New York at 11:30 p. m. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will play under the direction of Charles Munch on July 12, 19 and 26, and the full Boston Symphony will play on Aug. 2, 9 and 16.

The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Saturday, July 11, 1953—5

TONIGHT AT 8.30

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

By the

BOSTON SYMPHONY

Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
SAT. EVES. AT 8.30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2.30
July 11, 12 (Bach Programs)—A few seats at $5
July 18, 19 (Mozart Programs)—All seats taken
July 25, 26 (Haydn and 20th Century Programs—a few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert)
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

What Go

Summer Eente

"Which, since you m don't like music," buz unpleasantly, "gave an ally fine concert only performed by three m
the famed Boston Sh
some rarely-played t dollar top, tax inclu more fine concerts to full information ca Conn., 328. Not that know anything about that the nationall
Jacob's Pillow Dance
Route 20, near Lee, M away back on July
Lester Horton Dance
Hollywood. All seats and they're tax exemp information, write B
Mass., or telephone L
you haven't even tho
"We have, too, thoug
glewood," we shouted, ed a last year's progr bert. "Yes, we agre biggest summer music
the nation, if not in The choice 'little sh open night after tomor day the 11th, at 8:30, ers from the Boston
under Charles Munch doing all, yes, all six Brandenburg Concertos
being among the sol
ain't THAT somethin
"At 2:30 next day, 12th, (instead of at 3 case last year) the "
will be ringing pleas another program. All-Cantata No. 28, co
Hugh Ross. The Suite
B minor, for flute a with that astounding
Anthony. AND the Suite No. 3. Reserve y
by calling Lenox, Mass.
now. They'll cost you apiece, but they'll be
Of course you can ge grounds for $2 and s spacious lawn."

HIG

DORIOT ANTHONY, woman ever to hold a ma with the Boston Symph chestra, is flute soloist w orchestra in her first app at Tanglewood, Charles conducting, at the openi Bach concerts of the Be Festival, Saturday, July 1
P.M.) and Sunday, July 1 P.M.). Miss Anthony is the soloists in the Bach B burg Concertos No. 2, in
No. 5, in D on July 11;
the Bach Suite No. 2, in on July 12, in the Thea cert Hall.

New Yorker

GOIN ABOU

IN

BERKSHIRE FESTIV
the Boston
formances
through Su
11, at 8:30: A
Foss, piano.
An all-Bach flute. . . . ¶ Sa
Mozart progr
¶ Sunday, J program, wit
de Pasquale,
Tanglewood,

Millerton July 9

What Goes On Around Here?

Summer Fentertainment In The Area
A Native Gives Tips and Opinions

"Which since you imply that I don't like music," buzzed Egbert unpleasantly, "have an exceptionally fine concert only yesterday, performed by three members of the famed Boston Smyphony in some rarely-played things at a dollar top, tax included, with more fine concerts to come. For full information call Norfolk, Conn., 328. Not that YOU would know anything about it! Or even that the nationally-renowned Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, on Route 20, near Lee, Mass., opened away back on July 3, with the Lester Horton Dance Theatre of Hollywood. All seats are $2.50, and they're tax exempt. For full information, write Box 87, Lee, Mass. or telephone Lee 745. And you haven't even thought of—"

"We have, too, thought of Tanglewood," we shouted, as we aimed a last year's program at Egbert. "Yes, we agree—it's the biggest summer music festival in the nation, if not in the world. The choice 'little shed' concerts open night after tomorrow, Saturday the 11th, at 8:30, with players from the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch himself, doing all, yes, all six of the Bach Brandenburg Concertos. Luke Foss being among the soloists. And isn't THAT something?

"At 2:30 next day, Sunday the 12th, instead of at 3 as was the case last year, the "little shed" will be ringing pleasantly with another program All-Bach. The Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross. The Suite No. 2 in B minor, for flute and strings, with that astounding lady, Doriot Anthony, AND the D mapor Suite No. 3. Reserve your seats by calling Lenox, Mass., 600. But now. They'll cost you $4 or $5 apiece, but they'll be worth it. Of course you can get into the grounds for $2 and sit on the spacious lawn—"

HIG LEAFE

with

DORIOT ANTHONY, the first woman ever to hold a major desk with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is flute soloist with the orchestra in her first appearance at Tanglewood. Charles Munch conducting, at the opening all-Bach concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Saturday, July 11, (8:30 P.M.) and Sunday, July 12, (2:30 P.M.). Miss Anthony is one of the soloists in the Bach Brandenburg Concertos No. 2, in F and No. 5, in D on July 11; and in the Bach Suite No. 2, in B minor on July 12, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Eagle July 10, 1953

Five Concertos on Bach Program As '53 Festival Opens Tomorrow

To open the early series of the Berkshire Festival tomorrow night, Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, including those occupying the principal chairs, in the unusual program of five Brandenburg concertos by John Sebastian Bach. Seldom heard in the same concert, the concertos are No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F; No. 3 in G; No. 5 in D; and No. 6 in B-flat.

Miss Doriot Anthony, flautist, and Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, will be soloists in the second and fifth concertos. In the second, also, Roger Voisin, trumpet, and first, Harold Gomberg, oboe, will play solos and Lukas Foss, pianist, in the fifth.

Joined BSO in 1920

Mr. Burgin, who made his first public appearance at the age of 11 as violin soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic Society, has been concertmaster and soloist of the Leningrad, Helsinki, Christiania and Stockholm Orchestras, serving under Nikisch, Fiedler, Richard Strauss, Schneevoigt and Sibelius. He became concertmaster of the BSO in 1920, and last year conductor of the Portland (Maine) Orchèstra. He heads the chamber music department of the Berkshire Music Center.

Miss Anthony, who last fall succeeded Georges Laurant at the desk of principal flautist, has played in Washington's National Symphony, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, NBC Standard (Los Angeles, Cal.) and Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestras. She will play at Tanglewood for the first time.

Mr. Gomberg, who is a native Bostonian, was first oboe for Stokowski's All-American Youth, the Baltimore Symphony and the Mutual Broadcasting Orchestras and soloed for the New York City Center Symphony under Bernstein. He is a graduate of Curtis Institute, Philadelphia.

Learned Trumpet From Father

A native of Angers, France, Mr. Voisin learned to play the trumpet from his father, whom he succeeded with the BSO. He teaches solfege at Tanglewood.

Bach presented his six Brandenburg concertos to the Margraf of Brandenburg in 1721. Never have more than two been played at Tanglewood on the same program.

Tickets may be obtained at the Tanglewood box office or England Brothers for tomorrow night's concert, which will be followed by chamber concerts every Saturday evening at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30 through July 26. Admission for listening from the lawn will be available before the concerts. In case of rain the programs will be held in the Music Shed, which also will seat the lawn audience.

NYT July 11

OPENING TONIGHT, at 8:30
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
SAT. EVES. AT 8:30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2:30
JULY 11, 12 (BACH Programs)—A few seats at $5
JULY 18, 19 (MOZART Programs) All seats taken
JULY 25, 26 (HAYDN and 20th Century Programs) a few seats at $4 and $5. (General admission $2, sold on the day of the concert).
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.
(Phone Lenox 600)

Hugh Ross To Conduct Cantata At Festival Concert Tomorrow

Eagle July 11

John McCollum

Mac Morgan

Soloists for Bach's Cantata 28, "Nun Geht das Jahr zu Ende," which Hugh Ross will conduct tomorrow afternoon at the second concert of the early Berkshire Festival in the Tanglewood theatre-concert hall, include a Stockbridge resident. Mac Morgan, a former Berkshire Music Center student, will sing the bass part.

The Berkshire Music Center chorus will join with the Boston Symphony chamber orchestra in an all-Bach program with Charles Munch directing. The chorus is trained by Mr. Ross, head of the school's choral and choral conducting department.

Other soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, contralto; and John McCollum, tenor. All were heard at Tanglewood last season, the last three are currently studying opera under Boris Goldovsky.

Live on Yale Hill

Mr. Morgan, with Mrs. Morgan and three children, live on Yale Hill, where they bought a home last spring from Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Spencer. An alumnus of the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, N.Y., he is a concert singer. He studied at Tanglewood for two seasons.

Miss Allen, who last fall received a $500 Marian Anderson scholarship award, also has spent two summers at Tanglewood singing leading roles in the opera and choral departments. In the spring of 1952 she went to Paris to sing in "Four Saints in Three Acts" at the month-long exhibition of American Arts sponsored by the American Committee for Cultural Freedom. She is a resident of Hartford, Conn.

Miss Endich, on leave from the European division of the Herald-Tribune's New York office, is a native of Steubenville, Ohio. On returning to New York last summer, following six weeks in Tanglewood's choral department, she was chosen by Dmitri Metropolis, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, to sing a role in a concert version of Boris Godunov at Carnegie Hall. She is soloist at the Central Synagogue, New York, and is heard on its radio program.

Majored in Journalism

Following his graduation from the University of California, where he majored in music and journalism, John McCollum won an Atwater Kent award in 1950. He had served three years as Navy fighter pilot in World War II. Last year he won the American Theatre Wing Award, which resulted in a Town Hall, New York, debut.

Cantata 28 was written by Bach in praise of the year's end, to be sung in church the Sunday after Christmas. Miss Doriot Anthony, principal flutist of the orchestra, will be the soloist for Bach's Suite No. 2 in B minor, for flute and strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D major, which the composer probably wrote between 1717 and 1823, while he was kapellmeister to Prince Leopold of Amhalt-Cothern. It was for him that Bach composed most of his chamber music, half of his "Well-tempered Clavichord" and the "Inventions."

A few seats remain for tomorrow's concert. Admission tickets, entitling the holders to listen from the lawn, will be sold a few hours before the program begins. In case of rain, the concert will be held in the music shed.

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION, SPRINGI

500 Dolls in Exhibit At Berkshire Museum

Union July 11

By WAYNE C. SMITH

Stuart Henry, director of the museum, is responsible for weekly exhibition in the so-called "Gold Fish Bowl" at the main entrance to Tanglewood. For this week's show there Mr. Henry is presenting a group of five of Picken's canvases from his Pittsfield one-man show.

Next week the exhibition is to be arranged by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge and will include scenes around the Berkshires by Lane; Stanley Bate, Claverack, N. Y.; John Carroll, East Chatham, N. Y.; E. Arnold Clark, Great Barrington; Homer Gunn, West Stockbridge, and June Kimball of Pittsfield.

Eagle July 10

PHILCO CORPORATION is proud to present the World Premiere of this magnificent new kind of High Fidelity instrument during the renowned Berkshire Festival. All friends and patrons of the Festival are welcome to attend these presentations of Philco 'Phonorama', which we are confident will afford a thrilling new experience in the enjoyment of recorded music.

OINGS ON OUT TOWN

IN THE COUNTRY

ESTIVAL—Charles Münch conducting n Symphony in the opening per- of the season, which will run Sunday, Aug. 16—Saturday, July : An all-Bach program, with Lukas ano. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 12, at 2:30: Bach program, with Doriot Anthony, ¶ Saturday, July 18, at 8:30: An all-program, with Isaac Stern, violin. . . . y, July 19, at 2:30: An all-Mozart with Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph uale, viola. (Theatre-Concert Hall, ood, Lenox, Mass.)

Tanglewood Starts Tonight

NYHT July 11

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 10.—The sixteenth Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood opens at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night. Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in five of Bach's Brandenburg concertos. A second Bach program, including a cantata and two suites, will be given at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

The complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give the festival concerts in Tanglewood's Music Shed on Friday andSaturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 30 through Aug. 16. Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, will be soloists in Brahms' Requiem under Mr. Munch Friday night, Aug. 14.

NAMES SOLOISTS, AUG. 14 'REQUIEM'

Lenox July 11

Munch Announces Warfield, Lois Marshall to Sing

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as the soloists for Brahms' "Requiem" which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Friday, Aug. 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The 28-year-old Canadian soprano was last year's Naumburg winner, made her American debut with a Town Hall recital, and was chosen by Toscanini for his radio performance of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis." She will make her debut at Tanglewood this summer, as will Mr. Warfield, who since his concert debut in 1950 has sung "Old Man River" in the latest filming of "Show Boat" and Porgy in Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris.

A change in the contribution of mezzo-soprano Jennie Tourel to this season's Tanglewood programs will find her also singing the contralto role in Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" on Friday, Aug. 7. The following night, Aug. 8, when Leonard Bernstein conducts a memorial to the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Miss Tourel sings the Ravel "Sheherazade" and the Mahler Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") with basso Nicola Mascona.

The Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood with two Bach concerts July 11-12; two Mozart concerts, July 18-19; a Haydn program, July 25, and one devoted to 20th century composers, July 26, all preceding the major festival in the Music Shed, July 31-Aug. 16.

A change in the Sunday afternoon Aug. 9 Festival concert program will find Charles Munch conducting Albert Roussel's "Bacchus et Ariane" instead of Wagner's Overture to "Tannhauser."

NYT July 12

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft. July 18, 19 (MOZART Programs). Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 25, 26.
A few reserved seats—General Admission $2
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16.
Tickets at Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Tel. Lenox 600.

[164]

What Goes On Around Here?

Summer Eentertainment In The Area

A Native Gives Tips and Opinions

"Which, since you imply that I don't like music," buzzed Egbert, with… unpleasantly, "gave an exceptionally fine concert only yesterday, performed by three members of the famed Boston Smyphony in some rarely-played things at a dollar top, tax included, with more fine concerts to come. For full information call Norfolk, Conn., 328. Not that YOU would know anything about it! Or even that the nationally-renowned Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, on Route 20, near Lee, Mass., opened away back on July 3, with the Lester Horton Dance Theatre of Hollywood. All seats are $2.50, and they're tax exempt. For full information, write Box 87, Lee, Mass., or telephone Lee 745. And you haven't even thought of—"

"We have, too, thought of Tanglewood," we shouted, as we aimed a last year's program at Egbert. "Yes, we agree—it's the biggest summer music festival in the nation, if not in the world. The choice 'little shed' concerts open night after tomorrow, Saturday the 11th, at 8:30, with players from the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch himself, doing all, yes, all six of the Bach Brandenburg Concertos, Luke Foss being among the soloists. And isn't THAT something?

"At 2:30 next day, Sunday the 12th, (instead of at 3 as was the case last year) the "little shed" will be ringing pleasantly with another program. All-Bach. The Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross. The Suite No. 2 in B minor, for flute and strings, with that astounding lady, Doriot Anthony. AND the D mapor Suite No. 3. Reserve your seats by calling Lenox, Mass., 600. But now. They'll cost you $4 or $5 apiece, but they'll be worth it. Of course you can get into the grounds for $2 and sit on the spacious lawn—"

HIG LEAFE

Eagle July 10, 1953

Five Concertos on Bach Program As '53 Festival Opens Tomorrow

To open the early series of the Berkshire Festival tomorrow night, Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, including those occupying the principal chairs, in the unusual program of five Brandenburg concertos by John Sebastian Bach. Seldom heard in the same concert, the concertos are No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F; No. 3 in G; No. 5 in D; and No. 6 in B-flat.

Miss Doriot Anthony, flautist, and Richard Burgin, the orchestra's concertmaster, will be soloists in the second and fifth concertos. In the second, also, Roger Voisin, trumpet, and first, Harold Gomberg, oboe, will play solos and Lukas Foss, pianist, in the fifth.

Joined BSO in 1920

Mr. Burgin, who made his first public appearance at the age of 11 as violin soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic Society, has been concertmaster and soloist of the Leningrad, Helsinki, Christiania and Stockholm Orchestras, serving under Nikisch, Fiedler, Richard Strauss, Schneevoigt and Sibelius. He became concertmaster of the BSO in 1920, and last year conductor of the Portland (Maine) Orchestra. He heads the chamber music department of the Berkshire Music Center.

Miss Anthony, who last fall succeeded Georges Laurant at the desk of principal flautist, has played in Washington's National Symphony, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, NBC Standard (Los Angeles, Cal.) and Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestras. She will play at Tanglewood for the first time.

Mr. Gomberg, who is a native Bostonian, was first oboe for Stokowski's All-American Youth, the Baltimore Symphony and the Mutual Broadcasting Orchestras and soloed for the New York City Center Symphony under Bernstein. He is a graduate of Curtis Institute, Philadelphia.

Learned Trumpet From Father

A native of Angers, France, Mr. Voisin learned to play the trumpet from his father, whom he succeeded with the BSO. He teaches solfege at Tanglewood.

Bach presented his six Brandenburg concertos to the Margraf of Brandenburg in 1721. Never have more than two been played at Tanglewood on the same program.

Tickets may be obtained at the Tanglewood box office or England Brothers for tomorrow night's concert, which will be followed by chamber concerts every Saturday evening at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30 through July 26. Admission for listening from the lawn will be available before the concerts. In case of rain the programs will be held in the Music Shed, which also will seat the lawn audience.

OPENING TONIGHT, at 8:30

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

NYT July 11

By the

BOSTON SYMPHONY

Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

SAT. EVES. AT 8:30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2:30

JULY 11, 12 (BACH Programs)—A few seats at $5
JULY 18, 19 (MOZART Programs) All seats taken
JULY 25, 26 (HAYDN and 20th Century Programs) a few seats at $4 and $5. (General admission $2, sold on the day of the concert).
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.
(Phone Lenox 600)

DORIOT ANTHONY, the first woman ever to hold a major desk with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is flute soloist with the orchestra in her first appearance at Tanglewood, Charles Munch conducting, at the opening all-Bach concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Saturday, July 11, (8:30 P.M.) and Sunday, July 12, (2:30 P.M.). Miss Anthony is one of the soloists in the Bach Brandenburg Concertos No. 2, in F and No. 5, in D on July 11; and in the Bach Suite No. 2, in B minor on July 12, in the Theater-Concert Hall.

THE SPRINGFIELD UNION, SPRINGF

500 Dolls in Exhibit At Berkshire Museum

Union July 11

By WAYNE C. SMITH

Stuart Henry, director of the museum, is responsible for weekly exhibition in the so-called "Gold Fish Bowl" at the main entrance to Tanglewood. For this week's show there Mr. Henry is presenting a group of five of Picken's canvases from his Pittsfield one-man show.

Next week the exhibition is to be arranged by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge and will include scenes around the Berkshires by Lane; Stanley Bate, Claverack, N. Y.; John Carroll, East Chatham, N. Y.; K. Arnold Clark, Great Barrington; Homer Gunn, West Stockbridge, and June Kimball of Pittsfield.

July 11/53

GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN

IN THE COUNTRY

FESTIVAL—Charles Münch conducting …ston Symphony in the opening per…nces of the season, which will run …h Sunday, Aug. 16—Saturday, July …:30: An all-Bach program, with Lukas …piano. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 12, at 2:30: …all-Bach program, with Doriot Anthony, …. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 18, at 8:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 19, at 2:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph …Pasquale, viola. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.)

Tanglewood Starts Tonight

July 11

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 10.—The sixteenth Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood opens at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night. Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in five of Bach's Brandenburg concertos. A second Bach program, including a cantata and two suites, will be given at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

The complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will give the festival concerts in Tanglewood's Music Shed on Friday andSaturday nights and Sunday afternoons from July 30 through Aug. 16. Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, will be soloists in Brahms' Requiem under Mr. Munch Friday night, Aug. 14.

Hugh Ross To Conduct Cantata At Festival Concert Tomorrow

Eagle July

John McCollum

Mac Morgan

Soloists for Bach's Cantata 28, "Nun Geht das Jahr zu Ende," which Hugh Ross will conduct tomorrow afternoon at the second concert of the early Berkshire Festival in the Tanglewood theatre-concert hall, include a Stockbridge resident. Mac Morgan, a former Berkshire Music Center student, will sing the bass part.

The Berkshire Music Center chorus will join with the Boston Symphony chamber orchestra in an all-Bach program with Charles Munch directing. The chorus is trained by Mr. Ross, head of the school's choral and choral conducting department.

Other soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, contralto; and John McCollum, tenor. All were heard at Tanglewood last season, the last three are currently studying opera under Boris Goldovsky.

Live on Yale Hill

Mr. Morgan, with Mrs. Morgan and three children, live on Yale Hill, where they bought a home last spring from Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Spencer. An alumnus of the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, N.Y., he is a concert singer. He studied at Tanglewood for two seasons.

Miss Allen, who last fall received a $500 Marian Anderson scholarship award, also has spent two summers at Tanglewood singing leading roles in the opera and choral departments. In the spring of 1952 she went to Paris to sing in "Four Saints in Three Acts" at the month-long exhibition of American Arts sponsored by the American Committee for Cultural Freedom. She is a resident of Hartford, Conn.

Miss Endich, on leave from the European division of the Herald-Tribune's New York office, is a native of Steubenville, Ohio. On returning to New York last summer, following six weeks in Tanglewood's choral department, she was chosen by Dmitri Metropolis, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, to sing a role in a concert version of Boris Godunov at Carnegie Hall. She is soloist at the Central Synagogue, New York, and is heard on its radio program.

Majored in Journalism

Following his graduation from the University of California, where he majored in music and journalism, John McCollum won an Atwater Kent award in 1950. He had served three years as Navy fighter pilot in World War II. Last year he won the American Theatre Wing Award, which resulted in a Town Hall, New York, debut.

Cantata 28 was written by Bach in praise of the year's end, to be sung in church the Sunday after Christmas. Miss Doriot Anthony, principal flutist of the orchestra, will be the soloist for Bach's Suite No. 2 in B minor, for flute and strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D major, which the composer probably wrote between 1717 and 1823, while he was kapellmeister to Prince Leopold of Amhalt-Cothern. It was for him that Bach composed most of his chamber music, half of his "Well-tempered Clavichord" and the "Inventions."

A few seats remain for tomorrow's concert. Admission tickets, entitling the holders to listen from the lawn, will be sold a few hours before the program begins. In case of rain, the concert will be held in the music shed.

Eagle July 10

PHILCO CORPORATION is proud to present the World Premiere of this magnificent new kind of High Fidelity instrument during the renowned Berkshire Festival. All friends and patrons of the Festival are welcome to attend these presentations of Philco 'Phonorama', which we are confident will afford a thrilling new experience in the enjoyment of recorded music.

NAMES SOLOISTS, AUG. 14 'REQUIEM'

Union July 11

Munch Announces Warfield; Lois Marshall to Sing

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as the soloists for Brahms' "Requiem" which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Friday, Aug. 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The 28-year-old Canadian soprano was last year's Naumburg winner, made her American debut with a Town Hall recital, and was chosen by Toscanini for his radio performance of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis." She will make her debut at Tanglewood this summer, as will Mr. Warfield, who since his concert debut in 1950 has sung "Old Man River" in the latest filming of "Show Boat" and Porgy in Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris.

A change in the contribution of mezzo-soprano Jennie Tourel to this season's Tanglewood programs will find her also singing the contralto role in Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" on Friday, Aug. 7. The following night, Aug. 8, when Leonard Bernstein conducts a memorial to the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Miss Tourel sings the Ravel "Sheherazade" and the Mahler Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") with basso Nicola Mascona.

The Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood with two Bach concerts July 11-12; two Mozart concerts, July 18-19; a Haydn program, July 25, and one devoted to 20th century composers, July 26, all preceding the major festival in the Music Shed, July 31-Aug. 16.

A change in the Sunday afternoon Aug. 9 Festival concert program will find Charles Munch conducting Albert Roussel's "Bacchus et Ariane" instead of Wagner's Overture to "Tannhauser."

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

NYT July 12

by the

BOSTON SYMPHONY

Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft. July 18, 19 (MOZART Program). Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 25, 26.
A few reserved seats—General Admission $2

SHED CONCERTS: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16.
Tickets at Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Tel. Lenox 600.

16TH BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL WILL START TONIGHT

First Concert of 15 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Begins at 8:15

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts tonight at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, the second concert to be Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

A few $5 seats remain for both concerts, and general admission at $2 is sold on the day of each concert. Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the spacious lawns of Tanglewood. Grounds are open to concertgoers at 6 p. m. for evening concerts and at 12.30 p. m. for afternoon performances. A cafeteria on the grounds also services patrons.

The week end programs are:

Saturday, 8.30 p. m.

BACH .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2 in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Soloists: DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; HAROLD GOMBERG, oboe; ROGER VOISIN, trumpet; RICHARD BURGIN, violin).
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Soloists: LUKAS FOSS, piano; DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; RICHARD BURGIN, violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday, 2.30 p. m.

BACH .... Cantata No. 28, with Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center and Soloists: SARA MAE ENDICH, soprano; BETTY ALLEN, alto; JOHN McCOLLUM, tenor; MAC MORGAN, bass)
BACH ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY
BACH ...... Suite No. 3 in D major.

General admission only is available for the pair of July 18-19 Mozart concerts; and a limited number of seats at $4 and $5, remain for the July 25 all-Haydn concert and the July 26 performance of 20th century composers, which includes works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," which the composer will conduct, with Vera Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist, and the Berkshire Festival chorus assisting.

The major Berkshire Festival, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, opens in Tanglewood's huge Music Shed on July 31.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
JUL 5 - 1953

N.Y.T. July 12

Sara Mae Endich, soprano, sings at Tanglewood today.

Thompson, Hart, Miller, Con-

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

Theatre-Concert Hall
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass; Doriot Anthony, flutist.
Cantata No. 28; Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings; Suite No. 3 in D ....Bach

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch. Isaac Stern, violinist.
Divertimento in D, for strings; Violin Concerto in G; Serenade for Thirteen Winds; Prague Symphony ....Mozart

NEXT SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch. Isaac Stern, violinist; Joseph De Pasquale, violist.
Overture to The Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Jupiter Symphony ....Mozart

---

Bach Programs Will Launch Annual Berkshire Festival

A pair of Bach programs next Saturday night and Sunday afternoon at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will launch the 16th Berkshire Festival and the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated.

The programs will be held in the 1200-seat Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 and 2:30 o'clock and will be conducted by Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director. They will be the first of a series of three weekend concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall extending through July 26. All will be conducted by Munch. Later, when the succeeding series of concerts in the 6000-seat Shed starts, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will assist Munch as guest conductors.

Lukas Foss, pianist, will be one of the soloists in the opening concert Saturday night. The program will consist entirely of Bach's "Brandenburg" Concertos listed in the following order: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin); No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon's program will consist of Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists conducted by Hugh Ross; Suite No. 2, in B-minor, for Flute and Strings, Doriot Anthony, s[illegible]; and Suite No. 3, in D-major.

The two concerts on the following weekend will be all-Mozart, and the series will end July 25 and 26 with a Haydn program and a session with composers Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Foss.

Lukas Foss
Soloist at Tanglewood.

This Clipping From
NEW YORKER
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 11 1953

IN THE COUNTRY

Berkshire Festival—Charles Münch conducting the Boston Symphony in the opening performances of the season, which will run through Sunday, Aug. 16—Saturday, July 11, at 8:30: An all-Bach program, with Lukas Foss, piano. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 12, at 2:30: An all-Bach program, with Doriot Anthony, flute. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 18, at 8:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 19, at 2:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.)

Eagle July 11

FESTIVAL SOLOIST: Roger Voisin will play the trumpet solo in one of the five Brandenburg concertos by Bach to be performed at Tanglewood tonight.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

ART EXHIBITIONS FOR COMING WEEK

GEORGE WALTER VINCENT SMITH ART MUSEUM: Annual exhibition of selected works by students in the museum's Saturday morning art classes. Annual exhibition of the Artists' Guild of Springfield closes today.

WELLMAN HALL, CITY LIBRARY: Reproductions of paintings and drawings by Ingres and paintings by Leon Garland close Tuesday.

BERKSHIRE MUSEUM, PITTSFIELD: Exhibition of the work of Janet Jahn and annual exhibition of the Berkshire Camera Club close Tuesday. Opening Wednesday, Exhibition of recent paintings by George Pickens; "Old Masters and Modern Art" from the museum's collections; Boston Symphony Orchestra exhibition; "Meet the Australians" from the Photographic Society of America.

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, STOCKBRIDGE: Exhibition of paintings by Berkshire artists.

MOUNTAIN PARK CASINO, HOLYOKE: Exhibition of paintings by members of the Academic Artists Association.

MEMORIAL BUILDING, DEERFIELD ACADEMY: Annual exhibition of the Deerfield Valley Art Association.

MEAD ART BUILDING, AMHERST COLLEGE: Selections from alumni gifts. Exhibition of paintings, prints and sculpture by Geoffrey Hendricks closes Tuesday.

WADSWORTH ATHENEUM, HARTFORD: Exhibition of embroideries of American, European, Oriental, Peruvian, Mexican and African origins; annual exhibition of student work of the Hartford Art School.

LYME ART ASSOCIATION, OLD LYME, CONN.: 29th annual spring exhibition of water colors, pastels, prints and drawings.

ROCKPORT ART ASSOCIATION, ROCKPORT: First section of the association's annual summer exhibition.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUL 14 1953

All-Mozart Program Slated at Tanglewood

All-Mozart concerts will be played this week end by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Charles Munch, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The programs:

Saturday at 8::30—Divertimento in D, for Strings (K 136); Concerto for Violin, in G (K 216), Isaac Stern, soloist; Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K 361); "Prague" Symphony.

Sunday at 2:30—Overture to "Marriage Of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, Mr. Stern, violin, Joseph de Pasquale, viola; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; "Jupiter" Symphony.

Music

~~Eagle~~ July 11

Students Open Concerts at Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE CONCERT by the Berkshire Music Center orchestra last night in the great shed was the first event of the Tanglewood season. The management may well consider tonight's concert in which Charles Munch will direc a chamber orchestra from the first chair men of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Theatre in a program of Bach Brandenburg concertos as the formal opening of the season. There would be some who think the student concert ushers in the season. Luckily there need be no decision; all concerned are happy.

* * *

IT IS A SOURCE of never-ending wonder to the fortunate Friends of the Berkshire Music Center who are admitted to these student orchestra concerts how so much can be accomplished in so short a time, as last night's orchestra first assembled only this past Monday morning. True, as individuals they include some of the most advanced pupils from our leading conservatories, and the student conductors are already young men of experience.

Robert Mandell conducted four excerpts from Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Harold Blumenfield Prokokieff's suite "Lieutenant Kije." There was much in both performances to give the huge audience great pleasure, and it required no great chairty to overlook some of the deficiencies and only to notice and remember the favorable achievements and salient attributes.

* * *

AFTER THE intermission Leonard Bernstein, who, among other functions, is head of the orchestral conduction classes at the Center, himself conducted the Dvorak "From the New World" symphony. Mr. Bernstein's mastery and experience gave the young musicians of the orchestra a courage and assurance which had not been consistently apparent under the baton of the student conductors. They responded to his dynamic, colorful and imaginative directing with incisive vigor where indicated and a warmth of tone not produced in the other sustained movements of the first part of the program.

* * *

THE NEXT student symphony concert will be Friday evening at 8.30. Like all school performances it will be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Tanglewood

TONIGHT

8.30— [illegible]

TOMORROW

AM
*10.00 [illegible]

PM
2.30 [illegible]

8.30 [illegible]

*Open to Friends of Berkshire Music Center

The [illegible] in Prokofieff's "Lieutenant Kije" last night was made by the real thing, borrowed from Mr. and Mrs. John H. P. Gould [illegible] Tanglewood. Unable to find them in Boston, Pittsfield or Lenox shops, Boston Symphony Orchestra tympanist Roman Szulc [illegible] and found them next door. They were mounted on wood by BSO baggagemaster Harvey Genereux and were jingled at the performance by student tympanist Lloyd McCausland of Milford.

Composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center and a member of its faculty since its opening in 19[illegible], has been invited to conduct a [illegible] of his own works in Mexico City after the Tanglewood season [illegible] autumn. It will be his seventh [illegible] to Mexico.

An Israeli journalist, Peter Gradenwitz, a Tanglewood Study Group student, will lecture for students on "Oriental Music" Monday at 3.15. The event will be the first of a series on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

Betty-Lou Allen, contralto, [illegible] Cantata No. 28 tomorrow afternoon on the Berkshire Festival's [illegible] Bach program, played [illegible] last season in "My Darlin' A[illegible]

Sara Mae Endich, [illegible] choral leader at Tanglewood [illegible] season, sang the soprano [illegible] Schubert's "Mass" on her first appearance with any [illegible]

An exhibition of [illegible] sculpture, the second in a [illegible] ly series arranged [illegible] operation of the Berkshire Museum, will open [illegible] goers and visitors [illegible] room at the main gate [illegible] are residents of Berkshire County and the vicinity.

[illegible]

"What [illegible] the [illegible] ening Recorded [illegible] Monday question [illegible] Lenox students [illegible] evening at [illegible] Berkshire by four [illegible] faculty. Music Center [illegible] moderator. With Aaron [illegible] composed of: the [illegible] executive secretary [illegible] Ingolf Dahl, Thomas [illegible] Tanglewood Study head [illegible] choral director, Group; Hugh Ross, and Ralph Berkowitz, dean.

Both [illegible] will be open to Friends [illegible] the Berkshire Music Center [illegible] contribute in any amount to the support of the school.

NEW HAVEN, C[illegible]
REGISTER
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Fe[illegible] First Concert[illegible]

The 16th annual Berksh[illegible] of 15 concerts Saturday at [illegible] Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. [illegible] duct the Boston Symphony [illegible] music of Johann Sebastian [illegible]

The three weekends of [illegible] Mozart and Haydn concert[illegible] 11-26, will precede the ma[illegible] of the Berkshire program [illegible] for July 31-August 16, in[illegible] the entire 104 piece Bosto[illegible] phony will participate.

CHARLES MUNCH, cond[illegible] of the Boston Symphony, [illegible] will direct the orchestra [illegible] 16th annual Berkshire [illegible] Festival at Tanglewood, Performers in the Bac[illegible] certs July 11-12 will be the [illegible] American composer-condu[illegible] anist Lukas Foss, who wi[illegible] the piano solo in the Brand[illegible] Concerto Number Five; Mi[illegible] iot Anthony, flutist, who w[illegible] the Brandenburg Concertos [illegible] bers Two and Five, and [illegible] Suite Number Two; and the [illegible] and soloists of the Be[illegible] Festival conducted by Hugh [illegible] who will perform, with the [illegible] Symphony, Bach's Cantata [illegible] ber 28.

Mr. Munch will open the [illegible] shire Festival on Saturda[illegible] five of the six Brandenbur[illegible] certos, Numbers One, Two, [illegible] Five and Six. Sunday aft[illegible]

Today—*3:30 P. M.—Th[illegible]
Opening Exercises, 11th [illegible] Center.

Greetings to students a[illegible] Berkshire Music Center, and [illegible] tra; Dr. Lewis Perry, chair[illegible] Center; Henry B. Cabot, P[illegible] phony Orchestra; Aaron Co[illegible] Center.

Hugh Ross conducting [illegible] Thompson, 1940)

Tea serve[illegible]

Friday, July 10—8:30 P[illegible]
Orchestra concert by s[illegible]
Saturday, July 11—8:30[illegible]
Berkshire Festival Conc[illegible]
Bach . . . . Bran[illegible]
No. 1, in F.
No. 2, in F (with flute, [illegible] flute; Harold Gomberg, obo[illegible] violin).
No. 3, in G (strings).
No. 5, in D (with pian[illegible] Doriot Anthony, flute; Rich[illegible]
No. 6, in B-flat (strings[illegible]
Sunday, July 12—*10:0[illegible]
Chamber Music concert [illegible]
2:30 P. M.—Berkshire [illegible] ductor.
Bach . . . . . Cantata N[illegible] by Hugh Ross). (Sara Mae [illegible] McCollum, tenor; Mac Mor[illegible] Bach . . . . . . Suite No. [illegible] ist: Doriot Anthony, flute).
Bach . . . . . Suite No. [illegible]
8:30 P. M.—Chamber [illegible]
Composers' Forum, by [illegible]
*Concerts open to mem[illegible] Center, whose contribution[illegible]

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Opens Today; First Concerts Next Weekend

The 16th annual Berkshire Music Festival will begin six weekends of 15 concerts Saturday at 8:30 P. M. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart and Haydn concerts, July 11-26, will precede the major part of the Berkshire program planned for July 31-August 16, in which the entire 104 piece Boston Symphony will participate.

CHARLES MUNCH, conductor of the Boston Symphony, who will direct the orchestra in the 16th annual Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass.

Performers in the Bach concerts July 11-12 will be the young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss, who will play the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto Number Five; Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, who will play the Brandenburg Concertos Numbers Two and Five, and Bach's Suite Number Two; and the chorus and soloists of the Berkshire Festival conducted by Hugh Ross, who will perform, with the Boston Symphony, Bach's Cantata Number 28.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos, Numbers One, Two, Three, Five and Six. Sunday afternoon, July 11 at 2:30 P. M., the program will begin with the Bach Cantata Number 28. Hagh Ross conducting. Soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite Number Two, in B Minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with Suite Number Three in D Major.

Opening Exercises Today

Opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center will be held today at 3:30 P. M. in the Theater-Concert Hall, with the first school performance planned for Friday evening at 8:30 P. M., in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of students will play together. The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning at 10 A. M. Sunday evening at 8:30 P. M., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all Festival concerts. Programs for the Festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends Society, will be mailed on request.

Tanglewood's July 18-19 concerts are devoted to Mozart works, with Isaac Stern as soloist; the July 25 concert is all Haydn, including the Theresa Mass conducted by Hugh Ross; the July 26 program is devoted to works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and will have the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

PROGRAM

Today—*3:30 P. M.—Theater-Concert Hall

Opening Exercises, 11th annual 6-week session, Berkshire Music Center.

Greetings to students and guests by Charles Munch, Director of Berkshire Music Center, and Music Director, Boston Symphony Orchestra; Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center; Henry B. Cabot, President, Board of Trustees Boston Symphony Orchestra; Aaron Copland, assistant director, Berkshire Music Center.

Hugh Ross conducting student chorus in "Alleluia" (Randall Thompson, 1940)

Tea served in Tanglewood garden

Friday, July 10—8:30 P. M.—Music Shed

Orchestra concert by students of Department I.

Saturday, July 11—8:30 P. M.—Theater-Concert Hall

Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor.

Bach . . . . Brandenburg Concertos.

No. 1, in F.

No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin).

No. 3, in G (strings).

No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Lukas Foss, piano; Doriot Anthony, flute; Richard Burgin, violin).

No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday, July 12—*10:00 A. M.—Chamber Music Hall

Chamber Music concert by students of Department I.

2:30 P. M.—Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor.

Bach . . . . . Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists (Conducted by Hugh Ross). (Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass).

Bach . . . . . . Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. (Soloist Doriot Anthony, flute).

Bach . . . . . Suite No. 3, in D major.

8:30 P. M.—Chamber Music Hall

Composers' Forum, by students of Department III.

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school.

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JUL 5 - 1953

On the RECORD

Turning to the classical offerings, we are always saying that the music of Mozart's contemporaries sounds like Mozart, when the real explanation is that he sounds like his contemporaries. The situation is beautifully illustrated by a new Boston Record that has on one side a Viola Sonata by Friedrich Wilhelm Rust, who was born 17 years before Mozart and died five years later, and on the other a Quintet for horn and strings by Mozart himself. The entertaining and informative notes give 1782 as the date of the latter but do not date the composition of Rust. One fact, however, is plain. Mozart wrote his "Don Giovanni" in 1787 and five years earlier Rust "quotes" one of the principal airs (the middle part of Leporello's "Madamina") in the slow movement.

Such melodic coincidences generally mean nothing, and far be it from me to accuse Mozart of plagiarism. Anyway, Rust's piece, the first of his to be recorded, is charming throughout. It is handsomely played by the Boston Symphony's first viola, Joseph de Pasquale, with the support of Samuel Mayes, cello, and James Stagliano and Harry Shapiro, horns. The Mozart Quintet offers Mr. Stagliano, the B.S.O.'s first horn, in the solo part, and his colleagues, Richard Burgin, Joseph de Pasquale, Jean Cauhape and Samuel Mayes, provide the parts for violin, violas and cello. Here is superior talent exercised on attractive music and the whole exceptionally well recorded.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-JOURNAL

JUL 1 - 1953

TALKING IT OVER

Berkshire Music Center Opens July 5; 450 Students From U. S., Other Lands

By EMMA VAN WORMER

THE ELEVENTH SEASON of the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., opens next Sunday, the six-weeks summer school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Berkshire Festival attracting 450 students from the United States, Canada and foreign countries. Ralph Berkowitz of Philadelphia is dean of the Center School.

Judd

Munch

DR. LEWIS D. PERRY of Boston, national chairman of Friends of the Berkshire Festival, has arrived in Lenox to set in motion the program of approximately 40 performances during the season in the Theater Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Friends of the Berkshire group may attend these programs by invitation. Contributions, payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., made to the Friends' office in Tanglewood are deductible under Federal Income Tax laws, according to the Friends' office. Three weekends of Festival Chamber Concerts; three chamber music concerts donated by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, student opera productions, recitals by visiting artists and student concerts are included in the schedule.

CHARLES MUNCH is conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Manager of the Symphony is George E. Judd, also widely known in music circles. Director Munch conducts the six concerts in the Theater Concert Hall; a like number of concerts in The Shed (by the full orchestra). Other conductors in The Shed: Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein. The Shed concert series begin July 31 and continue through Aug. 7 and Aug. 14 weekends, with noted soloists.

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Opening

While a large number of Symphony musicians are remaining in Boston to play in the Esplanade concerts, the first desk men and some others are already in Tanglewood for the Berkshire Festival, the opening exercise of which takes place this afternoon. These and an orchestra concert on next Friday, July 10, are open only to the Friends of the Berkshire Music Centre.

The first concert for the general public comes on Saturday, July 11, at 8:30, in the theatre Concert Hall, when all six of the Bach Brandenburg Concertos will be performed.

On next Sunday, July 12, at 2:30, in the same hall another all-Bach program will be offered, the Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists; the Suite No. 2, in B minor for flute and strings (Doriot Anthony, soloist) and the Suite No. 3, in D. Mr. Munch will conduct both concerts and Hugh Ross will conduct the Cantata on Sunday afternoon.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD

JUL 5 - 1953

Cadenza

First Concert Tomorrow in Crouse Series

The 16th Berkshire Festival, since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony orchestra participated, will commence its six weekends of 15 concerts Saturday at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. Features of the Bach concerts July 11 and 12 will be the performance of the young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss, playing the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance of Doriot Anthony, flutist in the Brandenburg concertos No. 2 and 5, and the Bach Cantata, No. 28 with chorus and soloists to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Opening Saturday

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week-ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, Music Director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydin concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 are the famous performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first women ever to become a Principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following soloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano, Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6 in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists are Sarah Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D Major.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

JUL 3 - 1953

Symphony Hall Tax Exempt, Assessors Rule

Symphony Hall, assessed for $500,000, was granted complete tax exemption yesterday as an educational institution by the Boston Board of Assessors.

Chairman Edmund J. Burke said that Symphony Orchestra, Inc., owners of the Back Bay edifice, were granted a waiver on payment of $35,350 which would have been due this year as taxes.

Burke also disclosed that the Board of Assessors has agreed to refund $33,400 which the corporation paid last year for taxes.

The decision to list the famous music center as a tax free educational institution came after Judge Charles C. Cabot, counsel for the hall corporation, revealed to the assessors that only 60 percent of operating costs are covered by prices of admission.

Great numbers of people benefit by the Pops Concerts, Esplanade concerts and Tanglewood concerts which are presented by the corporation, Judge Cabot said.

The corporation maintained that its status had changed considerably since 1936 when the Supreme Court ruled that Symphony Hall was not entitled to tax exemption because the sale of season tickets at high prices limited the number of persons who benefited from the hall and the orchestra.

Corporation Counsel William L. Baxter advised the Board of Assessors that, in his opinion, nothing would be gained by the city if the case went to court.

6C Union July 12

Second All-Bach Program In Tanglewood Hall Today

Chorus and Soloists in Cantata No. 28; Doriot Anthony Soloist in Suite No. 2; Isaac Stern Featured Artist in Mozart Concerto Saturday

Lenox, July 11—The second 1953 Berkshire Festival all-Bach concert in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall, at 2.30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon, will open with the Boston Symphony Orchestra's first performance of the Cantata No. 28, with the festival chorus conducted by Hugh Ross, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, also; John McCollum, tenor; ac Morgan, bass. Doriot Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. The program concludes with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

ISAAC STERN

Concerts This Week

A chamber music program by students is scheduled for tomorrow morning and a forum for composition students of Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss tomorrow evening.

The first of three concerts given to the school by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will be Wednesday evening, a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord. Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, Rameau. Anyone who contributes to the support of the school by becoming a member of the Ssociety of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, is invited to all school events.

At the opening exercises of the school last Sunday Charles Munch, its director, urged nearly 400 students who will spend the next six weeks in concentrated study and participation in music to take responsibility for developing and expressing the inner life of the 44 states and eight foreign countries from which they come. "The arts are a civilizing strength, and civilization, despite its failures, is a just goal of the human spirit," he declared.

The Friday evening symphony concert by the student orchestra of Department 1, the Sunday morning chamber music of Department 1 students (July 19) and the composers' forum the same evening, by Department 2 students, will be held as usual.

Mozart Programs

The second week end of festival concerts, Saturday evening at 8.30 and next Sunday afternoon at 2.30, will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Mr. Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist. In the Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) on Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violinist of the Boston Symphony, on Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Another feature of the week end will be the first performance anywhere by the Boston Symphony of the Divertimento in D, for strings (K. 136), with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday afternoon program.

Tanglewood Tales

Lenox, July 11—Betty Lou Allen the contralto in Bach's Cantata No. 28, on this Sunday's Berkshire Festival concert by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Charles Munch conducting, at Tanglewood, is a Hartford girl who was on Broadway last season in "My Darlin' Aida," and who performed at the Congress for Cultural Freedom's Paris exposition a year ago in the Virgil Thomson-Gertrude Stein opera "Four Saints in Three Acts."

Sara Mae Endich, soprano soloist in this Sunday's Bach cantata, is an employee of the advertising department of the European edition of the New York Herald-Tribune. Last year, her first at Tanglewood, she was a choral leader student and sang the soprano solo in Schubert's "Mass," the occasion being her first appearance with any orchestra. This season she has switched to the opera department, and will have the role of the bride in Chabrier's one-act opera, "An Incomplete Education," which Boris Goldovsky's students will present on August 3. She is a native of Steubenville, O. She is a soloist at Central Synagog, New York, and is heard on its Sunday afternoon broadcasts "The Message of Israel."

Composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center and a member of its faculty since its inception in 1940, has been invited to conduct a program of his own works in Mexico City in the autumn after the Tanglewood season. It will be Mr. Copland's seventh visit to the republic in the south. The honor is a reciprocal one, extended the composer by Tanglewood's guest composer this summer, Carlos Chavez, who organized the Mexico City Symphony Orchestra and is its permanent conductor.

First of informal lectures for students at Tanglewood, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 3:15 p. m. in the Chamber Music Hall, will be held Monday by Peter Gradenwitz, an Israeli journalist and a Tanglewood Study Group student this summer. His topic will be "Oriental Music."

Joseph de Pasquale, Boston Symphony Orchestra first violist, who performs the solo with Isaac Stern, violinist, in Mozart's "Sinfonia Concertante" at the Berkshire Festival concert of July 19, is married to Maria, a niece of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, and with their two children, three-year-old Maria Alexandra and 18-month-old Elizabeth Ann, they make their home in Seranak, the Koussevitzky estate at Tanglewood. Mr. de Pasquale enjoys baseball, football and pingpong as hobbies.

Boston Symphony Orchestra Music Director Charles Munch owns the original manuscript of Darius Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde," which was composed in 1923 as a result of the French composer's initial visit to the U. S. the preceding year and his introduction to Harlem jazz. It was planned as a ballet with scenario by Blaise Cendrar, composed for a small group of instruments. The Boston Symphony has not played it before it has its Tanglewood premiere at the July 26 concert. Leonard Bernstein conducted it with the New York City Symphony in 1945.

Group Exhibit Now At Tanglewood Fete

Her. Herald July 13

Second in a series of weekly painting and sculpture exhibitions to be given during the Berkshire Festival concerts, July 11-August 16, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, through the cooperation of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, is a group showing of paintings by local artists. It will be on display for concertgoers and visitors to Tanglewood at the reception hall at the main entrance through next Saturday.

The group show has been assembled by Harry Lane, of West Stockbridge, and represents the following artists: Stanley Bate, Claverack, N. Y.; John Carroll, East Chatam, N.Y.; E. Arnold Clark, Great Barrington, Homer Gunn, West Stockbridge, June Kimball, New Ashford, and Lane.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

NY T July 12

by

BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL

TODAY at 2:30 BACH Program. Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 18, 19 (MOZART Program) Sat. Eve., Sun. Aft., July 25, 26.

A few reserved seats—General Admission $2

Shed Concerts: Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16.

Tickets at Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Tel. Lenox 600.

Munch and Mozart at Berkshire Festival

July 12

The second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening at 8:30 P. M. and Sunday afternoon, July 19, at 2:30 P. M., will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist

Mr. Stern will be soloist in the Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) on Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, on Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

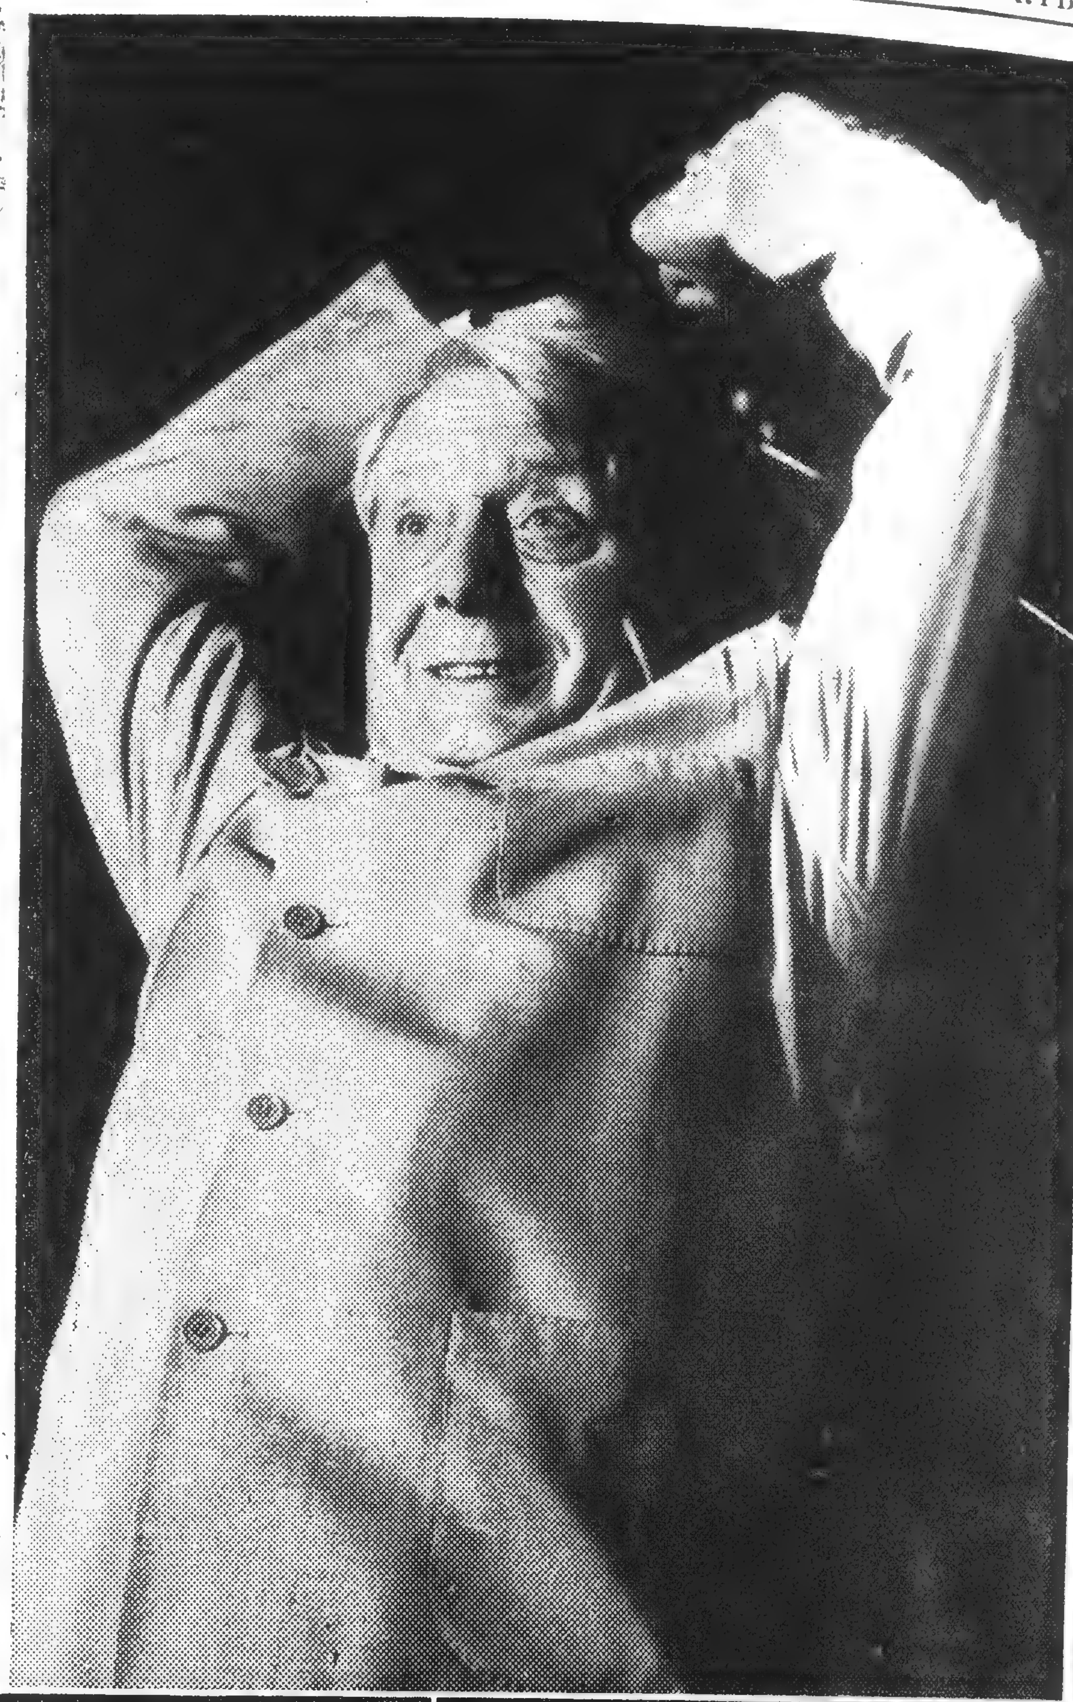
Another feature of the weekend will be the first performance anywhere by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136), with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday afternoon program.

The complete programs are:

Saturday, July 18:
Mozart—Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136).
Mozart—Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216).
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart—Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361).
Mozart—Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504).
Sunday, July 19:
Mozart—Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro."
Mozart—Sinfonia Concertante, for violin and Viola (K. 364).
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale)
Mozart—Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525).
Mozart—Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551).

Through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a sonata recital will be given on Wednesday evening (July 22) by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival. The program will include music of Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

July 12 NEW YORK HERALD TRIBU



Charles Munch rehearses the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood in preparation for today's all-Bach concert of the Berkshire Music Festival.

Dallas, Texas
Timew Herald
7/5/53

Berkshire Festival Readying 'Richard'

New York, July 4 (UP).—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center is readying "Richard the Lion-Hearted," by Andre Ernest Modeste Gretry, for performances in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Aug. 10 and 11.

The music center is the summer music school which is part of the annual Berkshire Festival conducted by the Boston Symphony and contributing musical organizations and musicians. The revival of a Gretry opera was calculated to give this year's festival an unusual fillip.

Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, also revealed that his students are preparing three one-act operas for presentation one behind another on Aug. 3. They are Gluck's "L'Yveogne Corrige"—"The Drunkard Reformed," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee."

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

JUL 5 - 1953

BERKSHIRE SOLOIST: Betty Allen, alto, will be soloist in the first performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of J. S. Bach's Cantata No. 28, at the Berkshire Festival concert Sunday, July 12, at 2:30 p.m., in the theater concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

This Clipping From
ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

PIANO SOLOIST — Lukas Foss, young American composer-conductor-pianist, will give his famous piano performance in the Brandenburg Concerto No 5 in the opening concert of the Berkshire Festival at 8:30 p. m. Saturday at Tanglewood. Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program.

N.Y. H.T.

Berkshire
7,200 at 2

By Arthur Berger

LENOX, Mass., July 12.
Berkshire Festival seaso under way here at Tangl this week end with two concerts in the theater c hall by a chamber orc drawn from the Boston phony, a chorus drawn the Berkshire Music Cente
a number of fine soloists.
ished by the beautiful s in which the festival co take place and the fine that is offered here, publ terest in them steadily and the combined atten for the concert of last and one this afternoon exc last year's by 800.

When one considers the terity and uniform quality list made up of five "Bra burg" concertos, last nigh tendance of 4,200 seems remarkable. But an appre and attentive audience it indeed. As in previous yea attendance for the second cert was somewhat smalle today's 3,000 listeners, som listened from within the th while others settled at v spots on the lawns ou where they could take i sunshine of this fine day under a tree, and at the time enjoy the cheerfuln a program appropriate fo such an afternoon.

Cantata of Special Inte

The major work today in fact, quite frankly writ the spirit of rejoicing. I the fine cantata, No. 28, " lob, nun geht das jah ende," written for the S following Christmas in church calendar. Aside fro mastery of the music its offered the special intere being the only work this end without the stamp of oughgoing familiarity, sir was not from the per standardized list from whi
the other works were d
Charles Munch for this work relinquished the bat Hugh Ross, conductor o chorus of the Berkshire Center. Mr. Ross gav straightforward reading, ously deferring to the soloists, for it was upon that the major respons devolved. All of them, gratifying to be able to r
rose admirably to the occ

It was one of the solois the cantata, as a matter of to whom your reporter i debted for one of the week most rewarding experience refer to Sara Mae Endich only one of the four ai whose achievements as a former were new to me.
Endich is a soprano with a bright future, for she is a y lady endowed with a voic truly beautiful and rich tex

Meets Challenge Nobly

Miss Endich, a student a
Berkshire Music Center, nobly a challenge that woul
timidate many a more ex ienced singer. For it fell t to open the program, and so with an intricately spun-
This was, moreover, the ex of Miss Endrich's contribu

This Clipping
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 1 1 19

anglewood Starts Tonight

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 10.—
ixteenth Berkshire Festival
Tanglewood opens at 8:15 o'clo tomorrow night. Charles Mu will conduct members of the Bo on Symphony Orchestra in fiv of Bach's Brandenburg conce
os. A second Bach progra including a cantata and tw uites, will be given at 2:30 p. m
Sunday.

The complete Boston Sym phony Orchestra will give festival concerts in Tang wood's Music Shed on Friday Saturday nights and Sun afternoons from July 30 thro
Aug. 16. Lois Marshall, sopr and William Warfield, barito will be soloists in Brahms' quiem under Mr. Munch Fri night, Aug. 14.

N.Y. H.T. July 13

Berkshire Festival Opens: 7,200 at 2 Bach Concerts

By Arthur Berger

LENOX, Mass., July 12.—The Berkshire Festival season got under way here at Tanglewood this week end with two Bach concerts in the theater concert ... by a chamber orchestra drawn from the Boston Symphony, a chorus drawn from the Berkshire Music Center and a number of fine soloists. Nourished by the beautiful setting in which the festival concerts take place and the fine music that is offered here, public interest in them steadily grows, and the combined attendance for the concert of last night and one this afternoon exceeded last year's by 800.

When one considers the austerity and uniform quality of a list made up of five "Brandenburg" concertos, last night's attendance of 4,200 seems quite remarkable. But an appreciative and attentive audience it was, indeed. As in previous years, the attendance for the second concert was somewhat smaller. Of today's 3,000 listeners, some 1200 listened from within the theater while others settled at various spots on the lawns outside, where they could take in the sunshine of this fine day or sit under a tree, and at the same time enjoy the cheerfulness of a program appropriate for just such an afternoon.

Sara Mae Endich, soprano, who appeared as soloist in Bach's Cantata No. 28 with the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival yesterday.

Cantata of Special Interest

The major work today was, in fact, quite frankly written in the spirit of rejoicing. It was the fine cantata, No. 28, "Gottlob, nun geht das jahre zu ende," written for the Sunday following Christmas in the church calendar. Aside from the mastery of the music itself, it offered the special interest of being the only work this week end without the stamp of thoroughgoing familiarity, since it was not from the perenial, standardized list from which all the other works were drawn. Charles Munch for this one work relinquished the baton to Hugh Ross, conductor of the chorus of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Ross gave a straightforward reading, obviously deferring to the vocal soloists, for it was upon them that the major responsibility devolved. All of them, it is gratifying to be able to report, rose admirably to the occasion.

It was one of the soloists in the cantata, as a matter of fact, to whom your reporter is indebted for one of the week end's most rewarding experiences. I refer to Sara Mae Endich, the only one of the four singers whose achievements as a performer were new to me. Miss Endich is a soprano with a very bright future, for she is a young lady endowed with a voice of truly beautiful and rich texture.

Meets Challenge Nobly

Miss Endich, a student at the Berkshire Music Center, met nobly a challenge that would intimidate many a more experienced singer. For it fell to her to open the program, and to do so with an intricately spun aria. This was, moreover, the extent of Miss Endrich's contribution to the afternoon. But with this one aria, and without the benefits of a warming-up period, she left an impression that was still vivid at the end when the program had run its course with Bach's suits in B minor and D major, under Mr. Munch's direction.

The other singers were Betty Allen, John McCollum and Mac Morgan, and it was Mr. McCollum's pure tenor voice that made the greatest impression. A major musical experience of the week end was the thoroughly distinguished, inspired and controlled piano-playing of Lukas Foss last night as one of the soloists in the Fifth "Brandenburg" Concerto. One must look very far indeed for execution of comparable caliber. Doriot Anthony played her flute solos with charm, and while the orchestral performance was often lacking in finish, there was much to redeem the occasion.

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUL 5 - 1953

Fassett Has Nicest Job in the World

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on C. B. S.'s radio survey of Summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over C. B. S. and WEEI every Sunday afternoon.

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in The Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 1 1 1953

anglewood Starts Tonight

By ... to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 10.—The ...enth Berkshire Festival at ...lewood opens at 8:15 o'clock ...orrow night. Charles Munch ... conduct members of the Bos... Symphony Orchestra in five ... Bach's Brandenburg concer... A second Bach program, ...ding a cantata and two ... will be given at 2:30 p. m. ...day.

... complete Boston Sym... Orchestra will give the ... concerts in Tangle... Music Shed on Friday and ... nights and Sunday ...noons from July 30 through ... 16. ... Marshall, soprano, ... William Warfield, baritone, ... soloists in Brahms' Re... under Mr. Munch Friday ... Aug. 14.

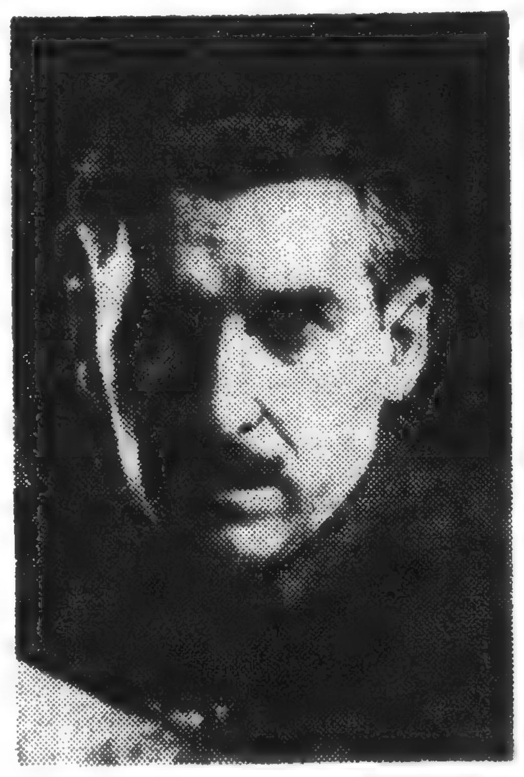
~~Union~~ July 12

SCULPTURE SEEN AT TANGLEWOOD

Eight Works by John Rood On Exhibition

Lenox, July 11—An exhibit of stone sculpture by Minneapolis artist John Rood in the gardens of the Tanglewood estate is a feature of the 1953 Berkshire Festival here. The exhibit has been arranged with the help of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield.

Artist-in-residence since 1945, author, lecturer in art education at the University of Minnesota, Mr. Rood has had more than 100 exhibitions in the United States, including 12 one-man shows in New York, since he turned his attention from writing and publishing to sculpture in 1936. He is currently associated with the New Gallery, New York, which will show these first examples of his new direction in sculpture in the autumn after their summer display at Tanglewood.



JOHN ROOD

Eight Works Shown

Five large works of Mr. Rood, hitherto known for his carvings in wood, principally of folk characters, are in the Tanglewood garden: "Prometheus," cast stone, modeled from cement, March, 1953; "Winged Figure," bronze, May, 1953; "Multiple Figure," Alabama limestone, April, 1953; "Homage to Igor Stravinsky," structa-chrome in wrought iron and stained glass, April, 1953.

In the reception room at Tanglewood are three smaller works: "Man Spilling Out of Himself," walnut, 1951; "Choir Singer," bleached ash, 1950; "Colored Shapes in Space," structa-chrome in wrought iron and stained glass, April, 1953.

Born in Athens, O., Feb. 22, 1902, John Rood studied painting in his youth. In the summer of 1952, while executing three stone sculptures for the terrace of a new dormitory unit at Wellesley College, he had an exhibition of 15 small sculptures, mostly in wood, at the Lenox Library.

TANGLEWOOD, LENOX: Exhibition of paintings by Berkshire artist in the reception room at the main entrance and sculpture by John Rood in the formal gardens.
BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, Exhibition of

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 1 0 1953

Excursions To Tanglewood

Excursions from New York to the six Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., beginning Sunday, have been arranged by the New Haven Railroad with an inclusive rate of $6.95 including general admission to the concert, rail and bus transportation and taxes.

Tickets, which must be bought in advance at Grand Central Terminal, will be good on the train leaving New York at 8:20 a. m. for Stockbridge and the train leaving Pittsfield at 7:30 p. m. and due in New York at 11:30 p. m. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will play under the direction of Charles Munch on July 12, 19 and 26, and the full Boston Symphony will play on Aug. 2, 9 and 16.

~~Union~~ July 13

Artists at Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is shown at a moment of relaxation with Sara Mae Endich, right, prior to the concert at Tanglewood yesterday afternoon of an all-Bach program. Miss Endich's playing of the flute aroused the audience to unusually warm appreciation.

Bach Programs Draw 7200 to Tanglewood

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 12—The music of Johann Sebastian Bach brought 7200 music lovers to Tanglewood for the two concerts devoted to the music of the master. This is a considerably larger audience than has attended the Bach performances heretofore.

There was much to admire in the performances today and as far as the audience seemed concerned it was the wizardry of Doriot Anthony's playing of the flute that provoked teh loudest and most prolonged applause. As soloist in the second suite in B Minor for strings and flute, this young woman played with admirable musicianship and dazzling virtuosity. In fact after repeated recalls, Mr. Munch permitted a second playing of the final "Badinerie." All in all it was a perfectly integrated performance. Rich in detail and always within its modest framework.

Continued On Page 8

18th Century Pattern

The four suites or overtures which Bach wrote for the orchestral ensembles of his day show him delighting in the exploration of that medium and its many possibilities for a variety of tone color. These works follow the typical 18th Century pattern—an extended overture, combining a slow introduction and fugue, plus a series of contrasted movements in idealized dance form. Only in the third suite, also played this afternoon, does Bach depart from this plan and introduce the famous "air" familiarly known as "air for the G String."

The second suite for flute and strings is the most intimate of the four. On the other hand, the third suite is a truly grand and expansive work. Once again one could admire the justness of the tempi and dynamics. Never heavy-handed, the opening overture is a majestic work and the little dance forms, gavotte, bourree and gigue are delightfully contrasted and full of joy.

The program opened with the Cantata No. 28: "Gottlob, Nun Geht Das Jahr Zu Ende" it is a joyous paen of praise to God at the year's end. Bach wrote some 300 cantatas, sacred and secular for every conceivable occasion. With the advent of the long playing phonograph record a great quantity of this music is now available, with many of them already collector's gems.

McCollom Strikes Spark

This cantata calls for four soloists who were Sara Mae Smith, soprano; Betty Allen, contralto; John McCollom, tenor, and Mac Morgan, baritone. The work opens with a soprano solo which was nicely sung by Miss Smith. Mr. Morgan's arioso was sung with the sincerity which marks all that this baritone does, but it was Mr. McCollom who struck the spark. He sang his recitative with impeccable style and the voice is considerably better than it was a year ago. Miss Allen revealed a smooth and pleasant voice in her duet with the tenor.

There are two choruses and once again Hugh Ross has moulded these young men and women into a flexible instrument. True, the majority of them are probably students of singing and need not be taught by Rote, but Mr. Ross makes of them an instrument, responsive and highly listenable. Particularly engrossing and impressive was the singing of the final chorale.

Saturday night will usher in the first of two concerts devoted to the music of Mozart. We shall near the "Diventimento in D Major, for Strings," the "Violin Concerto in G Major" played by Issac Stern; the "Serenade for Thirteen Winds Instruments" and the "Symphony in D Major."

Dr. Munch Waits for Planes For Flute Solo Feature

Lenox, July 12—Records fell this week end as the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra launched the Berkshire Festival with two all-Bach programs. This afternoon's attendance was 3000, an even 500 above the corresponding program a year ago. Saturday night's record opening night audience of 4200 was 400 ahead of last season's initial program attendance.

Counting the 800 at this morning's session, Lenox saw a total of 8000 music lovers converge here in a 24-hour period.

Highlighting the afternoon was the flute soloist Doriot Anthony. During Bach's Suite No. 2, in B Minor, Conductor Charles Munch patiently awaited the passing of a squadron of planes before proceeding in order that Miss Anthony's beautiful solo would not have to compete with the drone of the motors overhead.

Attending the Bach cantata was Rev. Michael Palotau, a native of Hungary who is now professor at Mt. Joseph College in Lackawanna, N. Y. Before coming to this country he studied in Budapest and Salzburg.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUL 9 - 1953

YWCA to Sponsor Trip To Tanglewood Festival

Group Will Attend Concert on Afternoon of 19th

The Young Women's Christian Association is once again sponsoring a visit to Tanglewood Music Festival in Lenox on Sunday afternoon, the 19th. A chartered bus will leave the YWCA, 26 Howard St., at 12.20 thus eliminating driving worries.

The program will be a Mozart Concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch. Guest artists for the day will be Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale. The Mozart works are: Overture to "Figaro," "Sinfonia Concertante," for violin and viola, "Eine kleine Nachtmusik"; and Symphony in D major (Jupiter).

Reservations may be made at the "YW," and because of limited bus space, these should be made early.

[168]

TANGLEWOOD FETE OPENS WITH BACH

N.Y.T. ~~July~~ 13

Two Lead-Off Concerts Attract 7,200 to Berkshire Center—Student Activity High

By ROSS PARMENTER
Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LENOX, Mass., July 12—The sixteenth Berkshire Festival opened at Tanglewood this week-end. The first two concerts, which consisted of Bach programs played by a chamber orchestra in the theatre-concert hall, attracted 7,200 persons.

In opening the festival with these programs, Charles Munch followed the tradition established by his predecessor as music director, the late Serge Koussevitzky, who began the Bach programs in the summer of 1945, the year before the war-crippled festival was able to resume its regular concerts with the full Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Next week-end, Mr. Munch will follow another Koussevitzky tradition. His second pair of concerts with the reduced ensemble will be devoted to Mozart. But with the July 25-26 concerts, he will make a partial break. Only the first will be devoted to Haydn. The other will be given over to modern composers.

Selected Groups Play

Besides the Bach programs for the public, the week-end also included three concerts for friends of the Berkshire Music Center. These were given by selected groups from among the 398 students who arrived at Tanglewood a week ago to attend the six-week session of the center, a music school that is operated in conjunction with the festival each year.

The first of these concerts, on Friday night, was given by the student orchestra and was led in turn by Robert Mandell and Harold Blumenfeld, who are students, and Leonard Bernstein, who directs the orchestra department. The second, this morning, was given by students in the chamber music department. The third, tonight, featured compositions by Alvin Epstein, Tossi Ichiyanagi, Edward J. Miller, Sherron McClellan, Adrian and Barney Childs, student-composers training here under Aaron Copland and Carlos Chavez.

Further evidence of the almost incredible student activity during the first week of the session is that three of the soloists and the fifty chorus singers for Bach's Cantata No. 28 in this afternoon's program were students.

Programming Is Unusual

The theatre-concert hall seats only 1,100. This meant that a majority of the large crowds that assembled for the two Bach concerts listened from surrounding areas outside. Saturday night's attendance of 4,200 — a record for opening night — quite literally blanketed the lawn.

With the first program, which included five of the six Brandenburg concertos, the outsiders also missed out in not having been able to see the stage. For one of the interests of the unusual programming of so many works from a single group was that one could see as well as hear the way Bach varied his instrumentation for each concerto.

For four of the concertos there were fourteen violinists on the left and six violinists, four 'cellists and three double bass players on the right. The space between these twenty-seven string players was left free for the instrumentalists playing the solo parts. To see the shifts was like seeing a game of musical chairs.

The two soloists who performed with greatest distinction were Roger Voisin, who played the high trumpet part on a special silver trumpet in the second concerto, and Lukas Foss, who, in a beautifully modulated fashion, played the piano part in the fifth concerto. Doriot Anthony, the orchestra's new first flutist, also reaped laurels in the fifth concerto, and Richard Burgin, the concertmaster, was a sensitive and dependable musician in many solo passages.

Mr. Munch's readings were more notable for their rhythmic vitality than their over-all refinement, and the Boston strings did not always sound as precise and splendid as they should. Where the string ensemble playing was most careful and expressive was in the No. 3, in which six violists, four 'cellists and three double bass players were the only participants.

HIGH HONOR FOR GEORGE E. JUDD

Union ~~July~~ 12

Symphony Manager Will Receive French Award

Boston, July 11 (AP)—The French government will confer the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on three Massachusetts men Tuesday at Bastille Day ceremonies.

The awards will be presented by M. Francois Charles-Roux, French consul in Boston, at the consulate.

Recipients will be Dr. Edward D. Churchill, chief of general surgical services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R Shepley, architect, Essex.

LY 9, 1953

Charles Munch Will Conduct Festival Concerts At Tanglewood

The second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on July 18 at 8:30 p.m. and July 19 at 2:30 p.m., will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist.

Mr. Stern will be soloist in the Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) on Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, on Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

The opening Berkshire Festival concerts, Mr. Munch conducting, are this weekend (July 11-12), with Mr. Munch conducting two all-Bach programs, Lukas Foss pianist, and Doriot Anthony, flutist, are soloists. Sara Mae Endich, Betty Allen, John McCollum and Mac Morgan are soloists in the orchestra's first performance of the Bach Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross.

The final weekend of Theater-Concert Hall performances is July 25 with an all-Haydn program; and July 26, featuring works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all Festival concerts. Programs and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the Berkshire Music Center, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 9 - 1953

Tanglewood Sets Forum Series

LENOX—The public has been invited to a series of forums in Eedgwick Hall to be sponsored each Monday beginning next week by Tanglewood.

The forums are being organized by Aaron Copland, who will act as moderator. Instructors, heads of Departments and other officials of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will lecture each week on subjects within the category of music. A question and answer period will follow each week's lecture.

This Clipping From
BUFFALO, N. Y.
COURIER-EXPRESS
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire opens its music center this afternoon at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. This marks the 11th season for this six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals.

Charles Muench

Charles Muench, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which maintains this summer school, will arrive from Paris to address the opening exercises as director of the Berkshire Music Center.

Dr. Lewis Perry will preside; a brief address will be given by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president, and Composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty. As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross will direct the students in "Alleluia," composed expressly for the school's opening by Randall Thompson.

Student registration has passed the 366 mark, with additional applications being processed daily until the July enrollment of 450 is reached. Students will be from some 38 states, Canada and foreign countries.

More students are going to Tanglewood this summer than ever before from Western states as a direct result of auditions the Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted during its spring coast-to-coast tour.

As to the Shed concerts by the Boston Orchestra for the Berkshire Festival, the sale of series tickets has surpassed that of previous years. To date, subscribers have purchased $59,000 worth, an inicrease of more than $1,000 over last season's advance sale.

With Muench conducting, the Berkshire Festival opens Saturday with the first of a weekend pair of Bach concerts. Only July 18 and 19, there will be a brace of Mozart concerts for whiich Isaac Stern is the soloist.

The Theater-Concert Hall preliminary concerts close July 25 and 26 with a program devoted to Haydn and one to Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Foss. Vera Zorina will be the narrator for the Foss cantata, "A Parable of Death."

The weekend Shed concerts commence Friday, July 31, with Muench directing. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor Aug. 2 and Leonard Bernstein guest conductor Aug. 8 and 15. Soloists will be Zino Francescatti, Lukas Foss, Jorge Bolet, Jenny Tourel, Gregor Piatigorsky, Lois Marshall and Seymour Lipkin.

For the first time in its 10 years of assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center will experiment with new operas by American composers. The plan evolved by Boris Goldovsky, Tanglewood's opera head, is being put into effect immediately.

Commissions have been awarded Leonard Roseman of New York City and Louis Mennini of Rochester to devise and construct operas for Berkshire performance. In addition to cash awards, they have been extended the complete service of the Berkshire staff. These works are to be performed in 1954.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUL 6 - 1953

At Tanglewood

MAC MORGAN

Mac Morgan, bass, will be soloist in the first performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of J. S. Bach's Cantata No. 28, at the Berkshire Festival concert on Sunday afternoon in the theater-concert hall at 2.30.

Music in Review

Bsn Post ~~July~~ 13

BY TUCKER KEISER

Reprint from late editions yesterday's Post

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD, July 11—The six-week season of the Berkshire Music Festival—now beginning its 16th season in the invigorating mountain climate of western Massachusetts—opened tonight with the performance in the Tanglewood Theatre of five Brandenburg concertos by J. S. Bach.

Working with a diminished orchestra while many of the Boston Symphony musicians are engaged at the Esplanade concerts, Charles Munch has made it a practice to commence the festival season with works by Bach, a composer for whom the conductor has profound sympathy.

So evident is it that this sort of music is the conductor's metier, that the Chamber concerts are among the most popular of the whole series. Consequently, it will be necessary to move the concerts from the intimate theatre to the more spacious shed during next year's festival.

The featured instrumentalists in these Concerti Grossi were four first-chair players of the Boston Symphony: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the orchestra and concertmaster, as well as Lucas Foss, pianist. Mr. Foss, whose "A Parable of Death" will be performed on Sunday afternoon, July 26, has been a familiar figure at Tanglewood as a teacher of composition, piano soloist, and conductor.

Last night's concert marked the first appearance at our internationally famous Berkshire Music Center of Miss Anthony, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony.

Superb Horn-Playing

In the six Brandenburg concertos, Bach has handed down to posterity an encyclopedia of human experience ranging from sad adagios to exhilarating chase allegros. In Concerto Number One in F Major, which opened the program the concertina calls for two horns—and what superb horn playing this requires.

Tonight Mr. Munch added the extra burden of an excessively fast tempo in the third movement which kept the audience biting their fingernails and betting how soon the concerto would break down. Yet it must be admitted that the conductor did infuse into the reading of this concerto a woodsy autumnal feeling of the case.

Also in F major, Concerto Number Two provides in the concertina a diabolically difficult high trumpet part which can become overpowering. Since the other solo instruments are oboe, violin and flute, instruments easily dominated by a brass cousin, the conductor has to keep the trumpet in musical focus rather than let it run away with the piece.

Mr. Munch's frequently exhibited love for a keen, piercing trumpet sound led him astray in this cencerto by allowing Roger Voisin, truly one of the great trumpeters of our day, to drown out the other soloists as well as the rest of the chamber ensemble. However, in the adagio, a colloquy between violin, oboe and flute, we heard perhaps the most moving music of the concert.

The Concerto in G, Number Three, a joyful composition, with no small group opposed to a larger, was a marvellous example of a demonstration of what Schweitzer calls "terraced plains of sound." The complicated musical lines were never startling or lost in the sudden shifts from piano to forte.

After intermission, the dark-hued Concerto Number Six in B-Flat Major continued the high level of performance. Here we have the lower strings, sounding rich and clean. The final item was Concerto Number Five with flute, violin, and piano as the concertina. This is the most festive and grandly conceived of the six. Lukas Foss joined the members of the orchestra in his admired performance of the solo keyboard role.

Tomorrow afternoon is the second in the series of all-Bach programs. Cantata Number Twenty-Eight with soloists and the Berkshire Festival Chorus, Suite Number Two in B Minor with Doriot Anthony as soloists, and Suite Number Three in D Major will be performed.

THEATER CONCERT SERIES IS STARTED AT MUSIC FESTIVA

Sptfld-Rep ~~July~~ 12

All-Bach Program Is Of fered by Boston Symphony Under Munch

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood [illegible] Boston Symphony [illegible] its [illegible] Munch, opened [illegible] voted [illegible] Strauss, Ra[illegible] and Lukas Foss [illegible] be given [illegible] Sunday [illegible]

Discriminating Audience

[illegible] most [illegible] the entire Be[illegible] season. Although [illegible] few more than [illegible] people many more may [illegible] on the lawn during any concert. There are people who come long distances to hear the more intimate works of Bach, Mozart and Haydn, people who love the sheer magnificence of the Bach works, [illegible] their very real [illegible] in the grace and elegance of Mozart and the [illegible] utterances of Haydn. They come to these concerts not to be seen [illegible] rather to enjoy a [illegible] experience.

(Continued on Page 11A)

Dr. Munch chose [illegible] with five of the six Brandenburg" concertos [illegible] first glance one might [illegible] this was a pretty large dosage of Bach, but within these concerti [illegible] such a wealth of melodic ingenuity, craftsmanship and humor that one is always listening to something new and unexpected. [illegible] pianist Harold [illegible] revealed [illegible] as well as the grandeur of the greatest [illegible] modest framework [illegible] ten these "Brandenburgs" [illegible] embuing them with [illegible] riches. [illegible] as follows: No. 1 [illegible] F major; No. 2 [illegible] major; No. 5, D major and No. 6, B flat major.

In these concerti [illegible]

[illegible]

Memorable Listening

[illegible]

Few [illegible]

In his usual modest manner, Mr. Munch made his soloists acknowledge most of applause. The performances were a triumph for conductor, orchestra and soloists and were adjudged as such by those within the theater and those seated outside.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:3 Hugh Ross will open another a Bach program, leading the chor through the Cantata No. 28 a Mr. Munch will conduct "Suite 2. in B minor for flute and String and "Suite No. 3 in D major."

Union July 12

Berkshire Footlights

The accomplished young Amer ican pianist-composer-conducto Lukas Foss, has taken up re dence at the Carter home at S set Farm in Lee as he prepa for a busy summer season Tanglewood in Lenox. Last nig he was the soloist at the Be shire Festival concerts opened the Theater-Concert Hall unde the direction of Charles Munc Sharing the spotlight with th world famous Boston Symphon Orchestra, Mr. Foss perform the piano solo in the Bach Bra denburg Concerto No. 5 and w rewarded with a tremendous ov tion.

LUKAS FOSS

Two weeks from today Mr Foss' new cantata, "A Parable of Death," based on poem by Rilke, will have its Ne England premiere with th composer conducting the or chestra himself. It was com missioned last winter for Ver Zorina and the Louisvi Symphony Orchestra. More recently it was heard with Mr. Foss conducting and Mi Zorina as narrator at New York's Town Hall and at the Ojai Festival of Music California.

In the first concert series in the Shed at Tanglewood on Saturd evening, August 1, Mr. Munch wi be seen leading the entire Bost Symphony Orchestra in a p formance of Mr. Foss' "Pia Concerto No. 2" and the you composer will be featured as soloist. Meanwhile, Lucas will active on the faculty of the Be shire Music Center in two partments—the orchestral — ducting and the analysis divi of the Tanglewood Study Grou

---

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 3 - 1953

MUSIC CALENDAR

SUNDAY

4 p. m. — Opening of Music Mountain with Bruce Simonds, pianist, and the resident Berkshire Quartet, Music Mountain, Falls Village.

4 and 9 p. m. — Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, outside of Lee, Mass.

TUESDAY

8:15 p. m. — Yale Bowl Pops Concerts, Faye Emerson, narrator, in the American premiere of Prokofieff's "Winter Holiday," with Skitch Henderson conducting. Yale Bowl, New Haven.

WEDNESDAY

2:30 p. m. — Faculty ensemble chamber music concert, Yale Summer School of Music, Norfolk.

FRIDAY

4 and 9 p. m. — Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass.

8:30 p. m.—World premiere of Arnold Franchetti's opera, "The Lion," White Barn Theater, Westport, through Sunday.

SATURDAY

4 and 9 p. m. — Jacob's Pillow, as above.

8:30 p. m. — Opening of Theater Concert Hall concerts, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Bach weekend.

Union July 12

Berkshire Footlights

LUKAS FOSS

The accomplished young American pianist-composer-conductor, Lukas Foss, has [illegible] up residence at [illegible] Cone home at Sunny [illegible] Farm in Lee as he prepares for a busy summer season at Tanglewood in Lenox. Last night he was the soloist as the Berkshire Festival concerts opened in the Theater-Concert Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. Sharing the spotlight with the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra Mr. Foss performed the piano solo in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 and was rewarded with a tremendous ovation.

Two weeks from today Mr. Foss new cantata "A Parable of Death," based on poems by Rilke will have its New England premiere with the composer conducting the orchestra himself. It was commissioned last winter for Vera Zorina and the Louisville Symphony Orchestra. More recently it was heard with Mr. Foss conducting and Miss Zorina as narrator at New York's Town Hall and at the Ojai Festival of Music in California.

In the first concert series in the Shed at Tanglewood on Saturday evening, August 1, Mr. Munch will be seen leading the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Mr. Foss' "Piano Concerto No. 2" and the young composer will be featured as the soloist. Meanwhile, Lucas will be active on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in two departments the orchestral — conducting and the analysis division of the Tanglewood Study Group.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 3 - 1953

MUSIC CALENDAR

SUNDAY

4 p. m. — Opening of Music Mountain with Bruce Simonds, pianist, and the resident Berkshire Quartet. Music Mountain Falls Village.

4 and 9 p. m. — Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, outside of Lee, Mass.

TUESDAY

8:15 p. m. — Yale Bowl Pops Concerts. Faye Emerson, narrator, in the American premiere of Prokofieff's "Winter Holiday," with Skitch Henderson conducting. Yale Bowl, New Haven.

WEDNESDAY

3:30 p. m. — Faculty ensemble chamber music concert, Yale Summer School of Music, Norfolk.

FRIDAY

4 and 9 p. m. — Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass.

8:30 p. m.—World premiere of Arnold Franchetti's opera, "The Lion" White Barn Theater, Westport, through Sunday.

SATURDAY

4 and 9 p. m. — Jacob's Pillow, as above.

8:30 p. m. — Opening of Theater Concert Hall concerts, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Bach weekend.

This Clipping From PITTSBURGH, PA.
SUN-TELEGRAPH
9 - 1953

Pittsburgh-Born

Jean Handzlik Plays Mikado's Katisha

By MARION LESLIE

AS LONG as Jean Handzlik is doing something on the stage she feels "perfectly co-ordinated and happy with everything." This is true, she said, whether "the stage" be opera, concert, musical comedy, drama, radio or television.

The slender, golden haired Pitsburgh-born contralto made this declaration as she changed into the striking costume of "Katisha," the role she is playing in "The Mikado," this week's Civic Opera production at Pitt Stadium.

Jean, whose father played in the orchestra at the old Nixon Theater with Victor Saudek, well known Pittsburgh musician and conductor, is spending most of her time offstage visiting friends of her parents and relatives.

Relatives Here

She has several aunts here, she said, and added (with a soft laugh) "cousins I can reckon by the dozens," as in Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore."

It was a "delight to me," she continued, to know many of my relatives and friends were in Monday night's audience at the Stadium.

This reminded her of another night in Pittsburgh when she came here with the Philadelphia Opera Co., in 1944 to sing "Mercedes" in Bizet's "Carmen." The girl who was to sing the title role fell ill and Jean was called upon to make her debut as "Carmen" in her native city. She appreciated her friends and family in the audience that night, too.

Likes Part

Of her performance this week in "The Mikado," Jean said:

"Katisha is wonderful to do — dramatically and musically."

She counts it "a great privilege" to appear here with the great English Gilbert and Sullivan star, Martyn Green.

Though born here, Jean moved to the West Coast with her family when she was a little girl. She made her debut in Portland, Ore., at the age of 16, singing the contralto part in Handel's "Messiah." She received her training as an actress in Portland's Civic Theater.

Jean grew up with music. Her father, Leon L. Handzlik, was cornet soloist with the bands of John Philip Sousa and Arthur Pryor, and her mother was a concert pianist and accompanist. Her parents teach music in Portland now.

Career Varied

Her own career includes light opera at the famous Paper Mill Playhouse in New Jersey; a scholarship for the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, singing with the Philadelphia Opera Co., and with the Metropolitan Opera in Montreal; Broadway musical shows, appearances with leading symphony orchestras, Theater Guild of the Air, the Standard Symphony Hour and NBC Television Opera Theater.

After "The Mikado" closes Saturday, Jean will drive to Cohasset, Mass., where she will do "Call Me Madam" and other light operas with the South Shore Music Theater.

She'll join her 7-year-old son, Jan, there, too. Jan has been in several shows in Cohasset with his mother this season. He likes to be in a show his mother says, "but only when I am in it, too."

Sun-Telegraph Photos by Ed Salamony.

Pittsburgh-born Jean Handzlik arrives at Pitt Stadium (left) with the "object sublime" of playing "Katisha" in the Civic Opera's current production, "The Mikado." In the midst of covering her blond hair with "Katisha's" dark wig (right), Jean takes a look at "The Mikado," then discusses the sequins she wears on her eyelids as part of her "Katisha" makeup.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUL 6 - 1953

TANGLEWOOD MUSIC CENTER OPENS SEASON

Large Audience Applauds Dr. Munch; Ross Conducts Chorus

Lenox, July 5—Opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Centers 11th season were held in the theater concert hall at Tanglewood this afternoon. Addressing the overflow audience of students and invited guests, Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Center, noted the remarkable growth of this school of music conducted by one of the world's major symphony orchestras. He lauded the work of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, whose widow was in the audience.

Cities Growth

As of last year, the schools tenth, statistics show that more than four thousand have registered here at Tanglewood. Dr. Perry also pointed with justifiable pride that it has been determined as a fact that 10 per cent of the members of this country's major orchestras have been students at the Berkshire Music Center.

Before introducing Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Perry referred to the popular music director as the greatest conductor in the world. Modestly, Mr. Munch waved off the tribute while the audience gave their approval of the distinction with a great ovation. Refreshed and jovial following his vacation trip abroad, Mr. Munch spoke warmly to the student body and then called upon all those present to stand in a minute of silence as a tribute to his late predecessor Dr. Koussevitzky.

Others addressing the group were Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees of the Boston Symphony, and Aaron Copeland, assistant director of the school, who introduced the faculty.

Concluding the program was the traditional rendition of the Randall Thompson "Alleluia" by the student chorus under the direction of Hugh Ross. The performance matched the previous highlights of this traditional program and it was noted by Dr. Perry that Mr. Ross had but one opportunity for a rehersal of the chorus before this afternoon's performance.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Opens Sixteenth Season July 11

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening (July 11) at 8:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorum.

Week End Highlights

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 are the famous performance of young American composer - conductor - pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a Principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following soloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Rober Voison, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p.m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists are Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

Open Exercises Today

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center today at 3:30 p.m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening (July 10) at 8:30 p.m., in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together. The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning (July 12) at 10:00 a.m. Sunday evening at 8:30 p.m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all Festival concerts. Programs for the Festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

Tanglewood's July 18-19 concerts are devoted to Mozart works, with Isaac Stern as soloist; the July 25 concert is all Haydn, including the Theresa Mass conducted by Hugh Ross; the July 26 program is devoted to works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and will have the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death", conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

[170]

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS
JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the brilliant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169,000, or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players. The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol).

Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs no bolstering evidence; but the odd fact, in music, seems to be that versatility is a kind of specialty, especially when it comes to the triple talents of composer-arranger-conductor. And the tradition goes on with the steady ascent of the young man known as Camarata.

A resident of Verona, N. J., Camarata's specialization in versatility began with early youth as a student of the violin. Towards adolescence he shifted to the trumpet, at which he became proficient enough to earn a place in Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra in the mid-30s. It was under these auspices that he began work as an arranger, meanwhile solidifying his technique by theoretical studies at the Juilliard School.

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD
JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

RUTH POSSELT . . . returning after eleven years

[17']

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weinlawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 9 - 1953

Tel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume,

---

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 1 - 1953

Tanglewood Box Office Opens Tomorrow

The box office at Tanglewood in Lenox will open tomorrow for the sale of subscriptions and single tickets to the Berkshire Festival. As a service for Berkshire County residents only, the subscription season will be extended for 10 days, to enable patrons to go in person to the box office for information and seats for one or all series of concerts in the Music Shed.

Holders of series tickets are entitled to priority in seating, a reduction in price and the privilege of choice location in the theatre-concert hall for the early chamber orchestra concerts on week ends in July.

The office of the Berkshire Music Center will open next Monday.

---

retary to Charles rector, also has returned.

Spencer Kennard and Roger Hinman, of the faculty of Lenox Preparatory School for Boys, are in the Friends' office, and Joseph LePlante of Salem is back to head the music store. Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante, who were married last week, are occupying a cottage at South Mountain.

The box office is again headed by Allen Smith, assisted by Miss Josephine Testa of 71 Stoddard Avenue, and the Symphony Hall staff.

Six concerts are given in the Theater-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9 Aug. 14-15-16.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with details completed so far of the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U. S. and Canada, and from foreign countries. Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group, the new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, national chairman of the Friends for the Berkshire Festival, will arrive this week end at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks, to set in motion the program of approximately 40 performances this summer which Friends may attend by invitation. These will include first three week ends of Festival chamber concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, three chamber music concerts donated by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, student opera productions scheduled on Aug. 10 and 11, recitals by visiting concert artists, and a number of student concerts.

Education Manquee" ("An Incomplete Education").

All three operas will be presented Aug. 3 and the Gluck and Chabrier compositions will be sung in English. Like all student performances at Tanglewood, admission is not by tickets, but is open by invitation to the friends of the music center whose contributions aid the school.

Opera Theatre gave an open air-for-free performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" on the Boston Common. Singers and orchestra performed "back-to-back" on the specially constructed stage. The performance opened the theater's annual drive for funds to support its next season.

of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens, July 11.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the bril'iant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169.000. or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol).

Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial, and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs no bolstering evidence; but the odd fact, in music seems to be that versatility is a kind of specialty, especially when it comes to the triple talents of composer-arranger-conductor. And the tradition goes on with the steady ascent of the young man known as Camarata.

A resident of Verona, N. J., Camarata's specialization in versatility began with early youth as a student of the violin. Towards adolescence he shifted to the trumpet, at which he became proficient enough to earn a place in Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra in the mid-'30s. It was under these auspices that he began work as an arranger, meanwhile solidifying his technique by theoretical studies at the Juilliard School.

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD

JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

17

RUTH POSSELT
. . . returning after eleven years

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weiniawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 9 - 1953

Lel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume, the [illegible] yearbook.

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUN 1 - 1953

Tanglewood Box Office Opens Tomorrow

The box office at Tanglewood in Lenox will open tomorrow for the sale of subscriptions and single tickets to the Berkshire Festival. As a service for Berkshire County residents only, the subscription season will be extended for 10 days, to enable patrons to go in person to the box office for information and seats for one or all series of concerts in the Music Shed.

Holders of series tickets are entitled to priority in seating, a reduction in price and the privilege of choice location in the theatre-concert hall for the early chamber orchestra concerts on week ends in July.

The office of the Berkshire Music Center will open next Monday.

retary to Charles rector, also has returned.

Spencer Kennard and Roger Hinman, of the faculty of Lenox Preparatory School for Boys, are in the Friends' office, and Joseph LePlante of Salem is back to head the music store. Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante, who were married last week, are occupying a cottage at South Mountain.

The box office is again headed by Allen Smith, assisted by Miss Josephine Testa of 71 Stoddard Avenue, and the Symphony Hall staff.

Six concerts are given in the Theater-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9 Aug. 14-15-16.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with details completed so far of the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U. S. and Canada, and from foreign countries. Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group, the new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, national chairman of the Friends for the Berkshire Festival, will arrive this week end at the Curti Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks, to s in motion the program of approximately 40 performances this summer which Friends may attend invitation. These will include first three week ends of Festi chamber concerts in the Thea Concert Hall, three chamber concerts donated by Mrs. Eliza Sprague Coolidge, student productions scheduled on Au 10 and 11, recitals by visiting cert artists, and a number of dent concerts.

"Une Education Manquee" ("An Incomplete Education").

All three operas will be presented Aug. 3 and the Gluck and Chabrier compositions will be sung in English. Like all student performances at Tanglewood, admission is not by tickets, but is open by invitation to the friends of the music center whose contributions aid the school.

Opera Theatre gave an open air-for-free performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" on the Boston Common. Singers and orchestra performed "back-to-back" on the specially constructed stage. The performance opened the theater's annual drive for funds to support its next season.

of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens, July 11.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the bril'iant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169,000, or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol).

Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial, and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 9 - 1953

Tel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at' Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume,

---

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD

JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

[17]

RUTH POSSELT
. . . returning after eleven years

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weiniawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

Miss Edith F. Brookner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookner of 207 Dawes Avenue, was married yesterday afternoon at the home of her parents to Bertram L. Rodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rodman of Cambridge.

Rabbi Jacob Freedman of Knesses Israel Synagogue performed the 10 o'clock ceremony against a background of white flowers. The couple were unattended.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a navy Shantung dress with white lace bodice, and a short illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 12

Music Center Office Opens At Tanglewood

Offices of the Berkshire Music Center and its Friends Society opened this week at Tanglewood. The advance staff from Symphony Hall, Boston, is reinforced by three Berkshire residents who have served in previous summers. More staff members will arrive next week, and the complete force for school and Festival activities will be in residence June 29.

Thomas D. Perry Jr., executive secretary of the school; Miss Jean Fraser, his secretary; Miss Edith Bossler, registrar; and Miss Heidi Bakker of Great Barrington, her assistant, are at work in the school office at the main house. Leonad Burkat, school librarian and secretary to Charles Munch, the director, also has returned.

Spencer Kennard and Roger Hinman, of the faculty of Lenox Preparatory School for Boys, are in the Friends' office, and Joseph LePlante of Salem is back to head the music store. Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante, who were married last week, are occupying a cottage at South Mountain.

The box office is again headed by Allen Smith, assisted by Miss Josephine Testa of 71 Stoddard Avenue, and the Symphony Hall staff.

Six concerts are given in the Theater-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9 Aug. 14-15-16.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with details completed so far of the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U. S. and Canada, and from foreign countries. Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group, the new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, national chairman of the Friends for the Berkshire Festival, will arrive this week end at the Curti Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks, to se in motion the program of approximately 40 performances this sum mer which Friends may attend invitation. These will include first three week ends of Festi chamber concerts in the Theat Concert Hall, three chamber mu concerts donated by Mrs. Elizal Sprague Coolidge, student o productions scheduled on Aug 10 and 11, recitals by visiting cert artists, and a number of dent concerts.

Education Manquee" ("An incomplete Education").

All three operas will be presented Aug. 3 and the Gluck and Chabrier compositions will be sung in English. Like all student performances at Tanglewood, admission is not by tickets, but is open by invitation to the friends of the music center whose contributions aid the school.

Opera Theatre gave an open air-for-free performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" on the Boston Common. Singers and orchestra performed "back-to-back" on the specially constructed stage. The performance opened the theater's annual drive for funds to support its next season.

of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens July 11.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the bril'iant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169,000, or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol).

Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial, and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 9 - 1953

Tel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume,

---

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD

JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

17

RUTH POSSELT . . . returning after eleven years

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weiniawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

DOWN ON THE FARM

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 28 1953

ACTIVITY GROWS AT TANGLEWOOD AS OPENING NEARS

Boston Symphony Personnel Moving Into Lenox For Summer

Lenox, June 27 In preparation for the opening on Sunday, July 5, of the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival concerts which commence Saturday, July 11, a large part of the personnel of the orchestra has moved from its Symphony Hall, Boston, headquarters, to its summer home at Tanglewood in Lenox, where it is being augmented by local and district officers.

Seats on Sale

Alan Smith, treasurer, and Josephine Testa, of Pittsfield, his assistant, have opened the boxoffice at Tanglewood, where seats may now be purchased for individual concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Six concerts are given in the Theater-Concert Hall by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons, July 11-12, 18-19, 25-26; and nine programs are held in the festival shed by the complete Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons July 31-August 1-2; August 7-8-9 Aug. 14-15-16.

Activity at the Berkshire Music Center headquarters is in full swing, with details completed so far of the registration, curriculum, housing and arrival of some 320 out of the 450 students expected from all over the U. S. and Canada, and from foreign countries. Registrations are still open for the Tanglewood Study Group, the new department in which professional and amateur musicians may enroll for two, four or six weeks to study and participate in the performance of music.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry, of Boston, national chairman of the Friends for the Berkshire Festival, will arrive this week end at the Curti Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks, to set in motion the program of approximately 40 performances this summer which Friends may attend by invitation. These will include the first three week ends of Festi chamber concerts in the Theat Concert Hall, three chamber mu concerts donated by Mrs. Elizab Sprague Coolidge, student o productions scheduled on Aug 10 and 11, recitals by visiting cert artists, and a number of dent concerts.

Education Manquee ("An incomplete Education").

All three operas will be presented Aug. 3 and the Gluck and Chabrier compositions will be sung in English. Like all student performances at Tanglewood, admission is not by tickets, but is open by invitation to the friends of the music center whose contributions aid the school.

Opera Theatre gave an open air-for-free performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" on the Boston Common. Singers and orchestra performed "back-to-back" on the specially constructed stage. The performance opened the theater's annual drive for funds to support its next season.

of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens, July 11.

UTIC
PRE

JUN 27

This
In M

by William

Recommending the mphony Orchestra is ing religion, mother
ing.

The famed orchestra,
d season, is that idents of this area,
ston is just a little ar it often.

Not so Pittsfield,
where the Boston orches its Summer series of co
the now-famous "Tang

Today's column unas aims at persuading re visit Tanglewood this If it's a free advertise
the Boston orchestra, it plug for all that is
music.

This year's Tanglewoo starts July 11. The first concerts is indoors in the Concert Hall. They are urday evenings and Sund noons on three weekends, erally feature works of proportion.

Charles Munch is cond
the entire indoor series.
seven programs include
Bach, Mozart, Haydn;
program includes more hamber music works of trauss, Maurice Rave
rokofieff, Darius Milh ukas Foss.

Beginning the wee
July 31, and continuing three weekends is the utdoor series held in th shed,' an excellent cove
oor concert hall. Thi
with full orchestra,
oncerts on Friday and ay nights and Sunday
oons.

Their programs includ
presentation of standa ony works as well as lesser-known selection
ctors for this series
nch, Pierre Monte
nard Bernstein.

Tanglewood has a nu
er attractions, but ts of this area
inly in music program series, and particul
d concerts, have the
r. A program list is ow.

The trip to Tanglewood difficult as one mig
ine. Tanglewood is out 125 miles east of obably the best way
re is over Route 20,
sses close to the
ute 20 at this time

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS
JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the bril'iant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169,000, or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol).

Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial, and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 9 - 1953
Tel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume,

---

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD
JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

17

RUTH POSSELT
. . . returning after eleven years

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weiniawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
JUN 28 1953

EVA GABOR
"Sailor's Delight"
Cape Playhouse, Dennis

French Opera To Be Staged

To Be Major Work Of Berkshire Group

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 27 — "Richard Coeur-de-Lion," an opera written shortly before the French Revolution, will be the major production of the opera department at the Berkshire Music Center.

Boris Goldovsky, well-known in New Bedford, announced the opera—a three-act affair written by Andre-Ernest-Modeste Gretry—will be given in English. The translation was made by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. Two performances of the opera—which had its world premiere in Paris in 1784 and its U. S. premiere in Boston in 1797—will be given Aug. 10 and 11.

In the cast will be students of the Berkshire Music Center—the Summer music school run as an adjunct to the Berkshire Festival by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Scenery will employ projected views using a special slide mechanism.

In addition to the French opera dealing with Britain's hero king, three rarely-heard one-act operas will also be staged by the students: Gluck's "L'Yvrogne" ("The Drunkard Reformed"); Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" ("The Prodigal Son"), and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee" ("An Incomplete Education").

All three operas will be presented Aug. 3 and the Gluck and Chabrier compositions will be sung in English. Like all student performances at Tanglewood, admission is not by tickets, but is open by invitation to the friends of the music center whose contributions aid the school.

Opera Theatre gave an open air-for-free performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" on the Boston Common. Singers and orchestra performed "back-to-back" on the specially constructed stage. The performance opened the theater's annual drive for funds to support its next season.

of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens, July 11.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS
JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the bril'iant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169,000, or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players. The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol).

Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial, and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 9 - 1953

Tel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume,

---

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD
JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

RUTH POSSELT
... returning after eleven years

[17]

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weiniawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.
CITIZEN
JUN 28 1953

World Of Music

Vienna Chorus Plans Tour Of Four Months

NEW YORK, June 27 (UP)—The opera department of the Berkshire Music Center is readying "Richard tht Lion-hearted," by Andre Ernest Modeste Gretry, for performances in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., Aug. 10 and 11.

The music center is the summer music school which is part of the annual Berkshire Festival conducted by the Boston Symphony and contributing musical organizations and musicians. The revival of a Gretry opera was calculated to give this year's festival an unusual fillip.

Gretry was the most prolific opera composer of his day, which was just before the French revolution. Richard had its premiere in Paris in 1784, its first American performance in Boston in 1797, and hasn't been performed much since.

Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, also revealed that his students are preparing three one-act operas for presentation one behind another on Aug. 3. They are Gluck's "L'Yveogne Corrige"—"The Drunkard Reformed," Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," and Chabrier's "Une Education Manquee.'

* * *

The annual Peninsula Music Festival at Ephraim, Wisc., will be opened on Aug. 6 with Thor Johnson conducting a 35-piece symphony orchestra. He'll conduct eight concerts in all, running through Aug. 16. In addition to the orchestra, the festival will hear the Moravian String Quintet, the American Woodwind Quintet, and eight soloists—Leonard Ross, 'cello; Lois Marshall and Ruth Gevalt, sopranos: Frank Sudler, baritone; Frank Glazer, piano; David Glazer, clarinet; Anna Bukay, harp; and Raymond Gniewek, violin.

* * *

The Vienna Academy Chorus will begin a four month tour of the U. S. Sept. 21.

Milton Katims, is on a six-week tour of Israel, conducting the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra.

Erich Leinsdorf, conductor, has been elected president of the International Music Institute.

Licia Albanese, soprano, will take part in her 11th season at the San Francisco Opera in the fall, in advance of the Metropolitan Opera season in New York. She plans to sign Margherita in Bioto's "Mefistofele" for the first time in her career.

Boris Goldovsky's New England Opera Theatre gave an open air-for-free performance of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" on the Boston Common. Singers and orchestra performed "back-to-back" on the specially constructed stage. The performance opened the theater's annual drive for funds to support its next season.

---

of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens, July 11.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

JUN 21 1953

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

By plane and by ship, Americans in increasing numbers will be moving Europeward in the next few weeks, many of them including a festival, or two or three, as an indispensable part of the itinerary. Whether it's Bayreuth or Aixen-Provence, Salzburg or Edinburgh, they're sure to hear a lot of good music. A surprising amount of it, moreover, will be provided by American performers, who are more in demand in the European strongholds than ever.

Possibly the most prominent of them is Eleanor Steber, who has just made her debute in Vienna, and will reach a new high point of her career when she sings Elsa in the festival-opening performance of "Lohengrin" at Bayreuth late in July.

Astrid Varnay, Regina Resnick, George London and Ramon Vinay (an American of the Southern, rather than the Northern variety, being a native of Chile) are other familiar persons who will be doing their best to aid Weiland Wagner in edging back the Bayreuth standard to its legendary place of leadership.

To the south, the festival at Aix will show a revival of Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte" heavily peopled with Americans — Teresa Stich-Randall, Leopold Simoneau and Nan Merriman among others.

At Glyndebourne, Mattawilda Dobbs, the bril'iant Negro coloratura—as yet better known in Europe than in her native country—will be singing in Mozart's "Entfuehrung," whose conductor will be Alfred Wallenstein, director of the Los Angeles Symphony. This promises to be an eventful Summer for Wallenstein, for, in addition to making his first important venture as an opera conductor in the demanding area of Glyndebourne, he will be charged with the English premiere of Stravinsky's "The Rake's Progress" at Edinburgh in August.

Here the cast will be almost all American, for in addition to Jerome Hines as Shadow and David Lloyd as Tom Rankewell, the part of Baba will be sung by Miss Merriman.

MEANWHILE the concert artists will also be busy, with Leon Fleisher practising his pianistic art in several centers, and Isaac Stern conducting a one-man tour of the violin literature by appearing with four different orchestras at Edinburgh. Eugene Ormandy's services are much in demand, as doubtless would be those of Leonard Warren had he not decided to hold off until December, when he makes his La Scala debut in "Rigoletto."

GLENN MILLER'S enduring place in the hearts of Britishers (the late lamented band leader was serving in that country when he took off on the wartime flight from which he never returned) was memorialized during the coronation season with a program on BBC. Among those taking part was the celebrated conductor Sir Adrian Boult, who became well acquainted with the American jazz man during his wartime service.

COUNTING UP the receipts at the end of its nationwide tour last week, the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced that it had grossed $169,000, or an average of $5830 for each of the 29 concerts. Best receipts were rolled up in Los Angeles, where a concert in the vast Shrine Auditorium drew an audience of 6000 that paid more than $18,000. In all, however, the foreknowledge that the tour would incur a deficit was not belied. Expenses were reckoned at $200,000 with an expected $30,000 loss.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT has signed to do 10 performances of Porgy in the current revival now running at the Ziegfeld Theater.

CLASSICAL

"Love Duet" from "Siegfried" (Wagner). Powerful performances by Kirsten Flagstad in this and the "Immolation" from "Goetterdaemmerung" somewhat blemished by the suspicion that another voice is dubbed in to sing the top C's. Set Svanholm is her partner in the duet, with George Sebastian and Wilhelm Furtwaengler conducting. (HMV).

"Concerto Crosso" (Bloch). A sample of the work done by William Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in the Contemporary Music Festival of last November, this on-the-spot recording testifies to the new spirit the conductor has instilled in the players. The "Symphony for Strings" of William Schuman is as well played, but with less effect. (Capitol). Symphonies Nos. 7 and 45 (Haydn). Remarkably well-fashioned performances by Eugene Ormandy, who displays a real sense of Haydn style in the demands he imposes on his virtuoso ensemble of Philadelphia. Beautiful sound. (Columbia.)

"Old Italian Songs and Airs." Fedora Barbieri, one of the Met's most prized artists, applies her sumptuous voice and artistry to a variety of works, including Scarlatti's "Le Violette," Pergolesi's "Se tu m'ami" and "Lasciatemi Morire" of Monteverdi. Piano parts are well played by Dick Marzollo. (Vox.)

POPULAR

"Me and Juliet." The first samples from the Richard Rodgers score (sung by Isabel Bigley and others of the original cast) do not inspire opposition to the general opinion that this is well below the high level of "South Pacific." "No Other Love" is a pleasant ballad, the others less notable. (RCA Victor.)

"Liberace." No other word is necessary to describe the contents of this collection, for, if you like the performer, what he does is immaterial, and if you don't, the opposite is just as true. For the curious, "Jalousie," "I Don't Care" and "September Song" are among the contents. (Columbia.)

"Fletcher Henderson Memorial." In contrast with some gestures on behalf of the late arranger-bandleader, this is an authentic memorial, made of the Henderson band's own performances of "Wrappin' It Up," "Down South Camp Meetin'," "Big John Special," etc. Among the great soloists represented from these recordings of the '30s are Coleman Hawkins, Benny Carter, "Red" Allen and Ben Webster. (Decca.)

"Lover's Rhapsody." If the goo fits, put it on, seems the challenge in these sentimental oddities assembled and conducted by TV comic Jackie Gleason. Bobby Hackett's trumpet solos are notable, if nothing else is. (Capitol.)

ALMOST EVERYWHERE one looks the contention that this is the age of specialization needs

Ten top records

(Selected from a poll of listening audiences)

POPULAR

"SONG FROM MOULIN ROUGE," Percy Faith (Columbia).

"I'M WALKING BEHIND YOU," Eddie Fisher (RCA Victor).

"APRIL IN PORTUGAL," Les Baxter (Capitol).

"I BELIEVE," Frankie Laine (Columbia).

"WONDERFUL TOWN," Rosalind Russell, etc. (Decca).

CLASSICAL

CONCERTO NO. 5 (Beethoven), W. Gieseking (Columbia).

"DAPHNIS ET CHLOE," E. Ansermet conducting (London).

SYMPHONY NO. 9 (Beethoven), A. Toscanini conducting (RCA Victor).

"SCHLUSNUS SINGS LIEDER," H. Schlusnus, baritone (Decca).

TRIO IN E FLAT (Schubert), Badura-Skoda, etc. (Westminster).

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 9 - 1953

Eel. 83

Tanglewood Student Staying With Sister

GREAT BARRINGTON — Louis C. Garenani of North Adams, a graduate last month of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, is spending the summer here at the home of his sister, Mrs. Melvin J. McNeil of East Street, while studying on a scholarship at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood.

The son of Mrs. Rose Garenani and the late Anthony Garenani of North Adams, he has accepted a position this fall as supervisor of instrumental music at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, N.H. He has a degree of bachelor of music in music education, has sung with the New England Conservatory chorus in the Boston area and has appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the conservatory he did extra-curricular work with Frank Gaviani, noted accordionist and director of the Gaviani School of Accordion in Boston, studying personally with Mr. Gaviani. He was consistently on the dean's list at the conservatory, and served as social chairman and student council representative of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national professional music fraternity.

He was a member of the Melodic Line, the school newspaper, and was literary editor of the Neume,

---

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD

JUN 28 1953

Violinist Ruth Posselt Plays in 'Pops' Tonight

Ruth Posselt, violinist who will appear as soloist with University of Miami's Summer Symphony at the second "pops" concert at 8 tonight, is one of UM's "returnee" artists—which label is being applied these days to more and more of the artists who play with either our summer or winter ensemble.

[17] RUTH POSSELT
. . . returning after eleven years

Some, like Jorge Bolet who played last Sunday, return after only a month or two, but Miss Posselt has put an interval of 11 years between her last and current appearances. She has not been here since March, 1942.

The talented violinist, now in her thirties, was still in her "prodigy" days when she played Samuel Barber's violin concerto with John Bitter and the UM Symphony in Miami Senior High School.

Bitter will again be at the helm when she appears tonight with the summer ensemble in Miami Beach auditorium.

Instead of one large work Miss Posselt has elected to play a group of four briefer pieces on this occasion.

She has listed an Andante by Lalo, "Tango Espagnol" by Enrique Fernandez-Arbos, Weiniawski's "Romance," and "Danser Tzigane" by Tirador Nachez.

Before the first intermission Bitter will present Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, Strauss's Rosenkavalier Waltzes, the overture "Der Freischutz" by von Weber, and the March from Prokofiev's "Love of Three Oranges." These are all familiar and well-loved works of the orchestral repertoire.

Following Miss Posselt's appearance, the orchestra will wind up with "Show Boat" Melodies and Enesco's Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1.

Miss Posselt, who is married to Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony, is a popular recitalist throughout the country, and has made innumerable appearances not only with the Boston under Koussevitzky and Munch, but with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Chicago, Detroit, Washington, Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis symphonies.

She started her career by playing "Tipperary" at the age of 3 on a miniature violin. At 6 she gave a recital in Jordan Hall, Boston, and shortly afterwards became the pupil of Emanuel Ondricek.

At 9 she made her Carnegie Hall debut. At 14 she was soloist with the New York Philharmonic under Walter Damrosch and with the Boston People's Symphony. She was winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize over 165 other violinists about that time, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' principal prize.

She has toured Europe extensively, beginning at the age of 21 when she was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia.

This Clipping From
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES

JUN 28 1953

New Operas Commissioned

Two Composers Given Grants at Tanglewood

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers this Summer.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the assistance of the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's season next Sunday. Mr. Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the Summer of 1954, when the completed works will be performed during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, mounted and staged by student technicians, with a student orchestra performing.

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, Mr. Goldovsky announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman of New York and to Louis Mennini of Rochester, N. Y. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzy Music Foundation grant of $1,500 towards the project.

To Work at Center

Mr. Rosenman and Mr. Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center through this season, and will commence work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff at their disposal during creation. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, all scenic and technical detail.

By the end of the Summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set, giving the composers almost a full year to complete their works for performance next season.

From the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center the opera has been an important function of the school whose founder, the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, was much interested in musical theater. Mr. Goldovsky has been head of the opera department since 1946.

Meanwhile, the sale of series tickets for the shed concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood has surpassed that of the Summer of 1952, manager George E. Judd announces.

Subscribers for the 1953 Berkshire Festival purchased $59,000 in tickets for Series A, July 31 and Aug. 1 and 2; for Series B, Aug. 7-8 and 9, and for Series C, Aug. 14, 15 and 16, an increase of more than $1,000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

Tickets on Sale

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the boxoffice. Mail orders for single concerts also are received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens, July 11.

UTICA
PRES

JUN 27

This
In M

by William R

mending the ny Orchestra is religion, mother

amed orchestra,
ason, is that go
of this area,
is just a little to often.

so Pittsfield,
the Boston orches
nmer series of co w-famous "Tang

y's column unash
t persuading rea Tanglewood this S a free advertisem
Boston orchestra, it's for all that is
music.

This year's Tanglewood
starts July 11. The first concerts is indoors in the Concert Hall. They are
urday evenings and Sunda
noons on three weekends,
erally feature works of proportion.

Charles Munch is cond
the entire indoor series.
seven programs include
Bach, Mozart, Haydn;
program includes more chamber music works of Strauss, Maurice Rave
Prokofieff, Darius Milha
Lukas Foss.

Beginning the week
July 31, and continuing
three weekends is the outdoor series held in th
'shed,' an excellent cove door concert hall. This with full orchestra,
concerts on Friday and day nights and Sunday
noons.

Their programs include epresentation of standa hony works as well as a lesser-known selection
uctors for this series
unch, Pierre Monteu eonard Bernstein.

Tanglewood has a nu
her attractions, but nts of this area in ainly in music program
o series, and particula ed concerts, have the
fer. A program list is low.

The trip to Tanglewood
difficult as one mig
ine. Tanglewood is bout 125 miles east of robably the best way
ere is over Route 20,
sses close to the
ute 20 at this time

CHANDLER POUND PACKAGE
The Best Part Of The Meal
JFC
SPECIAL COFFEE
PERCOLATOR
OPEN
ALL DAY
July 4th & 5th
LUNCHEON MEATS
WATERMELONS

UTICA, N. Y.
PRESS
JUN 27 1953

This Week In Music

by

William R. Eckhof

Recommending the Boston Symphony Orchestra is like advocating religion, motherhood, or [illegible]

The famed orchestra, now in its [illegible] season, is that good. For residents of this area however, Boston is just a little too far to hear it often.

Not so Pittsfield, however, where the Boston orchestra holds its Summer series of concerts at the now-famous "Tanglewood."

Today's column unashamedly aims at persuading readers to visit Tanglewood this Summer. If it's a free advertisement for the Boston orchestra, it's also a plug for all that is good in music.

This year's Tanglewood season starts July 11. The first series of concerts is indoors in the Theater-Concert Hall. They are held Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons on three weekends, and generally feature works of chamber proportion.

Charles Munch is conductor for the entire indoor series. The first seven programs include music of Bach, Mozart, Haydn; the final program includes more modern chamber music works of Richard Strauss, Maurice Ravel, Sergi Prokofieff, Darius Milhaud, and Lukas Foss.

Beginning the weekend of July 31, and continuing through three weekends is the famous outdoor series held in the huge 'shed,' an excellent covered outdoor concert hall. This series with full orchestra, includes concerts on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

Their programs include a good representation of standard symphony works as well as a number of lesser-known selections. Conductors for this series include Munch, Pierre Monteux, and Leonard Bernstein.

Tanglewood has a number of other attractions, but for residents of this area interested mainly in music programs, these two series, and particularly the shed concerts, have the most to offer. A program list is included below.

The trip to Tanglewood is not so difficult as one might imagine. Tanglewood is located about 125 miles east of Utica. Probably the best way to get there is over Route 20, which passes close to the grounds. Route 20 at this time of year offers an interesting and pleasant drive, and the only city driving is through Albany.

Just before you get to Pittsfield on Route 20, there are signs directing you over a bypass of Pittsfield directly to the Tanglewood grounds. Adequate parking facilities are available, but you should expect some traffic congestion after the concert. It just takes a little patience.

What to wear? Apparel ranges from exceedingly formal Winter dress to blue-jeans and checkered shirts. People with conventional taste will simply wear comfortable Summer dress-up clothes.

As for seats, you get what you pay for at Tanglewood. Anyone traveling 125 miles to hear a concert should be willing to pay $3.50 for an acceptable seat where he can see as well as hear the orchestra in the latter series. Top-price box seats cost $6.50. Other prices are $5.50, $4, $3, and $2.50. General admission to the grounds with a fair view of the orchestra from outside the shed costs $2, and tickets are on sale only the day of the concert.

Here is a list of programs for the indoor chamber series:

July 11, five Bach Brandenburg concertos; July 12, two Bach suites and a cantata with chorus and soloists; July 18, all-Mozart program including Divertimento in D for strings, Violin Concerto in G, Serenade for 13 Winds, and "Prague" symphony.

July 19, all-Mozart program including "Figaro" overture, Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola, "Eine kleine Nachtmusik," and "Jupiter" smyphony; July 25, all Haydn program including "Theresa" Mass with chorus and soloists, C-minor Symphony No. 95, and "Military" symphony.

July 26, Strauss "Divertimento (After Couperin)", the Ravel "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Prokofieff "Classical Sympnony," Milhaud "La Creation de Monde," and Foss "A Parable of Death."

Programs for the Shed concerts: July 31, Beethoven overture to "Leonore" No. 3, Mendelssohn violin concerto, Copland's "Appalachian Spring," and Ravel's "Bolero"; Aug. 1, Schumann overture to "Manfred," Foss Piano Concerto No. 2, Mendelssohn "Italian Symphony," and Hindemith "Symphonic Metamorpohis of Themes by Weber"; Aug. 2, all-Tschaikowsky program including Serenade for Strings, Fifth Symphony, and First Piano Concerto.

Aug. 7, Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet," with chorus and soloists; Aug. 8, Mussorgsky "Prelude to Khovanstchina," Ravel "Sheherazade," Mahler "Ressurection" symphony; Aug. 9, Schubert Fifth Symphony, Barber "Adagio for Strings," Strauss "Don Quixote," Milhaud cello concerto, and Wagner overture to "Tannhauser."

Aug. 14, Brahms requiem; Aug. 15, Sibelius Fourth Symphony, Chavez "Sinfonia India," and Brahms Second Symphony. Aug. 16, Schubert "Unfinished Symphony," Chabner "Bourree Fantasque," Wagner Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan," Siegfried Idyll, and "Meistersinger" excerpts, Ravel "Piano Concerto for Left Hand, and Ravel "La Valse."

For anything so excellent and so near at hand it seems too good to afford missing.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUL 3 - 1953

Berkshire Center Opens On Sunday

The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will open its eleventh season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, Lenox, on Sunday afternoon.

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at opening exercises, commencing at 3:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school and an orchestra trustee, will preside. There will be a brief address by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assitant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross, director of its choral department, will lead the students in "Aleluia," composed for the school's opening in 1940 by Randall Thompson.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden following the exercises.

This Clipping From
BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST
JUN 29 1953

IN 'CELEBRITY SERIES'

Baltimore To Hear 'Merry Masquerade'

By HELEN A. F. PENNIMAN

When the "Celebrity Series" opens at the Lyric on October 3, the attraction announced will be the gay Mozart opera, "Merry Masquerade," to be given its first Baltimore hearing, so far as is known.

The production will be under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, whose name and fame are more familiar in Boston and New York, than in this part of the world.

Mr. Goldovsky heads the opera section of the Berkshire Music Centre, the summer school of music that grew out of the Music Festival at Lenox, founded by Koussevitsky as part of the career of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

* * *

MR. GOLDOVSKY has been responsible for a number of important operatic American premieres, given by the students of his classes, who actually are often mature musicians.

Among these works are Mozart's "Idomeneo"; Britten's "Peter Grimes"; Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot"; Mozart's "Finta Giardiniera" and "Titus"; Tchaikowsky's "Pique Dame"; Gluck's "Iphigenia In Tauris"; Rossini's "The Turk In Italy"; as well as another American premiere "Albert Herring," by Britten, so well presented here by Hugo Weisgall's Opera Company.

"Merry Masquerade" will be given in true opera fashion, with sets, costumes, and an orchestra, led by the director.

* * *

ON DECEMBER 5, the duo-pianist, Luboshutz and Nemenoff, will present a recital, followed in mid-February by a concert version of "Desert Song," the cast including Irra Petina of "Song of Norway" fame, with Lanny Ross, and Hugh Thompson of the Metropolitan.

Roberta Peters, the coloratura star of the Met, will be heard in recital on March 8, while April will provide a joint song recital by Jan Peerce and Hilde Gueden, and another by the renowned pianist, Artur Rubinstein.

Subscribers to this series may retain their same seats for the Sadlers Wells Ballet visit in January.

It is pleasant to know that the Community Concerts one-week campaign was vastly successful, and, while the Lyric is not sold out for this series, it comes so close as "makes no matter." "No single seats sold," so best register in the fall for next season!

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Music Center School to Open July 5

Festival Concerts at Tanglewood Start On July 11; Tickets Are Now Available

Berkshire Hills, June 27- Summer activities will begin to be in full sway a week hence with the start of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, which opens for a six-week summer school of music. The school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which stages that annual music festival at the Shed, will begin on July 5. Alan Smith, treasurer, and Miss Josephine Testa of Pittsfield, assistant treasurer, have opened the boxoffice at Tanglewood where tickets may now be purchased for the individual concerts of the festival, which begin on July 11.

At the Music Center, the headquarters are in full swing for the summer school. The staff is busily engaged with registration, curriculum, and housing of about 450 students expected to be on hand this year from all parts of the country, Canada and many foreign countries. The details for all of this work are in the hands of Thomas D. Perry, executive secretary, Edith Bessler, registrar, Jean Fraser, secretary, and Leonard Burkat, librarian, all of Boston. Miss Heidi Bakker of Great Barrington is also assisting the group this year. Ralph Berkowitz, the school's dean, will arrive this coming week from Philadelphia, and he will be assisted by Miss Patsy Hayes, also of Philadelphia.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry of Boston, the national chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Festival, arrived this week end at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks. He will arrange the program of about 50 performances this summer which friends may attend by invitation.

Evidence that the festival concerts are gaining in popularity each year, is shown by the fact that the ticket sales this year surpass those of the 1952 season, George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced this week. Ticket sales for the theater-concert hall, also show an increase over last year, giving evidence that it will be a busy season musically in the Berkshires this summer.

Laurel Hill Centennial

The committee in charge of the 100th anniversary celebration of the Laurel Hill Association of Stockbridge will meet this coming week to formulate plans for the celebration which will be held on Aug. 22. The Stockbridge association is the oldest civic improvement society in continuous operation in the nation, and is the forerunner of many similar organizations now functioning throughout the nation. Dr. Harvey Spencer is president of the Association.

Chairman of the celebration committee is Henry W. Dwight. He has named the following committee to work on details for the occasion: Charles A. Acly, Edward H. Acton, Mrs. David Braman, Harold L. Williams, Mrs. E. Gillette Wilcox, Dr. Spencer, Mrs. Graham D. Wilcox, Mrs. Alfred J. Skevington, Arthur Breed, Dr. Joseph O. Chassell, Mrs. William Penn Cresson, Miss Ruth MacF. Furniss, Mrs. Robert P. Knight, Mrs. Austen Fox Riggs and Miss Rosamond Sherwood. At next week's meeting, plans will be discussed about the features which will be arranged for the celebration.

Berle Writes Article

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., former assistant secretary of state, author of "New Directions in the New World," has written another article, "Our Self Interest in the United Nations," which is being highly received by critics. The present issue of Reader's Digest contains the article in a condensed form. Dr. Berle, who was one of the late President Roosevelt's "brain-trusters," maintains a country home, "Konkapot Farm," in Monument Valley in Great Barrington. His wife, Dr. Beatrice Berle, recently addressed the gathering at the 40th anniversary celebration of the Gould Farm in Monterey.

Dr. Whisenant Honored

Dr. John Ross Whisenant, of White Plains, N. Y., and Sunny Slopes Farm, Alford, was honored at a testimonial dinner last week in Elmsford, N. Y., to mark his retirement from the hospital staff and medical practice. Dr. Whisenant has been chief of urologic surgery at the White Plains Hospital. He tendered his resignation last week to the hospital's lay board being effective July 1.

About 25 fellow-members of the surgical staff at the hospital were present at the dinner. He was presented with a clock by Dr. Edwin G. Ramsdell, chief of staff of the hospital. Dr. James De Wolf and Dr. Ralph Di Pace, headed the committee in charge of the arrangements. Dr. Whisenant will move to his Sunny Slopes farm upon his retirement.

To Operate Lodge

The Monterey Lodge, in Monterey, has been leased by Bernard Kleban to Joseph Slezak and Charles Boleeck of New York City, who have already taken over the management of the establishment.

The two will operate the Lodge as a resort spot, and will have the dining room open daily to the public. They are to conduct the dining room under both the American and European plan, and Mrs. Slezak will be in charge of the cuisine. Both Mr. Slezak and Mr. Bolecek have been engaged in the hotel business in New York and New Jersey before taking over the Monterey property. Mr. Slezak is a cousin of Walter Slezak the well-known motion picture star. The Lodge will specialize in Viennese and Hungarian home cooking.

Garden Club Meets

The June meeting of the Great Barrington Garden Club will be held Monday, June 29, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. B. Holly Rose in Alford. The speaker for the occasion will be Mrs. Elizabeth Reynolds and her subject will be "Cut Flowers."

Concert Group Meets

The officers and directors of the Southern Berkshire Community Concerts Association held a meeting this week at the St. James parish hall in Great Barrington for the purpose of formulating plans for the coming season. George E. Membrino, president of the Association, presided.

Road Repaired

The roadway on Sunset Ave., in Lenox, is to be resurfaced and placed in first class condition this summer, fro mthe amount appropriated at the annual spring town meeting in Lenox. This street, for years considered one of the most beautiful to be seen anywhere in the Berkshires, will be restored to its former appearance, for the old metal garage and other buildings have been removed. A beautiful new house has been erected on the plot by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Du-Fresne, who recently acquired and beautified the premises. The street in former years had been pictured in leading nature and home magazines, and was a "paradise" for amateur and professional photographers.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT
JUL 10 1953

Berkshire Area Artists ~~Exhibit~~ at Tanglewood

An exhibition of paintings by Berkshire area artists will open Sunday in the reception hall at the main entrance of Tanglewood, Lenox, where the 1953 Berkshire Music festival will begin Saturday evening.

The exhibition, made available through the co-operation of the Berkshire museum, Pittsfield, will continue for a week. June Kimball of New Ashford, Stanley Bate of Claverack, N. Y., John Carroll of East Chatham, N. Y., E. Arnold Clark of Great Barrington, Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge and Harry Lane of West Stockbridge, who assembled the works, will be represented. The following week a collection of canvases by Mr. Lane will be shown.

UTICA, N. Y.
PRESS

JUN 27 1953

This Week In Music

by

William R. Eckhof

Recommending the Boston Symphony Orchestra is like advocating religion, motherhood, or voting.

The famed orchestra, now in its 72nd season, is that good. For residents of this area, however, Boston is just a little too far to hear it often.

Not so Pittsfield, however, where the Boston orchestra holds its Summer series of concerts at the now-famous "Tanglewood."

Today's column unashamedly aims at persuading readers to visit Tanglewood this Summer. If it's a free advertisement for the Boston orchestra, it's also a plug for all that is good in music.

This year's Tanglewood season starts July 11. The first series of concerts is indoors in the Theater-Concert Hall. They are held Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons on three weekends, and generally feature works of chamber proportion.

Charles Munch is conductor for the entire indoor series. The first seven programs include music of Bach, Mozart, Haydn; the final program includes more modern chamber music works of Richard Strauss, Maurice Ravel, Sergi Prokofieff, Darius Milhaud, and Lukas Foss.

Beginning the weekend of July 31, and continuing through three weekends is the famous outdoor series held in the huge 'shed,' an excellent covered outdoor concert hall. This series with full orchestra, includes concerts on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

Their programs include a good representation of standard symphony works as well as a number of lesser-known selections. Conductors for this series include Munch, Pierre Monteux, and Leonard Bernstein.

Tanglewood has a number of other attractions, but for residents of this area interested mainly in music programs, these two series, and particularly the shed concerts, have the most to offer. A program list is included below.

The trip to Tanglewood is not as difficult as one might imagine. Tanglewood is located about 125 miles east of Utica. Probably the best way to get there is over Route 20, which passes close to the grounds. Route 20 at this time of year offers an interesting and pleasant drive, and the only city driving is through Albany.

Just before you get to Pittsfield on Route 20, there are signs directing you over a bypass of Pittsfield directly to the Tanglewood grounds. Adequate parking facilities are available, but you should expect some traffic congestion after the concert. It just takes a little patience.

What to wear? Apparel ranges from exceedingly formal Winter dress to blue-jeans and checkered shirts. People with conventional taste will simply wear comfortable Summer dress-up clothes.

As for seats, you get what you pay for at Tanglewood. Anyone traveling 125 miles to hear a concert should be willing to pay $3.50 for an acceptable seat where he can see as well as hear the orchestra in the latter series. Top-price box seats cost $6.50. Other prices are $5.50, $4, $3, and $2.50. General admission to the grounds with a fair view of the orchestra from outside the shed costs $2, and tickets are on sale only the day of the concert.

Here is a list of programs for the indoor chamber series:

July 11, five Bach Brandenburg concertos; July 12, two Bach suites and a cantata with chorus and solosits; July 18, all-Mozart program including Divertimento in D for strings, Violin Concerto in G, Serenade for 13 Winds, and "Prague" symphony.

July 19, all-Mozart program including "Figaro" overture, Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola, "Eine kleine Nachtmusik," and "Jupiter" smyphony; July 25, all Haydn program including "Theresa" Mass with chorus and soloists, C-minor Symphony No. 95, and "Military" symphony.

July 26, Strauss "Divertimento (After Couperin)", the Ravel "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Prokofieff "Classical Sympnony," Milhaud "La Creation de Monde," and Foss "A Parable of Death."

Programs for the Shed concerts: July 31, Beethoven overture to "Leonore" No. 3, Mendelssohn violin concerto, Copland's "Appalachian Spring," and Ravel's "Bolero"; Aug. 1, Schumann overture to "Manfred," Foss Piano Concerto No. 2, Mendelssohn "Italian Sympnony," and Hindemith "Symphonic Metamorpohis of Themes by Weber"; Aug. 2, all-Tschaikowsky program including Serenade for Strings, Fifth Symphony, and First Piano Concerto.

Aug. 7, Berlioz "Romeo and Juliet," with chorus and soloists; Aug. 8, Mussorgsky "Prelude to Khovanstchina," Ravel "Sheherazade," Mahler "Ressurection" symphony; Aug. 9, Schubert Fifth Symphony, Barber "Adagio for Strings," Strauss "Don Quix[illegible]" Milhaud cello concerto, and Wagner overture to "Tannhauser."

Aug. 14, Brahms requiem; Aug. 15, Sibelius Fourth Symphony, Chavez "Sinfonia India," and Brahms Second Symphony. Aug. 16, Schubert "Unfinished Symphony," Chabner "Bourree Fantasque," Wagner Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan," Siegfried Idyll, and "Meistersinger" excerpts, Ravel "Piano Concerto for Left Hand, and Ravel "La Valse."

For anything so excellent and so near at hand it seems too good to afford missing.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JUL 3 - 1953

Berkshire Center Opens On Sunday

The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will open its eleventh season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, Lenox, on Sunday afternoon.

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at opening exercises, commencing at 3:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school and an orchestra trustee, will preside. There will be a brief address by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president. Composer Aaron Copland, who is assitant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross, director of its choral department, will lead the students in "Aleluia," composed for the school's opening in 1940 by Randall Thompson.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden following the exercises.

BALTIMORE, MD.
NEWS-POST

JUN 29 1953

IN 'CELEBRITY SERIES'

Baltimore To Hear 'Merry Masquerade'

By HELEN A. F. PENNIMAN

When the "Celebrity Series" opens at the Lyric on October 3, the attraction announced will be the gay Mozart opera, "Merry Masquerade," to be given its first Baltimore hearing, so far as is known.

The production will be under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, whose name and fame are more familiar in Boston and New York, than in this part of the world.

Mr. Goldovsky heads the opera section of the Berkshire Music Centre, the summer school of music that grew out of the Music Festival at Lenox, founded by Koussevitsky as part of the career of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

* * *

MR. GOLDOVSKY has been responsible for a number of important operatic American premieres, given by the students of his classes, who actually are often mature musicians.

Among these works are Mozart's "Idomeneo"; Britten's "Peter Grimes"; Ibert's "Le Roi d'Yvetot"; Mozart's "Finta Giardiniera" and "Titus"; Tchaikowsky's "Pique Dame"; Gluck's "Iphigenia In Tauris"; Rossini's "The Turk In Italy"; as well as another American premiere "Albert Herring," by Britten, so well presented here by Hugo Weisgall's Opera Company.

"Merry Masquerade" will be given in true opera fashion, with sets, costumes, and an orchestra, led by the director.

* * *

ON DECEMBER 5, the duo-pianist, Luboshutz and Nemenoff, will present a recital, followed in mid-February by a concert version of "Desert Song," the cast including Irra Petina of "Song of Norway" fame, with Lanny Ross, and Hugh Thompson of the Metropolitan.

Roberta Peters, the coloratura star of the Met, will be heard in recital on March 8, while April will provide a joint song recital by Jan Peerce and Hilde Gueden, and another by the renowned pianist, Artur Rubinstein.

Subscribers to this series may retain their same seats for the Sadlers Wells Ballet visit in January.

It is pleasant to know that the Community Concerts one-week campaign was vastly successful, and, while the Lyric is not sold out for this series, it comes so close as "makes no matter." "No single seats sold," so best register in the fall for next season!

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUN 28 1953

Berkshire Music Center School to Open July 5

Festival Concerts at Tanglewood Start On July 11; Tickets Are Now Available

Berkshire Hills, June 27—Summer activities will begin to be in full sway a week hence with the start of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, which opens for a six-week summer school of music. The school maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which stages that annual music festival at the Shed, will begin on July 5. Alan Smith, treasurer, and Miss Josephine Testa of Pittsfield, assistant treasurer, have opened the boxoffice at Tanglewood where tickets may now be purchased for the individual concerts of the festival, which begin on July 11.

At the Music Center, the headquarters are in full swing for the summer school. The staff is busily engaged with registration, curriculum, and housing of about 450 students expected to be on hand this year from all parts of the country, Canada and many foreign countries. The details for all of this work are in the hands of Thomas D. Perry, executive secretary, Edith Bessler, registrar, Jean Fraser, secretary, and Leonard Burkat, librarian, all of Boston. Miss Heidi Bakker of Great Barrington is also assisting the group this year. Ralph Berkowitz, the school's dean, will arrive this coming week from Philadelphia, and he will be assisted by Miss Patsy Hayes, also of Philadelphia.

Dr. Lewis D. Perry of Boston, the national chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Festival, arrived this week end at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, for two weeks. He will arrange the program of about 50 performances this summer which friends may attend by invitation.

Evidence that the festival concerts are gaining in popularity each year, is shown by the fact that the ticket sales this year surpass those of the 1952 season, George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra announced this week. Ticket sales for the theater-concert hall, also show an increase over last year, giving evidence that it will be a busy season musically in the Berkshires this summer.

Laurel Hill Centennial

The committee in charge of the 100th anniversary celebration of the Laurel Hill Association of Stockbridge will meet this coming week to formulate plans for the celebration which will be held on Aug. 22. The Stockbridge association is the oldest civic improvement society in continuous operation in the nation, and is the forerunner of many similar organizations now functioning throughout the nation. Dr. Harvey Spencer is president of the Association.

Chairman of the celebration committee is Henry W. Dwight. He has named the following committee to work on details for the occasion: Charles A. Acly, Edward H. Acton, Mrs. David Braman, Harold L. Williams, Mrs. E. Gillette Wilcox, Dr. Spencer, Mrs. Graham D. Wilcox, Mrs. Alfred J. Skevington, Arthur Breed, Dr. Joseph O. Chassell, Mrs. William Penn Cresson, Miss Ruth MacF. Furniss, Mrs. Robert P. Knight, Mrs. Austen Fox Riggs and Miss Rosamond Sherwood. At next week's meeting, plans will be discussed about the features which will be arranged for the celebration.

Berle Writes Article

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., former assistant secretary of state, author of "New Directions in the New World," has written another article, "Our Self Interest in the United Nations," which is being highly received by critics. The present issue of Reader's Digest contains the article in a condensed form. Dr. Berle, who was one of the late President Roosevelt's "brain-trusters," maintains a country home, "Konkapot Farm," in Monument Valley in Great Barrington. His wife, Dr. Beatrice Berle, recently addressed the gathering at the 40th anniversary celebration of the Gould Farm in Monterey.

Dr. Whisenant Honored

Dr. John Ross Whisenant, of White Plains, N. Y., and Sunny Slopes Farm, Alford, was honored at a testimonial dinner last week in Elmsford, N. Y., to mark his retirement from the hospital staff and medical practice. Dr. Whisenant has been chief of urologic surgery at the White Plains Hospital. He tendered his resignation last week to the hospital's lay board being effective July 1.

About 25 fellow-members of the surgical staff at the hospital were present at the dinner. He was presented with a clock by Dr. Edwin G. Ramsdell, chief of staff of the hospital. Dr. James De Wolf and Dr. Ralph Di Pace, headed the committee in charge of the arrangements. Dr. Whisenant will move to his Sunny Slopes farm upon his retirement.

To Operate Lodge

The Monterey Lodge, in Monterey, has been leased by Bernard Kleban to Joseph Slezak and Charles Boleck of New York City, who have already taken over the management of the establishment.

The two will operate the Lodge as a resort spot, and will have the dining room open daily to the public. They are to conduct the dining room under both the American and European plan, and Mrs. Slezak will be in charge of the cuisine. Both Mr. Slezak and Mr. Bolecek have been engaged in the hotel business in New York and New Jersey before taking over the Monterey property. Mr. Slezak is a cousin of Walter Slezak the well-known motion picture star. The Lodge will specialize in Viennese and Hungarian home cooking.

Garden Club Meets

The June meeting of the Great Barrington Garden Club will be held Monday, June 29, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. B. Holly Rose in Alford. The speaker for the occasion will be Mrs. Elizabeth Reynolds and her subject will be "Cut Flowers."

Concert Group Meets

The officers and directors of the Southern Berkshire Community Concerts Association held a meeting this week at the St. James parish hall in Great Barrington for the purpose of formulating plans for the coming season. George E. Membrino, president of the Association, presided.

Road Repaired

The roadway on Sunset Ave., in Lenox, is to be resurfaced and placed in first class condition this summer, fro mthe amount appropriated at the annual spring town meeting in Lenox. This street, for years considered one of the most beautiful to be seen anywhere in the Berkshires, will be restored to its former appearance, for the old metal garage and other buildings have been removed. A beautiful new house has been erected on the plot by Mr. and Mrs. Francis DuFresne, who recently acquired and beautified the premises. The street in former years had been pictured in leading nature and home magazines, and was a "paradise" for amateur and professional photographers.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT

JUL 10 1953

Berkshire Area Artists Exhibit at Tanglewood

An exhibition of paintings by Berkshire area artists will open Sunday in the reception hall at the main entrance of Tanglewood, Lenox, where the 1953 Berkshire Music festival will begin Saturday evening.

The exhibition, made available through the co-operation of the Berkshire museum, Pittsfield, will continue for a week. June Kimball of New Ashford, Stanley Bate of Claverack, N. Y., John Carroll of East Chatham, N. Y., E. Arnold Clark of Great Barrington, Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge and Harry Lane of West Stockbridge, who assembled the works, will be represented. The following week a collection of canvases by Mr. Lane will be shown.

[172]

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
JUN 28 1953

Advance Berkshire Festival Concert Time

A CHANGE in the time of the Sunday afternoon concerts will be an innovation in the 16th Berkshire Festival which opens Saturday, July 11, in Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The Festival will continue through Aug. 16, during which period the Boston Symphony Orchestra will present 15 concerts arranged in weekend groups. Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will conduct.

The Berkshire Music Center, the school of music maintained by the orchestra in connection with the Festival, starts a six-week session Monday, July 6. New opera productions will be a feature of its courses.

Since the Sunday afternoon festival concerts are included in the summer series of international festival broadcasts by Columbia and broadcasting time is 2:30 o'clock, the Tanglewood programs have been advanced to that time from the 3 o'clock hour of the past. The broadcast part will end at 4 o'clock and after an intermission the Tanglewood audience will hear the rest of the concert.

Another innovation this year will be consecutive performances in the Shed on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons. The chamber concert series will take place as usual on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Chamber Series Starts July 11

Charles Munch will conduct three pairs of concerts in the theater, the first of which, Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12, will be devoted to Bach. Saturday night's program will consist of the "Brandenburg" Concertos, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5 (Lukas Foss, soloist) and 6; Sunday afternoon—Cantata No. 28, conducted by Hugh Ross; Suite No. 2 in B minor for Flute and Strings, Doriot Anthony, soloist; Suite No. 3 in D major.

The next pair, July 18 and 19, will be all-Mozart, as follows: Saturday night—Divertimento in D for Strings, Concerto for Violin in G. major, Isaac Stern, soloist; Serenade for Thirteen Winds, Symphony in D major ("Prague"); Sunday afternoon—Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale, soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Symphony in C major ("Jupiter").

Haydn will take over at the concert Saturday night, July 25, with "Theresa" Mass, conducted by Hugh Ross; Symphony in C. minor, No. 95, and Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100. The final concert of the series the following afternoon will consist of Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86, Strauss; "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite, Ravel; "Classical" Symphony, Op. 25, Prokofieff; "La Creation du Monde," Milhaud; "A Parable of Death," Foss, Vera Zorina, narrator, conducted by the composer.

Three Series in Shed

The Shed concerts will be given in three series, A, July 31-Aug. 2; B, Aug. 7-9; C, Aug. 14-16. Munch will conduct the first two concerts in Series A, Monteux, the third. The programs: Friday night—Overture to "Lenore," No. 3, Beethoven; Violin Concerto in E minor, Mendelssohn, Zino Francescatti, soloist; "Appalachian Spring," Copland; "Bolero," Ravel.

Saturday night—Overture to "Manfred," Schumann; Piano Concerto No. 2, with Foss, the composer, as soloist; Symphony No. 4 ("Italian"), Mendelssohn; Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber, Hindemith.

Sunday afternoon—Serenade for Strings, Tschaikowski; Symphony No. 5 in E minor, Tschaikowski; Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-flat minor, Tschaikowski, Jorge Bolet, soloist.

Charles Munch will open Series B on Aug. 7, conducting a program consisting of Berlioz's Dramatic Symphony, "Romeo and Juliet," with chorus and soloists, Jennie Tourel among them.

The Saturday night concert will be a memorial to Koussevitsky conducted by Leonard Bernstein. The program will be Prelude to "Khovanstchina," Moussorgsky; Symphony No. 2, Haydn; Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection"), Mahler, with chorus and soloists including Jennie Tourel.

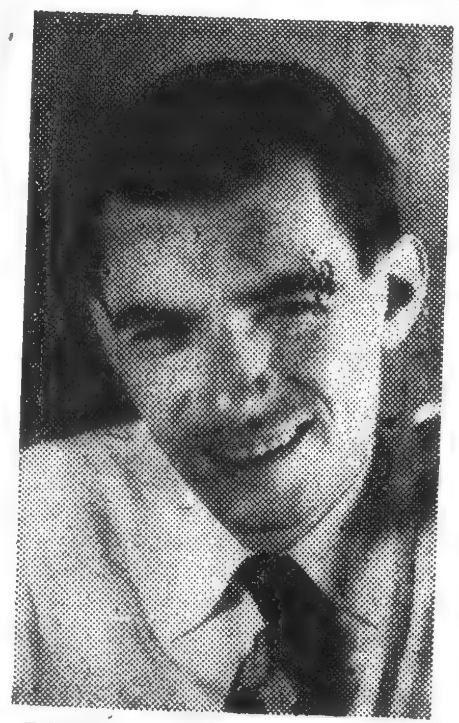
Sunday afternoon Munch will conduct Symphony No. 5 in B flat, Schubert; Adagio for Strings, Barber; "Don Quixote," Strauss; Concerto for Cello, No. 1, Gregor Piatigorsky, soloist; Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner.

The final series will have for its Friday night, Aug. 14, program Brahm's "Requiem," Lois Marshall, soloist, Munch conducting. Saturday night Leonard Bernstein will conduct Symphony No. 4 in A minor, Sibelius; "Sinfonia India," Chavez; Symphony No. 2 in D major, Brahms.

Closing the series Sunday afternoon will be the following program conducted by Munch: Symphony in B minor ("Unfinished"), Schubert; "Bourree Fantasque," Chabrier; Prelude and Love-Death, from "Tristan and Isolde," Wagner; Excerpts from Act II, "Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg," Wagner; Piano Concerto for the Left Hand, Ravel, Seymour Lipkin, soloist; "La Valse," Ravel.

Gretry's "Richard Coeur de Lion," written by the composer shortly before the French Revolution, will be the major production of the Music Center's opera department. It will be performed the nights of Aug. 10 and 11 in the Theater-Concert Hall. It will be sung by student casts in an English translation by Boris Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. Goldovsky will conduct a student orchestra. The opera's premiere was in Paris in 1784. The American premiere was in Boston in 1797.

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUN 28 1953



LEONARD ROSENMAN

LOUIS MENNINI

2 Ex-Servicemen Commissioned to Compose Operas at Tanglewood

LENOX, June 27—For the first time in its 10 years of assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers.

The plan, evolved by Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, and with the assistance of the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, is being put into effect at the start of the Berkshire Music Center's 11th six-week Summer session July 5. Goldovsky hopes it will bear fruit by the Summer of 1954, when the completed works will be presented during the Berkshire Festival concerts by student casts, technicians and orchestra.

From recommendations made by American composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein, commissions have been awarded to Leonard Rosenman, New York city, and to Louis Mennini, Rochester. Each composer will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitzky Music Foundation grant of $1500 towards the project.

Rosenman and Mennini will be guests of the Berkshire Music Center this season, and will begin work upon their operas, with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff.

Rosenman, a native of Brooklyn, began study of piano and analysis with Julius Herford in New York. During three years in the Air Transport Command in the Pacific, he did his first composing, music for special services radio shows. Upon his release from service, he studied with the late Arnold Schoenberg in Los Angeles, then with the University of California in Berkeley with composer Roger Sessions. During his five years on the West Coast he composed for radio programs. He spent last Summer on a Crofts scholarship at Tanglewood. He is married to the former Adele Bracker and they have two daughters, Daniele and Gabrielle.

Mennini, 32, was born in Erie, Penn., and studied music at Oberlin College, Ohio. After three years' service in the Air Force in England, he enrolled in 1945 in the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester, and studied composition under Howard Hanson and Bernard Rogers. He was graduated in 1947. Following a season teaching at the University of Texas, he returned to Rochester and has taught at Eastman since 1949. He won the National Institute of Arts and Letters Award, 1949.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Music Center Opens in 'Tanglewood'

IN THE Theater-Concert Hall in "Tanglewood," Lenox, Mass., this afternoon, the opening exercises of the 11th annual six-weeks session of Berkshire Music Center will be conducted. Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center; Henry B. Cabot, president, Board of Trustees, Boston Symphony Orchestra; Charles Munch, Music Center director and Boston Symphony conductor, and Aaron Copland, Berkshire Music Center assistant director, will extend greetings to students and guests. Hugh Ross will conduct the Student Chorus in "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson. Tea will be served in Tanglewood garden. Music Center concerts, with few exceptions, are in the Theater Concert Hall, Charles Munch directing.

THE SIX weekends of 15 concerts in Tanglewood will include three weekends of Bach, Mozart and Haydn programs preceding the major Berkshire Festival July 31-Aug. 16. Festival concerts by the 104-piece Boston Symphony, are given in The Shed. Conductor Munch will be on the podium for certain of these Festival concerts. Other conductors: Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein.

* * *

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
JUL 19 1953

MUSIC

records, has been a steady concert platform favorite ever since.

3. The piano concerto No. 1 was written in 1874, and received its premiere in Boston where the Boston Symphony played it on October 25, 1875, with Hans von Buelow as soloist. It was an instantaneous success and it is probably no idle boast that the concerto is one of the most brilliant pieces of piano-orchestra music written in the last century.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE
JUL 1 - 1953

Registration Mounting at Music Center

Student registration at the Berkshire Music center, the six-week summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony orchestra at Tanglewood, has passed the 366 mark with additional applications being processed daily. The full enrollment of 400 to 450 is expected for the opening of the Center's 11th season on Sunday afternoon.

* * *

CHARLES MUNCH, music director of the Boston Symphony orchestra, is director of the center with Aaron Copland as assistant director.

Foreign students registered include nine from Canada, one from Holland; one from South Korea; two from Mexico, one each from Sweden and France, two from Israel and one from Japan. Students have registered from 38 states and 92 students have been enrolled in the Tanglewood study group.

This Clipping From
ROCHESTER, N. Y.
TIMES-UNION
JUN 27 1953

Louis Mennini Wins Commission for Opera

Louis Mennini, instructor at Eastman School of Music, is one of the first two composers chosen to receive commissions for new operas from the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass.

LOUIS MENNINI

Selection of Mennini and Leonard Rosenman of New York City under the new plan was announced today by Boris Goldovsky, head of the Berkshire opera department. The center is maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Each composer has been awarded a $750 grant from the Koussevitzky Foundation and a Summer in residence at the music center. Each will compose a one-act opera suitable for student production at the school's Summer session in 1954.

Recommendations from composers Howard Hanson, director of Eastman School; Aaron Copland and Leonard Bernstein were the basis for the selection of Mennini and Rosenman.

* * *

MENNINI, 32, who lives at 50 Merriman St., holds Bachelor and Master of Music degrees from Eastman School, where he studied composition under Hanson and Bernard Rogers.

He taught for one season at the University of Texas before joining the Eastman faculty in 1949. That same year he won the National Institute of Arts and Letters award. His compositions include several orchestral works, chamber music and a one-act opera, "The Well."

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 15 1953

MUSIC NOTES

Events tonight: Stadium Symphony Orchestra, Alexander Smallens conducting, Ossy Renardy, violinist, Lewisohn Stadium, 8:30 o'clock; Guggenheim Memorial Concert, Goldman Band, Central Park, 8:30; "Don Pedro," Lemonade Opera, 141 West Thirteenth Street, 8:30; "Volpone," Punch Opera, Cherry Lane Theatre, 8:30; "La Traviata," La Puma Workshop, 270 West Eighty-ninth Street, 7:45.

The Dessoff Choirs Summer Sing at 8 o'clock at 130 West Fifty-sixth Street will be a reading of two Haydn works, the Te Deum and "St. Nicholas" Mass in G. Paul Calloway, choirmaster of the Washington Cathedral, will conduct.

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as soloists for the performance of Brahms' Requiem that the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Munch's direction, will present at Tanglewood on Friday, Aug. 14

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 3 - 1953

Tanglewood

Forty members of the staff of the Berkshire Music Center and Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this morning were present at the annual breakfast at Wheatleigh. Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Perry were guests of honor at the event, which each year precedes the opening of the school.

News of Music Wash Sunday Star June 21

Festivals on the Air

Berkshire Programs Are Among Those On CBS Summer Broadcast Schedule

By Alice Eversman

[illegible] important European [illegible] festivals that draw [illegible] f American tourists [illegible] will be heard, in [illegible] over the Columbia Broadcasting System this [illegible] Now, for the first [illegible] many seasons, an American event will be included [illegible] CBS's program of inter[illegible] l festivals. Four of the Berkshire Festival programs [illegible] sent out over a coast-to-coast network.

To facilitate the sending of the Berkshire programs on July 26, August 2, 9, and 16, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has changed the hour of [illegible] Sunday concerts from 3 [illegible] to 2:30 p.m. This will permit an hour and a half of the programs to be heard over the [illegible] with the remaining numbers, following the intermission, being played for the Tanglewood audience only.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUN 26 1953

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUN 21 1953

Berkshire Hills Afford Unspoiled Natural Beauty

Endless unspoiled natural beauty forms an ever-changing backdrop for the many recreation facilities afforded in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. Fine hotels, inns, camps, ranches, guest homes and tourist courts meeting every requirement complement outdoor activities.

One may be active or lazy, as whim dictates. Throughout the region there is swimming, sailing, fishing, riding, golfing, tennis, hiking, picnicking in the beautiful state forests, and many other participative sports, as well as those of the spectator variety.

Outstanding among the cultural advantages is the Berkshire Symphonic Festival under the direction of Charles Munch, July 5 through August 10. Mr. Munch and guest conductors will present a series of concerts of the great masters each week end. Throughout each week there are the activities of the Music Center with many lesser instrumental, choral and operatic performances presented daily.

Terpsichorean enthusiasts may attend the famous Ted Shawn's School of the Dance at Jacob's Pillow, Becket. Interpretive dance programs are presented afternoons and evenings, each Friday and Saturday from the first of July through Labor Day.

Stockbridge Playhouse, directed by William Miles, starts its season in mid-June, with productions extending to the first of September. The drama school operates concurrently. Well-known stage and screen stars appear regularly.

The nature lover will find plenty of interest. There is Pleasant Valley Bird and Wildflower Sanctuary, Lenox, one of the finest anywhere. Bartholomew's Cobble, Ashley Falls, is of unusual geologic formation and contains a great variety of wild flowers, shrubs and trees.

Mt. Greylock, North Adams, is the highest peak in the state and can be climbed via hiking trail or automobile road. The 16 state forests and reservations offer endless opportunity for recreation. Berkshire Garden Center, Stockbridge, opens with a May Day festival, and continues through the season, closing with its widely known October Harvest Festival.

Devotees of the Waltonian art will find plenty to occupy their time at the many lakes, ponds rivers and brooks. Trout fishing extends through July 31. All other fishing may be enjoyed throughout the season, including black bass, which becomes legal July 1.

In Sheffield there is a big trout hatchery where the visitor may catch his own dinner for a nominal fee.

There is scenic splendor as well as many recreation facilities in the 16 state forests and reservations. Camping sites are located on some, picnic areas at all, miles of riding and hiking trails -- swimming and fishing where there are good waters. Some of the natural beauties include: Tannery Falls, Savoy Mt. State Forest; Tipping Rock, Sandisfield State Forest, New Marlborough; Schermerhorn Gorge Cascades, October Mt. State Forest; Bash Bish Falls, Mt. Washington.

MUSIC FESTIVAL TICKETS OFFERED

Subscription Sale Surpassed Last Summer's

Stockbridge, June 25—The sale of series tickets for the shed concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the 1953 Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, has surpassed that of the summer of 1952, manager George E. Judd announces.

Subscribers for the 1953 Berkshire Festival purchased $59,000 in tickets for Series A, July 31-Aug. 1-2; for Series B, Aug. 7-8-9; for Series C, Aug. 14-15-16, an increase of more than $1000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the box office (telephone Lenox 600), which is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Commencing July 5, when the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center starts, the box office will also be open on Sundays. Mail orders for single concerts are also received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

Festival Opens July 11

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens on Saturday, July 11, at 8.30 p. m. with the first of a week-end pair of Bach concerts, tickets for which are $5 and $4. Seats for the July 18-19 brace of Mozart concerts, for which Isaac Stern is soloist, remain only at the $5 price. The Theater-Concert Hall preliminary concerts close July 25-26 with a program devoted to Haydn, and one to Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss, with Vera Zorina as narrator of Mr. Foss' cantata "A Parable of Death," at $5 and $4.

With the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing, under Mr. Munch's direction, the week-end shed concerts start on Friday, July 31, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor Aug. 2 afternoon, Leonard Bernstein guest conductor Aug. 8 and Aug. 15. Soloists include Zino Francescatti, Lukas Foss, Jorge Bolet, Jennie Tourel, Gregor Piatigorsky, Lois Marshall, Seymour Lipkin. Prices are: Box seats, $6.50; front sections, center, $5.50; front sections, sides, $4; rear sections, $3.50, $3 and $2.50.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 -

This Clipping From PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
JUL 6 - 1953

~~Lakeville Journal~~ 7/2

BOSTON TRIO TO GIVE CONCERT AT NORFOLK SCHOOL

The Norfolk Music School of Yale University will present the third concert of its 1953 summer series at Battell House in Norfolk on Wednesday, July 8, at 3:30 o'clock. It will be given by three members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Gottfried Wilfinger, violin, George Humphrey, viola, and Karl Zeise, violoncello, assisted by pianist Bruce Simonds, Director of the School.

Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Zeise are well known to Norfolk audiences, having played here before in appearances of the Tanglewood String Quartet, and Mr. Zeise taught Violoncello at the School for seasons. Mr. Wilfinger is new to the Norfolk Concerts.

The program will consist of Gabriel Fauré's Piano Quartet in C minor, a string trio by Dittersdorf, and the Brahms Piano Quartet in A major.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
JUL 5 - 1953

Tanglewood Concerts Begin Next Weekend

NEXT WEEKEND one of the most important Summer musical events in the world begins out in Lenox in the Western part of the state. This is the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood between Stockbridge and Lenox in the Berkshire hills. Festival concerts are played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the music director is Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony.

The Festival will open its 11th season next Saturday night, July 11. For the last three weekends of July the programs will be a concert Saturday night and one on Sunday afternoon in the concert hall. Programs will be devoted particularly to the work of Bach this coming weekend, Mozart on July 18-19; and Haydn, Richard Strauss, Milhaud and Lukas Foss on July 25-26.

The next series of concerts will be held in the Music Shed. Each series will have a concert on Friday night, Saturday night, and Sunday afternoon. The three series will be given on the weekends beginning July 31, Aug. 7 and Aug. 14. Guest composers will include Pierre Monteux on Aug. 1 and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15. Soloists during the performances will include Zino Francescatti in Mendelssohn's violin concerto on July 31; Lukas Foss in his own piano concerto on Aug. 2; Gregor Piatigorsky in Saint-Saens' cello concerto on Aug. 7; and Seymour Lipkin in Ravel's piano concerto for the left hand on Aug. 14.

In conjunction with the various concert series are the activities of the Berkshire Music Center, offering instruction in numerous phases of orchestral conducting, choral music, composition, opera, and instrumental music.

Tanglewood is a beautiful setting for the Berkshire Festival. It is an estate of 210 acres given in 1936 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Located on the estate are the main house where administrative work is carried on, the Music Shed seating 6000, the Theater-Concert Hall, rehearsal stage, formal gardens, and the Hawthorne Cottage, a replica of the house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne lived at Tanglewood.

Tanglewood

Tonight Eagle July 15

8.30—Chamber music concert by Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Theatre-concert hall. Open to Friends of Mrs. Coolidge and the Berkshire Music Center.

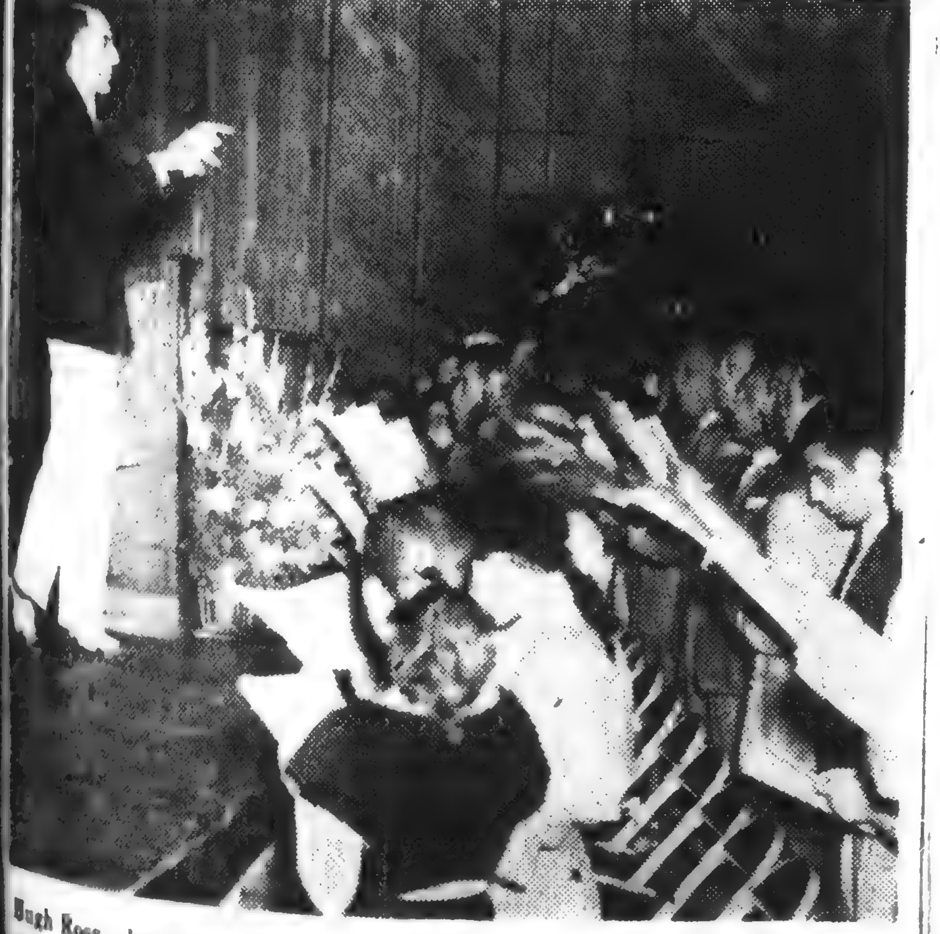
German, Italian Baroque Music Saturday Afternoon at 4

An unscheduled event, open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will be a program of German and Italian Baroque music Saturday afternoon at 4 by the Tanglewood Study Group. The concert will be conducted in the Barn by Ingolf Dahl, member of the faculty of the University of Southern California, who heads the department, and his assistant, Miss Florence A. Dunn of Williamstown.

The program will include "Providebam Dominum" by Orlando di Lasso; "In Ecclesiis," by Giovanni Gabrieli; "In Dulci Jubilo," by Dietrich Buxtehude; "Canzon Cornette," by Samuel Scheidt; "Oh Musica," by Paul Peuerl, and "Symphonia Sacra," by Henrich Schultz.

One of the performing students is Mrs. Marilyn Drake, who teaches in Bennington (Vt.) public schools and plays with the Berkshire Choral Society and other groups in local concerts.

Leads Festival Chorus



Hugh Ross, choral conductor, who will be seen leading the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson during opening exercises of the school this afternoon.

Screening TV

Ben Grauer Can't Heed Advice to 'Keep Quiet'

By LEO MISHKIN

He has also reported on the coronation, the National Open Golf Tournament, the Berkshire Music Festival, the National Geographic archeological expedition to Panama, the inauguration of President Eisenhower and an NBC documentary series about Russia titled "Malice in Wonderland."

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Charles Munch Returns Today from Europe

Lenox, Mass.—(UP)—Conductor Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra concludes a month's vacation in Paris, today when he flies here to assume his Summer duties as conductor of the 1935 Berkshire Music Festival.

Munch will address opening exercises of the Summer School of Music at Tanglewood Sunday and open the preliminary concerts of the Festival by conducting Symphony members in two all-Bach programs July 11 and 12.

[174]

News of Music Wash. Sunday Star June 21

Festivals on the Air

Berkshire Programs Are Among Those On CBS Summer Broadcast Schedule

By Alice Eversman

The important European music festivals that draw crowds of American tourists each year, will be heard, in part at least, over the Columbia Broadcasting System this summer. Now, for the first time in many seasons, an American event will be included in CBS's program of international festivals. Four of the Berkshire Festival programs will be sent out over a coast-to-coast network.

To facilitate the sending of the Berkshire programs on July 26, August 2, 9, and 16, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has changed the hour of the Sunday concerts from 3 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. This will permit an hour and a half of the programs to be heard over the air with the remaining numbers, following the intermission, being played for the Tanglewood audience only.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUN 21 1953

Berkshire Hills Afford Unspoiled Natural Beauty

Endless unspoiled natural beauty forms an ever-changing backdrop for the many recreation facilities afforded in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. Fine hotels, inns, camps, ranches, guest homes and tourist courts meeting every requirement complement outdoor activities.

One may be active or lazy, as whim dictates. Throughout the region there is swimming, sailing, fishing, riding, golfing, tennis, hiking, picnicking in the beautiful state forests, and many other participative sports, as well as those of the spectator variety.

Outstanding among the cultural advantages is the Berkshire Symphonic Festival under the direction of Charles Munch, July 5 through August 10. Mr. Munch and guest conductors will present a series of concerts of the great masters each week end. Throughout each week there are the activities of the Music Center with many lesser instrumental, choral and operatic performances presented daily.

Terpsichorean enthusiasts may attend the famous Ted Shawn's School of the Dance at Jacob's Pillow, Becket. Interpretive dance programs are presented afternoons and evenings, each Friday and Saturday from the first of July through Labor Day.

Stockbridge Playhouse, directed by William Miles, starts its season in mid-June, with productions extending to the first of September. The drama school operates concurrently. Well-known stage and screen stars appear regularly.

The nature lover will find plenty of interest. There is Pleasant Valley Bird and Wildflower Sanctuary, Lenox, one of the finest anywhere. Bartholomew's Cobble, Ashley Falls, is of unusual geologic formation and contains a great variety of wild flowers, shrubs and trees.

Mt. Greylock, North Adams, is the highest peak in the state and can be climbed via hiking trail or automobile road. The 16 state forests and reservations offer endless opportunity for recreation. Berkshire Garden Center, Stockbridge, opens with a May Day festival, and continues through the season, closing with its widely known October Harvest Festival.

Devotees of the Waltonian art will find plenty to occupy their time at the many lakes, ponds, rivers and brooks. Trout fishing extends through July 31. All other fishing may be enjoyed throughout the season, including black bass, which becomes legal July 1.

In Sheffield there is a big trout hatchery where the visitor may catch his own dinner for a nominal fee.

There is scenic splendor as well as many recreation facilities in the 16 state forests and reservations. Camping sites are located on some, picnic areas at all, miles of riding and hiking trails — swimming and fishing where there are good waters. Some of the natural beauties include: Tannery Falls, Savoy Mt. State Forest; Tipping Rock, Sandisfield State Forest, New Marlborough; Schermerhorn Gorge Cascades, October Mt. State Forest; Bash Bish Falls, Mt. Washington.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUN 26 1953

MUSIC FESTIVAL TICKETS OFFERED

Subscription Sale Surpassed Last Summer's

Stockbridge, June 25—The sale of series tickets for the shed concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the ~~1953~~ Berkshire Festival, at Tanglewood, Lenox, has surpassed that of the summer of 1952, manager George E. Judd announces.

Subscribers for the 1953 Berkshire Festival purchased $59,000 in tickets for Series A, July 31-Aug. 1-2; for Series B, Aug. 7-8-9; for Series C, Aug. 14-15-16, an increase of more than $1000 from last season's advance sale. The subscription sale, officially over June 1, was extended 10 days this year for the convenience of Berkshire County residents.

All remaining tickets for the Tanglewood season are now on sale at the box office (telephone Lenox 600), which is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Commencing July 5, when the 11th season of the Berkshire Music Center starts, the box office will also be open on Sundays. Mail orders for single concerts are also received; checks and money orders are payable to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., and should be accompanied by a stamped-self-addressed envelope for return of tickets.

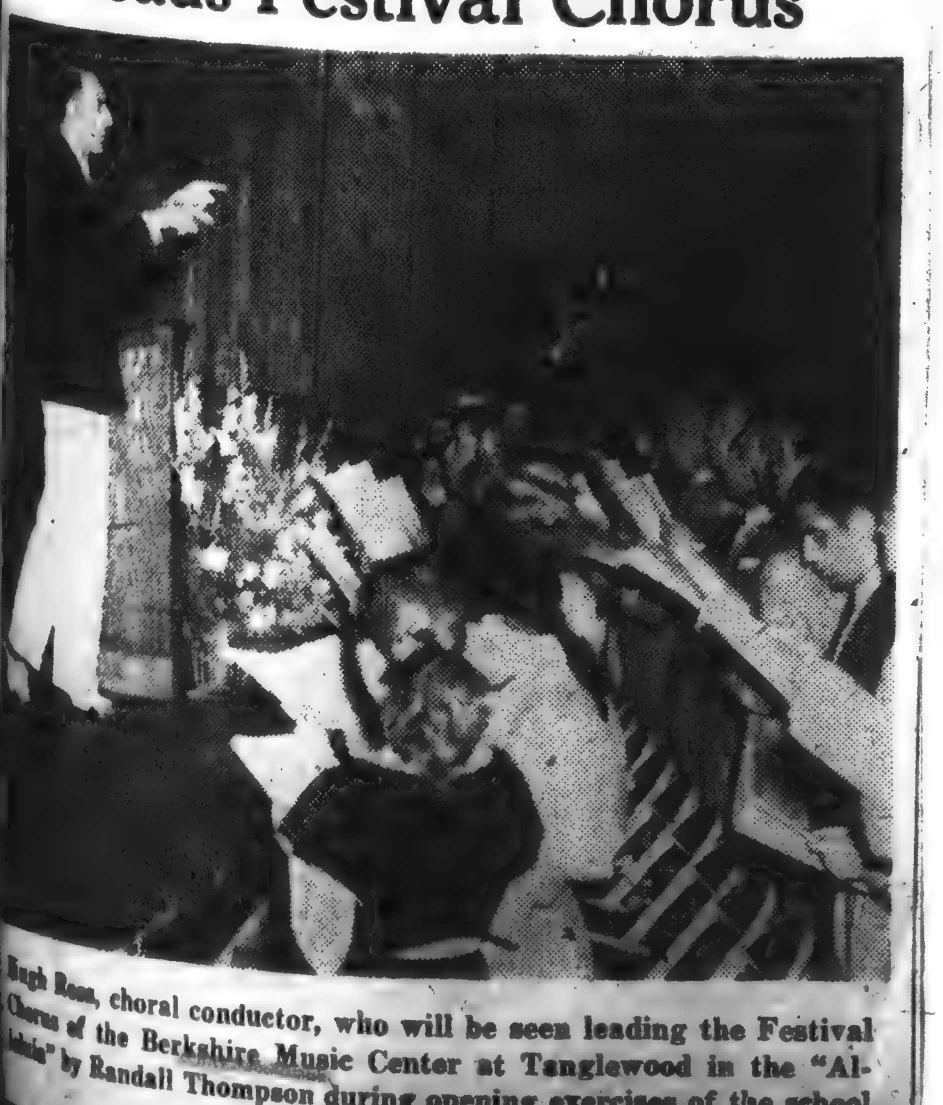
Festival Opens July 11

With Charles Munch, music director, conducting members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival opens on Saturday, July 11, at 8.30 p. m. with the first of a week-end pair of Bach concerts, tickets for which are $5 and $4. Seats for the July 18-19 brace of Mozart concerts, for which Isaac Stern is soloist, remain only at the $5 price. The Theater-Concert Hall preliminary concerts close July 25-26 with a program devoted to Haydn, and one to Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss, with Vera Zorina as narrator of Mr. Foss' cantata "A Parable of Death," at $5 and $4.

With the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing, under Mr. Munch's direction, the week-end shed concerts start on Friday, July 31, with Pierre Monteux as guest conductor Aug. 2 afternoon, Leonard Bernstein guest conductor Aug. 8 and Aug. 15. Soloists include Zino Francescatti, Lukas Foss, Jorge Bolet, Jennie Tourel, Gregor Piatigorsky, Lois Marshall, Seymour Lipkin. Prices are: Box seats, $6.50; front sections, center, $5.50; front sections, sides, $4; rear sections, $3.50, $3 and $2.50.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Leads Festival Chorus



Hugh Ross, choral conductor, who will be seen leading the Festival Chorus of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson during opening exercises of the school this afternoon.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
JUL 5 - 1953

Tanglewood Concerts Begin Next Weekend

NEXT WEEKEND one of the most important Summer musical events in the world begins out in Lenox in the Western part of the state. This is the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood between Stockbridge and Lenox in the Berkshire hills. Festival concerts are played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the music director is Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony.

The Festival will open its 11th season next Saturday night, July 11. For the last three weekends of July the programs will be a concert Saturday night and one on Sunday afternoon in the concert hall. Programs will be devoted particularly to the work of Bach this coming weekend, Mozart on July 18-19; and Haydn, Richard Strauss, Milhaud and Lukas Foss on July 25-26.

The next series of concerts will be held in the Music Shed. Each series will have a concert on Friday night, Saturday night, and Sunday afternoon. The three series will be given on the weekends beginning July 31, Aug. 7 and Aug. 14. Guest composers will include Pierre Monteux on Aug. 1 and Leonard Bernstein on Aug. 9 and 15. Soloists during the performances will include Zino Francescatti in Mendelssohn's violin concerto on July 31; Lukas Foss in his own piano concerto on Aug. 2; Gregor Piatigorsky in Saint-Saens' cello concerto on Aug. 7; and Seymour Lipkin in Ravel's piano concerto for the left hand on Aug. 14.

In conjunction with the various concert series are the activities of the Berkshire Music Center, offering instruction in numerous phases of orchestral conducting, choral music, composition, opera, and instrumental music.

Tanglewood is a beautiful setting for the Berkshire Festival. It is an estate of 210 acres given in 1936 to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Located on the estate are the main house where administrative work is carried on, the Music Shed seating 6000, the Theater-Concert Hall, rehearsal stage, formal gardens, and the Hawthorne Cottage, a replica of the house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne lived at Tanglewood.

This Clipping From
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
INQUIRER
JUL 6 - 1953

~~Lakeville Journal~~ 7/2

BOSTON TRIO TO GIVE CONCERT AT NORFOLK SCHOOL

The Norfolk Music School of Yale University will present the third concert of its 1953 summer series at Battell House in Norfolk on Wednesday, July 8, at 3:30 o'clock. It will be given by three members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Gottfried Wilfinger, violin, George Humphrey, viola, and Karl Zeise, violoncello, assisted by pianist Bruce Simonds, Director of the School.

Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Zeise are well known to Norfolk audiences, having played here before in appearances of the Tanglewood String Quartet, and Mr. Zeise taught Violoncello at the School for seasons. Mr. Wilfinger is new to the Norfolk Concerts.

The program will consist of Gabriel Fauré's Piano Quartet in C minor, a string trio by Dittersdorf, and the Brahms Piano Quartet in A major.

Tanglewood

Tonight Eagle July 15

8.30—Chamber music concert by Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, Theatre-concert hall. Open to Friends of Mrs. Coolidge and the Berkshire Music Center.

German, Italian Baroque Music Saturday Afternoon at 4

An unscheduled event, open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, will be a program of German and Italian Baroque music Saturday afternoon at 4 by the Tanglewood Study Group. The concert will be conducted in the Barn by Ingolf Dahl, member of the faculty of the University of Southern California, who heads the department, and his assistant, Miss Florence A. Dunn of Williamstown.

The program will include "Providebam Dominum" by Orlando di Lasso; "In Ecclesiis," by Giovanni Gabrieli; "In Dulci Jubilo," by Dietrich Buxtehude; "Canzon Cornette," by Samuel Scheidt; "Oh Musica," by Paul Peuerl, and "Symphonia Sacra," by Henrich Schultz.

One of the performing students is Mrs. Marilyn Drake, who teaches in Bennington (Vt.) public schools and plays with the Berkshire Choral Society and other groups in local concerts.

Screening TV

Ben Grauer Can't Heed Advice to 'Keep Quiet'

By LEO MISHKIN

He has also reported on the coronation, the National Open Golf Tournament, the Berkshire Music Festival, the National Geographic archeological expedition to Panama, the inauguration of President Eisenhower and an NBC documentary series about Russia titled "Malice in Wonderland."

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Charles Munch Returns Today from Europe

Lenox, Mass.—(UP)—Conductor Charles Munch of the Boston Symphony Orchestra concludes a month's vacation in Paris, today when he flies here to assume his Summer duties as conductor of the 1935 Berkshire Music Festival.

Munch will address opening exercises of the Summer School of Music at Tanglewood Sunday and open the preliminary concerts of the Festival by conducting Symphony members in two all-Bach programs July 11 and 12.

[174]

Holiday June 1953

The pastoral Berkshires and a school for musical geniuses combine to make a

TANGLEWOOD TALE

by JAMES CERRUTI

FOR six weeks every summer, the capital of American Music moves out of whatever great city you may think it's located in and settles in a couple of small towns in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. Lenox and Stockbridge (combined population, 6000) share this honor because a place called Tanglewood straddles their border.

Music has probably been given no finer setting since Greek choruses intoned among the hills of Hellas. Tanglewood's week-end summer concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra are the music world's closest collaboration with nature. Listeners, sprawled on blankets on the vast lawn outside the orchestra Shed, have an experience which woos the ear while delighting the eye with a vista of incomparable beauty.

Tanglewood is held in a verdant cup of the Berkshires. Above and all around are the steeply arched wooded hills; below, glimpsed through clumps of lofty evergreens, elms and oaks, is the shimmering blue of Stockbridge Bowl, or Lake Mahkeenac as the old-timers prefer to call it. The mountain air is cool and clean, and as you lie on the velvety grass, listening to Beethoven or Bartók, you breathe the fragrance of pines that soar like a long high note above you. Add all this to the charms of great music and you realize why music lovers—and just plain lovers—have for the past nineteen summers been making week-end pilgrimages to the Berkshire Festival.

There is something else that makes Tanglewood indisputably the pastoral music capital of the United States. It has the only school in America that can justly be called a school for geniuses. It is this country's only school maintained by a major symphony orchestra and taught by its members. It is a place where musicians go for a vacation, and for six weeks work harder than ever before in their lives. Yet it gives no examinations, no grades, no college credits, no formal music "lessons." In fact it shouldn't even be called a school—which is why its founder, the late Serge Koussevitzky, named it The Berkshire Music Center. To him its essence was not formal study but "a summer of living and working in music."

Continued on Page 76

here is the cream of hundreds of applications and auditions and every member is on a full ($150) tuition scholarship. Their scholarships—and, indeed, the whole venture of the school—are financed by the Boston Orchestra, a fund donated by RCA, and contributions by anybody who wants to be a Friend of the Berkshire Music Center.

The orchestra is having a slightly frenetic time this particular day because in the absence of Leonard Bernstein, head of the conducting section, Bob Mandell, student conductor of Gershwin's Concerto in F, has jumped at his chance to throw in some unorthodox pizzicatos.

Bob Mandell is twenty-three, stocky, curly-haired, volatile. In 1952 he shared with the two other "active" conductors, Lorin Maazel and Elyakum Shapira, what is probably the Center's most sought-after privilege: a summer of individual conducting MUSIC could have no finer setting anywhere than Tanglewood; nor could this string quartet find surroundings more likely to make practice a pleasure. Stately trees, clean mountain air, verdant lawns and Lake Mahkeenac in the distance seem ready to inspire some new Pastoral Symphony.

to get the orchestra in beautiful moonlit
The fields are our breath rises to alone with infin-a violin in the next to him.
Bob Mandell,
boring violinist,
and spreads play soft.'" ting. Bob ob-ok hysterical.
my arms too
ith them tied
elt. Then I'm with the stick.
a high table—own too far I

hearsed the Lorin Maazel rough Tchai-Juliet. He is the ewood. Once
ed his ear and atest in Amer-he has been jor orchestras
nd when Pierre

Monteux saw him at Tanglewood, he asked him, "How you are a student? I have considered you a professor of conducting since the age of twelve." He conducts from memory, without a score, and has done so since he was a tot. It's odds-on that he will be one of the great American conductors of the '60's.

The third active conductor, Elyakum Shapira, came to Tanglewood from Israel, where he won a conducting contest judged by Leonard Bernstein. He has the characterful, high-cheekboned face of a Tataric Abraham Lincoln. When he "gets his orchestra," he will be the first Israeli-born conductor in the world.

Elyakum was conducting Brahms Tragic Overture. The evening before their big Shed concert I ran into him and Bob Mandell, both very downcast. Elyakum had a telegram from Israel. His father had had a stroke that affected his speech.

"My father unable to express himself!" Elyakum was stunned. "I can't believe it. My father! Such a wonderful talker!"

Continued on Page 80

Like the conducting course, the composition department is dedicated to the nurturing not merely of talent but of genius. Its head, Aaron Copland, is probably America's foremost living composer. Tanglewood guest composers have included such giants as Hindemith, Honegger and Milhaud. This year the guest will be Carlos Chavez. Last year and the year before, it was Luigi Dallapiccola of Italy, noted for his two tragic operas, The Prisoner and Night Flight. The third composer last year was Tanglewood alumnus Lukas Foss, whose piano concerto was voted the $1000 award by the members of the Boston Orchestra as their favorite new work of 1951.

Students of composition—each teacher has about half a dozen—have the benefit not only of their teachers but of each other. In their weekly Composers Forum they subject their work to that special merciless scrutiny which only one artist can inflict on another. There's only one small trouble—practically none of them can compose while at Tanglewood. Too noisy. Even teacher Copland suffers: "You can't hear your own music unless you stop listening to others'," he says.

I went to both a Foss and a Dallapiccola composition class. Typical of the informality at Tanglewood, the Foss class was held in the clubhouse, a ramshackle building on Lake Mahkeenac. The class centered around a battered grand that all winter long had stood knee-deep in water. It was tinkly and out of tune and yet to hear Foss play the Gloria of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis was a moving experience. It affected the students hypnotically; timidly, one by one, they began to hum until finally they were thundering in chorus. It wasn't merely that Foss was a great pianist (he used to be pianist with the Boston Symphony); it seemed rather that the music was not so much coming out of the piano as out of him.

Foss is modest. I asked him what he'd done with the $1000 the Boston Orchestra had given for his piano concerto. "I used the money to write the damn thing over again. There should be prizes like that for all promising works—so that they could all be done over again."

Dallapiccola, who teaches at the Conservatory of Music in Florence, is a hatchet-faced little man of forty-nine with genial buck teeth and great vivacity. His class was remarkable enough, conducted in French and simultaneously translated into English by Lorin Maazel's wife, Mimi. But the high light came after class when a student asked for some parting advice. "You must, my dear stoo-dent, you must never be tired," said Dallapiccola, reverting to his halting, emphatic English. "As Ravel has said: You must wor-r-rk every day. God rested one day—that is why everything is wrong here." He beamed, then held up a hand abruptly. "I am not in accord with Ravel—God maka no mistake. But . . . this is very good story for students . . . for teachers also."

Composers and conductors are impressive, but if you're looking for glamour the highest concentration is in the opera department. Here, surrounded by beautiful women with beautiful voices, you are seeing something which brings opera aficionados halfway round the world: American or world "firsts," which the big opera companies don't put on because they are sure-fire deficit builders. That is why Boris Goldovsky, who as director of the New England Opera Theater has to stage his share of old stand-bys, treasures his busman's holidays. At Tanglewood he has mounted American premières of many now-famous works, such as Britten's Peter Grimes.

Goldovsky wants to Americanize opera. That means not only performing works by Americans but doing foreign works in English, using American singers and developing an American style of singing. Italians may be best suited to Verdi, Germans to Wagner—but, at Tanglewood, Americans, in true American vein, must be best suited to everything.

The twenty or so active singers who perform in complete operas, and the thirty associate singers who stage duets, trios and such in "workshops," are chosen from some 500 auditions which Goldovsky gives in the spring. All actives get tuition scholarships, and their experience may vary from having sung at the Met, like Irene Jordan, to having been on the professional stage only once in her life, like Shirley Winston.

Irene and Shirley had the two meatiest roles in Mozart's Titus, the major opera production of the 1952 Tanglewood season. Both girls got raves and both are beauties. Life once called Irene "the Met's prettiest star." But strawberry blonde Shirley occasionally finds her beauty a handicap; it nearly lost her the role in Titus—the part of a young man, Sextus. "My dear," Goldovsky told her, "all mezzo-sopranos should be born looking like boys, and you are so feminine."

Titus and Bernstein's new Trouble in Tahiti were given in the 1200-seat

Continued on Page 119

Continued from Page 78

"Funny," Bob Mandell told me after Elyakum had gone, "tomorrow he conducts the Tragic Overture; tonight there is a tragedy. I remember something like this before. A girl at Juilliard practiced all year to sing Mahler's Songs on the Death of Children—and then she lost her own baby. She couldn't go on."

Elyakum did go on. There was something special and moving in the performance.

Since the death of Koussevitzky in the spring of 1951, the man who comes closest to being Mr. Tanglewood is thirty-four-year-old Leonard Bernstein. He has succeeded to Koussevitzky's favorite job, head of the orchestral conducting course. Charles Munch, successor to Koussevitzky as conductor of the Boston Symphony, has also followed Koussevitzky as director of the Center, but Munch is a shy scholar and his presence is not felt in the same way Koussevitzky's was, or as Bernstein's is today. When Bernstein is "on campus" there's an extra crackle in the air. He rushes about trailing students like a red-hot comet. Of course, he is flamboyant. He is a genius, he knows it, and he wants the world to know it.

The kids at the Center enjoy this "character" he creates. "Next thing," one of them observed, "he'll be playing Hamlet." But such talk doesn't dim student respect for Bernstein the musician and teacher. Elyakum Shapira tells with awe a story of the Bernstein musical mind: "One of the things I conducted here was the Beethoven Violin Concerto. Of the five hundred measures there were only two I felt unsure of. Bernstein listened to it all, said, 'Wonderful—but there are two measures. . . .' They were exactly the measures I'd been worried about."

Sitting room in Bernstein's conducting classes is at a premium. Fifty to a hundred listeners are likely to turn up. Put Bernstein with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, who occasionally drops in, and the conducting class becomes a two-ring circus. With Goldovsky bellowing Don José and Bernstein shrieking Carmen, they did an uproarious off-pitch scene from the Bizet opera. Each conducting student got a chance to take the stick in the face of this mighty bedlam. His job: to try to follow the singers despite their awfulness and to bring the orchestra, represented by a pianist, along with him. It was a situation, Goldovsky assured them, that all opera conductors sooner or later face.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

Berkshire Festival Lists Program For Concert Today

The 16th Berkshire Festival began its six weekends of concerts last night in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony in the first of two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. The second concert will take place this afternoon at 2:30 P. M.

A few $5 seats remain for today's concert, and a general admission at $2 is sold on the day of each concert. Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the lawns of Tanglewood; grounds are open to concert-goers at 6 P. M. for the evening concerts and at 12:30 P. M. for afternoon performances. A cafeteria on the grounds is also open.

The program for this afternoon's concert will include the Bach Cantata Number 28, with the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center and Soloists: Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Also on the program will be the Bach Suite Number Two, in B Minor, for flute and strings, with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and the Bach Suite Number Three in D Major.

General admission only is available for the pair of July 18-19 Mozart concerts; and a limited number of seats at $4 and $5 remain for the July 25 all-Haydn concert and the July 26 performance of 20th Century composers, which includes works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," which the composer will conduct, with Vera Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist, and the Berkshire Festival chorus assisting.

The major Berkshire Festival, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, opens in Tanglewood's huge Music Shed July 31.

Tickets in all price ranges are available for the series of concerts in the Shed, at Tanglewood, to be held July 31, August 1 and 2, August 7, 8, and 9, and 14, and 15, and 16. Prices for the Shed concerts are $6.50, $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3, and $2.50.

day he's trying to get the orchestra in a mood. 'It's a beautiful moonlit night,' he tells them. 'The fields are clad in snow, your breath rises to heaven, you are alone with infinity . . .' 'Eh?' says a violin in the back row to the fellow next to him. 'What's he say?'" Bob Mandell, becoming the neighboring violinist, hunches his shoulders and spreads his palms: "'He says, play soft.'"

Of his own conducting, Bob observes: "I tend to look hysterical. Lenny told me I raise my arms too high, so I practice with them tied to my sides with a belt. Then I'm coming too far down with the stick. I cured that in front of a high table—every time I came down too far I skinned my knuckles."

After Bob had rehearsed the Gershwin Concerto, Lorin Maazel ran the orchestra through Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet. He is the Wunderkind of Tanglewood. Once a music magazine tested his ear and claimed it was the greatest in America. At twenty-three he has been guest-conducting major orchestras for fifteen years, and when Pierre Monteux saw him at Tanglewood, he asked him, "How you are a student? I have considered you a professor of conducting since the age of twelve." He conducts from memory, without a score, and has done so since he was a tot. It's odds-on that he will be one of the great American conductors of the '60's.

The third active conductor, Elyakum Shapira, came to Tanglewood from Israel, where he won a conducting contest judged by Leonard Bernstein. He has the characterful, high-cheekboned face of a Tataric Abraham Lincoln. When he "gets his orchestra," he will be the first Israeli-born conductor in the world.

Elyakum was conducting Brahms Tragic Overture. The evening before their big Shed concert I ran into him and Bob Mandell, both very downcast. Elyakum had a telegram from Israel. His father had had a stroke that affected his speech.

"My father unable to express himself!" Elyakum was stunned. "I can't believe it. My father! Such a wonderful talker!"

Continued on Page 80

Continued from Page 78

"Funny," Bob Mandell told me after Elyakum had gone, "tomorrow he conducts the Tragic Overture; tonight there is a tragedy. I remember something like this before. A girl at Juilliard practiced all year to sing Mahler's Songs on the Death of Children—and then she lost her own baby. She couldn't go on."

Elyakum did go on. There was something special and moving in the performance.

Since the death of Koussevitzky in the spring of 1951, the man who comes closest to being Mr. Tanglewood is thirty-four-year-old Leonard Bernstein. He has succeeded to Koussevitzky's favorite job, head of the orchestral conducting course. Charles Munch, successor to Koussevitzky as conductor of the Boston Symphony, has also followed Koussevitzky as director of the Center, but Munch is a shy scholar and his presence is not felt in the same way Koussevitzky's was, or as Bernstein's is today. When Bernstein is "on campus" there's an extra crackle in the air. He rushes about trailing students like a red-hot comet. Of course, he is flamboyant. He is a genius, he knows it, and he wants the world to know it.

The kids at the Center enjoy this "character" he creates. "Next thing," one of them observed, "he'll be playing Hamlet." But such talk doesn't dim student respect for Bernstein the musician and teacher. Elyakum Shapira tells with awe a story of the Bernstein musical mind: "One of the things I conducted here was the Beethoven Violin Concerto. Of the five hundred measures there were only two I felt unsure of. Bernstein listened to it all, said, 'Wonderful—but there are two measures. . . .' They were exactly the measures I'd been worried about."

Sitting room in Bernstein's conducting classes is at a premium. Fifty to a hundred listeners are likely to turn up. Put Bernstein with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department, who occasionally drops in, and the conducting class becomes a two-ring circus. With Goldovsky bellowing Don José and Bernstein shrieking Carmen, they did an uproarious off-pitch scene from the Bizet opera. Each conducting student got a chance to take the stick in the face of this mighty bedlam. His job: to try to follow the singers despite their awfulness and to bring the orchestra, represented by a pianist, along with him. It was a situation, Goldovsky assured them, that all opera conductors sooner or later face.

Like the conducting course, the composition department is dedicated to the nurturing not merely of talent but of genius. Its head, Aaron Copland, is probably America's foremost living composer. Tanglewood guest composers have included such giants as Hindemith, Honegger and Milhaud. This year the guest will be Carlos Chavez. Last year and the year before, it was Luigi Dallapiccola of Italy, noted for his two tragic operas, The Prisoner and Night Flight. The third composer last year was Tanglewood alumnus Lukas Foss, whose piano concerto was voted the $1000 award by the members of the Boston Orchestra as their favorite new work of 1951.

Students of composition—each teacher has about half a dozen—have the benefit not only of their teachers but of each other. In their weekly Composers Forum they subject their work to that special merciless scrutiny which only one artist can inflict on another. There's only one small trouble—practically none of them can compose while at Tanglewood. Too noisy. Even teacher Copland suffers: "You can't hear your own music unless you stop listening to others'," he says.

I went to both a Foss and a Dallapiccola composition class. Typical of the informality at Tanglewood, the Foss class was held in the clubhouse, a ramshackle building on Lake Mahkeenac. The class centered around a battered grand that all winter long had stood knee-deep in water. It was tinkly and out of tune and yet to hear Foss play the Gloria of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis was a moving experience. It affected the students hypnotically; timidly, one by one, they began to hum until finally they were thundering in chorus. It wasn't merely that Foss was a great pianist (he used to be pianist with the Boston Symphony); it seemed rather that the music was not so much coming out of the piano as out of him.

Foss is modest. I asked him what he'd done with the $1000 the Boston Orchestra had given for his piano concerto. "I used the money to write the damn thing over again. There should be prizes like that for all promising works—so that they could all be done over again."

Dallapiccola, who teaches at the Conservatory of Music in Florence, is a hatchet-faced little man of forty-nine with genial buck teeth and great vivacity. His class was remarkable enough, conducted in French and simultaneously translated into English by Lorin Maazel's wife, Mimi. But the high light came after class when a student asked for some parting advice. "You must, my dear stoo-dent, you must never be tired," said Dallapiccola, reverting to his halting, emphatic English. "As Ravel has said: You must wor-r-rk every day. God rested one day—that is why everything is wrong here." He beamed, then held up a hand abruptly. "I am not in accord with Ravel—God maka no mistake. But . . . this is very good story for students . . . for teachers also."

Composers and conductors are impressive, but if you're looking for glamour the highest concentration is in the opera department. Here, surrounded by beautiful women with beautiful voices, you are seeing something which brings opera aficionados halfway round the world: American or world "firsts," which the big opera companies don't put on because they are sure-fire deficit builders. That is why Boris Goldovsky, who as director of the New England Opera Theater has to stage his share of old stand-bys, treasures his busman's holidays. At Tanglewood he has mounted American premières of many now-famous works, such as Britten's Peter Grimes.

Goldovsky wants to Americanize opera. That means not only performing works by Americans but doing foreign works in English, using American singers and developing an American style of singing. Italians may be best suited to Verdi, Germans to Wagner—but, at Tanglewood, Americans, in true American vein, must be best suited to everything.

The twenty or so active singers who perform in complete operas, and the thirty associate singers who stage duets, trios and such in "workshops," are chosen from some 500 auditions which Goldovsky gives in the spring. All actives get tuition scholarships, and their experience may vary from having sung at the Met, like Irene Jordan, to having been on the professional stage only once in her life, like Shirley Winston.

Irene and Shirley had the two meatiest roles in Mozart's Titus, the major opera production of the 1952 Tanglewood season. Both girls got raves and both are beauties. Life once called Irene "the Met's prettiest star." But strawberry blonde Shirley occasionally finds her beauty a handicap; it nearly lost her the role in Titus—the part of a young man, Sextus. "My dear," Goldovsky told her, "all mezzo-sopranos should be born looking like boys, and you are so feminine."

Titus and Bernstein's new Trouble in Tahiti were given in the 1200-seat

Continued on Page 149

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER

JUL 12

Berkshire Festival Lists Program For Concert Today

The 16th Berkshire Festival began its six weekends of concerts last night in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., with Charles Munch conducting the Boston Symphony in the first of two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. The second concert will take place this afternoon at 2:30 P. M.

A few $5 seats remain for today's concert, and a general admission at $2 is sold on the day of each concert. Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the lawns of Tanglewood; grounds are open to concert-goers at 6 P. M. for the evening concerts and at 12:30 P. M. for afternoon performances. A cafeteria on the grounds is also open.

The program for this afternoon's concert will include the Bach Cantata Number 28, with the Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center and Soloists; Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor, and Mac Morgan, bass. Also on the program will be the Bach Suite Number Two, in B Minor, for flute and strings, with Doriot Anthony as soloist, and the Bach Suite Number Three in D Major.

General admission only is available for the pair of July 18-19 Mozart concerts; and a limited number of seats at $4 and $5 remain for the July 25 all-Haydn concert and the July 26 performance of 20th Century composers, which includes works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," which the composer will conduct, with Vera Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist, and the Berkshire Festival chorus assisting.

The major Berkshire Festival, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, opens in Tanglewood's huge Music Shed July 31.

Tickets in all price ranges are still available for the series of concerts in the Shed, at Tanglewood, to be held July 31, August 1 and 2, August 7, 8, and 9, and 14, and 15, and 16. Prices for the shed concerts are $6.50, $5.50, $4, $3.50, $3, and $2.50.

TANGLEWOOD TALE

Continued from Page 81

Theatre-Concert Hall with student-designed costumes and scenery. Titus even used a projector that simulated the burning of Rome. Minor operas, on the other hand, are often given outdoors in the formal gardens with Elizabethan simplicity, while staging of single scenes is done on the outdoor Rehearsal Stage, with most of the audience sitting on the grass. "Basic costume" is likely to be the rule—a sash and a wooden dagger for the hero, and Bernstein's cape borrowed for the villain.

Of all the operas given at Tanglewood last year, Bernstein's jazzy, haunting Trouble in Tahiti, about the breakup of a suburban marriage, was probably the most polished theatrically. It and its vivacious red-haired star, Beverly Wolff, were obviously headed for Broadway or TV, not because they weren't up to opera but because they had succeeded in making opera popular. Before Bev left Tanglewood she was signed up by an Atlanta night club.

Besides opera, the Center has a department of choral music headed by Hugh Ross, director of New York's Schola Cantorum. This consists of a group studying choral conducting, a Small Choir of experienced voices (which had Miss Rhode Island of 1952 among its members), and the Festival Chorus, with the Small Choir as its core plus almost everybody else at Tanglewood.

All these departments—instrumental, composition, opera and choral—are as hard to get into as a bank vault. But if you can read music and want to come to Tanglewood for a musical vacation of two weeks, four weeks or six weeks, the Tanglewood Study Group is wide open ($150 tuition plus $175 room and board for six weeks, including breakfast and dinner). So far the group has been made up mainly of teachers of music, but it also included, last year, a woman airplane pilot, a real-estate man, one of the top mathematicians of the U.S., and a public accountant.

Ingolf Dahl, who is the department, emphasizes that it is not a course in "appreciation" but a participation in music. Everyone must sing in the Festival Chorus, which means that people who have never sung publicly in their lives end up singing in big Shed concerts with the Boston Orchestra.

Amelia Earhart LUGGAGE

...IF YOU HAVE AN INSTI

AMELIA

HOLIDA

On a sunny Sunday afternoon a Shed concert is a convivial affair. The Shed seats 6000 (at up to $6.50 per folding camp chair), but since it is open on three sides, at least that many more hear the concert from the surrounding lawn for a $2 entry fee. Blankets go down, in the shade of the fine old trees if possible, but everywhere so close together it seems impossible to walk between them. Out come beach chairs, lunches, vacuum jugs, beach hats, an occasional parasol over a bald pate, Sunday papers and card decks. Dungarees and shorts are everywhere and even an unauthorized bathing suit or two. The shorts and bathing suits are "against regulations," and during the working week any girl trying to enter the grounds in shorts is furnished a wrap-around skirt from a supply for such emergencies. But the week-end influx of bare legs is too great a strain on the system.

A nighttime Festival concert has the same relaxed air—only to the music and the informal feminine dress add stars and a not-too-bright moon, and you have a geometric increase in romance.

After the concert, it's about a forty-minute project getting your car out of the lot and back to your hotel. You won't, however, have a hotel to go back to if you wait till Saturday to look. By Thursday afternoon the Lenox Information Center has nothing open but rooms in private homes; by Saturday morning it usually has nothing.

Places to stay range from spare bedrooms to former private palaces like ninety-room Elm Court or thirty-six-room Blantyre, which owe their new lease on life solely to Tanglewood.

Baroque Elm Court, where Doctor Munch stays, is probably the most prestigious address. I arrived there with a motorcycle escort simply because I asked State Trooper Ed Dunn the way. "I'll take you over," he said. "Like to see what the place looks like myself." But, in spite of local awe, Elm Court is a bargain. A single (bathless) room can be had for as little as $5, a multicourse dinner, which may feature steak or half-inch-thick roast beef, for $3.50; and anyone can come in on no-cover, no-minimum Saturday nights, order a bottle of pop and dance till midnight.

This year's Berkshire Festival will be the sixteenth since it all started in '34. A conductor gets credit for the idea, but not the one whose name is now linked with Tanglewood. It was Henry Hadley, rather than Serge Koussevitzky, who first dreamed of concerts under the stars amid the Berkshire Hills. His orchestra was sixty-five members of the New York Philharmonic, and the first Festival, an open-air one of three concerts, was given on the Dan Hanna Farm in Stockbridge to a total attendance of 5000. (1952's total attendance, incidentally, was 85,000.) Hadley repeated in 1935. Then in 1936, Koussevitzky came with the Boston Orchestra. Toward the end of 1936, Tanglewood was given to the Boston Orchestra by Mrs. Gorham Brooks and Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan, and the 1937 Festival was held there.

The Shed was up in time for the '38 Festival, and it housed the orchestra till 1942 when the war forced the Festival's discontinuance. Afraid the idea might lapse, Koussevitzky kept it alive during the four war years by conducting chamber concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall, and these became a regular part of the Festival when it was revived in 1946.

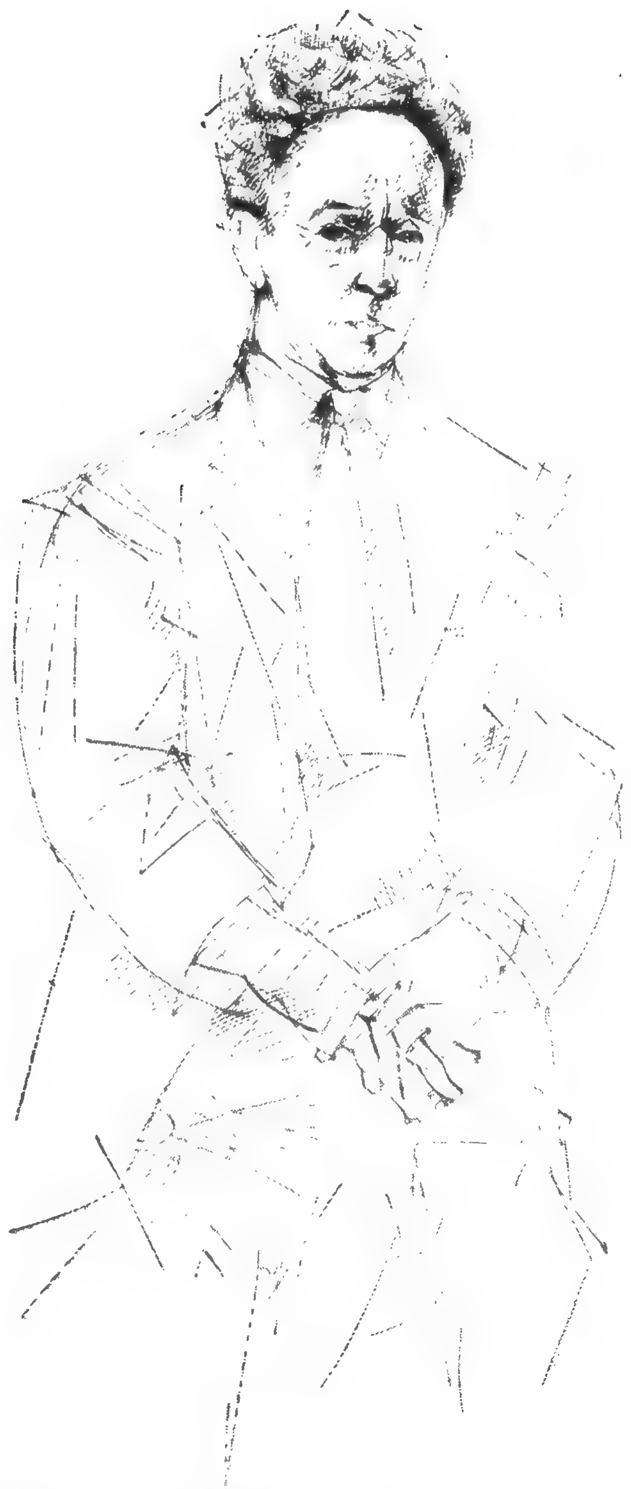
To Koussevitzky, however, the great thing at Tanglewood was the Berkshire Music Center. When he founded the Center in 1940 he realized a dream he had nourished for a quarter of a century. As a young man in Moscow he had gone even as far as the architectural plans for such a center there. World War I had wrecked that dream; Koussevitzky was determined that World War II should not wreck the Berkshire Music Center, the fulfillment of that dream. When, in 1942, after only two seasons, the Center could find no supporters because of the war, Koussevitzky founded The Koussevitzky Music Foundation in memory of his late wife, and this Foundation supported the Center's 1942 season. It still contributes to the scholarship fund. The war, however, could not be bucked indefinitely, and the next year it forced suspension of the Center till 1946. But from then till his death in 1951, it was Koussevitzky's first love.

I went to Koussevitzky's house, Seranak, on the apex of a hill above Tanglewood, and on a day made dramatic by lowering thunderheads I looked down on leaden Stockbridge Bowl and Tanglewood's acres. Koussevitzky's widow, a niece of his first wife, stood with me and told me of her husband's wish to rest in these Berkshire Hills. He is buried in Lenox in the Church on the Hill graveyard. "Strangely enough, there was only one plot left in this cemetery he liked so much," Mrs. Koussevitzky told me. "You must go see it, though it may be hard to find. He has only a small white stone" [illegible] Tanglewood. THE END

Town & Country July 1953

TALES OF TANGLEWOOD

BY IONE ROBINSON



For six weeks I had been sitting on the stage making drawings, during the rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The last days my nerves had been almost exhausted from listening to rehearsals of Berlioz' "Requiem," and as I drove up a rain-drenched mountain into the Koussevitzky estate, it seemed to me that the very trees resounded with this primeval music—the "colossal nightingale, a lark as big as an eagle, of sky-storming impossibilities," as Heine described it. I thought of Berlioz, the tormented son of a country doctor, who dreamed of creating orchestras with two hundred and forty-two strings, thirty grand pianos, thirty harps, legions of wind instruments, tempests of rolling drums and clashing cymbals, hundreds of percussion players, and thousands of voices—the genius of Romanticism . . . of Serge Koussevitzky, the almost legendary Russian who could drive musicians into sharing his violent eloquence, and who dreamed of a Utopia for musicians . . . Henry Lee Higginson, dreaming of music when he was a student at Harvard . . . Hawthorne, who had the power to make little children dream as he walked with them through the Tanglewood hills, telling them stories of Greek mythology.

During the days I drew the members of the orchestra, I tried not to see the faces of the musicians. I wanted to catch their abstract physical movements that seemed to me to be dedicated to their instruments. But there were many days when the music they were playing overpowered me, and I could only listen. I left Tanglewood fascinated with the incredible creative vitality of the place. Often as I crossed over the green lawns I heard voices from many lands and I would come across young men and women of different races playing their instruments under the shade of a tree or studying their scores unconscious of anyone passing by. Perhaps it was this combination of casual freedom and stern discipline that impressed me most at Tanglewood.

The personality of the present Boston Symphony conductor, Charles Munch, had a curious effect on his musicians. This tall Frenchman would appear early in the morning, gentle and smiling, unlike the late Serge Koussevitzky who was said to have driven the orchestra's nerves to the breaking point. Munch would merely smile when some bar of music displeased him, then—almost literally—"pull" out of his men what he wanted. The day I drew his portrait he talked a great deal about painting and about pictures he had bought, some Dutch and Flemish primitives. Picasso, he said, he could not understand, and left him unmoved; yet he felt the Spaniard's genius in the portrayal of our time. I asked Munch if young musicians were faced with the same problem of finding new forms, as young (Continued on page 100)

DRAWING BY IONE ROBINSON

Hansen —

world today. I am too simple to understand that, too. When I retire from the Boston Symphony, I want only to carve in wood, use my hands. I didn't like to play in Festival Hall in London—I was too alone, too far from everyone. The Paris Opera was the same; I felt lost there. I could not hear myself play, and I did not enjoy what I was playing because I could not hear myself. What is the use of a musician playing if he can't hear what he is playing?"

Samuel Mayes, the first cellist, is one of the great orchestras in the world today. Koussevitzky did make Mr. Higginson's dream come true, of a great orchestra in Boston, and the very fact that Tanglewood exists and it is possible for musicians from many lands to come here and study shows Koussevitzky's dream has come true. Here in the United States, artists are getting their chance to balance their lives spiritually in this epoch of material force which is so overpowering in other lands."

[178.]

at Park Avenue and Fiftieth Street is a favorite luncheon spot for Mrs. Thomas W. Phipps, an attractive member of Manhattan society, whose talented young husband is one of TV's leading playwrights. Her full-length coat of luxurious Canadian wild mink falls slim and straight from a narrow shawl collar, and is a custom design by Madame Claras. The sleeves, worked horizontally, are deeply cuffed all the way to the elbow. Blue velvet crown by Beatrice Martin. Harry Rosenfeld tailored black alligator bag. Suede gloves by Kislav

PHOTOGRAPHS BY JAMES ABBE JR.

anna Far attendan ndance,
Hadley
936, Kou
Boston O d of 193
the Bost am Broo all Tappa
s held the time for t sed the d war forc nce. Afra oussevitzk

world today. I am too simple to understand that, too. When I retire from the Boston Symphony, I want only to carve in wood, use my hands. I didn't like to play in Festival Hall in London—I was too alone, too far from everyone. The Paris Opera was the same; I felt lost there. I could not hear myself play, and I did not enjoy what I was playing because I could not hear myself. What is the use of a musician playing if he can't hear what he is playing?"

Samuel Mayes, the first cellist,

is one of the great orchestras in the world today. Koussevitzky did make Mr. Higginson's dream come true, of a great orchestra in Boston, and the very fact that Tanglewood exists and it is possible for musicians from many lands to come here and study shows Koussevitzky's dream has come true. Here in the United States, artists are getting their chance to balance their lives spiritually in this epoch of material force which is so overpowering in other lands."

TALES OF TANGLEWOOD

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 66

painters are, after they have assimilated the heritage of the past. He said that tensions and conflicts existed in young musicians just as they did in other artists—they were all part of their time, and inevitably felt their time's stresses.

How graciously he handed over his baton to Pierre Monteux, onetime conductor of the Boston Symphony. There was a moment of silence in the orchestra; then, as they saw their former leader on the podium, a burst of applause filled the air. Monteux began to lead them through Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," his quiet but sure conducting electrifying musicians and audience alike against the violence of this controversial opus.

I was reminded of Munch's remarks about young musicians the morning I saw Lucas Foss rehearsing Mozart's Concerto in C for Pianoforte and Orchestra. His massive, sculptural head made him appear like a young Beethoven, an impression borne out by the intensity and concentration with which he performed. When it was over Foss's father and mother ran across the stage, eager to hear the recording of their son's playing. There was something poignant in the way the young musician's mother stood with the earphones placed over her straw hat, her heavy woolen stockings so very German in their practicalness, so uncomfortable for a hot August day.

Foss, who plays Mozart like an angel, believes that love should motivate a work of music. "If our world becomes too hard-driven by mechanical inventions," he said, "there might not be any more urge to create." Driven from country to country, this young German, now an American citizen, confessed to me that he can play better in this country because he feels a sense of security that is lacking in Europe.

"Most young musicians feel their roots are lost today," he said. "Man has no home any more. In a sense, the very word 'community,' in its true meaning, has changed. Nationalism can never produce great art, for it is empty and superficial."

Raymond Allard, a Frenchman, the first bassoon player in the orchestra, looked at me with surprise when I asked him what he thought about the impact of our time on music, and how he found European audiences in relation to American.

"I am a simple man," he said, "I never pay any attention to audiences; I just play, because I love to play this piece of wood. And, as for our world today, I am too simple to understand that, too. When I retire from the Boston Symphony, I want only to carve in wood, use my hands. I didn't like to play in Festival Hall in London—I was too alone, too far from everyone. The Paris Opera was the same; I felt lost there. I could not hear myself play, and I did not enjoy what I was playing because I could not hear myself. What is the use of a musician playing if he can't hear what he is playing?"

Samuel Mayes, the first cellist, who despite his youth has been with the Boston Symphony for many years, feels that so much has been done in the past in music that the bridge is almost too great for present-day composers to walk across. "Few have anything to say when they cross the bridge," he told me. "They have no originality. But I believe in the unknown people, more than the composers who think they have arrived. Among the people are the real composers yet to be found."

Mayes, whose grandfather is a pure-blooded Cherokee Indian chief, had never been in Europe before the triumphal tour of the Boston Symphony last spring. He did not like Europe and was glad to come home.

Georges Laurent, formerly the first flutist, a Frenchman who is now an American citizen, was pleased with the success of the tour in Europe, especially in France. But he said he would never want to live in Europe, especially France. "Life is too hard. It is the everlasting grind to make enough to live, and because of this one has little time to practice."

While I sketched his portrait he told me he believed the mixture of races in the United States was important to music. When I asked him if he wasn't exhausted playing and teaching most of the summer at Tanglewood he laughed and said, "The enthusiasm of the students keeps me so full of optimism, how could I be tired?"

A few minutes later I had to agree with him, for the composer Aaron Copeland entered the room where I was drawing in back of the stage. He had with him a group of his students and even though I felt deafened by the terrific din Copeland and his students began to make on the tympans, and the shrill clashing sounds that echoed from the cymbals, and even though I did not understand aesthetically what they were trying to do, I certainly was impressed by their violent energy.

The following day when I drew Copeland, Leonard Bernstein was rehearsing his friend's Symphony No. 3. The day before, Copeland had changed many parts of the score, nevertheless he could not find one fault in Bernstein's interpretation of his music, and as this brilliant young protégé of Koussevitzky led the student orchestra of Tanglewood through the fast-moving bars, I felt the vitality and space in the music that means the U.S.A. to me. But Russian-born Jacob Raichman, the first trombone player of the Boston Symphony, looked completely forlorn as bar after bar of Copeland music resounded throughout the steel and wood "Shed" of Tanglewood. He looked pleased, however, the day Artur Rubinstein played the piano solo from Brahms's Concerto No. 2 in B Flat Major with great eloquence. As this great virtuoso played, Raichman said, "The tragedy with our century is, a real melody like this one has not yet been composed. I believe it is because man has detached himself too much from nature. The very strength of the ancient Greeks lay in their ability to escape from reality, to search for beauty. Today too many artists try to shock our world with ugliness."

On the other hand, Hugh Ross, choral conductor on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, thinks sources of inspiration are so original and different in this turbulent half of the twentieth century, that there are bound to be masterpieces comparable to the melodies of the past.

These various impressions and conversations, framed in musical sounds, were going through my mind when I entered the house of Mme. Serge Koussevitzky, and I was glad when I found myself alone in the great drawing room, where I could put my thoughts in order before she arrived. Even though the room was filled with early American-Victorian furniture, it had the atmosphere of a Russian drawing room of the 1900's. It was like a room Chekhov might have described.

When Mme. Koussevitzky entered the room she excused herself for being late; then in her slow, soft, controlled voice she began to speak about her late husband—his dream, the creation of a musical center and how he had wanted to do this in Russia. She told me about his summer voyages up the Volga—two thousand miles up the Volga—his orchestra floating from village to village, and how the metal workers of what is now Stalingrad were so overcome by his music that on his second voyage they greeted his ship with their own orchestra. And she told me how in some of the tiny hamlets the peasants had never seen a harp, and wanted the harps set right at the edge of the stage.

"He had hoped," she went on, "that some day there might be a lasting friendship between Russia and the United States, a human rapprochement brought about through the music of the two countries. Even if this has not happened yet," she said calmly, "the Boston Symphony is one of the great orchestras in the world today. Koussevitzky did make Mr. Higginson's dream come true, of a great orchestra in Boston, and the very fact that Tanglewood exists and it is possible for musicians from many lands to come here and study shows Koussevitzky's dream has come true. Here in the United States, artists are getting their chance to balance their lives spiritually in this epoch of material force which is so overpowering in other lands."

JET VS. PROP

Town & Country

HENRI J. LESIEUR

Not since Charles Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic has anything captured the human imagination so completely as the concept of jet air transportation. The frail "Spirit of St. Louis" arrived at Le Bourget Field twenty-three years after the Wright brothers' first successful flight at Kitty Hawk, and now, twenty-five years later, de Havilland Comets are flying eight miles above the earth's surface on regular passenger-carrying runs and are commercially serving Europe, Africa, and Asia at speeds that approach eight miles a minute.

Sir Miles Thomas recently entitled an

Sir Miles Thomas in his article presented the British point of view—an understandably pro-jet view, inasmuch as the Comet represents Britain's most recent contribution to the science of aeronautics, and B.O.A.C. has nothing but jetcraft on order for the future. Another view, which is subscribed to in many aviation circles, is best exemplified by America's own airlines, none of which is today operating a jetliner, and by the American plane manufacturers, none of whom has a commercial jet in production or will until 1956.

As one of the pioneers of French aviation and as a representative of Air ress there is a place for pistons and a place for jets.

Every large-scale airline has five basic needs, depending on the length of flight. First there is the short hop, involving distances less than fifty miles. In all probability the helicopter will soon find its proper place in this type of transportation. For short-range distances extending to seven hundred miles, which preclude high-altitude navigation, there is need of speed, comfort, and flexibility. It is our opinion that these requirements are best met by the turbo-propeller principle (jet-driven propellers) and accordingly we are now flying Vickers

---

the tour o chamber c
-Concert H regular par was revive however, ewood was nter. When in 1940 he d nourished

ry. As a yo ad gone eve tural plans World W dream; Kou ned that W wreck the B the fulfill en, in 1942, he Center c because of y founded ic Foundatio
e wife, and rted the Cen ll contribut
d. The war, e bucked in xt year it fo Center till his death in ky's first love.
ssevitzky's ho pex of a hill a on a day ring thunderb on leaden S anglewood's idow, a niece ith me and tol wish to rest in
He is buri
hurch on the gely enough, t left in this uch," Mrs. K
You must go
e-hard to fin
white stone.
lewood. THE

MUSICAL AMERICA

JULY 1953

WILLIAM WARFI

On The Front Cover:

WILLIAM WARFIELD was born in West Helena, Ark., but his family moved to Rochester, N. Y., when he was three years old. Since his father was a Baptist minister, the boy first sang publicly as a church choir member. While in high school, he won an MENC vocal contest, from which he received a scholarship to the school of his choice. He elected to go to the Eastman School of Music and had almost completed his undergraduate work when he was called into military service. After the war, the baritone returned to Eastman for a time, studied in New York, and toured for a year in Call Me Mister. Since his Town Hall debut, in March, 1950, Mr. Warfield has sung recitals and appeared with orchestras throughout this country, in Europe, and in Australia. He has also played the part of Joe in the motion picture Show Boat, sung Porgy both here and abroad in the current revival of Porgy and Bess, and made recordings. This summer his activities include appearances at Lewisohn Stadium and at Tanglewood, and next season he will sing with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the National Symphony, and the Toronto Symphony, among others. His next film appearance for MGM will be in a musical version of Huckleberry Finn, with Danny Kaye and Gene Kelly. (Photograph by Louis Melançon, New York).

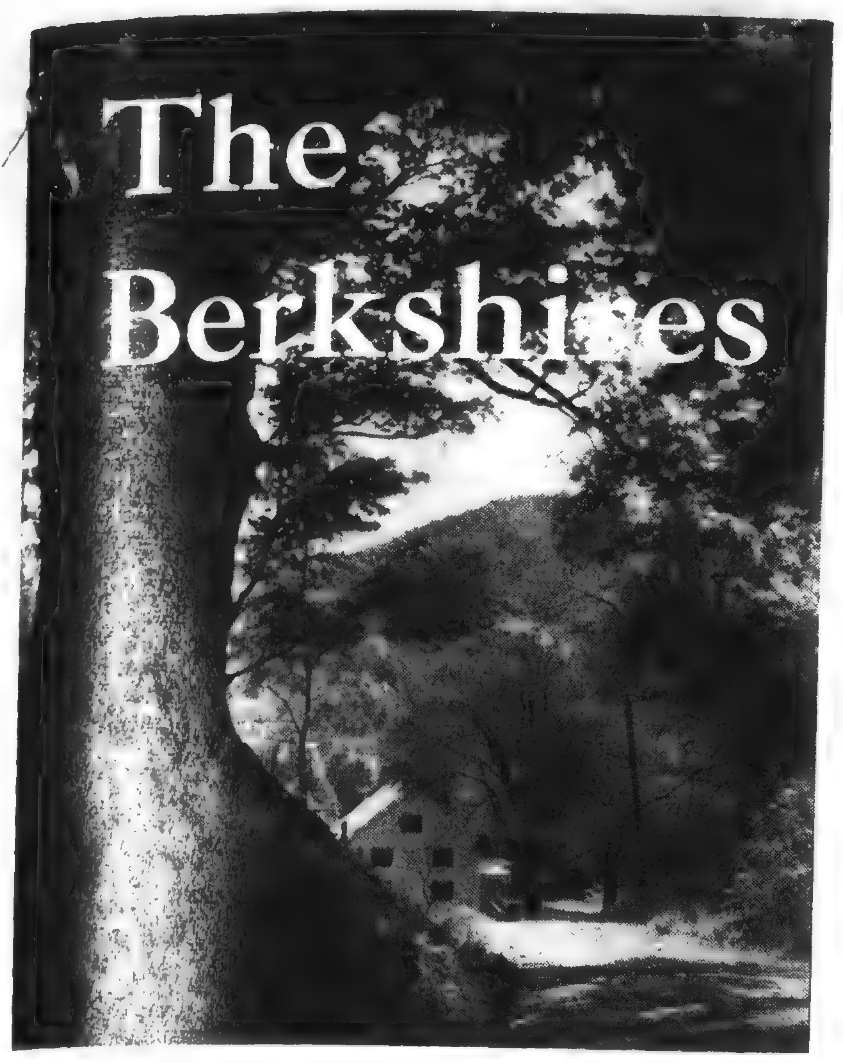
Tanglewood Students To Give Grétry Work

LENOX, MASS.—An opera by Grétry, Richard Coeur-de-Lion (Richard the Lion-Hearted) has been announced by Boris Goldovsky as the major production of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center, in Tanglewood, this summer. The opera will be given in English, in a translation of the J. M. Sedaine libretto by Mr. Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell. The two performances scheduled for Aug. 10 and 11 will be given by a student cast and orchestra under Mr. Goldovsky's direction in the Theatre-Concert Hall. Leo Van Witsen will design the costumes, and John Blankenchip the scenery.

In addition to the Grétry opera, the department will also prepare a bill of three rarely heard one-act operas, to be performed on Aug. 3. Gluck's L'Ivrogne Corrigé (The Drunken Reformed) will be given in the English translation by Giovanni Cardelli published by G. Schirmer, Inc. So far as is known, the production of this work at Tanglewood will be the first in America. Debussy's L'Enfant Prodigue and Chabrier's Une Education Manquée (An Incomplete Education), which will be sung in the English translation of Henry Resse, will complete the program.

Cue July 11

The Berkshires



sports, scenery and culture, too

CUE AUTO EXCURSION

The gently rolling Berkshires, in western Connecticut and Massachusetts, are the most educated hills in America.

These knowledgeable knolls are an ideal playground for New Yorkers. Here, the cosmopolitan vacationist can swim and fish, play golf and tennis, explore little-travelled, elm-shaded country lanes. But here, also, you will find an aggregation of top-drawer talent Sol Hurok might envy—Alicia Markova, Gregor Piatigorsky, Charles Munch, among others. For the Berkshire hills are as alive with music, art, dance and theatre as they are with every variety of summer sport.

During a recent return visit, we discovered that a number of superior cultural events in the area have become hidden under the barrage of publicity about that Salzburg of America, Tanglewood and its music festival. For example, just 30 miles from Tanglewood, near Falls Village, Connecticut, is Music Mountain. The chamber music concerts here, on a grassy hilltop surrounded by 115 acres of forest, have retained something of the intimate character reminiscent of the early days of Tanglewood. Here, season after season, Mozart, Beethoven, Shubert, and Brahms, played by the Berkshire Quartet, have reverberated in a long, clapboard shed whose soft wood panelling has the resonance of a fine stringed instrument. Tab for the Sunday afternoon concerts is $2 per person. If you prefer, you can sit out on the lawn and listen to the music, in the Tanglewood manner.

A half-hour walk from Tanglewood is Music Inn, where, from August 16th to 31st, the tone poems and concerti get blue and gutty. For here is held each season a Roundtable of Jazz, with the good professors and the performers both dedicated to the belief that jazz is a significant contribution to American culture. Last year, Leonard Bernstein, who has long labored to break down the phoney barriers between long- and short-hair music, commuted daily between his Tanglewood performances and the Jazz Roundtable.

The season at Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow center of the dance is already under way, and, as usual, the performers in the well-designed modern barn constitute a directory of America's leading performers. Jacob's Pillow, near Lee, is a short drive from Lenox. Incidentally, the National Ballet of Canada, making its first American appearance, will perform at Jacob's Pillow August 4th through the 8th.

The white frame Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge is one of the most handsome summer theatres in the East. This season, its guest stars will include Leo G. Carroll, Fay Bainter, Romney Brent, and a new play, "The Three Toed Pony," will be staged along with such staples as "Affairs of State" and "Mister Roberts."

Another important point: don't bother to bring along any books to read. The Lenox Library, housed in a beautifully proportioned Federal structure, is one of the best this reporter has ever encountered outside a large city. Its series of rooms are furnished like a private home. Its collection of art books is amazingly good. And you can borrow record albums from the library as well as summer reading.

All is not culture in the Berkshire hills. Take fishing. Lake, brown, rainbow, and brook trout thrive in New England, as well as, we discovered, catfish. While much land is posted, State forest and park lands are always open, and local inquiry will reveal other available spots. A resident or nonresident license is required, and can be obtained at any town clerk's office. At the Berkshire Trout Farm in Sheffield, you can fish for $1 an hour in a 15-acre lake stocked with 25,000 trout. No license is required here. Golf clubs are as numerous in the Berkshires as traffic lights in Manhattan. (Continued on page 33)

DANCER Jean Leon Destiné and Zino Francescatti will perform in the Berkshires

THE BERKSHIRES

(Continued from page 12)

Most of the clubs are open to the public on payment of green fees. If your idea of physical culture is imitating the gentle Audubon, visit the Pleasant Valley Bird Sanctuary at Lenox, a wild life refuge with eight miles of nature trails.

How to get to the Berkshires? We followed the American Automobile Association recommendations this year, and found them better than routes we had tried in the past. Take the Taconic State Parkway to the Millbrook turnoff, then follow Route 44 to Canaan, Connecticut. Route 7 in Canaan will take you into Stockbridge, Lenox or wherever your particular inn may be.

There is an inn or hotel around every bend and we can only mention a few here. Since the Berkshires, at the turn of the century, vied with Newport as a social center and were, more or less, the private hills of moguls and millionaires, many of today's inns were once estates. Most fabulous is Elm Court, at Lenox, a monument of what happened when a Vanderbilt (Emily) married a Sloane (of W. and J.). For $30 a day, American plan, two people can hire Emily's old room, a small arena with its own terrace.

For the young and frenetic, Eastover in Lenox is more appropriate. Once a banker's estate, it is now an athletic factory equipped with swimming pool, golf range, tennis court, ball diamond, basketball court, archery range.

For the New Yorker who fancies himself a sophisticate, the Music Inn (where the Jazz Roundtables are held) is ideal. Operated by two bright New Yorkers, Stephanie and Philip Barber, the Inn, facing Stockbridge Bowl (translate lake) and near Tanglewood, was part of the estate of the Countess de Heredia. The Countess' Mansion is the property of the Boston Symphony, and now houses Tanglewood students. But the barns, carriage house, and ice house constitute the Music Inn. The rambling buildings are a copy of a French Provincial farm village, and a more delightful place to loaf we have not discovered. Pianist Keith Lawrence, who plays and sings French ditties in the evening, makes you feel you're back home at the Blue Angel.

You'll find Berkshire food better fare than in most vacation areas. We often wind up having a sort of progressive dinner: martinis at the Lion's Den in Stockbridge (the colorful downstairs bar at the Red Lion Inn), brook trout at the Berkshire Inn in neighboring Great Barrington, and for that late evening snack, a drive down to Ashley Falls and the Red Mill Bakery. Friendly Mrs. Dunham makes all her own breads, pies, and pastries. A bag of her cherry tarts went well with a Beethoven overture we heard from the lawn at Tanglewood.

—Emory Lewis

MUSIC

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL—Sat, July 11-Sun, Aug 16—Boston Symphony Orch. At Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Sat, Sun concerts in Theatre-Concert Hall, thru July 26. Concerts in the Shed begin July 31. Ticket info from Boston Symphony Orch., Inc., Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Lenox 600. Info on accommodations in the Berkshires from Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield, Mass. General adm to grounds $2 on sale day of each concert. Sat, July 11—8:30. Charles Munch, cond. Bach Brandenburg Concertos. . . . Sun, July 12—Charles Munch, cond. Doriot Anthony, soloist. Bach, Cantata No. 28 with chorus and soloists (conducted by Hugh Ross); Suite No. 2 in B minor for Flute & Strings; Suite No. 3 in D. . . . Sat, July 18—Charles Munch, cond. Isaac Stern, violinist. Mozart, Divertimento in D for Strings (K.136); Concerto for Violin in G (K. 216); Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361); Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 551). . . . Sun, July 19—Charles Munch, cond. Isaac Stern, violinist, Joseph de Pasquale, violist. Mozart: Overture to "Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin & Viola (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachmusik (K. 525); Symphony in D ("Jupiter") (K. 551).

[illegible] CONCERTS—Thru

This Clipping From MUSICAL COURIER
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL - 1953

MUSICAL JOTTINGS

The Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam will make a tour of the U. S., extending over seven or eight weeks, presenting 40 concerts in Eastern and Midwestern cities, under Eduard van Beinum and Rafael Kubelik, probably beginning in October next; the trip will be [illegible] by the Dutch Government.

When the Vienna State Opera recently [illegible] Paris, the members placed a tab[illegible] the house where Mozart's mo[illegible]ed and gave a memorial performance of choral music at her grave. . . . [illegible]try's opera Richard Coeur-de-Lion [illegible] be presented on Aug. 10 and 11 [illegible] Berkshire Music Center; on Aug. [illegible] the group will give three one-act [illegible] Gluck's L'Ivrogne Corrigé, Debussy's L'Enfant Prodigue (in its orig[illegible] operatic version) and Chabrier's Une [illegible]ation Manquée. . . . George Morgulis, viola player in the N. Y. Philharmonic-Symphony, has resigned to become general manager of the San Antonio Symphony. . . .

This Clipping From
MUSICAL COURIER
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL - 1953

Cincinnati Host To Boston Forces

By Louis John Johnen

CINCINNATI.—Pending the opening of the Cincinnati Summer Opera (June 19, Fausto Cleva conducting Aida with a cast including Herva Nelli and Kurt Baum) there is usually a hiatus after the close of the Symphony season, save in Festival season.

This year, however, brought a change in the pattern. A week after Dr. Thor Johnson, director of the Cincinnati Symphony, had departed for Ann Arbor, where he addressed the Honors Convocation of the University of Michigan School of Music, on "eliminating the twaddle from the close of concert programs and encouraging more alert audience participation," the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch ~~invaded Music~~ Hall, after 5 years' absence.

The Bostonians again proved their claim to being one of the world's great orchestras. In sheer beauty of tone and technical brilliance, ranging from the faintest pianissimi to grandiose sonorities, whose volume never assaulted the ear with the slightest edge of roughness, the orchestra excited admiration. It was in the French portion of the program that Munch displayed his greatest skill and devotion. The Honegger Symphony No. 2 was a revelation of string sheen and trumpet virtuosity; Ravel's La Valse was a dazzling tour de force. To this listener, the Brahms Fourth Symphony was not quite up to the faultless execution of its forerunners on the program.

[180]

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Tanglewood Opens Today, First Concert Saturday

Greetings by Munch and Others to Students and Guests This Afternoon at Lenox, Program by Student Orchestra Friday Night

Lenox, July 4—The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Sympony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Hadyn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-Aug. 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Foss as Soloist

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 will include the performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following coloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2.30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting.

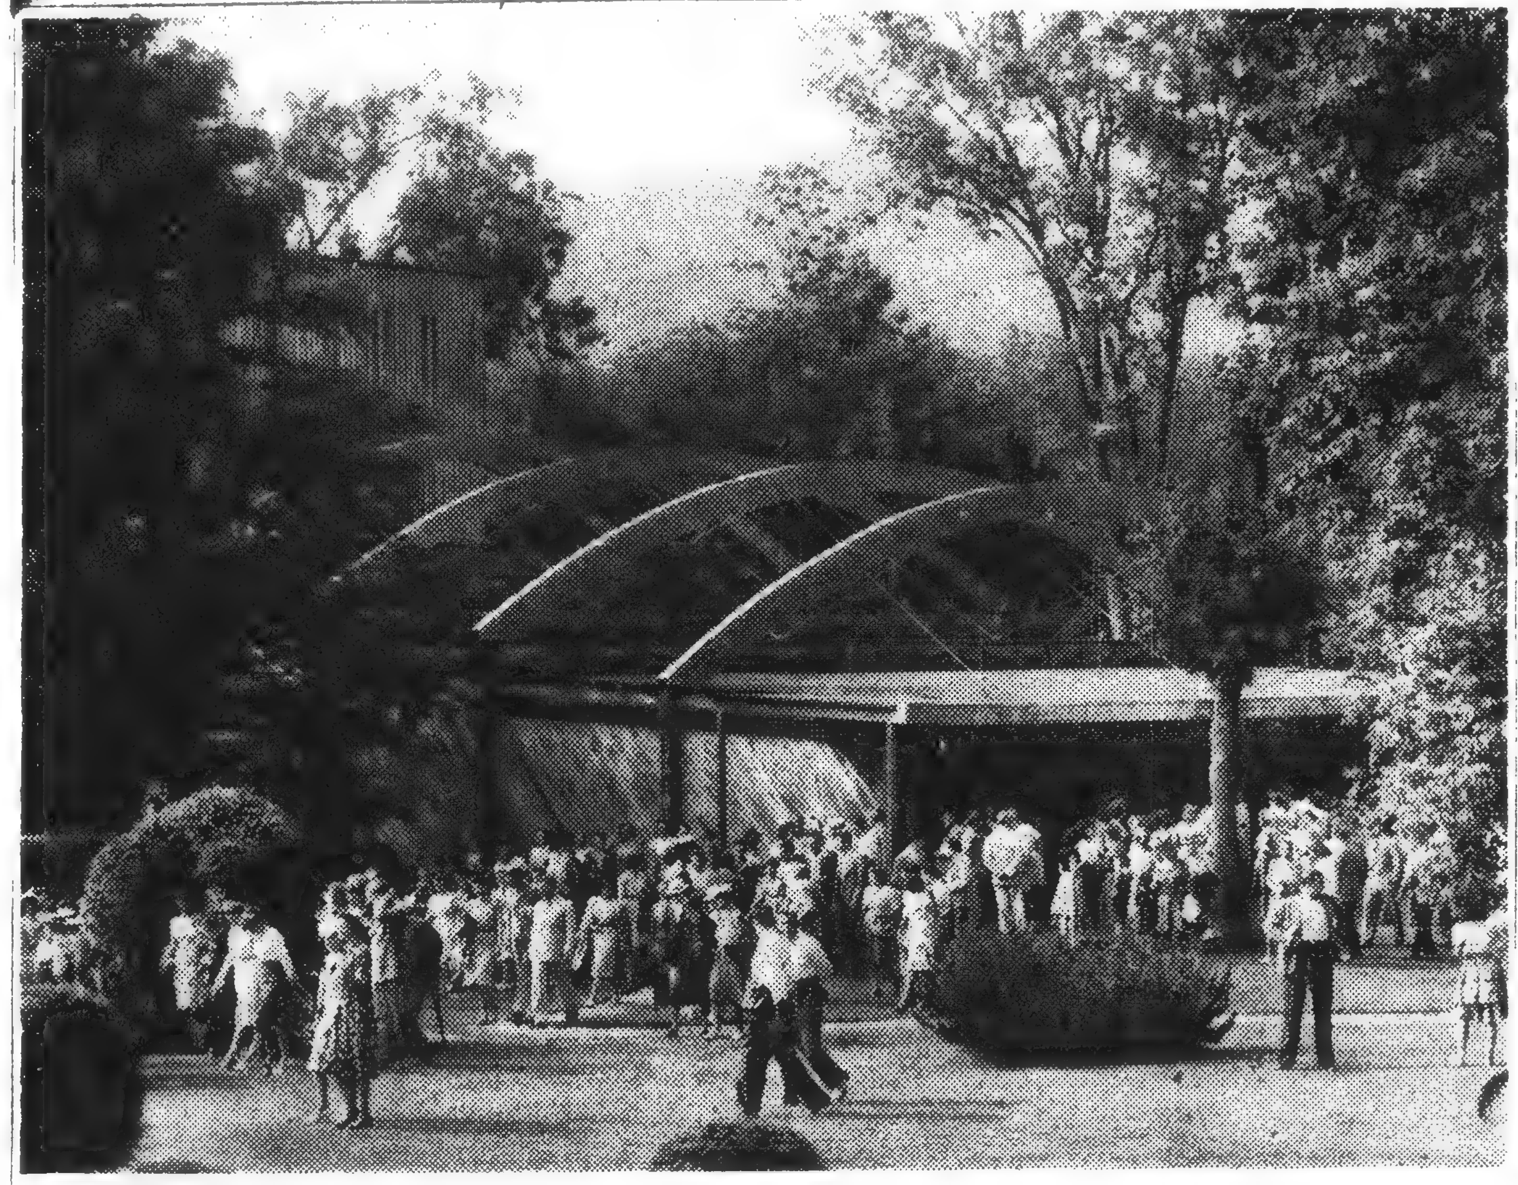
This afternoon at 3.30 p. m. in Theater-Concert Hall opening exercises will be held. Greetings to students and guests will be extended by Charles Munch; Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center; Herny B. Cabot, president, board of trustees Boston Symphony Orchestra; Aaron Copland, assistant director, Berkshire Music Center. Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson, and tea will be served in Tanglewood garden.

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center tomorrow at 3.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8.30 p. m., in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10 a. m. Sunday, evening at 8.30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all festival concerts. Programs for the festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

CSM 7/11/



H. S. Babbitt, Jr.

The Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, in the Berkshires of Massachusetts, where members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, open the Berkshire Music Festival tonight. This series of week-end concerts continues through July 26.

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Begins July 11

The 1953 Berkshire Festival will begin its six weekends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, will have as features performance of the young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2, and Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival next Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: Nos. 1, in F; 2, in F; 3, in G (strings); 5, in D, and 6, in B-flat (strings).

Bach Cantata

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m., the program will start with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, and the program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

The Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will open its 11th season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, this afternoon.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at opening exercises, at 3:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. There will be a brief address by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president. Composer, Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross, director of its choral department, will lead the students in "Alleluia," composed for the school's opening in 1940 by Randall Thompson. Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden following the exercises.

Student Orchestra

The first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8:30, in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10. Sunday evening at 8:30, also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum, when works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tanglewood's July 18-19 concerts will be devoted to Mozart, with Isaac Stern as soloist; the July 25 concert will be all Haydn, including the "Theresa" Mass conducted by Hugh Ross; the July 26 program is to be devoted to works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and will include the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Isaac Stern will be the soloist in Mozart's Concerto for Violin in G (K.216) on Saturday evening, July 18, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood.

This Clipping From
VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 8 - 1953

Broadway

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, flew in from Paris Friday (3), to conduct the 1953 Berkshire Festival in Lenox, Mass.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 4

Munch Arrives to Direct Tanglewood

This Clipping
SPRINGFIELD, MA
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 -

Ready at Tanglewo

The Berkshire Music F hich has achieved pre-em mong American summer ixtures, opens today, with ariety of activities continu l the middle of August.
he concerts in the Theate ert Hall, beginning Sa ight, and the major series ig Music Shed, starting 1st, there are the usual roups in orchestral and ork, as well as in com onducting, opera and ch
music.

While thousands will agai
he privilege of attending th lic performances in person, ess others will be able to he concord of sweet sounds adio, since portions of fou ay afternoon programs are roadcast. Both audiences ote that all the Sunday pr re to start at 2.30, to fit in etwork schedules; the bro ill last an hour and a hal viding rather more than half or those unable to attend.
wood thus becomes part BS summer international long with Florence, Sa
Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Another innovation at wood this year is the chang Thursday to Friday night
hree weeks of Shed co hose of Saturday night an ay afternoon being presen sual. Last year, for th ime, the traditional Bachoncerts in the Theater-Hall were broadened to inclu
orks of several other com nd this practice is being
ed. Several new soloists tructors have been engage ear, and the number of s t the Berkshire Music Cent et a record.

As to the Shed programs
s an admirable mixture of rd and modern, foreign and can compositions. Aaron and, Paul Hindemith, Dari aud and Samuel Barber, s Carlos Chavez of Mexico,
ent New World talent, wh
oung Bostonian Lukas Fo erform his own Piano C
o. 2; another native Bay
Leonard Bernstein, will cond
Boston Symphony on two Sa
ights.

Otherwise the orchestra irected by its regular harles Munch, save for a fternoon all-Tchaikowsky p ith Pierre Monteux on th
m. Of the standard symp

NORTHAMPTON, MAS
HAMPSHIRE GAZETT
JUL 10 1953

estival Opens Saturday Night At Tanglewo

he first 1953 Berkshire Fe concert in the Tanglew eatre-Concert hall will be h
turday night at 8:30 wh rles Munch will cond
mbers of the Boston Symp Orchestra in an all-Bach p m consisting of five of the ndenburg Concertos—No.
No. 2, in F (with flute, obo mpet and violin); No. 3, in ings); No. 5, in D (wi
o. flute and violin) and N
B-flat (strings). Lukas Fo be heard in his memorab o solo in No. 5. Members orchestra taking soloist rol Doriot Anthony, flute; Haro berg, oboe; Roger Voisi pet; concertmaster Richar in, violin.

second Bach concert,
Sunday afternoon, will ope
the orchestra's first pe nce of the Cantata No. 28
the Festival chorus, and Mae Endich, soprano; Bet-en, alto; John McCollum, Mac Morgan, bass. Mis
y will be soloist in the
No. 2, in B minor, for flute
ngs. The program conwith the Suite No. 3, in D

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Tanglewood Opens Today, First Concert Saturday

Greetings by Munch and Others to Students and Guests This Afternoon at Lenox, Program by Student Orchestra Friday Night

Lenox, July 4—The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Sympony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Hadyn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed, July 31-Aug. 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Foss as Soloist

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 will include the performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2; and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F with the following coloists from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2.30 p. m., the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting.

This afternoon at 3.30 p. m. in Theater-Concert Hall opening exercises will be held. Greetings to students and guests will be extended by Charles Munch; Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center; Herny B. Cabot, president, board of trustees Boston Symphony Orchestra; Aaron Copland, assistant director, Berkshire Music Center. Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson, and tea will be served in Tanglewood garden.

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center tomorrow at 3.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8.30 p. m., in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10 a. m. Sunday, evening at 8.30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all festival concerts. Programs for the festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

---

esm 7/11

H. S. Babbitt, Jr.

The Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, in the Berkshires of Massachusetts, where members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, open the Berkshire Music Festival tonight. This series of week-end concerts continues through July 26.

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Begins July 11

The 1953 Berkshire Festival will begin its six weekends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three weekends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, will have as features performance of the young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2, and Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival next Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: Nos. 1, in F; 2, in F; 3, in G (strings); 5, in D, and 6, in B-flat (strings).

Bach Cantata

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m., the program will start with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, and the program will conclude with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

The Berkshire Music Center, the Summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will open its 11th season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, this afternoon.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at opening exercises, at 3:30 p. m. in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. There will be a brief address by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president. Composer, Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross, director of its choral department, will lead the students in "Alleluia," composed for the school's opening in 1940 by Randall Thompson. Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden following the exercises.

Student Orchestra

The first school performance will be given Friday evening at 8:30, in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of students will play together.

The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning, July 12, at 10. Sunday evening at 8:30, also in the Chamber Music Hall, will bring the first composers' forum, when works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tanglewood's July 18-19 concerts will be devoted to Mozart, with Isaac Stern as soloist; the July 25 concert will be all Haydn, including the "Theresa" Mass conducted by Hugh Ross; the July 26 program is to be devoted to works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and will include the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, "A Parable of Death," conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Isaac Stern will be the soloist in Mozart's Concerto for Violin in G (K.216) on Saturday evening, July 18, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood.

This Clipping From
VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 8 - 1953

Broadway

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, flew in from Paris Friday (3), to conduct the 1953 Berkshire Festival in Lenox, Mass.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 4 - 1953

Munch Arrives to Direct Tanglewood

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, has arrived in Tanglewood to assume his summer duties as conductor of the 1953 Berkshire Festival at Lenox after a month's vacation in his native Paris. He will address the opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center on Sunday afternoon and conduct members of the Boston Symphony in the initial two all-Bach programs in the Theater-Concert Hall Saturday evening, July 11, and Sunday afternoon, July 12.

[181]

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 5 - 1953

Ready at Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music Festival which has achieved pre-eminence among American summer musical [illegible] opens today with a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Theater-Concert [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] opera and [illegible]

[illegible] international series [illegible] in Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

[illegible] innovation at Tanglewood this year is the change from Thursday to Friday night for the three weeks of Shed concerts, those of Saturday night and Sunday afternoon being presented as [illegible]. Last year for the first time the traditional Bach-Mozart concerts in the Theater-Concert [illegible] were broadened to include the works of several other composers, and this practice is being continued. Several new soloists and instructors have been engaged this year and the number of students at the Berkshire Music Center has [illegible] record.

As to the Shed programs there is an admirable mixture of standard and modern foreign and American compositions. Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith, Darius Milhaud and Samuel Barber, as well as Carlos Chavez of Mexico, represent New World talent, while the [illegible] Bostonian Lukas Foss will [illegible] his own Piano Concerto [illegible] another native Bay Stater, [illegible] Bernstein, will conduct the [illegible] Symphony on two Saturday [illegible]

[illegible] use the orchestra will be [illegible] by its regular leader, [illegible] Munch, save for a Sunday [illegible] all-Tchaikowsky program [illegible] Pierre Monteux on the podium. Of the standard symphonies one by Tchaikowsky, one by Brahams, one by Mendelssohn and two by Schubert will be performed; this may be the first time that none by Beethoven will be heard during a Tanglewood season, the master being represented only by his "Lenore" Overture, No. 3.

A great deal of clerical work is required to make ready for the six-week season at Lenox, not to mention the intensive preparation of the musicians themselves. Other similar festivals may flourish in other parts of the country, but none has quite the combination of scope and quality, setting and background, of this one so close to home. Tanglewood is generally conceded to be the summer capital of music on this side of the Atlantic.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JUL 10 1953

Festival Opens Saturday Night At Tanglewood

[illegible] first 1953 Berkshire Festival [illegible] the Tanglewood [illegible] hall will be held [illegible] at 8:30 when [illegible] will conduct [illegible] the Boston Symphony [illegible] all-Bach program [illegible] of five of the six [illegible] Concertos No. 1, [illegible] with flute, oboe, [illegible] No. 3 in G [illegible] D (with [illegible] and No. [illegible] Lukas Foss [illegible] his memorable [illegible] Members of [illegible] soloist roles [illegible] Harold [illegible] Roger Voisin, [illegible] concertmaster Richard [illegible] at [illegible] will open [illegible] per- [illegible] No. 28, [illegible] and [illegible] Bet- [illegible] McCollum, [illegible] Morgan, bass [illegible] the [illegible] program [illegible] in D

---

certo for Violin
the Theater-

OSTON, MASS.
HERALD
L 4 - 1953

h Arrives to Tanglewood

s Munch, music director Boston Symphony, has in Tanglewood to as summer duties as con of the 1953 Berkshire at Lenox after vacation in his nativ He will address the exercises of the Berk usic Center on Sunda n and conduct member Boston Symphony in th two all-Bach program Theater-Concert Hal y evening, July 11, an afternoon, July 12.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

JUL 17 1953

Mozart Music For Tanglewood

Mozart music will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch Saturday and Sunday at Tanglewood outside of Lenox, Mass.

Soloists for the two concerts, one Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and the other Sunday at 2:30 p. m., will be Issac Stern, American violinist, and Joseph DePasquale, the Boston Symphony's first violist. These two artists will play the Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat for Violin and Viola, on Sunday, and Mr. Stern will be soloist Saturday in the Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in G.

Other works include: Saturday, the Divertimento in D for Strings, the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments and the "Prague" Symphony in D.

Sunday: The Overture to the "Marriage of Figaro," the Eine Kleine Nachtmusik Serenade and Symphony No. 41 in D Major, the "Jupiter."

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION

JUL 9 - 1953

Program for Tanglewood Concert Series Announced

Concerts and other events of interest to the public which will take place at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Friday, July 10 through Sunday, July 19, inclusive, are as follows:

Friday, July 10—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra concert by students of Department I
Saturday, July 11—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1 in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin)
No. 3 in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Lukas Foss, piano; Doriot Anthony, flute; Richard Burgin violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)
Sunday, July 12—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor
Bach ...... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
(Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass)
Bach ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony, flute)
Bach .... Suite No. 3, in D major
8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III
Wednesday, July 15—*8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge
Fernando Valenti, Harpsichord; Julius Baker Flute; Daniel Saidenberg, Cello
Trio Sonata .... Georg Telemann
Four Sonatas (Harpsichord Solo) .... Domenico Scarlatti
Sonata for Cello and Continuo (From "Der Getreue Musikmeister") .... Georg Telemann
Trio Sonata in G major .... Antonio Lotti
Sonata a Trois in B minor..J. B. Loeillet
Sonata No. 5 for Flute and Harpsichord .... Georg Handel
Pieces de Clavecin en Concert, No. 3 .... J. P. Rameau
Friday, July 17—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra Concert by students of Department I
Saturday, July 18—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart..Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart .... Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart .... Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)
Sunday, July 19—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"
Mozart .... Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale)
Mozart .. Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart .... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)
*8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school.

This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEX.
MORNING STAR-TELEGRAM

JUL 5. 1953

'Nicest Job' Very Strenuous Keeps Music Recorder in Trot

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP). — James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He probably has the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra Program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:30-4 p. m. KRLD-CBS).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in The Hague and Amsterdam. Then he will return to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne opera, the Highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

This Clipping From
NEW YORKER
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 18 1953

IN THE COUNTRY

Berkshire Festival—Charles Münch conducting the Boston Symphony—Saturday, July 18, at 8:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 19, at 2:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 25, at 8:30: An all-Haydn program; no soloists. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 26, at 2:30: With Vera Zorina narrating a cantata by Lukas Foss. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The Festival will continue through Sunday, Aug. 16.)

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 5 - 1953

Berkshire Music Center's Opening Exercises Today

Charles Munch Expected From Paris to Greet Students and Guests at Tanglewood Program

(Special to The Republican)

Berkshire Hills, July 4 — Charles Munch, director of Berkshire Music Center, Lenox, and conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, succeeding the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, is expected to arrive today by plane from France, in time to greet students and guests at the opening exercises of the school's 11th annual session, which begins Sunday afternoon at 3.30 in Tanglewood Theater. Presiding at the exercises will be Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Society of Friends of Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school. Henry B. Cabot of Boston, president of Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Aaron Copeland, assistant director, will be speakers.

A tradition established at the opening of the center in 1940 will be carried on Sunday afternoon when Hugh Ross will conduct the student chorus in the singing of "Alleluia," which was written for the occasion by Randall Thompson. Following exercises, tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden.

Festival Boxholders

Of the 79 boxholders for concerts at Tanglewood, 24 of these are summer or permanent residents of the Berkshires. County subscribers are Dr. and Mrs. James Phinney Baxter, 3d, of Williamstown, Mr. and Mrs. George Sokolsky of Otis, Mr. and Mrs. William Felton Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Wheeler, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Blodgett of Great Barrington, Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood R. Burdsall of Egremont, Richard L. Strobridge of South Egremont, Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Straus 2d., of New York and Great Barrington.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane, Jr., of Dalton; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Whittlesey, and Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Blau and Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Jalonack of Pittsfield; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Sanborn of Lenox; Miss Mable Choate, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoving, Mrs. Walter Janney, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Karrick, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Proctor, Mrs. George Otis Rockwood and Donald Ryan, all of Stockbridge; Dr. Walter Van Vorst of Housatonic, and Robert Anderson of Great Barrington.

Others from surrounding Berkshire area include Mr. and Mrs. John Williams of Old Chatham, N. Y., Miss Edith Scoville, William W. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whitridge and Mrs. Donald J. Warner of Salisbury, Conn., Mrs. Harold Hatch and Mrs. Edwin C. Jameson of Sharon, Conn., Henry S. Redmond of Norfolk, Conn., and Gordon Mendelssohn of Millbrook, N. Y.

Other boxholders are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Thomas of Pawlings, N. Y., Frederick W. Beinecke of New York and Great Barrington, Merrill H. Whitney of New York, Mrs. A. T. Fuller of Boston and Little Boar's Head, N. H., and Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield of Marblehead.

Bernstein To Conduct

Leonard Bernstein, composer and conductor, will again act as instructor and will conduct the concert in the music shed at Tanglewood Saturday, Aug. 8. This will be the 11th year Mr. Bernstein has been associated with the music school, in addition to appearing as conductor at the regular concerts and as a general consulatant in in music affairs. He has been so much a familiar figure at the music school and annual festival that he had been called by his associates and friends "Mr. Tanglewood." Me and Mrs. Bernstein are occupying a house this season in Hillsdale, N. Y., about 20 miles from Tanglewood.

Fireworks Display at Club

Members of Wyantenuck Country Club will stage their annual fireworks display on the club grounds tonight. Ever since the ban went into effect against the use of fireworks, the display at the country club has attracted hundreds of people. The pyrotechnics take place alongside the 18th fairway in front of the clubhouse.

Club members enjoyed a social evening prior to the fireworks, when a buffet supper was held.

Barn Restaurant Opens

The Barn Restaurant at Pleasant Valley Sanctuary, Lenox, opened for the season Wednesday, and it will be managed again by Mrs. Marion H. Spence of Hanover.

Robert Crane, head of the sanctuary, announced that luncheon will be served daily from 12 noon to 1.30 p. m., and dinners from 5.30 to 7.30 excepting Mondays. On Wednesday nights, special buffet suppers will be served. Assisting Mrs. Spence in the opperation of the restaurant will be her daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Hamm of Portland, Ore.

The santuary is one of the leading points of interest in the Berkshires. It is a favorite for sightseers and nature lovers. The walks among the well-blended woods, the brooks, and the large variety of birds and other denizens of the fields, make the place a virtual paradise of the summer season. It is a favorite visiting place for

(Continued on Page 2C)

suits, dresses evening gowns reduced.

M

To Be Featured At Tanglewood

Works by Mozart will feature the second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the theater at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening, July 18, at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoon, July 19, at 2:30.

Isaac Stern, violin, will be soloist with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Stern will play the Concerto in G (K. 216) Saturday, and the Sinfonia Concertante, with Joseph de Pasquale, viola, Sunday.

Another feature will be the first performance anywhere of the Divertimento in D for Strings (K. 136) with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday program.

Complete programs for the two concerts:

Saturday evening — Divertimento in D For Strings; Concerto in G, Mr. Stern, soloist; Serenade For Thirteen Winds (K. 361); "Prague" Symphony.

Sunday afternoon — Overture, "Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, Mr. Stern, Mr. De Pasquale, soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; "Jupiter" Symphony.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL

JUL 19 1953

Music For

By SIGMUND SPAETH

* * *

Music Festivals are scheduled for the near future all over America and Europe, with the Berkshire, Chicagoland, Bayreuth and Salzbury outstanding as usual. Direct broadcasts from abroad as well as at home are being brought to American listeners by James Tassett over the Columbia Network. Such a coverage of summer music has never before been achieved by radio.

* * *

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Ready at Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music Festival, [illegible] has achieved pre-eminence [illegible] American summer musical [illegible] opens today, with a [illegible] continuing [illegible] of August. Besides [illegible] in the Theater-Con[illegible] [illegible] series in the [illegible] starting on the [illegible] the usual student [illegible] and [illegible] opera and [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] international series [illegible] with Florence, Salzburg [illegible] and Edinburgh.

Another innovation at Tanglewood this year is the change from Sunday to Friday night for the [illegible] weeks of Shed concerts, [illegible] of Saturday night and Sunday afternoon being presented as [illegible] last year. For the first [illegible] the traditional Bach-Mozart [illegible] in the Theater-Concert [illegible] were broadened to include the [illegible] of several other composers, [illegible] practice is being continued. Several new soloists and [illegible] have been engaged this [illegible] and the number of students [illegible] Berkshire Music Center has [illegible] record.

In the Shed programs there [illegible] admirable mixture of standard and modern foreign and American compositions. Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith, Darius Milhaud and Samuel Barber, as well as Carlos Chavez of Mexico, represent New World talent, while the [illegible] Bostonian Lukas Foss will [illegible] his own Piano Concerto [illegible] another native Bay Stater, [illegible] Bernstein, will conduct the [illegible] Symphony on two Saturday [illegible]

Likewise the orchestra will be [illegible] by its regular leader, [illegible] Munch, save for a Sunday [illegible] all-Tchaikowsky program [illegible] Pierre Monteux on the podium. Of the standard symphonies, one by Tchaikowsky, one by Brahams, one by Mendelssohn and two by Schubert will be performed; this may be the first time that none by Beethoven will be heard during a Tanglewood season, the master being represented only by his "Lenore" Overture, No. 3.

A great deal of clerical work is required to make ready for the six-week season at Lenox, not to mention the intensive preparation of the musicians themselves. Other similar festivals may flourish in other parts of the country, but none has quite the combination of scope and quality, setting and background, of this one so close to home. Tanglewood is generally conceded to be the summer capital of music on this side of the Atlantic.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 17 1953

Mozart Music For Tanglewood

Mozart music will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch Saturday and Sunday at Tanglewood outside of Lenox, Mass.

Soloists for the two concerts, one Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and the other Sunday at 2:30 p. m., will be Issac Stern, American violinist, and Joseph DePasquale, the Boston Symphony's first violist. These two artists will play the Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat for Violin and Viola, on Sunday, and Mr. Stern will be soloist Saturday in the Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in G.

Other works include: Saturday, the Divertimento in D for Strings, the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments and the "Prague" Symphony in D.

Sunday: The Overture to the "Marriage of Figaro," the Eine Kleine Nachtmusik Serenade and Symphony No. 41 in D Major, the "Jupiter."

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUL 9 - 1953

Program for Tanglewood Concert Series Announced

Concerts and other events of interest to the public which will take place at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Friday, July 10 through Sunday, July 19, inclusive, are as follows:

Friday, July 10—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra concert by students of Department I
Saturday, July 11—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1 in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin)
No. 3 in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Lukas Foss, piano; Doriot Anthony, flute; Richard Burgin violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)
Sunday, July 12—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor
Bach ...... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
(Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass)
Bach ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony, flute)
Bach .... Suite No. 3, in D major
8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III
Wednesday, July 15—*8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge
Fernando Valenti, Harpsichord; Julius Baker Flute; Daniel Saidenberg, Cello
Trio Sonata .... Georg Telemann
Four Sonatas (Harpsichord Solo) .... Domenico Scarlatti
Sonata for Cello and Continuo
(From "Der Getreue Musikmeister") .... Georg Telemann
Trio Sonata in G major .... Antonio Lotti
Sonata a Trois in B minor..J. B. Loeillet
Sonata No. 5 for Flute and Harpsichord .... Georg Handel
Pieces de Clavecin en Concert, No. 3 .... J. P. Rameau
Friday, July 17—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra Concert by students of Department I
Saturday July 18—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart..Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart .... Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart .... Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)
Sunday, July 19—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"
Mozart .... Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale)
Mozart .. Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart .... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)
*8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school.

This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEX.
MORNING STAR-TELEGRAM
JUL 5. 1953

'Nicest Job' Very Strenuous Keeps Music Recorder in Trot

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP). — James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He probably has the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra Program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:30-4 p. m. KRLD-CBS).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in The Hague and Amsterdam. Then he will return to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne opera, the Highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

This Clipping From
NEW YORKER
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 18 1953

IN THE COUNTRY

Berkshire Festival—Charles Münch conducting the Boston Symphony—Saturday, July 18, at 8:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 19, at 2:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 25, at 8:30: An all-Haydn program; no soloists. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 26, at 2:30: With Vera Zorina narrating a cantata by Lukas Foss. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The Festival will continue through Sunday, Aug. 16.)

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUL 10 1953

Festival Opens Saturday Night At Tanglewood

[illegible] first 1953 Berkshire Festival [illegible] the Tanglewood [illegible]cert hall will be held [illegible] at 8:30 when [illegible] will conduct [illegible] Boston Symphony [illegible] all-Bach program [illegible] of five of the six [illegible] Concertos, No. 1, [illegible] F (with flute, oboe, [illegible] violin); No. 3, in G [illegible] D (with [illegible] and No. [illegible] Lukas Foss [illegible] his memorable [illegible] Members of [illegible] solo roles [illegible] Harold [illegible] Roger Voisin, [illegible] Richard [illegible]

[illegible] at, [illegible] will open [illegible] per- [illegible] No. 28, [illegible] and [illegible] Bet- [illegible] John McCollum, [illegible] Morgan, bass, [illegible] Suite No. [illegible] in D

---

certo for Violin
n the Theater-

OSTON, MASS.
HERALD
L 4 - 1953

h Arrives to Tanglewood

es Munch, music directo Boston Symphony, ha in Tanglewood to a summer duties as co of the 1953 Berkshi at Lenox after vacation in his nativ He will address th exercises of the Ber Music Center on Sund n and conduct membe Boston Symphony in th two all-Bach program Theater-Concert Ha y evening, July 11, a afternoon, July 12.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 3 - 1953

CITY CENTER GETS GRANT OF $200,000

Rockefeller Foundation Gives 3-Year Aid for New Opera and Ballet Productions

The City Center of Music and Drama has received a grant of $200,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation to be applied toward expenses of creating new productions in opera and ballet, it was announced yesterday by Newbold Morris, chairman of the board of directors.

The fund is to be used in the three years ending July 1, 1956. In the 1953-54 season, $100,000 will be spent; in 1954-55, $60,000, and in 1955-56, $40,000. Lincoln Kerstein, managing director of the City Center, will supervise the expenditure.

The City Center is accepting the $200,000 with the understanding that it represents a single appropriation and without expectation of renewal. It is further understood that the grant will be used for commissioning and designing new productions rather than for the costs of performance and execution of designs.

Added to Gifts of Public

Notice that the grant had been approved was sent to Mr. Morris by the Rockefeller Foundation in a letter dated May 14, about a month after the opening of the City Center's public appeal for funds.

"I was reluctant to announce this extremely generous and public-spirited assistance, coming from the world-famous Rockefeller Foundation, until all obligations of the City Center had been liquidated and we could announce with confidence that we would complete our first ten years of existence as a going concern," Mr. Morris said. "I can now announce a total amount of $132,052 collected since the drive commenced in mid-April."

This $132,052 was contributed by the public, exclusive of the grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Need for Working Capital

"While the Rockefeller grant will make possible the orderly scheduling of new creative effort," Mr. Morris said, "production costs must, as heretofore, be paid out of working capital. Therefore we must redouble our efforts to collect another $75,000 to replenish our working capital."

The $200,000 for the City Center is the second large grant made by the Rockefeller Foundation on behalf of music in recent months. In April the foundation, which had not made a musical appropriation since its 1939 grant of $60,000 to the Berkshire Music Center, allocated ~~$400,000~~ to the Louisville Symphony Orchestra.

This sum will be spent by the orchestra over a four-year period to increase its season to forty-six weeks, with new compositions to be presented every week.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUL 12 1953

Mozart Works To Be Featured At Tanglewood

Works by Mozart will feature the second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the theater at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening, July 18, at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoon, July 19, at 2:30.

Isaac Stern, violin, will be soloist with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Stern will play the Concerto in G (K. 216) Saturday, and the Sinfonia Concertante, with Joseph de Pasquale, viola, Sunday.

Another feature will be the first performance anywhere of the Divertimento in D for Strings (K. 136) with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday program.

Complete programs for the two concerts:

Saturday evening — Divertimento in D For Strings; Concerto in G, Mr. Stern, soloist; Serenade For Thirteen Winds (K. 361); "Prague" Symphony.

Sunday afternoon — Overture, "Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, Mr. Stern, Mr. De Pasquale, soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; "Jupiter" Symphony.

BERKSHIRE MUSIC

(Continued From Page 1C)

any who come to attend Tangle ood music festival.

Lenox Club Luncheon

Lenox Club held its regular ourth of July luncheon today, hich has been a cusom of the ub for the past 60 years. Miss onstance Parish of New York has rived at the club for her annual ay. Mrs. Pierre Jay of New York d Green Lane Cottage, Mt. Kisco, . Y., who is at present visiting on e Continent, expects to be at the ub later in the season for an in finite stay. She has been a visi r in Lenox regularly for more at 65 years.

Briefs

The Church-On-the-Hill, Lenox, is w being used for Sunday servic and special music will be heard ch Sunday morning presented by usicians who are identified with nglewood festival, and other ests. Dr. Harry Trust, the pastor, s been in Beech Hill, Me., for a cation at his cottage and is ex cted home this week. His sister, iss Alice Trust; who is with him, ill return and reside at the Lenox rsonage.

Wendell Corey, well-known screen d television actor of Hollywood, l., who was seen this week in the deo show produced by Robert ontgomery, announced that he d his family are leaving from ew York, where the play was pro iced, for Washington, in the Berk ires, to sepnd some time at the rey homestead.

Dr. Harvey Spencer has returned om Chicago, Ill., to his home in ockbridge, where he presided at e 15th annual congress of the uild of Carillonneurs of North merica, held at the University of icago. He was re-elected presi nt of the group.

The music room at Lenox library now open to the public daily om 2 to 5 p. m. It has proven a eat accommodation to music vers in this area.

Mrs. Shaun Kelly of [illegible] e Farm, Richmond, has been ending this week with her son-in w and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. dwin H. B. Pratt of Marion.

Stockbridge Golf Club is the ene of the third annual hole-in e tournament currently being ld. It began yesterday and will me to a close Sunday. The event open to men, women, and junior lfers, and they do not necessarily ve to belong to a club to partici ate in the event.

About 100 representatives from e United States and Canada of the oston, Dickinson Co., makers of edical and surgical instruments, ave concluded a full week's con ention at Berkshire Inn, Great arrington. Among those attending e convention and remaining over s guests at the inn were H. P. Bec n of Rutherford, N. J., Fairleigh ickenson of Ridgewood, N. J., and . Wayne Johnson of Rutherford.

Springfiled residents who have een guests at the inn recently ere Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hur y, Dr. and Mrs. William F. Dono hue, Dr. and Mrs. Roger H. Chen y and Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Alican ri.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clayton of ew York, who are annual guests t the inn, have arrived for the ummer stay.

[illegible] variety of [illegible] other denizens of the fields, make the place a virtual paradise of the summer season. It is a favorite visiting place for

(Continued on Page 2C)

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL
JUL 19 1953

Music For

By SIGMUND SPAETH

* * *

Music Festivals are scheduled for the near future all over America and Europe, with the Berkshire, Chicagoland, Bayreuth and Salzbury outstanding as usual. Direct broadcasts from abroad as well as at home are being brought to American listeners by James Tassett over the Columbia Network. Such a coverage of summer music has never before been achieved by radio.

* * *

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 5 - 1953

Ready at Tanglewood

The Berkshire Music Festival, which has achieved pre-eminence among American summer musical fixtures, opens today, with a wide variety of activities continuing until the middle of August. Besides the concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall, beginning Saturday night and the major series in the big Music Shed, starting on the [illegible], there are the usual student groups in orchestral and choral work as well as in composing, conducting, opera and chamber music.

While thousands will again have the privilege of attending the public performances in person, countless others will be able to enjoy the concord of sweet sounds on the radio, since portions of four Sunday afternoon programs are to be broadcast. Both audiences should note that all the Sunday programs are to start at 2.30, to fit into the network schedules; the broadcasts will last an hour and a half, providing rather more than half a loaf for those unable to attend. Tanglewood thus becomes part of the CBS summer international series, along with Florence, Salzburg, Bayreuth and Edinburgh.

Another innovation at Tanglewood this year is the change from Thursday to Friday night for the three weeks of Shed concerts, those of Saturday night and Sunday afternoon being presented as usual. Last year, for the first time, the traditional Bach-Mozart concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall were broadened to include the works of several other composers, and this practice is being continued. Several new soloists and instructors have been engaged this year, and the number of students at the Berkshire Music Center has set a record.

As to the Shed programs, there is an admirable mixture of standard and modern, foreign and American compositions. Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith, Darius Milhaud and Samuel Barber, as well as Carlos Chavez of Mexico, represent New World talent, while the young Bostonian Lukas Foss will perform his own Piano Concerto No. 2; another native Bay Stater, Leonard Bernstein, will conduct the Boston Symphony on two Saturday nights.

Otherwise the orchestra will be directed by its regular leader, Charles Munch, save for a Sunday afternoon all-Tchaikowsky program with Pierre Monteux on the podi. Of the standard symphonies, one by Tchaikowsky, one by Brahams, one by Mendelssohn and two by Schubert will be performed; this may be the first time that none by Beethoven will be heard during a Tanglewood season, the master being represented only by his "Lenore" Overture, No. 3.

A great deal of clerical work is required to make ready for the six-week season at Lenox, not to mention the intensive preparation of the musicians themselves. Other similar festivals may flourish in other parts of the country, but none has quite the combination of scope and quality, setting and background, of this one so close to home. Tanglewood is generally conceded to be the summer capital of music on this side of the Atlantic.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 17 1953

Mozart Music For Tanglewood

Mozart music will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch Saturday and Sunday at Tanglewood outside of Lenox, Mass.

Soloists for the two concerts, one Saturday at 8:30 p. m. and the other Sunday at 2:30 p. m., will be Issac Stern, American violinist, and Joseph DePasquale, the Boston Symphony's first violist. These two artists will play the Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat for Violin and Viola, on Sunday, and Mr. Stern will be soloist Saturday in the Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in G.

Other works include: Saturday, the Divertimento in D for Strings, the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments and the "Prague" Symphony in D.

Sunday: The Overture to the "Marriage of Figaro," the Eine Kleine Nachtmusik Serenade and Symphony No. 41 in D Major, the "Jupiter."

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUL 9 - 1953

Program for Tanglewood Concert Series Announced

Concerts and other events of interest to the public which will take place at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Lenox, Friday, July 10 through Sunday, July 19, inclusive, are as follows:

Friday, July 10—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra concert by students of Department I
Saturday, July 11—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1 in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin)
No. 3 in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Lukas Foss, piano; Doriot Anthony, flute; Richard Burgin violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)
Sunday, July 12—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor
Bach ...... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
(Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass)
Bach ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony, flute)
Bach .... Suite No. 3, in D major
8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III
Wednesday, July 15—*8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Baroque Trio, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge
Fernando Valenti, Harpsichord; Julius Baker, Flute; Daniel Saidenberg, Cello
Trio Sonata .... Georg Telemann
Four Sonatas (Harpsichord Solo) .... Domenico Scarlatti
Sonata for Cello and Continuo (From "Der Getreue Musikmeister") .... Georg Telemann
Trio Sonata in G major .... Antonio Lotti
Sonata a Trois in B minor..J. B. Loeillet
Sonata No. 5 for Flute and Harpsichord .... Georg Handel
Pieces de Clavecin en Concert, No. 3 .... J. P. Rameau
Friday, July 17—*8.30 p. m.—Music Shed
Orchestra Concert by students of Department I
Saturday July 18—8.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart..Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart .... Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart .... Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)
Sunday, July 19—*10.00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Chamber Music concert by students of Department I
2.30 p. m.—Theater-Concert Hall
Berkshire Festival Concert — Charles Munch, conductor
Mozart .... Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"
Mozart .... Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale)
Mozart .. Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart .... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)
*8.30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall
Composers' Forum, by students of Department III

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school.

This Clipping From
FORT WORTH, TEX.
MORNING STAR-TELEGRAM
JUL 5. 1953

'Nicest Job' Very Strenuous Keeps Music Recorder in Trot

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP). — James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He probably has the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra Program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:30-4 p. m. KRLD-CBS).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in The Hague and Amsterdam. Then he will return to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne opera, the Highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUL 10 1953

Festival Opens Saturday Night At Tanglewood

The first 1953 Berkshire Festival concert in the Tanglewood Theatre-Concert hall will be held Saturday night at 8:30 when Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in an all-Bach program consisting of five of the six Brandenburg Concertos—No. 1, in F; No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin); No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) and No. 6, in B-flat (strings). Lukas Foss will be heard in his memorable piano solo in No. 5. Members of the orchestra taking soloist roles are Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin.

The second Bach concert, at 2:30 Sunday afternoon, will open with the orchestra's first performance of the Cantata No. 28, with the Festival chorus, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2 in B minor, for flute and strings. The program concludes with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

---

erto for Violin
the Theater-

STON, MASS.
HERALD
4 - 1953

Arrives to Tanglewood

Munch, music directo
Symphony, ha Tanglewood to a summer duties as co
of the 1953 Berkshi at Lenox after vacation in his nati will address th exercises of the Ber Center on Sund and conduct memb
Symphony in t all- program
Concert Ha
July 11, a
July 12.

This Clipping From
NEW YORKER
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 18 1953

IN THE COUNTRY

Berkshire Festival—Charles Münch conducting the Boston Symphony—Saturday, July 18, at 8:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 19, at 2:30: An all-Mozart program, with Isaac Stern, violin, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. . . . ¶ Saturday, July 25, at 8:30: An all-Haydn program; no soloists. . . . ¶ Sunday, July 26, at 2:30: With Vera Zorina narrating a cantata by Lukas Foss. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. The Festival will continue through Sunday, Aug. 16.)

[182]

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 3 - 1953

CITY CENTER GETS GRANT OF $200,000

Rockefeller Foundation Gives 3-Year Aid for New Opera and Ballet Productions

The City Center of Music and Drama has received a grant of $200,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation to be applied toward expenses of creating new productions in opera and ballet, it was announced yesterday by Newbold Morris, chairman of the board of directors.

The fund is to be used in the three years ending July 1, 1956. In the 1953-54 season, $100,000 will be spent; in 1954-55, $60,000, and in 1955-56, $40,000. Lincoln Kerstein, managing director of the City Center, will supervise the expenditure.

The City Center is accepting the $200,000 with the understanding that it represents a single appropriation and without expectation of renewal. It is further understood that the grant will be used for commissioning and designing new productions rather than for the costs of performance and execution of designs.

Added to Gifts of Public

Notice that the grant had been approved was sent to Mr. Morris by the Rockefeller Foundation in a letter dated May 14, about a month after the opening of the City Center's public appeal for funds.

"I was reluctant to announce this extremely generous and public-spirited assistance, coming from the world-famous Rockefeller Foundation, until all obligations of the City Center had been liquidated and we could announce with confidence that we would complete our first ten years of existence as a going concern," Mr. Morris said. "I can now announce a total amount of $132,052 collected since the drive commenced in mid-April."

This $132,052 was contributed by the public, exclusive of the grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Need for Working Capital

"While the Rockefeller grant will make possible the orderly scheduling of new creative effort," Mr. Morris said, "production costs must, as heretofore, be paid out of working capital. Therefore we must redouble our efforts to collect another $75,000 to replenish our working capital."

The $200,000 for the City Center is the second large grant made by the Rockefeller Foundation on behalf of music in recent months. In April the foundation, which had not made a musical appropriation since its 1939 grant of $60,000 to the Berkshire Music Center, allocated ~~$400,000~~ to the Louisville Symphony Orchestra.

This sum will be spent by the orchestra over a four-year period to increase its season to forty-six weeks, with new compositions to be presented every week.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
JUL 1 2 1953

Mozart Works To Be Featured At Tanglewood

Works by Mozart will feature the second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the theater at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening, July 18, at 8:30 o'clock, and Sunday afternoon, July 19, at 2:30.

Isaac Stern, violin, will be soloist with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Stern will play the Concerto in G (K. 216) Saturday, and the Sinfonia Concertante, with Joseph de Pasquale, viola, Sunday.

Another feature will be the first performance anywhere of the Divertimento in D for Strings (K. 136) with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday program.

Complete programs for the two concerts:

Saturday evening — Divertimento in D For Strings; Concerto in G, Mr. Stern, soloist; Serenade For Thirteen Winds (K. 361); "Prague" Symphony.

Sunday afternoon — Overture, "Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, Mr. Stern, Mr. De Pasquale, soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; "Jupiter" Symphony.

BERKSHIRE MUSIC

(Continued From Page 1C)

any who come to attend Tangleood music festival.

Lenox Club Luncheo

Lenox Club held its regular ourth of July luncheon today, hich has been a cusom of the ub for the past 60 years. Miss onstance Parish of New York has rrived at the club for her annual
ay. Mrs. Pierre Jay of New York
d Green Lane Cottage, Mt. Kisco, Y., who is at present visiting on e Continent, expects to be at the ub later in the season for an in-efinite stay. She has been a visir in Lenox regularly for more at 65 years.

Briefs

The Church-On-the-Hill, Lenox, is w being used for Sunday servic and special music will be heard ch Sunday morning presented by usicians who are identified with anglewood festival, and other ests. Dr. Harry Trust, the pastor, s been in Beech Hill, Me., for a cation at his cottage and is ex-cted home this week. His sister, iss Alice Trust, who is with him, ll return and reside at the Lenox rsonage.

Wendell Corey, well-known screen
d television actor of Hollywood, l., who was seen this week in the deo show produced by Robert ontgomery, announced that he d his family are leaving from ew York, where the play was pro-uced, for Washington, in the Berkires, to sepnd some time at the rey homestead.

Dr. Harvey Spencer has returned om Chicago, Ill., to his home in ockbridge, where he presided at e 15th annual congress of the uild of Carillonnqurs of North merica, held at the University of icago. He was re-elected presint of the group.

The music room at Lenox library now open to the public daily om 2 to 5 p. m. It has proven a eat accommodation to music vers in this area.

Mrs. Shaun Kelly of e Farm, Richmond, has been ending this week with her son-in-w and daughter, Mr. and Mrs.
dwin H. B. Pratt of Marion.

Stockbridge Golf Club is the ene of the third annual hole-ine tournament currently being ld. It began yesterday and will me to a close Sunday. The event open to men, women, and junior lfers, and they do not necessarily ve to belong to a club to partici-te in the event.

About 100 representatives from e United States and Canada of the oston, Dickinson Co., makers of edical and surgical instruments, ve concluded a full week's con-ntion at Berkshire Inn, Great arrington. Among those attending e convention and remaining over guests at the inn were H. P. Becn of Rutherford, N. J., Fairleigh ickenson of Ridgewood, N. J., and Wayne Johnson of Rutherford.

Springfiled residents who have een guests at the inn recently ere Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Hury, Dr. and Mrs. William F. Donohue, Dr. and Mrs. Roger H. Chen-y and Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Alican-ri.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Clayton of ew York, who are annual guests t the inn, have arrived for the ummer stay.

other denizens of the fields, make the place a virtual paradise for the summer season. It is a favorite visiting place for

(Continued on Page 2C)

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL
JUL 19 1953

Music For

By SIGMUND SPAETH

Music Festivals are scheduled for the near future all over America and Europe, with the Berkshire, Chicagoland, Bayreuth and Salzbury outstanding as usual. Direct broadcasts from abroad as well as at home are being brought to American listeners by James Tassett over the Columbia Network. Such a coverage of summer music has never before been achieved by radio.

* * *

This Clipping From
ST. LOUIS, MO.
GLOBE DEMOCRAT

JUL 6 - 19

Rounseville Quit Medicine for Opera Career and Fame

By SHIRLEY ALTHOFF

A number of years ago at Tufts College in Medford, Mass., a young pre-medical student was making his way through college working in a dance band. His father was a doctor and since his early youth, he had intended to follow him.

Then, luckily for thousands of music lovers, he decided he liked singing better than surgery and changed his career. For the young student was Robert Rounseville, one of the great tenors of our times, who's appearing in the role of Baron von Schober in "Blossom Time" at the Municipal Opera this week. He will also play Don Jose in the Muny's version of "Carmen" later in the season.

Soon after he decided to switch from medicine to music, he quit school and began singing in night clubs and revues. At 19, the tall, slender tenor was in the Broadway production of "Babes in Arms." Following this he appeared in "Robin Hood" on Broadway and other roles.

Then the blue-eyed singer with the broad smile and slightly tousled hair made another decision. He decided to concentrate on serious singing and began to study strenuously. The Rounseville family, then included his wife, Anne, a non-professional, and a young daughter, Floreen, who, incidentally, was born on the opening night of "Babes in Arms." He is now also the father of a 2-year-old son, Wilfred.

★

IN 1946, his home town of Attleboro, Mass., sponsored his appearance at Tanglewood, famed music center in the beautiful, peaceful Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. The music camp was founded in 1940 by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, for many years the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, whose plan it was to have some place where talented young musicians could study with acknowledged leaders in their own fields.

Tanglewood was the turning point in Robert Rounseville's career. It was there that Laszlo Halasz of the New York City Opera Company heard him sing. Impressed, he signed Bob and cast him in "Pelleas and Melisande" the following fall. After that, he played many roles for the City Opera Company, including Hoffman in "Tales of Hoffman," which he later played in the world-famous film version.

Landing the role of Hoffman in the English film came as a surprise for the American tenor. Playing a concert in Chicago, he decided to go to a lecture by Mary Garden, the opera star, whom he had met a short time before. After the lecture was over, he was on his way backstage to pay his respects to Miss Garden when he saw Virgil Thomson, music critic for the New York Herald Tribune.

★

BOB HAD NEVER met Thomson, a composer, but the latter had praised him highly in his reviews, and Bob wanted to thank him. He introduced himself to the critic who immediately said "Where have you been? We knew you were in Chicago and were trying to find you." Thomson then turned to the gentleman who was sitting next to him and said, "This is the tenor I was telling you about."

ROBERT ROUNSEVILLE

Thomson's seat mate was Sir Thomas Beecham, peer among musicians and conductor of the London Symphony. Sir Thomas was looking for a tenor to play Hoffman in the "Tales of Hoffman" film and Virgil Thomson had recommended Robert Rounseville. The handsome tenor auditioned and got the role.

"Hoffman" made Rounseville one of the notables of the musical world. Soon after, Igor Stravinsky selected him to create the title role in his "The Rake's Progress," the world premiere of which was held in Venice. In less than a month after that, Bob played in "The Dybbuk" at its world debut in New York. Since then, he has played in concerts and operas all over the country, as well as television, which he thinks is "tremendous."

★

Talking to Rounseville, who now makes his home in New York, at lunch the other day, he seemed very unlike the melancholy Hoffman who wandered about Europe trying to find his true love. Clad in a polka-dot blue sports shirt, he would punctuate his story every now and then with a deep, booming laugh. He is visibly excited over playing the title role in Billy Rose's production of "Orpheus in the Underworld" which will open on Broadway next season. He is even studying violin for the role.

Before "Orpheus," he will go to Italy to sing the tenor lead in the Italian film version of "Madame Butterfly." He wants very much to continue his concert career and has a tentative tour for next spring.

He is a man of many ambitions. One of his goals is to find a musical vehicle that can be handled like Charles Laughton's "Don Juan in Hell" presentation or the more recent "John Brown's Body." He would also like to do a musical version of the mystery drama, "Night Must Fall," in which he would play Danny, the psychological killer.

Third, and probably most extensive of his plans, is to restage many of the old opera classics "making them palatable for the masses, not just the elite."

One of the big thrills in his life came last fall when the young tenor, who quit school to embark on a singing career and never received a college degree, was awarded an honorary degree by the school he had left—Tufts College.

Cir. 1-

This Clipping From
ROCHESTER, N. Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE

JUL 7 - 1953

Musical High Note

Many a professional musician would be dismayed, we imagine, if a big organization like the Berkshire Music Center requested: "Write me an opera." Of course the commission that has come to Louis Mennini of the Eastman School faculty is not quite so casual as that, but it is nonetheless a big order that probably looks even bigger the more one knows about music. Mr. Mennini is one of two composers selected by the Berkshire Center to test out its theory that good American opera can be written by the simple device of asking qualified composers to write it.

The honor to Mr. Mennini is an exceptional one and we are assured by those who know his past work that he will rise to it. He is a graduate of the Eastman School and studied composition under Dr. Howard Hanson and Bernard Rogers. His one-act opera "The Well," written three years ago, has been presented here and elsewhere. He has written music in other forms. Under the terms of the Berkshire contract the opera must be ready for presentation next Summer. Thus far, not even the subject matter has been decided.

The kind of opera that comes out of this commission depends entirely on the creative spirit of the composer back of it. There is no reason, so far as we know, why a good opera might not be written on order, provided there is inspiration in it. "Cavalleria Rusticana" was dashed off by Mascagni in an urge to win a prize contest. The great Beethoven, who had no particular taste for opera, wrote "Fidelio" at the request of a theater man. By hard work he turned out a masterpiece.

So Mr. Mennini has plenty of encouraging precedent behind him. We hope for a work of real melodiousness and lasting value, for his own sake, for the sake of good music and for the sake of the city that will get reflected glory from it.

This Clipping From
ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

JUL 9 - 1953

Berkshire Festival to Open With Weekend of Bach

Two Bach concerts will comprise the opening programs of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this weekend.

Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the first all-Bach program at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

The second of the weekend concerts will be offered at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, with Hugh Ross conducting.

A feature of the Saturday night concert will be the performance by Lukas Foss, composer-conductor-pianist, of the piano solo in Brandenburg Concerto No. 5.

Members of the orchestra who will take soloist roles are: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and concertmaster Richard Burgin, violin.

The orchestra's first performance of Cantata No. 28, with the festive chorus, will open the Sunday afternoon Bach concert. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings.

Soloists will be Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor, and the Morgan, bass.

Suite No. 3 in D will conclude the program.

This Clipping From DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

JUL 5 1953

The Musical Digest

By IRVING KOLODIN

PROCEEDING on the theory that there is nothing like using a workshop to turn out durable goods, Boris Goldovsky has persuaded the directors of the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., to commission a pair of one-act operas from young American composers. He hopes they will have them ready for use by the opera department, of which Goldovsky is director, by next summer. The composers, chosen from recommendations made by Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein and Howard Hanson, are Leonard Rosenman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester.

In addition to a cash award of $750, each man will spend the summer as a guest of the music center, working directly with the staff of the opera department in the planning and creation of the works.

This Clipping From DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

JUL 1 1953

★ ★ Chatterbox ★ ★

Winner's Mantelpiece Extra Large

CONTRARY TO trends elsewhere, George E. Judd, manager of the famed Berkshire Festival concerts in Tanglewood, Mass., happily announced the series subscription sales have surpassed those of 1952 by nearly $2,000. . . . Louisville's (Ky.) historic ban against admitting Negroes to its white city parks has been lifted temporarily so that all patrons may see "The Tall Kentuckian," the musical drama based on Lincoln's slavery efforts, currently on view at the Iroquois Park Amphitheater.

—RUAL ASKEW.

Eagle July 17

TANGLEWOOD
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
SAT. EVES. AT 8.30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2.30
Next Sat. Eve. and Sun. afternoon—Mozart program
All reserved seats taken—General Admission $2.00—
July 25, 26 (Haydn and 20th Century Programs—a few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert)
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

Student Concert Tomorrow Night

The second [illegible] concert by [illegible] student orchestra of the Berkshire Music Center [illegible] terday [illegible] ing [illegible] Charles [illegible] and [illegible] Mand[illegible] will be [illegible] the [illegible]

Opera Students To Sing at St. Ann's

LENOX [illegible] opera department [illegible] Music Center at [illegible] be soloists [illegible] the 10.30 mass at St. Ann[illegible] They are Miss Ann [illegible] lish, soprano [illegible] baritone. Mrs. William G[illegible] organist.

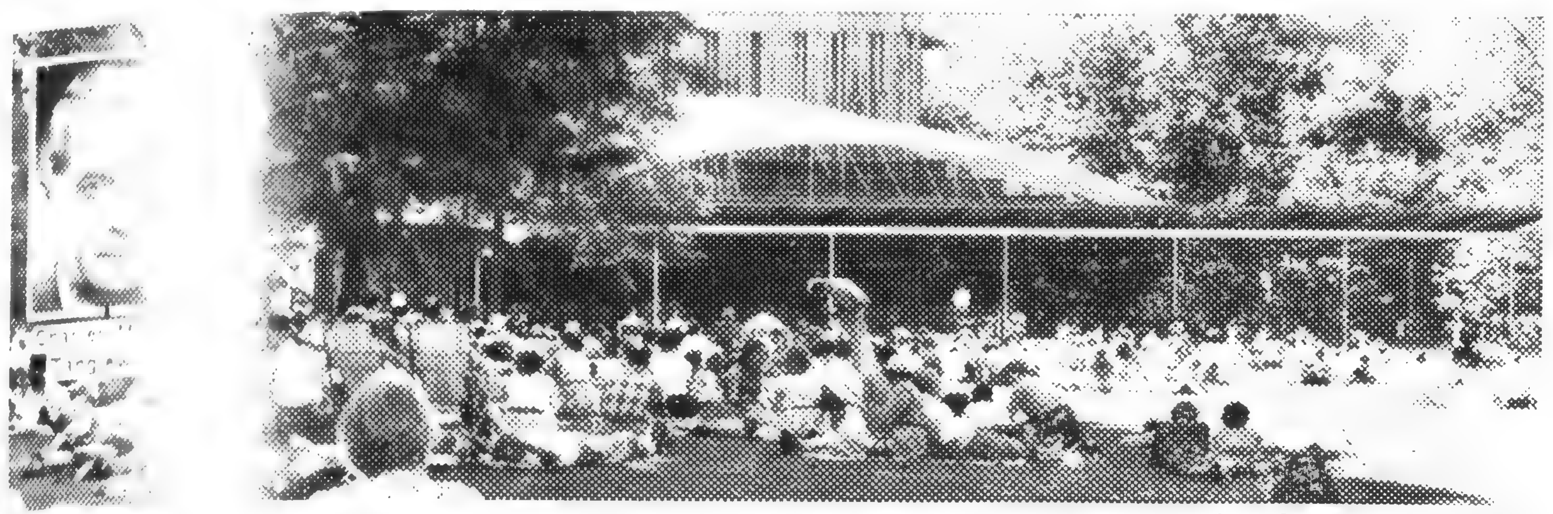
With Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky at Serenak, her home in Lenox, for the summer, are her mother, Mrs. Anna Naoumoff of Sao Paulo, Brazil; her sister, Mrs. Anna deLeuchtenberg of Brookline; and her nieces, the Misses Anna, Olga and Natalie deLeuchtenberg, and Mrs. Joseph dePasquale, with Mr. dePasquale and their two children, also of Brookline.

S RADIO PIX

Vol. 2.

CBS Radio, 485 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y. July 13, 1953

BA YARD MUSIC FESTIVALS



Bruno Walter
Salzburg

Fassett

Tanglewood, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh . . . music lovers the world over hold these names as magic. This summer everyone with a radio in his living room, in his garden or in his automobile can turn on CBS Radio's "World Music Festivals" on Sunday afternoons and, with a little imagination, make a tour of these music centers to hear the world's greatest orchestras, instrumentalists and singers.

Conducting this tour is James Fassett, who has been in Europe since May arranging broadcasts from Italy, Norway, Finland, Holland, Austria, Germany and Scotland. To the programs Fassett adds his colorful "sound and word pictures" of the places visited.

Beginning Sunday, July 26, Fassett returns for four broadcasts from America's own Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., three conducted by Charles Munch, one by Pierre Monteux.

On August 23 and 30, excerpts from the famous Salzburg Festival in Austria will include a concert by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, the world's oldest orchestra, conducted by Bruno Walter.

On Sept. 6 the CBS Radio series will present the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, Germany, featuring operas under the direction of the composer's grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland Wagner.

For four broadcasts beginning Sept. 13, symphonic concerts, dramas, chamber music and operas will be heard from the Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival of Music and Drama under the direction of Sir Malcolm Sargent, Sir Adrian Boult and Bruno Walter.

Malcolm Sargent
Edinburgh

This Clipping From
HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM

JUL 7 - 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONDUCTORS—Charles Munch (left) music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and conductor of the ~~Berkshire Festival~~ at Tanglewood in Lenox, is seen here with the Festival's guest conductors, Pierre Monteux (center) who will lead the orchestra on Aug. 2, and Leonard Bernstein, who is to conduct the concerts on Aug. 8 and 15. Mr. Munch will conduct the rest of the Festival concerts, beginning this Saturday and running thru Aug. 16.

Address by

CHARLES MUNCH

AT THE OPENING EXERCISES OF THE
BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER

Tanglewood, July 5, 1953

Dear Young Friends,

I am happy to have the honor of opening the eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center and to greet you.

You know the aims of this school: to give you the opportunity to listen to beautiful music and to profit from the counsel of eminent musicians, teachers of great experience. And what do you of the young generation bring us here? You bring your youth. You bring your good will, your confidence, you bring your talent, your natural gifts, which are indispensable in making music your life work. And finally you bring your illusions. You cannot have illusions without disillusions. The one does not exist without the other — it is as inevitable as that the night follows the day. And there is only one remedy, work, work and more work. The ability to work is the essential gift.

Would you have me believe that there are talents so extraordinary that they can ripen all by themselves? I do not believe it. The greatest talent must work the most. You know what is written: "Of him to whom most is given, most is asked."

The whole world is deeply impressed by the great interest in music and its great evolution in this wonderful country, the United States, especially among the youth.

How marvelous it is! Of all the arts it is yours without doubt that creates the links that unite all people. You will work to bring men together and not to divide them. All things that unite are so much more important than the things that separate.

I hope that all that you will see and learn here, my dear young friends, will help you and be useful in your future. And if we can at the same time bring you joy and happiness our goal will be attained. Please, let me tell you again that the most important thing is for us to work and to love music with all our hearts and all our spirit — to love music for music itself. In French I can say, "Servez la musique, ne vous servez pas de la musique, et vous rendrez service." Do not use music, but serve music and you will render the greatest service. And that I think is the deepest sense of our life. Make music with all your intensity, with all your conviction, with fire and flame. Think, as I do so often, of the motto of an old Alsatian family, "Ex flammis orior." — Fear nothing. Detachment will come by itself and too soon. Stay inside music, do not place yourself above. I hate this execrable objectivity so often recommended today. Play and express what you feel, frankly, without shame. Only in interpreting — I insist on this bad word — will the doors be opened and life be given to what is written by great masters and to what is written between the notes.

Dear friends, good luck.

This Clipping From PHILADELPHIA, PA.
BULLETIN

JUL 12 1953

Recorder of World's Music Festivals Has One of Radio's Nicest Jobs

New York—(AP)

JAMES FASSETT listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world—seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . But sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year, Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2.30-4 P. M.).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in The Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glynde-Bourne opera, the Highland Games, the Military Tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of music and drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 9 - 1953

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY
Tel. 561-M

Jap Ambassador Due for Festival

LENOX—Among the guests at the Curtis Hotel during the Berkshire Festival season this summer will be Eikichi Araki, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

He will be accompanied here by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Funio Araki. They will be in Lenox from July 30 to Aug. 3 while they attend the Tanglewood concerts and also make the Curtis Hotel their headquarters for a tour of the Berkshires.

CBS RADIO PIX

Vol. 2, No

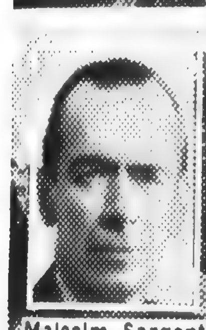
CBS Radio, 485 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y.

July 13, 1953

BAC YARD MUSIC FESTIVALS

Charles Mur
Tanglewor

Bruno Walter
Salzburg



Malcolm Sargent
Edinburgh

Fassett

Tanglewood, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Edinburgh . . . music lovers the world over hold these names as magic. This summer everyone with a radio in his living room, in his garden or in his automobile can turn on CBS Radio's "World Music Festivals" on Sunday afternoons and, with a little imagination, make a tour of these music centers to hear the world's greatest orchestras, instrumentalists and singers.

Conducting this tour is James Fassett, who has been in Europe since May arranging broadcasts from Italy, Norway, Finland, Holland, Austria, Germany and Scotland. To the programs Fassett adds his colorful "sound and word pictures" of the places visited.

Beginning Sunday, July 26, Fassett returns for four broadcasts from America's own Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., three conducted by Charles Munch, one by Pierre Monteux.

On August 23 and 30, excerpts from the famous Salzburg Festival in Austria will include a concert by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, the world's oldest orchestra, conducted by Bruno Walter.

On Sept. 6 the CBS Radio series will present the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, Germany, featuring operas under the direction of the composer's grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland Wagner.

For four broadcasts beginning Sept. 13, symphonic concerts, dramas, chamber music and operas will be heard from the Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival of Music and Drama under the direction of Sir Malcolm Sargent, Sir Adrian Boult and Bruno Walter.

Address by

CHARLES MUNCH

AT THE OPENING EXERCISES OF THE
BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER

Tanglewood, July 5, 1953

Dear Young Friends,

I am happy to have the honor of opening the eleventh session of the Berkshire Music Center and to greet you.

You know the aims of this school: to give you the opportunity to listen to beautiful music and to profit from the counsel of eminent musicians, teachers of great experience. And what do you of the young generation bring us here? You bring your youth. You bring your good will, your confidence, you bring your talent, your natural gifts, which are indispensable in making music your life work. And finally you bring your illusions. You cannot have illusions without disillusions. The one does not exist without the other — it is as inevitable as that the night follows the day. And there is only one remedy, work, work and more work. The ability to work is the essential gift.

Would you have me believe that there are talents so extraordinary that they can ripen all by themselves? I do not believe it. The greatest talent must work the most. You know what is written: "Of him to whom most is given, most is asked."

The whole world is deeply impressed by the great interest in music and its great evolution in this wonderful country, the United States, especially among the youth.

How marvelous it is! Of all the arts it is yours without doubt that creates the links that unite all people. You will work to bring men together and not to divide them. All things that unite are so much more important than the things that separate.

I hope that all that you will see and learn here, my dear young friends, will help you and be useful in your future. And if we can at the same time bring you joy and happiness our goal will be attained. Please, let me tell you again that the most important thing is for us to work and to love music with all our hearts and all our spirit — to love music for music itself. In French I can say, "Servez la musique, ne vous servez pas de la musique, et vous rendrez service." Do not use music, but serve music and you will render the greatest service. And that I think is the deepest sense of our life. Make music with all your intensity, with all your conviction, with fire and flame. Think, as I do so often, of the motto of an old Alsatian family, "Ex flammis orior." — Fear nothing. Detachment will come by itself and too soon. Stay inside music, do not place yourself above. I hate this execrable objectivity so often recommended today. Play and express what you feel, frankly, without shame. Only in interpreting — I insist on this bad word — will the doors be opened and life be given to what is written by great masters and to what is written between the notes.

Dear friends, good luck.

This Clipping From PHILADELPHIA, PA.
BULLETIN
JUL 12 1953

Recorder of World's Music Festivals Has One of Radio's Nicest Jobs

New York—(AP)

JAMES FASSETT listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world—seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . But sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year, Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2.30-4 P. M.).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in The Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salzburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glynde-Bourne opera, the Highland Games, the Military Tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of music and drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 9 - 1953

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY
Tel. 561-M

Jap Ambassador Due for Festival

LENOX—Among the guests at the Curtis Hotel during the Berkshire Festival season this summer will be Eikichi Araki, Japanese ambassador to the United States.

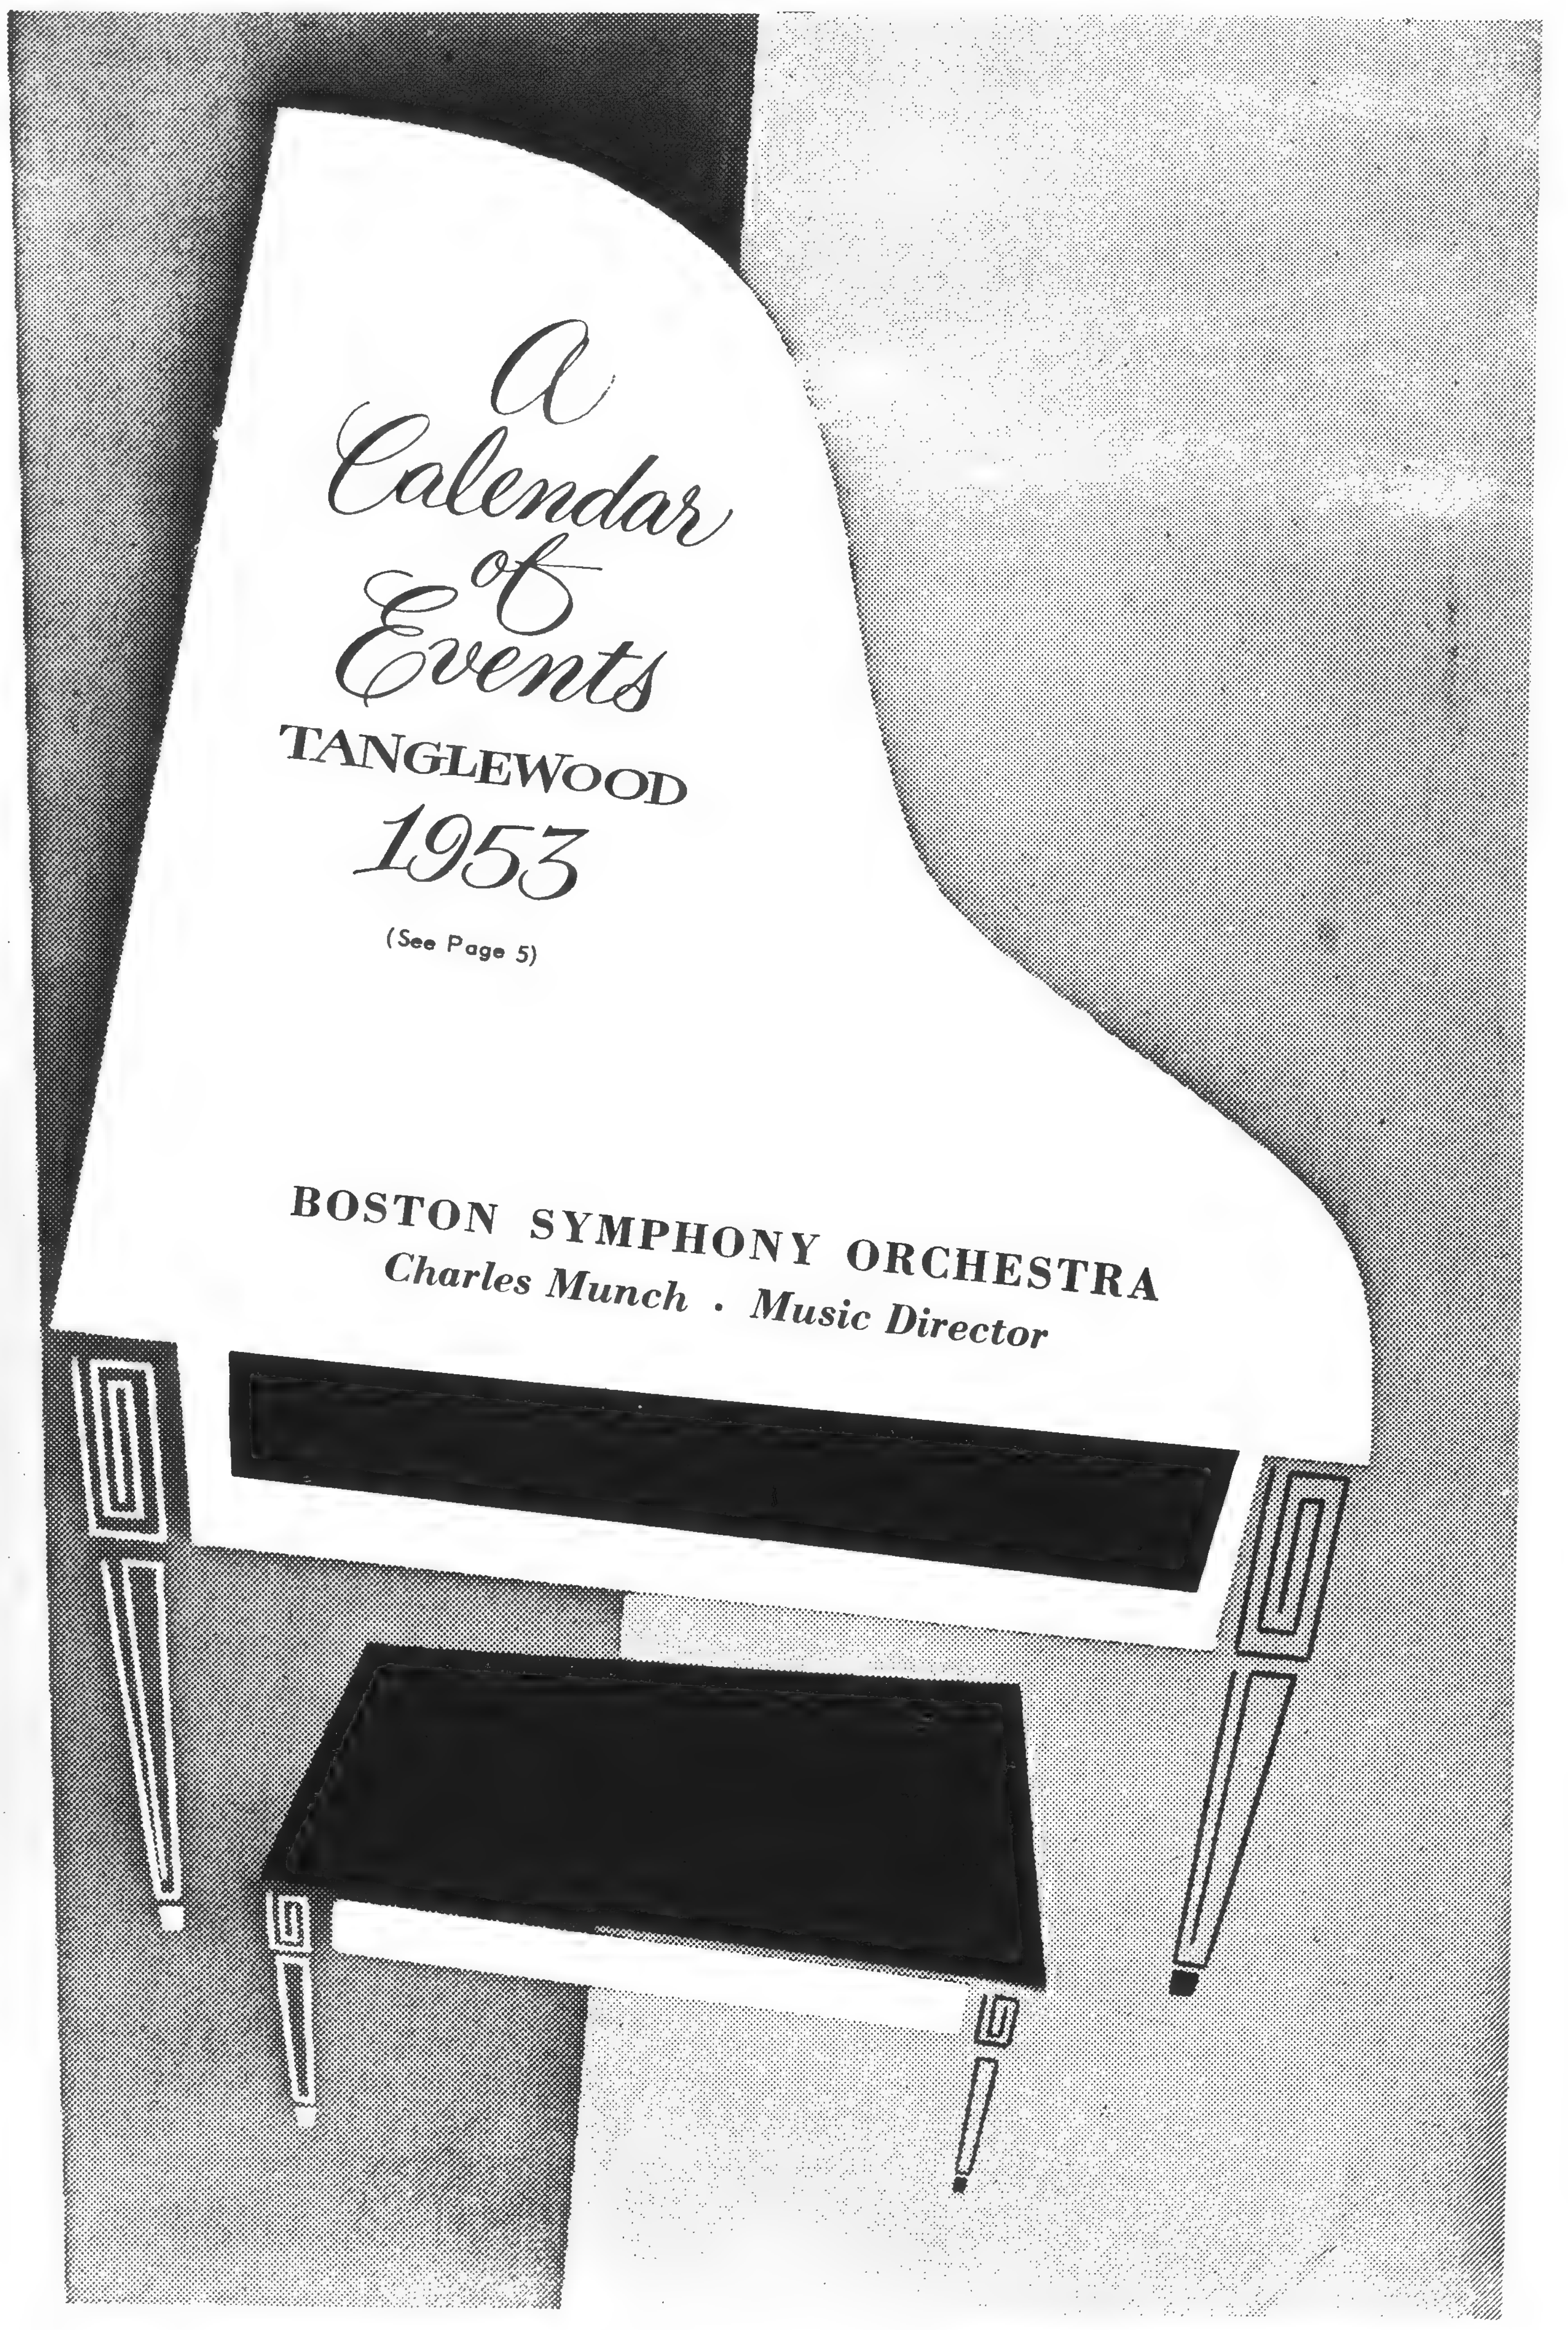
He will be accompanied here by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Funio Araki. They will be in Lenox from July 30 to Aug. 3 while they attend the Tanglewood concerts and also make the Curtis Hotel their headquarters for a tour of the Berkshires.

This Clipping From
HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
JUL 7 - 1953

ANGLEWOOD CONDUCTORS—Charles Munch (left) music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and conductor of the ~~Berkshire Festival~~ at Tanglewood in Lenox, is seen here with the Festival's conductors, Pierre Monteux (center) who will lead the orchestra on Aug. 2, and Leonard Bernstein, who is to conduct the concerts on Aug. 8 and 15. Mr. Munch will conduct the rest of the Festival concerts, beginning this Saturday and running thru Aug. 16.

The Berkshire
County Post

July 16, 1953
10c
AT NEWS DEALERS



SUMMER IN THE BERKSHIRES

THE TANGLEWOOD STORY

Concerts in the
Theatre-Concert Hall

Saturday Evenings at 8:30 · Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Saturday Evening, July 11—Charles Munch
Bach........................Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday Afternoon, July 12—Charles Munch
Bach..........Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Bach... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony)
Bach.......................Suite No. 3, in D major

Saturday Evening, July 18—Charles Munch
Mozart......Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart...........Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart........Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart.........Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)

Sunday Afternoon, July 19—Charles Munch
Mozart......................Overture to "Figaro"
Mozart....Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale)
Mozart..........Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart....Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)

Saturday Evening, July 25—Charles Munch
Haydn..........Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Haydn................Symphony in C minor, No. 95
Haydn.........Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday Afternoon, July 26—Charles Munch
Strauss.......Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
Ravel............"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
Prokofieff...........“Classical” Symphony, Op. 25
Milhaud.................“La Création du Monde”
Foss.........................."A Parable of Death"
(Narrator: Vera Zorina) (Conducted by the Composer)

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
JUL 12 1953

FRANCE TO HONOR TRIO

Boston — (AP) — The French government will confer the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on three Massachusetts men Tuesday at Bastille Day ceremonies. Recipients will be Dr. Edward D. Churchill, chief of general surgical services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R. Shepley, architect, Essex.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUL 11 1953

BOSTON SYMPHONY WILL OPEN FESTIVAL

Two appearances of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, playing the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, will open the 16th Berkshire Music Festival for a season of six week ends of 15 concerts, the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The Symphony Orchestra, which is making its 14th appearance, will open the series at 8.15 tonight and continue its program tomorrow at 2.30, under the baton of Charles Munch.

Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the ample lawns of Tanglewood. Grounds are open to concertgoers at 6 for evening performances and at 12.30 for afternoon patrons.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 12 1953

THEATER CONCERT SERIES IS STARTED AT MUSIC FESTIVAL

All-Bach Program Is Offered by Boston Symphony Under Munch

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, [illegible] the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its eminent director, Charles Munch, opened the series of concerts in the Theater [illegible] devoted to the works of Bach, Mozart and Haydn, plus a group of more modern composers such as Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss. One concert will be given each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon through July 26.

Discriminating Audience

Through the years, these concerts, initiated by Serge Koussevitzky, have come to draw the most discriminating audiences of the entire Berkshire Music Festival season. Although the theater holds few more than 1200 people, as many more may be seen on the lawn during any concert. These are people who come long distances to hear the more intimate works of Bach, Mozart and Haydn, people who joy in the sheer magnificence of the Bach works, plus their very real humor; who delight in the grace and elegance of Mozart and the sturdy, earthy utterances of Haydn. They come to these concerts not to be seen, but rather to enjoy a soul-stirring experiences.

Dr. Munch chose to open this series with five of the six "Brandenburg" concerti, omitting No. 4. At first glance one might feel that this was a pretty large dosage of Bach, but within these concerti is such a wealth of melody ingenious craftsmanship and humor, that one is always listening to something new and unexpected. It was the pianist Harold Samuels who first revealed to us the humor in Bach as well as the grandeur of his greatest works. Thus within a modest framework, Bach has written these "Brandenburg" concerti, embuing them with incomparable riches. There keys are arranged as follows, No. 1, F major; No. 2, F major; No. 3, G major; No. 4, G major; No. 5, D major and No. 6, B flat major.

In these concerti, which are concerti grossi in form, not a single instrument but a group of solo instruments is opposed to the main body of the orchestra. The solo group, in its makeup was often determined by the skill of certain performers in the employ of this or that noble patron of the arts.

Each of these five concerti bears the stamp of individuality and Dr. Munch succeeded in [illegible] in detail the many facets which together makes each of these concerti both individualistic and vital. Tempi was never allowed to lag nor were dynamics over heavy.

Memorable Listening

There were memorable listening moments in each of the five performances. The vigor and surge of the "No. 1 in F Major," the exquisite beauty of the andante in "No. 2 in F Major" when Roger Voisin's trumpet pealed forth in glorious fashion and Doriot Anthony let loose a silverflood of tone from her flute. Richard Burgin is always a tower of strength and his playing throughout the evening was distinguished.

Mr. Munch chose [illegible] concerti for strings together, [illegible] ing No. 5 in D Major [illegible] tra and piano until the [illegible] One never ceases to wonder [illegible] ingenuity of these concerti. The third, for strings, emphasizes the brilliance of the [illegible] while No. 6 glories in the [illegible] of the lower and darker [illegible]

It was a clever idea [illegible] concerto No. 5 for [illegible] piano, violin and flute at the end of the program. Lukas Foss was the pianist and few equal this exceedingly talented youthful musician. With him were Mr. Burgin and Miss Anthony. Bach has written [illegible] tuoso music for the pianist and [illegible] of it. Foss was in top form and so were his associates. The result was a magnificent, breathtaking performance which aroused the audience of 1200 persons, [illegible] for the first concert last season, to what amounted to a real demonstration.

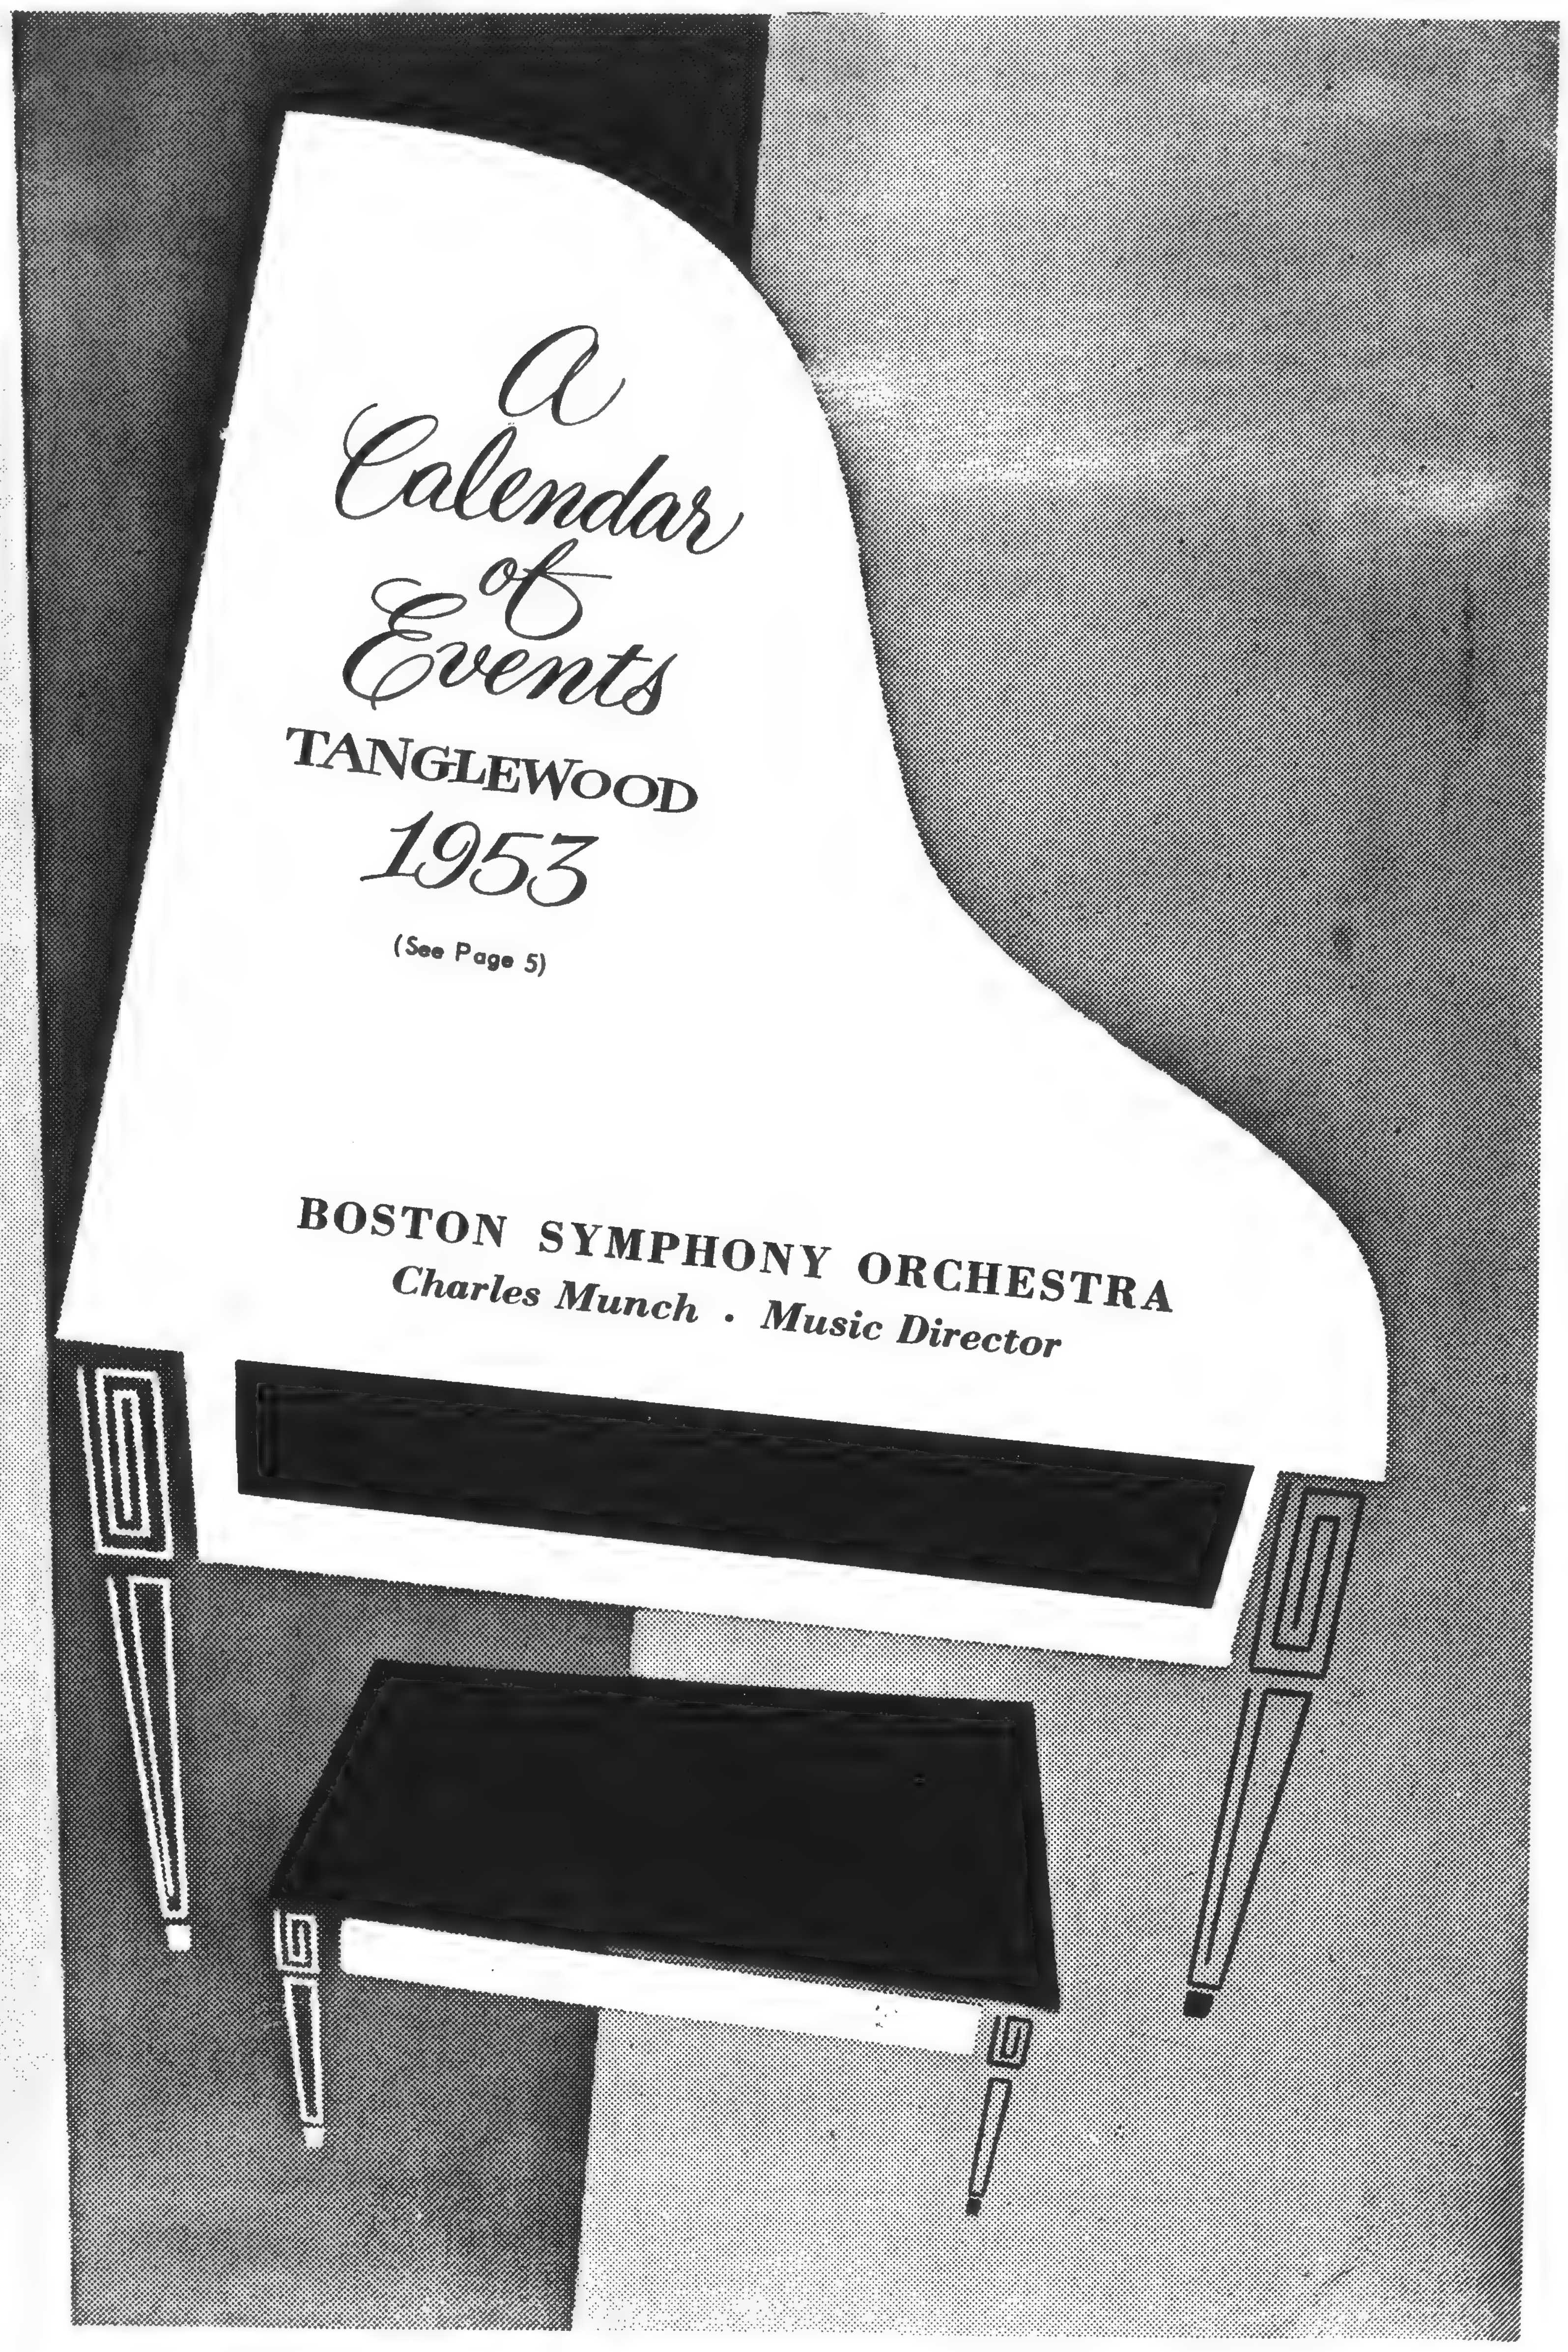
Few orchestras equal the [illegible] and virtuoso resources of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Its string section is incomparable. [illegible] occupy the first deck so that in No. 2 we heard Doriot Anthony [illegible] flute, Harold Gomberg [illegible] Roger Voisin, trumpet and [illegible] Burgin, violin, while in No. 5 we heard the beautiful [illegible] Lukas Foss along with Miss Anthony and Mr. Burgin.

In his usual modest manner, Mr. Munch made his soloists acknowledge most of applause. The performances were a triumph for conductor, orchestra and soloists and were adjudged as such by those within the theater and those seated outside.

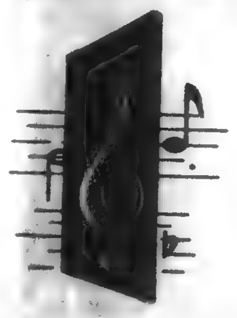
Tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 Hugh Ross will open another all-Bach program, leading the chorus through the Cantata No. 28 and Mr. Munch will conduct "Suite No. 2, in B minor for flute and Strings," and "Suite No. 3 in D major."

The Berkshire
County Post

July 16, 1953
10c
AT NEWS DEALERS



SUMMER IN THE BERKSHIRES



THE TANGLEWOOD STORY

Concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall

Saturday Evenings at 8:30 · Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Saturday Evening, July 11—CHARLES MUNCH
BACH ....Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday Afternoon, July 12—CHARLES MUNCH
BACH ....Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by HUGH ROSS)
BACH ... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY)
BACH ....Suite No. 3, in D major

Saturday Evening, July 18—CHARLES MUNCH
MOZART ......Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
MOZART ....Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: ISAAC STERN)
MOZART ....Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
MOZART ....Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)

Sunday Afternoon, July 19—CHARLES MUNCH
MOZART ....Overture to "Figaro"
MOZART ....Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: ISAAC STERN and JOSEPH DE PASQUALE)
MOZART .... Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
MOZART ....Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)

Saturday Evening, July 25—CHARLES MUNCH
HAYDN ....Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by HUGH ROSS)
HAYDN ....Symphony in C minor, No. 95
HAYDN ....Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday Afternoon, July 26—CHARLES MUNCH
STRAUSS ....Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
RAVEL ...."Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
PROKOFIEFF ....“Classical” Symphony, Op. 25
MILHAUD ....“La Création du Monde”
FOSS ....“A Parable of Death”
(Narrator: VERA ZORINA) (Conducted by the Composer)

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL
JUL 12 1953

FRANCE TO HONOR TRIO

Boston — (AP) — The French government will confer the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on three Massachusetts men Tuesday at Bastille Day ceremonies. Recipients will be Dr. Edward D. Churchill, chief of general surgical services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R. Shepley, architect, Essex.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUL 11 1953

BOSTON SYMPHONY WILL OPEN FESTIVAL

Two appearances of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, playing the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, will open the 16th Berkshire Music Festival for a season of six week ends of 15 concerts, the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox.

The Symphony Orchestra, which is making its 14th appearance, will open the series at 8.15 tonight and continue its program tomorrow at 2.30, under the baton of Charles Munch.

Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the ample lawns of Tanglewood. Grounds are open to concertgoers at 6 for evening performances and at 12.30 for afternoon patrons.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 12 1953

THEATER CONCERT SERIES IS STARTED AT MUSIC FESTIVAL

All-Bach Program Is Offered by Boston Symphony Under Munch

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 11—Tonight the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its eminent director, Charles Munch, opened the series of Concerts in the Theater, concerts devoted to the works of Bach, Mozart and Haydn, plus a group of more modern composers, such as Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss. One concert will be given each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon through July 26.

Discriminating Audience

Through the years, these concerts, initiated by Serge Koussevitzky, have come to draw the most discriminating audiences of the entire Berkshire Music festival season. Although the theater holds few more than 1200 people, as many more may be seen on the lawn during any concert. These are people who come long distances to hear the more intimate works of Bach, Mozart and Haydn; people who joy in the sheer magnificence of the Bach works, plus their very real humor; who delight in the grace and elegance of Mozart and the sturdy, earthy utterances of Haydn. They come to these concerts not to be seen, but rather to enjoy a soul-stirring experiences.

Dr. Munch chose to open this series with five of the six "Brandenburg" concerti, omitting No. 4. At first glance one might feel that this was a pretty large dosage of Bach, but within these concerti is such a wealth of melody ingenious craftsmanship and humor, that one is always listening to something new and unexpected. It was the pianist Harold Samuels who first revealed to us the humor in Bach as well as the grandeur of his greatest works. Thus within a modest framework, Bach has written these "Brandenburg" concerti, embuing them with incomparable riches. There keys are arranged as follows, No. 1, F major; No. 2, F major; No. 3, G major; No. 4, G major; No. 5, D major and No. 6, B flat major.

In these concerti, which are concerti grossi in form, not a single instrument but a group of solo instruments is opposed to the main body of the orchestra. The solo group, in its makeup was often determined by the skill of certain performers in the employ of this or that noble patron of the arts.

Each of these five concerti bears the stamp of individuality and Dr. Munch succeeded in revealing in detail the many facets which together makes each of these concerti both individualistic and vital. Tempi was never allowed to lag nor were dynamics over heavy.

Memorable Listening

There were memorable listening moments in each of the five performances. The vigor and surge of the "No. 1 in F Major"; the exquisite beauty of the andante in "No. 2 in F Major" when Roger Voisin's trumpet pealed forth in glorious fashion and Doriot Anthony let loose a silverflood of tone from her flute. Richard Burgin is always a tower of strength and his playing throughout the evening was distinguished.

Mr. Munch chose to play the two concerti for strings together leaving No. 5 in D Major for orchestra and piano until the last. One never ceases to wonder at the ingenuity of these concerti. The third, for strings, emphasizes the brilliance of the upper strings, while No. 6 glories in the richness of the lower and darker register.

It was a clever idea to place the concerto No. 5 for orchestra, piano, violin and flute at the end of the program. Lukas Foss was the pianist and few equal this exceedingly talented youthful musician. With him were Mr. Burgin and Miss Anthony. Bach was written truly virtuoso music for the pianist and lots of it. Foss was in top form and so were his associates. The result was a magnificient, breathtaking performance which roused the audience of 4200 persons, against 3600 for the first concert last season, to what amounted to a real demonstration.

Few orchestras equal the musical and virtuoso resources of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Its string section is incomparable. Virtuosi occupy the first deck, so that in No. 2 we heard Doriat Anthony, flute, Harold Gomberg, oboe, Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, violin, while in No. 5, we heard the beautiful pianism of Lukas Foss along with Miss Anthony and Mr. Burgin.

In his usual modest manner, Mr. Munch made his soloists acknowledge most of applause. The performances were a triumph for conductor, orchestra and soloists and were adjudged as such by those within the theater and those seated outside.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 Hugh Ross will open another all-Bach program, leading the chorus through the Cantata No. 28 and Mr. Munch will conduct "Suite No. 2, in B minor for flute and Strings," and "Suite No. 3 in D major."

…FIELD, MASS.
…UBLICAN
…L 1 2 1953

…TER CONCERT …S IS STARTED …USIC FESTIVAL

… Program Is Of- … Boston Symphony …nder Munch

…LLARD M. CLARK

…od, July 11—Tonight the …mphony Orchestra and …nt director, Charles …ened the series of Con… Theater, concerts de… the works of Bach, Mo… Haydn, plus a group of …ern composers, such as …avel, Prokofieff, Milhaud … Foss. One concert will …ach Saturday night and …ernoon through July 26.

…minating Audience

… the years, these con…ated by Serge Kous…ave come to draw the …iminating audiences of … Berkshire Music festival … though the theater holds … than 1200 people, as … may be seen on the … any concert. These … who come long dis… hear the more intimate …ach, Mozart and Haydn; … joy in the sheer mag… the Bach works, plus … real humor; who delight …ce and elegance of Mo… the sturdy, earthy ut… Haydn. They come to …erts not to be seen, but … enjoy a soul-stirring ex…

…h chose to open this ser…ve of the six "Branden…erti, omitting No. 4. At … one might feel that … pretty large dosage of … within these concerti is …lth of melody ingenious …hip and humor, that one … listening to something …nexpected. It was the …rold Samuels who first … us the humor in Bach … the grandeur of his …works. Thus within a …mework, Bach has writ… "Brandenburg" concerti, …hem with incomparable …here keys are arranged … No. 1, F major; No. 2, …No. 3, G major; No. 4, G … 5, D major and No. 6, …or.

… concerti, which are con… in form, not a single … but a group of solo in… is opposed to the main …e orchestra. The solo … its makeup was often … by the skill of certain … in the employ of this …ble patron of the arts.

… these five concerti bears … of individuality and Dr. …cceeded in revealing … many facets which to… …kes each of these concer… …dividualistic and vital … never allowed to lag … dynamics over heavy…

…morable Listening

…ere memorable listening … in each of the five per… The vigor and surge of … 1 in F Major"; the ex…auty of the andante in … F Major" when Roge… trumpet pealed forth … …ashion and Doriot Anth… … a silverflood of ton… flute; Richard Burgin … …ower of strength and … …roughout the evening wa… …ed.

…ch chose to play the tw… …r strings together leav… in D Major for orche… …iano until the last. On… …es to wonder at the … … these concerti. Th… strings, emphasizes th… of the upper string… …glories in the richne… and darker register. … clever idea to place …

MUSIC LOVERS

DON'T MISS THE

6 SUNDAY AFTERNOON CONCERTS

OF THE

Berkshire Festival

SEASON 1953

TANGLEWOOD
LENOX, MASS.

Boston Symphony Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUL 11 1953

16TH BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL WILL START TONIGHT

First Concert of 15 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Begins at 8:15

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts tonight at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, the second concert to be Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

A few $5 seats remain for both concerts, and general admission at $2 is sold on the day of each concert. Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the spacious lawns of Tanglewood. Grounds are open to concertgoers at 6 p. m. for evening concerts and at 12.30 p. m. for afternoon performances. A cafeteria on the grounds also services patrons.

The week end programs are:

Saturday, 8.30 p. m.

Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2 in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Soloists: DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; HAROLD GOMBERG, oboe; ROGER VOISIN, trumpet; RICHARD BURGIN, violin).
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Soloists: LUKAS FOSS, piano; DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; RICHARD BURGIN, violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday, 2.30 p. m.

BACH .... Cantata No. 28, with Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center and Soloists: SARA MAE ENDICH, soprano; BETTY ALLEN, alto; JOHN McCOLLUM, tenor; MAC MORGAN, bass)
BACH ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY
BACH ...... Suite No. 3 in D major.

General admission only is available for the pair of July 18-19 Mozart concerts; and a limited number of seats at $4 and $5, remain for the July 25 all-Haydn concert and the July 26 performance of 20th century composers, which includes works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," which the composer will conduct, with Vera Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist, and the Berkshire Festival chorus assisting.

The major Berkshire Festival, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, opens in Tanglewood's huge Music Shed on July 31.

This Clipping …
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUL 10 1953

Name Soloists For 'Requiem' At Tanglewood

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as the soloists for Brahms' "Requiem" which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Friday, August 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The 28-year-old Canadian soprano was last year's Naumburg winner, made her American debut with a Town Hall recital and was chosen by Toscanini for his radio performance of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis." She will make her debut at Tanglewood this summer, as will Mr. Warfield, who since his concert debut in 1950 has sung "Old Man River" in the latest filming of "Show Boat" and Porgy in Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris.

A change in the contribution of mezzo-soprano Jennie Tourel to this season's Tanglewood programs will find her also singing the contralto role in Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" on Friday, August 7. The following night (Sat., Aug. 8), when Leonard Bernstein conducts a memorial to the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Miss Tourel sings the Ravel "Sheherazade" and the Mahler Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") with basso Nicola Mascona.

The Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood with two Bach concerts July 11-12; two Mozart concerts, July 18-19; a Haydn program, July 25, and one devoted to Twentieth Century composers, July 26, all preceding the major Festival in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16.

A change in the Sunday afternoon August 9 Festival concert program will find Charles Munch conducting Albert Roussel's "Bacchus et Ariene" instead of Wagner's Overture to "Tannhauser."

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

The Musical Digest

By IRVING KOLODIN

Interrelated Jobs Conductor's Woe

CHARLES MUNCH

NEW YORK, July 11.—This is the weekend when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire hills, which the Boston Symphony has made famous as its summer home. As the summer of two past, each of these will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the generally informed are wondering is: How many more summers will Munch conduct in Tanglewood?

That is related, of course, to the question of how much longer Munch conducts in Boston, for the two posts are very much interrelated. That, indeed, is the nub of the matter. For while Boston has been happy with Munch and Munch has been happy in Boston, it is a grand pattern of Boston that the winter music director take a prominent part in the summer doings at Tanglewood. That is the point at issue, according to those who know. Munch finds the winter schedule a heavy one, he missed most of the season before last because of a breakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the summer.

What, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together. One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a guest tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

If it worked out that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky.

(Copyright, 1953, by the Saturday Review.)

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 13 1953

Group Exhibit Now At Tanglewood Fete

Second in a series of weekly painting and sculpture exhibitions to be given during the Berkshire Festival concerts, July 11-August 16, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, through the cooperation of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, is a group showing of paintings by local artists. It will be on display for concertgoers and visitors to Tanglewood at the reception hall at the main entrance through next Saturday.

The group show has been assembled by Harry Lane, of West Stockbridge, and represents the following artists: Stanley Bate, Claverack, N. Y.: John Carroll, East Chatam, N.Y.; E. Arnold Clark, Great Barrington, Homer Gunn, West Stockbridge, June Kimball, New Ashford, and Lane.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUL 12 1953

Bastille Day Will Be Observed Here Tuesday

The French national holiday, Bastille Day, will be traditionally observed in Boston Tuesday.

At 10:30 a. m. M. Francois Charles-Roux, Consul General of France, will place a wreath at the Lefayette Monument on the Tremont st. Mall. A reception will be given by the Consul General at 11 a. m. at the Consulate of France, 178 Beacon st. The French colony and all American friends of France will be welcomed.

Preceding the reception the Cross of the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor will be conferred, in the name of the Republic of France, by M. Charles-Roux on the following:

Dr. Edward D. Churchill; John Homas, professor of surgery, chief of General Surgical Services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R. Shepley, architect, of Essex, Mass.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER

Following Music World Over Is No Waltz, Fassett Finds

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on C. B. S.'s radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over C. B. S. every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m., E. D. T.).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'Ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast t… Glyndebourne opera, the Hig… land games, the Military Tatt… and highlights of the Intern… tional Festival of Music a… Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always eas… Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wan… ed to record the sound of t… famous fountain of Trevi. I didr… want the sound of taxis, bicycl… and people, but only the fallir… water. We set up our recordir… equipment three hours befo… dawn, but it required more th… an hour before we could mal… onlookers be quiet enough so v… would get only the sounds of t… fountain."

[186]

ELD, MASS.
BLICAN
JUL 12 1953

TER CONCERT S IS STARTED USIC FESTIVAL

Program Is Of-
Boston Symphony
nder Munch

LLARD M. CLARK

od, July 11—Tonight the mphony Orchestra and nt director, Charles ened the series of Cone Theater, concerts dehe works of Bach, Mo-Haydn, plus a group of ern composers, such as vel, Prokofieff, Milhaud Foss. One concert will ach Saturday night and ernoon through July 26.
minating Audience
the years, these conated by Serge Kous-ave come to draw the iminating audiences of Berkshire Music festival
though the theater holds than 1200 people, as may be seen on the ng any concert. These who come long dis-hear the more intimate ach, Mozart and Haydn;
joy in the sheer mag-f the Bach works, plus real humor; who delight ce and elegance of Mothe sturdy, earthy ut-Haydn. They come to
erts not to be seen, but enjoy a soul-stirring ex-

h chose to open this serve of the six "Branden-erti, omitting No. 4. At e one might feel that pretty large dosage of within these concerti is lth of melody ingenious hip and humor, that one listening to something unexpected. It was the rold Samuels who first o us the humor in Bach
s the grandeur of his works. Thus within a mework, Bach has writ-
"Brandenburg" concerti, hem with incomparable
here keys are arranged
No. 1, F major; No. 2,
No. 3, G major; No. 4, G
5, D major and No. 6,
or.

concerti, which are con-i in form, not a single but a group of solo inis opposed to the main ne orchestra. The solo its makeup was often d by the skill of certain s in the employ of this ble patron of the arts.
these five concerti bears of individuality and Dr.
cceeded in revealing in many facets which tokes each of these concerdividualistic and vital.
s never allowed to lag dynamics over heavy.
morable Listening
ere memorable listening in each of the five per-
. The vigor and surge of 1 in F Major"; the exauty of the andante in F Major" when Roger trumpet pealed forth in ashion and Doriot Anth ner a silverflood of ton flute; Richard Burgin ower of strength and le roughout the evening wa
ed.
ich chose to play the tw or strings together lea in D Major for orche iano until the last. On ses to wonder at the in f these concerti. Th strings, emphasizes th of the upper string s glories in the richne
r and darker register.
clever idea to place t

MUSIC LOVERS

DON'T MISS THE

6 SUNDAY AFTERNOON CONCERTS

OF THE

Berkshire Festival
SEASON 1953

TANGLEWOOD
LENOX, MASS.

Boston Symphony Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUL 11 1953

16TH BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL WILL START TONIGHT

First Concert of 15 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Begins at 8:15

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts tonight at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, the second concert to be Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

A few $5 seats remain for both concerts, and general admission at $2 is sold on the day of each concert. Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the spacious lawns of Tanglewood. Grounds are open to concertgoers at 6 p. m. for evening concerts and at 12.30 p. m. for afternoon performances. A cafeteria on the grounds also services patrons.

The week end programs are:

Saturday, 8.30 p. m.

Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2 in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Soloists: DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; HAROLD GOMBERG, oboe; ROGER VOISIN, trumpet; RICHARD BURGIN, violin).
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Soloists: LUKAS FOSS, piano; DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; RICHARD BURGIN, violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday, 2.30 p. m.

BACH .... Cantata No. 28, with Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center and Soloists: SARA MAE ENDICH, soprano; BETTY ALLEN, alto; JOHN McCOLLUM, tenor; MAC MORGAN, bass)
BACH ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY
BACH ...... Suite No. 3 in D major.

General admission only is available for the pair of July 18-19 Mozart concerts; and a limited number of seats at $4 and $5, remain for the July 25 all-Haydn concert and the July 26 performance of 20th century composers, which includes works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," which the composer will conduct, with Vera Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist, and the Berkshire Festival chorus assisting.

The major Berkshire Festival, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, opens in Tanglewood's huge Music Shed on July 31.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUL 10 1953

Name Soloists For 'Requiem' At Tanglewood

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as the soloists for Brahms' "Requiem" which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Friday, August 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The 28-year-old Canadian soprano was last year's Naumburg winner, made her American debut with a Town Hall recital and was chosen by Toscanini for his radio performance of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis." She will make her debut at Tanglewood this summer, as will Mr. Warfield, who since his concert debut in 1950 has sung "Old Man River" in the latest filming of "Show Boat" and Porgy in Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris.

A change in the contribution of mezzo-soprano Jennie Tourel to this season's Tanglewood programs will find her also singing the contralto role in Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" on Friday, August 7. The following night (Sat., Aug. 8), when Leonard Bernstein conducts a memorial to the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Miss Tourel sings the Ravel "Sheherazade" and the Mahler Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") with basso Nicola Moscona.

The Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood with two Bach concerts July 11-12; two Mozart concerts, July 18-19; a Haydn program, July 25, and one devoted to Twentieth Century composers, July 26, all preceding the major Festival in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16.

A change in the Sunday afternoon August 9 Festival concert program will find Charles Munch conducting Albert Roussel's "Bacchus et Ariene" instead of Wagner's Overture to "Tannhauser."

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

The Musical Digest

By IRVING KOLODIN

Interrelated Jobs Conductor's Woe

NEW YORK, July 11.—This is the weekend when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire hills, which the Boston Symphony has made famous as its summer home. As in the summer or two past, much of the music will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the musically informed are wondering is "How many more summers will Munch conduct in Tanglewood?"

CHARLES MUNCH

That is related, of course, to the question of how much longer Munch conducts in Boston, for the two positions are very much interrelated. That, indeed, is the nub of the matter: For while Boston has been happy with Munch and Munch has been happy in Boston, it is a ground pattern of Boston history that the winter music director take a prominent part in the summer doings at Tanglewood. And that is the point at issue, according to those who know. Munch finds the winter schedule taxing (he missed most of the season before last because of a breakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the summer.

What, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together. One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a guest tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

If it worked out that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky.

(Copyright, 1953, by the Saturday Review.)

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 13 1953

Group Exhibit Now At Tanglewood Fete

Second in a series of weekly painting and sculpture exhibitions to be given during the Berkshire Festival concerts, July 11-August 16, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, through the cooperation of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, is a group showing of paintings by local artists. It will be on display for concertgoers and visitors to Tanglewood at the reception hall at the main entrance through next Saturday.

The group show has been assembled by Harry Lane, of West Stockbridge, and represents the following artists: Stanley Bate, Claverack, N. Y.; John Carroll, East Chatam, N.Y.; E. Arnold Clark, Great Barrington, Homer Gunn, West Stockbridge, June Kimball, New Ashford, and Lane.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUL 12 1953

Bastille Day Will Be Observed Here Tuesday

The French national holiday, Bastille Day, will be traditionally observed in Boston Tuesday.

At 10:30 a. m. M. Francois Charles-Roux, Consul General of France, will place a wreath at the Lefayette Monument on the Tremont st. Mall. A reception will be given by the Consul General at 11 a. m. at the Consulate of France, 178 Beacon st. The French colony and all American friends of France will be welcomed.

Preceding the reception the Cross of the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor will be conferred, in the name of the Republic of France, by M. Charles-Roux on the following:

Dr. Edward D. Churchill; John Homas, professor of surgery, chief of General Surgical Services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R. Shepley, architect, of Essex, Mass.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER
JUL 5 - 1953

Following Music World Over Is No Waltz, Fassett Finds

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on C. B. S.'s radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over C. B. S. every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m., E. D. T.).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam.

Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'Ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast t
Glyndebourne opera, the Hig
land games, the Military Tatt
and highlights of the Intern
tional Festival of Music a Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always eas
Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wan
ed to record the sound of t famous fountain of Trevi. I did want the sound of taxis, bicycl
and people, but only the falli
water. We set up our recordi equipment three hours befo
dawn, but it required more th an hour before we could ma
onlookers be quiet enough so would get only the sounds of t fountain."

[186]

Concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall

* *

Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Sunday Afternoon, July 12

CHARLES MUNCH

BACH .... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by HUGH ROSS)
BACH .... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY)
BACH .... Suite No. 3, in D major

* *

Sunday Afternoon, July 19

CHARLES MUNCH

MOZART .... Overture to "Figaro"
MOZART .... Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: ISAAC STERN and JOSEPH DE PASQUALE)
MOZART .... Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
MOZART .... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)
(Tickets on Sale Commencing July 13)

* *

Sunday Afternoon, July 26

CHARLES MUNCH

STRAUSS .... Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
RAVEL .... "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
PROKOFIEFF .... "Classical" Symphony, Op. 25
MILHAUD .... "La Création du Monde"

FOSS .... "A Parable of Death"
(Narrator: VERA ZORINA) (Conducted by the Composer)

(Tickets on Sale Commencing July 20)

Concerts in the Shed

* *

Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Sunday Afternoon, August 2

PIERRE MONTEUX, Guest Conductor

TCHAIKOVSKY .... Serenade for Strings
TCHAIKOVSKY .... Symphony No. 5, in E minor

TCHAIKOVSKY .... Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat minor
(Soloist: JORGE BOLET)
(Tickets on Sale Commencing July 27)

* *

Sunday Afternoon, August 9

CHARLES MUNCH

SCHUBERT .... Symphony No. 5, in B-flat
BARBER .... Adagio for Strings
STRAUSS .... "Don Quixote" (with Cello and Viola Solo)

MILHAUD .... Concerto for Cello, No. 1
WAGNER .... Overture to "Tannhäuser"
(Soloist: GREGOR PIATIGORSKY)
(Tickets on Sale Commencing August 3)

* *

Sunday Afternoon, August 16

CHARLES MUNCH

SCHUBERT .... Symphony in B minor ("Unfinished")
CHABRIER .... Bourrée Fantasque
WAGNER .... Prelude and Love-Death, "Tristan und Isolde"
WAGNER .... A Siegfried Idyll
WAGNER .... "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg," Excerpts from Act III

RAVEL .... Piano Concerto for the Left Hand
(Soloist: SEYMOUR LIPKIN)
RAVEL .... "La Valse"
(Tickets on Sale Commencing August 10)

(Programs Subject to Change)

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
MORNING UNION
JUL 11 1953

16TH BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL WILL START TONIGHT

First Concert of 15 at Tanglewood, Lenox, Begins at 8:15

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the 14th since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts tonight at 8.30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox.

Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach, the second concert to be Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

A few $5 seats remain for both concerts, and general admission at $2 is sold on the day of each concert. Patrons are invited to bring box lunches and picnic on the spacious lawns of Tanglewood. Grounds are open to concertgoers at 6 p. m. for evening concerts and at 12.30 p. m. for afternoon performances. A cafeteria on the grounds also services patrons.

The week end programs are:

Saturday, 8.30 p. m.

Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2 in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin) (Soloists: DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; HAROLD GOMBERG, oboe; ROGER VOISIN, trumpet; RICHARD BURGIN, violin).
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin) (Soloists: LUKAS FOSS, piano; DORIOT ANTHONY, flute; RICHARD BURGIN, violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday, 2.30 p. m.

BACH .... Cantata No. 28, with Berkshire Festival Chorus of students of the Berkshire Music Center and Soloists: SARA MAE ENDICH, soprano; BETTY ALLEN, alto; JOHN McCOLLUM, tenor; MAC MORGAN, bass)
BACH ...... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. Soloist: DORIOT ANTHONY
BACH ...... Suite No. 3 in D major.

General admission only is available for the pair of July 18-19 Mozart concerts; and a limited number of seats at $4 and $5, remain for the July 25 all-Haydn concert and the July 26 performance of 20th century composers, which includes works by Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' Cantata, "A Parable of Death," which the composer will conduct, with Vera Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist, and the Berkshire Festival chorus assisting.

The major Berkshire Festival, with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra participating, opens in Tanglewood's huge Music Shed on July 31.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE
JUL 10 1953

Name Soloists For 'Requiem' At Tanglewood

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as the soloists for Brahms' "Requiem" which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Friday, August 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The 28-year-old Canadian soprano was last year's Naumburg winner, made her American debut with a Town Hall recital and was chosen by Toscanini for his radio performance of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis." She will make her debut at Tanglewood this summer, as will Mr. Warfield, who since his concert debut in 1950 has sung "Old Man River" in the latest filming of "Show Boat" and Porgy in Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris.

A change in the contribution of mezzo-soprano Jennie Tourel to this season's Tanglewood programs will find her also singing the contralto role in Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" on Friday, August 7. The following night (Sat., Aug. 8), when Leonard Bernstein conducts a memorial to the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Miss Tourel sings the Ravel "Sheherazade" and the Mahler Symphony No. 2 ("Resurrection") with basso Nicola Moscona.

The Berkshire Festival opens at Tanglewood with two Bach concerts July 11-12; two Mozart concerts, July 18-19; a Haydn program, July 25, and one devoted to Twentieth Century composers, July 26, all preceding the major Festival in the Music Shed, July 31-August 16.

A change in the Sunday afternoon August 9 Festival concert program will find Charles Munch conducting Albert Roussel's "Bacchus et Ariene" instead of Wagner's Overture to "Tannhauser."

Samuels who first the humor in Bach
e grandeur of his
. Thus within a ork, Bach has writndenburg" concerti, with incomparable
keys are arranged
1, F major; No. 2,
G major; No. 4, G
major and No. 6,

rti, which are conform, not a single a group of solo in-posed to the main chestra. The solo makeup was often the skill of certain the employ of this tron of the arts.
five concerti bear
dividuality and Dr.
ed in revealing in y facets which toach of these concer ualistic and vital ver allowed to lag
mics over heavy.

ble Listening

nemorable listening ch of the five per vigor and surge o F Major"; the ex of the andante i Major" when Roge
pet pealed forth i n and Doriot Anth
silverflood of ton
Richard Burgin i of strength and h
out the evening wa

ose to play the tw ings together leav
Major for orches until the last. On wonder at the i se concerti. Th gs, emphasizes th e upper string ries in the richne
d darker register.
er idea to place th

DALLAS, TEX.
NEWS

The Musical Digest

By IRVING KOLODIN

Interrelated Jobs Conductor's Woe

NEW YORK, July 11.—This is the weekend when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire hills, which the Boston Symphony has made famous as its summer home. As in the summer or two past, much of the music will be conducted by

CHARLES MUNCH

Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the usically informed are wondering
: "How many more summers ill Munch conduct in Tangleood?"

That is related, of course, to the uestion of how much longer unch conducts in Boston, for the o positions are very much interated. That, indeed, is the nub the matter: For while Boston s been happy with Munch and nch has been happy in Boston, is a ground pattern of Boston ity that the winter music dictor take a prominent part in summer doings at Tanglewood.
And that is the point at issue,
ording to those who know.
ch finds the winter schedule ing one (he missed most of season before last because of eakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the summer.

What, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together. One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a guest tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

If it worked out that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky.

(Copyright, 1953, by the Saturday Review.)

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 13 1953

Group Exhibit Now At Tanglewood Fete

Second in a series of weekly paintings and sculpture exhibitions to be given during the Berkshire Festival concerts, July 11-August 16, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, Lenox, through the cooperation of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, is a group showing of paintings by local artists. It will be on display for concertgoers and visitors to Tanglewood at the reception hall at the main entrance through next Saturday.

The group show has been assembled by Harry Lane, of West Stockbridge, and represents the following artists: Stanley Bate, Claverack, N. Y.; John Carroll, East Chatam, N.Y.; E. Arnold Clark, Great Barrington, Homer Gunn, West Stockbridge, June Kimball, New Ashford, and Lane.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE
JUL 12 1953

Bastille Day Will Be Observed Here Tuesday

The French national holiday, Bastille Day, will be traditionally observed in Boston Tuesday.

At 10:30 a. m. M. Francois Charles-Roux, Consul General of France, will place a wreath at the Lefayette Monument on the Tremont st. Mall. A reception will be given by the Consul General at 11 a. m. at the Consulate of France, 178 Beacon st. The French colony and all American friends of France will be welcomed.

Preceding the reception the Cross of the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor will be conferred, in the name of the Republic of France, by M. Charles-Roux on the following:

Dr. Edward D. Churchill; John Homas, professor of surgery, chief of General Surgical Services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R. Shepley, architect, of Essex, Mass.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
PLAIN DEALER
JUL 5 - 195

Following Music World Over Is No Waltz, Fassett Finds

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on C. B. S.'s radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over C. B. S. every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m., E. D. T.).

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam.

Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'Ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast t
Glyndebourne opera, the Hig
land games, the Military Tatt
and highlights of the Intern
tional Festival of Music a
Drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always eas
Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wan
ed to record the sound of t
famous fountain of Trevi. I did want the sound of taxis, bicycl
and people, but only the falli
water. We set up our recordi
equipment three hours befo
dawn, but it required more th
an hour before we could ma
onlookers be quiet enough so would get only the sounds of t fountain."

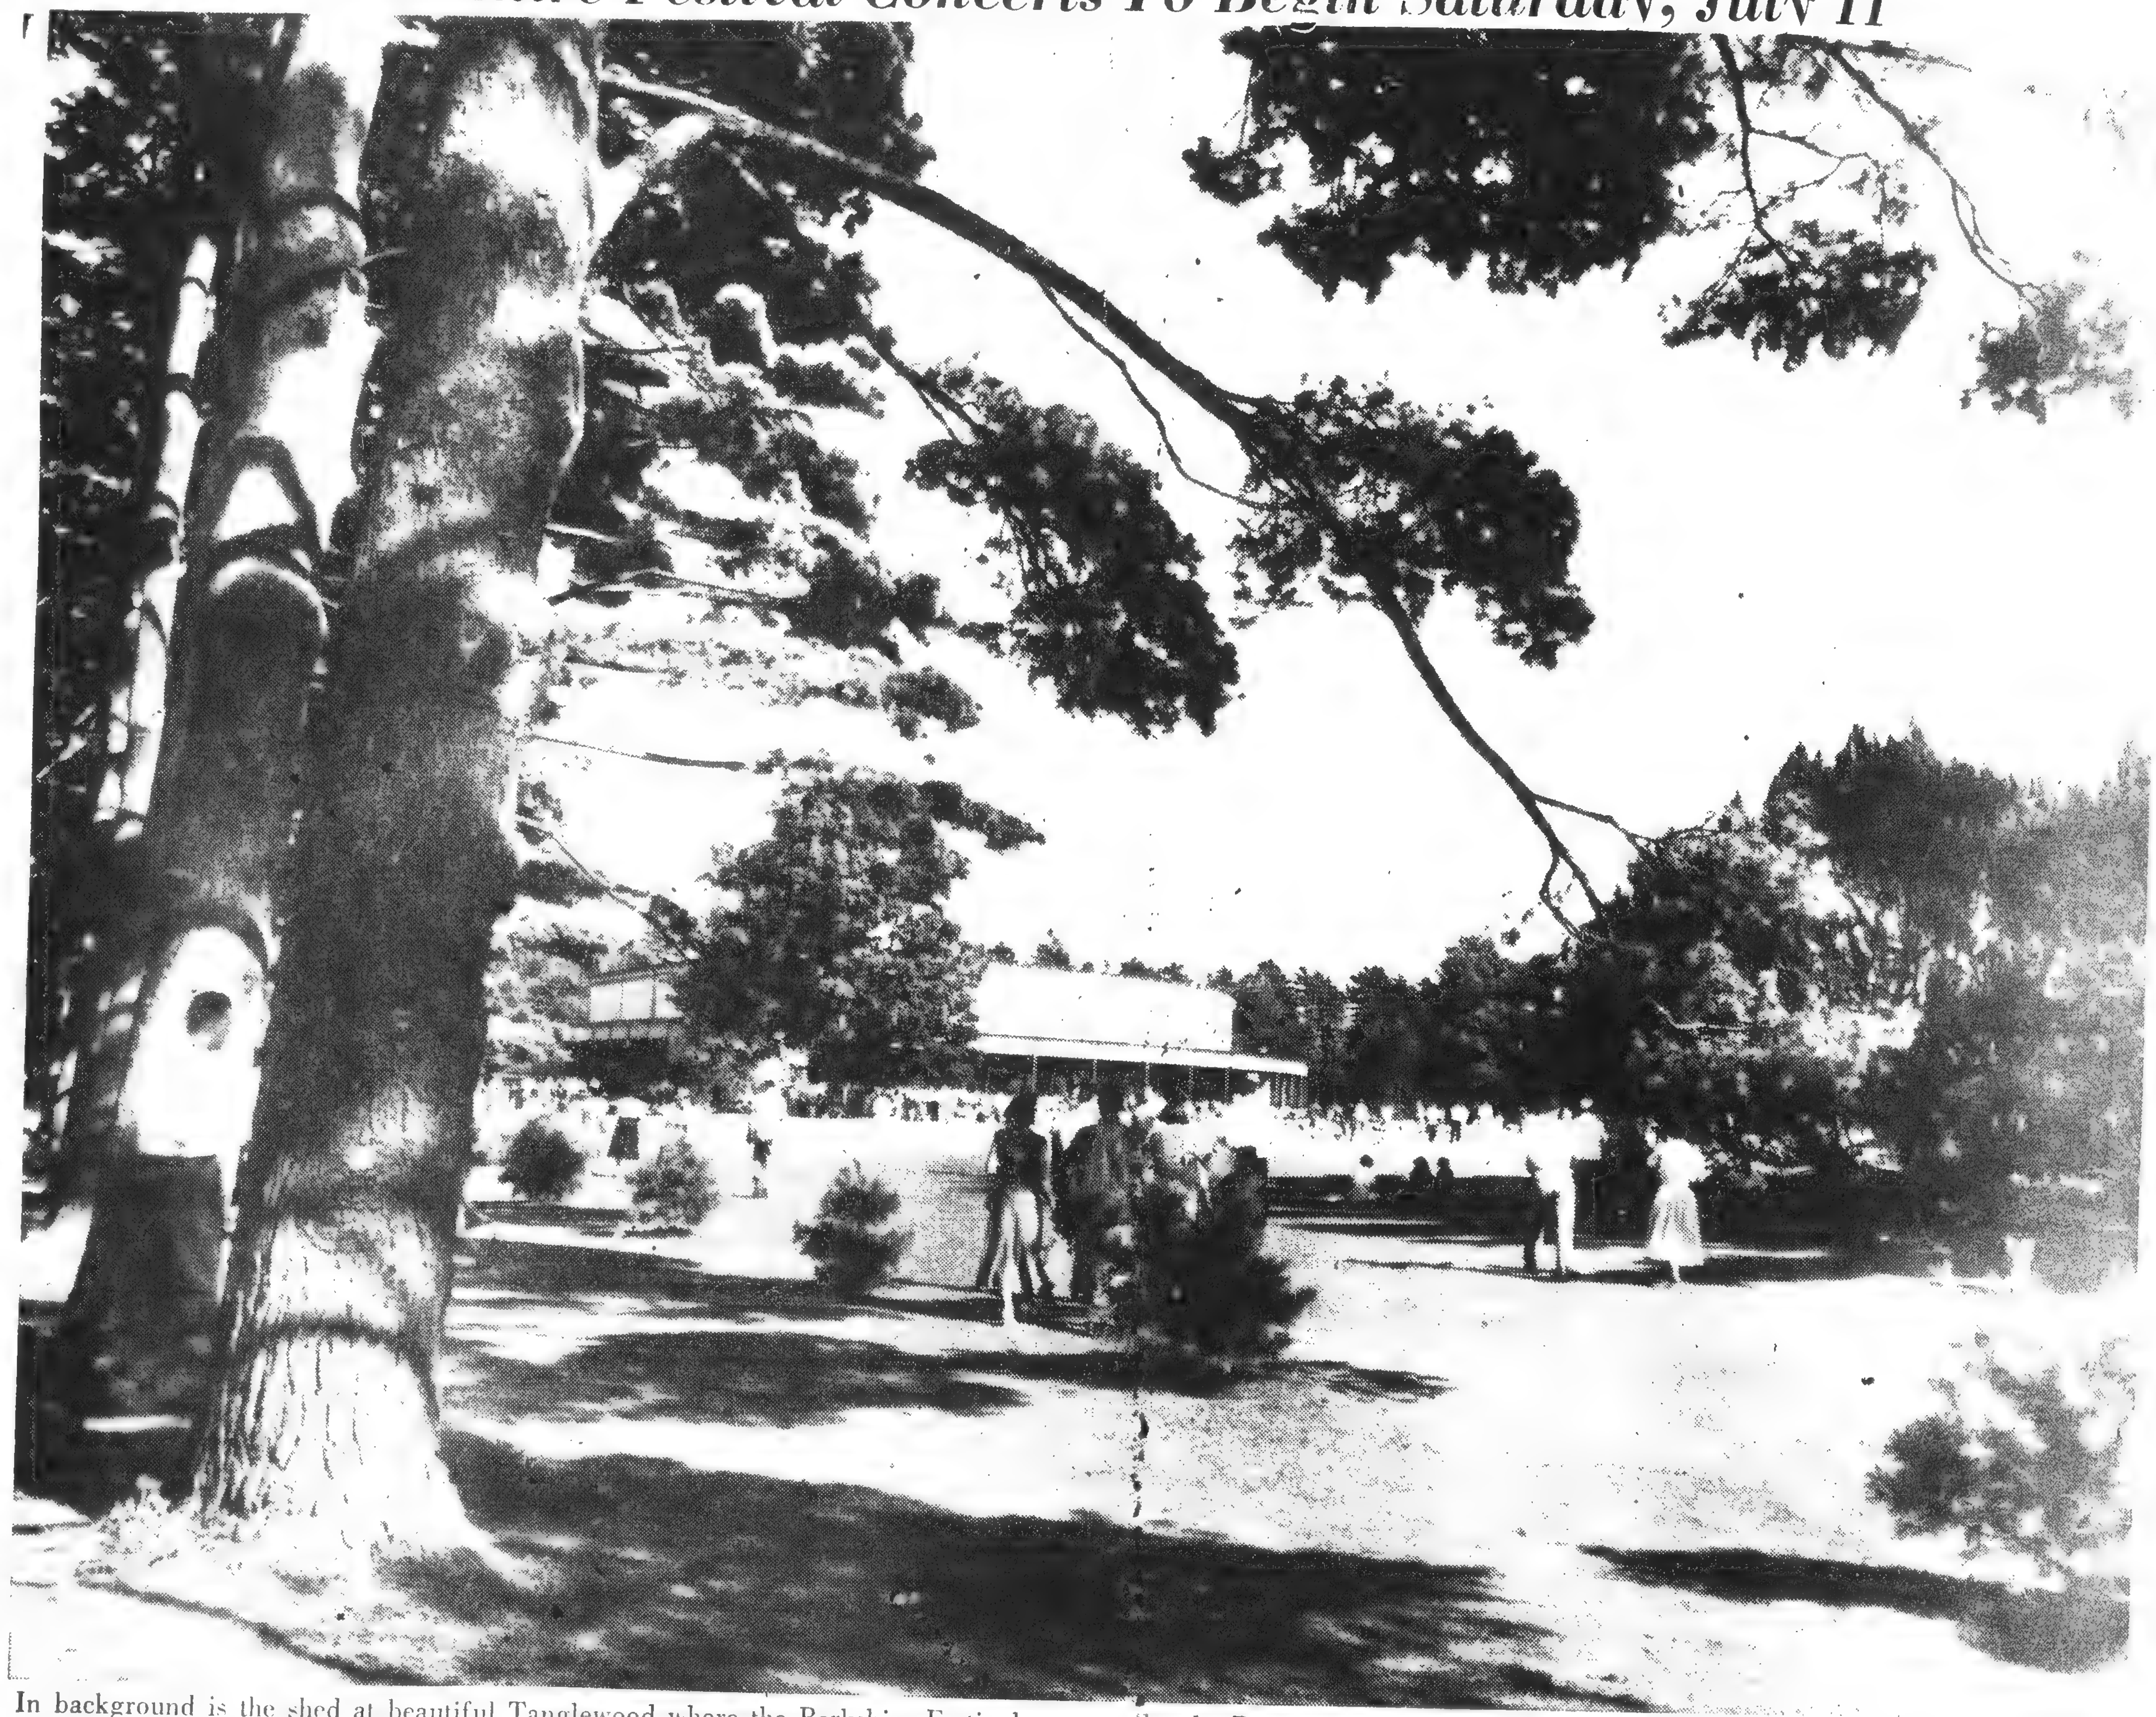
[186]

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JUL 3 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Concerts To Begin Saturday, July 11



In background is the shed at beautiful Tanglewood where the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be presented starting Saturday, Jul[illegible] Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, arrives at Tanglewood today after a month's vacation in Paris to assume his summer duties as conductor of the 1953 Festival and director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Two all-Bach programs in theater-concert hall next Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon will launch the new season.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.
TIMES-HERALD

JUL 2 - 1953

Tanglewood to Experiment With Backing Composers; Festival Opens This Sunday

LENOX, Mass. — For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. The center is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this instance the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The plan is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the center's 11th summer season next Sunday, July fifth, when the award winners will be on hand to commence work on their operas. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Roseman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester, both of whom were recommended by composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein. Each of the two composers will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitsky Music Foundation grant of $1500 toward the project.

To Work with Faculty

Messrs. Roseman and Mennini will be guests of the music center through the six-week season and will work with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, and all scenic and technical detail. By mid-summer it is expected that the composers will have fragments completed so they can be experimented with, and by the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set. This will allow the composers to have almost a full year to complete the works before their performance during the summer of 1954.

"It is our earnest hope "said Mr. Goldovsky, "that this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition will evolve some workman-like and effectvie theatre pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

Brooklyn Native

Mr. Roseman, a native of Brooklyn, studied with composers Arnold Schoenberg and Roger Sessions on the west coast, has produced and presented a radio program, "Meet the Composer", performed a series of Haydn sonatas also on the radio — both the latter in San Francisco — and is now east again.

Louis Mennini was born in Erie, Pa., and first studied music at Oberlin College, Ohio. He has since studied under Howard Hanson and Bernard Rogers, is a master of music, and is teaching at the Eastman School.

The music center includes a study group a school orchestra, a chorus, and departments for composing and conducting opera and chamber music.

Concerts in the theatre will be held from Saturday, July 11 through Sunday, July 26, Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, and will be conducted by Charles Munch. Concerts in the shed will be held from Friday, July 31 until Sunday, Aug. 16, and will include Friday evening programs. Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will be guest conductors at this series. Guest soloists will make their appearances throughout the two series.

A group of contributors known as the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center will have access to numerous smaller performances during the summer session.

instruction fro

July 1, 1952

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE
FOREIGN JOURNALISTS LIAISON STAFF
250 West 57th Street,
Room 410
New York 19, N.Y.

THIS MONTH IN NEW YORK CITY AND ELSEWHERE
(July)

une 30-Aug.10 BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER, BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts. Founded by the late [illegible] Koussevitsky, the Center this year will be under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra. In the school there are departments for composing, conducting, opera and chamber music as well as a student orchestra and chorus. In additionto the series of concerts given daily by the students, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform at a series of chamber orchestra concerts as follows: July 5-evening; July 6-afternoon; July 12-evening; July 13- afternoon; July 19 - evening; July 20 - afternoon. The complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will hold three series of concerts Thursday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons beginning July 24 and ending August 1[illegible]. Conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux, Leonard Bernstein and Hugh Ross. For additional details please see material offered in the order list of June 27. For press privileges please write Mrs. George Edman, Press Representative, Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

HACKENSAC
BERGEN RE

JUL

THE MUSIC B

THE J
OR W
OF TA

By JAMES FA
Director of M
C. B. S. Rad

I feel rather certa
general radio public
Sunday afternoons to Radio broadcasts reco ropean countries vi traipsing around the
with the recording app
over my shoulder, moment's notice to rec song in Naples, a colu pipers in Edinburgh, or concert in Zurich.

Actually, I travel recording equipment
Radio stations in mos countries have exce cording machines, ei or disk, and these ha been made availabl along with the techr operate them.

On one occasion we sa Thames with a disc-rec
it supplied by the BB hired a launch and prop ow the exact route ta vent of the first playi del's "Water Music." S Sargent and I sat in ather wet solitude on deck, making verbal no andmarks as we passe olm's witticisms were orded down below. By anged signal, Sir Malc ould stop at whatever eached after four and a tes, for a change of di ethod, obviously, was ut Sir Malcolm's spark ility was not affected a

The most difficult ta in the course of the recording excursions i commodate oneself to t erament and the workin of those on whose e
and judgment one mus sarily rely. Let me tell just one instance that h recently in Florence.

Somehow, after endless nd changes of arrangem apes of the Maggio Mu ocked away in a filing Radio Italiana. The tapes nd mine alone, but wh ime was over at 4:00 an o pick them up, the one orized to hand the tapes t an call him Maestro Zaba ll radio people in Italy Maestro—I was Maestro assetto) was absent.

He had gone to a party, not to return;
secretary advised me t
would go, that evening, concert at the Teatro Pergola. I went to the t not to hear the concert, intercept Maestro Zabag was 45 minutes early, a mained till the last c pulled away—but no M Zabaglioni. I even went the office, but he didn't.

Next morning I waited fr 45 before his secretary a nd smilingly advised me th o would not be in until 1 as at church. At 11:30 I nd was advised that Maes aglione had decided again
g in that day. He was ta

NEW YORK, N.
POST

JUL 16

The Lyon

By Leonard

Artie Shaw can do, ex commenting on the the
to see Koussevitzky and

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD
JUL 14 1953

Person

Arriving last week
Biederstedt of 302 Buffingto
Wilmington, Del., accompan Burnley, England. The
where they will stay whil Tanglewood, Mass.

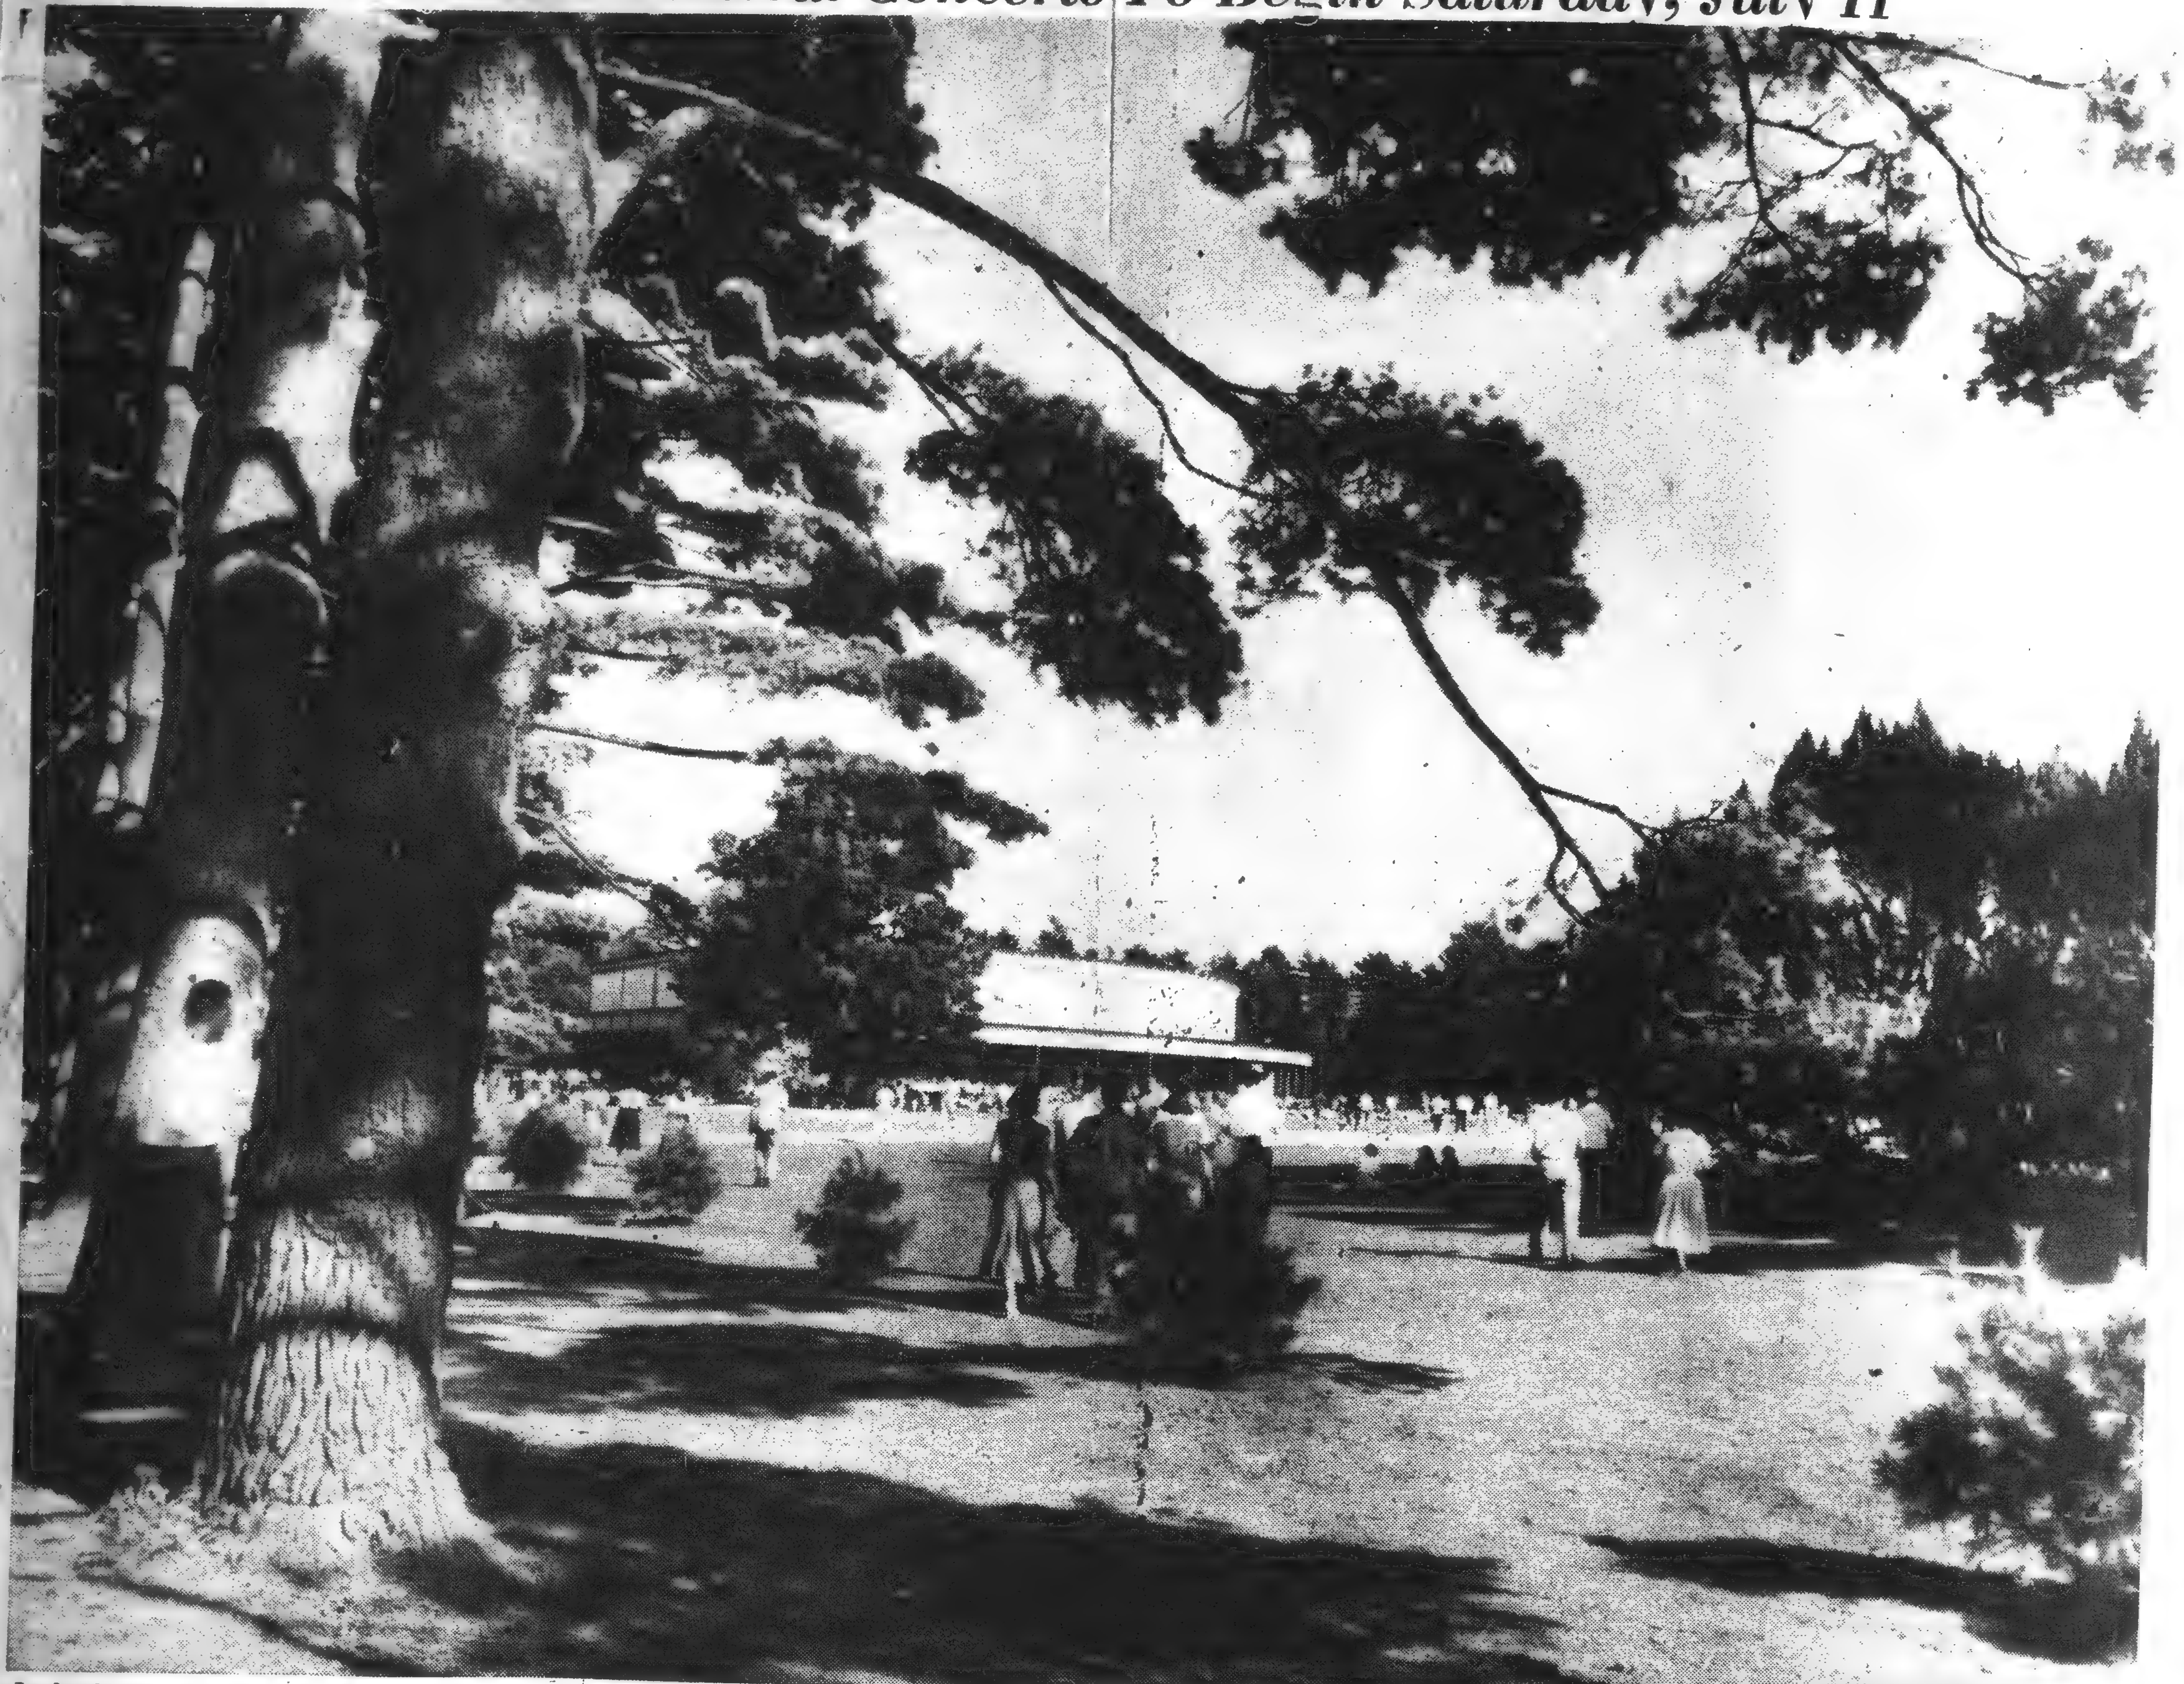
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JUL 3 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Concerts To Begin Saturday, July 11



In background is the shed at beautiful Tanglewood where the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be presented starting Saturday, July 11. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, arrives at Tanglewood today after a month's vacation in Paris to assume his summer duties as conductor of the 1953 Festival and director of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Two all-Bach programs in theater-concert hall next Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon will launch the new season.

TIMES-HERALD

JUL 2 - 1953

Tanglewood to Experiment With Backing Composers; Festival Opens This Sunday

LENOX, Mass. — For the first time in its ten years of practical assistance to young American musicians, the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will experiment with commissioning new operas by American composers. The center is unique in being the only music school maintained by a symphony orchestra in this country, in this instance the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The plan is being put into effect immediately, at the start of the center's 11th summer season next Sunday, July fifth, when the award winrers will be on hand to commence work on their operas. Boris Goldovsky, head of Tanglewood's opera department, announces that commissions have been awarded to Leonard Roseman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester, both of whom were recommended by composers Aaron Copland, Howard Hanson and Leonard Bernstein. Each of the two composers will receive a cash award of $750 from the Koussevitsky Music Foundation grant of $1500 toward the project.

To Work with Faculty

Messrs. Roseman and Mennini will be guests of the music center through the six-week season and will work with the advice and guidance of the opera department's faculty and staff. Full agreement will first be reached on the subject matter, scenario, libretto, the orchestral means, and all scenic and technical detail. By mid-summer it is expected that the composers will have fragments completed so they can be experimented with, and by the end of the summer it is hoped the framework of the operas will be substantially set. This will allow the composers to have almost a full year to complete the works before their performance during the summer of 1954.

"It is our earnest hope "said Mr. Goldovsky, "that this unique plan of assistance by experts during the first throes of composition will evolve some workman-like and effectvie theatre pieces, suitable to the performing talents available at Tanglewood, with all technical difficulties solved in advance."

Brooklyn Native

Mr. Roseman, a native of Brooklyn, studied with composers Arnold Schoenberg and Roger Sessions on the west coast, has produced and presented a radio program, "Meet the Composer", performed a series of Haydn sonatas also on the radio — both the latter in San Francisco — and is now east again.

Louis Mennini was born in Erie, Pa., and first studied music at Oberlin College, Ohio. He has since studied under Howard Hanson and Bernard Rogers, is a master of music, and is teaching at the Eastman School.

The music center includes a study group a school orchestra, a chorus, and departments for composing and conducting opera and chamber music.

Concerts in the theatre will be held from Saturday, July 11 through Sunday, July 26, Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, and will be conducted by Charles Munch. Concerts in the shed will be held from Friday, July 31 until Sunday, Aug. 16, and will include Friday evening programs. Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein will be guest conductors at this series. Guest soloists will make their appearances throughout the two series.

A group of contributors known as the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center will have access to numerous smaller performances during the summer session.

July 1, 1952

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE
FOREIGN JOURNALISTS LIAISON STAFF
250 West 57th Street,
Room 410
New York 19, N.Y.

THIS MONTH IN NEW YORK CITY AND ELSEWHERE
(July)

une 30-Aug.10 BERKSHIRE MUSIC CENTER, BERKSHIRE MUSIC FESTIVAL, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts. Founded by the late Serge Koussevitsky, the Center this year will be under the direction of Charles Munch, conductor, Boston Symphony Orchestra. In the school there are departments for composing, conducting, opera and chamber music as well as a student orchestra and chorus. In additionto the series of concerts given daily by the students, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform at a series of chamber orchestra concerts as follows: July 5-evening; July 6-afternoon; July 12-evening; July 13- afternoon; July 19 - evening; July 20 - afternoon. The complete Boston Symphony Orchestra will hold three series of concerts Thursday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons beginning July 24 and ending August 10. Conductors will be Charles Munch, Pierre Monteux, Leonard Bernstein and Hugh Ross. For additional details please see material offered in the order list of June 27. For press privileges please write Mrs. George Edman, Press Representative, Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Massachusetts.

HACKENSACK, N. J.
BERGEN RECORD

JUL 3

THE MUSIC BOX

THE JOY OR WOE OF TAPE

By JAMES FASSETT
Director of Music
C. B. S. Radio

[illegible] in Zurich.

Actually, I travel with [illegible] recording equipment at all. Radio stations in most of these countries have excellent recording machines, either tape or disk and these have always been made available to me along with the technicians to operate them.

On one occasion we [illegible] a disc [illegible] the BBC [illegible] proposed [illegible] the exact route taken [illegible] of the first playing of Handel's Water Music [illegible] Sir Malcolm Sargent and I set [illegible] our [illegible] solitude on the [illegible] making verbal notes of the landmarks as we passed. Sir Malcolm's witticisms were being recorded down below. By a prearranged signal, Sir Malcolm and I would stop at whatever point we reached after four and a half minutes, for a change of disc. Such a method, obviously, was not ideal, but Sir Malcolm's sparkling volubility was not affected at all.

The most difficult task of all in the course of the European recording excursions is to accommodate oneself to the temperament and the working habits of those on whose efficiency and judgment one must necessarily rely. Let me tell you of just one instance that happened recently in Florence.

Somehow, after endless difficulties and changes of arrangements, our tapes of the Maggio Musical were locked away in a filing cabinet at Radio Italiana. The tapes were mine and mine alone, but when siesta time was over at 4:00 and I went to pick them up, the one man authorized to hand the tapes to me (we can call him Maestro Zabaglioni for all radio people in Italy are called Maestro—I was Maestro Giacomo) Zabaglioni was absent.

He had gone to a cocktail party, not to return; but his secretary advised me that he would go, that evening, to a concert at the Teatro della Pergola. I went to the theater, not to hear the concert, but to intercept Maestro Zabaglioni. I was 45 minutes early, and remained till the last carriage pulled away—but no Maestro Zabaglioni. I even went back to the office, but he didn't.

Next morning I waited from 9 to 11:45 before his secretary appeared, and she [illegible] advised me the Maestro would not be in until 11:30. He was at church. At 11:30 I [illegible] and was advised that Maestro Zabaglioni [illegible] that day. He was [illegible] his children to the Festival of the Crickets in the Cascine Park.

THOMAS SCHIPPERS AND JAMES FASSETT
Phooey on Maestro Zabaglioni; let's see the crickets

By this time I had sent half a dozen wires to my secretary in Rome, changing appointments to dictate the script for dubbing with the tape. I, too, went to the Festival of the Crickets, not to see Maestro Zabaglione, but to see the crickets; and I bought one, and I won a goldfish by throwing a ping-pong ball into a goldfish bowl, and I ate pasta, and I had a wonderful time. And the Maggio Musicale still got on the air, somehow — I guess.

(Note from I. K.: It did, Jim, it did.)

• • •

In The Dell On The Cuff

The history-making series of no-admission concerts in the Robin Hood Dell got under way late in June, with a capacity audience of 17,000 listening to Eugene Ormandy direct the Philadelphia personnel known during the summer as the Robin Hood Dell Orchestra in a concert performance of "Madama Butterfly". Uta Graf sang the title role, with Richard Tucker as Pinkerton. There was no report that any one asked for refund of his carfare.

• • •

Or, $25 A Concert

The Philadelphia Orchestra, incidentally, closed its books on the year past with a business meeting that produced some interesting statistics. It played to 437,866 persons, or considerably more than attended the baseball games in some major-league cities. The operating deficit of $143,849.30 was reduced by gifts and income from the Endowment Fund to a modest $3,709 as of May 31, 1953. Inasmuch as this covers the activity involved in giving 142 concerts, it may be seen that the best orchestra in the world does its bookkeeping as efficiently as it does its music making.

• • •

Dancing In The Hills

Those who take their summer breather in the Adirondack Mountains will have a series of dance events to divert them. At the first performance at Schroon Crest on Schroon Lake (Thursday, July 16) folk dances of the vicinity will be interpreted. On July 30 Jean Leon Destine and his Haitian Dance Company will present such specialties of their repertory as "Revolt of the Slaves" and the "Witch Doctor Dance." Alphonse Cimber will preside at the percussion.

• • •

Commission Jobs

Proceeding on the theory that there is nothing like using a workshop to turn out durable goods, Boris Goldovsky has persuaded the directors of the Berkshire Music Center (Tanglewood, Mass.) to commission a pair of 1-act operas from young American composers. He hopes they will have them ready for use by the Opera Department (of which Goldovsky is director) by next summer. The composers, chosen from recommendations made by Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, and Howard Hanson, are Leonard Rosenman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester. In addition to a cash award of $750, each man will spend the summer as a guest of the Music Center, working directly with the staff of the Opera Department in the planning and creation of the works.

• • •

The Music Beat

Gottfried von Einem's "The Trial", which will have its first performance at Salzburg this summer, has been announced for a United States premiere at the New York City Center in October. Joseph Rosenstock will conduct the version in an English translation by Thomas Martin, and Otto Preminger, well known on Broadway as an actor and director, will do the staging. . . . One of the longest record affiliations in history is about to end—Mischa Elman deserts the Red Seal label of R. C. A. Victor after 43 years of identification with it. Repertory problems, it is said, and the partiality of the company's brass to the strings of J. Heifetz. . . . For reasons not completely stated, the celebrated soprano Erna Sack has been refused a visa to visit the Hawaiian Islands en route from Canada to Australia. The singer, who is now a Brazilian national, is famous for her agility in the top register of the voice. . . .

(Copyright 1935 by The Saturday Review)

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 16 1953

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

... Artie Shaw can do, except play a clarinet" . . . Eddie Foy, Jr., commenting on the thousands streaming to Tanglewood Festival to see Koussevitzky and Leonard Bernstein conducting: "Look at [illegible] just to see some sucker lead a band."

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
POST-STANDARD
JUL 14 1953

Personal Notes

[illegible] to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick [illegible] ffington rd. were Mrs. Joseph Holton Jones of [illegible] accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Margaret Buxton [illegible] England. The group left Friday for Richmond, Mass., where they will stay while attending the Berkshire Music Festival [illegible] Tanglewood, Mass.

[illegible] has left to spend some-

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 17 1953

Malcolm Holmes, Music Center Teacher, Dies

Malcolm H. Holmes, 46, for two years on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and for many summers leader of the orchestra at the Greenwood Music Camp, Cummington, died yesterday in Wellesley following a long illness.

Born in Brockton, Mr. Holmes graduated from Harvard University in 1928. He taught at Wellesley College following graduation, and at the time of his death was dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and director of the Harvard University band. He also conducted the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra. He led the orchestra of Department 5 at Tanglewood in the summers of 1940 and 1941.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Holmes.

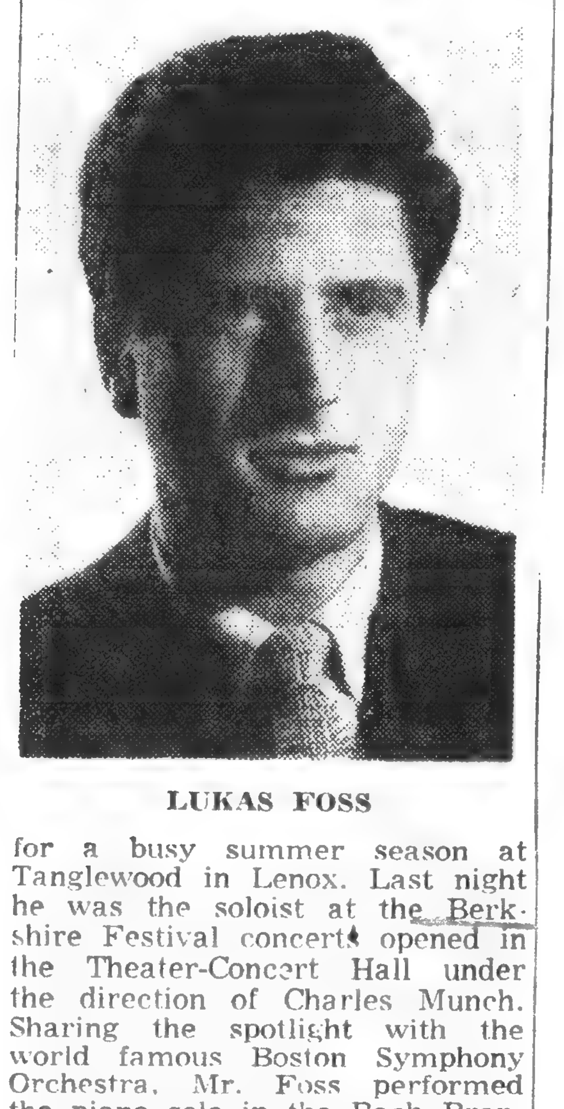
Funeral services will be Friday in the Harvard Memorial Chapel and burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 12 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The accomplished young American pianist-composer-conductor, Lukas Foss, has taken up residence at the Carter home at Sunset Farm in Lee as he prepares for a busy summer season at Tanglewood in Lenox. Last night he was the soloist at the Berkshire Festival concerts opened in the Theater-Concert Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. Sharing the spotlight with the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Foss performed the piano solo in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 and was rewarded with a tremendous ovation.



LUKAS FOSS

Two weeks from today Mr. Foss' new cantata, "A Parable of Death," based on poems by Rilke, will have its New England premiere with the composer conducting the orchestra himself. It was commissioned last winter for Vera Zorina and the Louisville Symphony Orchestra. More recently it was heard with Mr. Foss conducting and Miss Zorina as narrator at New York's Town Hall and at the Ojai Festival of Music in California.

In the first concert series in the Shed at Tanglewood on Saturday evening, August 1, Mr. Munch will be seen leading the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Mr. Foss' "Piano Concerto No. 2" and the young composer will be featured as the soloist. Meanwhile Lucas will be active on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in two departments—the orchestral — conducting and the analysis division of the Tanglewood Study Group.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 2 - 1953

Munch Ends Vacation In France

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will fly from Paris today to speak at the opening of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon at 3.30, and to open the theatre concerts of the Berkshire Festival Saturday evening, July 11, has completed a month's vacation in France. He flew to Paris fro mMontreal at the conclusion of the orchestra's transcontinental tour May 21.

In France Mr. Munch conducted five concerts: Four in Paris at the Théatre des Champs-Elysées and one in his native city of Strasbourg. He led the Orchestra National de la Radiodiffusion, the French national broadcasting orchestra with whom he toured the United States in 1948-49, before his invitation to succeed Serge Koussevitzky as permanent conductor of the Boston orchestra.

On the programs in France were five selections which he will conduct at the Berkshire Festival: The Berlioz dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet"; Chabrier's "Bourrée Fantastique;" excerpts from Act 3 of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger"; Schubert's symphony in B minor (Unfinished); and Schumann's overture to "Manfred."

Introdced American Works

The conductor, who has given first performances of much modern French music during his three years with the Boston orchestra, returned the compliment by introducing to France two works by American composers. On the June 4 Paris program were the European premiere of Walter Piston's fourth symphony and Alexei Haieff's piano symphony, with Leo Smit as soloist. The latter composition won the New York Music Critics' Circle Award as the best American orchestral work of the year. Mr. Munch conducted both works last season in Boston and New York.

The June 18 Paris concert was the occasion of the premiere of Darius Milhaud's "Concertante for Orchestra and Piano," with Nicole Henriot, 1952 Tanglewood soloist, at the piano. His Strasbourg program included the Beethoven "Eroica" Symphony with which he opened last year's Tanglewood season.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 2 - 1953

29 Events Listed for Friends At Music Center This Season

Twenty-nine musical events are to be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the 11th season that will start Sunday afternoon.

Subject to change, the schedule, today mailed to members, includes performances by students, faculty and chamber music groups sponsored by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge.

The school's symphony orchestra, led by student conductors and their teachers, under direction of Leonard Bernstein, will give concerts in the Shed Friday evenings from July 10 through 24, Thursday evenings July 30 and Aug. 6 and Saturday afternoon, Aug. 15.

The student chamber music department, directed by Richard Burgin and William Kroll, will give chamber concerts every Sunday morning at 10, beginning July 12 through the season, which will close Aug. 16.

Composers' Forums

Composers' forums, under Aaron Copland, will be held in the chamber music hall Sunday evenings July 12, 19 and 26 and Wednesday evenings Aug. 5 and 12.

The small choir, under Hugh Ross, choral music director, will give programs on the evenings of July 23 and Aug. 4 and E. Power Biggs, Boston Symphony Orchestra organist, will give recitals in the Music Shedd Saturday afternoons Aug. 1 and 8.

An evening of opera scenes will be performed Tuesday evening, July 21, under direction of Boris Goldovsky. Friends will have a choice of a performance of three one-act French operas Aug. 3 or Gretry's "Richard the Lion-Hearted," Aug. 10 or 11. Reservations for one of the last three performances must be made in advance through the Friends office at Tanglewood.

Mrs. Coolidge's chamber music programs will be given July 15, 22 and 29 in the theatre.

All evening events will start at 8.30 and afternoon performances at 3.

Tanglewood on Parade, the annual open house of the school, followed by a Boston Symphony Orchestra concert, for the benefit of the Berkshire Music Center, will be held Thursday, Aug. 13.

Contributions to the support of the school, which constitutes membership in the Friends Society, may be made at the Tanglewood box office.

HACKENSACK, N. J.
BERGEN RECORD

JUL 3 -

THE MUSIC BOX

THE JOY OR WOE OF TAPE

By JAMES FASSETT
Director of Music
C. B. S. Radio

[illegible]

Actually, I travel with [illegible] recording equipment at [illegible] Radio stations in most of these countries have excellent recording machines, either tape or disk, and these have always been made available to me along with the technicians to operate them.

On one occasion we [illegible] the BBC [illegible] the first playing of Handel's "Water Music" [illegible] and I sat in [illegible] solitude on the [illegible] making verbal notes of the landmarks as we passed. Sir Malcolm's witticisms were [illegible] down below. By a prearranged signal, Sir Malcolm [illegible] I could stop at whatever point we reached after four and a half minutes, for a change of disc. Such a method, obviously, was not ideal, but Sir Malcolm's sparkling volubility was not affected at all.

The most difficult task of all in the course of the European recording excursions is to accommodate oneself to the temperament and the working habits of those on whose efficiency and judgment one must necessarily rely. Let me tell you of just one instance that happened recently in Florence.

Somehow, after endless difficulties and changes of arrangements, our tapes of the Maggio Musical were locked away in a filing cabinet at Radio Italiana. The tapes were mine and mine alone, but when siesta time was over at 4:00 and I went to pick them up, the one man authorized to hand the tapes to me (we can call him Maestro Zabaglioni, for all radio people in Italy are called Maestro—I was Maestro Giacomo Fassetto) was absent.

He had gone to a cocktail party, not to return; but his secretary advised me that he would go, that evening, to a concert at the Teatro della Pergola. I went to the theater, not to hear the concert, but to intercept Maestro Zabaglioni. I was 45 minutes early, and remained till the last carriage pulled away—but no Maestro Zabaglioni. I even went back to the office, but he didn't.

Next morning I waited from 9 to [illegible] before his secretary appeared, [illegible] advised me the Maestro would not be in until 11:30. He was at church. At 11:30 I returned and was advised that Maestro Zabaglione had decided [illegible] coming in that day. He was taking his hildren to the Festival of the Crickets in the Cascine Park.

THOMAS SCHIPPERS AND JAMES FASSETT
Phooey on Maestro Zabaglioni; let's see the crickets

By this time I had sent half a dozen wires to my secretary in Rome, changing appointments to dictate the script for dubbing with the tape. I, too, went to the Festival of the Crickets, not to see Maestro Zabaglione, but to see the crickets; and I bought one, and I won a goldfish by throwing a ping-pong ball into a goldfish bowl, and I ate pasta, and I had a wonderful time. And the Maggio Musicale still got on the air, somehow — I guess.

(Note from I. K.: It did, Jim, it did.)

* * *

In The Dell On The Cuff

The history-making series of no-admission concerts in the Robin Hood Dell got under way late in June, with a capacity audience of 17,000 listening to Eugene Ormandy direct the Philadelphia personnel known during the summer as the Robin Hood Dell Orchestra in a concert performance of "Madama Butterfly". Uta Graf sang the title role, with Richard Tucker as Pinkerton. There was no report that any one asked for refund of his carfare.

* * *

Or, $25 A Concert

The Philadelphia Orchestra, incidentally, closed its books on the year past with a business meeting that produced some interesting statistics. It played to 437,866 persons, or considerably more than attended the baseball games in some major-league cities. The operating deficit of $143,849.30 was reduced by gifts and income from the Endowment Fund to a modest $3,709 as of May 31, 1953. Inasmuch as this covers the activity involved in giving 142 concerts, it may be seen that the best orchestra in the world does its bookkeeping as efficiently as it does its music making.

* * *

Dancing In The Hills

Those who take their summer breather in the Adirondack Mountains will have a series of dance events to divert them. At the first performance at Schroon Crest on Schroon Lake (Thursday, July 16) folk dances of the vicinity will be interpreted. On July 30 Jean Leon Destine and his Haitian Dance Company will present such specialties of their repertory as "Revolt of the Slaves" and the "Witch Doctor Dance." Alphonse Cimber will preside at the percussion.

* * *

Commission Jobs

Proceeding on the theory that there is nothing like using a workshop to turn out durable goods, Boris Goldovsky has persuaded the directors of the Berkshire Music Center (Tanglewood, Mass.) to commission a pair of 1-act operas from young American composers. He hopes they will have them ready for use by the Opera Department (of which Goldovsky is director) by next summer. The composers, chosen from recommendations made by Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, and Howard Hanson, are Leonard Rosenman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester. In addition to a cash award of $750, each man will spend the summer as a guest of the Music Center, working directly with the staff of the Opera Department in the planning and creation of the works.

* * *

The Music Beat

Gottfried von Einem's "The Trial", which will have its first performance at Salzburg this summer, has been announced for a United States premiere at the New York City Center in October. Joseph Rosenstock will conduct the version in an English translation by Thomas Martin, and Otto Preminger, well known on Broadway as an actor and director, will do the staging. . . . One of the longest record affiliations in history is about to end—Mischa Elman deserts the Red Seal label of R. C. A. Victor after 43 years of identification with it. Repertory problems, it is said, and the partiality of the company's brass to the strings of J. Heifetz. . . . For reasons not completely stated, the celebrated soprano Erna Sack has been refused a visa to visit the Hawaiian Islands en route from Canada to Australia. The singer, who is now a Brazilian national, is famous for her agility in the top register of the voice. . . .

(Copyright 1935 by The Saturday Review)

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 12 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The accomplished young American pianist-composer-conductor, Lukas Foss, has taken up residence at the Carter home at Sunset Farm in Lee as he prepares for a busy summer season at Tanglewood in Lenox. Last night he was the soloist at the Berkshire Festival concerts opened in the Theater-Concert Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. Sharing the spotlight with the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Foss performed the piano solo in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 and was rewarded with a tremendous ovation.

LUKAS FOSS

Two weeks from today Mr. Foss' new cantata, "A Parable of Death," based on poems by Rilke, will have its New England premiere with the composer conducting the orchestra himself. It was commissioned last winter for Vera Zorina and the Louisville Symphony Orchestra. More recently it was heard with Mr. Foss conducting and Miss Zorina as narrator at New York's Town Hall and at the Ojai Festival of Music in California.

In the first concert series in the Shed at Tanglewood on Saturday evening, August 1, Mr. Munch will be seen leading the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Mr. Foss' "Piano Concerto No. 2" and the young composer will be featured as the soloist. Meanwhile, Lucas will be active on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in two departments—the orchestral — conducting and the analysis division of the Tanglewood Study Group.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 2 - 1953

Munch Ends Vacation In France

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will fly from Paris today to speak at the opening of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon at 3.30, and to open the theatre concerts of the Berkshire Festival Saturday evening, July 11, has completed a month's vacation in France. He flew to Paris fro mMontreal at the conclusion of the orchestra's transcontinental tour May 21.

In France Mr. Munch conducted five concerts: Four in Paris at the Théatre des Champs-Elysées and one in his native city of Strasbourg. He led the Orchestra National de la Radiodiffusion, the French national broadcasting orchestra with whom he toured the United States in 1948-49, before his invitation to succeed Serge Koussevitzky as permanent conductor of the Boston orchestra.

On the programs in France were five selections which he will conduct at the Berkshire Festival: The Berlioz dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet"; Chabrier's "Bourrée Fantastique;" excerpts from Act 3 of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger"; Schubert's symphony in B minor (Unfinished); and Schumann's overture to "Manfred."

Introdced American Works

The conductor, who has given first performances of much modern French music during his three years with the Boston orchestra, returned the compliment by introducing to France two works by American composers. On the June 4 Paris program were the European premiere of Walter Piston's fourth symphony and Alexei Haieff's piano symphony, with Leo Smit as soloist. The latter composition won the New York Music Critics' Circle Award as the best American orchestral work of the year. Mr. Munch conducted both works last season in Boston and New York.

The June 18 Paris concert was the occasion of the premiere of Darius Milhaud's "Concertante for Orchestra and Piano," with Nicole Henriot, 1952 Tanglewood soloist, at the piano. His Strasbourg program included the Beethoven "Eroica" Symphony with which he opened last year's Tanglewood season.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 2 - 1953

29 Events Listed for Friends At Music Center This Season

Twenty-nine musical events are to be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the 11th season that will start Sunday afternoon.

Subject to change, the schedule, today mailed to members, includes performances by students, faculty and chamber music groups sponsored by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge.

The school's symphony orchestra, led by student conductors and their teachers, under direction of Leonard Bernstein, will give concerts in the Shed Friday evenings from July 10 through 24, Thursday evenings July 30 and Aug. 6 and Saturday afternoon, Aug. 15.

The student chamber music department, directed by Richard Burgin and William Kroll, will give chamber concerts every Sunday morning at 10, beginning July 12 through the season, which will close Aug. 16.

Composers' Forums

Composers' forums, under Aaron Copland, will be held in the chamber music hall Sunday evenings July 12, 19 and 26 and Wednesday evenings Aug. 5 and 12.

The small choir, under Hugh Ross, choral music director, will give programs on the evenings of July 23 and Aug. 4 and E. Power Biggs, Boston Symphony Orchestra organist, will give recitals in the Music Shedd Saturday afternoons Aug. 1 and 8.

An evening of opera scenes will be performed Tuesday evening, July 21, under direction of Boris Goldovsky. Friends will have a choice of a performance of three one-act French operas Aug. 3 or Gretry's "Richard the Lion-Hearted," Aug. 10 or 11. Reservations for one of the last three performances must be made in advance through the Friends office at Tanglewood.

Mrs. Coolidge's chamber music programs will be given July 15, 22 and 29 in the theatre.

All evening events will start at 8.30 and afternoon performances at 3.

Tanglewood on Parade, the annual open house of the school, followed by a Boston Symphony Orchestra concert, for the benefit of the Berkshire Music Center, will be held Thursday, Aug. 13.

Contributions to the support of the school, which constitutes membership in the Friends Society, may be made at the Tanglewood box office.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 16 1953

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

Artie Shaw can do, except play a clarinet" . . . Eddie Foy, Jr., commenting on the thousands streaming to Tanglewood Festival to see Koussevitzky and Leonard Bernstein conducting: "Look at 'em, just to see some sucker lead a band."

This Clipping From
PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUN 17 1953

Malcolm Holmes, Music Center Teacher, Dies

Malcolm H. Holmes, 46, for two years on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and for many summers leader of the orchestra at the Greenwood Music Camp, Cummington, died yesterday in Wellesley following a long illness.

Born in Brockton, Mr. Holmes graduated from Harvard University in 1928. He taught at Wellesley College following graduation, and at the time of his death was dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and director of the Harvard University band. He also conducted the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra. He led the orchestra of Department 5 at Tanglewood in the summers of 1940 and 1941.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Holmes.

Funeral services will be Friday in the Harvard Memorial Chapel and burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

-STAIN.
JUL 14 1953

Personal Notes

[illegible] to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick [illegible] rd. were Mrs. Joseph Holton Jones of [illegible] accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Margaret Buxton [illegible], England. The group left Friday for Richmond, Mass., where they will stay while attending the Berkshire Music Festival [illegible] Tanglewood, Mass.

188

July 11.
r of the ograms

52

AL,
he late Serge der the Symphony
ts for composell as a student s of concerts ony Orchestra concerts as uly 12-evening;
0 - afternoon.
old three ings and Sunday
t 10. Conductor
d Bernstein see material ss privileges tative,
Massachusetts.

HACKENSACK, N. J.
BERGEN RECORD

JUL 3 - 1953

THE MUSIC BOX

THE JOY OR WOE OF TAPE

By JAMES FASSETT
Director of Music,
C. B. S. Radio

I feel rather certain that the general radio public listening on Sunday afternoons to the CBS Radio broadcasts recorded in European countries visualizes me traipsing around the Continent with the recording apparatus slung over my shoulder, ready at a moment's notice to record a street song in Naples, a column of bagpipers in Edinburgh, or a symphony concert in Zurich.

Actually, I travel with no recording equipment at all. Radio stations in most of these countries have excellent recording machines, either tape or disk, and these have always been made available to me along with the technicians to operate them.

On one occasion we sailed up the Thames with a disc-recording outfit supplied by the BBC. We had hired a launch and proposed to follow the exact route taken on the event of the first playing of Handel's "Water Music." Sir Malcolm Sargent and I sat in grand but rather wet solitude on the upper deck, making verbal notes of the landmarks as we passed. Sir Malcolm's witticisms were being recorded down below. By a prearranged signal, Sir Malcolm and I would stop at whatever point we reached after four and a half minutes, for a change of disc. Such a method, obviously, was not ideal, but Sir Malcolm's sparkling volubility was not affected at all.

The most difficult task of all in the course of the European recording excursions is to accommodate oneself to the temperament and the working habits of those on whose efficiency and judgment one must necessarily rely. Let me tell you of just one instance that happened recently in Florence.

Somehow, after endless difficulties and changes of arrangements, our tapes of the Maggio Musical were locked away in a filing cabinet at Radio Italiana. The tapes were mine and mine alone, but when siesta time was over at 4:00 and I went to pick them up, the one man authorized to hand the tapes to me (we can call him Maestro Zabaglioni, for all radio people in Italy are called Maestro—I was Maestro Giacomo Fassetto) was absent.

He had gone to a cocktail party, not to return; but his secretary advised me that he would go, that evening, to a concert at the Teatro della Pergola. I went to the theater, not to hear the concert, but to intercept Maestro Zabaglioni. I was 45 minutes early, and remained till the last carriage pulled away—but no Maestro Zabaglioni. I even went back to the office, but he didn't.

Next morning I waited from 9 to [illegible]45 before his secretary appeared, and smilingly advised me the Maestro would not be in until 11:30. He was at church. At 11 30 I returned and was advised that Maestro Zabaglione had decided against coming in that day. He was taking his children to the Festival of the Crickets in the Cascine Park.

THOMAS SCHIPPERS AND JAMES FASSETT
Phooey on Maestro Zabaglioni; let's see the crickets

By this time I had sent half a dozen wires to my secretary in Rome, changing appointments to dictate the script for dubbing with the tape. I, too, went to the Festival of the Crickets, not to see Maestro Zabaglione, but to see the crickets; and I bought one, and I won a goldfish by throwing a ping-pong ball into a goldfish bowl, and I ate pasta, and I had a wonderful time. And the Maggio Musicale still got on the air, somehow — I guess.

(Note from I. K.: It did, Jim, it did.)

* * *

In The Dell On The Cuff

The history-making series of no-admission concerts in the Robin Hood Dell got under way late in June, with a capacity audience of 17,000 listening to Eugene Ormandy direct the Philadelphia personnel known during the summer as the Robin Hood Dell Orchestra in a concert performance of "Madama Butterfly". Uta Graf sang the title role, with Richard Tucker as Pinkerton. There was no report that any one asked for refund of his carfare.

* * *

Or, $25 A Concert

The Philadelphia Orchestra, incidentally, closed its books on the year past with a business meeting that produced some interesting statistics. It played to 437,866 persons, or considerably more than attended the baseball games in some major-league cities. The operating deficit of $143,849.30 was reduced by gifts and income from the Endowment Fund to a modest $3,709 as of May 31, 1953. Inasmuch as this covers the activity involved in giving 142 concerts, it may be seen that the best orchestra in the world does its bookkeeping as efficiently as it does its music making.

* * *

Dancing In The Hills

Those who take their summer breather in the Adirondack Mountains will have a series of dance events to divert them. At the first performance at Schroon Crest on Schroon Lake (Thursday, July 16) folk dances of the vicinity will be interpreted. On July 30 Jean Leon Destine and his Haitian Dance Company will present such specialties of their repertory as "Revolt of the Slaves" and the "Witch Doctor Dance." Alphonse Cimber will preside at the percussion.

* * *

Commission Jobs

Proceeding on the theory that there is nothing like using a workshop to turn out durable goods, Boris Goldovsky has persuaded the directors of the Berkshire Music Center (Tanglewood, Mass.) to commission a pair of 1-act operas from young American composers. He hopes they will have them ready for use by the Opera Department (of which Goldovsky is director) by next summer. The composers, chosen from recommendations made by Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein, and Howard Hanson, are Leonard Rosenman of New York and Louis Mennini of Rochester. In addition to a cash award of $750, each man will spend the summer as a guest of the Music Center, working directly with the staff of the Opera Department in the planning and creation of the works.

* * *

The Music Beat

Gottfried von Einem's "The Trial", which will have its first performance at Salzburg this summer, has been announced for a United States premiere at the New York City Center in October. Joseph Rosenstock will conduct the version in an English translation by Thomas Martin, and Otto Preminger, well known on Broadway as an actor and director, will do the staging. . . . One of the longest record affiliations in history is about to end—Mischa Elman deserts the Red Seal label of R. C. A. Victor after 43 years of identification with it. Repertory problems, it is said, and the partiality of the company's brass to the strings of J. Heifetz. . . . For reasons not completely stated, the celebrated soprano Erna Sack has been refused a visa to visit the Hawaiian Islands en route from Canada to Australia. The singer, who is now a Brazilian national, is famous for her agility in the top register of the voice. . . .

(Copyright 1935 by The Saturday Review)

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 1 2 1953

Berkshire Footlights

The accomplished young American pianist-composer-conductor, Lukas Foss, has taken up residence at the Carter home at Sunset Farm in Lee as he prepares for a busy summer season at Tanglewood in Lenox. Last night he was the soloist at the Berkshire Festival concerts opened in the Theater-Concert Hall under the direction of Charles Munch. Sharing the spotlight with the world famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Foss performed the piano solo in the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 and was rewarded with a tremendous ovation.

LUKAS FOSS

Two weeks from today Mr. Foss' new cantata, "A Parable of Death," based on poems by Rilke, will have its New England premiere with the composer conducting the orchestra himself. It was commissioned last winter for Vera Zorina and the Louisville Symphony Orchestra. More recently it was heard with Mr. Foss conducting and Miss Zorina as narrator at New York's Town Hall and at the Ojai Festival of Music in California.

In the first concert series in the Shed at Tanglewood on Saturday evening, August 1, Mr. Munch will be seen leading the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Mr. Foss' "Piano Concerto No. 2" and the young composer will be featured as the soloist. Meanwhile Lucas will be active on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center in two departments—the orchestral — conducting and the analysis division of the Tanglewood Study Group.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE
JUL 2 - 1953

Munch Ends Vacation In France

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who will fly from Paris today to speak at the opening of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood Sunday afternoon at 3.30, and to open the theatre concerts of the Berkshire Festival Saturday evening, July 11, has completed a month's vacation in France. He flew to Paris fro mMontreal at the conclusion of the orchestra's transcontinental tour May 21.

In France Mr. Munch conducted five concerts: Four in Paris at the Théatre des Champs-Elysées and one in his native city of Strasbourg. He led the Orchestra National de la Radiodiffusion, the French national broadcasting orchestra with whom he toured the United States in 1948-49, before his invitation to succeed Serge Koussevitzky as permanent conductor of the Boston orchestra.

On the programs in France were five selections which he will conduct at the Berkshire Festival: The Berlioz dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet"; Chabrier's "Bourrée Fantastique;" excerpts from Act 3 of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger"; Schubert's symphony in B minor (Unfinished); and Schumann's overture to "Manfred."

Introdced American Works

The conductor, who has given first performances of much modern French music during his three years with the Boston orchestra, returned the compliment by introducing to France two works by American composers. On the June 4 Paris program were the European premiere of Walter Piston's fourth symphony and Alexei Haieff's piano symphony, with Leo Smit as soloist. The latter composition won the New York Music Critics' Circle Award as the best American orchestral work of the year. Mr. Munch conducted both works last season in Boston and New York.

The June 18 Paris concert was the occasion of the premiere of Darius Milhaud's "Concertante for Orchestra and Piano," with Nicole Henriot, 1952 Tanglewood soloist, at the piano. His Strasbourg program included the Beethoven "Eroica" Symphony with which he opened last year's Tanglewood season.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 2 - 1953

29 Events Listed for Friends At Music Center This Season

Twenty-nine musical events are to be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in the 11th season that will start Sunday afternoon.

Subject to change, the schedule, today mailed to members, includes performances by students, faculty and chamber music groups sponsored by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge.

The school's symphony orchestra, led by student conductors and their teachers, under direction of Leonard Bernstein, will give concerts in the Shed Friday evenings from July 10 through 24, Thursday evenings July 30 and Aug. 6 and Saturday afternoon, Aug. 15.

The student chamber music department, directed by Richard Burgin and William Kroll, will give chamber concerts every Sunday morning at 10, beginning July 12 through the season, which will close Aug. 16.

Composers' Forums

Composers' forums, under Aaron Copland, will be held in the chamber music hall Sunday evenings July 12, 19 and 26 and Wednesday evenings Aug. 5 and 12.

The small choir, under Hugh Ross, choral music director, will give programs on the evenings of July 23 and Aug. 4 and E. Power Biggs, Boston Symphony Orchestra organist, will give recitals in the Music Shedd Saturday afternoons Aug. 1 and 8.

An evening of opera scenes will be performed Tuesday evening, July 21, under direction of Boris Goldovsky. Friends will have a choice of a performance of three one-act French operas Aug. 3 or Gretry's "Richard the Lion-Hearted," Aug. 10 or 11. Reservations for one of the last three performances must be made in advance through the Friends office at Tanglewood.

Mrs. Coolidge's chamber music programs will be given July 15, 22 and 29 in the theatre.

All evening events will start at 8.30 and afternoon performances at 3.

Tanglewood on Parade, the annual open house of the school, followed by a Boston Symphony Orchestra concert, for the benefit of the Berkshire Music Center, will be held Thursday, Aug. 13.

Contributions to the support of the school, which constitutes membership in the Friends Society, may be made at the Tanglewood box office.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 16 1953

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

Artie Shaw can do, except play a clarinet" . . . Eddie Foy, Jr., commenting on the thousands streaming to Tanglewood Festival to see Koussevitzky and Leonard Bernstein conducting: "Look at 'em, just to see some sucker lead a band."

STAN

JUL 14 1953

Personal Notes

Arriving last week to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick [illegible] of 302 Buffington rd. were Mrs. Joseph Holton Jones of Wilmington, Del., accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. Margaret Buxton of Burnley, England. The group left Friday for Richmond, Mass., where they will stay while attending the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass.

[illegible] left to spend some-

This Clipping

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUN 17 1953

Malcolm Holmes, Music Center Teacher, Dies

Malcolm H. Holmes, 46, for two years on the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, and for many summers leader of the orchestra at the Greenwood Music Camp, Cummington, died yesterday in Wellesley following a long illness.

Born in Brockton, Mr. Holmes graduated from Harvard University in 1928. He taught at Wellesley College following graduation, and at the time of his death was dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and director of the Harvard University band. He also conducted the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra. He led the orchestra of Department 5 at Tanglewood in the summers of 1940 and 1941.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Holmes.

Funeral services will be Friday in the Harvard Memorial Chapel and burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

July 19

Second Mozart Concert At Lenox This Afternoon

Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale Soloists in Sinfonia Concertante at Tanglewood; Opera Scenes Tuesday, Sonata Recital Wednesday

Lenox, July 18 — The Berkshire Festival concert in the "Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 p. m. will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, teaming with Joseph de Pasquale, violist of the orchestra, in the Sinfonia Concertante, for violin and viola (K. 364).

The Sunday afternoon program also includes the overture to "The Mariage of Figaro," "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" (K. 525) and the symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551).

Ruth Posselt Soloist

Through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a sonata recital will be given on Wednesday evening by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the berkshire festival. The program will include music of Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

The first evening of opera scenes will be given by students of Department IV of the Berkshire Music Center on Tuesday evening and the first choir concert by the students of Department II on Thursday evening. The Sunday morning chamber music of Department I students tomorrow and the composers' forum the same evening by Department III students, will be held as usual. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center who make a voluntary contribution to its support are invited to the Mrs. Coolidge concert and to the school performances.

The music of Haydn will be played next Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. and works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss will be performed next Sunday afternoon at 2.30 p. m., in the Theater-Concert Hall. These will be the orchestra's last concerts in the 1152-seat theater, and the following week the major Festival concerts will commence in the 6000-seat Music shed.

First Broadcast

The July 26 concert will be the first of four Sunday afternoon festival performances to be broadcast nationally by CBS Radio from Tanglewood, as the only American event in the network's "World Music Festivals" program, which includes highlights from seven European summer festivals. The first portion of the program Tanglewood audiences will hear, from 2.30 to 4 p. m. EDT, will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, CBS, radio director of music, as commentator.

A feature of the week end will be the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' "A Parable of Death," which was commissioned for Vera Zorina by the Louisville Orchestra last season, which the composer will conduct with Miss Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist and the festival chorus of Berkshire Music Center students participating. The cantata had its premiere in Louisville last March, and has since been heard in New York in April and at the Ojai Festival, California, in May.

The text is translated by Anthony Hecht from "Stories of God" by the Austrian writer Rainer Maria Rilke. Miss Zorina, who has appeared in Max Reinhardt productions in Berlin, in ballet in London with Anton Dolin and in America with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, in many films, and on Broadway in "I Married an Angel," "Louisiana Purchase" and "The Tempest," will make her first appearance at Tanglewood. She has narrated Honegger's "Jeanne d'Arc au bucher" with the Boston and other orchestras.

Three Novelties

Important novelties will be first performances at Tanglewood of the Haydn "Theresa" Mass and the Milhaud "La Creation du Monde," neither of which has been played before by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and of Richard Strauss' Divertimento (after Couperin), composed in 1941, which the orchestra played for the first time in the United States last season.

The "Theresa" Mass, composed in 1799, will have as soloists: Lois McCauley, Trenton, N. J., soprano; Beatrice Krebs, New York City, alto; John McCollum, Tuckahoe N. Y., tenor; Lee Cass, New York City, bass, with Hugh Ross conducting. All the soloists are students in the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center. Darius Milhaud's orchestral composition was composed in 1923 following the French composer's first visit to the U. S., and reflects his enthusiasm for Harlem jazz.

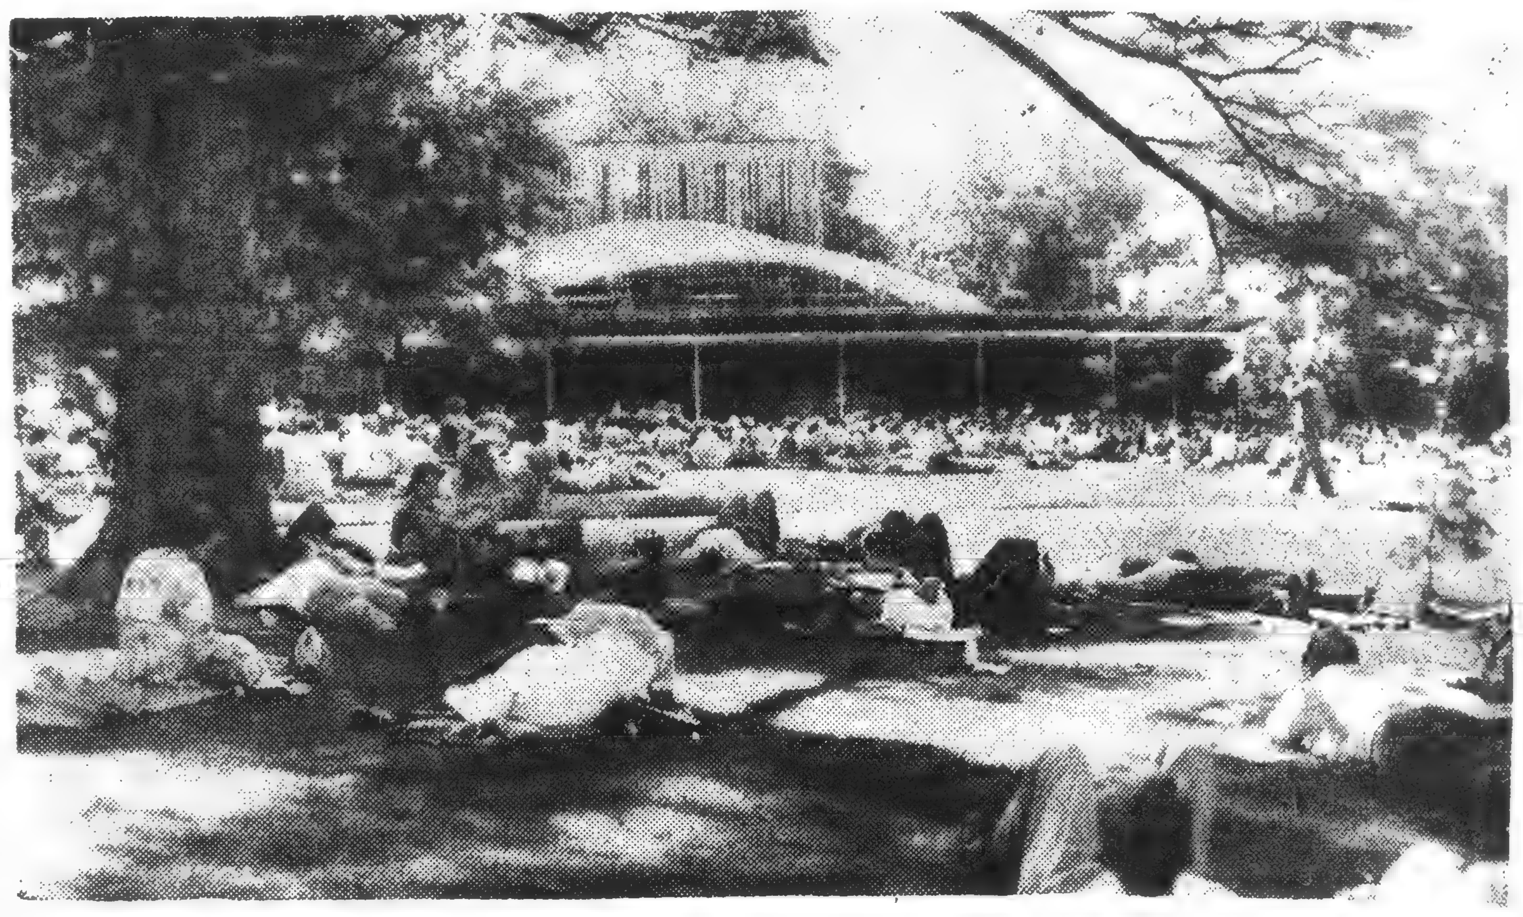
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE

JUL 11 1953

Berkshire Concerts Under Way Tonight

The 16th Berkshire Festival will begin its six week-ends of 15 concerts tonight at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox. Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Bach. The second concert will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Summer Scene at Tanglewood



This summery scene outside the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood is a typical one. The annual Berkshire Music Festival at Lenox, now in full swing, will continue through Aug. 16. The second all-Mozart program will be played this afternoon at 2.30, with one more week end of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 12 1953

PROGRAMS OF THE WEEK

STADIUM CONCERTS

LEWISOHN STADIUM

MONDAY. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Stell Andersen, pianist. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.

Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor ....Bach-Respighi
Piano Concerto in D, K. 537......Mozart
Suite from Der Rosenkavalier.....Strauss
Prelude and Love Death from Tristan and Isolde ....Wagner
Fantasie Pastorale, for piano and orchestra ....Milhaud

TUESDAY. Conductor, Monteux; Maxim Schapiro, pianist.

Roman Carnival Overture.........Berlioz
Symphony in D minor.............Franck
Alborada del Gracioso............ Ravel
Nuages and Fetes.................Debussy
Symphony on a French Mountain Air for piano and orchestra.........D'Indy

WEDNESDAY, all-Tchaikovsky program. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; Ossy Renardy, violinist.

Music from the ballet, The Sleeping Beauty; Symphony No. 4; Violin Concerto.

THURSDAY, all-Gershwin. Conductor, Smallens; Oscar Levant, pianist.

Strike Up the Band; Piano Concerto; An American in Paris; Excerpts from Porgy and Bess (Symphonic Picture arranged by Bennett); Rhapsody in Blue.

SATURDAY. Conductor, Alfredo Antonini; Herva Nelli, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor; Frank Guarrera, baritone; The Collegiate Chorale.

Feste e pane; Pescator, affonda l'esca from La Gioconda..............Ponchielli
Lamento di Federico from L'Arlesiana ....Cilea
La donna e mobile from Rigoletto; Canzone del Salce and Ave Maria from Otello ....Verdi
Overture to Le Maschere........Mascagni
Excerpts from Tosca..............Puccini
Rataplan, from The Daughter of the Regiment ....Donizetti
Overture to La Cenerentola........Rossini
Duet from Fedora...............Giordano
Largo al Factotum, from the Barber of Seville ....Rossini
Hymn of the Nations...............Verdi

GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS

GOLDMAN BAND

TONIGHT, Central Park. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.

Overture, Force of Destiny; Excerpts from La Traviata and Aida; Overture, Joan of Arc ....Verdi
Polovetsian Dances ....Borodin
Eili, Eili ....Shallitt
First Hungarian Rhapsody.......... Liszt
Kol Nidrei ....Bruch
Dance Caprice .... Grieg
March, On the Hudson..........Goldman

MONDAY, Central Park.

Occident and Orient ....Saint-Saens
Overture, Beatrice and Benedict...Berlioz
Allegretto Moderato from Psyche and Eros ....Franck
Suite francaise ....Milhaud
Excerpts from Carmen..............Bizet
Overture, Mignon ....Thomas

WEDNESDAY, Central Park.

Marche Militaire, Ave Maria; Praise of Tears; Moment Musical; Symphony in B minor (Unfinished) ....Schubert
Overture, Italian In Algiers.......Rossini
Suite, Royce Hall .... Willan
Tanz Intermezzo .... Sibelius
March, Abraham Lincoln ....Goldman
Reminiscences of Ireland..........Godfrey

THURSDAY, Prospect Park.

March of the Peers; Excerpts from Iolanthe .... Sullivan
Overture, Beautiful Galathea...von Suppe
Popular Melodies ....Herbert
Excerpts from The Grand Duchess ....Offenbach
Oh! Promise Me from Robin Hood ....DeKoven
Excerpts from The Merry Widow....Lehar
The Bride Elect; El Capitan........Sousa
Excerpts from Die Fledermaus.....Strauss

FRIDAY, Central Park.

Repeating Thursday's program.

SATURDAY. Prospect Park.

Grand March, International Accord; Concert Waltz ....Goldman
Overture, Romeo and Juliet...Tchaikovsky
Ave Maria ....Schubert
Friendship Polka ....Franko
Russian Sailor's Dance.............Gliere
Waltzes; Excerpts from Die Fledermaus ....Strauss

OPERA

LEMONADE OPERA

141 West Thirteenth Street

TONIGHT, 8:30 P. M., Don Pedro. Performances nightly except Mondays.

COMMUNITY CIVIC OPERA

Educational Alliance

MONDAY, 8:15 P. M., Faust (in concert form).

PUNCH OPERA

Cherry Lane Theatre

WEDNESDAY, George Antheil's Volpone. Performances nightly through next Sunday. Moore, Victoria; Myers, Falk, Pierce, Roussin, Thompson, Hart, Miller. Conductor, Wilder.

LA PUMA WORKSHOP

270 West Eighty-ninth Street

WEDNESDAY, 7:45 P. M., La Traviata.

GREATER NEW YORK OPERA

Masters Institute Theatre

THURSDAY, 8:30 P. M., La Traviata.

AMATO OPERA THEATRE

159 Bleecker Street

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M., La Traviata. Admission free; reservations in advance.

SALMAGGI OPERA

Randalls Island Stadium

SATURDAY, 8:45 P. M., Carmen. Bredford, Andriello, Caminita, Wold; Eckard, Green, Salvadore, Estrow, Rossi. Conductor, Leide

OTHER EVENTS

TODAY

MIRIAM BURTON, soprano, Carl Fischer Hall, 8:30 P. M.

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

Theatre-Concert Hall

Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass; Doriot Anthony, flutist.

Cantata No. 28; Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings; Suite No. 3 in D ....Bach

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch. Isaac Stern, violinist.

Divertimento in D, for strings; Violin Concerto in G; Serenade for Thirteen Winds; Prague Symphony ....Mozart

NEXT SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch, Isaac Stern, violinist; Joseph De Pasquale, violist.

Overture to The Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Jupiter Symphony ....Mozart

J. Abresch

Herva Nelli, soprano soloist at Stadium Saturday.

Sara Mae Endich, soprano, sings at Tanglewood today.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 12 1953

MUSIC THIS WEEK

Stadium Concerts

Stadium Symphony Orchestra, Lewisohn Stadium, Convent and Amsterdam Aves., 136th and 138th Sts.

Monday, 8:30. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Stell Andersen, pianist. Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor, Bach-Respighi; Concerto in D major, for Piano and Orchestra, K. 537 ("Coronation"), Mozart; Suite from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss; Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde," Wagner; Fantasie Pastorale, for Piano and Orchestra (first N. Y. performance), Milhaud. (In case of rain, this program will be played the next clear night.)

Tuesday, 8:30. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Maxim Schapiro, pianist. "Roman Carnival" Overture, Berlioz; Symphony in D minor, Franck; Alborada del Gracioso, Ravel; Nuages and Fetes, Debussy; Symphony on a French Mountain Air for Piano and Orchestra, D'Indy.

Wednesday, 8:30. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; soloist, Ossy Renardy, violinist. Music from the Ballet, "The Sleeping Beauty"; Symphony No. 4 in F minor, Op. 36; Concerto in D major for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 35, Tchaikovsky.

Thursday, 8:30. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; Oscar Levant, pianist. Strike Up the Band; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra; "Porgy and Bess" (arr. Bennett); Rhapsody in Blue, Gershwin. (In case of rain, this program will be played the next night.)

Saturday, 8:30. Conductor, Alfredo Antonini; soloists, Herva Nelli, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor; Frank Guarrera, baritone; the Collegiate Chorale. Feste e Pane; Barcarola; Pescator, affonda l'esca, from "La Gioconda," Ponchelli; Lamento di Federico, from "L'Arlesiana," Cilea; "La Donna e Mobile, from "Rigoletto"; Canzone del Salce; Ave Maria, Verdi; Overture to "Le Maschere," Mascagni; Recondite Armonia; Duet from Act I; Vissi d'Arte; Te Deum, Puccini; Rataplan, from "The Daughter of the Regiment," Donizetti; Duet from "Fedora," Giordano; Largo al Factotum, from "The Barber of Seville," Rossini; Hymn to the Nations (first N. Y. performance), Verdi. (In case of rain, this program will be played the next night.)

Guggenheim Concerts

Goldman Band, Edwin Franko Goldman, conductor; Central and Prospect Parks.

Today, Central Park, 8:30. Overture, Force of Destiny; Excerpts, La Traviata; Overture, Joan of Arc; Excerpts, Aida, Verdi; Polovetzian Dances, Borodin; Eili, Eili (James Burke, cornetist), Shallitt; First Hungarian Rhapsody, Liszt; Kol Nidrei, Bruch; Dance Caprice, Grieg; March, On the Hudson, Goldman.

Monday, Central Park, 8:30. March, Occident and Orient, Saint-Saens; Overture, Beatrice and Benedict, Berlioz; Allegretto Moderato from Psyche and Eros, Franck; Suite Francasie, Milhaud; Excerpts, Carmen, Bizet; Overture, Mignon, Thomas; Fantasie, The Carnival of Venice (James Burke, cornetist), Arban; Bolero, Ravel; Farandole, from L'Arlesienne Suite II, Bizet; Overture, Orpheus, Offenbach.

Wednesday, Central Park, 8:30. Marche Militaire; Ave Maria; Praise of Tears; Moment Musicale; Symphony in B minor (Unfinished), Schubert; Overture, Italian in Algiers; Suite, Royce Hall, Willan; Overture, "L'Italiana in Algeri," Rossini; Tanz Intermezzo, Sibelius; March, Abraham Lincoln, Goldman; Reminiscences of Ireland, Godfrey.

Thursday, Prospect Park, 8:30. March of the Peers, Sullivan; Overture, Beautiful Galathea, von Suppe; Excerpts, Iolanthe, Sullivan; Popular Melodies, Herbert; Excerpts, The Grand Duchesss, Offenbach; Oh! Promie Me from Robin Hood (James Burke, cornetist), DeKoven; Excerpt, from The Merry Widow, Lehar; March, The Bride Elect; March, El Capitan, Sousa; Excerpts, Die Fledermaus, Strauss.

Friday, Central Park, 8:30. March of the Peers, Sullivan; Overture, Beautiful Galathea, von Suppe; Excerpts, Iolanthe, Sullivan; Popular Melodies, Herbert; Excerpts, The Grand Duches, Offenbach; Oh! Promise Me from Robin Hood (James Burke, cornetist), DeKoven; Excerpt, from the Merry Widow, Lehar; March, The Bride Elect; March, El Capitan, Sousa; Excerpts, Die Fledermaus, Strauss.

Saturday, Prospect Park, 8:30. Grand March, International Accord, Goldman; Overture, Romeo and Juliet, Tchaikovsky; Concert Waltz (James Burke, cornetist), Goldman; Ave Maria, Schubert; Friendship Polka, Franko; Russian Sailor's Dance, Gliere; Waltz, Wine, Women and Song; Waltz, Acceleration; Waltz, Love Songs; Waltz, The Beautiful Blue Danube; Excerpts, Die Fledermaus, Strauss.

Other Concerts

Miriam Burton, soprano; Carl Fischer Hall, today, 8:30.

Accompanist, Kelley Wyatt. Songs by Bach, Durante, Handel-Bibb, [illegible] Charpentier, Debussy, [illegible] Coleridge-Taylor, Johnson, [illegible]

Marilyn Mason, organist, and Paul Doktor, violinist; St. P[illegible] Chapel, Columbia [illegible], Tuesday, noon.

Works by Bach, [illegible] Vitali, Haines.

Helen Lanier, soprano, and Howard Coombs, pianist; [illegible] Museum, today, [illegible]

Accompanist, [illegible] strumental [illegible] de Fontenailles, [illegible] Dowell, Carpenter, [illegible] Albeniz, Strauss-D[illegible]

Corliss Arnold, organist, [illegible] Chapel, Columbia [illegible] Thursday, noon.

Works by Handel, Bach, [illegible] Hindemith, Langlais.

Community Civic Opera Company, Educational Alliance, 197 E. Broadway, Gounod's "Faust," Monday, 8:30.

New York Public Library Record Concerts, Bryant Park.

Monday, noon. Overture, The Barber of Seville; Rossini; [illegible] B flat; No. 3 in G minor, [illegible] Handel; Ma mere l'Oye, Ravel; [illegible] Op. 72, Act I, [illegible] Beethoven; Symphony No. [illegible] Prokoviev; The Fire Bird Suite, Stravinsky.

Tuesday, noon. [illegible] Op. 55 ("Eroica"), Beethoven; [illegible] Ein deutsches Requiem [illegible] Ballet Allegory, Le baiser de la fée, Stravinsky.

Wednesday, noon. [illegible] No. 4, Op. 90 ("Italian"), [illegible] land Sketches, [illegible] messe de Notre Dame, [illegible] Romeo and [illegible] Tchaikovsk[illegible]

Thursday, [illegible] Selections [illegible] kovsky; [illegible] burg Concert[illegible] Suite, [illegible] Dorati.

Friday, noon. [illegible] 60. Prokofiev; [illegible] violin and orchestra, [illegible] Saengers [illegible] Symphony, [illegible] Mozart.

Opera

Salmaggi Opera, [illegible] dium, Randalls [illegible] "Carmen," [illegible]

Lemonade Opera, [illegible] Mozart's "[illegible] through S[illegible]

Franchetti's [illegible] Garden, [illegible] Westport, [illegible]

Amato Opera Theatre, [illegible] St., Verdi [illegible] and Sat[illegible] by [illegible] 7-2844

Greater New York Opera Company, Master [illegible] side Drive [illegible] "La Traviata," [illegible]

La Puma Opera Workshop [illegible] munity [illegible] W. 89th St., "Traviata," Wednesday, [illegible]

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, [illegible] Tanglewood, Lenox, [illegible]

Wednesday, [illegible] Valenti, [illegible] Daniel Saidenberg, [illegible] mann, Scarlatti [illegible]

Saturday, 8:30. [illegible] mento in D [illegible] concerto for Violin [illegible] Stern; Serenade [illegible] Winds, K. 361; Symphony [illegible] Prague, K. 504

Sunday, July 19, 2:30. [illegible] pro- gram: Overture [illegible] Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, K. 364, [illegible] Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale; Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, K. 525; Symphony in D major ("Jupiter"), K. 551.

Second Mozart Concert At Lenox This Afternoon

Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale Soloists in Sinfonia Concertante at Tanglewood; Opera Scenes Tuesday, Sonata Recital Wednesday

Lenox, July 18 — The Berkshire Festival concert in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 p. m. will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, teaming with Joseph de Pasquale, violist of the orchestra, in the Sinfonia Concertante, for violin and viola (K. 364).

The Sunday afternoon program also includes the overture to "The Mariage of Figaro," "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" (K. 525) and the symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551).

Ruth Posselt Soloist

Through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a sonata recital will be given on Wednesday evening by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the berkshire festival. The program will include music of Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

The first evening of opera scenes will be given by students of Department IV of the Berkshire Music Center on Tuesday evening and the first choir concert by the students of Department II on Thursday evening. The Sunday morning chamber music of Department I students tomorrow and the composers' forum the same evening by Department III students, will be held as usual. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center who make a voluntary contribution to its support are invited to the Mrs. Coolidge concert and to the school performances.

The music of Haydn will be played next Saturday evening at 8.30 p. m. and works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss will be performed next Sunday afternoon at 2.30 p. m., in the Theater-Concert Hall. These will be the orchestra's last concerts in the 1152-seat theater, and the following week the major Festival concerts will commence in the 6000-seat Music shed.

First Broadcast

The July 26 concert will be the first of four Sunday afternoon festival performances to be broadcast nationally by CBS Radio from Tanglewood, as the only American event in the network's "World Music Festivals" program, which includes highlights from seven European summer festivals. The first portion of the program Tanglewood audiences will hear, from 2.30 to 4 p. m. EDT, will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, CBS, radio director of music, as commentator.

A feature of the week end will be the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' "A Parable of Death," which was commissioned for Vera Zorina by the Louisville Orchestra last season, which the composer will conduct with Miss Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist and the festival chorus of Berkshire Music Center students participating. The cantata had its premiere in Louisville last March, and has since been heard in New York in April and at the Ojai Festival, California, in May.

The text is translated by Anthony Hecht from "Stories of God" by the Austrian writer Rainer Maria Rilke. Miss Zorina, who has appeared in Max Reinhardt productions in Berlin, in ballet in London with Anton Dolin and in America with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, in many films, and on Broadway in "I Married an Angel," "Louisiana Purchase" and "The Tempest," will make her first appearance at Tanglewood. She has narrated Honegger's "Jeanne d'Arc au bucher" with the Boston and other orchestras.

Three Novelties

Important novelties will be first performances at Tanglewood of the Haydn "Theresa" Mass and the Milhaud "La Creation du Monde," neither of which has been played before by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and of Richard Strauss' Divertimento (after Couperin), composed in 1941, which the orchestra played for the first time in the United States last season.

The "Theresa" Mass, composed in 1799, will have as soloists: Lois McCauley, Trenton, N. J., soprano; Beatrice Krebs, New York City, alto; John McCollum, Tuckahoe N. Y., tenor; Lee Cass, New York City, bass, with Hugh Ross conducting. All the soloists are students in the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center. Darius Milhaud's orchestral composition was composed in 1923 following the French composer's first visit to the U. S., and reflects his enthusiasm for Harlem jazz.

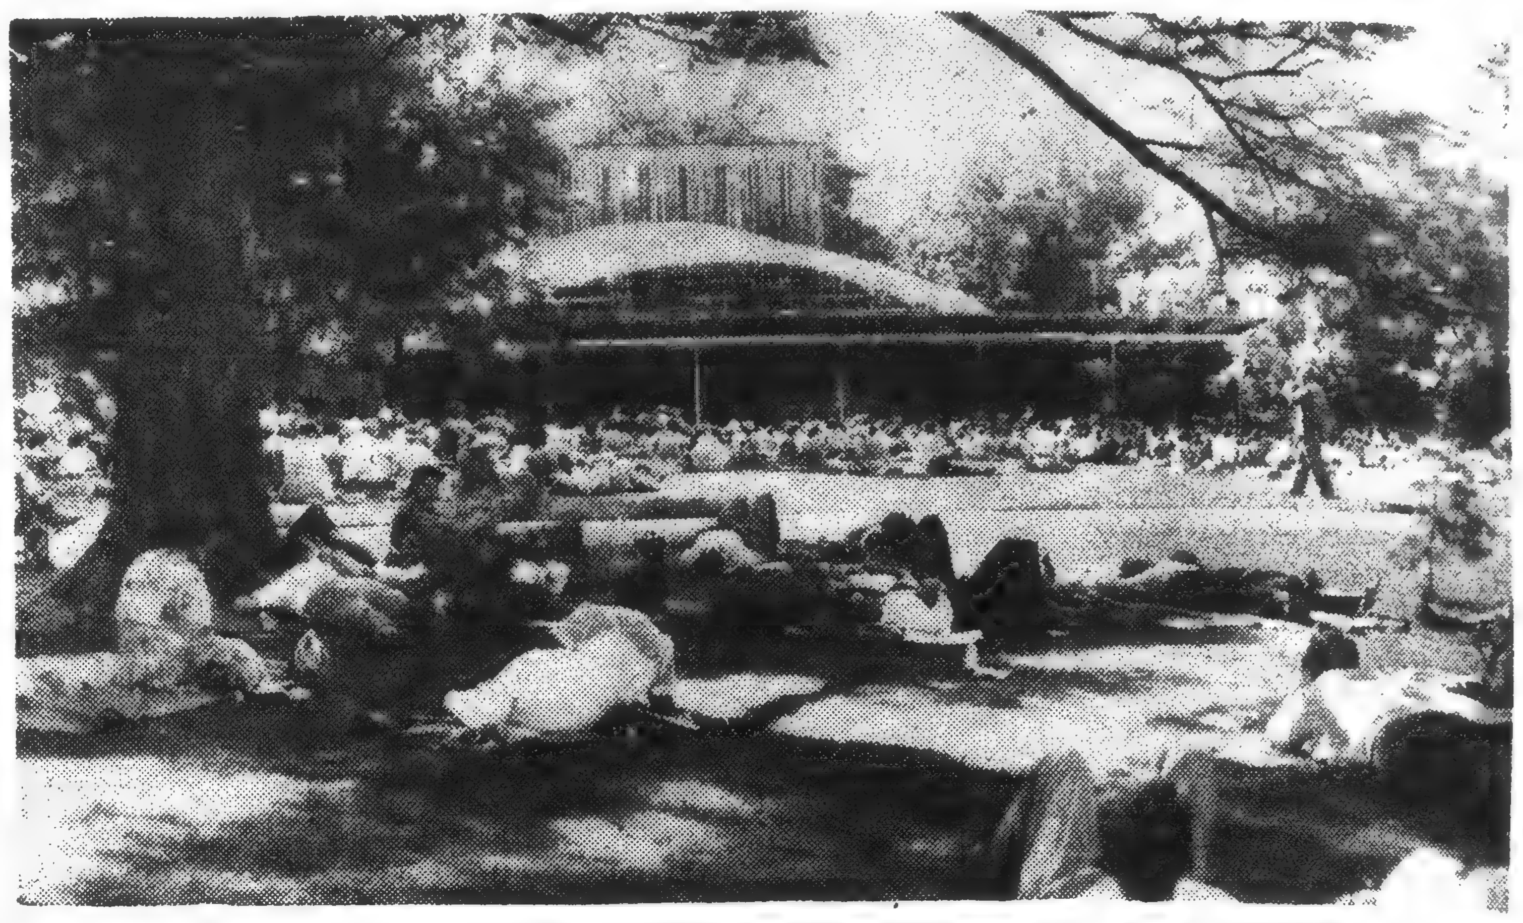
BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE

JUL 11 1953

Berkshire Concerts Under Way Tonight

The 16th Berkshire Festival will begin its six week-ends of 15 concerts tonight at 8:30 in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox. Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Bach. The second concert will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Summer Scene at Tanglewood



This summery scene outside the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood is a typical one. The annual Berkshire Music Festival at Lenox, now in full swing, will continue through Aug. 16. The second all-Mozart program will be played this afternoon at 2.30, with one more week end of concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 12 1953

PROGRAMS OF THE WEEK

STADIUM CONCERTS

LEWISOHN STADIUM

MONDAY, Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Stell Andersen, pianist. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.

Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor	Bach-Respighi
Piano Concerto in D, K. 537	Mozart
Suite from Der Rosenkavalier	Strauss
Prelude and Love Death from Tristan and Isolde	Wagner
Fantasie Pastorale, for piano and orchestra	Milhaud

TUESDAY, Conductor, Monteux; Maxim Schapiro, pianist.

Roman Carnival Overture	Berlioz
Symphony in D minor	Franck
Alborada del Gracioso	Ravel
Nuages and Fetes	Debussy
Symphony on a French Mountain Air for piano and orchestra	D'Indy

WEDNESDAY, all-Tchaikovsky program. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; Ossy Renardy, violinist.

Music from the ballet, The Sleeping Beauty; Symphony No. 4; Violin Concerto.

THURSDAY, all-Gershwin. Conductor, Smallens; Oscar Levant, pianist.

Strike Up the Band; Piano Concerto; An American in Paris; Excerpts from Porgy and Bess (Symphonic Picture arranged by Bennett); Rhapsody in Blue.

SATURDAY, Conductor, Alfredo Antonini; Herva Nelli, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor; Frank Guarrera, baritone; The Collegiate Chorale.

Feste e pane; Pescator, affonda l'esca from La Gioconda	Ponchielli
Lamento di Federico from L'Arlesiana	Cilea
La donna e mobile from Rigoletto; Canzone del Salce and Ave Maria from Otello	Verdi
Overture to Le Maschere	Mascagni
Excerpts from Tosca	Puccini
Rataplan, from The Daughter of the Regiment	Donizetti
Overture to La Cenerentola	Rossini
Duet from Fedora	Giordano
Largo al Factotum, from the Barber of Seville	Rossini
Hymn of the Nations	Verdi

J. Abresch

Herva Nelli, soprano soloist at Stadium Saturday.

Sara Mae Endich, soprano, sings at Tanglewood today.

GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS

GOLDMAN BAND

TONIGHT, Central Park. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.

Overture, Force of Destiny; Excerpts from La Traviata and Aida; Overture, Joan of Arc	Verdi
Polovetsian Dances	Borodin
Eili, Eili	Shallitt
First Hungarian Rhapsody	Liszt
Kol Nidrei	Bruch
Dance Caprice	Grieg
March, On the Hudson	Goldman

MONDAY, Central Park.

Occident and Orient	Saint-Saens
Overture, Beatrice and Benedict	Berlioz
Allegretto Moderato from Psyche and Eros	Franck
Suite francaise	Milhaud
Excerpts from Carmen	Bizet
Overture, Mignon	Thomas

WEDNESDAY, Central Park.

Marche Militaire; Ave Maria; Praise of Tears; Moment Musical; Symphony in B minor (Unfinished)	Schubert
Overture, Italian in Algiers	Rossini
Suite, Royce Hall	Willan
Tanz Intermezzo	Sibelius
March, Abraham Lincoln	Goldman
Reminiscences of Ireland	Godfrey

THURSDAY, Prospect Park.

March of the Peers; Excerpts from Iolanthe	Sullivan
Overture, Beautiful Galathea	von Suppe
Popular Melodies	Herbert
Excerpts from The Grand Duchess	Offenbach
Oh! Promise Me, from Robin Hood	DeKoven
Excerpts from The Merry Widow	Lehar
The Bride Elect; El Capitan	Sousa
Excerpts from Die Fledermaus	Strauss

FRIDAY, Central Park.
Repeating Thursday's program.

SATURDAY, Prospect Park.

Grand March, International Accord; Concert Waltz	Goldman
Overture, Romeo and Juliet	Tchaikovsky
Ave Maria	Schubert
Friendship Polka	Franko
Russian Sailor's Dance	Gliere
Waltzes: Excerpts from Die Fledermaus	Strauss

OPERA

LEMONADE OPERA

141 West Thirteenth Street

TONIGHT, 8:30 P. M., Don Pedro. Performances nightly except Mondays.

COMMUNITY CIVIC OPERA

Educational Alliance

MONDAY, 8:15 P. M., Faust (in concert form).

PUNCH OPERA

Cherry Lane Theatre

WEDNESDAY, George Antheil's Volpone. Performances nightly through next Sunday. Moore, Victoria; Myers, Falk, Pierce, Roussin, Thompson, Hart, Miller. Conductor, Wilder.

LA PUMA WORKSHOP

270 West Eighty-ninth Street

WEDNESDAY, 7:45 P. M., La Traviata.

GREATER NEW YORK OPERA

Masters Institute Theatre

THURSDAY, 8:30 P. M., La Traviata.

AMATO OPERA THEATRE

159 Bleecker Street

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M., La Traviata. Admission free; reservations in advance.

SALMAGGI OPERA

Randalls Island Stadium

SATURDAY, 8:45 P. M., Carmen. Bredford, Andriello, Caminita, Wold; Eckard, Green, Salvadore, Estrow, Rossi. Conductor, Leide

OTHER EVENTS

TODAY

MIRIAM BURTON, soprano, Carl Fischer Hall, 8:30 P. M.

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

Theatre-Concert Hall

Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Mac Morgan, bass; Doriot Anthony, flutist.

Cantata No. 28; Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings; Suite No. 3 in D	Bach

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch. Isaac Stern, violinist.

Divertimento in D, for strings; Violin Concerto in G; Serenade for Thirteen Winds; Prague Symphony	Mozart

NEXT SUNDAY, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch, Isaac Stern, violinist; Joseph De Pasquale, violist.

Overture to The Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Jupiter Symphony	Mozart

---

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 12 1953

MUSIC THIS WEEK

Stadium Concerts

Stadium Symphony Orchestra, Lewisohn Stadium, Convent and Amsterdam Aves., 136th and 138th Sts.

Monday, 8:30. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Stell Andersen, pianist. Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor, Bach-Respighi; Concerto in D major, for Piano and Orchestra, K. 537 ("Coronation"), Mozart; Suite from "Der Rosenkavalier," Strauss; Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde," Wagner; Fantasie Pastorale, for Piano and Orchestra (first N. Y. performance), Milhaud. (In case of rain, this program will be played the next clear night.)

Tuesday, 8:30. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; soloist, Maxim Schapiro, pianist. "Roman Carnival" Overture, Berlioz; Symphony in D minor, Franck; Alborada del Gracioso, Ravel; Nuages and Fetes, Debussy; Symphony on a French Mountain Air for Piano and Orchestra, D'Indy.

Wednesday, 8:30. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; soloist, Ossy Renardy, violinist. Music from the Ballet, "The Sleeping Beauty"; Symphony No. 4 in F minor, Op. 36; Concerto in D major for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 35, Tchaikovsky.

Thursday, 8:30. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; Oscar Levant, pianist. Strike Up the Band; Concerto for Piano and Orchestra; "Porgy and Bess" (arr. Bennett); Rhapsody in Blue, Gershwin. (In case of rain, this program will be played the next night.)

Saturday, 8:30. Conductor, Alfredo Antonini; soloists, Herva Nelli, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor; Frank Guarrera, baritone; the Collegiate Chorale. Feste e Pane; Barcarola; Pescator, affonda l'esca, from "La Gioconda," Ponchelli; Lamento di Federico, from "L'Arlesiana," Cilea; "La Donna e Mobile, from "Rigoletto"; Canzone del Salce; Ave Maria, Verdi; Overture to "Le Maschere," Mascagni; Recondite Armonia; Duet from Act I; Vissi d'Arte; Te Deum, Puccini; Rataplan, from "The Daughter of the Regiment," Donizetti; Duet from "Fedora," Giordano; Largo al Factotum, from "The Barber of Seville," Rossini; Hymn to the Nations (first N. Y. performance), Verdi. (In case of rain, this program will be played the next night.)

Guggenheim Concerts

Goldman Band, Edwin Franko Goldman, conductor; Central and Prospect Parks.

Today, Central Park, 8:30. Overture, Force of Destiny; Excerpts, La Traviata; Overture, Joan of Arc; Excerpts, Aida, Verdi; Polovetzian Dances, Borodin; Eili, Eili (James Burke, cornetist), Shallitt; First Hungarian Rhapsody, Liszt; Kol Nidrei, Bruch; Dance Caprice, Grieg; March, On the Hudson, Goldman.

Monday, Central Park, 8:30. March, Occident and Orient, Saint-Saens; Overture, Beatrice and Benedict, Berlioz; Allegretto Moderato from Psyche and Eros, Franck; Suite Francasie, Milhaud; Excerpts, Carmen, Bizet; Overture, Mignon, Thomas; Fantasie, The Carnival of Venice (James Burke, cornetist), Arban; Bolero, Ravel; Farandole, from L'Arlestenne Suite II, Bizet; Overture, Orpheus, Offenbach.

Wednesday, Central Park, 8:30. Marche Militaire; Ave Maria; Praise of Tears; Moment Musicale; Symphony in B minor (Unfinished), Schubert; Overture, Italian in Algiers; Suite, Royce Hall, Willan; Overture, "L'Italiana in Algeri," Rossini; Tanz Intermezzo, Sibelius; March, Abraham Lincoln, Goldman; Reminiscences of Ireland, Godfrey.

Thursday, Prospect Park, 8:30. March of the Peers, Sullivan; Overture, Beautiful Galathea, von Suppe; Excerpts, Iolanthe, Sullivan; Popular Melodies, Herbert; Excerpts, The Grand Duchesss, Offenbach; Oh! Promie Me from Robin Hood (James Burke, cornetist), DeKoven; Excerpt, from The Merry Widow, Lehar; March, The Bride Elect; March, El Capitan, Sousa; Excerpts, Die Fledermaus, Strauss.

Friday, Central Park, 8:30. March of the Peers, Sullivan; Overture, Beautiful Galathea, von Suppe; Excerpts, Iolanthe, Sullivan; Popular Melodies, Herbert; Excerpts, The Grand Duches, Offenbach; Oh! Promise Me from Robin Hood (James Burke, cornetist), DeKoven; Excerpt, from the Merry Widow, Lehar; March, The Bride Elect; March, El Capitan, Sousa; Excerpts, Die Fledermaus, Strauss.

Saturday, Prospect Park, 8:30. Grand March, International Accord, Goldman; Overture, Romeo and Juliet, Tchaikovsky; Concert Waltz (James Burke, cornetist), Goldman; Ave Maria, Schubert; Friendship Polka, Franko; Russian Sailor's Dance, Gliere; Waltz, Wine, Women and Song; Waltz, Acceleration; Waltz, Love Songs; Waltz, The Beautiful Blue Danube; Excerpts, Die Fledermaus, Strauss.

Other Concerts

Miriam Burton, soprano; Carl Fischer Hall, today, 8:30.

Accompanist, Kelley Wyatt. Songs by Bach, Durante, Handel-Bibb, Brahms, Wolf, Charpentier, Debussy, Rachmaninoff, Coleridge-Taylor, Johnson, Boatner, Dett.

Marilyn Mason, organist, and Paul Doktor, violinist; St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, Tuesday, noon.

Works by Bach, Tartini, Handel, Hoe[illegible], Vitali, Haines.

Helen Lanier, soprano; and Howard Coombs, pianist; Brooklyn Museum, today, 2.

Accompanist, Sarah Knight. Vocal and instrumental music by Scarlatti, [illegible] de Fontenailles, Paladilhe, [illegible], MacDowell, Carpenter, Chausson, Gilles, Falla, Albeniz, Strauss-Dohnanyi.

Corliss Arnold, organist; St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, Thursday, noon.

Works by Handel, Bach, Franck, Hindemith, Langlais.

Community Civic Opera Company, Educational Alliance, 197 E Broadway, Gounod's "Faust," Monday, 8:30.

New York Public Library Record Concerts, Bryant Park.

Monday, noon. Overture, The Barber of Seville; Rossini; Concertos No. [illegible] in B flat; No. 3 in G minor for oboe and strings, Handel; Ma mere l'Oye, Ravel; Fidelio, Op. 72, Act I, Mir ist so wunderbar, Beethoven; Symphony No. 7, Op. [illegible], Prokoviev; The Fire Bird Suite, Stravinsky.

Tuesday, noon. Symphony No. 3 in E flat, Op. 55 ("Eroica"), Beethoven; Excerpts, Ein deutsches Requiem, Op. [illegible], Brahms; Ballet Allegory, Le baiser de la fee, Stravinsky.

Wednesday, noon. Symphony No. 4 [illegible], Op. 90 ("Italian"), Mendelssohn; [illegible] land Sketches, Op. [illegible], MacDowell; [illegible] messe de Notre Dame, [illegible]; Romeo and Juliet, [illegible], Tchaikovsky.

Thursday, noon. [illegible] Selections, The [illegible], Tchaikovsky; Quartet No. 4 [illegible] burg Concerto No. [illegible] Suite, Helen [illegible] Dorati.

Friday, noon. [illegible] 60, Prokoviev; C[illegible] violin and orchestra, [illegible] Saengers, Der Rosenkavalier [illegible] Symphony, Wagenaar, M[illegible] K. [illegible] Mozart.

Opera

Salmaggi Opera, [illegible] dium, Randalls [illegible] "Carmen," Saturday [illegible]

Lemonade Opera, [illegible] Mozart's "Don [illegible] through Sunday, 8 [illegible]

Franchetti's "The Lion," [illegible] Garden, White Barn [illegible] Westport, Conn., [illegible]

Amato Opera Theater, [illegible] Bleecker St., Verdi's "La Traviata," [illegible] and Saturday, 8 [illegible] by advance [illegible] GR 7-2844.)

Greater New York Opera Company, Master Institute [illegible] side Drive and 103d St. Verdi's "La Traviata," Thursday, 8 [illegible]

La Puma Opera Workshop, Community Center Auditorium, [illegible] W. 89th St. Verdi's "La Traviata," Wednesday, 7:[illegible]

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, [illegible] Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Wednesday, 8:30. B[illegible] Valenti, harpsichord; [illegible] Daniel Saidenberg, [illegible] mann, Scarlatti, [illegible]

Saturday, 8:30. M[illegible] Divertimento in D for Strings, K. [illegible]; Concerto for Violin in G, K. [illegible] (Isaac Stern); Serenade [illegible] Winds, K. 361; Symphony in D ("Prague"), K. 504.

Sunday, July 19, 10:00 [illegible] Mozart program: Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, K. 364 (soloists, Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale); Eine kleine Nachtmusik, K. 525; Symphony in D major ("Jupiter"), K. 551.

89

Knickerbocker News July 15 albany

Cocky and Charming After 'a Wonderful 10 Years'

Genius at Work: Leonard Bernstein in Action at Tanglewood

LA FLECHE

...pink shirt, gray flannels ...rounded by a hundred-... energy.

...his hand he would halt ...group of young people ...would explain, and to the ...well pronounced):

...Bernstein. He was stand-... Tanglewood music shed. ...than 100 of the students He was rehearsing them

...was to develop in classical ...story fashion with the ...coming on a fall after-... 1943.

Bruno Walter, scheduled to conduct the New York Philharmonic that day, became suddenly ill. Mr. Bernstein was called in to replace him. He hit the home run with the bases loaded, won the game, received the plaudits of the pundits and became the fair-haired boy of music — one with solid accomplishment to carry him on his way.

...the plaudits made Mr. ...been cocky?

Cocky and Charming

...he is cocky all right. But he knows his business.

Does Mr. Bernstein know he ...charming and handsome?

...tainly he does. He uses ...with professional skill. But the charm isn't reserved ...those to whom he might ...inclined to ingratiate him-...

He uses it, rather, well sea-...soned with kindness. He is kind especially to those young stu-...dents at Tanglewood.

...Mr. Bernstein temper-...mental?

Husband and Father

He might be so at times. But ...at Tanglewood and at his summer home in Hillsdale he ...anything but that. And at ...Hillsdale home he showed himself not as the intense young conductor, but rather as the devoted husband, the loving father of nine-months old Jamie and the nice young man next door.

When he talks about music, Mr. Bernstein reveals his belief ...music in America is at one ...the same time most sophis-...ticated and still primitive.

...age and sophistication ...music in America," he says, ...our inheritance from Europe. (He was talking of the classical ...repertory.) But American ...or music composed by Americans, is still in its primi-...tive stage."

American Music

He believes there is much ...music being written in America today but he finds it ...not music that is being heard to any great extent in the con-...cert halls. He is even quick to ...that for the most part the public "doesn't give a damn" to ...it there.

"Our concert life is imitative of European musical culture," he says. "Our concert halls are a kind of museum, with the conductor as curator. He arranges the displays, explains them, lights them, makes them understandable to those present."

But still, for his part, Mr. ...stein makes every effort ...include modern music in the ...grams he conducts. Some-... he can include more than ...others.

To Conduct Symphony

He will be conducting the Boston Symphony in the Tan-...glewood shed concerts Aug. 8 and Aug. 15. The concert of Aug. 8 will be a memorial to Dr. Koussevitzky and will include works by Moussorgsky, Ravel and Mahler. On the later date he will conduct works of Sibelius, Chavez and Brahms.

The Sibelius Fourth Symphony, which he will conduct, he considers one of the composer's greatest works, but he views the composer himself as a relic, one might say, of the 19th Century musical culture.

But to return to his views on music in America.

If American composers are not going to write music for the concert hall, what then?

"They are going to write for the theater," Mr. Bernstein says. "The form will be of wider range by far than musical comedy, yet not in the traditional opera form, nor again in the form of Menotti whose "Amahl and the Night Visitors" was so widely seen on television."

And it is toward the theater that Mr. Bernstein looks for his musical development. The works will be something of the nature of his recently completed short opera, "Trouble in Tahiti."

Eyes Biblical Theme

"Maybe my next will be another short opera. Maybe it will have an American theme. But I am toying with a Biblical theme," he says.

Mr. Bernstein will be hard put to find time in the immediate future to bring that plan to fruition.

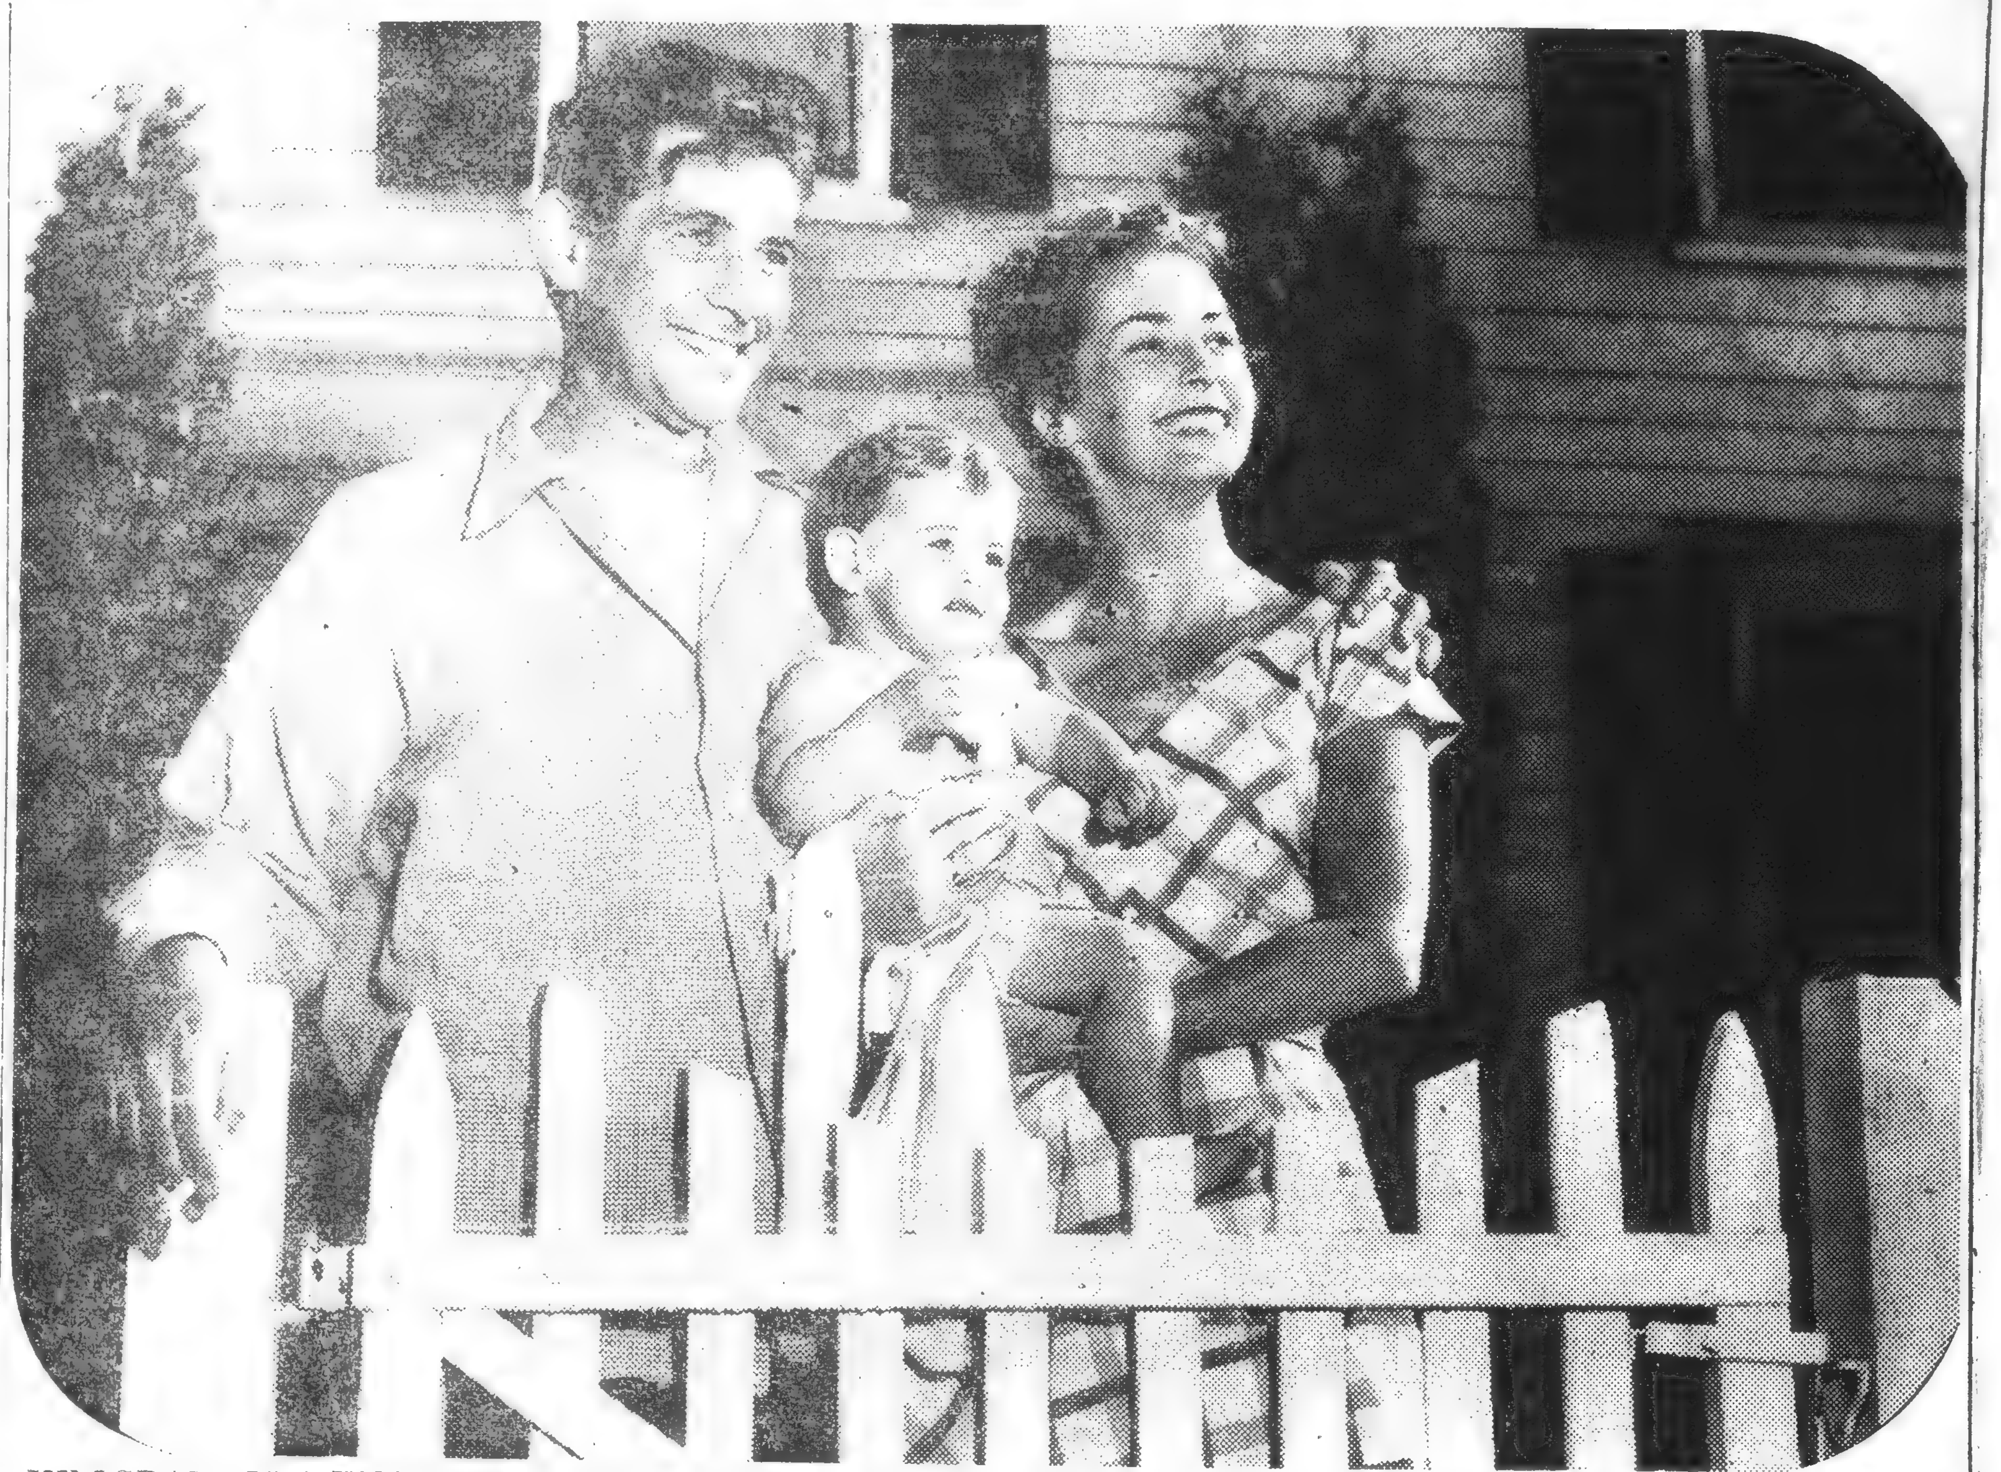
Having just completed writing the music or "Wonderful Town," and having conducted the Stadium Concerts in New York City, he is a bit weary. Now he is busy at Tanglewood. At the end of the summer he will fly first to Brazil to conduct.

"I've never conducted in Brazil," he says—(with just a trace of "but I've conducted most everywhere else" in his voice). From Brazil he will fly to Italy and Israel for musical chores in those two countries.

Beyond that, now that he is approaching the younger side of middle age, Mr. Bernstein is unsure. But he agrees with those who say that he is "spreading himself a bit thin."

But spread thin or not, Mr. Bernstein is still a young man of genius.

Almost equally to commend him is the fact that he is a "nice guy" as well.



HILLSDALE IS A WONDERFUL TOWN, TOO—Leonard Bernstein, the bright young man of music who does such things as conduct the world's leading symphonies, compose operas and write the music for Broadway hits (including the current "Wonderful Town"), appears to find Hillsdale in Columbia County a wonderful town, too. He is living in Hillsdale this summer with his wife and their nine-month-old daughter, Jamie, while he teaches at Tanglewood. Later in the season he will conduct the Boston Symphony there.

Photos by Bob Paley of The Knickerbocker News Staff

MEN OF MUSIC—George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony, and Mr. Bernstein, discuss the progress of the student orchestra at Tanglewood which Mr. Bernstein has just put through its paces.

ONLY HENRY IS TEMPERAMENTAL.—Henry is the dachshund perched on Mr. Bernstein's chest. Henry likes to have his own way. Mr. Bernstein insists on his, but only when he is conducting. Jamie, Mr. Bernstein's daughter, keeps an eye on Henry, and Mr. Bernstein under her thumb.

[190]

Knickerbocker News July 15 albany

Cocky and Charming After 'a Wonderful 10 Years'

Genius at Work: Leonard Bernstein in Action at Tanglewood

LA FLECHE

shot across the musical ... as a bright young ... of promise fulfilling that promise.

Conducted the world's ... symphony orches-

... pink shirt, gray flannels ... rounded by a hundred- ... energy.

... his hand he would halt ... group of young people ... would explain, and to the ... well pronounced):

... Bernstein. He was standing ... Tanglewood music shed. ... than 100 of the students ... He was rehearsing them

... was to develop in classical ... story fashion with the ... coming on a fall after- ... 1943.

Bruno Walter, scheduled to conduct the New York Philharmonic that day, became suddenly ill. Mr. Bernstein was called in to replace him. He hit the home run with the bases loaded, won the game, received the plaudits of the pundits and became the fair-haired boy of music — one with solid accomplishment to carry him on his way.

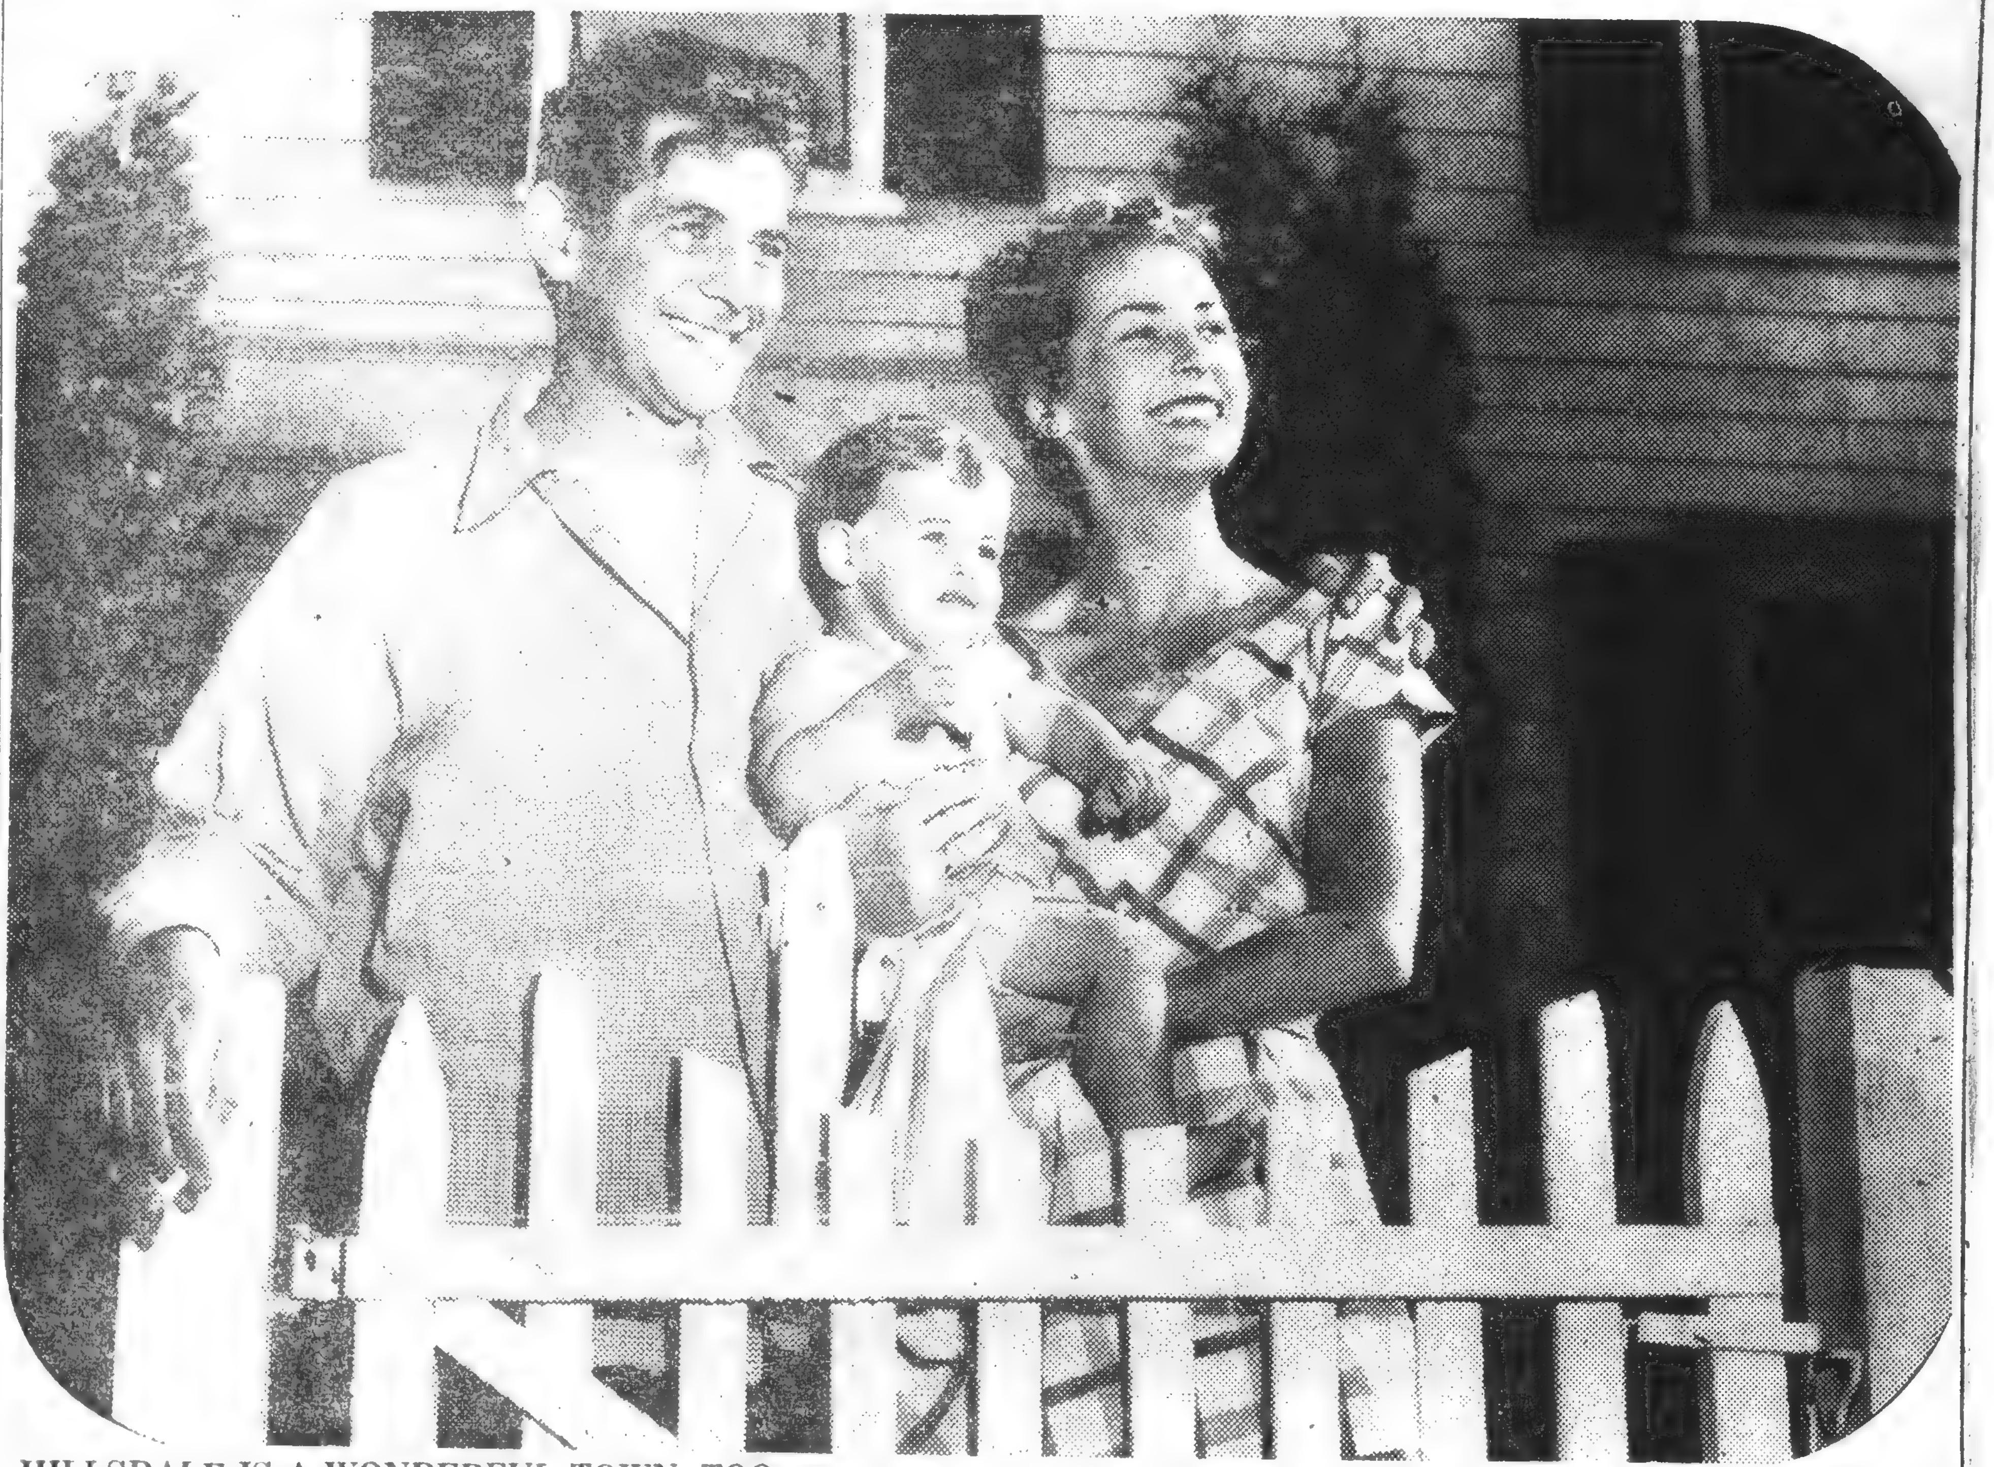
... the plaudits made Mr. Bernstein cocky?

Cocky and Charming

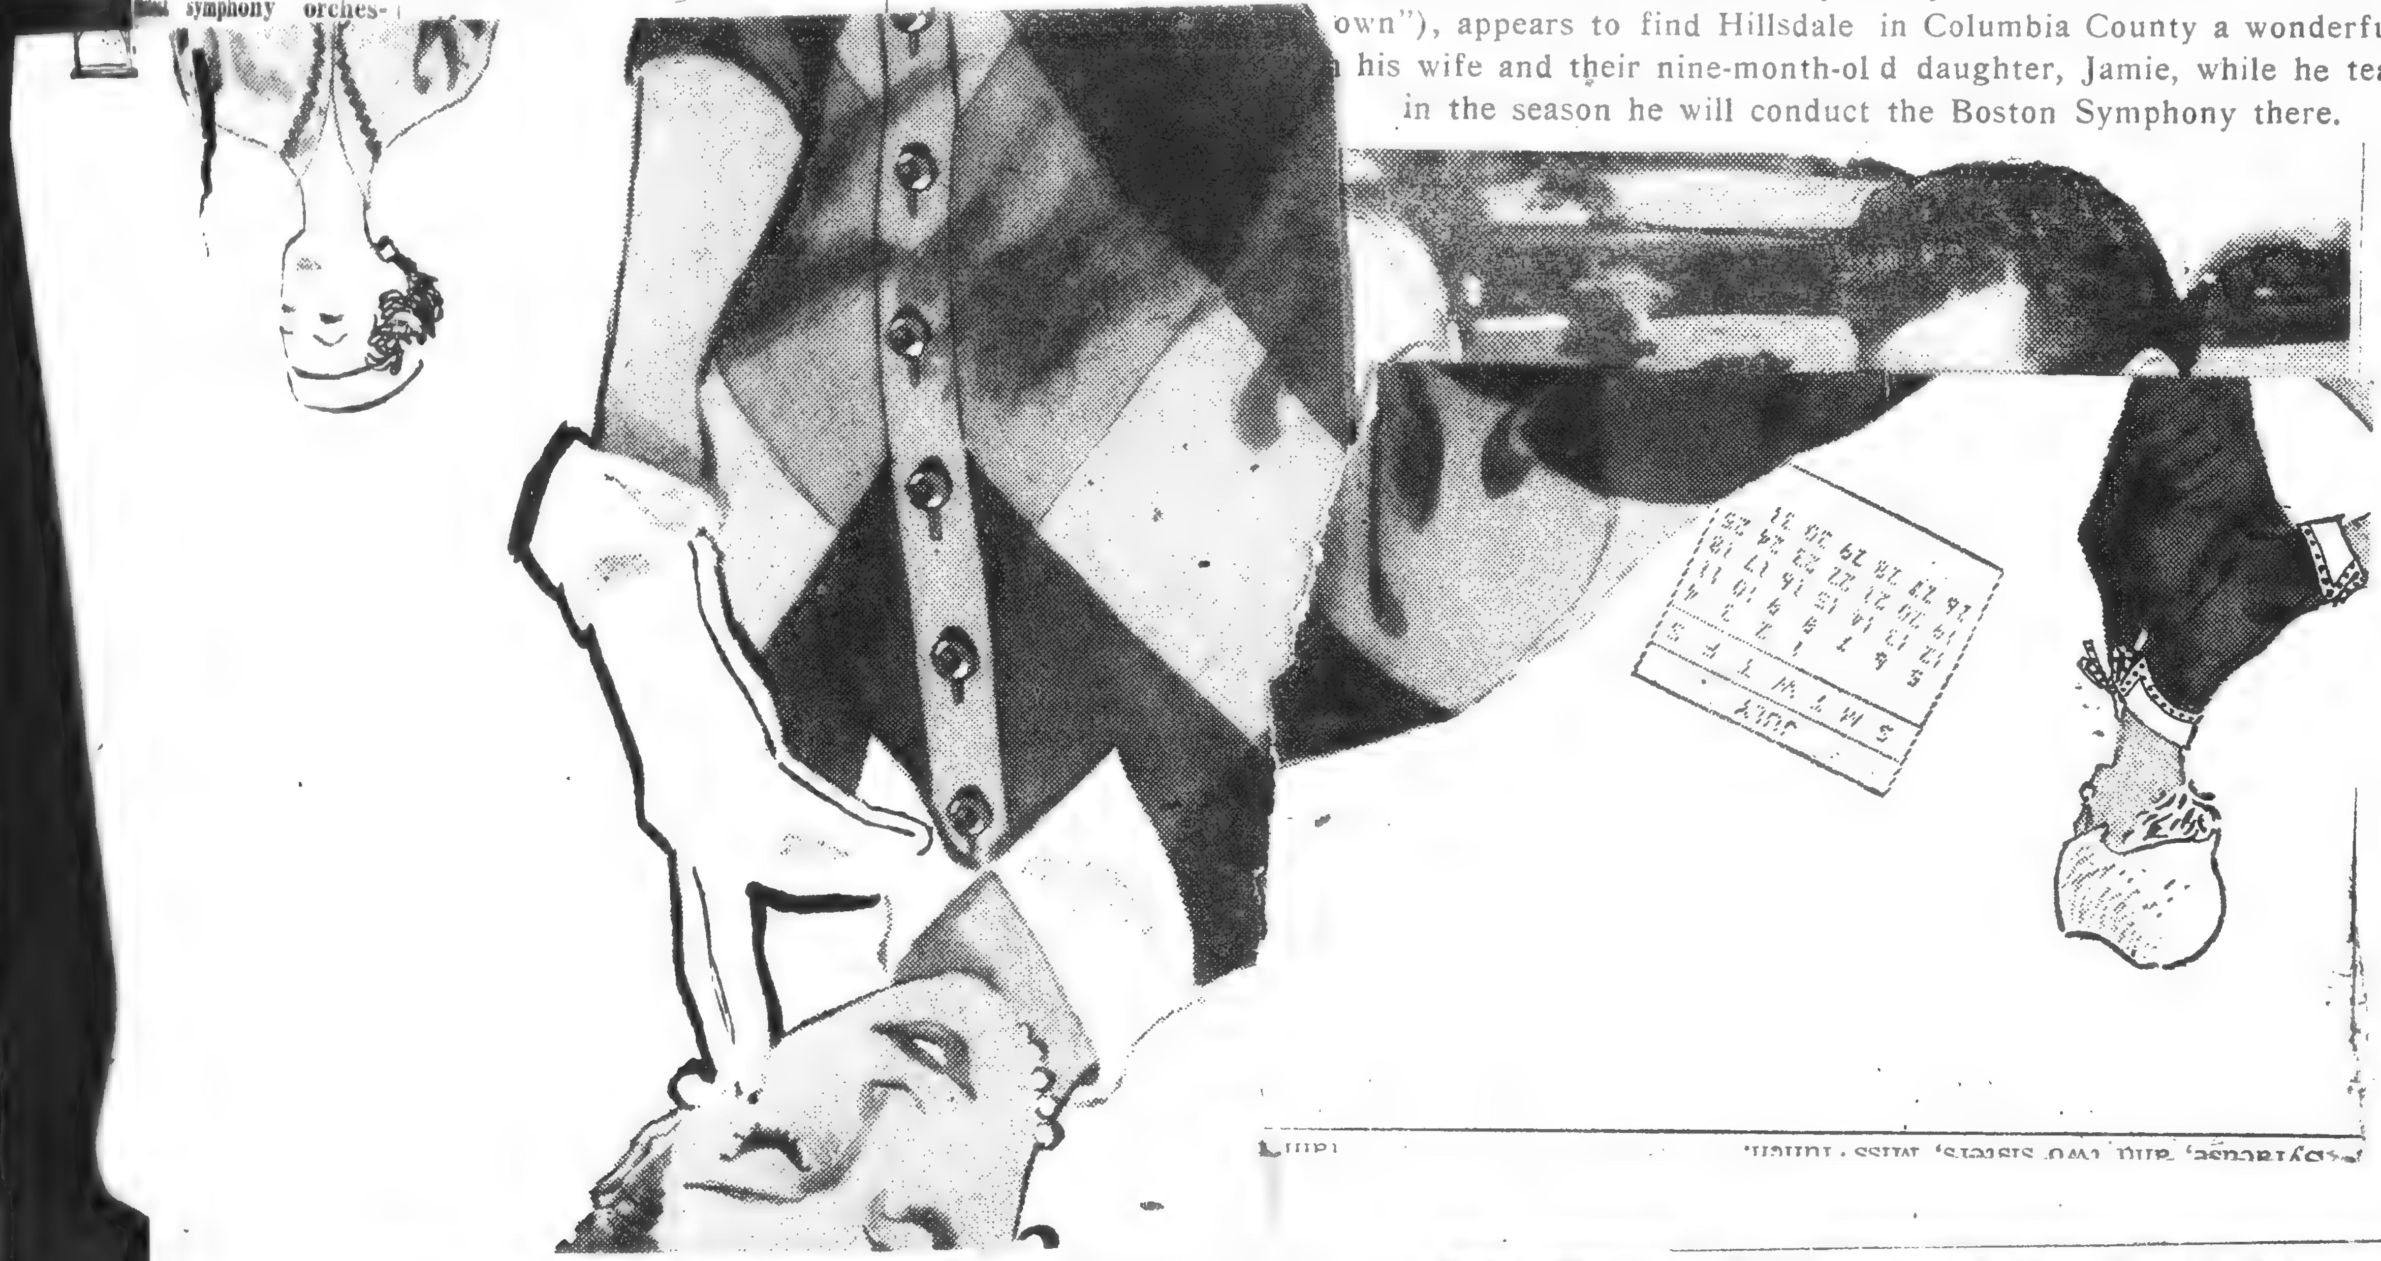
Yes, he is cocky all right. ... he knows his business.

Does Mr. Bernstein know he ... charming and handsome?

Certainly he does. He uses both with professional skill. But the charm isn't reserved for those to whom he might be inclined to ingratiate him-



HILLSDALE IS A WONDERFUL TOWN, TOO—Leonard Bernstein, the bright young man of music who does such things as conduct the world's leading symphonies, compose operas and write the music for Broadway hits (including ... own"), appears to find Hillsdale in Columbia County a wonderful town, too. He is living in ... his wife and their nine-month-old daughter, Jamie, while he teaches at Tanglewood. Later in the season he will conduct the Boston Symphony there.



CLOWNING IT—Mr. Bernstein is usually pictured at a piano, perhaps playing one of his own works as soloist with a symphony orchestra. But at his summer home in Hillsdale he was tempted by this old foot-pedaled organ and let a tune peal forth. The piano that was to be delivered hadn't arrived.

ONLY HENRY IS TEMPERAMENTAL—Henry is the dachshund perched on Mr. Bernstein's chest. Henry likes to have his own way. Mr. Bernstein insists on his, but only when he is conducting. Jamie, Mr. Bernstein's daughter, keeps an eye on Henry, and Mr. Bernstein under her thumb.

[191]

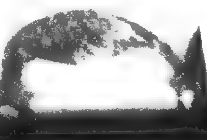
Salute From the Berkshires
To the Boston Symphony Orchestra

FOR the first time since its return from a triumphal tour of Europe, the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be at full strength at Thursday night's opening concert of the 1952 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. The evening will be in the nature of a Berkshire tribute to the orchestra which has brought fame, summer visitors and a wealth of fine music to the county. As its contribution to this pleasant event, The Eagle herewith presents the pictures and brief biographies of the men whose combined musicianship makes the Boston Symphony one of the world's great orchestras, if not the greatest.

Raymond Allard, principal bassoon. A native of Din-le-Noble, France, he studied at Douai Conservatory. After winning first prize at the Paris Conservatory in 1922 he joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Monteux. Teaching at the New England and Conservatories, he likes to fish, take pictures and practice carpentry.

Louis Artieres, viola. Son of an opera singer in Lyon, France, he won the Paris Conservatory first prize in 1920. He played in the Colonne Orchestra for a year until he joined the BSO and the Longy School faculty. His hobbies are photography and fishing. Brought up in Paris, he went through the World War and received the croix de guerre at Verdun. He is known for his good nature.

Albert Yves Bernard, viola. After graduating with a law degree from Chaptal College in Paris, where he was born, he won first prize and first mention in viola at the Conservatory and a medal in solfeggio. Before he joined the BSO in 1925 he played in the Paris Opera Orchestra and the Oberdoerffer Quartet. When he isn't teaching, playing chamber music or the treble viol in the Boston Society of Ancient Instruments, he cooks and raises cacti.



John Barwicki, double bass. Born in Boston, he attended South Boston High School and the New England Conservatory, coming to the Berkshires with the [illegible] He likes to swim, ice skate, take pictures; to attend concerts, lectures and plays. He has a young son and daughter.

Stanley Benson, first violin section. A native of Brockton, whose mother was an amateur violinist, he joined the BSO six years ago. He has played in the Zimbler Sinfonietta and taught privately. His hobby is the study of violins and bows, of which he has a fine collection. His violin, made by Jean Baptiste

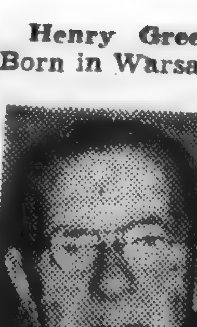
Reproduced by permission. Copr. 1951 The New Yorker Magazine, Inc.

Concert at Tanglewood

Harold Farberman, percussion player. He was born in New York of a family who were musicians as far back as his great-grandparents in Europe. His father and brothers are also drummers. Granted a scholarship at the Juilliard School of Music, he became the young-

Theodore E. Brewster, bassoon. Born in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, he graduated from the New England Conservatory, studying with Ernst Panenka and Raymond Allard of the BSO, Dall Fields of Chicago, Simon Kovac of New York and Saul Schoenback of



Henry Greenberg, double bass. Born in Warsaw, Poland, his father was a band leader, his mother a pianist and four brothers professional musicians. He studied at the Warsaw Conservatory, where he was awarded an old Italian instrument as a prize. He has played with the

Paul Fedorovsky, first violin. He attended the Academy of Music in Vienna, high school in Russia and was two years at the University of Zurich, Switzerland. After earning a diploma at the Russian Conservatory he took a concert tour through Siberia, China and Japan, and joined the BSO in 1925. He teaches at the New England Conservatory, and plays pardessus de viol as a member of the Society of Ancient Instruments. He has a fine violin made by Carlo Antonio Testore.

Enrico E. Fabrizio, cello. Born in Boston, he studied there and in Europe and toured the United States and Canada at the age of 17 as soloist. A member of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra when offered a position with the Philadelphia and Boston Orchestras in 1918, he chose the latter. He teaches at the Beaver Country Day School and concertizes. He owns a Roggieri made in 1671 and a Tourte bow, but plays a cello that he made himself in 1940.

Armando Ghitalla, trumpet. Born in Alpha, Ill., he studied at the Juilliard School of Music and played with the New York City Center Opera and Ballet Company, the RCA Orchestra and the Houston Symphony Orchestra. He joined the BSO last year. He is a favorite Pops performer. The hit of an end of season concert this spring was a stunt in which he and Roger Voisin dressed as old-time musicians.

Henri Girard, double bass. Born in France, he was a prize student [illegible] Orchestra who played under Monteux when he introduced Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring" 39 years ago, he joined the BSO in 1920 when Monteux was conductor. He is a member of the Lake Placid Ensemble, the Flute Club Players and Arthur Fiedler's Symphonietta. His hobby is old books. He owns two double basses—a Sfretchner made in 1790 and a Tyrolian made in 1780.

Ralph Gomberg, principal oboe. A Bostonian by birth, he has two sisters and three brothers who are Einar Bech Hansen, first violin. Born in Copenhagen, he studied at Hamburg Conservatory under Max Fiedler on a full scholarship and in Berlin. He was concertmaster of the Bremen and Dresden Orchestras and made several tours through Sweden and Russia, joining the BSO in 1926. His outside interests are chess, Hindu philosophy, psychology and winter bathing. He owns a Guarnerius violin made in 1676.

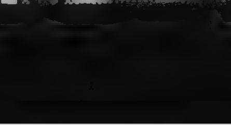
Lucien Hansotte, trombone. A native of Liege, Belgium, of a musical family, he was educated in Geneva, Switzerland and won first prize at the National French Academy in 1914. He played with the Orchestra de la Suisse Romande in Geneva before joining the BSO in 1925. He has a son in military service. His trombone is a Stradivarius.

John Holmes, oboe. Born in Cleveland, he studied trumpet before switching to oboe. A graduate of Eastman School of Music, he attended the Berkshire Music Center in 1941 and 1942. He played with the orchestras of Oklahoma City, Kansas City, Buffalo, Washington, St. Louis, and Chautauqua, joining the BSO in 1946. Although he is not married, he likes to cook and do household repairs in addition to studying astronomy, for which he has made a telescope.

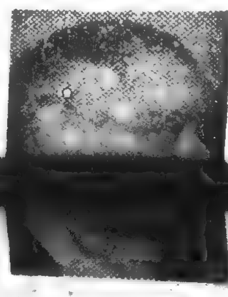
Ludwig Juht, double bass. Son of a trumpet soloist in a military band, he studied contra bass in Tartu, Estonia, and at the St. Petersburg Conservatory, and [illegible] He played with the Helsingfors (Finland) Symphony Orchestra, the Estonian Symphony Orchestra, the Estonia Opera and was professor at the Conservatory of Latvia. Joining the BSO in 1934, he teaches and concertizes, composes and writes in his spare time. He has an instrument made by Francesco Ruggeri of Cremona in 1679, which he bought from the Duke of Windsor in 1936.



Eugene Lehner, viola. A Hungarian, he studied composition with Kodaly and played in the Hubay, Kolisch and Stradivarius

Emil Kornsand, first violin. Educated in Berlin, he was for 13 years first violinist at the State Opera in Berlin and played first violin and viola in the Edwin Fisher Chamber Orchestra. He joined the BSO in 1939 under Koussevitzky. Since 1921 he has played in established string quartets. His hobbies are composing, painting and drawing. He has a Testori violin and an Albani viola.

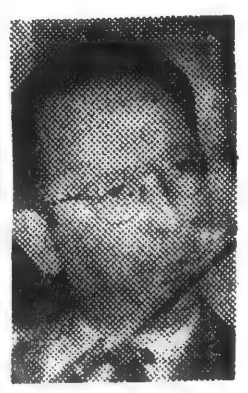
Jacobus Langendoen, cello. Of Dutch origin, he attended the Royal Conservatory of Music in The Hague. At the age of 16 he had began his study of the cello at Capetown, South Africa, and later with Izak Mossell in Amsterdam. He was first cellist of the Royal Opera at The Hague for three years, joining the BSO in 1920. First cellist in the Pops Orchestra, he composes music for chamber groups and cello. His hobbies are caricature drawing and sailing.



Georges Laurent, principal flute. At the age of 12 he started flute lessons with Philippe Gaubert in Paris. From his fifteenth to his eighteenth year he studied at the Paris Conservatory. [illegible] entered the BSO, founding the Boston Flute Players Club three years later. For many years it was one of the foremost musical organizations in Boston, where its chamber music concerts were very popular. His flute is one of the distinguishing voices of the orchestra.

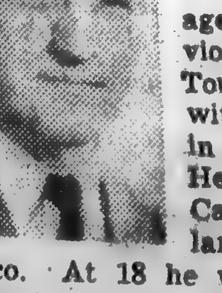
Clarence F. Knudson, principal second violin. A native of Lynn, he studied at the New England Conservatory under Adamowski, joining the BSO in 1920. He is a member of the Zimbler Sinfonietta. He

Paul Keaney, French horn. Born in Beverly, he attended the Longy School of Music and joined the orchestra in 1937. He gives private lessons and teaches at the Boston Center for Adult Education. He has a boy of 10 and a girl of 12. He is interested in children's music in Jamaica Plains, where he lives. His special interest is Boy Scouts, especially Cubs.



Phillip Kaplan, flute. Born in Boston, he held the Oliver Ditson Scholarship at the New England Conservatory. He was an original member of the New Friends of Music Orchestra and the American Lyric Opera. He is artistic director of Musica Antiquia Ensemble, and has recorded extensively.

Bernard Kadinoff, viola. A New Yorker by birth, he attended the College of the City of New York, and studied with Moldavan, Katims and Vardi. He joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra last year. He played in the BSO Orchestra and at Radio Music Hall. He has been playing [illegible] coming to [illegible] time this year.



Norbert Lauga, first violin. Born in Aix-Les-Bains, France, he studied at the National Conservatory in Paris, winning first medals in solfeggio at the age of 10 and in violin under Touche at 14, with first prize in violin at 17. He studied with Camille Chevillard, D'Indy and Enesco. At 18 he was appointed assistant concertmaster of the Concerts Straram he played in the Paris Opera Orchestra and the Oberdoerffer Quartet. When he isn't teaching, playing chamber music or the treble viol in the Boston Society of Ancient Instruments, he cooks and raises cacti.

John Barwicki, double bass. Born in Boston, he attended South Boston High School and the New England Con-

Reproduced by permission. Copr. 1951 The New Yorker Magazine, Inc.

Center Opera and Ballet Company, the RCA Orchestra and the Houston Symphony Orchestra. He joined the BSO last year. He is a favorite Pops performer. The hit of an end of season concert this spring was a stunt in which he and Roger Voisin dressed as old-time musicians.

of Oklahoma City, Kansas City, Buffalo, Washington, St. Louis, and Chautauqua, joining the BSO in 1946. Although he is not married, he likes to cook and do household repairs in addition to studying astronomy, for which he has made a telescope.

Ludwig Juht, double bass. Son of a trumpet soloist in a military band, he studied contra-bass in Tartu, Estonia, first cellist of the Royal Opera at The Hague for three years, joining the BSO in 1920. First cellist in the Pops Orchestra, he composes music for chamber groups and cello. His hobbies are caricature drawing and sailing.

Georges Laurent, principal flute. At the age of 12 he started flute lessons with Phillipe Gaubert in Paris. From his fifteenth to his eighteenth and has recorded extensively.

Bernard Kadinoff, viola. A New Yorker by birth, he attended the College of the City of New York, and studied with Moldavan, Katims and Vardi. He joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra last year. He played in the BSO Orchestra and at Radio

---

Stanley Benson, first violin section. A native of Brockton, whose mother was an amateur violinist, he joined the BSO six years ago. He has played in the Zimbler Sinfonietta and taught privately. His hobby is the study of violins and bows, of which he has a fine collection. His violin, made by Jean Baptiste Vuillaume of Paris in 1860 is one of the finest.

Melvin H. Bryant, second violin section. Born in Somerville, of parents who were amateur musicians, he joined the BSO in 1918 after studying under Karl Scheurer, Alexander Ribarsch and Earl Rissland, members of the orchestra. His hobbies are rose growing and genealogy.

Richard Burgin, concertmaster. Born in Warsaw, Poland, he studied, with Lotto, Joachim in Berlin and Leopold Auer in Leningrad. His first public appearance was at the age of 11 as soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic Society. He has been concertmaster and soloist of the Leningrad, Helsinki, Christiania and Stockholm Orchestras, serving under Fiedler, Nikisch, Richard Strauss, Schneevoigt and Sibelius. He became concertmaster of the BSO in 1920, organizing the Burgin String Quartet the following year. Last year he became conductor of the Portland (Maine) Orchestra. He is associate conductor of the BSO, which he has led many times. He is married to Ruth Posselt, a concert violinist. They have two young children.

Jean M. Cauhape, viola. Born in Toulouse, France, he attended theological school and the Toulouse and Paris Conservatories, where he was awarded first prize for viola. His mother was an amateur pianist. He joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1925.

Harold Farberman, percussion player. He was born in New York of a family who were musicians as far back as his great-grandparents in Europe. His father and brothers are also drummers. Granted a scholarship at the Juilliard School of Music, he became the youngest snare drummer at the age of 20 at Radio City Music Hall. In the past season he accompanied a friend seeking a position in the BSO and took it himself instead. He owns a Billy Gladstone custom built drum, the "Strad" of snare drums. His hobby is rooting for the New York Giants.

Gino B. Cioffi, principal clarinet. Distantly related to Pasquale Cioffi of 254 Dalton Avenue, Pittsfield, he was born in Naples of a musical family. Beginning music at the age of seven, he studied with Piccone and Carpio at the Naples Conservatory, graduating when he was 17. Since coming to America he has played solo clarinet with leading orchestras, including those of Radio City, New York, Cleveland, the Metropolitan Opera and NBC under Toscanini. His clarinet is considered one of the finest in the world. One son, who is a graduate of the Juilliard School, is assistant first clarinet in the Army Band in Washington. Another is in the Arkansas Army Band.

Harry Ellis Dickson, first violin. Born in Cambridge, he graduated from the New England Conservatory and won a scholarship at the Hochschule for Musik in Berlin. Joining the BSO in 1938, he is a member of the Boston Conservatory String Quartet and the Zimbler Sinfonietta and conducts the Providence Civic Orchestra. He has an interesting violin made in Milan in 1755 by Jean Baptiste Guadagnini which was exhibited at the Brooklyn Museum in 1935. He collects anecdotes about musicians and conductors.

Theodore E. Brewster, bassoon. Born in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, he graduated from the New England Conservatory, studying with Ernst Panenka and Raymond Allard of the BSO, Dall Fields of Chicago, Simon Kovac of New York and Saul Schoenback of Philadelphia. He was a student at the Berkshire Music Center in 1947 and 1949, when he joined the orchestra. He is a golfer.

Paul Cherkassky, violin. Born in Odessa, he attended conservatories there and in Leningrad, where he played with the opera orchestra. He was later concertmaster of the Helsinki Orchestra and conducted the Helsinki National Opera. Joining the BSO in 1923, he has led the Pops and Esplanade Orchestras. He teaches and plays chamber music and in concert. In his leisure time he makes recordings.

Pasquale A. Cardillo, clarinet. A native of North Adams, where his family live, he graduated from Drury High School and the New England Conservatory of Music. He joined the BSO in 1939, and teaches clarinet at the New England Conservatory and Boston University. He is a member of the Berkshire Woodwind Ensemble who will play tonight at the Berkshire Music Center. His hobbies are trout fishing and Italian cooking.

Hippolyte E. Droeghmans, cello. Born in Liege, Belgium, he studied at the Conservatory in Paris, where he won first prize, under Martin Pierre Marsick, teacher of Thibaud, Enesco and Monteux. He played cello solos with the Concerts Colonne, Paris, and the Grand Opera, Nice. His cello was made in Genoa in 1745 by Bernadus Calcanius.

Henry Greenberg, double bass. Born in Warsaw, Poland, his father was a band leader, his mother a pianist and four brothers professional musicians. He studied at the Warsaw Conservatory, where he was awarded an old Italian instrument as a prize. He has played with the Warsaw Imperial Opera, and Philharmonic Orchestra and came to this country at the invitation of Gabrilowitsch to join the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. After playing with the New York Symphony he was with Toscanani at NBC for five years. He joined the BSO in 1939. His hobbies are golf and moving picture photography. His son is principal bass with the Kansas City Orchestra.

Henry S. Freeman, double bass. Born in New York City, he graduated from Eastman School of Music with highest honors. His father had been concert soloist of the Grenadier Guards Band in London, later playing in this country with Sousa and Pryor and later as first trumpet in the Eastman Theatre. He was offered the principal chair in the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra by Jose Iturbi before joining the BSO in 1945. His wife, also an Eastman graduate, was active as a violinist in Rochester. He has just acquired the famous English "Dodd" bass, known for its enormous, beautiful tone.

George Humphrey, viola. Born and brought up in Ohio, he was employed in a railroad shop until he was 26, when he was given a ticket for a Kreisler recital. He was so deeply impressed that he took his first lesson on the violin and continued the study at the New England Conservatory. Later he switched to the viola. He left the Minneapolis Orchestra to join the BSO in 1934. He makes violins, violas and bows in his leisure time. One of his violas won an award in an exhibition of instruments made by contemporary craftsman.

Henri Girard, double bass. Born in France, he was a prize student at the Paris Conservatory. A member of the [illegible] introduced Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring" 39 years ago, he joined the BSO in 1920 when Monteux was conductor. He is a member of the Lake Placid Ensemble, the Flute Club Players and Arthur Fiedler's Symphonietta. His hobby is old books. He owns two double basses—a Stretchner made in 1790 and a Tyrolian made in 1780.

Ralph Gomberg, principal oboe. A Bostonian by birth, he has two sisters and three brothers who are professional musicians. At the age of 17 he was appointed first oboe for Stokowski's All-American Youth Orchestra. He played solo oboe for the New York City Center Symphony under Leonard Bernstein and first oboe with the Baltimore Symphony and Mutual Broadcasting Orchestras. He is a graduate of the Curtis Institute.

Samuel Leon Gorodetzky, second violin. A Frenchman by birth, he graduated from the New England Conservatory where he held a scholarship. He studied piano, but specialized in violin with Gruenberg, Winternitz and Witek, giving many recitals and concerts. He teaches and coaches violin, and in his spare time tries his hand at sculpture, painting and photography, saving some for out of door sports.

Joseph dePasquale, first viola. Born in Philadelphia of a musical family, he was first taught by his father, a professional violinist. His course at the Curtis Institute was interrupted by the war, during which he played in the Marine Band and Symphony Orchestra. With the latter he appeared often at the White House to play for state dinners, including those for Churchill and DeGaulle. Appointed first violinist with the BSO at the age of 27, he was the youngest to occupy that position in a major orchestra. He is married to a niece of Mrs. Koussevitzky, on whose estate they are living this summer with two daughters, aged six and two years.

Ludwig Juht (continued): and composition at the Berlin Conservatory, and [illegible] Symphony Orchestra, the Estonian Opera and was professor at the Conservatory of Latvia. Joining the BSO in 1934, he teaches and concertizes, composes and writes in his spare time. He has an instrument made by Francesco Ruggeri of Cremona in 1679, which he bought from the Duke of Windsor in 1936.

Eugene Lehner, viola. A Hungarian, he studied composition with Kodaly and played in the Hubay, Kolisch and Stradivarius Quartets. He joined the BSO in 1939. Still a member of the Stradivarius Quartet, he says that his hobby is "music, music, music."

Manuel C. Valerio, clarinet. Born in New Bedford, he spent three years at the New England Conservatory. He was spotted for the BSO when Arthur Fiedler recruited him for the Esplanade orchestra and took him on tour with the Symphonietta through Virginia and Pennsylvania in the early 30s. He then joined the Pops and in 1933 the BSO, centually succeeded to first clarinet. He is described as "one of the smallest men in the orchestra with one of the biggest senses of humor." Although he was born in New Bedford, his parents and his wife came from the Azores.

GEORGE E. JUDD
Manager

three years later [illegible] Boston Flute Players Club [illegible] was one of the foremost musical organizations in Boston, where its chamber music concerts were very popular. His flute is one of the distinguishing voices of the orchestra.

Clarence F. Knudson, principal second violin. A native of Lynn, he studied at the New England Conservatory under Adamowski, joining the BSO in 1920. He is a member of the Zimbler Sinfonietta. He has four sons, ranging in age from seven to 20. His instrument is a Gand Pere, made in 1840.

Marcel Lafosse, trumpet. Of a French family of musicians, he was a first prize winner at the Paris Conservatory in 1914. He was soloist with the Opera Comique and the Concerts Colonne under Koussevitzky, who invited him to the BSO in 1926. He is now professor at the New England and Boston Conservatories. He enjoys fishing and teaching Belotte.

Alfred Krips, assistant concertmaster. Born in Berlin, he studied violin with Willy Hess at the Berlin Academy of Music, later playing first violin in the Berlin State Opera House under Walter, Furtwangler, Richard Strauss and Klemperer. He toured Europe as a chamber music player, as soloist and with Edwin Fischer's chamber orchestra. Joining the BSO in 1934, he teaches at the New England Conservatory.

Robert Karol, viola. A cousin of Norman Carol, he is fond of riding a motorcycle. On the orchestra's European tour he and his wife motorcycled through Holland. He was born in Allentown, Pa. He has played with the Little Orchestra Society of New York and Saidenberg's Little Symphony of New York. He joined the BSO two seasons ago. He is a former Tanglewood student. He likes to play golf.

Bernard Kadinoff (continued): in the Pops and Esplanade Orchestras under Arthur Fiedler, and is [illegible] Tanglewood for the first [illegible]

Norbert Lauga, [illegible] studied at the National Conservatory in Paris, winning first medals in solfeggio at the age of 10 and in violin under Touche at 14, with first prize in violin at 17. He studied with Camille Chevillard, D'Indy and Enesco. At 18 he was appointed assistant concertmaster of the Concerts Straram and later concertmaster of other orchestras. Before coming to America he won the first competition conducted by the Association of the Former First Prizes of the National Paris Conservatory.

Walter G. Macdonald, French horn. A New Englander, born in Watertown, he attended Boston University and the New England Conservatory. He came to the BSO in 1932. He claims no hobbies; has two boys, aged 5 and 14. Although he started studying the trumpet at the Conservatory, he changed to the French horn because its softer tone appealed to him.

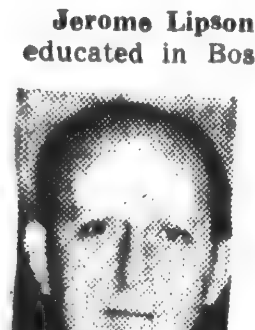
Minot Beale, first violin. One of the young American musicians who joined the orchestra in 1927, he was born in Rockland, where he still lives in the ancestral home of his family who were original settlers. His father was a pianist, who taught his son. In World War I he played the slide trombone at the Newport Naval Training Station.

Vincent J. Mauricci, viola. Born in Boston, he attended the Music School and on a viola scholarship at the New England Conservatory with Faurel, Primrose and dePasquale. He won prizes in the Herald-Traveler contest at the age of 15 and a scholarship in the National Orchestral Association under Leon Barzin. He was a member of the original American Youth Orchestra that toured South America under Stokowski.

TIGHT BINDING

S. J. Leibovici, first violin. Born In Romania, he studied at the Paris Conservatory, winning first prize in solfege in 1911 and in violin in 1914. He joined the BSO in 1926. He plays a Cremona instrument dated 1791. 1791. He studied in Paris, where he was taken at the age of three, under Alfred Brun, Edward Nadeau, Jaques Thibaud and Marsik. His daughter is a student at Wellesley.

Olivia Luetcke, harp. Born in New York City, she is one of five children who are musicians. Attending school at Scituate, she began to play the harp at the age of six. She studied four years with the National Orchestral Association and with Bernard Zighera, BSO harpist. She has soloed with the San Antonio Symphony and at the Pops concerts. She joined the BSO last year, and is its only woman member. A breeder of German Shepherds, she is the owner of Champion Ophelia Greenfair.



Jerome Lipson, viola. Born and educated in Boston, he is one of the first Tanglewood graduates to play solo viola. Because he likes to travel, he went to England last year to look over the possibilities for accommodation for the BSO before its European tour. He is a member of the orchestra's elected committee. He was formerly with the Indianapolis Orchestra. In World War II he played with Glen Miller's Air Force Band. He joined the BSO in 1947. His hobby is golf.

George Madsen, piccolo. He has been called a "North Shore Scandinavian" because he was born in Gloucester and his father in Norway. He plays both the flute and the piccolo. His piccolo helps to characterize the BSO. It is said that he can make even the highest note sound sweet. He is a flute specialist and collector, and can make one Harold L. Meek, French horn. Attending Denison University and Curtis Institute of Music, he graduated from Eastman School of Music. He taught theory and orchestration and conducted the orchestra and band for three years at Shurtleff College, Alton, Ill. Joining the BSO in 1943, he arranges works for woodwind ensembles. Theatre and photography are his recreation.

Saverio Messina, second violin. Born in Boston, he has a master's degree from Boston University. He joined the BSO in 1920 under Pierre Monteux. He has two boys, aged 14 and 18. Not content until he had an advanced college degree, he studied nights, while playing in the BSO, until he received an M.A. at Boston University.

Osbourne W. McConathy, French horn. Born in Chelsea, son of a music educator, he graduated from New York University, where he conducted the Glee Club, and attend the Juilliard Graduate School. He later conducted Symphony and opera in Newark, N.J. He became a member of the BSO in 1944. His recreation is research in Elizabethan music and the history of the horn and horn players.

Georges Edmond Moleux, principal double bass. Born in France, at the age of five he began to study solfeggio. At 12 he was studying double bass and clarinet, and at 20 he received the first prize at the Paris Conservatory for both instruments. He was first clarinetest at Monte Carlo and later principal double bassist of the Pasdeloup Concert in Paris. Invited to the BSO in 1930 he has been principal double bass since 1939. Many outstanding double Rosario Mazzeo, bass clarinet. Growing up in Shrewsbury, he has lived near Boston all his life, studying music privately with Gaston Hamelin. He joined the BSO in 1933 to play the piccolo clarinet. He collects, designs and builds clarinets, but they are not his only interest. He says that his "life is centered indoors around music and outdoors around birds." He has an ornithological library of nearly 3000 volumes. When he travels, it is usually in quest of birds. Once he spent 30 days at an elevation of 13,000 feet in Colorado studying mountain birds. Last year he went to Labrador, and recently he was in the news for helping to make history with a Manx shearwater that he found off the coast of Scotland. He is a director of the Audubon Society. Important to the BSO is his position as orchestra personnel manager.

James Pappoutsakis, flute. Born in Cairo, Egypt, he came to Boston to the Latin School and the New England Conservatory. Joining the BSO in 1937, he plays with the Berkshire Woodwind Ensemble and is on the faculty of the Conservatory and the Longy Schools.

Henry Portnoi, double bass. A native of Chelsea he studied violin under Nikolai Kaffman and bass at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, under Torella. He played in the Indianapolis and Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestras, and with Stokowski in the Youth Orchestra, joining the BSO in 1943. He teaches at Boston University. He has two small children.

Leo Panasevich, second violin. He came to the BSO last year from the Monte Carlo Ballet Orchestra, in which his wife played the French horn. At Tanglewood for his first Berkshire Festival, he spent the past few summers at Newcastle, N.H., where he and Mrs. Panasevich played in a summer group. In the Navy during

CHARLES MUNCH, CONDUCTOR

Carlos Pinfield, first violin. A Bostonian by birth, he studied at the Royal Academy in Berlin, under Willy Hess, served with the armed forces in World War I and has conducted ensemble groups from the BSO. He has been guest conductor of the Pops orchestra at Symphony Hall. He teaches violin and conducts an amateur orchestra, doing gardening and woodworking in his spare time. His instrument is a Joseph Rocca, dated 1837.

Max Polster, percussion player. German-born, he taught himself, starting his professional career in 1901 and joining the BSO in 1923. With experience in leading European orchestras, he has played under Furtwangler, Muck, Lehar, Ziehrer and Monteux, Koussevitzky and Munch, and now is a member of the Pops and Esplanade Orchestras. He says that his hobby is "making and saving money."

Vladimir Resnikoff, first violin. A native of Novgorod, Russia, son of musicians, he graduated from the Meister Schule in Vienna. Later he studied in Belgium. He was soloist with the London Philharmonic Orchestra and in Vienna. He was head of the Altman School of Music, joining the BSO in 1932. He has a violin made by Joannes Battista Guadagnini dated 1751, from the Walton collection His hobby is gardening.

Harry Dubbs, first violin. Born in Boston, he began to study violin at the age of five, later with Timothee Adamowski at the New England Conservatory and for many years with Felix Winternitz. A member of the faculty of Boston University, he is conductor of the Brookline Community Orchestra and conducts youth concerts with members of the BSO. His hobbies are photography and travel. He owns an Italian violin made by Panormo and plays an Kilton Vinal Smith, tuba. Born in Vinal Haven, Maine, for which he was named by his old New England family, he began the study of the trombone with Jacob Raichman, BSO principal trombone, at the age of 13. He later changed to the bass tuba. His hobby is refinishing furniture. He likes to buy an old piece and restore it to its original beauty. He has many pieces that he has picked up for restoration in his spare time.

Ralph delSordo, second violin. A native of Flumeri, Italy, he studied with the famous Winternitz, Noack, Loeffler and Witek. He plays the mandolin or guitar when one is needed by the BSO. He teaches and in his spare time builds houses. He has a violin made by Vincenzo Postiglione in 1868.

Louis Speyer, English horn. French by birth, he is of a musical family, a first prize winner at the Paris Conservatory in 1911. He played in the first ballet and concert performances of Stravinsky's "The Rite of Spring," coming to the United States with the French Army Band in 1918 for a three weeks' tour. He was awarded the Legion of Honor decoration in February, 1950, for "invaluable services to the dissemination of French culture." He is the leader of the Berkshire Woodwind Ensemble. Joining the BSO in 1919, he is a conductor and teacher.

James Stagliano, principal French horn. Born in Italy, he came to Detroit at the age of six. Of the third generation of musicians, mainly French horn players, he joined the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the age of 16. He has since played with the orchestras of St. Louis, Chicago, Los Angles and Cleveland and in 1946 joined the BSO. He likes to play golf, tennis and badminton.

Simon Sternburg, percussion.

Samuel Diamond, second violin. A native of Boston, of Lithuanian ancestry, he attended, the Boston public schools. After lessons in violin with his uncle at the age of eight, and later with Emanuel Fiedler, Felix Winternitz and Charles Loeffler, he became concertmaster for Victor Herbert in 1916. He traveled everywhere with him in 1916 and 1917, until he joined the BSO in 1918 under Monteux. He has two young children, a boy and a girl.

Gaston Elcus, first violin. A native of France, he won the first prize in violin, at the Paris Conservatory. He was professor of advanced violin and chamber music in the Nadaud Conservatory, member of the committee of examinations and competitions at the Paris Conservatory, concermaster of the Opera Comique in Paris. He plays violins made by Carlo Antonio Tononi in Venice in 1717, by Vuellaume and by Chanok, famous French violin makers.

Irving Frankel, double bass. Son of an Austrian musician, he attended the Boston Conservatory. He joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1919 under Pierre Monteux. His hobbies are golf and swimming. When he came to this country at the age of 15 he was already well grounded in music, including harmony and composition as well as his instrument, the double bass. For recreation he writes music.

George Fourel, viola. Born in Grenoble, France, he attended the Lycee at Donai and Alencon. He won first prize in viola at the Paris Conservatory under Lafarge and studied orchestra under Vincent D'Indy. He entered the Lamoureux Symphony Orchestra in 1912 and the BSO nine years later. He teaches viola and string quartet at the New Jean deVergie, oboe. A native of Marseille, France, he attended the conservatory there and in Paris, where he won first prize in oboe. After playing first oboe at the Paris Opera, he joined the BSO. In his spare time he makes oboe reeds. He teaches privately.

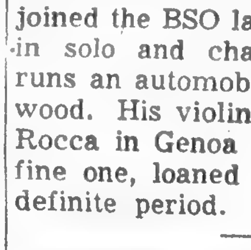
William Waterhouse, second violin. The only Canadian in the orchestra, he was born in Winnipeg of a musical family. Graduating from Ravenscourt at the age of 15, he won cross-country competitions in his last three years. He holds the degrees of bachelor and master of music from Boston University. He won many prizes for chamber music, violin and string quartet and piano. Among his teachers was Sir Henry Wood, who taught his father 40 years before. Serving almost six years in the Canadian Army, he played in London under outstanding British conductors, but not under Sir Thomas Beecham until he joined the BSO last year. He plays in solo and chamber music and runs an automobile agency in Norwood. His violin, made by Joseph Rocca in Genoa in 1856, is a very fine one, loaned to him for an indefinite period.



Gottfried Joseph Wilfinger, first violin. Born in Allentown, Pa., he attended the New England Conservatory for two years, winning the Philadelphia Youth Contest in 1948, and playing as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra. He has held scholarships at Tanglewood and the Conservatory. He joined the BSO in 1950.

George Zazofsky, first violin. He was born in Boston, graduated from the Curtis Institute and was twice chosen to represent New England in the All-American Youth Orchestra that toured South America, Canada and the United States with Stokowski. He was concertmas-

---

Russia he attended the Institute of the History of Arts in Petrograd, and the Conservatory of Music in Berlin, received a bachelor of music and master of arts degree at Boston University and expects expects to earn a Ph. D. at Harvard in 1954. He conducted the ... Boston the bassoon in city school orchestra, studying under Professor Strobl, bassoon soloist in the Vienna Opera, until he was engaged by the Volksoper in his native city. He joined the BSO in 1930. His hobbies are mountain climbing, photographer and flying model airplanes, at which he has unusual success. He carried colored film all over Europe on the orchestra's tour, the Army Air Force Band in Paris and traveled with it about Europe. He has just built a new home in Needham. He plays in the Pops and Esplanade Orchestras, and is at Tanglewood for the Berkshire Festival concerts in the Music Shed.

Herman Silberman, first violin.

about which he has written a textbook that has a high reputation among percussion players. Two members of the Concert Gebouw, on the orchestra's recent European tour, sought him out to express their appreciation for his "Progressive Exercises in Drumming," as did members of the Israeli Orchestra when they played in Boston. He has a business interest in a music store not far from Symphony Hall.

leading dance bands while he waited to join the BSO, which was his ambition. He played in Ruby Newman's Orchestra and did much radio and other dance orchestra playing in New York. He was appointed to his present position two seasons ago by Charles Munch, the musical director of the Boston Symphony violin dated Milan, [illegible], which is pictured in the book, "How Many Gaudagninis" by Doving.

Alfred Zighera, cello. Born in Paris, he studied at the Paris Conservatory, starting at the age of 10. Playing in the Koussevitzky Concerts in Paris, he joined the BSO in 1925. A teacher at the New England Conservatory and Wellesley College, he plays in the Boston

TIGHT BINDING

Gloucester and his father in Norway. He plays both the flute and the piccolo. His piccolo helps to characterize the BSO. It is said that he can ing double bass and clarinet, and at 20 he received the first prize at the Paris Conservatory for both instruments. He was first clarinetest at Monte Carlo and later principal double bassist of the the Monte Carlo Ballet Orchestra, in which his wife played the French horn. At Tanglewood for his first Berkshire Festival, he spent the past few summers at Newcastle, N.H.,

1923. With experience in leading European orchestras, he has played under Furtwangler, Muck, Lehar, Ziehrer and Monteux, Koussevitzky and Munch, and now is a member of

New England Conservatory and for many years with Felix Winternitz. A member of the faculty of Boston University, he is conductor of the Brookline Community Orchestra and conducts musicians, mainly French horn players, he joined the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the age of 16. He has since played with the orchestras of St. Louis, Chicago, Los Angeles and Cleveland and in 1946 joined the BSO.

and Alencon. He won first prize in viola at the Paris Conservatory under Lafarge and studied orchestra under Vincent D'Indy. He entered the Lamoureux Symphony Orchestra

George Zazofsky, first violin. He was born in Boston, graduated from the Curtis Institute and was twice chosen to represent New England in the All-American Youth Orchestra that toured South America, Canada and the United States with in Petrograd, and the Conservatory of Music in Berlin, received a bachelor of music and master of arts degree at Boston University and expects expects to earn a Ph. D. at Harvard in 1954. He conducted the Cecelia Society Chorus of Boston and led and directed the Army Air Force Symphony Orchestra in the war. He came to the BSO in 1947. In his leisure he writes, plays chess and rides.

---

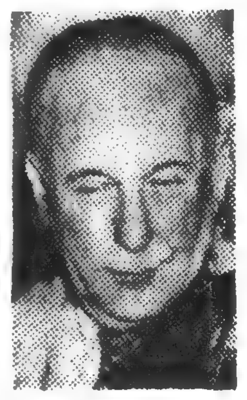
L. Marjollet, cello. A Frenchman, he served in World War I, joining the BSO in 1920 under Monteux. Born in Chalons-sur-Marne, France, his mother was a singer. He entered the Paris Conservatory, studying with Professor Pessard. He spent four years in World War I. He toured through France and Mexico before coming to the BSO. Handy with tools, he has made furniture for his house.

Pierre Mayer, second violin. Born in Paris, he studied under the famous Andre Tourret and Andre Caplet. He played with the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande of Geneva, the Societe des Concerts du Conservatoire and the Concerts Straram of Paris. He joined the BSO in 1925.



Samuel Houston Mayes, principal cello. Born in St. Louis, his mother was a musician from Atlanta, Ga., his father was a surgeon and his grandfather, for whom he was named, was a full-blooded Cherokee Indian. At the age of four, on the advice of Will Rogers, his father's first cousin, he was given a small cello and started to study. At the age of eight he appeared as soloist with the St. Louis Orchestra and at 12 he entered the Curtis Institute, joining the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1936 and advancing to first desk three years later.

World War I, he claims to have knocked out a champion in a boxing match.

Laszlo James Nagy, second violin. Born in New York City of Hungarian parentage, he studied privately piano, violin and theory. When very young he was concertmaster of the famous St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra, made up of amateur and semi-professional musicians. Before coming to the BSO he was for 15 years first violin and sometimes viola with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. He writes short stories that often appear in magazines. He has four young children.

Michael Nieland, cellist. Philadelphia born, son and brother of musicians, he studied under Stephen Deak of Curtis Institute and Dican Alexanian of the Peabody Institute, whose assistant he was. For three years he sang baritone with the Philadel Grand Opera Company and played with the Baltimore and National Symphonies and the Pro Musica and Harewood Quartets. His hobbies are tennis, fishing and skating, repairing old cellos and looking for a fine old Italian instrument.

Willis Page, associate principal double bass. He was born in Rochester, N.Y. Graduating from Eastman School of Music in that city, he was the first student to receive a performer's degree in two instruments — double bass and tuba. An astronomist in his leisure time, he owns a 54-inch telescope with a six-inch mirror.

Bernard Parronchi, cello. Born in New York, he studied in Italy, France and in Spain under the great Pablo Casals, Andre Servato. He joined the BSO under Serge Koussavitzky. He has given recitals in principal European cities and three at Town Hall, New York. He likes to fish.

Boaz Piller, contra bass. Born in The Hague, Holland, he came to New Orleans in 1910 with the famous French Opera Company after graduating from the Royal Conservatory in The Hague. At the age of 27 he joined the faculty of the New England Conservatory, the BSO in 1916 and play for 29 years at Crawford House, New Hampshire, in the summer. He has played chamber music with Albert Einstein, the scientist. Pursing his hobby of collecting musical autographs, he has 450 and 100 musical caricatures. He owns a complete set of prints of the 57 Musical Daumiers.

Joseph A. Orosz, trombone. Born in Toledo, Ohio, son of a clarinet player, he took a business course before graduating from the Boston Conservatory with highest honors in trombone. At nine he played with the Hungarian Gypsies and at 11 he was organist of his church. He teaches privately and at the Boston Conservatory. His bobbies are photography and mountain climbing. He plays a trombone made especially for him.

bassoon. Born in Vienna, began piano lessons at bassoon soloist in the Vienna Opera, until he was engaged by the Volksoper in his native city. He joined the BSO in 1930. His hobbies are mountain climbing, photographer and flying model airplanes, at which he has unusual success. He carried colored film all over Europe on the orchestra's tour, making a photographic log of the trip.

Sheldon Rotenberg, second violin. Born in Attleboro, he holds an A.B. and an M.A. degree from Tufts. He studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and with Winternitz, Enesco, Thibaud, Keller and Burgin, with two seasons at Tanglewood. A Paris recital was sponsored by the Baroness de Rothschild. His career, interrupted by five years of military service in England, France and Germany, includes appearances with the Pops and Indianapolis Orchestras and the Boston String Quartet. He has a certified Guarnerius (Joseph) instrument, dated 1710.

Jacob Raichman, principal trombone. Born in Vitebsk, Russia, he studied at the St. Petersburg Conservatory, receiving a scholarship as "an exceptionally gifted student" and receiving the diploma of "Free Artist." He won a contest with 22 applicants for the position of first trombonist at the Imperial Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow, appearing as soloist. With the BSO since 1927, he teaches. Many of his students have important positions in major American orchestras. His hobby is machinery.

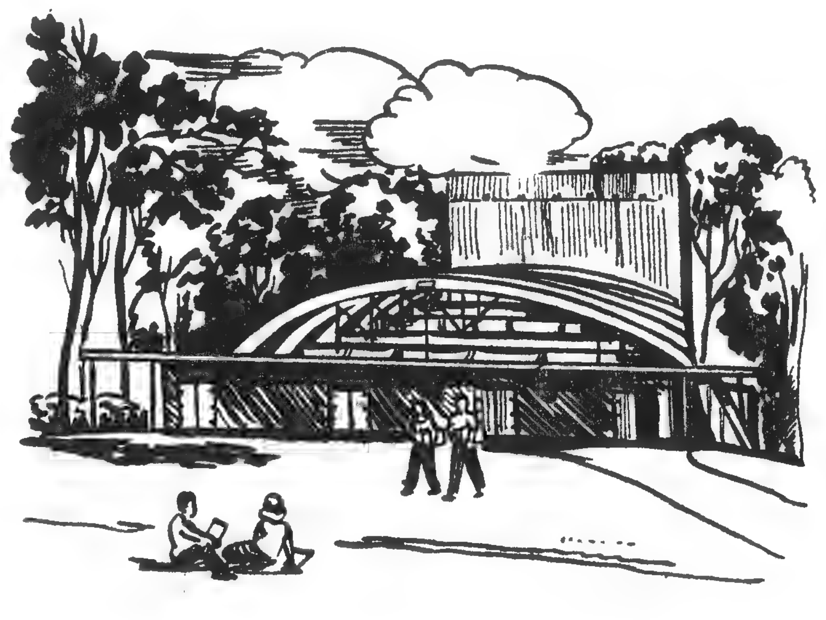
Roger Schermanski, first violin. A Parisian by birth, he won first prize at the Paris Conservatory and played solos with the National Orchestra of France and the French Radio. He joined the BSO in 1950 under Charles Munch. He joined the BSO in 1947. He is married to Irene, daughter of Jacob Raichman, first trombone of the orchestra.

owns an Italian violin made by Panormo and plays an instrument made and given to him by F. O. Stanley, the inventor.

Europe. He has just built a new home in Needham. He plays in the Pops and Esplanade Orchestras, and is at Tanglewood for the Berkshire Festival concerts in the Music Shed.

Herman Silberman, first violin. Born in Boston, of a musical family, he studied at the Longy School and in Europe. At the age of 14 he appeared in Symphony Hall as soloist. A member of the New Art String Quartet of New York, he played in the WOR string Symphonietta under Wallenstein and conducted radio broadcasts over two networks, as well as a series of Boston concerts. He became a member of the BSO in 1944. He is currently a member of the Stradivarius Quartet.

Charles Smith, percussion. Born in Newark, N.J., he was a special student at the Juilliard School of Music and studied with Gene Krupa, celebrated jazz player. For 39 weeks he played under Alexander Smallens in the road production of Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," which gave 600 performances in a coast to coast tour. His wife, Josephine, played violin in Spitalny's all-woman orchestra. He teaches at the New England Conservatory and Boston University College of Music.



Simon Sternburg, percussion. Born in Boston, he has been a percussion player among percussion players. Two members of the Concert Gebouw, on the orchestra's recent European tour, sought him out to express their appreciation for his "Progressive Exercises in Drumming," as did members of the Israeli Orchestra when they played in Boston. He has a business interest in a music store not far from Symphony Hall.

Lloyd Stonestreet, second violin. He comes of an old Yankee family who lived in Revere when he was born. He studied under private teachers in New York and at the New England Conservatory, joining the BSO in 1920. He has a business interest in a haberdashery shop at Harvard Square. He is the only musician in the orchestra who is a Harvard graduate.

Roger Louis Voisin, principal trumpet. Born in Angers, France, he attended the English High School in Boston. His grandfather was a musician, as was his father, under whom he studied at the New England Conservatory and whom he succeeded as principal trumpet player with the BSO. He is married to a Southern girl. They have a two-year-old son and a six-month-old daughter. He teaches solfege at the Berkshire Music Center and takes pictures in his spare time.

viola and England Conservatory violas made by Hieronymus and the BSO, which was his ambition. He played in Ruby Newman's Orchestra and did much radio and other dance orchestra playing in New York. He was appointed to his present position two seasons ago by Charles Munch, the musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Rolland Sylvester Taplay, first violin. Born in Hudson, he studied violin with Felix Winternitz and saxophone with Andrew Jacobsen, joining the BSO in 1920. He conducts various school and business men's amateur orchestras and plays solo. He likes to hunt, fish, play bridge and experiment in the measure of musical aptitude. He has three children, more than the average for BSO members.

Roman Szulz, timpani. Born in Warsaw, he came to the United States in 1935, when he became a member of the BSO, succeeding the great trombonist, Ritter. He learned enough English on his way across the ocean to get about Boston until he picked up some more. He played first timpani for almost every great conductor in Europe. His two sons are also musicians. Walter plays the trombone and Andrew the piano in popular dance orchestras.

Karl Zeise, cello. A painter as well as a musician, he became interested in both arts at the age of eight. He learned to play the cello because his uncle left his about the house. He started his career as a pictorial artist when he sketched scenes near his family's home in Needham and their summer cottage on the Kennebec River near Demariscotta, Me. While playing cello with the Philadelphia Orchestra he studied oil painting at the Academy of Fine Arts. His exhib in the Tanglewood reception last summer included scen sea and of Lenox.

pictured in the book, "How Many

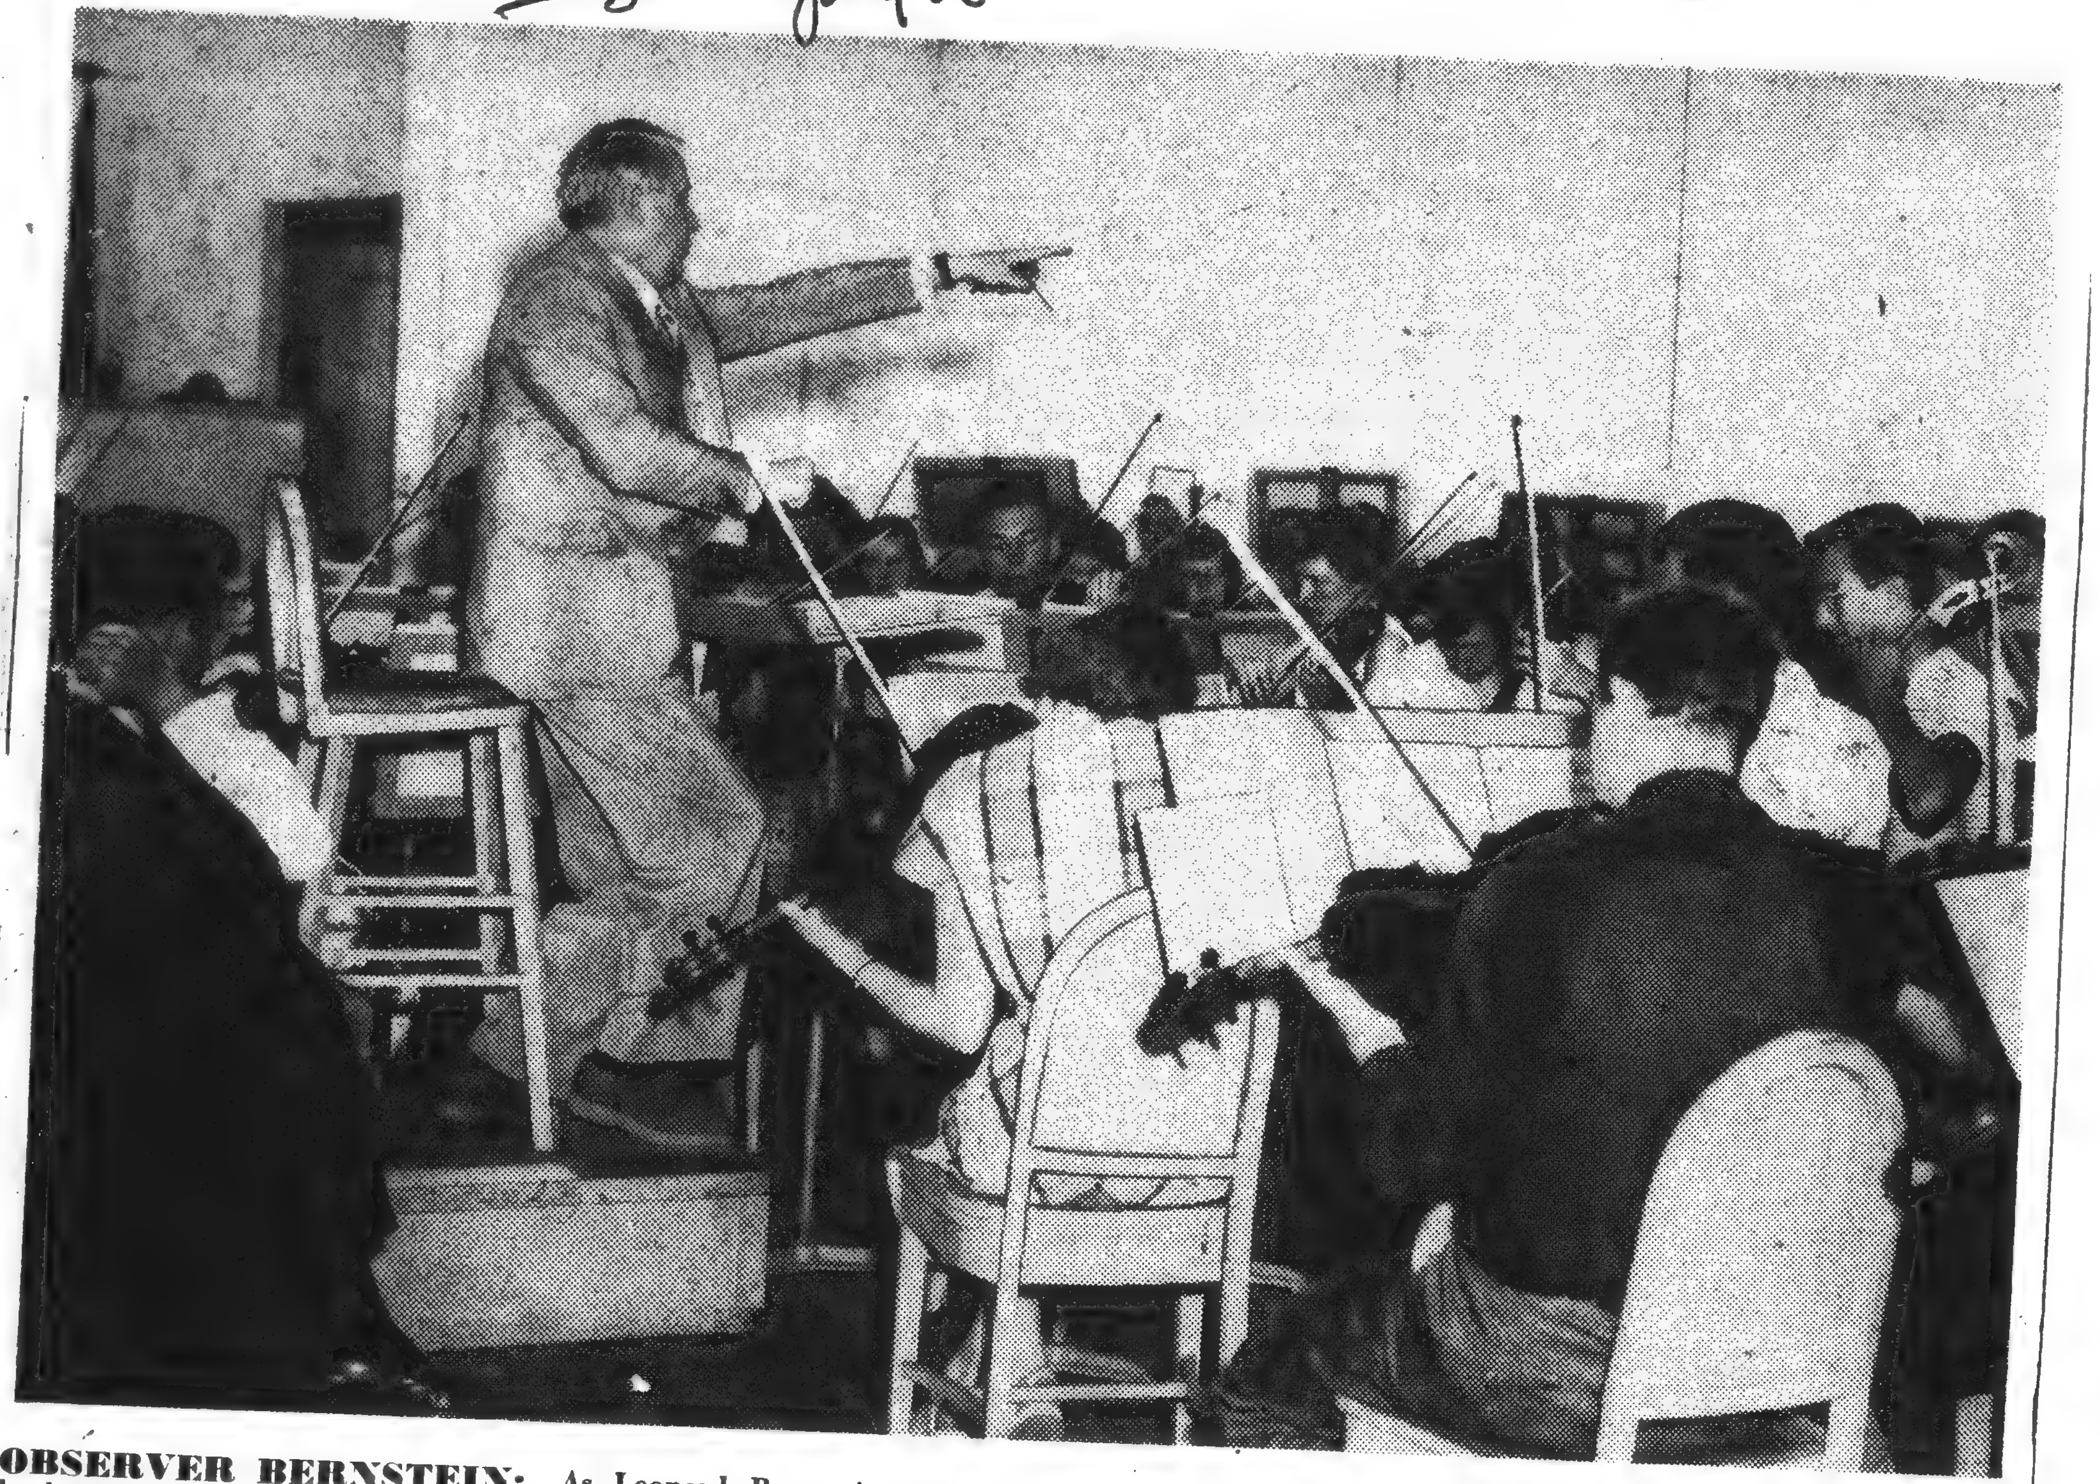
Alfred Zighera, cello. Born in Paris, he studied at the Paris Conservatory, starting at the age of 10. Playing in the Koussevitzky Concerts in Paris, he joined the BSO in 1925. A teacher at the New England Conservatory and Wellesley College, he plays in the Boston String Quartet and the Boston Society of Ancient Instruments, in which he plays viola da gamba. He is a member of the Tanglewood faculty.

Bernard Zighera, principal harp. Born in Paris of a Romanian father and Polish mother, he began to study piano at the age of 8 and harp at 12, winning prizes in both at the Paris Conservatory. He followed his brother to the BSO in 1926. He founded and conducted a series of concerts by a chamber orchestra. He teaches at the New England Conservatory and Tanglewood. He often plays piano with the orchestra.

Manuel Zung, second violin. Born in Russia, he graduated with honors from the New England Conservatory, where he studied under Eugene Gruenberg. Joining the BSO in 1925, he is a member of the Zimbler Sinfonietta. He likes to play bridge. His instrument is a Gagliano.

Joseph Zimbler, cello. Born in Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, he comes of a family of professional musicians. Three uncles were members of the BSO and Arthur Fiedler, Pops and Esplanade conductor, is his cousin. He studied in Pilsen, Prague and Berlin and filled solo and chamber music engagements in various European countries. Since coming to the BSO he organized a string quartet and the Zimbler Sinfonietta, playing in concert and recording. His hobby is playing chamber music and collecting coins and stamps. He has a collection of old s and an instrument made oh Ingliano of Naples in

Eagle July 18



OBSERVER BERNSTEIN: As Leonard Bernstein watches at left, Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, leads the student orchestra at Tanglewood last evening at the regular Friday night concert for the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center. A crowd of 2500 turned out. Mr. Bernstein also conducted as well as two of his pupils, Robert Mandell and Samuel Krachmalnick.

Brook

The Tanglewood Season Off to a Flying Start

With the opening of the season at Tanglewood it is now full summer. There are other signs and portents that are reasonably reliable, but when the Bach-Mozart concerts begin in the Tanglewood opera house, even the most skeptical can no longer doubt that winter is over, and so is spring, for that matter.

Extending the trend of the years, the first set of concerts of the little series made a new attendance record. As always, the audience under cover was a minority, but it was a smaller minority than ever. It is, in fact, becoming a mere fraction of the audience.

The popularity of the smaller concerts is due in some degree to factors unconnected with the musical programs themselves. Many people prefer the surroundings, the smaller audiences, the more intimate atmosphere. And the delays and other drawbacks incident to the enormous crowds at the main festival are a strong influence in making many prefer the musical entree to the piece de resistance in the Shed.

But it is a significant indication of the progress of American musical education that there is such attendance at Bach performances. Bach is considered by many musical authorities to be the greatest even of the three B's. But he is unquestionably esoteric; he has always been caviar to the general; he will never crash Tin Pan Alley as Tchaikovsky has. He is so worshipped by the cognoscenti that the apostles of modernity and atonality who affect to patronize Mozart and even snoot Beethoven continue to worship at the shrine of Bach. Yet year by year the crowds that come to hear him increase, and show an increasing proportion of the young, notably young men. Truly the tree of musical education in America of which Walter Damrosch helped plant the seed is bearing fruit.

In Brief . . .

The 7200 who gathered over the week end for the opening of the Tanglewood series in the theatre-music hall seem to call for an end to describing the pre-Shed program as the "small" concerts . . .

Tanglewood

TONIGHT

8.30—All-Mozart Berkshire Festival concert by chamber orchestra players, Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch. Theatre-concert hall.

TOMORROW

*10 AM—Chamber music concert in chamber music hall by students of Berkshire Music Center:
String Quartet in D minor, Schubert
Barbara Sorlien and Miriam Wexler, violins; William Shisler, viola; John Sant'Ambrogio, cello.
Octet in E-flat major .. Beethoven
Robert Freeman and Rodney Pierce, oboes; Rober Koper and Jane Taylor, bassoons; Saul Eichner and Constance Davis, clarinets; Marjory Black and Keith Vernon, French horns.
Second Piano Quartet in G-minor
Faure
William dePasquale, violin; Norma Marcus, cello; Alan Iglitzin, viola; Susan Pearlman, piano.

2.30 PM—Second all-Mozart Berkshire Festival program by chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players, Charles Munch conducting.

*8.30 PM—Composers' forum, Aaron Copland, moderator, chamber music hall.
Divertimento for Trumpet, Horn and Trombone
Barney Childs, Reno, Nev.
Piece for Violin and Piano
Saul Podolsky, Dorchester
Three Madrigals for Two French Horns .. Arno Safran, Flushing, L.I.
Sonatina for Oboe and Piano
Norma Wendelburg, Stafford, Kan.
Serenade for Woodwinds
Jack Urbont, New York

MONDAY

*4.30—Informal chamber music concert by students of orchestra department.
Octet in E-flat major repeated from Sunday morning program. Beethoven Sonata in E-major for Violin and Piano .... Bach Elwyn Adams, violin
Jean Advena, piano
Quintet for Piano and Strings
Shostakovich
Marion Bloom and Joan Kleinfeld, violins; Alan Iglitzin, viola; Jean Moore, cello; Gilbert Kalish, piano.

*Open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

With Aaron Copland as moderator, four members of the Tanglewood faculty will discuss at the weekly students' forum "The Problem of Communication of Contemporary Music" at Sedgwick Hall, Lenox, Monday evening at 8.30.

Citation Read As Judd Receives Legion of Honor

Conferring for the French government the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, this morning at the French consulate in Boston, Consul Francois Charles-Roux read the following citation:

"For George E. Judd, manager of the celebrated Boston Symphony Orchestra to which he has been attached since 1915, and to whose deevlopment he has contributed in an important way. He has always displayed a lively interest in French music, which often is featured in the programs of the orchestra, many of whose musicians are French or of French origin. Mr. Judd played an important role in the organization of the triumphal tour the orchestra made last year to France and Europe."

The award was made in the consul's Bastille Day ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. George E. Judd Jr. of New York, who are vacationing at the Judd home in Norwell, attended the presentation.

. . . With his honorary degree from Bates and now the French Legion of Honor, Boston Symphony Manager George Judd is beginning to get the recognition he deserves . . .

TANGLEWOOD
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE-CONCERT HALL
SAT. EVES. AT 8.30 SUN. AFTS. AT 2.30
TONIGHT at 8.30 and Sun. Aft.—MOZART Program
All Reserved Seats Taken—General Admission $2.00
July 25, 26 (Haydn and 20th Century Programs—a few seats at $4 and $5
(General Admission $2, sold on the day of the concert)
SHED CONCERTS: Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
Union 7/17
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATER — Sats. at 8.30, Suns. at 2:30
(All reserved seats taken)—Adm. $2)
Next Week (July 25-26)—Seats at $4, $5
SHED — Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts., July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office — Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
July 19
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE—TODAY at 2:30
MOZART Program — General Admission, $2.
Next Sat., July 25, at 8:30; Sun., July 26, at 2:30. Seats at $4 and $5 (Admission $2)
SHED—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office—
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
7/16 Union
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATER — Sats. at 8.30, Suns. at 2:30
(All reserved seats taken)—Adm. $2)
Next Week (July 25-26)—Seats at $4, $5
SHED — Fri. & Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.
July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office — Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH
July 19
Music Director
THEATRE — TODAY at 2:30
MOZART Program. General admission, $2
Next Saturday, July 25, at 8:30
Sunday, July 26, at 2:30
Seats at $4 and $5 (Admission $2)
SHED—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.
July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office — Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Tanglewood

SCHEDULE FOR THE WEEK

Tonight

8.30—Students' forum, Aaron Copland moderator, Sedgwick Hall, Lenox.

Wednesday

† 8.30—Coolidge concert by Baroque Trio. Theatre.

PM

Friday

* 8.30—Concert by student orchestra, Shed.

Saturday

8.30—Berkshire Festival, all-Mozart concert, Boston Symphony chamber orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, Theatre.

Sunday

AM

*10.00—Chamber music concert, Chamber music hall.

2.30 Berkshire Festival, all-Mozart concert, Charles Munch conducting, Theatre.

* 8.30—Composers' forum, Aaron Copland moderator.

*Open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center Center

†Open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and guests of Mrs. Coolidge.

The two performances at the Berkshire Music Center yesterday drew record audiences for an opening Sunday. The first chamber music concert yesterday morning was attended by 800. Five hundred listened from the outside benches and the lawn, as the chamber music hall seats 300.

The composers' forum last evening, in the same hall, was attended by 450, who heard the works of student composers played by fellow-students.

In the audience yesterday afternoon were Judge Raymond S. Wilkins of Boston, trustee of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and former ambassador from the Argentine Filipe A. Espil of Buenos Aires. Don and Donna Espil were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle Jr. of Great Barrington.

Alexander Hillsdale, conductor of the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra, held auditions Friday afternoon for additional members of hi sorchestra. He attended the student concert Friday night.

The first chamber music program of the series of three to be presented at Tanglewood through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge by the Baroque Trio will include works of Telemann, Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, Handel and Rameau. The concert will be at 8.30 Wednesday evening in the theatre-concert hall.

The artists will be Fernando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute, and Daniel Saidenberg, cello.

The concert will be open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music School, to which the July Wednesday evening programs are a gift, and to invited guests of Mrs. Coolidge.

The 400 students at the Berkshire Music Center have elected the following to the student council:

To represent the orchestra: James Fawcett, Pittsburgh; Bonnie Lake, Cleveland Heights, Ohio; conductors: Alfred Stromberg, Halifax, N.S.; chorus: Susan [illegible], Watertown, Conn. and Philip [illegible]gor, Storrs, Conn.; composers: Barney Childs, Reno, Nev.; [illegible] McCollum of Tuckahoe, N.Y.; opera associates: Abby Beierfield, Louisville, Ky.; study group: David Jones, Highland Park, Mich., and Susanna Classic, Long Island City, N.Y.

100 Hear Records Of Famous Artists At Curtis Hotel

LENOX—Close to 100 music lovers turned out at the music room of the Curtis Hotel yesterday afternoon to listen to some of the 200 original 30 to 40-year-old phonograph records which were recently presented to the Berkshire Athenaeum in Pittsfield by Mrs. Arthur D. Budd of Windsor.

The records were played during a 45-minute concert on the new high fidelity Philco Phonorama, which is currently having its world premiere in Lenox during the 1953 Berkshire Music Festival.

Robert G. Newman, librarian of the Berkshire Athenaeum, explained the [illegible] and the artists heard on the recordings. He also introduced to the audience Col. Arthur D. Budd, husband of the donor of the valuable collection.

Eagle Jul

Baroque Trio T In Coolidge Ser

Fernando Valenti, harpsichordi tomorrow night in first of three Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will July Wedn

Masterpieces of music, long neglected and therefore new to most concertgoers, is the basis of the repertoire of the Baroque Trio, who will be heard at Tanglewood tomorrow evening at 8.30 in the first of three Wednesday night Chamber music programs. The concerts are the gift to the Berkshire Music Center of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Fernando Valenti, harpsichord, Julius Baker, flute and Daniel Saidenberg, cello make up the trio.

Pupil of Iturbi

Fernadno Valenti, harpsichord is a former piano pupil of Jose and Amparo Iturbi, and Ralph Kirkpatrick. He attended Yale, and his study of early Spanish instrumental music won him an invitation to perform with Pablo Casals in the Prades Festival in 1950. Recently he was appointed to the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music, New York, as first harpsichord instructor. He played and taught at the Institute for Humanistic Studies in Aspen, Col., and gave a lecture-recital at Tanglewood some summers ago.

Daniel Saidenberg, a native of Winnipeg, Canada, grew up in New Jersey. From piano he switched to cello, and before the age of 12 was in several concerts. After studying for two years at the Paris Conservatory he joined the Philadelphia Orchestra under Leopold Stokowski and continued with the Juilliard Fellowship he had won at 16. Following receipt of the Naumburg cello award he was briefly with Columbia Broadcasting System, toured a season with chamber music ensembles and was first cellist with the Chicago Symphony under Frederick Stock.

Daniel Saidenberg

In 1953 he formed his own ensemble, the Saidenberg Symphonetta, which toured the Middle West, and appeared as guest conductor with the orchestras of Cincinnati, Illinois, Chicago and Ballet Theatre. In 1946 he was invited to head the Connecticut Symphony Orchestra. His own ensemble, since

Baroque Trio To Open Concerts In Coolidge Series Tomorrow

Fernando Valenti, harpsichordist, who will play at Tanglewood tomorrow night in first of three chamber music concerts that Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will give to Berkshire Music Center July Wednesday nights.

[illegible] of music, long neglected and therefore new to most [illegible] the basis of the [illegible] Baroque Trio, who [illegible] at Tanglewood tomorrow [illegible] at 8:30 in the first of [illegible] Wednesday night Chamber [illegible] programs. The concerts are [illegible] to the Berkshire Music Center of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Fernando Valenti, harpsichord, [illegible] Baker, flute and [illegible] Saidenberg, cello make up the trio.

Pupil of Iturbi

Fernadno Valenti, harpsichord, [illegible] pupil of Jose and [illegible] and Ralph Kirkpatrick. He attended Yale, and his [illegible] early Spanish instrumental [illegible] an invitation to perform with Pablo Casals in the [illegible] Festival in 1950. Recently [illegible] appointed to the faculty of [illegible] School of Music, New [illegible] as first harpsichord instructor. He played and taught at the [illegible] for Humanistic Studies in [illegible] and gave a lecture-recital at Tanglewood some summers [illegible]

[illegible] Saidenberg, a native of [illegible] Canada, grew up in New [illegible] From piano he switched to [illegible] and before the age of 12 was [illegible] concerts. After studying [illegible] years at the Paris Conserv-

Daniel Saidenberg

[illegible] he joined the Philadelphia [illegible] under Leopold Stokowski [illegible] with the Juilliard [illegible] he had won at 16. Following [illegible] of the Naumburg [illegible] he was briefly with [illegible] Broadcasting System, [illegible] season with chamber music [illegible] and was first cellist [illegible] Chicago Symphony under [illegible]

[illegible] he formed his own ensemble, [illegible] Saidenberg Symphonette, [illegible] toured the Middle [illegible] appeared as guest conductor [illegible] the orchestras of Cincinnati, [illegible] Chicago and Baltimore. In 1946 he was invited [illegible] Connecticut Symphony [illegible] His own ensemble, since 1941, has been the Saidenberg Little Symphony, which has made several nation-wide tours.

Julius Baker, the newest member of the trio, substituting for John Wummer, who is in Europe, is solo flautist of the Bach Aria Group and for the past two years of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. He recently resigned from the latter to devote all his time to solo work and chamber music.

Open to Friends

The concert at 8.30 will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and invited guests of Mrs. Coolidge.

The program follows:

Trio Sonata .... Georg Telemann
Four Sonatas (harpsichord solo),
Domenico Scarlatti
Sonata for cello and continuo, from Der Gertreue Musikmeister ...... Telemann
Trio Sonata in G major .. Antonio Lotti
Sonata a Trois in B minor .. J. B. Loeillet
Sonata No. 5 for flute and harpsichord,
Georg Handel
Pieces de Clavecin en Concert,
J. P. Rameau

July 14

This Week At Tanglewood

Eagle Lebanon NY

Wed., at 8:30 p. m.: *Coolidge Concert. The Baroque Trio (Harpsichord, Flute and Cello) in the Theatre.

Fri., at 8:30 p. m. * Dept. 1 Orchestra in the Shed.

Sat., at 8:30 p. m.: Festival Concert. A Mozart program in the Theatre.

Sun., at 10 a. m.: *Chamber Music in the Music Hall.

at 2:30 p. m.: Festival concert. Program of Mozart in the Theatre.

at 8:30 p. m.: *Composers Forum in the Music Hall.

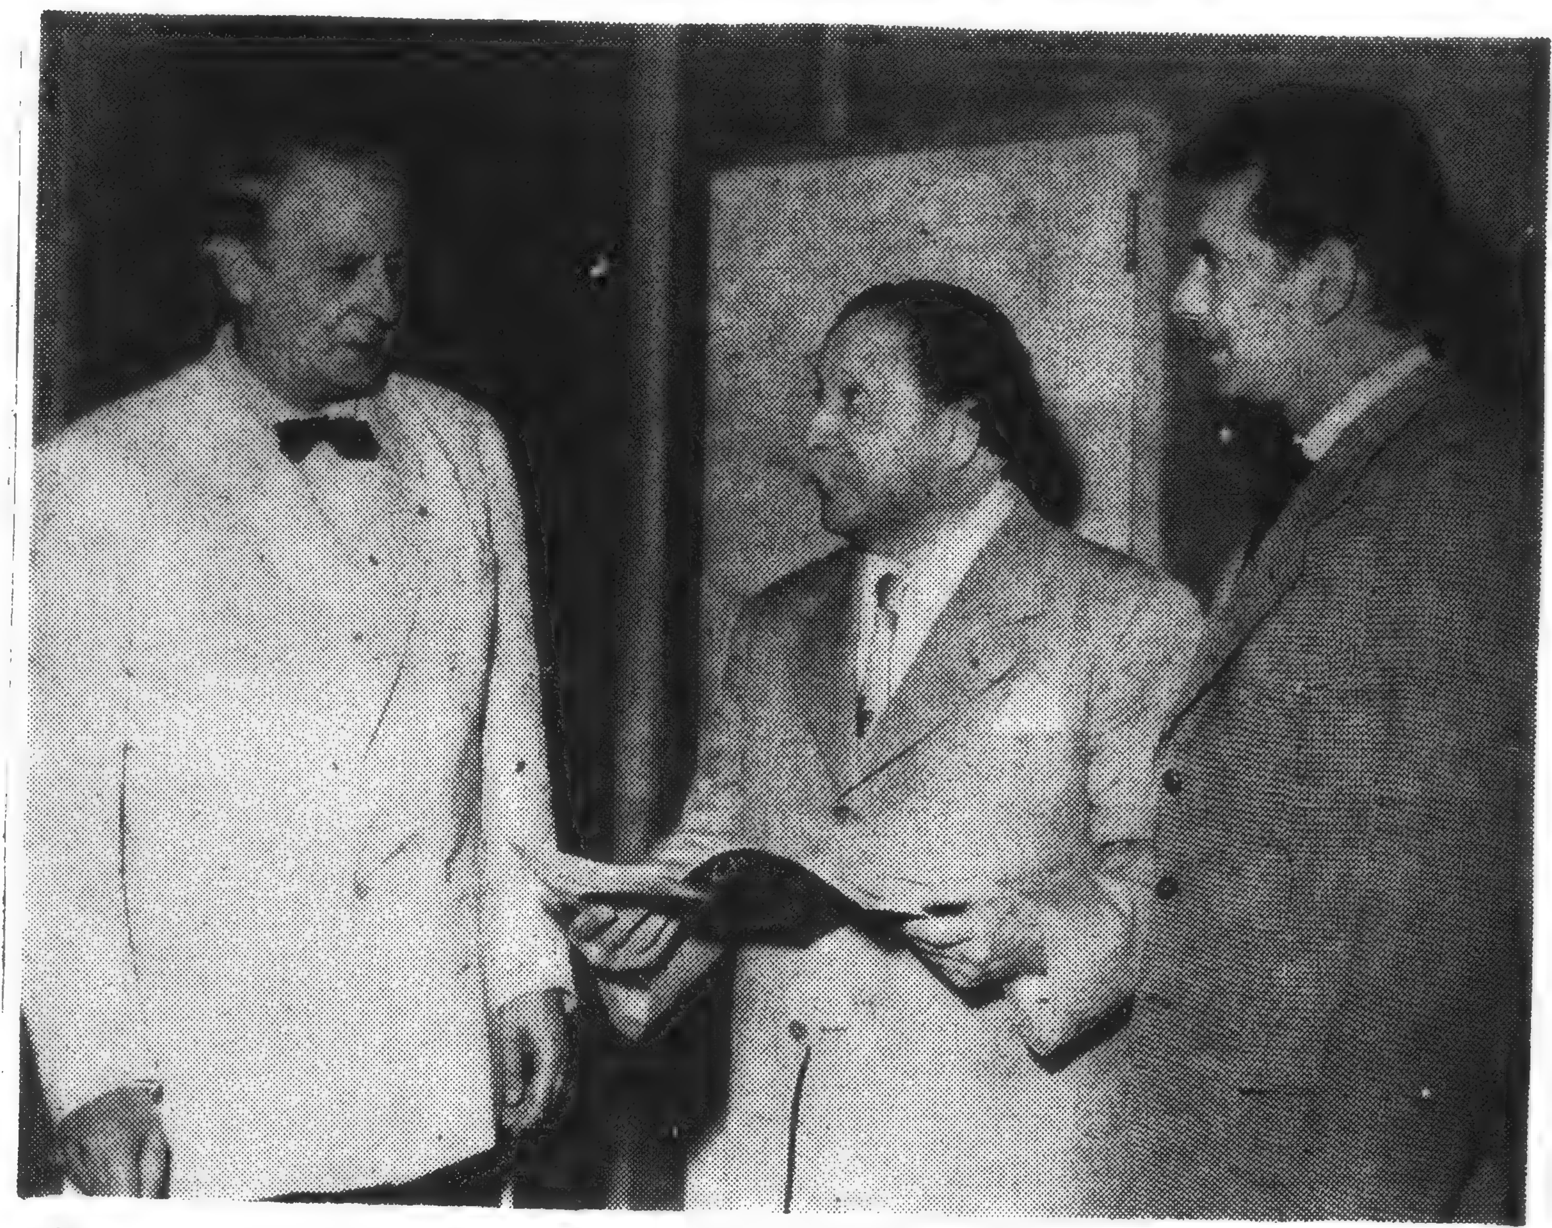
* Events open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

At Berkshire Festival

ISAAC STERN, violinist, is soloist in the all-Mozart programs of Sat. eve. July 18 (8:30 p. m.) and Sun. aft. July 19 (2:30 p. m.), by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, of the Berkshire Festival, in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Mr. Stern performs the Concerto for Violin in G (K.216) on July 18; and with Joseph de Pasquale, viola, the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K.364) on July 19.

STANDARD-TIMES, NEW BEDFORD, MASS., JULY 12, 1953

Tanglewood Conductor, Guests Shown



Shown are Charles Munch, left, music director, Boston Symphony Orchestra, and conductor of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, and the festival's guest conductors, Pierre Monteux, center, who leads the orchestra on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2; and Leonard Bernstein, right, who conducts the concerts of Saturday evenings Aug. 8 and 15.

Eagle July 15 SPORTS PAGE

THOMSON AT TANGLEWOOD: Taking advantage of the all-star game holiday, Bobby Thomson, New York Giants' outfielder, visits Tanglewood. Here he is welcomed by Dr. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center. Left to right, Dr. Munch, Thomson and Mrs. Thomson. The Thomsons came to Lenox with Charles Russell and Dr. Frederick Sterns, both of New York.

'Porgy and Bess' Stars Coming To Tanglewood Parade Aug. 13

Eagle July 18

Tanglewood will be on parade Aug. 13. Soloists for the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center will be William Warfield and Leontyne Price, stars of the Broadway production of "Porgy and Bess," and Isaac Stern, violinist.

Charles Munch, the school's director, will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Beethoven's Concerto in D major in the first half of the evening's program. Leonard Bernstein, head of the school's conducting classes who studied at Tanglewood under Serge Koussevitzky, its founder and first director, will conduct the second half.

Ticket holders will be invited to demonstrations by the school's symphony orchestra, chorus, chamber music group, opera department and Tanglewood study group. Between the late afternoon performances and the evening concert in the Music Shed the audience is invited to picnic on the lawn. Tickets will be available July 17 at the Tanglewood box office and England Brothers. A local committee will be announced.

Two Mozart Concerts Set

Boston Symphony To Play at Tanglewood

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 11—The second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood next Saturday and Sunday will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist.

Mr. Stern will be soloist in the Concerto in G for Violin (K. 216) at 8:30 p. m. Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violinist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, at 2:30 next Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Another feature of the weekend will be the first performance anywhere by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136), with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday afternoon program.

Violinist Ruth Posselt, who was seen at a Music Week concert in New Bedford in May, will give a sonata recital July 22 with Gary Gaffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, Summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony in connection with the Berkshire Festival. Miss Posselt's program will include works by Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

Two all-Bach programs are being presented in the Theater-Concert Hall here this weekend, opening the Berkshire Music Festival.

The final weekend of Theater-Concert Hall performances preceding the regular Festival season will be July 25, with an all-Haydn program, and July 26, featuring works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata, A Parable of Death, conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box-office for all Festival concerts. Programs and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the Berkshire Music Center, will be mailed on request.

Complete programs for next weekend's concerts follow:

Next Saturday — Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136); Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216), soloist Isaac Stern; Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361); Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504), all by Mozart.

Next Sunday — Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364), solosists: Isaac Stern and Joseph De Pasquale; Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525); Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551) all by Mozart.

[196]

Historic, Literary Exhibits Are on View at Atheneum And the Museum, Pittsfield

Herman Melville Memorial Room and the Historical Room Are Open for Public Inspection; Both Showings Well Worth Visiting

By CLAY PERRY

Pittsfield, July 18 Berkshire County's history and Pittsfield's unique literary tradition are being featured this summer by two of its leading public institutions. The Herman Melville Memorial Room and the Historical Room are now open for public inspection, the first in the Berkshire Atheneum, and the latter in the Berkshire Museum. Both are well worth visiting and should attract widespread interest not only among literati and historians but from students and tourists as well as from local residents.

On April 24 the Herman Melville Memorial Room was dedicated in the public library and has become the outstanding memorial to the author of "Moby Dick" and other famous works.

Now Open to Public

On Friday night a private showing of the Historical Room at the Museum was given by the trustees and officials. The room was thrown wide open to the public today and will be open tomorrow and thereafter.

Each of these fine exhibits furnish a study of a unique place that the county and city occupy in the literary and local history world. Between them they offer a magnificet combination of memorials to Melville, Hawthorne, Holmes as the leading literary lights of the Berkshires as well as to such heroes as Ethan Allen, Major John Brown of Revolutionary fame, to Elder John Leland, the great patriot and preacher of Cheshire, and to William Stanley, electrical wizard, and some almost forgotten men and women of other fields such as Daniel Clark of Tyringham, inventor, collector philosopher; Elkanah Watson who founded the first agricultural society in, America, in Pittsfield; Joseph E. A. Smith, Pittsfield's able historian.

The Melville Room was planned and donated largely by Dr. Henry A. Murray, professor of clinical psychology at Harvard. His gifts have been augmented by donations from Melville's grand daughter and three grand-nieces with personal objects from the effects of the great novelist.

"Moby Dick" Desk

The Melville Room on the second floor of the Atheneum contains what is declared to be the greatest collection of personal Melvilleahia in the world. The most priceless possessions in the two exhibits are undoubtedly the handsome desk on which Melville wrote "Moby Dick" and other books and essays while resident at "Arrowhead" on Holmes Road in 1850. The desk is now kept locked behind glass at one end of the library's wonderful display, while in the Museum is Nathaniel Hawthorne's desk on which he wrote "The House of Seven Gables," "Tanglewood Tales" and parts of his "American Notebook."

The Hawthorne desk has been a possession of the Museum for many years and stood in the lobby until it was placed in the basement "Colonial Room" which is a part of the historical display there. This room has been arranged to resemble as exactly as possible, a typical living and dining room of an early Colonial family in Pittsfield or some other Berkshire town, with authentic antique furniture of the Colonial period and some of the household articles that were used daily by the pioneers of New England. It was fashioned largely upon the Childs collection, relics of Dr. Timothy Childs and his descendants who at one time had a handsome, solitary mansion on Jubilee Hill, around which now runs Circular Ave., off Francis and Columbus Aves.

Murray had long collected Melvilleania and decided its proper place was in Pittsfield which was more a home to Melville than any other place. The granddaughter is Mrs. Henry K. Metcalf, who was 10 years old when Melville died. The grand nieces are the Misses Agnes Morewood of Pittsfield, Helen Gansevoort Morewood of New York City; and Margaret T. Morewood of Santa Barbara, Cal.

Numerous Gifts

Shortly after the main exhibit was arranged and dedicated the library was given the fourth largest collection of scrimshaw work in the country by Dr. Willis A. Milham of Williams College, about one third of which is on display under glass on the main floor of the library. The remainder was acquired this week and placed. Other who have given to the memorial are Mrs. Walter B. Binnian of Cohasset, Mrs. Abeel D. Osborne of Edgartown, granddaughters, and Mrs. Russel A. (Cutting) Hibbs of New York City, a former resident and owner of "Arrowhead." Other persons have contributed books and manuscripts, among them first editions, some of privately printed Melville writings which are extremely rare.

The first gift from Dr. Murray was made as a token of what was to come, in 1952, when he presented to the trustees of the Atheneum an oil painting of Mrs. Allan Melville, (Maria Gansevoort) mother of Herman. This hangs on the west wall of the glassed-in north room above Melville's secretary-bookcase. Facing it at the east end of this room is appropriately arranged the famous desk, handsomely restored, with above it an oil painting of Melville, his mother in another costume and on the desk objects that Melville used in his writing.

Facing south, behind the glass partition, is a table that was in the Melville household, and on which are a wooden sea-chest that the author used to keep his manuscripts, a tin bread-box that his wife later used to keep them after his death and his passport that he used in 1856-57 for a trip to England and the Continent. On the back of this passport is the signature of Nathaniel Hawthorne who signed it as consul at Liverpool. There is also a small rosewood sewing table which Mrs. Melville, who was a daughter of Chief Justice Lemuel Shaw of Massachusetts, used.

Interesting Articles

The main room contains a large cabinet filled with objects and with books, including many of those that Melville is known to have studied and some that he wrote. Others are kept in the library vault. Among the more interesting articles in the top of the case is a small Indian arrowhead picked up on the farm and for which Melville named his house, a silver match-box with a compass inset in the cover, which he carried while at sea and is said to have used while he spent months among the cannibals ofthe Maruesas Islands and gathered material for "Typee" and "Omoo" and other books.

One other object is of rare interest, an iron pipe and tomahawk, an Indian symbol of peace and war which was found on the "Arrowhead" farm or at nearby Canoe Meadows where Oliver Wendell Holmes spent several summers.

The principal memento of Dr. Holmes is in the museum's Historical Room where it has been almost ever since the museum was built. It is the famous "One Hoss Shay" which inspired Holmes poem "The Deacon's Masterpiece," but which did not, as the poem has it, "fall to pieces in a single day."

Here, also, is the original wooden pump that was at Little Red House where Hawthorne lived, at Tanglewood, the house itself restored recently and open to visitors to the Berkshire Music Festival each summer, as it is now. And not to neglect the great Elder Leland, there is an oil painting of the divine and nearby the wooden screw of the great cider press in which the famous Cheshire Cheese was pressed to be presented to President Thomas Jefferson in 1801.

"Pittsfield Ware"

But among the proud and priceless articles in the Museum Historical Rooms is a set of "Pittsfield Ware" that was manufactured in England, with pictures of the "Old Elm that stood in the town square for so long and of some of the better buildings in the town surrounding the square as it was a century ago or more.

Historical, also, but of more modern origin, is the famous Stanley transformer, said to be the very first one built by William Stanley, and to make possible the use of alternating current electricity. This was presented to the Museum, Feb. 20, 1953, on the 50th anniversary of the purchase of the Stanley Electric Manufacturing Co. in Pittsfield by the General Electric Co. The Transformer was made in 1885 in Great Barrington and it was given to the Museum by Francis E. Fairman, Jr., vice-president of the transformer and allied products division of General Electric. Beside it and another later model, is some of the most modern electric equipment manufactured in Pittsfield.

The Berkshire Museum, incidentaly, is just 50 years old. It was founded by Zenas Crane in 1903 and is rated as one of the best small museums in the United States. Its art collections are among the finest in the country and its natural history models are considered among the best of their kind. The most famous objects, to some, in the Museum, are of course the sledge that went with Admiral Robert E. Peary to the North Pole and the fur suit worn by Matthew Henson, the only other man to reach the Pole up to that time.

The list of things in the Melville Memorial Rooms is long, and the story of Melville in Pittsfield is longer. He is believed to have first visited Pittsfield as a boy of 14, coming to see his famous uncle, Major Melville, a Revolutionary War hero, and then three years later, spent his first entire summer at "Broadhall" and worked on the farm.

Taught School

He was here again in the fall of 1837 when he taught school at the Sykes District at the foot of Washington Mountain, and according to historian J. E. A. Smith, had to teach some of the bigger boys the science of puglism when they attempted to take over. He boarded around, at one time being the guest of a quaint Yankee farmer who lived halfway up the steep Washington Mountain road from where he got not only idiomatic sayings of the country but magnificent views of the Housatonic Valley and surrounding mountains.

In 1850, with his wife and one child, he came to Pittsfield to live for 13 years, purchased the Brewster farm and "Arrowhead" and settled down to complete the writing of "Moby Dick" which he had just started in New York City. He fell in love with the grand view of Mt. Greylock and its sister summits which he could see at marvelous advantage from his study window and his famous piazza on the north side of "Arrowhead."

Here he farmed as best he could, trying to augment the slender royalties he realized from his books, published in England and the United States. He became acquainted with Hawthorne, and together with Holmes and others, one day they were climbing Monument Mountain when a thunder storm drove them to shelter in a tiny cave on the north side of Squaw Peak, and the three literary men became closer acquainted. (This cave has been identified and is called Hawthorne's Cave. It is believed to have been discovered by Hawthorne).

Melville had written a glowing review of "The Scarlet Letter" before he came to know its author, and it was to Hawtorne that he dedicated "Moby Dick."

Dr. Holmes, one of his nearest neighbors in summer, although friendly and hospitable, did not become so close a friend, but he once hurreid to "Arrowhead" when Melville was ill and doctored him physically and mentally.

Fine Exhibits

And now, in the two fine exhibits at the Atheneum and the Museum, we have memorials to the three most famous authors who lived in Berkshire at the same time. Holmes wrote "Elsie Venner" here, a strange but interesting novel of the local scene, based on a cave on the north side of South Mountain. Melville wrote voluminously of Greylock, October Mountain and other landmarks that he loved and visited. Hawthorne, of course, made Tanglewood famous long before it was a music center, the summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Incidentally, "Arrowhead", now owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hale Holden, has been splendidly restored and modernized by the Holdens at a cost said to be $30,000 "Holmesdale," on the same road, named for Dr. Holmes, has also been put in excellent shape by Zenas Crane Colt who owns it. These and "Broadhall," now the Country Club of Pittsfield, and "Peace Party House," just off City Hall Park, are the most famous and historic old houses in Pittsfield which has permitted the destruction of the "Longfellow House" and the "Bulfinch Chruch" during the past half century.

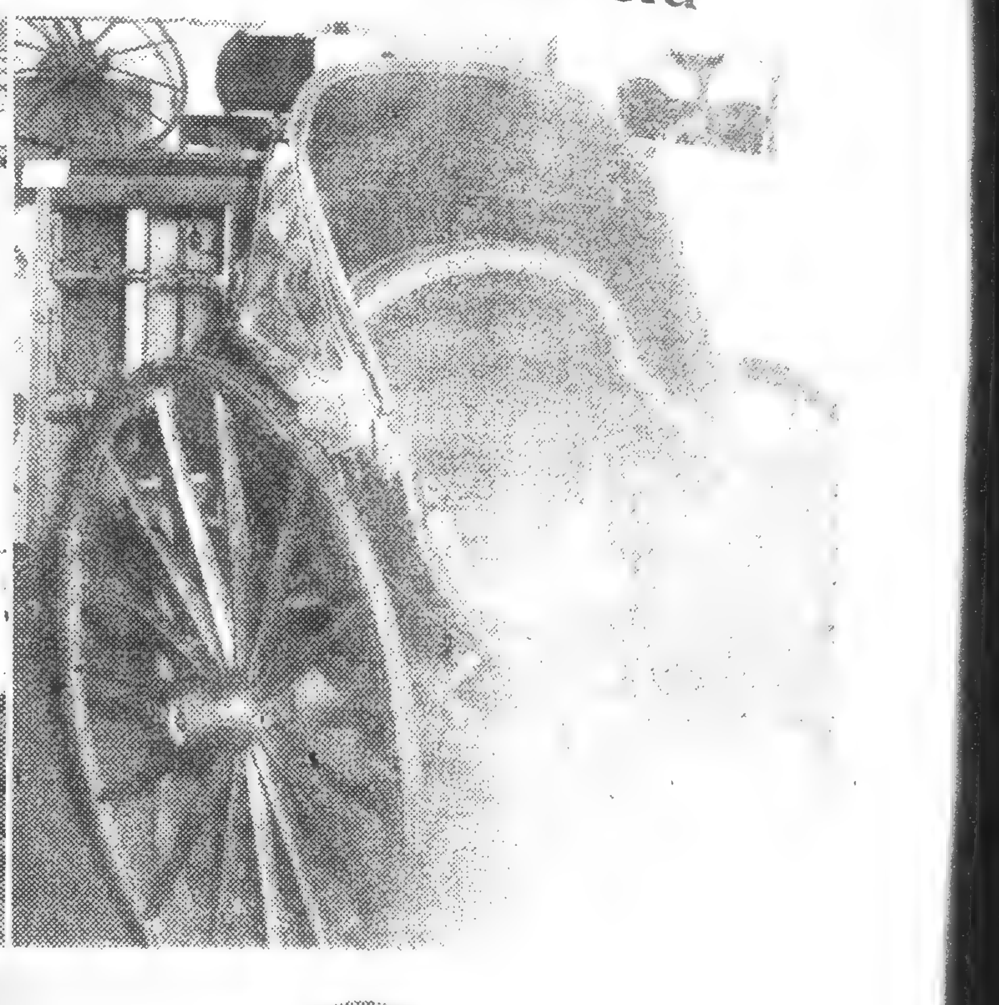
The Private Showing

Mayor Robert T. Capeless and members of the City Council were guests at the private showing of the Museum Historical Rooms where they had excellent opportunity to realize the wealth of the historical material available for the proposed new history of Pittsfield, as well as at the previous attendance at the dedication of the Melville Memorial Rooms, a project authorized in October 1952, but not yet activated as a city-sponsored project. Others who were on the guest list for Friday night were Dr. Edward J. Russell, superintendent of Pittsfield schools; Librarian Robert G. Newman, James H. Lucas, executive vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, and John Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

Mr. William Glenn Boyle of Gill, a student of Melville, has a copy of "Pierre" which was Melville's last work in Pittsfield. He wrote "Billy Budd" after his return to New York a short novel idealizing a sailor whom he had known. Mr. Boyle's study of "Pierre" brings out the fact that Melville used "Broadhall" as the central scene of the story, and wove into it other Berkshire places, such as Balance Rock, an old Pittsfield tavern at the corner of North and West Streets, woodland scenes and other of Nature's manifestations.

"Billy Budd" was an unfinished story, first outlined by Melville under the title of "Baby Budd", and despite its criticized ambiguities, a continued reflection of Melville's pantheistic views of life, it has lately been the basis for a stage play and an opera. The Atheneum has a copy of the opera, which is in Italian, by Salvatore Quisermodo and was published in Milan. Thus even the weakest of his works has served to add to his immortality.

Interesting Exhibits at Pittsfield



Upper picture, at left, shows a part of the collection of antiques of Berkshire, including the original handpump that was at the Little Red House Hawthorne occupied at Tangle-Holmes' poem, while underwood. Picture at right shows the famed "One Hoss Shay" of neath the "shay" may be seen the trundle bed used by Herman Melville. Lower picture shows the desk at which Melville wrote "Moby Dick," the story of the White Whale. This is a scene in the Melville Memorial Room. At top is portrait of Melville made by Asa W. Twitchell about 1848. Left below is a portrait of Mrs. Allan Melville (Maria Ganse-right is Gen Peter Gansevoort, voort), Herman's mother. At Herman's grandfather.

---

more Rep. July 19

One of the featured soloists with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood this afternoon will be Joseph de-Pasquale, first viola. His has been a truly romantic connection with this world famous music center. It was at neighboring Shadowbrook, Jesuit novitiate, that he was married a few years back to the niece of Serge Koussevitzky. They now make their home with Madame Koussevitzky at her nearby summer place. A former member of the Marine Symphony Orchestra, Mr. dePasquale appeared often at the White House to play at state dinners. He has entertained such international figures as Churchill and DeGaulle.

JOSEPH DE PASQUALE

Today he will be featured with Isaac Stern, violinist, as the soloists in Mozart's "Konzertante Sinfonie." Among the melodies the subsidiary [illegible] where the [illegible] seriousness of the [illegible] the same [illegible] light. [illegible] carry [illegible] pizzicato of [illegible] erful [illegible] rity in [illegible] is [illegible] warm [illegible] tion of [illegible] the [illegible] quent [illegible] dePasquale [illegible] plaint of [illegible] revelation [illegible] The viola [illegible] is written [illegible] the instrument [illegible] tuned [illegible] sound [illegible] the violas [illegible]

The [illegible] of [illegible] tinguish [illegible] attend [illegible] traveling [illegible] cally [illegible] conduct [illegible] in the [illegible] given [illegible] tirety of [illegible] symphony [illegible] liet," on [illegible] nie Tour [illegible] and a [illegible] are the [illegible] tor is [illegible] magazine [illegible]

Eagle July 17

BSO Manager To Speak at Kiwanis

George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will speak at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting Wednesday, July 29, at the Sheraton Hotel. His topic will be the Berkshire Symphonic Festival.

Eagle

Stern, de
At Week-

Isaac Stern

TANGLEWOOD — I will play the solo in Mo certo in G major for th
the opening of the sec of early Berkshire Fe certs by the chamber
the Boston Symphony
Charles Munch conduc program will be the first all-Mozart music to be in the Tanglewood thea hall tomorrow night a Sunday afternoon at 2.3

At Sunday afternoon's
Mr. Stern will be the vi and Joseph de Pasquale, ist in Mozart's "Konzer fonie" for violin and vi

Tomorrow's Program

The orchestra will pl first time the Divertim for strings, the opening tomorrow evening's prog Serenade in B flat ma wind instruments and phony in D major ("Pra compose the second ha

The concerto is the th which Mozart wrote for
He composed them in S 1775, presumably as pa duties as konzertmeister court of the archbishop o
The French critic, Georg Foix describes it as "enti
the influence of the Fr music of that time."

The Divertimento is t three which the compose the age of 16. Later in year, 1772, he composed
The three divertimenti

Eagle

Chamber
In Mozart

Joseph dePasquale wi viola solo in the "K Sinfonie" for violin and morrow afternoon in the Mozart program of the e shire Festival in the T theatre. Isaac Stern wil violin soloist with the ch chestra of 35 principal m
the Boston Symphony,
by Charles Munch.

A native of Germantow
dePasquale graduated fr
Institute of Music, Ph
During World War II with the Marine Band phony Orchestra, with wh peared at the White state dinners, including Prime Minister Winston and General Charles DeGa

Appointed first violist Boston orchestra at the
he was one of the youn sicians to occupy that pos major orchestra. With Mr quale and their daughte Alexandria and Elizabeth spends the summer at Ser Koussevitzky estate in L

To Open With Overture

The program will open
Overture to "The Marr Figaro." The popular ope Mozart wrote in Vienna was forbidden by the Em cause of its "immorality."
erpreted as poking fun at g aristocracy.

Except that the "Kon nfonie" was composed rg in the summer of 17
g is known of its circum
his program notes
hn Burk, the orchest am annotator, quotes

Eagle July 17

Stern, de Pasquale Soloists At Week-End Mozart Programs

Isaac Stern

Joseph de Pasquale

TANGLEWOOD — Isaac Stern will play the solo in Mozart's Concerto in G major for the violin at the opening of the second series of early Berkshire Festival concerts by the chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. The program is the first of two of all-Mozart music to be presented at the Tanglewood theatre-concert hall tomorrow night at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

At Sunday afternoon's program, Mr. Stern will be the violin soloist with Joseph de Pasquale, viola soloist, in Mozart's "Konzertante Sinfonie" for violin and viola.

Tomorrow's Program

The orchestra will play for its first time the Divertimento in D, for strings, the opening number of tomorrow evening's program. The Serenade in B-flat major for 13 wind instruments and the Symphony in D major ("Prague") will compose the second half.

The concerto is the third of five which Mozart wrote for the violin. He composed them in Salzburg in 1775 presumably as part of his duties as konzertmeister at the court of the archbishop of Salzburg. The French critic, Georges de Saint-Foix describes it as "entirely under the influence of the French violin music of that time."

The Divertimento is the first of three which the composer wrote at the age of 16. Later in the same year, 1772, he composed six more. The three divertimenti might have been intended for ultimate use as sympohnies, in Milan, for which city Mozart was then writing his opera, "Lucio Silla."

The serenade was written eight years later, and may have been performed at Munich by the Hofkapelle. The four clarinets dominate, with their special coloring.

The "Prague" symphony is named for the city in which it was first performed early in 1787. It was so enthusiastically received that Mozart was obliged to improvise upon the piano for half an hour before the audience would leave.

Started S[illegible]ing Piano

Mr. Stern, who has played at Tanglewood before, and has often appeared with the Boston orchestra, was born in Krin[illegible]miesz, Russia, July 21, 1920. He was taken by his parents to San Francisco as an infant. Studying piano at the age of six, he changed to violin two years later: Naoum Blinder, concertmaster of the San Francisco orchestra, with whom he played at the age of 11, was his teacher.

A major part of his study was with Louis Persinger, who for several summers lived and played on South Mountain. Stern made his New York debut in 1937. After active service in the Pacific area with the USO he has toured as a concert artist in many parts of the world.

No seats remain for the Mozart concerts, but admission will be sold for listening from the lawn. In case of rain the orchestra will play in the Music Shed. Picnic parties are invited before all concerts.

Eagle July 18

Chamber Orchestra of BSO In Mozart Program Tomorrow

Joseph dePasquale will play the viola solo in the "Konzertante Sinfonie" for violin and viola tomorrow afternoon in the second all-Mozart program of the early Berkshire Festival in the Tanglewood Theatre. Isaac Stern will be the violin soloist with the chamber orchestra of 35 principal members of the Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch.

A native of Germantown, Pa., Mr. dePasquale graduated from Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia. During World War II he played with the Marine Band and Symphony Orchestra, with whom he appeared at the White House at state dinners, including those for Prime Minister Winston Churchill and General Charles DeGaulle.

Appointed first violist with the Boston orchestra at the age of 27, he was one of the youngest musicians to occupy that position in a major orchestra. With Mrs. dePasquale and their daughters, Maria Alexandra and Elizabeth Ann, he spends the summer at Seranak, the Koussevitzky estate in Lenox.

To Open With Overture

The program will open with the Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro." The popular opera, which Mozart wrote in Vienna in 1786, was forbidden by the Emperor because of its "immorality." It was interpreted as poking fun at the ruling aristocracy.

Except that the "Konzertante Sinfonie" was composed in Salzburg in the summer of 1779, nothing is known of its circumstances. In the program notes for tomorrow, John Burk, the orchestra's program annotator, quotes the late musicologist, Alfred Einstein, as calling it "Mozart's crowning achievement in the field of the violin concerto." It followed five concertos for violin and orchestra.

"Eine Kleine Nachmusik," Serenade for String Orchestra, with which Mr. Munch will open the second half of the program, is dated August 1787 and probably was first performed in Vienna.

The "Jupiter" Symphony in C major will conclude the program. A classical work which originally bore for identification only a cold number, it was named "Jupiter" more than a century ago, perhaps by a pianist and music teacher named J. B. Cramer.

All seats for this week-end's pair of concerts have been sold for several weeks. Admission for listening from the lawn will be on sale at the box office two hours before the opening. As for all Festival events, picnic parties are invited. Cafeteria service is available.

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
Herald Trib July 19
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Dir.
THEATRE—TODAY at 2:30
MOZART Program
General Admission, $2

Next Sat., July 25, at 8:30, Sun., July 26, at 2:30. Seats at $4 and $5 (Admission $2)
SHED — Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office—Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Tanglewood

TONIGHT

8.30—Concert by student orchestra of Berkshire Music Center. Music Shed Symphony No. 5 .... Beethoven
Leonard Bernstein, conductor.
Prelude to Afternoon of a Faun, Debussy
Charles Munch, conductor.
Alborada del Gracioso .. .. Ravel
Robert Mandell, conductor.
Excerpts from the dramatic legend. The Damnation of Faust .... Berlioz
Minuet of the Will-o'-the-Wisps.
Dance of the Sylphs.
Hungarian March.
Samuel Krachmalnick, conductor.

TOMORROW AFTERNOON

4.00—Concert of German and Italian Baroque. Music by Tanglewood Study Group. Barn.

Both programs are open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school. Membership is available at Tanglewood office.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 13 1953

Berkshire Festival Opens: 7,200 at 2 Bach Concerts

By Arthur Berger

LENOX, Mass., July 12.—The Berkshire Festival season got under way here at Tanglewood this week end with two Bach concerts in the theater concert hall by a chamber orchestra drawn from the Boston Symphony, a chorus drawn from the Berkshire Music Center and a number of fine soloists. Nourished by the beautiful setting in which the festival concerts take place and the fine music that is offered here, public interest in them steadily grows, and the combined attendance for the concert of last night and one this afternoon exceeded last year's by 800.

When one considers the austerity and uniform quality of a list made up of five "Brandenburg" concertos, last night's attendance of 4,200 seems quite remarkable. But an appreciative and attentive audience it was, indeed. As in previous years, the attendance for the second concert was somewhat smaller. Of today's 3,000 listeners, some 1200 listened from within the theater while others settled at various spots on the lawns outside, where they could take in the sunshine of this fine day or sit under a tree, and at the same time enjoy the cheerfulness of a program appropriate for just such an afternoon.

Cantata of Special Interest

The major work today was, in fact, quite frankly written in the spirit of rejoicing. It was the fine cantata, No. 28, "Gottlob, nun geht das jahre zu ende," written for the Sunday following Christmas in the church calendar. Aside from the mastery of the music itself, it offered the special interest of being the only work this week end without the stamp of thoroughgoing familiarity, since it was not from the perenial, standardized list from which all the other works were drawn. Charles Munch for this one work relinquished the baton to Hugh Ross, conductor of the chorus of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Ross gave a straightforward reading, obviously deferring to the vocal soloists, for it was upon them that the major responsibility devolved. All of them, it is gratifying to be able to report, rose admirably to the occasion.

It was one of the soloists in the cantata, as a matter of fact, to whom your reporter is indebted for one of the week end's most rewarding experiences. I refer to Sara Mae Endich, the only one of the four singers whose achievements as a performer were new to me. Miss Endich is a soprano with a very bright future, for she is a young lady endowed with a voice of truly beautiful and rich texture.

Meets Challenge Nobly

Miss Endich, a student at the Berkshire Music Center, met nobly a challenge that would intimidate many a more experienced singer. For it fell to her to open the program, and to do so with an intricately spun aria. This was, moreover, the extent of Miss Endrich's contribution to the afternoon. But with this one aria, and without the benefits of a warming-up period, she left an impression that was still vivid at the end when the program had run its course with Bach's suits in B minor and D major, under Mr. Munch's direction.

Sara Mae Endich, soprano, who appeared as soloist in Bach's Cantata No. 28 with the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival yesterday.

The other singers were Betty Allen, John McCollum and MacMorgan, and it was Mr. McCollum's pure tenor voice that made the greatest impression. A major musical experience of the week end was the thoroughly distinguished, inspired and controlled piano-playing of Lukas Foss last night as one of the soloists in the Fifth "Brandenburg" Concerto. One must look very far indeed for execution of comparable caliber. Doriot Anthony played her flute solos with charm, and while the orchestral performance was often lacking in finish, there was much to redeem the occasion.

PAGE SIX

Legion of Honor For George Judd

The French Government conferred the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon George E. Judd, Manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in Bastille Day ceremonies at the French Consulate yesterday. The award was presented by the French consul in Boston, M. Francois Charles-Roux.

The citation reads: "For George E. Judd, manager of the celebrated Boston Symphony Orchestra to which he has been attached since 1915, and to whose development he has contributed in an important way. He has always displayed a lively interest in French music, which often is featured in the programs of the orchestra, many of whose musicians are French or of French origin. Mr. Judd played an important role in the organization of the triumphal tour the orchestra made last year to France and Europe."

N.Y. SZ u H

Bachkonzert auf dem Berkshire Musikfest

(Sonderbericht für die "New Yorker Staats-Zeitung und Herold")

Von FRED LOW

LENOX, Mass. — Charles Munch dirigierte fünf "Brandenburgische" Konzerte von Johann Sebastian Bach zur Eröffnung des Berkshire Musikfestes in Tanglewood. Trotz der Einseitigkeit des Programmes hatten sich mehr als 4000 Personen zu dem Konzert eingefunden und die Begeisterung der Bach-Enthusiasten kannte keine Grenzen. Auch das Sonntagnachmittags-Konzert, das etwas mehr Abwechslung brachte, hatte immerhin 3000 Hörer angelockt und Hugh Ross als Leiter der Kantate "Gottlob nun geht das Jahr zu Ende" erzielte mit der feinnuancierten und inspirierten Wiedergabe viel Erfolg. Sara Mae Endich war die Sopransolistin und ließ im Vortrag ihrer Arien sorgfältige Schulung und grundmusikalische Interpretation erkennen.

Das Bemerkenswerte an der Eröffnung der Musikfeste in Tanglewood bleibt aber nach wie vor die Atmosphäre, die Begeisterung aller jener, die auf dem Rasen vor dem Theater schon lange vor Beginn des Konzertes ihre Plätze zurechtmachten, Die Landschaft ist es, die dieses Festgelände zu einem der schönsten Amerikas macht und Tanglewood zu einem amerikanischen Salzburg gestalten könnte, wenn in der Programmwahl und in der Abwechslung der vorgetragenen Werke etwas mehr geboten werden würde.

Charles Munch ist ein ausgezeichneter Dirigent, das Boston Symphonie Orchester zählt zu den besten Ensembles Amerikas, man möchte sogar fast behaupten, der Welt, aber ein Festprogramm einer großen Musikveranstaltung sollte dennoch abwechslungsreicher sein und sich nicht auf einige wenige Komponisten beschränken. Daran ändert auch die Tatsache nichts, daß im späteren Verlauf des Festes die großen Konzerte in der Freilufthalle diese Abwechslung bieten.

Wie immer war die Organisation erstklassig, auch das Wetter hatte sich ganz festspielmäßig eingestellt und der See im Hintergrunde, die grünen Hügel und der samtartige Rasen gaben dem Ganzen den richtigen Rahmen.

Die mitwirkenden Solisten in den Bach-Konzerten waren Doriot Anthony (Flöte), Harold Gomberg (Oboe), Roger Voisin (Trompete) und Richard Burgin (Geige), ferner spielten die einzelnen Soli: Lukas Foss (Klavier); die Chöre der Studenten des Berkshire Music Center und die Gesangsolisten, Betty Allen (Alt), John McCollum (Tenor) und MacMorgan (Baß) ergänzten das Ensemble.

JEWISH DAILY FORWARD
260 Tremont Street
Boston 16, Mass.
94

July 15

באָסטאָן סימפאָני אָרקעסטער אין בוירקשיר פעסטיוואַל אין טענגלעוואָד

לעצטען שבת, דעם 11טען דזשולאי האט זיך ערעפענט דער 16טער יערליכער בוירקשיר פעסטיוועל קאָנצערט אין טענגלעוואוד, מאַס.

זעהר א רייכע פראגראם ווערט צוגעגרייט פאר די קומענדע קאָנצערטען.

ליאָן מאַרשאַל, סאָפּראַנאָ און וויליאם ווארפיעלד, באַריטאָן, מיט טשארלס מאנטע' אלס קאנדוקטאר. פרייטאג אָווענט, דעם 7טען אויגוסט וועט לעאָנארד בערנשטיין זיין דער גאַסט קאנדוקטאר.

Eagle July 17
Kiwanis

d, manager of the ny Orchestra, will vanis Club luncheon day, July 29, at the
His topic will be Symphonic Festival.

unforgettable, wer the deep rings and at in a ray of s and oboes against the gs. The pow-endo is a ra-Mozart. There richness and ate conversasts, rising in level of elo-
nswer of Mr.
the muffled violin is a pest feeling.
. del'asquale means that ended to be
, and it will clearer than ti.

vood, cousin
II, is a dis-planning to re Festival, ondon espe-
arles Munch n Symphony rmance ever od in its en-
' dramatic ro and Juugust 7. Jen-la Moscona
e announced he royal visi-f the British
."

E. H. T.

[197]

Eagle July 17

Stern, de Pasquale Soloists At Week-End Mozart Programs

Isaac Stern

Joseph de Pasquale

TANGLEWOOD — Isaac Stern will play the solo in Mozart's Concerto in G major for the violin at the opening of the second series of early Berkshire Festival concerts by the chamber section of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. The program will be the first of two of all-Mozart music to be presented in the Tanglewood theatre-concert hall tomorrow night at 8.30 and Sunday afternoon at 2.30.

At Sunday afternoon's program, Mr. Stern will be the violin soloist and Joseph de Pasquale, viola soloist in Mozart's "Konzertante Sinfonie" for violin and viola.

Tomorrow's Program

The orchestra will play for its first time the Divertimento in D, for strings, the opening [illegible] of tomorrow evening's program. The Serenade in B-flat major for 13 wind instruments and the Symphony in D major ("Prague") will compose the second half.

The concerto is the third of five which Mozart wrote for the violin. He composed them in Salzburg in 1775, presumably as part of his duties as konzertmeister at the court of the archbishop of Salzburg. The French critic, Georges de Saint-Foix describes it as "entirely under the influence of the French violin music of that time."

The Divertimento is the first of three which the composer wrote at the age of 16. Later in the same year, 1772, he composed six more. The three divertimenti might have been intended for ultimate use as sympohnies, in Milan, for which city Mozart was then writing his opera, "Lucio Silla."

The serenade was written eight years later, and may have been performed at Munich by the Hofkapelle. The four clarinets dominate, with their special coloring.

The "Prague" symphony is named for the city in which it was first performed early in 1787. It was so enthusiastically received that Mozart was obliged to improvise upon the piano for half an hour before the audience would leave.

Started Studying Piano

Mr. Stern, who has played at Tanglewood before, and has often appeared with the Boston orchestra, was born in Kriminiesz, Russia, July 21, 1920. He was taken by his parents to San Francisco as an infant. Studying piano at the age of six, he changed to violin two years later. Naoum Blinder, concertmaster of the San Francisco orchestra, with whom he played at the age of 11, was his teacher.

A major part of his study was with Louis Persinger, who for several summers lived and played on South Mountain. Stern made his New York debut in 1937. After active service in the Pacific area with the USO he has toured as a concert artist in many parts of the world.

No seats remain for the Mozart concerts, but admission will be sold for listening from the lawn. In case of rain the orchestra will play in the Music Shed. Picnic parties are invited before all concerts.

Tanglewood

TONIGHT

8.30—Concert by student orchestra of Berkshire Music Center. Music Shed. Symphony No. 8 .... Beethoven

Leonard Bernstein, conductor.

Prelude to Afternoon of a Faun, Debussy

Charles Munch, conductor.

Alborada del Gracioso .... Ravel

Robert Mandell, conductor.

Excerpts from the dramatic legend. The Damnation of Faust .... Berlioz

Minuet of the Will-o'-the-Wisps.
Dance of the Sylphs.
Hungarian March.

Samuel Krachmalnick, conductor.

TOMORROW AFTERNOON

4.00—Concert of German and Italian Baroque. Music by Tanglewood Study Group. Barn.

Both programs are open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help support the school. Membership is available at Tanglewood office.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 13 1953

Berkshire Festival Opens: 7,200 at 2 Bach Concerts

By Arthur Berger

LENOX, Mass., July 12.—The Berkshire Festival season got under way here at Tanglewood this week end with two Bach concerts in the theater concert hall by a chamber orchestra drawn from the Boston Symphony, a chorus drawn from the Berkshire Music Center and a number of fine soloists. Nourished by the beautiful setting in which the festival concerts take place and the fine music that is offered here, public interest in them steadily grows, and the combined attendance for the concert of last night and one this afternoon exceeded last year's by 800.

When one considers the austerity and uniform quality of a list made up of five "Brandenburg" concertos, last night's attendance of 4,200 seems quite remarkable. But an appreciative and attentive audience it was, indeed. As in previous years, the attendance for the second concert was somewhat smaller. Of today's 3,000 listeners, some 1200 listened from within the theater while others settled at various spots on the lawns outside, where they could take in the sunshine of this fine day or sit under a tree, and at the same time enjoy the cheerfulness of a program appropriate for just such an afternoon.

Cantata of Special Interest

The major work today was, in fact, quite frankly written in the spirit of rejoicing. It was the fine cantata, No. 28, "Gottlob, nun geht das jahre zu ende," written for the Sunday following Christmas in the church calendar. Aside from the mastery of the music itself, it offered the special interest of being the only work this week end without the stamp of thoroughgoing familiarity, since it was not from the perenial, standardized list from which all the other works were drawn. Charles Munch for this one work relinquished the baton to Hugh Ross, conductor of the chorus of the Berkshire Music Center. Mr. Ross gave a straightforward reading, obviously deferring to the vocal soloists, for it was upon them that the major responsibility devolved. All of them, it is gratifying to be able to report, rose admirably to the occasion.

It was one of the soloists in the cantata, as a matter of fact, to whom your reporter is indebted for one of the week end's most rewarding experiences. I refer to Sara Mae Endich, the only one of the four singers whose achievements as a performer were new to me. Miss Endich is a soprano with a very bright future, for she is a young lady endowed with a voice of truly beautiful and rich texture.

Meets Challenge Nobly

Miss Endich, a student at the Berkshire Music Center, met nobly a challenge that would intimidate many a more experienced singer. For it fell to her to open the program, and to do so with an intricately spun aria. This was, moreover, the extent of Miss Endrich's contribution to the afternoon. But with this one aria, and without the benefits of a warming-up period, she left an impression that was still vivid at the end when the program had run its course with Bach's suits in B minor and D major, under Mr. Munch's direction.

Sara Mae Endich, soprano, who appeared as soloist in Bach's Cantata No. 28 with the Boston Symphony at the Berkshire Festival yesterday.

The other singers were Betty Allen, John McCollum and MacMorgan, and it was Mr. McCollum's pure tenor voice that made the greatest impression. A major musical experience of the week end was the thoroughly distinguished, inspired and controlled piano-playing of Lukas Foss last night as one of the soloists in the Fifth "Brandenburg" Concerto. One must look very far indeed for execution of comparable caliber. Doriot Anthony played her flute solos with charm, and while the orchestral performance was often lacking in finish, there was much to redeem the occasion.

Boston Herald — July 15

PAGE SIX

Legion of Honor For George Judd

The French Government conferred the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon George E. Judd, Manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in Bastille Day ceremonies at the French Consulate yesterday. The award was presented by the French consul in Boston, M. Francois Charles-Roux.

The citation reads: "For George E. Judd, manager of the celebrated Boston Symphony Orchestra to which he has been attached since 1915, and to whose development he has contributed in an important way. He has always displayed a lively interest in French music, which often is featured in the programs of the orchestra, many of whose musicians are French or of French origin. Mr. Judd played an important role in the organization of the triumphal tour the orchestra made last year to France and Europe."

N.Y. SZuH July 14

Bachkonzert auf dem Berkshire Musikfest

(Sonderbericht für die "New Yorker Staats-Zeitung und Herold")

Von FRED LOW

LENOX, Mass. — Charles Munch dirigierte fünf "Brandenburgische" Konzerte von Johann Sebastian Bach zur Eröffnung des Berkshire Musikfestes in Tanglewood. Trotz der Einseitigkeit des Programmes hatten sich mehr als 4000 Personen zu dem Konzert eingefunden und die Begeisterung der Bach-Enthusiasten kannte keine Grenzen. Auch das Sonntagnachmittags-Konzert, das etwas mehr Abwechslung brachte, hatte immerhin 3000 Hörer angelockt und Hugh Ross als Leiter der Kantate "Gottlob nun geht das Jahr zu Ende" erzielte mit der feinnuancierten und inspirierten Wiedergabe viel Erfolg. Sara Mae Endich war die Sopransolistin und ließ im Vortrag ihrer Arien sorgfältige Schulung und grundmusikalische Interpretation erkennen.

Das Bemerkenswerte an der Eröffnung der Musikfeste in Tanglewood bleibt aber nach wie vor die Atmosphäre, die Begeisterung aller jener, die auf dem Rasen vor dem Theater schon lange vor Beginn des Konzertes ihre Plätze zurechtmachten. Die Landschaft ist es, die dieses Festgelände zu einem der schönsten Amerikas macht und Tanglewood zu einem amerikanischen Salzburg gestalten könnte, wenn in der Programmwahl und in der Abwechslung der vorgetragenen Werke etwas mehr geboten werden würde.

Charles Munch ist ein ausgezeichneter Dirigent, das Boston Symphonie Orchester zählt zu den besten Ensembles Amerikas, man möchte sogar fast behaupten, der Welt, aber ein Festprogramm einer großen Musikveranstaltung sollte dennoch abwechslungsreicher sein und sich nicht auf einige wenige Komponisten beschränken. Daran ändert auch die Tatsache nichts, daß im späteren Verlauf des Festes die großen Konzerte in der Freilufthalle diese Abwechslung bieten.

Wie immer war die Organisation erstklassig, auch das Wetter hätte sich ganz festspielmäßig eingestellt und der See im Hintergrunde, die grünen Hügel und der samtartige Rasen gaben dem Ganzen den richtigen Rahmen.

Die mitwirkenden Solisten in den Bach-Konzerten waren Doriot Anthony (Flöte), Harold Gomberg (Oboe), Roger Voisin (Trompete) und Richard Burgin (Geige), ferner spielten die einzelnen Soli: Lukas Foss (Klavier); die Chöre der Studenten des Berkshire Music Center und die Gesangsolisten, Betty Allen (Alt), John McCollum (Tenor) und MacMorgan (Baß) ergänzten das Ensemble.

Eagle July 18

Chamber Orchestra of BSO In Mozart Program Tomorrow

Joseph dePasquale will play the viola solo in the "Konzertante Sinfonie" for violin and viola tomorrow afternoon in the second all-Mozart program of the early Berkshire Festival in the Tanglewood theatre. Isaac Stern will be the violin soloist with the chamber orchestra of 35 principal members of the Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch.

A native of Germantown, Pa., Mr. dePasquale graduated from Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia. During World War II he played with the Marine Band and Symphony Orchestra, with whom he appeared at the White House at state dinners, including those for Prime Minister Winston Churchill and General Charles DeGaulle.

Appointed first violist with the Boston orchestra at the age of 27, he was one of the youngest musicians to occupy that position in a major orchestra. With Mrs. dePasquale and their daughters, Maria Alexandria and Elizabeth Ann, he spends the summer at Seranak, the Koussevitzky estate in Lenox.

To Open With Overture

The program will open with the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro." The popular opera, which Mozart wrote in Vienna in 1786, was forbidden by the Emperor because of its "immorality." It was interpreted as poking fun at the ruling aristocracy.

Except that the "Konzertante Sinfonie" was composed in Salzburg in the summer of 1779, nothing is known of its circumstances. The program notes for tomorrow by John Burk, the orchestra's program annotator, quotes the late musicologist, Alfred Einstein, as calling it "Mozart's crowning achievement in the field of the violin concerto." It followed five concertos for violin and orchestra.

"Eine Kleine Nachmusik," Serenade for String Orchestra, with which Mr. Munch will open the second half of the program, is dated August 1787 and probably was first performed in Vienna.

The "Jupiter" Symphony in C major will conclude the program. A classical work which originally bore for identification only a cold number, it was named "Jupiter" more than a century ago, perhaps by a pianist and music teacher named J. B. Cramer.

All seats for this week-end's pair of concerts have been sold for several weeks. Admission for listening from the lawn will be on sale at the box office two hours before the opening. As for all Festival events, picnic parties are invited. Cafeteria service is available.

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
New Herald Tribune July 19
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Dir.
THEATRE—TODAY at 2:30
MOZART Program
General Admission, $2
Next Sat., July 25, at 8:30, Sun., July 26, at 2:30. Seats at $4 and $5 (Admission $2)
SHED — Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts. July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office—Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

JEWISH DAILY FORWARD
260 Tremont Street
Boston 16, Mass.
94

July 15

באסטאן סימפאני ארקעסטער אין בוירקשיר פעסטיוואל אין טענגלוואוד

לעצטען שבת, דעם 11טען דושולאי האט זיך ערעפענט דער 16טער יערליכער בוירקשיר פעסטיוועל קאנצערט אין טענגלוואוד, מאסס.

זעהר א רייכע פראגראם ווערט צוגעגרייט פאר די קומענדע קאנצערטען.

לואיז מארשאל, סאפראנא און וויליאם ווארפיעלד, באריטאן, מיט טשארלס מאנטע׳ אלס קאנדוקטאר. פרייטאג אווענט, דעם 7טען אויגוסט וועט לענארד בערנשטיין זיין דער גאסט קאנדוקטאר.

[198]

Eagle 7/17

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY Tel. 561-M

Town Residents, Resort Owner Clash Over Festival Problems

Theatre Permit Questioned—Objection Raised to Advertising Vehicle—Bruno Aaron Defends Disturbances in Summer

LENOX—Lenox as a residential town versus Lenox as a summer resort was the general subject of discussion at a meeting last night in the Town Hall.

Specifically, the discussion dealt with inquires and complaints from neighbors of the new Festival Theatre on Walker Street and a complaint of Tanglewood traffic from a man who said he represented himself and his neighbors on West Street.

Present were about 15 townspeople, the Zoning Board of Appeals and Charles G. Stanley and David H. Mackey of the Board of Selectmen who arranged the meeting at the request of townspeople. R. Harry Barnes, the third selectman, is ill.

Joseph E. LaPointe of Walker Street began the discussion by asking how the permit for the theatre was issued without neighbors knowing about it.

Dixon Quotes Bylaw

James Dixon, chairman of the Zoning Board, replied that the theatre is on the property of Festival House, spot zoned in a residential area as an inn. Under Section II of the zoning bylaws, he explained. Article 8 stated that "accessory use (will be permited) on the same lot with and customarily incident to any of the above permitted uses not detrimental to a residential neighborhood. The term accessory use shall not include":

The article lists four disapproved uses, but does not name a theatre as one of them.

On this basis, Mr. Dixon explained, when he received an inquiry from the Board of Selectmen last May asking what should be done about a request for a theatre permit on Festival House property, he concluded that the Zoning Board had no say in the matter. The other two members of the Zoning Board were not consulted, Mr. Dixon admitted.

Asked if he didn't think the theatre was detrimental to a residential neighborhood, Mr. Dixon replied that he had no reason to think so.

Stanley Suggests Petition

Mrs. Stanley, chairman of the Selectmen, told the townspeople that if they wish to get up a petition declaring the theatre a detriment or nuisance to the neighborhood, the board would "see what the next step is."

Mrs. LaPointe stated that an automobile decorated with signs and parked on Walker Street was the sort of thing neighbors were objecting to. She said the car used to be parked on the street near the theatre at performonce time, but now is driven around town instead.

Louis J. Belair, also of Walker Street, complained that as a result of the theatre and its cast, there are disturbances in the neighborhood sometimes almost until 3 AM.

In defense of the theatre, Bruno Aaron, manager of Festival House, stated that the only way to solve the problem of disturbances during the summer is to bar outsiders from Lenox. The summer guest business, he pointed out, is bound to cause some disturbance to the town's routine life. The only alternative is for no place to take in guests, and to let many of the former estates kept in the tax-paying bracket by the summer guest business slip into the non-tax-paying bracket of school and church property.

Trying To Be "An Asset"

"We're trying to be an asset to the community," Mr. Aaron said. "We're anxious to eliminate any nuisances and prevent unpleasantness."

As an example, he cited the removal of the sign-painted car from Walker Street as soon as the complaint was received.

On the general subject of summer business, Arthur Martin said that if Lenox keeps on the way it is going, in another 5 to 10 years, "it will be a good town to get out of." He said a small group of tradesmen push the summer resort idea, though 90 per cent of the people "just want to live here." The latter, he said, should be given consideration because they will be around a lot longer "than the get-rich-quick crowd."

Robert S. Hibbard of the zoning board stated that as long as the Berkshire Festival is in town, there will be inconvenience. "It's here," he said, "and you'll have to live with it."

He said he thought Lenox should be preserved for development as a residential area.

Complaints About Speeders

Concerning the festival, Vernon R. Childress said that a speeding motorist near his home on West Street came close to killing his daughter recently and has prompted him to object to West Street Tanglewood traffic.

Last year, he said, the two lanes of traffic both going the same way before and after the concerts isolated all who live between the monument and Tanglewood. In case of fire or other emergency, he explained, no one would be able to get in or out. He asked the board if anything could be done to reroute some of this traffic on Hawthorne Street or by some other means keep at least one lane open on West Street. He also asked for speed limit signs on West Street.

The Selectmen replied West Street is a state road and that therefore the state sets up the traffic regulations there. Previous selectmen have tried to get something done about the situation, it was explained, but without result. Unless a speed limit sign is already on West Street, one cannot be installed until it has been approved by the state attorney general and advertised in the newspapers.

In 13, by
in Hous
at 7 petiti licens at 7 keepi mabl
July

Eagle 7/17

BREAKS PRECEDENT: After Doriot Anthony completed her flu in B minor for flute and strings at Sunday afternoon's Festival concert, ductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, asked her to repeat the final wood audience.

Eagle July 16

COUNTY STUDENTS: Among the Berkshire County students enrolled this summer at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, are Miss Eileen Dusio of 465 Dalton Avenue, Pittsfield, center, and George Membrino, 129 Castle Street, Great Barrington, at right. They are with their teacher, composer-pianist Lukas Foss.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 12 1953

Start Tours to Tanglewood

One-day excursions to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood will be operated on six successive Sundays, starting today, by the New Haven Railroad. The $6.95 package price per person covers general admission to the concert, all taxes and all transportation. Departure from Grand Central Terminal is at 8:20 A. M., and the train pulls into Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses take passengers to the music shed. Buses return to Pittsfield after the concert in time for passengers to have dinner before boarding the 7:30 P. M. train, which arrives in New York at 11:30 P. M. Tickets must be purchased in advance at the New Haven's ticket offices at Grand Central.

Sunday News NY. July 12

Start Tours to Tanglewood

One-day excursions to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood will be operated on six successive Sundays, starting today, by the New Haven Railroad. The $6.95 package price per person covers general admission to the concert, all taxes and all transportation. Departure from Grand Central Terminal is at 8:20 A. M., and the train pulls into Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses take passengers to the music shed. Buses return to Pittsfield after the concert in time for passengers to have dinner before boarding the 7:30 P. M. train, which arrives in New York at 11:30 P. M. Tickets must be purchased in advance at the New Haven's ticket offices at Grand Central.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 12 1953

New Haven in Railroad Switch

The New Haven Railroad, which for several seasons has run show trains from points up the line to New York, will turn itself around on Sundays beginning today and run a concert train from Grand Central to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. Train leaves at 8:20 A.M., arrives Stockbridge, Mass., at 12:15 P.M. Buses will take longhairs from there to the music shed. Train back to New York due at 11:30 P.M. The price for the whole deal is $6.95, including a general admission ticket to the concert. This will go on for six Sundays.

[199]

Music Eagle 7/16

Baroque Trio Opens Series At Tanglewood

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

The first of three successive Wednesday evening programs of chamber music at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood given through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was played last night by the Baroque Trio, Fernando Valenti, harpsichord, Julius Baker, flute, and Daniel Saidenberg, cello.

* * *

AN AUDIENCE approaching in size the week-end concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in this same hall filled the auditorium and again draped onto the close adjacent lawn and outside benches. The timbre of the flute and cello was favorable for those listening from outside; the harpsichord did not carry so effectively.

The program was exclusively devoted to composers of the great era of the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries, particularly of that uniquely rich vintage decade which reproduced Bach, who, conspicuously, was not represented last night. The evening was divided into music for solo and [illegible] groups, affording variety and contrast, and it was excellently prepared. Each artist gave great satisfaction both in his [illegible] and in his grasp of the style of the music.

Mr. Valenti's four sonatas of Scarlatti [illegible] He infused a [illegible] and [illegible] his happy [illegible] and [illegible] with [illegible] clarity. By a [illegible] the [illegible] of his instrument, especially in his left hand, he compounded the gay and [illegible] happy spirit of his music.

* * *

MR. BAKER'S TONE [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] also [illegible] from [illegible] Musikmeister."

The [illegible] be paid [illegible] maintained [illegible] est [illegible] much [illegible] tions [illegible] semble [illegible] dinated [illegible] close of the [illegible] stepped [illegible] to greet Mrs. C[illegible] seated in the [illegible] and she was forced to stand and acknowledge the enthusiastic homage the large audience was eager to grant her. Next Wednesday's concert will be a program of sonatas for violin and piano played by Ruth Posselt and Gary Graffman.

MOZART CON
AT TANGLEW
ATTRACTS

Re. July 1

Munch Directs Boston
phony Orchestra in perb Program

By WILLARD M. CLA

Tanglewood, July 18—
Tanglewood offered the m
Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart
sultry starlit night. Fif hundred persons accepted t tation. The theater-shed only 1215 people, so the res distributed over a crest of g and regardless of whether they could hear the mus seemed steeped in perfect ment.

Munch Is Director

It could hardly have been wise, for under the direct Charles Munch, the memb
the Boston Symphony Orc played some of the loveliest Mozart wrote in a manne was as near perfection as a ner has a right to expec seems to us that Mr. Mu particularly happy in the ment of this intimate type o
c. His readings of the mu ch, last week, were mode night he revealed as few p conductors are able, the and subtleties of Mozart parable music. He sense

MOZART CONCERT
(Continued From Page

ty of every phrase; the ance and, most importa pi are always just and ic range ever under co Tonight we heard a fine
ion of the Mozart outpu gram opened with a del formance of the "Divert
D Major, for strings, K 13
The early divertimenti of e nothing more or les rming and highly enjoya tainment for indoor or al gatherings. Yet, in s we find music fully and brilliant as anyt symphones or mature certos, and the D Ma rtimento is a case in ery time we hear a movement" we think liest we have ever hea is something very i d endearing in the ment of this divertime ch caressed every phr vided contrasts that vitality and upward
e work.

Stern Is Soloist

ac Stern was the so
"Concerto in G Major, violin and orchestra. C
the magnificent series
piano and orchestra, in output is apt to see ght in contrast, but the joyous listening. The certo is a jovial high e, with a superb folk-While the two ends
certo are brilliant, it adagio that makes th impression. Mr. Stern best which means o lin playing hardly to be day. He and Mr. Mu perfect accord, each ting the other. The h which the Boston S are playing these ce of never ending d
the meticulous care its lavishes on every wo
The "Serenade in B-F
13 wind instruments
one of those captiva ades of great charm
uriance which Mozar
ble to throw off at wi ly played by the m odwind virtuois of th
a. The music is a t er changing colors
ength lies particula
trasts.
The program conclude Symphony in D Major own familiarly as the phony. This is an e symphony; a true instrumental comp
ift and fiery that one
ing ahead a bit,
at will happen next.
ous that this sym gned for and can be formed by a quite tra. One notes that on to this work is th than is commo

Eagle 7/17

Lenox

FRANK V. McCARTHY Tel. 561-M

Town Residents, Resort Owner Clash Over Festival Problems

Theatre Permit Questioned—Objection Raised to Advertising Vehicle—Bruno Aaron Defends Disturbances in Summer

LENOX—Lenox as a residential town versus Lenox as a summer resort was the general subject of discussion at a meeting last night in the Town Hall.

Specifically, the discussion dealt with inquires and complaints from neighbors of the new Festival Theatre on Walker Street and a complaint of Tanglewood traffic from a man who said he represented himself and his neighbors on West Street.

Present were about 15 townspeople, the Zoning Board of Appeals and Charles G. Stanley and David H. Mackey of the Board of Selectmen who arranged the meeting at the request of townspeople. R. Harry Barnes, the third selectman, is ill.

Joseph E. LaPointe of Walker Street began the discussion by asking how the permit for the theatre was issued without neighbors knowing about it.

Dixon Quotes Bylaw

James Dixon, chairman of the Zoning Board, replied that the theatre is on the property of Festival House, spot zoned in a residential area as an inn. Under Section II of the zoning bylaws, he explained. Article 8 stated that "accessory use (will be permited) on the same lot with and customarily incident to any of the above permitted uses not detrimental to a residential neighborhood. The term accessory use shall not include":

The article lists four disapproved uses, but does not name a theatre as one of them.

On this basis, Mr. Dixon explained, when he received an inquiry from the Board of Selectmen last May asking what should be done about a request for a theatre permit on Festival House property, he concluded that the Zoning Board had no say in the matter. The other two members of the Zoning Board were not consulted, Mr. Dixon admitted.

Asked if he didn't think the theatre was detrimental to a residential neighborhood, Mr. Dixon replied that he had no reason to think so.

Stanley Suggests Petition

Mrs. Stanley, chairman of the Selectmen, told the townspeople that if they wish to get up a petition declaring the theatre a detriment or nuisance to the neighborhood, the board would "see what the next step is."

Mrs. LaPointe stated that an automobile decorated with signs and parked on Walker Street was the sort of thing neighbors were objecting to. She said the car used to be parked on the street near the theatre at performonce time, but now is driven around town instead.

Louis J. Belair, also of Walker Street, complained that as a result of the theatre and its cast, there are disturbances in the neighborhood sometimes almost until 3 AM.

In defense of the theatre, Bruno Aaron, manager of Festival House, stated that the only way to solve the problem of disturbances during the summer is to bar outsiders from Lenox. The summer guest business, he pointed out, is bound to cause some disturbance to the town's routine life. The only alternative is for no place to take in guests, and to let many of the former estates kept in the tax-paying bracket by the summer guest business slip into the non-tax-paying bracket of school and church property.

Trying To Be "An Asset"

"We're trying to be an asset to the community," Mr. Aaron said. "We're anxious to eliminate any nuisances and prevent unpleasantness."

As an example, he cited the removal of the sign-painted car from Walker Street as soon as the complaint was received.

On the general subject of summer business, Arthur Martin said that if Lenox keeps on the way it is going, in another 5 to 10 years, "it will be a good town to get out of." He said a small group of tradesmen push the summer resort idea, though 90 per cent of the people "just want to live here." The latter, he said, should be given consideration because they will be around a lot longer "than the get-rich-quick crowd."

Robert S. Hibbard of the zoning board stated that as long as the Berkshire Festival is in town, there will be inconvenience. "It's here," he said, "and you'll have to live with it."

He said he thought Lenox should be preserved for development as a residential area.

Complaints About Speeders

Concerning the festival, Vernon R. Childress said that a speeding motorist near his home on West Street came close to killing his daughter recently and has prompted him to object to West Street Tanglewood traffic.

Last year, he said, the two lanes of traffic both going the same way before and after the concerts isolated all who live between the monument and Tanglewood. In case of fire or other emergency, he explained, no one would be able to get in or out. He asked the board if anything could be done to reroute some of this traffic on Hawthorne Street or by some other means keep at least one lane open on West Street. He also asked for speed limit signs on West Street.

The Selectmen replied West Street is a state road and that therefore the state sets up the traffic regulations there. Previous selectmen have tried to get something done about the situation, it was explained, but without result. Unless a speed limit sign is already on West Street, one cannot be installed until it has been approved by the state attorney general and advertised in the newspapers.

Eagle 7/17

BREAKS PRECEDENT: After Doriot Anthony completed her flute solo in Bach's suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings at Sunday afternoon's Festival concert, Charles Munch, right, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, asked her to repeat the final "Badinerie" for the Tanglewood audience.

Eagle July 16

COUNTY STUDENTS: Among the Berkshire County students enrolled this summer at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, are Miss Eileen Dusio of 465 Dalton Avenue, Pittsfield, center, and George Membrino, 129 Castle Street, Great Barrington, at right. They are with their teacher, composer-pianist Lukas Foss.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 12 1953

Start Tours to Tanglewood

One-day excursions to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood will be operated on six successive Sundays, starting today, by the New Haven Railroad. The $6.95 package price per person covers general admission to the concert, all taxes and all transportation. Departure from Grand Central Terminal is at 8:20 A. M., and the train pulls into Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses take passengers to the music shed. Buses return to Pittsfield after the concert in time for passengers to have dinner before boarding the 7:30 P. M. train, which arrives in New York at 11:30 P. M. Tickets must be purchased in advance at the New Haven's ticket offices at Grand Central.

~~Sunday News N.Y.~~ July 12

Start Tours to Tanglewood

One-day excursions to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood will be operated on six successive Sundays, starting today, by the New Haven Railroad. The $6.95 package price per person covers general admission to the concert, all taxes and all transportation. Departure from Grand Central Terminal is at 8:20 A. M., and the train pulls into Stockbridge at 12:15 P. M., where buses take passengers to the music shed. Buses return to Pittsfield after the concert in time for passengers to have dinner before boarding the 7:30 P. M. train, which arrives in New York at 11:30 P. M. Tickets must be purchased in advance at the New Haven's ticket offices at Grand Central.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
SUNDAY NEWS

JUL 12 1953

New Haven in Railroad Switch

The New Haven Railroad, which for several seasons has run show trains from points up the line to New York, will turn itself around on Sundays beginning today and run a concert train from Grand Central to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. Train leaves at 8:20 A.M., arrives Stockbridge, Mass., at 12:15 P.M. Buses will take longhairs from there to the music shed. Train back to New York due at 11:30 P.M. The price for the whole deal is $6.95, including a general admission ticket to the concert. This will go on for six Sundays.

[199]

[illegible] successive Wednes[illegible] programs of chamber music at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood given through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was played last night by the Baroque Trio, Fernando Valenti, harpsichord, Julius Baker, flute, and Daniel Saidenberg, cello.

* * *

AN AUDIENCE approaching in size the week-end concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in this same hall filled the auditorium and again draped onto the close adjacent lawn and outside benches. The timbre of the flute and cello was favorable for those listening from outside; the harpsichord did not carry so effectively.

The program was exclusively devoted to composers of the great era of the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries, particularly [illegible] vintage [illegible] Bach, who, [illegible] was not represented last night. The evening was [illegible] for [illegible] affording [illegible] and it was [illegible] Each artist [illegible] in his grasp of the style [illegible] music.

[illegible] Scarlatti [illegible] He [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] esp[illegible] [illegible] gay and [illegible] m[illegible]

* * *

MR. BAKER'S TONE [illegible] [illegible] newi[illegible] also [illegible] [illegible] from [illegible] Mockmaster."

The [illegible] be paid [illegible] maintained [illegible] est [illegible] much of the music was [illegible] tious in [illegible] sen[illegible] dinated [illegible] close of [illegible] [illegible] to meet [illegible] seated [illegible] and she was [illegible] acknowledge [illegible] homage the large audience was eager to grant her. Next Wednesday's concert will be a program of sonatas for violin and piano played by Ruth Posselt and Gary Graffman.

MOZART CONCERT AT TANGLEWOOD ATTRACTS 5800

Re. July 19

Munch Directs Boston Symphony Orchestra in Superb Program

By WILLARD M. CLARK

Tanglewood, July 18—Tonight Tanglewood offered the music of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and a sultry starlit night. Fifty-eight hundred persons accepted the invitation. The theater-shed holds only 1215 people, so the rest were distributed over a crest of grounds and regardless of whether or not they could hear the music, all seemed steeped in perfect enjoyment.

Munch Is Director

It could hardly have been otherwise, for under the direction [illegible] Charles Munch, the members [illegible] the Boston Symphony Orchestra played some of the loveliest music Mozart wrote in a manner that was as near perfection as any listener has a right to expect. It seems to us that Mr. Munch is particularly happy in the unfoldment of this intimate type of music. His readings of the music of Bach, last week, were models and tonight he revealed as few present day conductors are able, the beauties and subtleties of Mozart's incomparable music. He senses the [illegible]

MOZART CONCERT

[illegible]ed From Page 1A)

[illegible] every phrase, the subtle [illegible]ance and, most important, his tempi are always just and his dynamic range ever under control.

Tonight we heard a fine cross section of the Mozart output. The program opened with a delectable performance of the "Divertimento D Major, for strings, K 136."

The early divertimenti of Mozart are nothing more or less than charming and highly enjoyable entertainment for indoor or outdoor social gatherings. Yet, in some of them we find music fully as profound and brilliant as anything in the symphones or mature piano concertos, and the D Major divertimento is a case in point. Every time we hear a Mozart slow movement" we think it the loveliest we have ever heard, but there is something very intimate and endearing in the andante movement of this divertimento. Mr. Munch caressed every phrase, yet provided contrasts that revealed the vitality and upward surge of the work.

Stern Is Soloist

Isaac Stern was the soloist in the "Concerto in G Major, K 216" for violin and orchestra. Considering the magnificent series of works for piano and orchestra, Mozart's violin output is apt to seem light weight in contrast, but they make for joyous listening. The G Major concerto is a jovial high spirited piece, with a superb folk-like rondo. While the two ends of the concerto are brilliant, it again is the adagio that makes the greatest impression. Mr. Stern was at his best which means one hears violin playing hardly to be equalled today. He and Mr. Munch were in perfect accord, each complementing the other. The exactness with which the Boston Symphony men are playing these days is a source of never ending delight, and the meticulous care its conductor lavishes on every work.

The "Serenade in B-Flat Major for 13 wind instruments, K 361" is one of those captivating serenades of great charm and [illegible] assurance which Mozart seemed able to throw off at will. It was superbly played by the magnificent woodwind virtuois of the orchestra. The music is a tapestry of ever changing colors and its strength lies particularly in contrasts.

The program concluded with the Symphony in D Major, K. 504, known familiarly as the "Prague Symphony. This is an engaging symphony; a true masterpiece of instrumental composition, swift and fiery that one is always looking ahead a bit, wondering what will happen next. It is obvious that this symphony was designed for and can be adequately performed by a quite small orchestra. One notes that the [illegible] [illegible]tion to this work is of greater strength than is common with [illegible]

Eagle 7/16

roque Trio
ens Series
Tanglewood

JAY C. ROSENFELD

first of three successive day evening programs of r music at the Berkshire Center at Tanglewood hrough the generosity of lizabeth Sprague Coolidge ayed last night by the e Trio, Fernando Valenti, hord, Julius Baker, flute, niel Saidenberg, cello.

• • •

AUDIENCE approaching in week-end concerts of the Symphony Orchestra in me hall filled the audiand again draped onto e adjacent lawn and outnches. The timbre of the d cello was favorable for stening from outside; the hord did not carry so ef-
y.

program was exclusively to composers of the great the late seventeenth and ighteenth centuries, pary of that uniquely rich decade which reproduced who, conspicuously, was resented last night. The was divided into music and concerted groups.
g variety and contrast,
was excellently prepared rtist gave great satisfac-th in his execution and rasp of the style of the Valenti's four sonatas of i were brilliantly played.

sed a reckless abandon into his happy rhythms ayed with scintillating
By accentuating the per-nature of his instrument, y with his left hand, he ded the gay and con-happy spirit of his

• • •

AKER'S TONE and style
dent with the opening trio sonata. His sense itness of the decorative d phrases increased the of his lovely round tone
Mr. Saidenberg's ef-one produced from his quired Montagnana cello
ed to best advantage in re Teleman, a sonata er getreue Musikmeis-.

eatest tribute that can the artists is that they d the audience's inter-sistently even though the music was repeticharacter. Their en-laying was well co-or-nd adjusted. At the he program the artists
the front of the stage
Mrs. Coolidge who was the first row center as forced to stand and ge the enthusiastic he huge audience was rant her. Next Wednesert will be a program for violin and piano
Ruth Posselt and Gary

MOZART CONCERT AT TANGLEWOOD ATTRACTS 5800

Re. July 19

Munch Directs Boston Symphony Orchestra in Superb Program

By WILLARD M. CLARK

[illegible]

Munch Is Director

[illegible]

MOZART CONCERT

Continued From Page 1A

[illegible]

Stern Is Soloist

[illegible]

Draws Man

Post 7/15

BY ROSE

Bastille Day festivities began esterday morning at the French Consulate on Beacon st. with the warding of the Croix de Chevaer de la Legion d'Honneur by he French Consul General Franois Charles-Roux to Henry R. hepley of Essex, George Judd f Symphony Hall and Dr. Edard D. Churchill, professor of urgery at Harvard Medical chool. Madame Charles-Roux, earing a simple tailored gray lk shantung dress with neckce of pearls assisted her husand in greeting the hundreds of iends of France who stopped in drink a Vive la France chamagne toast and join in singing a Marseillaise led by Mme. imone Riviere.

---

zart. There is a freshness and calm to the andante which contrasts with the somewhat nervous energy of the opening movements. Here also is another difference. A Mozart symphony without a minuet is almost a curiousity and the "Prague" has no minuet, instead the third movement is one of animation and zest, rich in color and notable for its extremes of rynamics.

It was given a magnificent performance, and one had the feeling that listening to it one was preparing one's self for the mighty "Jumpitor" which we shall hear tomorrow afternoon, along with the overture to "Figaro"; the "concertante sinfonie for violin, viola and orchestra and the "Enine Kleine Nachtmusik."

Record Crowd of 5800 Hears Mozart Concert

Tanglewood, July 18—The third program of the 16th annual Berkshire Festival—the first all-Mozart concert of the season by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Charles Munch—drew another record smashing crowd of 5800 music lovers to Tanglewood tonight. The 1200 capacity theater-concert hall was a sellout long before concert time and the vast throng that arrived to enjoy the solos of violinist Isaac Stern blanketed the lawn clear back to the main entrance.

Attending tonight's concert were Dr. Regina Sovia, native of Italy, who is at Middlebury College during the summer and a professor of the romance languages at the College of Notre Dame in Baltimore, Md., during the college term.

With the balmiest weather of the current concert season prevailing, still another tremendous influx of concertgoers is expected tomorrow afternoon for the second Mozart concert which will feature Isaac Stern and Joseph Depasquale as the soloists in the "Onzertante Sinfonie" for violin and viola. Already in three programs to date the festival has drawn 13,000. Last week end's largest attendance came on Saturday night when 4200 set a new opening night record for the all-Bach program.

Noted in the audience tonight was the world famous violinist Alexander Schneider, Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees of the Boston Symphony and directors Judge Raymond Wilkins and Judge Jacob Kaplan.

Eagle 7/16

FRENCH HONOR JUDD: Francois Charles-Roux, French consul-general in Boston, at right, makes awards to three outstanding men of Massachusetts. Named chevaliers of the Legion of Honor were, left to right, Dr. Edward Churchill, chief of general surgical services at Massachusetts General Hospital; Dr. George E. Judd, manager since 1915 of the Boston Symphony; and Henry R. Shepley, architect, of Essex. (UP Photo)

10—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Thursday, July 16, 1953 ★ ★

BOUQUET FOR MRS. COOLIDGE: Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who each year contributes a series of chamber music concerts on Wednesday evenings in July to the Berkshire Music Center, receives from a Tanglewood guide a bouquet in appreciation of this season's series which opened last evening in the theatre with a program by the Baroque Trio. At Mrs. Coolidge's right is Miss Bertha McCullough, her secretary; at other side, Louis Speyer, BSO English horn player, and Mrs. Speyer.

Tanglewood

Eagle 7/16

Expected for the week-end concerts is James Fassett, CBS director of music, who will record sights and sounds for the intermission talks that he will give in four Sunday afternoon Berkshire Festival concerts that will be broadcast July 26 and Aug. 2, 9 and 16 on the "World Music Festivals" weekly program carried by CBS this summer and autumn.

Mr. Fassett recently returned from recording summer festivals in Florence and Rome, Italy; Bergen, Norway; Helsinki, Finland; and Amsterdam, Holland. After the Tanglewood programs, which will be broadcast directly from the Music Shed from 2.30 to 4, he will fly back to Europe to record festivals in Bayreuth, Salzburg and Edinburgh.

The Earl of Harwood, cousin of Queen Elizabeth, is planning to attend the Berkshire Festival to hear Charles Munch conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Berlioz' dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" Aug. 7. The Earl is publisher of the British magazine Opera.

'I Hate Music'

Who hates music? Not Leonard Bernstein, the brilliant young American conductor. Nevertheless Mr. Bernstein chose "I Hate Music" as the title for a song cycle he composed.

Mr. Bernstein, who is teaching at Tanglewood and will be conducting the Boston Symphony there a little later, has had a meteoric career in the musical world.

He tells a bit about himself, talks about American music, and reveals his plans for the future in an interview with Duane LaFleche of The Knickerbocker News staff that will appear tomorrow in

THE KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

July 15

Tanglewood Soloists To Sing Sundays At First Church

7/17

Three Tanglewood soloists will sing at Sunday morning worship in the First Church of Christ in Pittsfield, Congregational, for the next five Sundays.

Miss Beatrice Krebs, contralto soloist of the Riverside (N.Y.) Church, will sing at the 11 AM worship on Sunday. Miss Krebs will appear with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at a Mozart concert at Tanglewood on Saturday, July 25. She will also sing again at First Church on Sunday, Aug. 9.

On July 26, Miss Susanne Derian, soprano soloist with the Rutgers (N.Y.) Collegiate Church, will sing, and on Aug. 2, Miss Lee Goebel, contralto of California, will appear at the church service. Miss Goebel, who is now doing oratorio work in New York City, will appear again on Sunday, Aug. 16.

Mrs. William S. Kent Jr., organist and director of music at the First Church, will accompany the soloists on Sunday morning, and on Sunday, Aug. 16.

NY HT July 19

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE
FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
THEATRE—TODAY at 2:30
MOZART Program—General Admission, $2
Next Sat. July 25 at 8:30, Sun. July 26 at 2:30
Seats at $4 and $5 (Admission $2)
SHED—Fri. and Sat. Eves., Sun. Afts.
July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
Address Box Office—Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor; Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Today, 2:30 p. m. Mozart program: Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, K. 364: (soloists, Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale); Eine kleine Nachtmusik, K. 525; Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") K. 551.

Wednesday, 8:30. Ruth Posselt, violinist; Gary Graffman, pianist. Sonata in E, Hindemith; Sonata in A major, Op. 13, Faure; Sonata in E major, Bach; Sonata in F minor, Op. 80, Prokofiev.

Saturday, 8:30. Haydn program: Theresa Mass (Hugh Ross conducting; soloists, Lois McCauley, soprano; Beatrice Krebs, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Lee Cass, bass); Symphony in C minor, No. 95; Symphony in G ("Military") No. 100.

Sunday, July 26, 2:30. Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86, Strauss; "Le Tombeau de Couperin" Suite, Ravel; "Classical" Symphony Op. 25, Prokofiev; "La Creation du Monde," Milhaud; "A Parable of Death," (Vera Zorina, narrator), Foss.

[200]

Tanglewood Opening Success As 4,200 Hear Bach Program

By DUANE LA FLECHE

There was a threat of rain, but the threat dissipated.

The audience filled the theater-concert hall and an even larger audience was star-scattered on the lawns. Tanglewood opened its season.

The opening was Saturday night and for it Tanglewood was much the same. The lawns were as well groomed as ever, the crowd as heterogeneous. Under the trees were young lovers; in solitary pipe-smoking magnificence stood the young thinker (posing just a bit perhaps?); recumbent in a folding chair was the elderly gentleman, holding a piece of burning punk to deter the fireflies, the occasional mosquito and the moths attracted by the floodlit scene.

There were the well-groomed, the casually dressed, the honest-to-goodness intellectuals and the pseudo ones, those who had arrived in Cadillacs and those who had come by bus.

Most important of all, overshadowing the people and the scene, was the music. And the music Saturday night was the Brandenburg Concertos of Bach.

It is best to leave to the musical pedants the question of whether, let us say, the third measure of the second movement of the first of the concertos was interpreted to their liking. Such talk is only for the pedants. It is of small significance.

LUCAS FOSS
An Ovation

Of greatest significance is that the audience of 4,200 (the largest opening night audience in Tanglewood's history) sat enthralled as the familiar concertos flowed from the instrumental groups in their full beauty.

Where did the honors lie?

Certainly with young Lucas Foss, composer, conductor and pianist, who was given an ovation as he completed the long and complex piano part of the Fifth Concerto.

Mr. Foss will be on Tanglewood programs again July 29 when he will conduct his "A Parable of Death" with Vera Zorina, the ballerina, as narrator, and Aug. 1, when he will appear as soloist in his Piano Concerto No. 2 with the full orchestra.

Where else did honor lie?

With Roger Voisin, who played the difficult trumpet part of the Second Concerto, and with the young flutist, Doriot Anthony, only woman to hold a major desk with the Boston Symphony.

Most of all, perhaps, with Charles Munch, the conductor, whose baton, while commanding, was little in evidence, and who made the presentation of the music the happy thing it was.

Tanglewood continued its Theater-Concert Hall series yesterday with a second Bach program. Mozart will be played Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

The following week will conclude the series, with Haydn and a group of more modern composers.

The shed concerts will open July 31 and continue three weekends with the full orchestra under Mr. Munch, Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein, the brillian young American conductor.

Tanglewood's opening was auspicious. The remainder of the season will see the fulfilment of that promise.

(An exclusive interview with Leonard Bernstein, in which he tells of his plans and talks a bit about music, will appear later this week in The Knickerbocker News.)

Soloists Lauded at Tanglewood Opening

The musical fame of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood continues to grow. The opening concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, presented in the theater-concert hall Saturday night, set a new attendance record. The audience, covering half the stage and flowing far out over the lawn, was a discerning one, coming for an evening of the baroque Bach.

Five of the six Brandenburg Concertos from the Cothen period provided a full program of beautiful ensemble and outstanding solo performances. Munch gave convincing readings that recalled the enduring vitality of this amazing music. From the sparkling vivacity of the allegros, through the profound slow movements, the resoucre of this early 18th Century music displayed the full tonal contrast of the chamber orchestra.

Since the Brandenburg Concertos are all written in the tradition of the Vivaldi Concerto Grosso, the variation in the solo concertino group of each work creates unique opportunities to observe instrumental characteristics.

Concertos Nos. 3 and 6 are scored for strings alone, but the triple harmonic division of the former is offset by omitting violins in the latter. The rare experience of hearing six solo violas reenforced with cellos and basses emerged as beauty to treasure in the sixth concerto.

The depth of Bach's music was so apparent in all of the slower movements, where artistry of phrasing with restraint of emotion but flow of rhythm, all combihed to reveal the perfection of soloists and ensemble. Munch kept his accompanying groups so well proportioned that relaxed ease was permitted the soloists. The resulting clarity of detail and fusion of harmonies were of such resonant quality as seldom can be heard in orchestral playing.

Particular interest centered in the work of three of the numerous solo assignments. Since it was her debut at the festival, the playing of solo flutist Doriot Anthony was particularly noticed in the second and fifth concertos. The tone is delicately limpid, unusually vibrant in the low register. Her phrasing and musicianship are flawless, so that there is no question of her assurance in such an important post.

Roger Voisin played the high F trumpet parts as originally scored in the second concerto with a flexibility, technique and endurance that was almost unbelievable. Seldom does a trumpet player attempt the part without modification, since modern orchestral demands are much diferent from the quality of the clarino of Bach's day.

Substitutions often are resorted to, such as at the Prades Festival, where Casals employed a soprano saxaphone. Mr. Voisin, using a special high F trumpet with keenest clarity of intense tone, fully deserved the ovation that followed his requiring performance.

Lucas Foss again revealed his superb artistry as pianist in the fifth concerto which concluded the evening. With soloists Richard Burgin, concertmaster, and Miss Anthony, a large portion of this work, the most popular of the set, calls for masterly pionism. The interpretive freedom within the rigid rhythmic pulse gave a flowing ease to this classic keyboard virtuoso piece.

It could have been the program that brought the large audience but certainly the performances were rewarding for the first night of the 1953 series. —(C.F.S.)

Mrs. Koussevitzky Entertains Committee For Benefit Concert 7/16

Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky was hostess yesterday afternoon at her home in Lenox, to the committee organizing the concert to be held at the Jewish Community Center, Pittsfield, Tuesday evening, July 28, for the benefit of "Music for Israel."

Jay C. Rosenfeld, member of the project's national committee, who presided, introduced Mrs. Koussevitzky, Miss Helen Coates, national chairman, and Mrs. Stanley Shapiro, local chairman.

At the concert Leonard Bernstein will make his only appearance of the season in this vicinity as a pianist. He will play with William Kroll, violin; Joseph dePasquale, viola; and Jean Bedetti, cello, in a program of Beethoven, Brahms and Mozart.

Pittsfield [illegible] July 20
Article [illegible]

TANGLEWOOD, LENOX: One-man show of paintings by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge. free.

Art at Tanglewood July 29

Although small in number, the exhibition of paintings and sculpture by Berkshire artists presented this past week in the reception hall at Tanglewood's main gate is rewarding and in keeping with the spirit of the musical events programmed there. This is the second of the series of exhibitions planned by Stuart Henry and was arranged by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge, who is to have a one-man show there next week.

Included in the all-Berkshire artist show was "Jumprope" by Homer Gunn of West Stockbridge done in a broad, liquid-like technique. Gunn is also represented, and to better advantage, with handsome abstractly conceived wood sculpture entitled "Torso."

Also contained in the exhibition is a fine drawing by Harry Lane, two music inspired abstractions by Stanley Bate of Claverack, N. Y., entitled "Allegro" and Scherzo," a notably executed "Quarry Pool" by June Kimball of Pittsfield, an expertly sketched portrait of his daughter Elizabeth by Stuart Henry, a dramatically pictured "Storm" by E. Arnold Clark of Great Barrington, a characteristic romanticized portrait by John Carrol of East Chatham, N. Y. entitled "Stephanie" and "Shadow of the House" by Harry Lane.

---

commenting on the thousands streaming to Tanglewoof Festival to see Koussevitzky and Leonard Bernstein conducting: "Look at 'em, just to see some sucker lead a band."

30—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Wednesday, July 15, 1953 ★★

Munch Conducts Students Tomorrow

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will lead the student orchestra in the Tanglewood Music Shed tomorrow evening. He will conduct Debussy's prelude to "Afternoon of a Faun," with Gretel Shanley of Westport, Conn., as flute soloist.

Leonard Bernstein, who heads the school orchestra and orchestral conducting departments, will open the program with Beethoven's fifth symphony.

Robert Mandell of the Bronx, N.Y. will conduct Ravel's "Alborada del Gracioso."

To Make Tanglewood Debut

Making his debut as a Tanglewood student orchestra conductor will be 27-year-old Sam Krachmalnick of St. Louis, first-year conducting student under Mr. Bernstein, and a younger brother of one of the school's best-known graduates, Jacob Krachmalnick, concertmaster of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

Last winter assistant conductor to Arthur Fiedler [illegible] tour by the Boston Pops Orchestra, Mr. Krachmalnick for the past two years has been assistant to Jean Morel at the Juilliard School of Music, N.Y., and is a [illegible] player, under the late Hans Kindler, with the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D.C. He will conduct three excerpts from Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust."

Baroque Quartet At Lenox Tonight

[illegible]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST

JUL 12 1953

WORDS and MUSIC

By Harriett Johnson

All-Gershwin Pro

Berkshire Festival Concerts

With the concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall continuing each week-end currently at the Berkshire Festival, Lenox, Mass., the major concerts in the Festival Shed will open the week-end of July 31. Charles Munch will be on the podium for the opening, leading the Boston Symphony in the following program: Beethoven Overture to "Leonore," No. 3; Mendelssohn Concerto in E Minor with Zino Francescatti as soloist; Aaron Copland's Suite from the ballet, "Appalachian Spring," and Ravel's "Bolero." All inquiries should be addressed to the Festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

[illegible] 7/16

Speaking of art, and no fooling, we heard two of the most beautifully-performed concerts we've ever heard anywhere—and that takes in a lot of territory—over at Tanglewood, last Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon. No use to tell you about them now that they're history. But it's our duty to say that if you're going to get seats for either of the two all-Mozarts coming up—Saturday evening at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30 (not at 3 as was the case the last year) you'd better phone Lenox, Mass. 600 right now! As everyone knows, these concerts are played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, Hugh Ross conducting the chorus. Seats—if there are any left—are $4.00 and $5.00. But admission to the grounds is only $2.00 and thousands pay that to sit on the clean, spacious lawn while listening.

Sure, it's easy to get to Tanglewood! Takes only an hour and a half from the Millerton-Lakeville-Salisbury axis, at the most. We made it in an hour flat last Sunday, with a lot of traffic. Head for Great Barrington, Mass., and turn either left or right at the bridge which marks the end of the main stem, even if there's no Tanglewood sign saying turn left. Not that the frequent direction signs aren't adequate—we wish that Jacob's Pillow and Music Mountain did half so well in this respect. Plenty of polite cops; no parking charge; food within the gates. But that food is only so-so, with no carbonated drinks and orange juice priced at $.25 for a small cup. Better dine at any of the good eating places strung along the way, or take a lunch and eat it at one of the free picnic tables or on the lawn while admiring one of the finest views in the viewful Berkshires.

THE [illegible]

Legion of Honor Cross Awarded to Symphony Manager George Judd

[illegible]

Judd Honored 7/15

BOSTON, July 14 [illegible] Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra [illegible] Legion of Honor [illegible] held [illegible] sulate [illegible] Roux [illegible] presen[illegible] tion [illegible] Judd's [illegible] velopment [illegible] lively [illegible] and to the [illegible] he played [illegible] chestra's [illegible] ropean tour last year. Mr. Judd joined the Boston Symphony staff in 1914 and has been manager since 1936.

10,100 ATTEND TWO CONCERTS AT TANGLEWOOD

Mozart Program Attracts [illegible] Despite Heat; Soloists Lauded

By WILLARD M. CLARK

[illegible]

Continued On Page 8

[illegible]

CONCERT PARADE ON TANGLEWOOD PROGRAM AUG. 13

Violinist Isaac Stern Plays At Annual Benefit for Music Center

Tanglewood will be on parade Thursday, Aug. 13. The annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, which includes afternoon festivities by every department of the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, a lawn supper and concert by the orchestra will be from 6 to 11 p. m., followed by dancing on the lawn.

Munch Conducts

Isaac Stern, the celebrated violinist, will play Beethoven's "Concerto in D Major" with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conducting. Mr. Stern was soloist at the past week end Festival Mozart concerts.

The second half of the concert program, to be conducted by Leonard Bernstein, head of the Berkshire Music Center's conducting classes, will offer as soloists baritone William Warfield and his wife, soprano Leontyne Price in the first public appearance of the couple since successes the past season in Vienna, Berlin, London and Paris. Miss Price, who was a Berkshire Music Center student in 1951, is currently singing Bess on Broadway, at the Ziegfeld Theater, and will appear on "Tanglewood on Parade" through the courtesy of the producers. Mr. Warfield will make his Tanglewood debut at the concert, and the following night will be Berkshire Festival soloist, with soprano Lois Marshall in Brahms' "Requiem." Mr. Warfield sang "Ol' Man River" in the recent filming of "Show Boat."

All ticket-holders will be invited to attend demonstrations by the school's symphony orchestra, chorus, chamber music, opera department and Tanglewood Study Group.

Moving of Concert Sets Precedent

Lenox, July 19- Another new chapter in the colorful history of the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood was written this afternoon. For the first time one of the more intimate Mozart programs was transferred from the small theater-concert hall, with but a 1200 seating capacity, to the spacious music shed on the east end of the vast lawns of this symphony mecca.

For two years now tickets to these Bach and Mozart concerts have borne an alternative seat location for the huge fan-shaped shed in case of rain, when thousands of general admission audience on the lawn would be drenched. However, the downpour never arrived and neither could festival officials arrive at the decision to make the experiment of the transfer.

With the temperature hovering in the nineties this afternoon and reports from the Albany Airport indicating that the heavy electric storms in Utica were moving eastward rapidly, Manager George Judd gave the word to shift the site of today's concert an hour before the program was scheduled to get underway.

Next Sunday's concert, which is to be broadcast, will also be staged in the big music shed. And it is hardly likely that too many of these popular programs will ever be returned to the confines of the theater-concert hall.

Tanglewood Benefit Aug. 13

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 19.—The annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, which includes afternoon festivities by every department of the summer school of music maintained here by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, a lawn supper and an evening concert by the orchestra, will last from 6 to 11 p. m. on Thursday, Aug. 13.

Isaac Stern, violinist, will perform Beethoven's Concerto in D major with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conducting, at the evening concert. The second half of the concert program, to be conducted by Leonard Bernstein, head of the Berkshire Music Center's conducting classes, will offer as soloists baritone William Warfield and his wife, soprano Leontyne Price.

"Tanglewood on Parade" is held in aid of the Berkshire Music Center, now in its eleventh season; and box seats at $5, and front section of the great Music Shed, all of which are reserved at $4, will go on sale July 27 at the Tanglewood box office. General admission tickets, on sale now at $2.50, will entitle the holders to seats in the Shed's rear section.

---

conduct.

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, have been chosen by Charles Munch as soloists for the performance of Brahms' Requiem that the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Munch's direction, will present at Tanglewood on Friday, Aug. 14.

---

through next Sunday

NYT July 19

Isaac Stern, violin soloist at Tanglewood this afternoon.

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

Theatre-Concert Hall

Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M.: Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. Overture to the Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Jupiter Symphony . . . Mozart

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M.: Conductor, Munch. Theresa Mass with Chorus and Soloists conducted by Hugh Ross; Symphony in C minor No. 95; Military Symphony . . . Haydn

NEXT SUNDAY, July 26, 2:30 P. M.: Conductor, Munch.
Divertimento after Couperin . . . Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin . . . Ravel
Classical Symphony . . . Prokofieff
La Creation du Monde . . . Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina) conducted by composer . . . Foss

---

SOLOISTS AT TANGLEWOOD

Stern, Warfield and Miss Price in Annual Benefit Aug. 13

Isaac Stern, violinist; William Warfield, baritone, and his wife, Leontyne Price, soprano, will be the soloists for "Tanglewood on Parade," the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, to be held Aug. 13 at Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass.

They will appear in a shed concert with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Stern will play Beethoven's Violin Concerto, with Charles Munch conducting. Mr. Warfield and Miss Price will appear in the second half of the program under the direction of Leonard Bernstein.

Other events on the program will be given in separate auditoriums on the estate. Every department of the center will participate. In addition, there will be a lawn supper and dancing after the final concert.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

JUL 19 1953

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor; Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Today, 2:30 p. m. Mozart program: Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola, K. 364; (soloists, Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale); Eine kleine Nachtmusik, K. 525; Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") K. 551.

Wednesday, 8:30. Ruth Posselt, violinist; Gary Graffman, pianist. Sonata in E, Hindemith; Sonata in A major, Op. 13, Faure; Sonata in E major, Bach; Sonata in F minor, Op. 80, Prokofiev.

Saturday, 8:30. Haydn program: Theresa Mass (Hugh Ross conducting; soloists, Lois McCauley, soprano; Beatrice Krebs, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Lee Cass, bass); Symphony in C minor, No. 95; Symphony in G ("Military") No. 100.

Sunday, July 26, 2:30. Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86, Strauss; "Le Tombeau de Couperin" Suite, Ravel; "Classical" Symphony Op. 25, Prokofiev; "La Creation du Monde," Milhaud; "A Parable of Death" (Vera Zorina, narrator), Foss.

Young Adults Plan Tanglewood Weekend

A Tanglewood Music Festival weekend is being planned by the Young Adult Association of the Jewish Community Center. The event will be held the weekend of Aug. 14-16.

Concerts will be presented at Tanglewood during that period on Saturday evening, with Leonard Bernstein conducting, and on Sunday afternoon, with Charles Munch conducting.

The Young Adults plan to leave Providence from the Center at 1 P. M. Friday, Aug. 14, which is a legal holiday in Rhode Island. Accommodations will be arranged at the Avaloch Hotel in Lenox, Mass. The Tanglewood committee is arranging auto transportation.

Young adults interested in attending should contact Dorothy Click, Greta Gluckman, Jerry Katz, Roz Bronfman or Jane Gumbiner.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES

JUL 13 1953

TANGLEWOOD FETE OPENS WITH BACH

Two Lead-Off Concerts Attract 7,200 to Berkshire Center—Student Activity High

By ROSS PARMENTER

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LENOX, Mass., July 12—The sixteenth Berkshire Festival opened at Tanglewood this week-end. The first two concerts, which consisted of Bach programs played by a chamber orchestra in the theatre-concert hall, attracted 7,200 persons.

In opening the festival with these programs, Charles Munch followed the tradition established by his predecessor as music director, the late Serge Koussevitzky, who began the Bach programs in the summer of 1945, the year before the war-crippled festival was able to resume its regular concerts with the full Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Next week-end, Mr. Munch will follow another Koussevitzky tradition. His second pair of concerts with the reduced ensemble will be devoted to Mozart. But with the July 25-26 concerts, he will make a partial break. Only the first will be devoted to Haydn. The other will be given over to modern composers.

Selected Groups Play

Besides the Bach programs for the public, the week-end also included three concerts for friends of the Berkshire Music Center. These were given by selected groups from among the 398 students who arrived at Tanglewood a week ago to attend the six-week session of the center, a music school that is operated in conjunction with the festival each year.

The first of these concerts, on Friday night, was given by the student orchestra and was led in turn by Robert Mandell and Harold Blumenfeld, who are students, and Leonard Bernstein, who directs the orchestra department. The second, this morning, was given by students in the chamber music department. The third, tonight, featured compositions by Alvin Epstein, Tossi Ichiyanagi, Edward J. Miller, Sherron McClellan, Adrian and Barney Childs, student-composers training here under Aaron Copland and Carlos Chavez.

Further evidence of the almost incredible student activity during the first week of the session is that three of the soloists and the fifty chorus singers for Bach's Cantata No. 28 in this afternoon's program were students.

Programming Is Unusual

The theatre-concert hall seats only 1,100. This meant that a majority of the large crowds that assembled for the two Bach concerts listened from surrounding areas outside. Saturday night's attendance of 4,200 — a record for opening night — quite literally blanketed the lawn.

With the first program, which included five of the six Brandenburg concertos, the outsiders also missed out in not having been able to see the stage. For one of the interests of the unusual programming of so many works from a single group was that one could see as well as hear the way Bach varied his instrumentation for each concerto.

For four of the concertos there were fourteen violinists on the left and six violinists, four 'cellists and three double bass players on the right. The space between these twenty-seven string players was left free for the instrumentalists playing the solo parts. To see the shifts was like seeing a game of musical chairs.

The two soloists who performed with greatest distinction were Roger Voisin, who played the high trumpet part on a special silver trumpet in the second concerto, and Lukas Foss, who, in a beautifully modulated fashion, played the piano part in the fifth concerto. Doriot Anthony, the orchestra's new first flutist, also reaped laurels in the fifth concerto, and Richard Burgin, the concertmaster, was a sensitive and dependable musician in many solo passages.

Mr. Munch's readings were more notable for their rhythmic vitality than their over-all refinement, and the Boston strings did not always sound as precise and splendid as they should. Where the string ensemble playing was most careful and expressive was in the No. 3, in which six violists, four 'cellists and three double bass players were the only participants.

---

parade.

Judd Honored

Special to the Herald Tribune

BOSTON, July 14.—George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, received the cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in a ceremony held today at the French Consulate here. Francois Charles-Roux, French Consul in Boston, presented the award. The citation called attention to Mr. Judd's contribution to the development of the orchestra, his lively interest in French music, and to the important role which he played in organizing the orchestra's highly successful European tour last year. Mr. Judd joined the Boston Symphony's staff in 1914 and has been manager since 1936.

Tanglewood

Eagle July 18

Stern at Elm Court

Isaac Stern, violin soloist for the week-end's Mozart concerts by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, is staying with his wife, the former Vera Lindenblit, at Elm Court, Lenox.

Mr. Stern has just completed his 11th consecutive tour of the United States and Canada. He plays a 250-year-old Guarnerius violin. Recently he made his film debut in "Tonight We Sing," in the role of the Belgian violinist, Eugene Ysaye.

Lenox

Masonic Official Guest of Gastons

LENOX—Most Worshipful Thomas Sherard Roy of Boston, grand master of Masons in Massachusetts, and Mrs. Roy, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ward J. Gaston at Tanglewood, where Mr. Gaston is superintendent.

The party attended the Berkshire Festival concerts Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon and toured the Berkshires, visiting the summit of Mount Greylock for the sunset Sunday night.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy left this morning for their summer home in Canada. Dr. Roy will attend the sessions of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario.

Rail Excursions

NYHT July 19

The New Haven Railroad is offering one-day excursion tours for the Berkshire Festival Sunday afternoon concerts at Tanglewood. The package price of $6.95 includes round-trip rail transportation, bus transportation, general admission to the concert and all taxes. Trains leave at 8:20 a. m., arriving at Stockbridge at 12:15 p. m. Returning, they leave Pittsfield at 7:30 p. m., arriving in New York at 11:30 p. m. Tickets must be purchased in advance.

Eagle July

Attendance At Second Series Breaks Record

The 10,100 attendance at the second series of early Berkshire Festival concerts in the Tanglewood theatre was more than 50 per cent above that of even date in 1952, and 2900 more than for the opening series this season. The 17,300 total for the two 1953 week ends topped the attendance for the same series in 1952 by 4700.

All attendance figures at Tanglewood so far this year have set records.

Tanglewood

Stern at Elm Court

Isaac Stern, violin soloist for the week-end's Mozart concerts by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch, is staying with his wife, the former Vera Lindenblit, at Elm Court, Lenox.

Mr. Stern has just completed his 11th consecutive tour of the United States and Canada. He plays a 250-year-old Guarnerius violin. Recently he made his film debut in "Tonight We Sing," in the role of the Belgian violinist, Eugene Ysaye.

Plouffe

THE SCENE CHANGES: For the first time in the history of the so-called small concerts at Tanglewood, Boston Symphony Orchestra officials yesterday afternoon switched the Mozart concert from the theatre-concert hall to the Music Shed. Threatening weather and the heat played a part in making the decision to shift to the larger structure.

A Gift for Dr. Munch

Plouffe

Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, receives some candid pictures from nine-year-old Wendy Joseph of Freeport, L.I. The photographs were taken by Wendy's father, Dr. Rudolph Joseph, at last year's concerts at Tanglewood.

In Brief . . .

When we noted last week that Tanglewood's "small" concerts were bursting the seams of the adjective, we didn't expect such immediate confirmation as yesterday's history-making transfer of the concert to the big Shed as the joint result of the crowd, the heat and lowering skies . . .

10,000 at Mozart Concerts This Week End at Tanglewood

Small Series Moved to Great Shed For First Time in Festival History; Isaac Stern Plays Brilliantly

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S concert of the Berkshire Festival, in the so-called small series with which the season always starts, moved from its accustomed location in the theatre-concert hall to the great Shed for the first time in Tanglewood history. An audience of 5800 Saturday evening combined with the record-breaking heat and the possibility of rain, influenced the management to move to the larger and airier hall. As a matter of fact, the switch in plans was accomplished with ease because tickets had been marked with seat designations for both halls. Yesterday afternoon 4300 was the attendance figure, making a total week end of more than 10,000.

Both programs were devoted exclusively to Mozart, as the first brace had been to Bach, and the third and final two will be to Haydn and a varied list respectively this coming week end. Yesterday afternoon was all music familiar to Tanglewood audiences, and it was probably just as well so, as it was not an afternoon to make laborious demands on one's intellectual capacities. Charles Munch conducted the orchestra of some 35 Boston Symphony Orchestra members in the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," the serenade "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," and the "Jupiter" symphony.

To our ears the Shed shell reflected the sound with a suggestion of amplification so that the performance did not have the fine edge usually identified with the smaller hall.

* * *

THE TRANSFER of the concert to the larger auditorium altered the character of the event in some degree. There has been an intimacy, even though attendance was counted beyond 5000, and a chamber music atmosphere in the old hall, whereas, in the huge Shed, that attribute vanished. This was noticeably apparent in the accompaniment to the Sinfonie concertante in which Issac Stern violinist, and Joseph de Pasquale violist, were soloists. The solo instruments did not emerge from the orchestral background as clearly and distinctively as would have best served the performance and they were muffled and hidden within the orchestral mass too often. Furthemore, while each one played with great beauty, there was not tremendous affinity evident. Each artist played with glowing tone and spacious enunciation but maintained his individuality to the end.

* * *

MR. STERN had been the soloist on the preceding evening, too, when he played the Mozart G major concerto. This performance was carved out of granite. The flawless playing was to be expected, but the perspective, the line and design, all were evidence of a great artist. As a matter of fact, we would question the wisdom of the choice of that particular one of Mozart's violin concertos for this particular occasion, but, once having chosen it, Stern played it for itself and not for the audience. He played with classical austerity but a penetratingly warm tone, with a chaste simplicity but an intensely felt understanding. The concerto provides the least display of all the Mozart violin concerti, and Stern never once inserted any device to increase the show which did not fit with the style of his own conception. There were no gaudy slides, no extra bow strokes to make a momentary flash but destroy the mood. It was one of the most self-effacing performances we can recall.

* * *

THE WHOLE SATURDAY evening program progressed with an especially satisfactory sequence, starting with the D major Divertimento for strings only, followed by three movements from the wonderful Serenade for thirteen wind instruments, and then, as a finale, the D major symphony, (K504), called the "Prague," where all forces combined, the strings joining with the winds. Mozart varied the orchestration in his symphonies for his own purposes but he often omitted a reed or a grass instrument. In Saturday's symphony in the slow movement the reeds double or are in unison with the strings in their least effective registers so that it becomes essentially a telling wind number.

The strings were noticeably happy in the Divertimento. There was a punch and bounce in their playing and a controlled strength in the sonority. Then the serenade showed the excellent wind section of the Boston orchestra. There was an evenness and balanced resonance which was remarkably delightful. When the contra-bassoon established the foundation for several situations, the effect was memorable. There was some beautiful playing all around but none excelled Pasquale Cardillo the clarinetist, in several most graceful phrases. The final movement, a theme with variations is full of fun and opportunities. Of course, this was the later Mozart of a "middle-aged" twenty-four, not the "maturing" Mozart of sixteen of the Divertimento.

* * *

THE PRAGUE symphony is the last Mozart wrote before the final big three, and, for us, is not equally interesting in all three movements. The counterpoint of the last movement never fails to provide stimulation and excitement, and Munch stirred his responsive men (and lady flutist) to spirited piquancy. Indeed, in the second half, the flute, Miss Doriot Anthony, was conspicuously reliable and satisfying as she repeatedly stated the figure upon which the phrases are so beautifully constructed and superimposed. The first movement starts with a slow introduction which suffered by such close proximity to the preceding wind choir sonority. All the instruments utter the same phrase in unison in their respective registers robbing, by juxtaposition, the orchestra of a completeness, and this is not relieved for some time.

The orchestra played without jackets Saturday night and yesterday afternoon also, giving the musicians an extra freedom and comfort which at the same time looked even smarter than usual.

HOLYOKE, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT-TELEGRAM
JUN 17 1953

Holmes, Dean Of N. E. Conservatory, Dies

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP)—Funeral services will be held Friday for Malcolm H. Holmes, 46, dean of the New England Conservatory of Music and director of the Harvard University band.

He died yesterday after an illness of three months.

Holmes was born in Brockton and graduated from Harvard in 1928.

He taught at Wellesley College after his graduation from Harvard and later was an instructor at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood and conducted the Harvard-Radcliffe orchestra.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Holmes.

Services will be in the Harvard Memorial Chapel and burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

[203]

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 11 1953

You Never Saw A Cuter Tooter

DORIOT ANTHONY, first woman ever to hold a major desk with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be flute soloist at Tanglewood this evening and Sunday afternoon.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 15 1953

Judd Honored

Special to the Herald Tribune

BOSTON, July 14.—George E Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, received the cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in a ceremony held today at the French Consulate here. Francois Charles-Roux, French Consul in Boston, presented the award. The citation called attention to Mr. Judd's contribution to the development of the orchestra, his lively interest in French music, and to the important role which he played in organizing the orchestra's highly successful European tour last year. Mr. Judd joined the Boston Symphony's staff in 1914 and has been manager since 1936.

Tanglewood

SCHEDULE FOR THE WEEK

Tomorrow Night

* 8.30—Opera Scenes. Theatre.

Wednesday

* 8.30—Sonata recital by Ruth Posselt, violin and Gary Graffman, piano, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Theatre.

Thursday

* 8.30—Concert by small chorus. Theatre.

Friday

* 8.30—Symphony concert by student orchestra. Music Shed, conducted by faculty and students.

Saturday

8.30—Berkshire Festival concert. Charles Munch conducting chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony members. Theatre.

Sunday

*10.00—Chamber music concert by students. Chamber Music Hall.

2.30—Berkshire Festival concert. Charles Munch conducting chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony members in all-Haydn program. Theatre

PM

* 8.30—Composers' forum. Aaron Copland moderator. Chamber Music Hall.

*—Open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose voluntary contributions help to support the school.

Tonight

8.30—Students' forum on "The Problem of Communication in contemporary Music," Aaron Copland, moderator. Speakers: conductor - composer-pianists Leonard Bernstein and Lukas Foss, teachers of conducting at Berkshire Music Center; Barney Childs composition student; and Leonard Rosenman, commissioned to write opera at Tanglewood.

First Opera Scenes Tomorrow Night

The first evening of opera scenes of the season by students at the Berkshire Music Center will be held tomorrow evening at 8.30 in the Tanglewood theatre. Staged by Boris Goldovsky, opera department head, and Miss Sarah Caldwell, his assistant, the performance will be open to Friends of the school whose voluntary contributions help to support it.

The program will consist of scenes from Mozart's "The Magic Flute"; Scarlatti's "The Rake's Reform"; Verdi's "Aida" and "Falstaff", Gounod's "Faust" and Benjamin Britten's "Albert Herring."

Miss Christina Cardillo of North Adams, who is a Tanglewood student for the second season, will appear as one of the three Spirits in the Mozart opera and as D[illegible] in "The Rake's Reform."

A feature of the production will be the "workshop costumes," designed by Laura Zirner for the workshop of the University of Illinois, where she and her husband, Ludwig Zirner, are on the faculty. Mr. and Mrs. Zirner are heading the associates' section of the department.

The costumes [illegible] assembled to [illegible] style and period. They are all one size, and may [illegible] fit the figure through the use of elastic, pins and draping. Circular pieces of material are turned into capes, collars and ruffles; straight pieces into belts, sashes or shawls, for example.

Workshop settings, also Mrs. Zirner's creation, on loan to Tanglewood by the University of Illinois, are of screens, frames and furniture elements, assembled to indicate the acting area or for them to perform realistic scenes.

Developed for economy and [illegible]ability, the simple costumes and set make possible the presentation of opera for young singers.

In the week-end audience were Miss Margaret Bourke-White of New York, Life magazine photographer and writer; and two Boston Symphony Orchestra trustees: President of the board and Mrs. Harry B. Cabot, who had come from their summer home in Northeast Harbor, Me., and Judge and Mrs. Harry Kaplan of Boston.

Paintings on Exhibition

For the current week in the reception room at the Tanglewood main gate is a collection of paintings by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge.

A year-round resident of the Berkshires since 1949, Mr. Lane was acting director of the Berkshire Art Center last summer, and has been instrumental in assembling group shows of local artists, including those at Tanglewood and a recent one at the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge.

A native of New York, Mr. Lane studied in Munich, Germany, and Paris. Examples of his work are hung in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; the Worcester Museum; and in the collection of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. He has painted murals in the U.S. Post Offices of Port Washington, N.Y., and Oakdale, La.

Knick

Stern D

In Moza

The second we Symphony Orchest
music of Mozart.
heard a program
and the Serenade

The torrid weather
a role. The orchestr less and the humid the strings, includin ist's, and deadened t tone.

In the opening Di for Strings by the Mozart, one heard yet sparkling, rococ melody with bass sup inated by the violins and turns of the alleg to an elegaic andant like beauty. Contras zicato and bouncing swers punctuated the

Mr. Stern previo been heard by this principally as a stu
tuoso performer of th and modern school
His grasp of the classi concerto broadened and confirmed the es his position as one of artists of today. A wa of tone with deft con of the full range of impressed one in beauty. Control and were a certainty, so th
tion and adherence phrase of Mozartean his object.

Mr. Munch used string complement onl tutti passages, permit soloist to produce an tone The muted adag
at a deliberate tempo th tax any other group, some of the loveliest particularly as assisted arresting quality of flu rict Anthony. The episo movement finished wi grace that the audien an ovation to the perfo

The Serenade in B fl for 13 wind instrume reeds and horns, was a taining novelty. Using bass clarinet instead of solete basset horns, and bassoon for rich pedal
Mr. Munch brought a light.

The program closed
less interesting reading
D major Symphony
"Prague." After an adagio not up to Boston ards, the allegro found chestra again in perfect
ble. Some might questi slower tempo given to t ond theme, but the re contrast added to the i Anticipation of the qual
the remarkable "Jupiter" phony may be found in t velopment of the first ment. In all, the work less impressively as a fin
the night.

The third series of T
Concert Hall program week will include a Hayd gram Saturday night wit
ern works for chambe chestra and chorus afternoon. These will the six chamber orche certs before the fi weeks in the Shed by orchestra.—C. F. S.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD
JUL 12 19

3 Massachusetts M Honored by France

The French governme confer the Cross of Chev the Legion of Honor o
Massachusetts men Tues
Bastille Day ceremonies.

The awards will be pr
by Francois Charles-Roux, consul in Boston, at the co
Recipients will be Dr.
D. Churchill, chief of surgical services, Massach General Hospital; George E. manager of the Boston Sym Orchestra, and Henry R. Sh architect, Essex.

Knickerbocker News - Albany NY July 20/53

Stern Displays Artistry In Mozart Violin Concerto

The second week of Tanglewood concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch was devoted to music of Mozart. Another overflow audience Saturday night heard a program featuring the superb violinist Isaac Stern and the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments.

[illegible] weather also played a role. The orchestra was coatless and the humidity affected the strings, including the soloist's, and deadened the tympani tone.

In the opening Divertimento for Strings by the 16-year-old Mozart, one heard the simple, yet sparkling, rococo style of melody with bass support. Dominated by the violins, the trills and turns of the allegro changed to an elegaic andante of song-like beauty. Contrasts of pizzicato and bouncing-bow answers punctuated the presto.

Mr. Stern previously had been heard by this reviewer principally as a stunning virtuoso performer of the romantic and modern school of violin. His grasp of the classic G major concerto broadened this view and confirmed the estimate of his position as one of the great artists of today. A warm purity of tone with deft consideration of the full range of variation impressed one in its sheer beauty. Control and execution were a certainty, so that attention and adherence to every phrase of Mozartean style was his object.

Mr. Munch used the full string complement only in the tutti passages, permitting the soloist to produce an elegant tone. The muted adagio, taken at a deliberate tempo that would tax any other group, produced some of the loveliest effects, particularly as assisted by the arresting quality of flutist Doriot Anthony. The episodic final movement finished with such grace that the audience gave an ovation to the performers.

The Serenade in B flat major for 13 wind instruments, all reeds and horns, was an entertaining novelty. Using alto and bass clarinet instead of the obsolete basset horns, and contrabassoon for rich pedal effects, Mr. Munch brought a gem to light.

The program closed with a less interesting reading of the D major Symphony, the "Prague." After an opening adagio not up to Boston standards, the allegro found the orchestra again in perfect ensemble. Some might question the slower tempo given to the second theme, but the resulting contrast added to the interest. Anticipation of the qualities of the remarkable "Jupiter" symphony may be found in the development of the first movement. In all, the work served less impressively as a finale for the night.

The third series of Theater-Concert Hall programs this week will include a Hadyn program Saturday night with modern works for chamber orchestra and chorus Sunday afternoon. These will conclude the six chamber orchestra concerts before the final three weeks in the Shed by the full orchestra.—C. F. S.

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 12 1953

3 Massachusetts Men Honored by France

The French government will confer the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on three Massachusetts men Tuesday, at Bastille Day ceremonies.

The awards will be presented by Francois Charles-Roux, French consul in Boston, at the consulate. Recipients will be Dr. Edward D. Churchill, chief of general surgical services, Massachusetts General Hospital; George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and Henry R. Shepley, architect, Essex.

Tanglewood Concerts Set New Records

Waterbury, Conn.

(Special to The American)

Lenox, Mass., July 20 — Audiences of 10,100 set new high records for Mozart week-end concert attendance at Tanglewood Saturday and Sunday.

They heard the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under direction of Charles Munch, in shirt-sleeve performances of eight works by the Austrian master. Isaac Stern, young Russian - born, American schooled violinist, was soloist for the two programs.

Yesterday afternoon he joined the orchestra's first chair violist, Joseph de Pasquale, for a moving interpretation of the E flat double concerto for violin and viola, last presented at Tanglewood in 1949, when William Kroll played with Mr. de Pasquale.

Mr. Stern is an exacting and precise musician; Mr. de Pasquale no less so. The demands for musical eloquence, the richness of this sophisticated Mozart instrumental pairing, were fully met.

The rest of the week end program included Mozart's Divertimento in D major, for strings; the violin concerto in G major; B-flat Serenade for 13 wind instruments; and Prague (D major) symphony on Saturday; overture to the Marriage of Figaro, Eine Kleine Nachtmusik and Jupiter (C major) symphony on Sunday.

With the threat of rain, yesterday's concert was moved from the 1,200-seat Theater-Concert Hall to the more spacious Shed. The weatherman held off, however, but the audience of 4,300 still had opportunity to listen under cover and in shade, in the accoustically-perfect shell. Mozart would be amazed at the mass attendance for these divertimenti and serenades written for little garden party or drawing room intermissions.

The three "little concert" week ends preliminary to the major Festival programs end next week, with all Haydn scheduled for Saturday night, and a melange of Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Foss for Sunday afternoon.

FZ

This Clipping From
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.
GAZETTE

JUL 11 1953

Music Festival At Tanglewood Opens Tonight

The Berkshire Music festival at Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., will open its six weekends of 15 concerts tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Theatre-Concert hall. Charles Munch will conduct a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony men in a program featuring five of the J. S. Bach Brandenburg concertos.

The second program in the series, also all Bach, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Soloists tonight will include Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin, and Lukas Foss, piano.

* * *

SOLOISTS TOMORROW will include Miss Anthony in the Bach Suite in B minor for flute and strings; also Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum, tenor; and Mac Morgan, bass, in the Cantata number 28.

A few seats remain for tonight's and tomorrow afternoon's concerts and general admission to the grounds also will be sold.

Mozart concerts on July 18 and 19 are sold out but general admission to the grounds will be available. A few seats are available for the July 25 all-Haydn program and the July 26 20th Century composers. The major Berkshire festival with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony orchestra participating, will open in the Tanglewood Music shed on July 31.

STANDARD-TIMES, NEW B

Mass by Haydn To Be Presented

Premiere of Cantata Set at Tanglewood

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 18—The music of Haydn will be played next Saturday night and works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukes Foss will be performed next Sunday afternoon in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood during the third weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts.

These will be the orchestra's last concerts in the 1,152-seat theater. The following week the major Festival concerts will commence in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform, with Charles Munch conducting. Hugh Ross will lead the Haydn Theresa Mass and Mr. Foss will conduct his cantata, "A Parable of Death," in its New England premiere.

This weekend's concerts are devoted to the music of Mozart. Tonight's concert featured Isaac Stern as violin soloist in Mozart's Concerto in G for Violin (K.216). Mr. Stern will team with Joseph de Pasquele, the Boston Symphony's first viola player, as soloists in the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (K.364), as highlight of tomorrow's 2:30 p. m. concert.

Will Be Broadcast

Next Sunday afternoon's concert will be the first of four Festival performances to be broadcast nationally by CBS as the only American event in the network's World Music Festivals program, which includes highlights from seven European Summer festivals.

Vera Zorina, for whom "A Parable of Death" was commissioned last season by the Louisville Orchestra, will be narrator at the Tanglewood performance of the cantata. Tenor soloist will be John McCollum of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and a chorus of other Berkshire Music Center students will participate.

The cantata had its premiere in Louisville last March, and has since been heard in New York in April and at the Ojai Festival in California in May. The text is translated by Anthony Hecht from "Stories of God" by the Austrian writer, Rainer Maria Rilke. Miss Zorina, who has appeared in Max Reinhardt productions in Berlin, in ballet in London with Anton Dolin and in America with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, in many films and on Broadway will make her first appearance at Tanglewood.

The Haydn Theresa Mass, highlight of next Saturday's 8:30 p. m. concert, will have as soloists Lois McCauley of Trenton, N. J., soprano; Beatrice Krebs, New York City, alto; Mr. McCollum, tenor, and Lee Cass of New York City, bass. All are students in the opera department of the Music Center.

Programs Given

Complete programs for next weekend's concerts follow:

Next Saturday—Theresa Mass: Symphony in C Minor No. 95, and Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100, all by Haydn.

Next Sunday — Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86, by Strauss; "Le Tombeau de Couperin," suite, by Ravel; "Classical" Symphony, Op. 25, by Prokofieff; "La Creation du Monde" by Milhaud and "A Parable of Death" by Foss.

Next week's concerts by students of the school at Tanglewood, open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose support helps to maintain it, will be: Opera scenes (Department IV students), Tuesday night in the Theater-Concert Hall; small choir (Department II students), Thursday night in the Theater-Concert Hall; orchestra (Department I students), Friday night in the Music Shed; chamber music (Department I students), Sunday morning in the Chamber Music Hall; and composers' forum (Department III students) next Sunday night in the Chamber Music Hall.

Lennox

The Berkshire program this week-end is all Mozart and Isaac Stern is the soloist with the Boston Symphony. We're going up and so will report about it in full next week; but here's what we'll hear: Saturday at 8:30—The Divertimento in D, the Violin Concerto in G (K216), the Serenade for 13 winds, and the Prague Symphony. Sunday at 2:30 the symphony will be the Jupiter, the concerto will be the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (Joseph de Pasquale with Isaac Stern in this one.) Also on the program, the overtur to "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik".

Next Wednesday a violin (Ruth Posselt) and piano (Gary Graffman) recital will feature music of Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS

JUL 14 1953

Noted Musicians Talking Shop

James Stagliano (left) principal horn player with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, chats with Carlos Chavez, distinguished Mexican composer-conductor, who is guest composer on the Tanglewood faculty, in this informal shot taken at the Berkshire Music Festival at Lenox.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
JOURNAL

JUL 12 1953

Isaac Stern, Joseph de Pasquale will be Tanglewood soloists.

All-Mozart Programs Are Scheduled at Tanglewood

MOZART will take over at the second weekend pair of Berkshire Festival programs in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., next Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. Charles Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in both concerts. Isaac Stern, violinist, and Joseph de Pasquale, viola, will be soloists.

Saturday night's all-Mozart program, starting at 8:30 o'clock, is announced as follows: Divertimento in D, for Strings (K.136); Concerto for Violin, in G (K.216), Isaac Stern, soloist; Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K.361); and Symphony in D ("Prague") K.-504).

The following Mozart compositions will form the Sunday afternoon program, at 2:30 o'clock: Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale, soloists; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" (K.525), and Symphony in C major ("Jupiter") (K.551).

STUDENTS OF THE Berkshire Music Center will give the first of six weekly chamber music concerts in the Chamber Music Hall this morning at 10 o'clock. In the same hall tonight at 8:30 o'clock the first composers' forum will be held. Compositions of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

The first of four "live" radio broadcasts of the Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be presented this afternoon from 2:30 to 4 o'clock by the C. B. S. network.

[204]

* * *

Boston Symphony Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Season 1953

Berkshire Festival

AT TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, MASS.

Concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall

Saturday Evenings at 8:30 • Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Saturday Evening, July 11—Charles Munch

Bach .... Brandenburg Concertos
- No. 1, in F
- No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
- No. 3, in G (strings)
- No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin)
- No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday Afternoon, July 12—Charles Munch

Bach .... Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Bach . . . Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony)
Bach .... Suite No. 3, in D major

Saturday Evening, July 18—Charles Munch

Mozart...... Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart........... Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart........ Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart......... Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)

Sunday Afternoon, July 19—Charles Munch

Mozart........................ Overture to "Figaro"
Mozart. . . Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale)
Mozart........... Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart.... Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)

Saturday Evening, July 25—Charles Munch

Haydn.......... Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Haydn................ Symphony in C minor, No. 95
Haydn......... Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday Afternoon, July 26—Charles Munch

Strauss....... Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
Ravel............ "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
Prokofieff........... "Classical" Symphony, Op. 25
Milhaud................. "La Création du Monde"
Foss......................... "A Parable of Death"
(Narrator: Vera Zorina) (Conducted by the Composer)

CONCERTS IN THE SHED
July 31–August 16

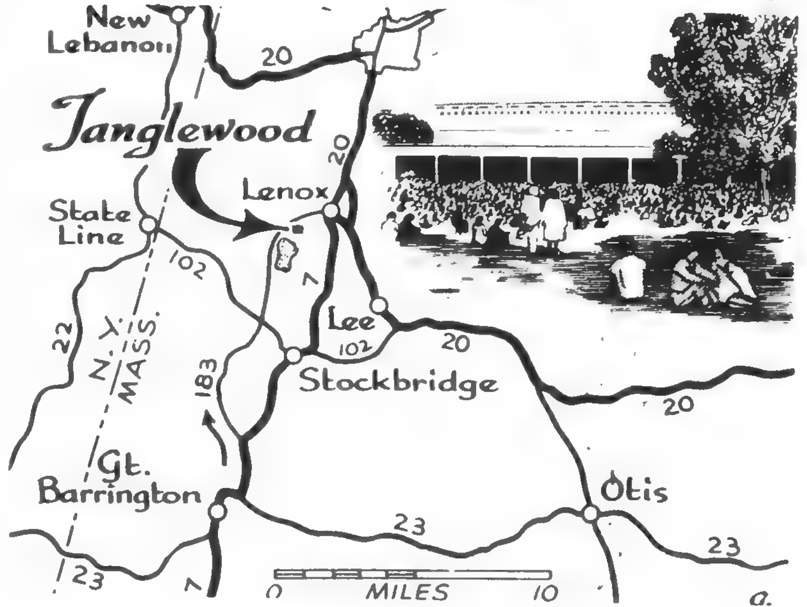
SINGLE TICKETS on sale at Tanglewood
Lenox, Mass.
Theater-Concert Series: $4 and $5.
Shed Series: $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50 and $6.50

Conductors:
CHARLES MUNCH PIERRE MONTEUX
LEONARD BERNSTEIN

THE BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
15 Concerts by the
Boston Symphony Orchestra

* * *

Tanglewood Tempo Quickens



FAMOUS SOLOISTS
DRAW CROWDS
AT FESTIVAL

All signs point to a record-breaking season as the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood approaches the halfway point. The Big Shed Concerts will begin Friday evening, July 31, with Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducting. Two more weekends remain in the Theatre-Concert Hall Series, with Conductor Munch on the podium. Critical acclaim has testified to the succes of the 1953 season. The star-studded list of soloists for the various programs has brought music lovers from ever greater distances to the beautiful setting at Tanglewood.

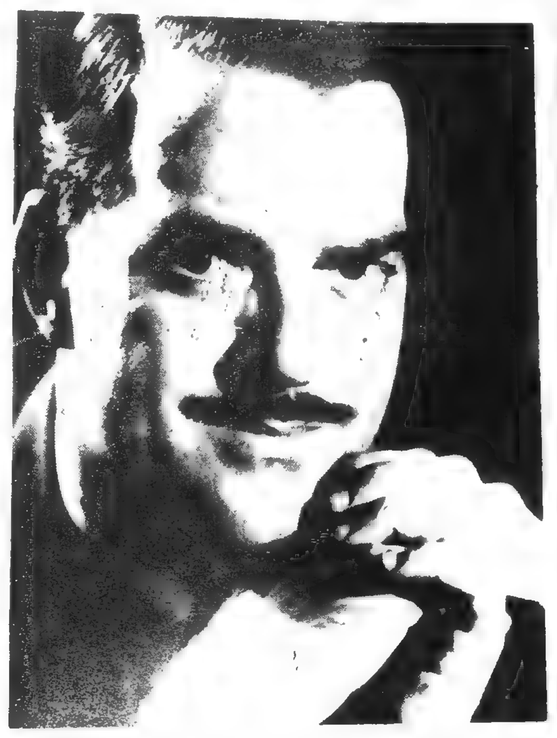
Conductor Charles Munch brings the Boston Symphony Orchestra to its greatest peak at Tanglewood. (Right) Mr. Munch is shown in conversation with Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein (right) who will also conduct at Tanglewood this summer

Photos by Plouffe

(for pictures of soloists, see inside back-cover)

TS TO BE HEA
TANGLEWOOD

Vera Zorina - July 26



Bolet - August 2

This Clipping From
LAWRENCE, MASS.
EAGLE

Donate Records

The record collection of Symphony, classical and light operatic music at the Ipswich public library is growing. [illegible] have been received from Mr. and Mrs. G. Dexter [illegible] presented Ravel's "Bolero" played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Beethoven's "Concerto [illegible] Major" played by the NBC Symphony Orchestra. [illegible] "Symphony Number 5 [illegible]" played by the London [illegible] ic orchestra, Beethoven's [illegible] in C Sharp Minor" played by [illegible] erewski and [illegible] featuring Lotte Lehmann's [illegible]

This Clipp
BOSTON, MORNING

JUL 5 -

In Western

Natu

In 1929, the looking for a qui to Pittsfield and
ing bits of locally paved streets, eig
ance company, churches, complet water in plenty."

Its attraction material, with the setts providing pe
mer cultural offeri and small, clear l

By next week, the country's man-create tions will all be in
The Summer Playhous bridge has been in since June 22. Its re of scenery painters and can be seen at work outside the theatre's b almost any time you

Jacob's Pillow

This week-end is t
opening of the Jaco Dance Festival, abou
south of East Lee. O (that winding, up and ay between Lenox a eld named Jacob's rly settlers), the F ot its title of Jacob's F large rock on the ori ty thus called sinc
mes.

Up to last Wedne
hawn, the Festival's
t director, was worki eeves with other m troupe, making im
the barn properties blishment. "See the my hands," he observ

"When I dance
mber now, I almost tincts."

he results of his year include mor
acing in the theat
e concrete paths
king, and a number ches installed to early arrivals w
re performances.

anglewood and Mu

nglewood and the Festival are p st lure the Weste
ts hills offer the
This year, the Su opens July 11-12, n the Theater-Co first 3 weeks. F of the season, aft
Boston Symphony Orch

PITTSFIELD, BERKSHIRE

JUL 2 -

Former

Painter of F
And Landsc
Takes up Po

Mrs. Louis Joselo
monwealth Avenue given a one-man sho ings at G. Fox & C ford. Incidentally, hind," as she modest which is a high perc for three days of a hibit.

All Mrs. Joseloff's been done while main well-run home and ily, which she did eq though she liked to child, and was consid an artistic bent, she lesson until she came from New York on h
riage to the late atto

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JUL 2 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Concerts Will Open At Lenox On July 11

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening, July 11, at 8:30 p.m., in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed July 31-August 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 are the famous performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2, and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1 in F; No. 2, in F with the following soloistst from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m. the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists are Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2 in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3 in D Major.

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center this Sunday at 3:30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening (July 10) at 8:30 p. m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together. The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning (July 12) at 10:00 a. m. Sunday, evening at 8:30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lucas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all Festival concerts. Programs for the Festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JUL 1 - 1953

About People

BY GRACE DAVIDSON

* * *

Madame Olga Koussevitzky, widow of the la Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor, joined work two years ago. No one is too big or too sm These 40 and 50-year-old Boston girls are amazin appearance. They have no difficulty in making cause.

Mrs. Bieringer explains their work is so fasc her back more than she gives to it. She says th old-looking woman among them; some of the w 70's and 80's. Last year they enrolled the famous Keller. No one seems safe from being trapped their spell.

[205]

Boston Symphony Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Season 1953

Berkshire Festival

AT TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, MASS.

Concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall

Saturday Evenings at 8:30 • Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Saturday Evening, July 11—Charles Munch

Bach........................Brandenburg Concertos
No. 1, in F
No. 2, in F (with flute, oboe, trumpet and violin)
No. 3, in G (strings)
No. 5, in D (with piano, flute and violin)
No. 6, in B-flat (strings)

Sunday Afternoon, July 12—Charles Munch

Bach..........Cantata No. 28, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Bach... Suite No. 2, in B minor, for Flute and Strings
(Soloist: Doriot Anthony)
Bach........................Suite No. 3, in D major

Saturday Evening, July 18—Charles Munch

Mozart......Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136)
Mozart...........Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216)
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart........Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361)
Mozart.........Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504)

Sunday Afternoon, July 19—Charles Munch

Mozart.......................Overture to "Figaro"
Mozart....Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364)
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale)
Mozart........... Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525)
Mozart....Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551)

Saturday Evening, July 25—Charles Munch

Haydn..........Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by Hugh Ross)
Haydn................Symphony in C minor, No. 95
Haydn.........Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday Afternoon, July 26—Charles Munch

Strauss.......Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
Ravel............"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
Prokofieff...........“Classical” Symphony, Op. 25
Milhaud.................."La Création du Monde"

Foss.........................."A Parable of Death"
(Narrator: Vera Zorina) (Conducted by the Composer)

CONCERTS IN THE SHED
July 31–August 16

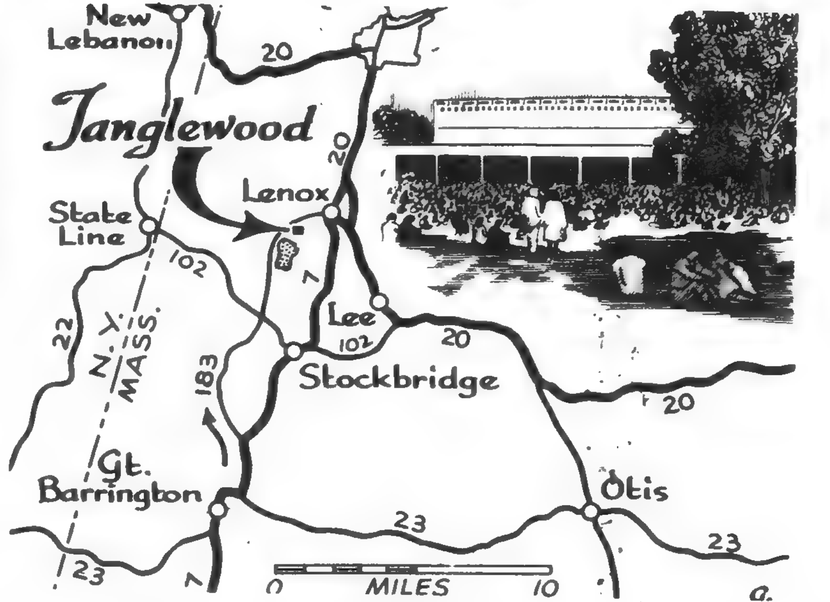
SINGLE TICKETS on sale at Tanglewood
Lenox, Mass.
Theater-Concert Series: $4 and $5.
Shed Series: $2.50, $3, $3.50, $4, $5.50 and $6.50

Conductors:
CHARLES MUNCH PIERRE MONTEUX
LEONARD BERNSTEIN

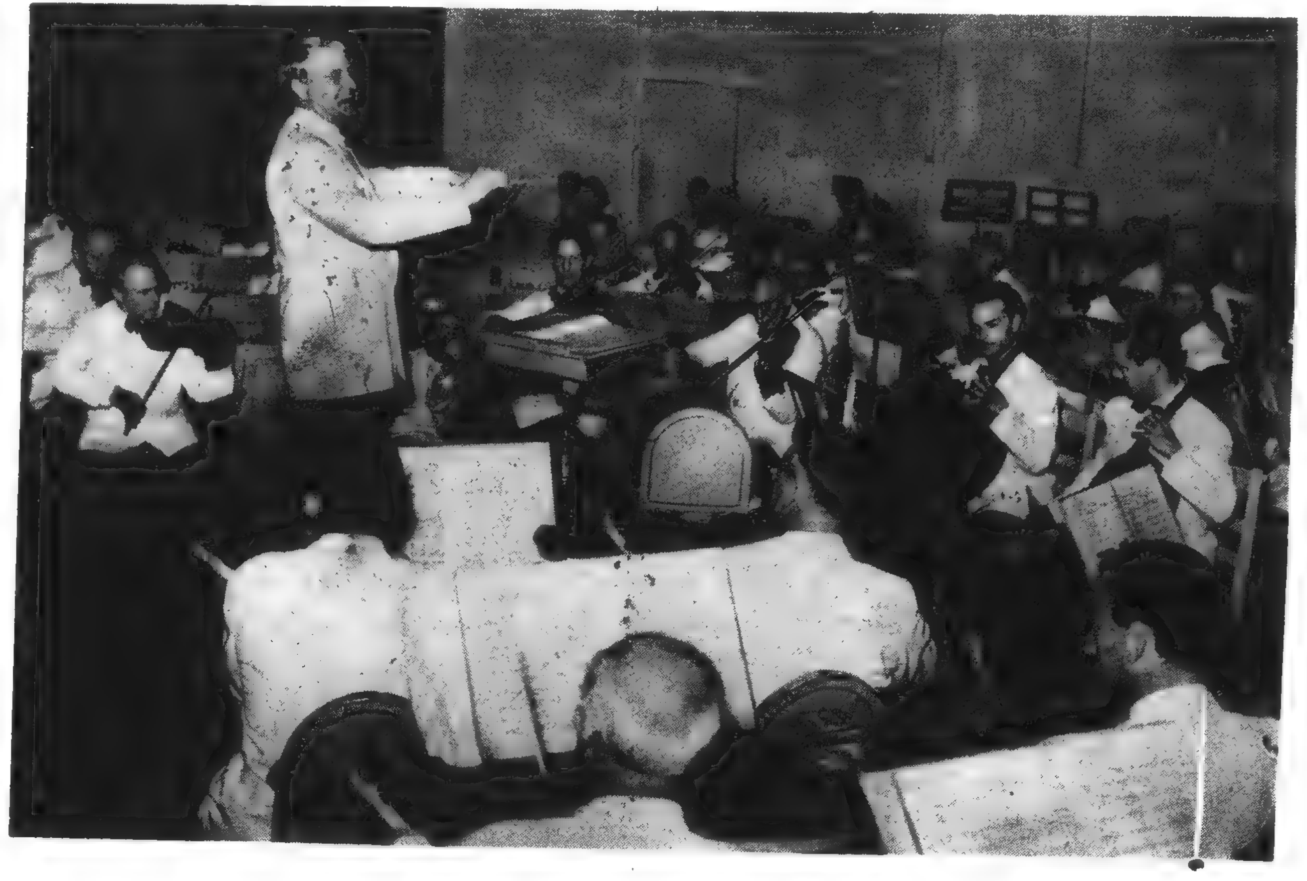
THE BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
15 Concerts by the
Boston Symphony Orchestra

Tanglewood Tempo Quickens



FAMOUS SOLOISTS DRAW CROWDS AT FESTIVAL

All signs point to a record-breaking season as the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood approaches the halfway point. The Big Shed Concerts will begin Friday evening, July 31, with Charles Munch, director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducting. Two more weekends remain in the Theatre-Concert Hall Series, with Conductor Munch on the podium. Critical acclaim has testified to the succes of the 1953 season. The star-studded list of soloists for the various programs has brought music lovers from ever greater distances to the beautiful setting at Tanglewood.



Conductor Charles Munch brings the Boston Symphony Orchestra to its greatest peak at Tanglewood. (Right) Mr. Munch is shown in conversation with Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein (right) who will also conduct at Tanglewood this summer

Photos by Plouffe

(for pictures of soloists, see inside back-cover)

S STS TO BE HEARD
T TANGLEWOOD

de Pasquale -

Vera Zorina - July 26

Jorge Bolet - August 2

This Clipping From
LAWRENCE, MASS.
EAGLE

JUL 11 1953

Donate Records

The record collection of Symphony, classical and light operatic music at the Ipswich public library is growing. Recent gifts have been received from Mr. and Mrs. G. Dexter Herndon, who presented Ravel's "Bolero" played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra; Beethoven's "Concerto in D. Major" played by the NBC Symphony Orchestra. Beethoven's "Symhony Number 5 in C Minor" played by the London Philharmonic orchestra; Beethoven's "Sonata in C Sharp Minor" played by Paderewski; and a Brahm's recital featuring Lotte Lehmann, soprano.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE

JUL 2 - 1953

Berkshire Festival Concerts Will Open At Lenox On July 11

The 16th Berkshire Festival since concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts in 1934, the fourteenth since the Boston-Symphony Orchestra participated, will commence its six week ends of 15 concerts on Saturday evening, July 11, at 8:30 p.m., in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in two programs devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach.

The three week ends of Bach, Mozart, Haydn concerts, July 11-26, which precede the major Berkshire Festival, with the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed. July 31-August 16, have proven more popular each year, until the audience on the lawn exceeds that within the 1152-seat auditorium.

Features of the Bach concerts July 11-12 are the famous performance of young American composer-conductor-pianist Lukas Foss of the piano solo in the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5; the first appearance at Tanglewood of Miss Doriot Anthony, flutist, the first woman ever to become a principal with Boston's famed orchestra, in the Brandenburg Concertos No. 2 and 5, and in the Suite No. 2, and the performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of Bach's Cantata No. 28, with chorus and soloists, to be conducted by Hugh Ross.

Mr. Munch will open the Berkshire Festival on Saturday with five of the six Brandenburg Concertos. They are: No. 1 in F; No. 2, in F with the following soloistst from the orchestra: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet; Richard Burgin, violin; No. 3, in G (strings); No. 5, in D (Lukas Foss, piano; Miss Anthony, flute; Mr. Burgin, violin); No. 6, in B-flat (strings).

Sunday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 p. m. the program will commence with the Bach Cantata No. 28, Hugh Ross conducting. Soloists are Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, alto; John McCollum tenor; Mac Morgan, bass. Miss Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2 in B minor, for Flute and Strings. The program will conclude with the Suite No. 3 in D Major.

Following opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center this Sunday at 3:30 p. m. in the Theater-Concert Hall, the first school performance will be given Friday evening (July 10) at 8:30 p. m. in the Music Shed, when for the first time the symphony orchestra of talented students will play together. The first of six weekly chamber music concerts will be given in the Chamber Music Hall Sunday morning (July 12) at 10:00 a. m. Sunday, evening at 8:30 p. m., also in the Chamber Music Hall, the first composers' forum will be held, when the works of those studying with Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lucas Foss will be performed by their fellow students and commented upon. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support it, are invited to all performances at the school.

Tickets are available at the Tanglewood box office for all Festival concerts. Programs for the Festival and a calendar of the more than 50 events at the school, with information on how to join the Friends' Society, will be mailed on request.

BOSTON, MASS.
POST

JUL 1 - 1953

About People

BY GRACE DAVIDSON

• • •

Madame Olga Koussevitzky, widow of the late and illustrious Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor, joined the Youth Aliyah work two years ago. No one is too big or too small for enlistment. These 40 and 50-year-old Boston girls are amazingly attractive in appearance. They have no difficulty in making captives for their cause.

Mrs. Bieringer explains their work is so fascinating that it gives her back more than she gives to it. She says that there is not an old-looking woman among them; some of the women are in their 70's and 80's. Last year they enrolled the famous 72-year-old Helen Keller. No one seems safe from being trapped in the magic of their spell.

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

JUL 5 - 1953

In Western Massachusetts:

Nature Plus in the Berkshires

By SELMA GORDON

In 1929, the casual traveler in his Model A, out looking for a quiet spot to spend a vacation, was lured to Pittsfield and the Berkshire country with the following bits of locally issued encouragement: "Pittsfield has paved streets, eight banking institutions, one life insurance company, three fire insurance companies, 35 churches, complete railroad and trolley service and pure water in plenty."

[illegible] attractions today lean slightly less toward the [illegible] with the rolling country of Western Massachusetts [illegible] perhaps as great a concentration of Summer [illegible] cultural offerings per square inch of green-blue hills [illegible] clear lakes as any region in the nation.

[illegible] week, the Berkshire [illegible] man-created attractions will be in full swing. [illegible] Playhouse at Stockbridge [illegible] been in operation [illegible]. Its resident group [illegible] and set-makers [illegible] at work inside and [illegible] theatre's big red barn [illegible] time you drive by.

[illegible] is the season's [illegible] Jacob's Pillow [illegible] about 9 miles [illegible]. Off Route 20 [illegible] down road- [illegible] and Spring- [illegible] Ladder by [illegible] Festival spot [illegible] Pillow from [illegible] original prop- [illegible] since Colonial [illegible]

[illegible] Wednesday. Ted [illegible] founder [illegible] in shirt [illegible] members of [illegible] making improvements [illegible] of the es- [illegible] the callouses [illegible] he observed proud- [illegible] dance a Spanish [illegible] almost don't need [illegible]

The [illegible] of his handiwork [illegible] year [illegible] more flagstone [illegible] the theatre garden, [illegible] paths for easier [illegible] a number of outdoor benches [illegible] to accommodate [illegible] who picnic before performances.

Of Tanglewood and Music

Tanglewood and the Berkshire Music Festival are perhaps the greatest lure the Western Massachusetts hills offer the world at large. This year, the Summer program opens July 11-12 with concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall for the first 3 weeks. For the last weeks of the season, after the full Boston Symphony Orchestra arrives, concerts are held in the great, wedge-shaped Shed. (One half the orchestra is left in Boston through the 25th of the month to provide music for the outdoor Esplanade Concerts.)

During its peak Summer weeks, Tanglewood accommodates up to 6000 people at a single performance. Tickets range from $2.80 and $3.50 for Shed concerts to $4 and $5 for offerings in the theater. General admission, which means a seat on the grass where hearing is fine but seeing is a matter of first-come-first-served, is $2.00. Grounds open an hour before concert time.

The trend toward informality which has reached new heights in recent seasons (with picnicking allowed and even dancing on the grass) has had the line drawn at ladies who arrive in shorts. For the third season, the management will politely hand any guest so attired a Tanglewood grass skirt for the concert's duration.

Though the Berkshire Festival has been around since 1936, it was not the first marriage of music and nature in Western Massachusetts. Just outside Pittsfield traveling South, there is a good cinder-covered auto road up South Mountain. Here, in the '20s, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the precurser to today's Tanglewood programs began. Chamber Music concerts, featuring some of the world's leading artists were presented each Summer. Though the South Mountain Music Foundation has since moved to Washington, D. C., the concert shed still stands on the mountain. Each year, at the end of the Tanglewood season, South Mountain takes over, for old time's sake and on a small scale, to provide concerts through September.

Why various forms of outdoor Summer culture chose the Berkshires as a Summer home is not hard to see. The countryside makes for an ideal natural backdrop. It would never intrude on a concert listener or a ballet viewer. It is not spectacular enough to demand constant visual attention. It is quiet, reassuring and restful. The Berkshire country can be appreciated slowly and wears well over extended periods of time.

Places of interest in the immediate vicinity of Tanglewood include the Indian Mission House and the Berkshire Garden Center (a good picnic spot) in Stockbridge; "Arrowhead" in Pittsfield where Herman Melville wrote Moby Dick; and the remains of a small Shaker Village at Hancock (West Pittsfield) although the natives will tell you there's a bigger and better Shaker Village right across the border in New York State.

WEEK-END GUIDE TO BERKSHIRES: From Boston, there is the northern route, out on 2, through Fitchburg, Greenfield and over the Mohawk Trail with its famous hairpin turn into North Adams and the Berkshire country. There is also the southern route, out 20, through Waltham, Marlboro, Old Sturbridge Village, Springfield and the Jacob's Ladder Trail into Lenox. Motels and inns are filled early and wherever possible reservations should be made in advance of trip. If you are on a day trip to Tanglewood concert, plan to arrive early and stay late to avoid traffic tie-ups. At Tolland State Forest on Rte. 8 (south of West Becket), there are tent sites and facilities for overnight camping. Savoy State Forest, on Rte. 116 south of Adams, has cabins and tent sites: Windsor State Forest just beyond Savoy on Rte. 116 has overnight camping facilities. There is good swimming at Laurel Lake (south of Lenox, Rte. 7) at Onota Lake (just west of Pittsfield) and at Pontoosuc Lake (north of Pittsfield) where it is rumored arrowheads and pottery from Indian days can still be found when the water is very low. Off on a good, dirt road north of Adams is a very famous natural marble bridge span. At Dalton, north of Pittsfield on Rte. 9, paper for paper money has been made since Revolutionary times, and the Crane Paper Museum welcomes visitors. There is a good auto route up Mt. Greylock (3500 ft.), the highest mountain in Massachusetts, reached by taking U. S. 7 north through Lanesboro. As a variation on the way home, take the Berkshire Trail (Rte. 9) from Pittsfield to Northampton, and continue on 9 through to the Worcester Turnpike and back into Boston.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 12 1953

Our Hilltown Neighbors

By DAVID J. MALCOLM

Tanglewood opened its concert season on Sunday without us, much to our disappointment, for almost without interruption we have been at Tanglewood each year since the project started. We would not attempt to try to say how many years ago it was but we were among those who attended concerts in the tent during the formative years before the Music Shed was built.

For those people who have frequently planned to take in a concert or two, but have hesitated from year to year because they were not familiar with the set-up, perhaps a few words of explanation may not be amiss. In general the program is divided into three parts. The first is the summer school of music where talented young musicians from all over the nation gather to take advanced work in this branch of the arts. A large number of the students have already established names for themselves before coming to Tanglewood. Consequently, concerts presented by these young people are far from amateurish. These programs are open without charge to Friends of the Music Center, a group of people who contribute each year to the support of the school of music. Dr. Lewis Perry is the director of the school and may be contacted during the summer at Lenox for further information on the matter.

The second division of the general program is a series of concerts held in the Music Theater during the earlier week ends of the summer, with Dr. Charles Munch conducting. These concerts are very delightful and very popular and are less expensive to attend than are concerts held later, in the Music Shed.

The third division of the general program is a series of great concerts with the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed to an audience coming from the far corners of the world. A pleasant feature of concerts in the shed is that a great many music lovers who for one reason or another, did not secure tickets for the shed, enjoy sitting on the spacious lawns that surround the building and listening to the music from afar. Admission tickets to the grounds are available at the gate immediately preceding each concert.

But enough of wistful thinking, concerning pleasant summer Sundays spent at Tanglewood in years gone by.

* * *

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
TIMES
JUL 12 1953

Radio Still An Excellent Music Medium

By JACK GRAVES
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 11—If there were such a thing as an official theme song for the radio industry these days, it would have to be "You Can't Take That Away From Me"—with "that" referring to music.

Television may have taken most of the cream, but the rich and heady world of sharps and flats—especially in the classical field—is still peculiarly radio's.

"Television actually has done nothing for music," said James Fassett, director of music for CBS radio, expressing not only his own opinion but the concensus of those who work with or merely enjoy music as an audience.

Sound All-Important

"This is because the sound is the all-important thing, hearing the all-important sense involved in appreciating music. The person who enjoys good music may sit in an auditorium with hundreds of others at a concert or recital with his eyes wide open, but once the music starts he is scarcely conscious of seeing those about him or the artists providing the music. All other senses are totally subordinate to that of hearing.

"As a matter of fact, watching a music program on television can detract from the music, no matter how well played. Although the viewer wouldn't be distracted by what he saw if he were sitting through a concert in an auditorium, he can't escape the intrusion of the sense of seeing on the sense of hearing when he's in his own living room with that screen in front of him. You can't escape being aware of it and its changing picture."

A Recording Tour

Fassett, who has been commentator for the New York Philharmonic - Symphony broadcasts for four years, left by plane recently for Rome on the first leg of an all-summer junket that will result in a steady diet of the world's best music for millions of music fans in the United States.

Fasset will record on tape the in-performance highlights of Leopold Stokowski conducting the Santa Cecelia Orchestra of Rome, the Wagnerian Opera Festival at Bayreuth, the first international Bergen Music Festival in Norway, the International Festival of Music and Drama in Edinburgh, The Netherlands Festival, the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy, the Salzburg Festival in Austria, the Sibelius Festival in Helsinki and the Tanglewood Festival in Stockbridge, Mass.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 2 - 1953

Former Rose Eisner Has Hartford Exhibit

Painter of Flowers And Landscapes Takes up Portraits

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Joseloff of Pittsfield, Hartford and Altadena, Cal., relax during the hanging of 25 of Mrs. Joseloff's paintings in one-man show at G. Fox and Company, Hartford department store.

Mrs. Louis Joseloff of 69 Commonwealth Avenue last week was given a one-man show of her paintings at G. Fox & Company, Hartford. Incidentally, she "left 12 behind," as she modestly expressed it, which is a high percentage of sales for three days of a 25-picture exhibit.

All Mrs. Joseloff's painting has been done while maintaining a very well-run home and raising a family, which she did equally well. Although she liked to draw when a child, and was considered to have an artistic bent, she never had a lesson until she came to Pittsfield from New York on her first marriage to the late attorney, Michael L. Eisner. She continues to use the name of Rose Eisner on her paintings.

Studying with Robert and Ethel Hamilton, Martin Hoy and Francis Day, Mrs. Joseloff painted still life, flowers and landscapes. Last year she took portrait painting with Jerry Farnsworth in Sarasota, Fla. "While I was studying with him I thought I wasn't getting anything, but after I tried a portrait and realized he had taught me something," Mrs. Joseloff says. "I have since done two portraits of my husband. They came out pretty well, don't you think so, Louis?" Mr. Joseloff agreed that they had.

"I wish that I had taken up portrait painting earlier," Mrs. Joseloff continued. "I'm going to do some more as soon as I have time." With her schedule, one wonders how soon that will be. Dividing the summer between Pittsfield and Hartford, her husband's former home, and working on the Art League, Berkshire Association and sidewalk shows, there isn't much time left for painting, but she will manage it.

Mrs. Joseloff's landscapes no longer are limited to the Berkshire Hills, and her flowers now include those of the arid West. "Southern California is a wonderland for flower painters," she says. "We have lovely gardens, and calla lilies grow there like weeds."

When she lived in Pittsfield the year round, Mrs. Joseloff worked hard at painting and promoting a local interest in art. She is a charter member of the Pittsfield Art League and was for five years its president. She was chairman of the league's annual exhibit and outdoor sale of paintings in front of the Berkshire Museum during recent Tanglewood Festivals, and was chairman of the Berkshire Art Association which last year started an annual are festival, bringing in artists from a 70-mile radius.

The Joseloffs will leave in September for Altadena, Cal., their winter home, and a trip to Hawaii, which is about the only part of the world Mr. Joseloff hasn't seen, as travel is his hobby. His wife's next show may be expected to contain not only portraits, but Pacific landscapes.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 3 - 1953

Resort Business in High Gear As Berkshire Festival Nears

LENOX—Following a relatively slack month of June in some areas of the resort and tourist business here, the 4th of July week end is expected to begin the busy season—to be maintained by the Berkshire Festival which begins next week.

Reports on June business have been mixed, with some types of vacation businesses thriving and others reporting a disappointing month. Most all, however, expect a busy July and August.

Among those reporting a prosperous June was George Turain, owner-manager of the Curtis Hotel. He said his house count was up 20 per cent for the month and that food and liquor business was up 30 per cent. Part of this increase was due to several conventions held there during June. Requests for reservations through the non-convention season are also well above normal, however.

Resorts reporting increases were Music Inn, Seven Hills and Festival House, but all explain the increase by the fact that their businesses were relatively new last year. Philip Barber of Music Inn says that reservations there were up 15 per cent during June. Business is expected to continue on a high level there with the Tanglewood concerts beginning next week end, followed by Music Inn's own jazz round table.

Motels Cutting In

Most of the reports of relatively slack business during June come from the small guest house operators. One claim is that the new series of motels on the Pittsfield road siphons off much of this transient business. Another claim is that poor weather during early June and a trend towards later season vacations are the cause.

Another problem mentioned by some of the operators is the fact that many people who used to reserve rooms for the entire week as they planned to come to Lenox by Thursday anyway, are now coming up for the week ends only because of the shift in concert nights at Tanglewood. The concert which used to be Thursday evenings has been switched to Friday evenings.

But with no concerts scheduled for this week end, there will still be well over a thousand vacationers in town, many of them to remain throughout the week. Eastover alone has 430 reservations for the week end, some of them farmed out at accommodations all the way up to Church Hill. Accommodations on the Eastover grounds have been booked solid well into August.

Also overflowing this week end and booked near capacity into August are several of the smaller resorts with accommodations for between 75 and 125 each.

206

This Clipping From
BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

JUL 5 - 1953

In Western Massachusetts:

Nature Plus in the Berkshires

By SELMA GORDON

In 1929, the casual traveler in his Model A, out looking for a quiet spot to spend a vacation, was lured to Pittsfield and the Berkshire country with the following bits of locally issued encouragement: "Pittsfield has paved streets, eight banking institutions, one life insurance company, three fire insurance companies, 35 churches, complete railroad and trolley service and pure water in plenty."

Its attractions today lean slightly less toward the material, with the rolling country of Western Massachusetts providing perhaps as great a concentration of Summer cultural offerings per square inch of green-blue hills and small, clear lakes as any region in the nation.

By next week, the Berkshire country's man-created attractions will all be in full swing. The Summer Playhouse at Stockbridge has been in operation since June 22. Its resident group of scenery painters and set-makers can be seen at work inside and outside the theatre's big red barn almost any time you drive by.

Jacob's Pillow

This week-end is the season's opening of the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, about 9 miles south of East Lee. Off Route 20 (that winding, up and down roadway between Lenox and Springfield named Jacob's Ladder by early settlers), the Festival spot got its name of Jacob's Pillow from a large rock on the original property, thus called since Colonial times.

Up to last Wednesday, Ted Shawn, the Festival's founder and director, was working in shirt sleeves with other members of his troupe, making improvements on the barn properties of the establishment. "See the callouses on my hands," he observed proudly. "When I dance a Spanish number now, I almost don't need castinets."

The results of his handiwork this year include more flagstone terracing in the theatre garden, more concrete paths for easier walking, and a number of outdoor benches installed to accommodate early arrivals who picnic before performances.

Of Tanglewood and Music

Tanglewood and the Berkshire Music Festival are perhaps the greatest lure the Western Massachusetts hills offer the world at large. This year, the Summer program opens July 11-12, with concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall for the first 3 weeks. For the last weeks of the season, after the full Boston Symphony Orchestra arrives, concerts are held in the great, wedge-shaped Shed. (One half the orchestra is left in Boston through the 25th of the month to provide music for the outdoor Esplanade Concerts.)

During its peak Summer weeks, Tanglewood accommodates up to 6000 people at a single performance. Tickets range from $2.50 and $3.50 for Shed concerts to $4 and $5 for offerings in the theater. General admission, which means a seat on the grass where hearing is fine but seeing is a matter of first-come-first-served, is $2.00. Grounds open an hour before concert time.

The trend toward informality which has reached new heights in recent seasons (with picnicking allowed and even dancing on the grass) has had the line drawn at ladies who arrive in shorts. For the third season, the management will politely hand any guest so attired a Tanglewood grass skirt for the concert's duration.

Though the Berkshire Festival has been around since 1936, it was not the first marriage of music and nature in Western Massachusetts. Just outside Pittsfield traveling South, there is a good cinder-covered auto road up South Mountain. Here, in the '20s, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the precurser to today's Tanglewood programs began. Chamber Music concerts, featuring some of the world's leading artists were presented each Summer. Though the South Mountain Music Foundation has since moved to Washington, D. C., the concert shed still stands on the mountain. Each year, at the end of the Tanglewood season, South Mountain takes over, for old time's sake and on a small scale, to provide concerts through September.

Why various forms of outdoor Summer culture chose the Berkshires as a Summer home is not hard to see. The countryside makes for an ideal natural backdrop. It would never intrude on a concert listener or a ballet viewer. It is not spectacular enough to demand constant visual attention. It is quiet, reassuring and restful. The Berkshire country can be appreciated slowly and wears well over extended periods of time.

Places of interest in the immediate vicinity of Tanglewood include the Indian Mission House and the Berkshire Garden Center (a good picnic spot) in Stockbridge; "Arrowhead" in Pittsfield where Herman Melville wrote Moby Dick; and the remains of a small Shaker Village at Hancock (West Pittsfield) although the natives will tell you there's a bigger and better Shaker Village right across the border in New York State.

WEEK-END GUIDE TO BERKSHIRES: From Boston, there is the northern route, out on 2, through Fitchburg, Greenfield and over the Mohawk Trail with its famous hairpin turn into North Adams and the Berkshire country. There is also the southern route, out 20, through Waltham, Marlboro, Old Sturbridge Village, Springfield and the Jacob's Ladder Trail into Lenox. Motels and inns are filled early and wherever possible reservations should be made in advance of trip. If you are on a day trip to Tanglewood concert, plan to arrive early and stay late to avoid traffic tie-ups. At Tolland State Forest on Rte. 8 (south of West Becket), there are tent sites and facilities for overnight camping. Savoy State Forest, on Rte. 116 south of Adams, has cabins and tent sites; Windsor State Forest just beyond Savoy on Rte. 116 has overnight camping facilities. There is good swimming at Laurel Lake (south of Lenox, Rte. 7) at Onota Lake (just west of Pittsfield) and at Pontoosuc Lake (north of Pittsfield) where it is rumored arrowheads and pottery from Indian days can still be found when the water is very low. Off on a good dirt road north of Adams is a very famous natural marble bridge span. At Dalton, north of Pittsfield on Rte. 9, paper for paper money has been made since Revolutionary times, and the Crane Paper Museum welcomes visitors. There is a good auto route up Mt. Greylock (3500 ft.), the highest mountain in Massachusetts, reached by taking U. S. 7 north through Lanesboro. As a variation on the way home, take the Berkshire Trail (Rte. 9) from Pittsfield to Northampton, and continue on through to the Worcester Turnpike and back into Boston.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 12 1953

Our Hilltown Neighbors

By DAVID J. MALCOLM

Tanglewood opened its concert season on Sunday without us, much to our disappointment, for almost without interruption we have been at Tanglewood each year since the project started. We would not attempt to try to say how many years ago it was but we were among those who attended concerts in the tent during the formative years before the Music Shed was built.

For those people who have frequently planned to take in a concert or two, but have hesitated from year to year because they were not familiar with the set-up, perhaps a few words of explanation may not be amiss. In general the program is divided into three parts. The first is the summer school of music where talented young musicians from all over the nation gather to take advanced work in this branch of the arts. A large number of the students have already established names for themselves before coming to Tanglewood. Consequently, concerts presented by these young people are far from amateurish. These programs are open without charge to Friends of the Music Center, a group of people who contribute each year to the support of the school of music. Dr. Lewis Perry is the director of the school and may be contacted during the summer at Lenox for further information on the matter.

The second division of the general program is a series of concerts held in the Music Theater during the earlier week ends of the summer, with Dr. Charles Munch conducting. These concerts are very delightful and very popular and are less expensive to attend than are concerts held later, in the Music Shed.

The third division of the general program is a series of great concerts with the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra performing in the Music Shed to an audience coming from the far corners of the world. A pleasant feature of concerts in the shed is that a great many music lovers who for one reason or another, did not secure tickets for the shed, enjoy sitting on the spacious lawns that surround the building and listening to the music from afar. Admission tickets to the grounds are available at the gate immediately preceding each concert.

But enough of wistful thinking, concerning pleasant summer Sundays spent at Tanglewood in years gone by.

* * *

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
TIMES
JUL 12 1953

Radio Still An Excellent Music Medium

By JACK GRAVES
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 11—If there were such a thing as an official theme song for the radio industry these days, it would have to be "You Can't Take That Away From Me"—with "that" referring to music.

Television may have taken most of the cream, but the rich and heady world of sharps and flats—especially in the classical field—is still peculiarly radio's.

"Television actually has done nothing for music," said James Fassett, director of music for CBS radio, expressing not only his own opinion but the concensus of those who work with or merely enjoy music as an audience.

Sound All-Important

"This is because the sound is the all-important thing, hearing the all-important sense involved in appreciating music. The person who enjoys good music may sit in an auditorium with hundreds of others at a concert or recital with his eyes wide open, but once the music starts he is scarcely conscious of seeing those about him or the artists providing the music. All other senses are totally subordinate to that of hearing.

"As a matter of fact, watching a music program on television can detract from the music, no matter how well played. Although the viewer wouldn't be distracted by what he saw if he were sitting through a concert in an auditorium, he can't escape the intrusion of the sense of seeing on the sense of hearing when he's in his own living room with that screen in front of him. You can't escape being aware of it and its changing picture."

A Recording Tour

Fassett, who has been commentator for the New York Philharmonic - Symphony broadcasts for four years, left by plane recently for Rome on the first leg of an all-summer junket that will result in a steady diet of the world's best music for millions of music fans in the United States.

Fasset will record on tape the in-performance highlights of Leopold Stokowski conducting the Santa Cecelia Orchestra of Rome, the Wagnerian Opera Festival at Bayreuth, the first international Bergen Music Festival in Norway, the International Festival of Music and Drama in Edinburgh, The Netherlands Festival, the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy, the Salzburg Festival in Austria, the Sibelius Festival in Helsinki and the Tanglewood Festival in Stockbridge, Mass.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 2 - 1953

Former Rose Eisner Has Hartford Exhibit

Painter of Flowers And Landscapes Takes up Portraits

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Joseloff of Pittsfield, Hartford and Altadena, Cal., relax during the hanging of 25 of Mrs. Joseloff's paintings in one-man show at G. Fox and Company, Hartford department store.

Mrs. Louis Joseloff of 69 Commonwealth Avenue last week was given a one-man show of her paintings at G. Fox & Company, Hartford. Incidentally, she "left 12 behind," as she modestly expressed it, which is a high percentage of sales for three days of a 25-picture exhibit.

All Mrs. Joseloff's painting has been done while maintaining a very well-run home and raising a family, which she did equally well. Although she liked to draw when a child, and was considered to have an artistic bent, she never had a lesson until she came to Pittsfield from New York on her first marriage to the late attorney, Michael L. Eisner. She continues to use the name of Rose Eisner on her paintings.

Studying with Robert and Ethel Hamilton, Martin Hoy and Francis Day, Mrs. Joseloff painted still life, flowers and landscapes. Last year she took portrait painting with Jerry Farnsworth in Sarasota, Fla. "While I was studying with him I thought I wasn't getting anything, but later I tried a portrait and realized he had taught me something," Mrs. Joseloff says. "I have since done two portraits of my husband. They came out pretty well, don't you think so, Louis?" Mr. Joseloff agreed that they had.

"I wish that I had taken up portrait painting earlier," Mrs. Joseloff continued. "I'm going to do some more as soon as I have time."

With her schedule, one wonders how soon that will be. Dividing the summer between Pittsfield and Hartford, her husband's former home, and working on the Art League, Berkshire Association and sidewalk shows, there isn't much time left for painting, but she will manage it.

Mrs. Joseloff's landscapes no longer are limited to the Berkshire Hills, and her flowers now include those of the arid West. "Southern California is a wonderland for flower painters," she says. "We have lovely gardens, and calla lilies grow there like weeds."

When she lived in Pittsfield the year round, Mrs. Joseloff worked hard at painting and promoting a local interest in art. She is a charter member of the Pittsfield Art League and was for five years its president. She was chairman of the league's annual exhibit and outdoor sale of paintings in front of the Berkshire Museum during recent Tanglewood Festivals, and was chairman of the Berkshire Art Association which last year started an annual are festival, bringing in artists from a 70-mile radius.

The Joseloffs will leave in September for Altadena, Cal., their winter home, and a trip to Hawaii, which is about the only part of the world Mr. Joseloff hasn't seen, as travel is his hobby. His wife's next show may be expected to contain not only portraits, but Pacific landscapes.

206

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUL 3 - 1953

Resort Business in High Gear As Berkshire Festival Nears

LENOX—Following a relatively slack month of June in some areas of the resort and tourist business here, the 4th of July week end is expected to begin the busy season—to be maintained by the Berkshire Festival which begins next week.

Reports on June business have been mixed, with some types of vacation businesses thriving and others reporting a disappointing month. Most all, however, expect a busy July and August.

Among those reporting a prosperous June was George Turain, owner-manager of the Curtis Hotel. He said his house count was up 20 per cent for the month and that food and liquor business was up 30 per cent. Part of this increase was due to several conventions held there during June. Requests for reservations through the non-convention season are also well above normal, however.

Resorts reporting increases were Music Inn, Seven Hills and Festival House, but all explain the increase by the fact that their businesses were relatively new last year. Philip Barber of Music Inn says that reservations there were up 15 per cent during June. Business is expected to continue on a high level there with the Tanglewood concerts beginning next week end, followed by Music Inn's own jazz round table.

Motels Cutting In

Most of the reports of relatively slack business during June come from the small guest house operators. One claim is that the new series of motels on the Pittsfield road siphons off much of this transient business. Another claim is that poor weather during early June and a trend towards later season vacations are the cause.

Another problem mentioned by some of the operators is the fact that many people who used to reserve rooms for the entire week as they planned to come to Lenox by Thursday anyway, are now coming up for the week ends only because of the shift in concert nights at Tanglewood. The concert which used to be Thursday evenings has been switched to Friday evenings.

But with no concerts scheduled for this week end, there will still be well over a thousand vacationers in town, many of them to remain throughout the week. Eastover alone has 430 reservations for the week end, some of them farmed out at accommodations all the way up to Church Hill. Accommodations on the Eastover grounds have been booked solid well into August.

Also overflowing this week end and booked near capacity into August are several of the smaller resorts with accommodations for between 75 and 125 each.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 1 2 1953

Tanglewood Tales

Lenox, July 11—Betty Lou Allen, the contralto in Bach's Cantata No. 28, on this Sunday's Berkshire Festival concert by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, at Tanglewood, is a Hartford girl, who was on Broadway last season in "My Darlin' Aida," and who performed at the Congress for Cultural Freedom's Paris exposition a year ago in the Virgil Thomson-Gertrude Stein opera "Four Saints in Three Acts."

Sara Mae Endich, soprano soloist in this Sunday's Bach cantata, is an employee of the advertising department of the European edition of the New York Herald-Tribune. Last year, her first at Tanglewood, she was a choral leader student and sang the soprano solo in Schubert's "Mass," the occasion being her first appearance with any orchestra. This season she has switched to the opera department, and will have the role of the bride in Chabrier's one-act opera, "An Incomplete Education," which Boris Goldovsky's students will present on August 3. She is a native of Steubenville, O. She is a soloist at Central Synagog, New York, and is heard on its Sunday afternoon broadcasts, "The Message of Israel."

Composer Aaron Copland, assistant director of the Berkshire Music Center and a member of its faculty since its inception in 1940, has been invited to conduct a program of his own works in Mexico City in the autumn after the Tanglewood season. It will be Mr. Copland's seventh visit to the republic in the south. The honor is a reciprocal one, extended the composer by Tanglewood's guest composer this summer, Carlos Chavez, who organized the Mexico City Symphony Orchestra and is its permanent conductor.

First of informal lectures for students at Tanglewood, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 3:15 p. m. in the Chamber Music Hall, will be held Monday by Peter Gradenwitz, an Israeli journalist and a Tanglewood Study Group student this summer. His topic will be "Oriental Music."

Joseph de Pasquale, Boston Symphony Orchestra first violist, who performs the solo with Isaac Stern, violinist, in Mozart's "Sinfonia Concertante" at the Berkshire Festival concert of July 19, is married to Maria, a niece of the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, and with their two children, three-year-old Maria Alexandra and 18-month-old Elizabeth Ann, they make their home in Seranak, the Koussevitzky estate at Tanglewood. Mr. de Pasquale enjoys baseball, footbal and pingpong as hobbies.

Boston Symphony Orchestra Music Director Charles Munch owns the original manuscript of Darius Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde," which was composed in 1923 as a result of the French composer's initial visit to the U. S the preceding year and his introduction to Harlem jazz. It was planned as a ballet with scenario by Blaise Cendrar, composed for a small group of instruments. The Boston Symphony has not played it before it has its Tanglewood premiere at the July 26 concert. Leonard Bernstein conducted it with the New York City Symphony in 1945.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.
BERKSHIRE EAGLE

JUN 20 1953

Francescatti And Bernstein To Open Stadium

Two Berkshire summer residents will take the principal parts in the opening program of Lewisohn Stadium's 36th concert in New York Monday evening. Leonard Bernstein, head of the orchestra and conducting departments at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra and Zino Francescatti of Stockbridge will play the solo in Mendelssohn's violin concerto in E minor.

Mr. Francescatti will appear with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Charles Munch in the same concerto at the opening program of the Berkshire Festival concerts in the Tanglewood music shed July 31.

Mr. Bernstein also will conduct the Stadium orchestra Tuesday and Wednesday evening.

BOSTON, MASS.
HERALD

JUL 1 2 1953

Munch and Mozart at Berkshire Festival

The second weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on Saturday evening at 8:30 P. M. and Sunday afternoon, July 19, at 2:30 P. M., will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist

Mr. Stern will be soloist in the Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) on Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, on Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Another feature of the weekend will be the first performance anywhere by the Boston Symphony Orchestra of the Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136), with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday afternoon program.

The complete programs are:

Saturday, July 18:
Mozart—Divertimento in D, for Strings (K. 136).
Mozart—Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216).
(Soloist: Isaac Stern)
Mozart—Serenade for Thirteen Winds (K. 361).
Mozart—Symphony in D ("Prague") (K. 504).
Sunday, July 19:
Mozart—Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro."
Mozart—Sinfonia Concertante, for violin and Viola (K. 364).
(Soloists: Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale)
Mozart—Eine kleine Nachtmusik (K. 525).
Mozart—Symphony in D major ("Jupiter") (K. 551).

Through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a sonata recital will be given on Wednesday evening (July 22) by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the faculty of the Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival. The program will include music of Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

---

* * *

FOUR AT BERKSHIRE

Seven greater Hartford people, including four from West Hartford are members of this year's Society of Friends of the Berkshire music festival.

Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Drake of 77 Montclair Drive, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Murphy of 235 South Main St., represent West Hartford. Hartford itself is represented by Mr. C. Arthur Hackney, Mr. Max Adelson, and Dr. J. M. Steven.

There are 11 Connecticut students at the Center, too. While none are from West Hartford, several are well known to local concert goers. Miss Annette Liberson of Hartford is doing advanced piano work, and Miss Betty Lou Allen of the same city is studying chorus and training as a mezzo-soprano.

While it is not unusual for West Hartfordites to drive up in the late afternoon to a shed or concert hall evening performance, the only regular subscriber from this area is reported to be Mrs. E. M. Hartman of Hartford.

As we reported several weeks ago, the season opened Friday, July 4. The schedule for the 1952 season includes 49 different events including 27 music center performances.

The high spots in the coming week (Friday, July 18 through Thursday, July 24) include a symphony concert Saturday night featuring Lukas Foss playing the Mozart piano concerto in C major; a Sunday afternoon concert of three symphonies by Haydn and Schubert; and the first concert in the Shed, Thursday, at which time Charles Munch will direct the orchestra in Beethoven's "Eroica" and Brahms "First."

* * *

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD-AMERICAN

JUL 1 2 1953

* * *

Mozart Programs in 'Tanglewood' With Violin and Viola

De Pasquale

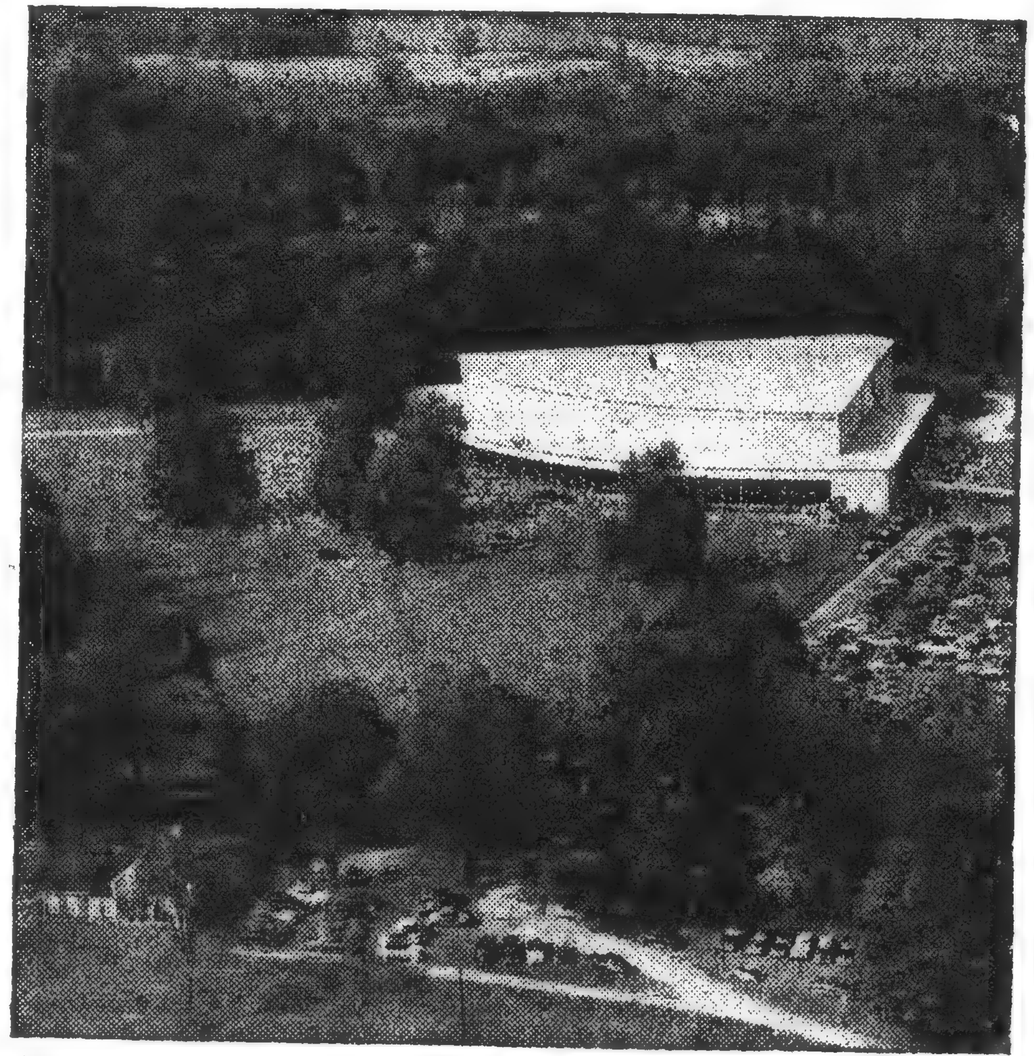
Stern

THE SECOND week end of Berkshire Festival Concerts in the Theater Concert Hall in Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will take place next Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, July 18-19, and will be devoted to works of Mozart. Charles Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist. Stern will be soloist in the Concerto for Violin in G (K 216) Saturday night and, with Joseph De Pasquale, principal violinist of the Boston Symphony, will play the Sinfonia Concertante for Violin and Viola (K 364) Sunday afternoon.

ANOTHER FEATURE will be the first performance by the Boston Symphony of the Divertimento in D for Strings (K 136) with which Director Munch will open the Sunday afternoon program. Through generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a sonata recital will be given Wednesday night, July 22, by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. Miss Posselt is a member of the faculty of Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival. The recital program will comprise music of Hindemith, Faure, Bach and Prokofieff.

* * *

Tanglewood Season Open



The Berkshire Music Festival shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., where the Boston Symphony orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, will perform nine weekend concerts from July 24 to August 10.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 1 5 1953

James Fassett, CBS Radio producer and commentator on the current "World Music Festivals" series sponsored by Willys Motors, returned to the U. S. by plane Monday (13) from first lap of Festival broadcasts from Italy, Norway, Finland and Holland.

During next month he'll broadcast the series from the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood, Mass., before returning to Europe for the Salzburg, Bayreuth, and Edinburgh festivals.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 1 5 1953

Broadway

George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Berkshire Festival, made a Chevalier in the Legion of Honor by the French government yesterday (Tues.), Bastille Day.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 1 2 1953

Soloist Today

DORIOT ANTHONY

Miss Anthony, flutist, first woman to hold a major desk in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be the soloist this afternoon in the second all-Bach concert at Tanglewood. She will play the solo part in the Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings.

Catskill, N. Y., July 16, 1953

Players and Pipers . . .

by John and Betty Bagley

Miss Doriot Anthony, [illegible] young first [illegible] Symphony [illegible] of the Sunday afternoon [illegible] the Tanglewood Theatre [illegible] for Charles M[illegible] Bach's Suite No. 2, [illegible] concerto, with an orchestra [illegible] 15 strings [illegible] and flute playing [illegible] applause [illegible] Miss [illegible] the extreme [illegible] so heavy that Munch [illegible] movement, [illegible] in our Tanglewood [illegible] Miss Anthony [illegible] Los Angeles [illegible] fill the [illegible] was then [illegible] name [illegible] ful and [illegible] liant.

The performance [illegible] No. 3, with [illegible] 35, [illegible] fail [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible]

The all-Bach concert began with Contato 28, "Gottlob! nun geht das Jahr zu End," written for the Sunday after Christmas, sung by the Berkshire Festival Chorus, with Hugh Ross conducting the singers and the 35-piece orchestra. Ross knows how to get what he wants from a chorus. Then men soloists were not distinguished; the soprano had a pleasing voice and we regretted that there was no solo for Betty Allen, negro contralto, whose voice sounded unusually rich in a brief duet with John McCollum, tenor.

In response to [illegible] about the [illegible] wood, [illegible] through [illegible] Wa[illegible] of mountain [illegible] chusetts, [illegible] sign [illegible] all corners [illegible] hill to Tanglewood [illegible] through much [illegible] the Great Barrington [illegible] (Clip for future reference [illegible] you expect to be traveling that way.)

HARTFORD, C
TIMES
JUL 1 3

Charles Mu

EVANS CLINCHY

Dr. Charles Munch, and spry than ened up the Summe on at Tanglewood ov weekend with two co of the music of Bach, d his own very special an syncratic manner.

The opening concert day night was quite festi sides setting a new atte record of 4,200 for a p Theater Concert Hall p the evening featured f
the six inimitable Brand
Concerti.

* * *

IF THAT SEEMS like ful lot of Brandenburgs be said right now that one would have liked t
the Fourth, too, and th
the only one that Dr.
saw fit to omit.

As to the playing selected five, it may said that two of them
Three and Six, were d perfection, Nos. One a were done rather poorl
No. Five was played in a what routine manner for Lukas Foss' brillian board work on the exten
denza.

For some inexplicable
Dr. Munch has always Nos. Three and Six with relish. He cut the o down to about eight o violas and violins, thr and three double basses Six, and he sent this group scuttling throug piece with a light, g air, shot through her there with flashes of f brilliance.

* * *

NO. THREE, which strings alone, is a heavier piece anyway, Munch gave it all the
and pomp that it shoul without ever letting leaden. And he made of spritely joy out of the complex movement.

On Nos. One and T least on Saturday night, he nor the orchestra we up to par.

No. One was given individual, even ca reading The adagio was out to the point of b and in the succeeding he sent his men headlon
the home stretch as if th lives depended on gettin in a matter of seconds.

The solo work of Ralp berg on the oboe and Anthony on the flute keep the Second on a keel, but the trumpet Roger Voisin, which we and inexpert, tended t

Lane Paintings On Exhibitio At Tanglew

Lenox, July 22—Third in ries of weekly painting and ture exhibitions scheduled the Berkshire Festival conc
the Boston Symphony Orche Tanglewood, through the co
tion of the Berkshire M Pittsfield, is a one-man paintings and drawings by Lane of West Stockbridge this Saturday.

Paintings in casein and the reception hall by the m trance at Tanglewood,
"Shadow of the House," a shire scene showing a gr barns against the ominous sky of an approaching
"Uprooted"; "Approac Storm"; "Still Life in the "Portrait of a Dancer";
nel"; "Arrangement." Tw ings are: "Study for "Upro and "Barns at Bearsville."

Mr. Lane has been a yea resident of the Berkshire 1949. He was acting dir
the Berkshire Art Center
naan, N. Y. last summer, assembled group shows artists. A native of Ne
Mr. Lane trained in M
Paris, and is represente
Metropolitan Museum of York; Worcester Museu

ay

d a major desk in the oloist this afternoon in
She will play the solo flute and strings.

July 16, 1953

ers and es . . .

nd Betty Bagley

Anthony, attractive utist of the Boston
hestra, was the star afternoon concert in od Theatre. Conduc-Munch presented
No. 2, almost a flue an orchestra of about two flutes, the sec-ing only briefly. The Miss Anthony after fast last section was Munch repeated the action unprecedent-nglewood experience.
was discovered in ast fall and asked to flutist position, which nt; — a most fortu-
Her flute tones are w; her technique bril-

nance of Bach's Suite n orchestra of about us to suffer from a end the few brasses ds with the strings, us so-called "Air for made up for some moments in the rest

ach concert began 28, "Gottlob! nun
r zu End," written
ay after Christmas,
Berkshire Festival
Hugh Ross con-singers and the 35-ra. Ross knows how he wants from a men soloists were ished; the soprano
g voice and we re-there was no solo
en, negro contralto, sounded unusually ief duet with John nor.

to several inquiries st route to Tangle-hoice is: Go almost on on 23; turn left on Turnpike); at first atham, turn right on out 9 miles turn left over the mountain.
arp right turn at foot
at State Line, Massa-Follow Tanglewood
ng here and marking Brings you down the lewood, West Gate, lighter traffic than arrington approach.
ure reference if you
traveling that way.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 13 1953

Dr. Charles Munch Opens Tanglewood

By EVANS CLINCHY

Dr. Charles Munch, more [illegible] spry than ever, [illegible] up the Summer season at Tanglewood over the weekend with two concerts [illegible] done in [illegible] and idio[illegible] [illegible] concert Saturday [illegible] festive. Be[illegible] new attendance [illegible] for a premiere [illegible] Hall program. [illegible] featured five of [illegible] Brandenburg [illegible]

* * *

IF THAT SEEMS like an aw[illegible] of Brandenburgs, let it [illegible] now that I for [illegible] have liked to hear [illegible] too and that was [illegible] one that Dr. Munch [illegible] the playing of the [illegible] it may also be [illegible] two of them. Nos. [illegible] and Six were done to [illegible] Nos. One and Two [illegible] rather poorly and [illegible] Five was played in a somewhat routine manner except [illegible] Lukas Foss' brilliant keyboard work on the extended cadenza.

For some inexplicable reason, Dr. Munch has always played Nos. Three and Six with special [illegible]. He cut the orchestra [illegible] to about eight or nine [illegible] and violins, three celli and [illegible] double basses for No. [illegible] and he sent this small [illegible] through the [illegible] with a light, gossamer [illegible] through here and [illegible] with flashes of fire and brilliance.

* * *

NO. THREE, which is for [illegible] alone, is a slightly [illegible] piece anyway, and Dr. Munch gave it all the dignity and pomp that it should have without ever letting it get [illegible]. And he made a thing [illegible] joy out of the speedy, complex movement.

On Nos. One and Two, at least on Saturday night, neither he nor the orchestra were quite up to par.

No. One was given a most individual, even capricious, [illegible]. The adagio was dragged out to the point of boredom, and in the succeeding allegro he sent his men headlong down the home stretch as if their very lives depended on getting there in a matter of seconds.

The solo work of Ralph Gomberz on the oboe and Doriot Anthony on the flute helped keep the Second on an even keel, but the trumpet solos of Roger Voisin, which were loud and inexpert, tended to throw the entire piece off balance. Now Mr. Voisin is an able trumpeter and he worked very hard Saturday night, but the unfamiliar, especially built trumpet that he uses must have thrown him for a loss. For his effort he deserved the tumultuous applause he received, but in all honesty, it must be recorded here that he hurt the work as a whole,

* * *

MR. FOSS, on the other hand, even though he played the Fifth on the piano rather than the clavier, made it quite delightful, particularly that cadenza which he unraveled with exquisite care and delicacy.

On Sunday, we were offered a lively and most musical version of the Cantata No. 28 with the Berkshire Festival Chorus under Hugh Ross' direction. Miss Betty Lou Allen, the Hartford contralto, was the alto soloist, and she did very nicely even though her only part was a duet with the fine tenor, John McCollum.

The rest of the afternoon was taken up with the Second and Third Suites for Orchestra. Miss Anthony on the flute made the Second Suite a sheer delight, and a smiling Dr. Munch could only stop the applause by having her repeat the final presto. The Third Suite, however, was done a bit listlessly, even the famous Air on the G String verging just a bit on the tedious and uninspired.

All this Bach, critical cavils aside, added up to a delightful weekend, one that attests to the inexhaustible variety and richness of just about the best composer who ever lived.

Lane Paintings On Exhibition At Tanglewood

[illegible] July 22 Third in a series of weekly painting and sculpture [illegible] scheduled during [illegible] Berkshire Festival concerts by [illegible] Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, through the co-operation of the Berkshire Museum, [illegible] is a one-man show of [illegible] and drawings by Harry [illegible] of West Stockbridge through Saturday.

[illegible] in casein and oil, in [illegible] hall by the main en[illegible] at Tanglewood, include [illegible] of the House," a Berk[illegible] scene showing a group of [illegible] against the ominous leaden [illegible] an approaching storm; [illegible]: "Approaching [illegible] "Still Life in the Shed"; [illegible] of a Dancer"; "Senti[illegible] Arrangement." Two drawings [illegible] "Study for 'Uprooted'" [illegible] at Bearsville."

[illegible] Lane has been a year-round [illegible] of the Berkshires since [illegible] he was acting director of [illegible] Berkshire Art Center in Ca[illegible] Y. last summer, and has [illegible] group shows by local [illegible]. A native of New York, [illegible] trained in Munich and [illegible] is represented in the [illegible] Metropolitan Museum of Art, New [illegible] Worcester Museum; with

---

TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE

JUL 12 195

Munch Leading Three Concerts

Special to The Blade

LENOX, Mass., July 11 — The Berkshire Music Festival opened here today on the nearby estate, Tanglewood, maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The festival will extend to Aug. 16.

In the first three weekends, concerts will be given on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the first devoted to the music of Bach; the second to Mozart; the third to Haydn and contemporary composers — Milhaud, Strauss, Ravel and Foss.

Programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the great Shed have been divided into three series, beginning July 31, Aug. 7 and Aug. 14. Charles Munch will conduct all but three of the Shed concerts, those of Aug. 1, 9 and 15. Guest conductors will be Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein.

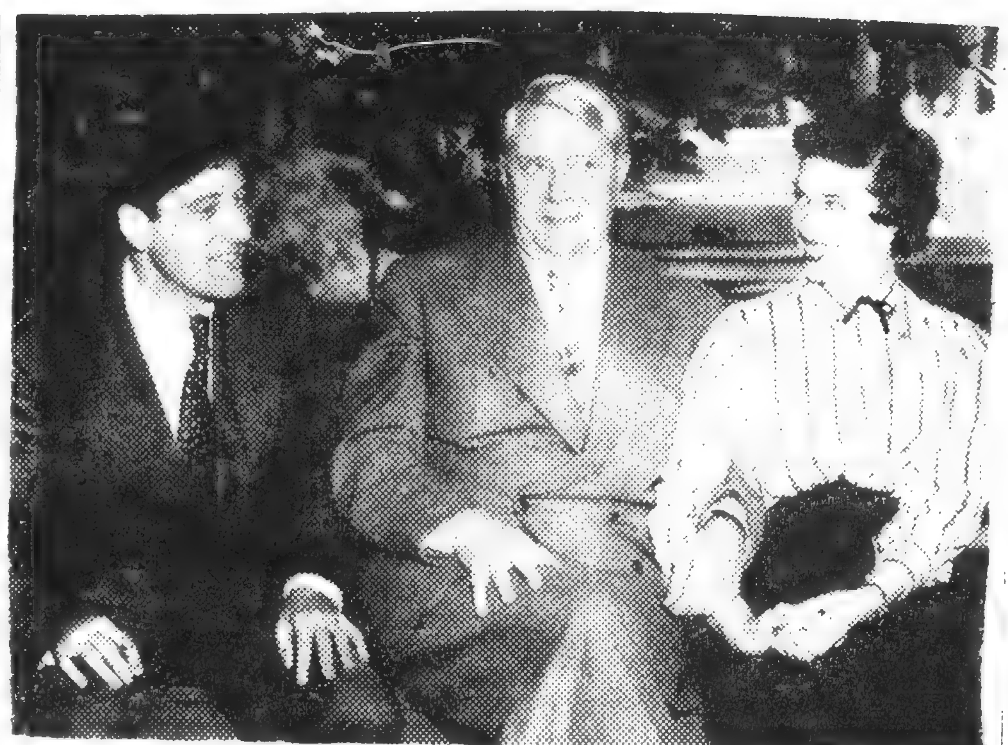
Works to be performed this year include Haydn's "St. Theresa" mass; Milhaud's "Creation of the World"; Foss' "A Parable of Death," the composer conducting; Berlioz' "Romeo et Juliette" and the Brahms "Deutsches Requiem."

Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer and conductor, will teach composition at the Berkshire Music Center this summer, a post occupied previously by Hindemith, Martinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen and Dallapiccola. Richard Bergin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will head the chamber music department; Leonard Bernstein, Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, conducting and orchestra; Hugh Ross, choral music; Boris Goldovsky, opera.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 15 1953

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, will be soloists in the Brahms Requiem which the Bost[illegible]phony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Aug. 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.



THREE WHO HELPED open the Summer season over the weekend at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., relax during rehearsals. Left to right, they are Lukas Foss, piano soloist in the Fifth Brandenburg Concerto by Bach, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano soloist in the Bach Cantata No. 28.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS

JUL 13 1953

Soloists Lauded at Tanglewood Opening

The musical fame of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood continues to grow. The opening concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, presented in the theater-concert hall Saturday night, set a new attendance record. The audience, covering half the stage and flowing far out over the lawn, was a discerning one, coming for an evening of the baroque Bach.

Five of the six Brandenburg Concertos from the Cothen period provided a full program of beautiful ensemble and outstanding solo performances. Munch gave convincing readings that recalled the enduring vitality of this amazing music. From the sparkling vivacity of the allegros, through the profound slow movements, the resoucre of this early 18th Century music displayed the full tonal contrast of the chamber orchestra.

Since the Brandenburg Concertos are all written in the tradition of the Vivaldi Concerto Grosso, the variation in the solo concertino group of each work creates unique opportunities to observe instrumental characteristics.

Concertos Nos. 3 and 6 are scored for strings alone, but the triple harmonic division of the former is offset by omitting violins in the latter. The rare experience of hearing six solo violas reenforced with cellos and basses emerged as beauty to treasure in the sixth concerto.

The depth of Bach's music was so apparent in all of the slower movements, where artistry of phrasing with restraint of emotion but flow of rhythm, all combined to reveal the perfection of soloists and ensemble. Munch kept his accompanying groups so well proportioned that relaxed ease was permitted the soloists. The resulting clarity of detail and fusion of harmonies were of such resonant quality as seldom can be heard in orchestral playing.

Particular interest centered in the work of three of the numerous solo assignments. Since it was her debut at the festival, the playing of solo flutist Doriot Anthony was particularly noticed in the second and fifth concertos. The tone is delicately limpid, unusually vibrant in the low register. Her phrasing and musicianship are flawless, so that there is no question of her assurance in such an important post.

Roger Voisin played the high F trumpet parts as originally scored in the second concerto with a flexibility, technique and endurance that was almost unbelievable. Seldom does a trumpet player attempt the part without modification, since modern orchestral demands are much diferent from the quality of the clarino of Bach's day.

Substitutions often are resorted to, such as at the Prades Festival, where Casals employed a soprano saxaphone. Mr. Voisin, using a special high F trumpet with keenest clarity of intense tone, fully deserved the ovation that followed his requiring performance.

Lucas Foss again revealed his superb artistry as pianist in the fifth concerto which concluded the evening. With soloists Richard Burgin, concertmaster, and Miss Anthony, a large portion of this work, the most popular of the set, calls for masterly pionism. The interpretive freedom within the rigid rhythmic pulse gave a flowing ease to this classic keyboard virtuoso piece.

It could have been the program that brought the large audience but certainly the performances were rewarding for the first night of the 1953 series. —(C.F.S.)

"What CAN we do tonight?" but "What WILL we do tonight?" So we'll ask you to read the ads and the posters this time—but bear the following attractions in mind. Tanglewood, of course, with the past pair of the "little shed" concerts scheduled for Saturday evening at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30 (NOT at 3, as was the case in previous years.) If you want to ge a seat anywhere except on the grass you'd better phone Lenox, Mass. 600 like crazy!

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 20 1953

Tanglewood Benefit Aug. 13

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 19.—The annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, which includes afternoon festivities by every department of the summer school of music maintained here by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, a lawn supper and an evening concert by the orchestra, will last from 6 to 11 p. m. on Thursday, Aug. 13.

Isaac Stern, violinist, will perform Beethoven's Concerto in D major with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conducting, at the evening concert. The second half of the concert program, to be conducted by Leonard Bernstein, head of the Berkshire Music Center's conducting classes, will offer as soloists baritone William Warfield and his wife, soprano Leontyne Price.

"Tanglewood on Parade" is held in aid of the Berkshire Music Center, now in its eleventh season; and box seats at $5, and front section of the great Music Shed, all of which are reserved at $4, will go on sale July 27 at the Tanglewood box office. General admission tickets, on sale now at $2.50, will entitle the holders to seats in the Shed's rear section.

Two girls hitch-hiked from Montreal last week to attend the Festival concerts over the weekend. They made it here in 5 days. Over 900 miles . . . to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra. That's a real tribute. They stayed at Mr. and Mrs. George O'Brien's. Now they're on their way to Cape Cod. If you're going to the Cape and see them, give them a lift. Sailors, don't stop!

VACATIONTIME IN THE BERKSHIRES

THE
TANGLEWOOD
STORY

Concerts in the
Theatre-Concert Hall

Saturday Evenings at 8:30 • Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Saturday Evening, July 25—CHARLES MUNCH

HAYDN	Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists (Conducted by HUGH ROSS)
HAYDN	Symphony in C minor, No. 95
HAYDN	Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday Afternoon, July 26—CHARLES MUNCH

STRAUSS	Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
RAVEL	"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
PROKOFIEFF	"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25
MILHAUD	"La Création du Monde"
FOSS	"A Parable of Death"
(Narrator: VERA ZORINA)	(Conducted by the Composer)

NEW LEBANON, N. Y.

At Tanglewood

Vera Zorina, narrator and Lukas Foss, composer and conductor of "A Parable of Death", which will have its New England premiere by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival concert Sunday afternoon at Tanglewood.

This Week At TANGLEWOOD

Tues., *8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall; Opera Scenes by students of Dept. IV

Wed., *8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall. Coolidge Sonata Recital, Ruth Posselt, Violin; Gary Graffman, piano.

Thurs., *8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall; Small Choir Concert by students of Dept. II.

Fri., *8:30 p. m.—Music Shed—Orchestra Concert by students of Dept. 1

Sat., 8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall. Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor. An all-Haydn program.

Sun., *10:00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall—Chamber Music Concert by students of Dept. 1—2:30 p. m.—Music Shed. Berkshire Festival Concert, Charles Munch, conductor. (Broadcast coast-to-coast by CBS Radio.

*8:30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall, Composers' Forum, by students of Dept. III.

* Events open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
JUL 13 1953

Dr. Charles Munch Opens Tanglewood

By EVANS CLINCHY

Dr. Charles Munch, more fit and spry than ever, opened up the Summer season at Tanglewood over the weekend with two concerts of the music of Bach, done in his own very special and idiosyncratic manner.

The opening concert Saturday night was quite festive. Besides setting a new attendance record of 4,200 for a premiere Theater Concert Hall program, the evening featured five of the six inimitable Brandenburg Concerti.

* * *

IF THAT SEEMS like an awful lot of Brandenburgs, let it be said right now that I for one would have liked to hear the Fourth, too, and that was the only one that Dr. Munch saw fit to omit.

As to the playing of the selected five, it may also be said that two of them, Nos. Three and Six, were done to perfection, Nos. One and Two were done rather poorly and No. Five was played in a somewhat routine manner except for Lukas Foss' brilliant keyboard work on the extended cadenza.

For some inexplicable reason, Dr. Munch has always played Nos. Three and Six with special relish. He cut the orchestra down to about eight or nine violas and violins, three celli and three double basses for No. Six, and he sent this small group scuttling through the piece with a light, gossamer air, shot through here and there with flashes of fire and brilliance.

* * *

NO. THREE, which is for strings alone, is a slightly heavier piece anyway, and Dr. Munch gave it all the dignity and pomp that it should have without ever letting it get leaden. And he made a thing of spritely joy out of the speedy, complex movement.

On Nos. One and Two, at least on Saturday night, neither he nor the orchestra were quite up to par.

No. One was given a most individual, even capricious, reading The adagio was dragged out to the point of boredom, and in the succeeding allegro he sent his men headlong down the home stretch as if their very lives depended on getting there in a matter of seconds.

The solo work of Ralph Gomberg on the oboe and Doriot Anthony on the flute helped keep the Second on an even keel, but the trumpet solos of Roger Voisin, which were loud and inexpert, tended to throw the entire piece off balance. Now Mr. Voisin is an able trumpeter and he worked very hard Saturday night, but the unfamiliar, especially built trumpet that he uses must have thrown him for a loss. For his effort he deserved the tumultuous applause he received, but in all honesty, it must be recorded here that he hurt the work as a whole,

* * *

MR. FOSS, on the other hand, even though he played the Fifth on the piano rather than the clavier, made it quite delightful, particularly that cadenza which he unraveled with exquisite care and delicacy.

On Sunday, we were offered a lively and most musical version of the Cantata No. 28 with the Berkshire Festival Chorus under Hugh Ross' direction. Miss Betty Lou Allen, the Hartford contralto, was the alto soloist, and she did very nicely even though her only part was a duet with the fine tenor, John McCollum.

The rest of the afternoon was taken up with the Second and Third Suites for Orchestra. Miss Anthony on the flute made the Second Suite a sheer delight, and a smiling Dr. Munch could only stop the applause by having her repeat the final presto. The Third Suite, however, was done a bit listlessly, even the famous Air on the G String verging just a bit on the tedious and uninspired.

All this Bach, critical cavils aside, added up to a delightful weekend, one that attests to the inexhaustible variety and richness of just about the best composer who ever lived.

Lane Paintings On Exhibition At Tanglewood

Lenox, July 22—Third in a series of weekly painting and sculpture exhibitions scheduled during the Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, through the co-operation of the Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield, is a one-man show of paintings and drawings by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge through Saturday.

Paintings in casein and oil, in the reception hall by the main entrance at Tanglewood, include "Shadow of the House," a Berkshire scene showing a group of [illegible] against the ominous leaden sky of an approaching storm; "Uprooted"; "Approaching Storm"; "Still Life in the Shed"; "Portrait of a Dancer"; "Sentiment"; "Arrangement." Two drawings are: "Study for 'Uprooted'" and "Barns at Bearsville."

Mr. Lane has been a year-round resident of the Berkshires since [illegible]. He was acting director of the Berkshire Art Center in Canaan, N. Y. last summer, and has exhibited group shows by local artists. A native of New Y[illegible] he trained in M[illegible] and is represen[illegible] Metropolitan Museum of [illegible] Worcester Museu[illegible]

TOLEDO, OHIO
BLADE
JUL 12 195

Munch Leading Three Concerts

Special to The Blade

LENOX, Mass., July 11 — The Berkshire Music Festival opened here today on the nearby estate, Tanglewood, maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The festival will extend to Aug. 16.

In the first three weekends, concerts will be given on Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons; the first devoted to the music of Bach; the second to Mozart; the third to Haydn and contemporary composers — Milhaud, Strauss, Ravel and Foss.

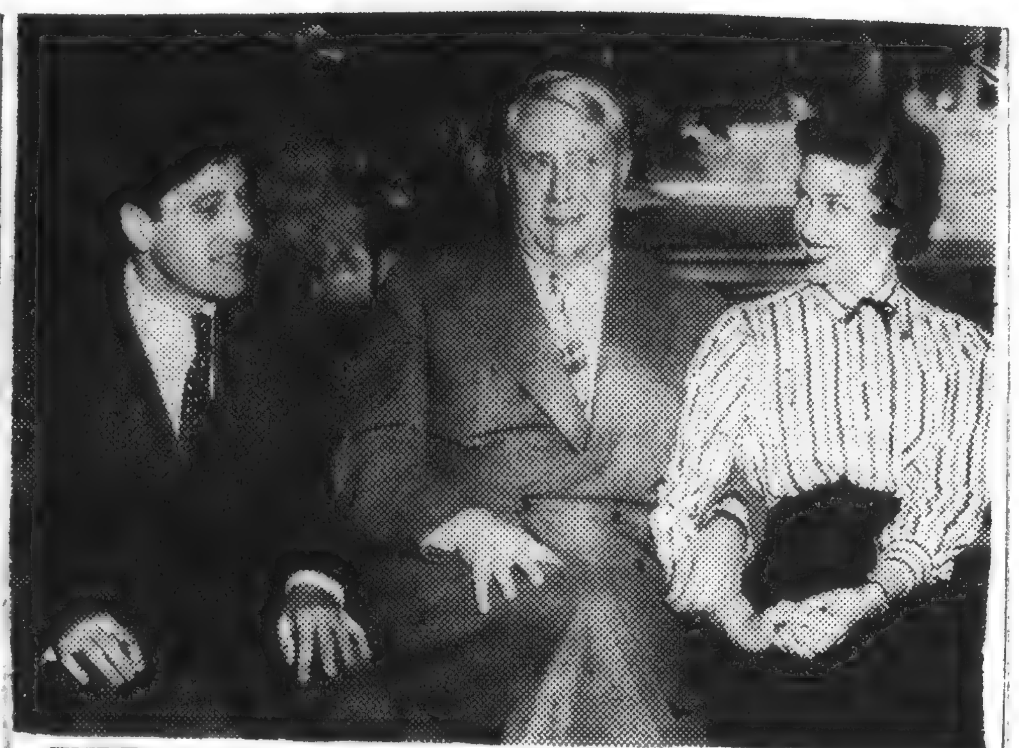
Programs by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the great Shed have been divided into three series, beginning July 31, Aug. 7 and Aug. 14. Charles Munch will conduct all but three of the Shed concerts, those of Aug. 1, 9 and 15. Guest conductors will be Pierre Monteux and Leonard Bernstein.

Works to be performed this year include Haydn's "St. Theresa" mass; Milhaud's "Creation of the World"; Foss' "A Parable of Death," the composer conducting; Berlioz' "Romeo et Juliette" and the Brahms "Deutsches Requiem."

Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer and conductor, will teach composition at the Berkshire Music Center this summer, a post occupied previously by Hindemith, Martinu, Barber, Lopatnikov, Honegger, Milhaud, Ibert, Messiaen and Dallapiccola. Richard Bergin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will head the chamber music department; Leonard Bernstein, Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, conducting and orchestra; Hugh Ross, choral music; Boris Goldovsky, opera.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 15 1953

Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, will be soloists in the Brahms Requiem which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform for the Berkshire Festival concert Aug. 14, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.



THREE WHO HELPED open the Summer season over the weekend at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., relax during rehearsals. Left to right, they are Lukas Foss, piano soloist in the Fifth Brandenburg Concerto by Bach, Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano soloist in the Bach Cantata No. 28.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER NEWS
JUL 13 1953

Soloists Lauded at Tanglewood Opening

The musical fame of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood continues to grow. The opening concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch, presented in the theater-concert hall Saturday night, set a new attendance record. The audience, covering half the stage and flowing far out over the lawn, was a discerning one, coming for an evening of the baroque Bach.

Five of the six Brandenburg Concertos from the Cothen period provided a full program of beautiful ensemble and outstanding solo performances. Munch gave convincing readings that recalled the enduring vitality of this amazing music. From the sparkling vivacity of the allegros, through the profound slow movements, the resoucre of this early 18th Century music displayed the full tonal contrast of the chamber orchestra.

Since the Brandenburg Concertos are all written in the tradition of the Vivaldi Concerto Grosso, the variation in the solo concertino group of each work creates unique opportunities to observe instrumental characteristics.

Concertos Nos. 3 and 6 are scored for strings alone, but the triple harmonic division of the former is offset by omitting violins in the latter. The rare experience of hearing six solo violas reenforced with cellos and basses emerged as beauty to treasure in the sixth concerto.

The depth of Bach's music was so apparent in all of the slower movements, where artistry of phrasing with restraint of emotion but flow of rhythm, all combined to reveal the perfection of soloists and ensemble. Munch kept his accompanying groups so well proportioned that relaxed ease was permitted the soloists. The resulting clarity of detail and fusion of harmonies were of such resonant quality as seldom can be heard in orchestral playing.

Particular interest centered in the work of three of the numerous solo assignments. Since it was her debut at the festival, the playing of solo flutist Doriot Anthony was particularly noticed in the second and fifth concertos. The tone is delicately limpid, unusually vibrant in the low register. Her phrasing and musicianship are flawless, so that there is no question of her assurance in such an important post.

Roger Voisin played the high F trumpet parts as originally scored in the second concerto with a flexibility, technique and endurance that was almost unbelievable. Seldom does a trumpet player attempt the part without modification, since modern orchestral demands are much diferent from the quality of the clarino of Bach's day.

Substitutions often are resorted to, such as at the Prades Festival, where Casals employed a soprano saxaphone. Mr. Voisin, using a special high F trumpet with keenest clarity of intense tone, fully deserved the ovation that followed his requiring performance.

Lucas Foss again revealed his superb artistry as pianist in the fifth concerto which concluded the evening. With soloists Richard Burgin, concertmaster, and Miss Anthony, a large portion of this work, the most popular of the set, calls for masterly pionism. The interpretive freedom within the rigid rhythmic pulse gave a flowing ease to this classic keyboard virtuoso piece.

It could have been the program that brought the large audience but certainly the performances were rewarding for the first night of the 1953 series. —(C.F.S.)

What CAN we do tonight?" but "What WILL we do tonight?" So we'll ask you to read the ads and the posters this time—but bear the following attractions in mind. Tanglewood, of course, [illegible]

with the past pair of the "little shed" concerts scheduled for Saturday evening at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon at 2:30 (NOT at 3, as was the case in previous years.) If you want to ge a seat anywhere except on the grass you'd better phone Lenox, Mass. 600 like crazy!

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 20 1953

Tanglewood Benefit Aug. 13

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 19.—The annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, which includes afternoon festivities by every department of the summer school of music maintained here by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, a lawn supper and an evening concert by the orchestra, will last from 6 to 11 p. m. on Thursday, Aug. 13.

Isaac Stern, violinist, will perform Beethoven's Concerto in D major with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conducting, at the evening concert. The second half of the concert program, to be conducted by Leonard Bernstein, head of the Berkshire Music Center's conducting classes, will offer as soloists baritone William Warfield and his wife, soprano Leontyne Price.

"Tanglewood on Parade" is held in aid of the Berkshire Music Center, now in its eleventh season; and box seats at $5, and front section of the great Music Shed, all of which are reserved at $4, will go on sale July 27 at the Tanglewood box office. General admission tickets, on sale now at $2.50, will entitle the holders to seats in the Shed's rear section.

Two girls hitch-hiked from Montreal last week to attend the Festival concerts over the weekend. They made it here in 5 days. Over 900 miles . . . to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra. That's a real tribute. They stayed at Mr. and Mrs. George O'Brien's. Now they're on their way to Cape Cod. If you're going to the Cape and see them, give them a lift. Sailors, don't stop!

VACATIONTIME IN THE BERKSHIRES

[illegible] Post 1/23

THE
TANGLEWOOD
STORY

Concerts in the
Theatre-Concert Hall

Saturday Evenings at 8:30 • Sunday Afternoons at 2:30

Saturday Evening, July 25—CHARLES MUNCH

HAYDN..........Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists
(Conducted by HUGH ROSS)
HAYDN................Symphony in C minor, No. 95
HAYDN.........Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday Afternoon, July 26—CHARLES MUNCH

STRAUSS.......Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
RAVEL............"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite
PROKOFIEFF...........“Classical” Symphony, Op. 25
MILHAUD.................."La Création du Monde"
FOSS.........................."A Parable of Death"
(Narrator: VERA ZORINA) (Conducted by the Composer)

NEW LEBANON, N. Y.

At Tanglewood

July 2

Vera Zorina, narrator and Lukas Foss, composer and conductor of "A Parable of Death", which will have its New England premiere by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival concert Sunday afternoon at Tanglewood.

This Week At TANGLEWOOD

Tues., *8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall; Opera Scenes by students of Dept. IV

Wed., *8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall. Coolidge Sonata Recital, Ruth Posselt, Violin; Gary Graffman, piano.

Thurs., *8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall; Small Choir Concert by students of Dept. II.

Fri., *8:30 p. m.—Music Shed—Orchestra Concert by students of Dept. 1

Sat., 8:30 p. m.—Theatre-Concert Hall. Berkshire Festival Concert—Charles Munch, conductor. An all-Haydn program.

Sun., *10:00 a. m.—Chamber Music Hall—Chamber Music Concert by students of Dept. 1—2:30 p. m.—Music Shed. Berkshire Festival Concert, Charles Munch, conductor. (Broadcast coast-to-coast by CBS Radio.

8:30 p. m.—Chamber Music Hall, Composers' Forum, by students of Dept. III.

 Events open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 12 1953

Second All-Bach Program In Tanglewood Hall Today

Chorus and Soloists in Cantata No. 28; Doriot Anthony Soloist in Suite No. 2; Isaac Stern Featured Artist in Mozart Concerto Saturday

Lenox, July 11—The second 1953 Berkshire Festival all-Bach concert in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall, at 2.30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon, will open with the Boston Symphony Orchestra's first performance of the Cantata No. 28, with the festival chorus conducted by Hugh Ross, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, also; John McCollum, tenor; ac Morgan, bass. Doriot Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. The program concludes with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

ISAAC STERN

Concerts This Week

A chamber music program by students is scheduled for tomorrow morning and a forum for composition students of Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss tomorrow evening.

The first of three concerts given to the school by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will be Wednesday evening, a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord. Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, Rameau. Anyone who contributes to the support of the school by becoming a member of the Ssociety of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, is invited to all school events.

At the opening exercises of the school last Sunday Charles Munch, its director, urged nearly 400 students who will spend the next six weeks in concentrated study and participation in music to take responsibility for developing and expressing the inner life of the 44 states and eight foreign countries from which they come. "The arts are a civilizing strength, and civilization, despite its failures, is a just goal of the human spirit," he declared.

The Friday evening symphony concert by the student orchestra of Department 1, the Sunday morning chamber music of Department 1 students (July 19) and the composers' forum the same evening, by Department 2 students, will be held as usual.

Mozart Programs

The second week end of festival concerts, Saturday evening at 8.30 and next Sunday afternoon at 2.30, will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Mr. Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist. In the Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216), on Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violinist of the Boston Symphony, on Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Another feature of the week end will be the first performance anywhere by the Boston Symphony of the Divertimento in D, for strings (K. 136), with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday afternoon program.

NEW YORKER
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 4 - 1953

IN THE COUNTRY

Berkshire Festival—Opening performances of the season, which will run through Sunday, Aug. 16—Charles Münch conducting the Boston Symphony in two all-Bach programs, the second one with Doriot Anthony, flute. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Saturday, July 11, at 8:30, and Sunday, July 12, at 2:30.)

Tanglewood Concert on CBS

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 21.—Sunday afternoon's Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood will be held in the large Music Shed, instead of in the smaller Theater-Concert Hall as originally scheduled, because the first ninety minutes of the concert will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System in its World Music Festivals series.

The part of the program to be played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch which goes on the air includes Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86; Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Prokofiev's Classical Symphony and Milhaud's "Le Creation du Monde." Lukas Foss' "Parable of Death" will follow. The concert begins at 2:30.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 19 1953

PROGRAMS OF THE WEEK

STADIUM CONCERTS
LEWISOHN STADIUM

MONDAY. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; Gordon Manley, pianist; Roman Totenberg, violinist. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.

Leonore Overture No. 3	Beethoven
Piano Concerto No. 1	Brahms
Psyche	Franck
Symphonie Espagnole	Lalo

TUESDAY. Conductor, Miguel Sandoval; Jose Greco and his Company of Spanish Dancers, with Lola de Ronda, Luis Olivares, Julio Torres, Malena Vargas, Angel Soler, Chinin de Triana, Roger Machado.

Espana	Chabrier
Baile de Luis Alonzo	Gimenez
Danza del Contrabandista	Sandoval
Intermezzo from Goyescas	Granados
Malaguena	Albeniz
Guitar Solo and Alegrias	Traditional
La Petenera	Machado
Jota from the Three-Cornered Hat	De Falla
Bolero	Ravel
Madrid—1890	Chueca
Nights in the Gardens of Spain	De Falla
Cana	Traditional
Batuque	Fernandez
Cordoba	Albeniz
Danza Espanola	Sandoval
El Cortijo	Breton

WEDNESDAY. Conductor, Smallens; Michael Rosenker, violinist.

Overture to Euryanthe	Weber
Siegfried Idyll	Wagner
Till Eulenspiegel	Strauss
Overture, 1812	Tchaikovsky
Violin Concerto in A minor	Dvorak

THURSDAY. Brahms program. Conductor, Smallens; Claudio Arrau, pianist.
Academic Festival Overture; Symphony No. 2, Concerto No. 2 in B flat.

SATURDAY. Conductor, Julius Rudel; Jarmila Novotna, soprano; Charles Kullman, tenor.

Light Cavalry Overture	Von Suppe
Wine, Women and Song; Excerpt from the Gypsy Baron; Perpetuum Mobile; Excerpt from the Great Waltz; Emperor Waltz; Overture to Die Fledermaus; Pizzicato Polka; Tritsch-Tratsch Polka; The Blue Danube; Radetzky March	Strauss
Vienna, City of Dreams	Sieczynski
Marche Militaire	Schubert
Love's Own Sweet Song, from Sari; Duet from Gypsy Princess	Kalman
Duet from Gypsy Love	Lehar

GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS
GOLDMAN BAND

TONIGHT. Central Park. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.

Marche Troyenne	Berlioz
Overture, Tannhauser	Wagner
Concert Waltz; March, The League of Composers	Goldman
Jesu, Joy of Man' Desiring	Bach
March; Sea Songs	Vaughan Williams
Waltzes; excerpts from Die Fledermaus	Strauss

MONDAY. Central Park.

Sleepers Awake: Fugue in A minor	Bach
Choral Prelude	Bach-Stokowski
Fugue a la Gigue	Bach-Holst
Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring; Toccata and Fugue in D minor	Bach
March	Bach-Grainger
Excerpts from Die Walkuere	Wagner
Acceleration Waltz	Strauss
Overture, William Tell	Rossini

WEDNESDAY. Central Park.

Pomp and Circumstance	Elgar
Prelude and Chorus, Mefistofele	Boito
Entr'acte, from Orestes	Taneiev
Russian Sailors' Dance	Gliere
Soirees Musicales	Britten
New World Symphony (first movement)	Dvorak
Introduction and Tarantella; March, On Guard	Goldman
Waltz, Love Songs	Strauss
Valse	Brahms
A Dream	Bartlett
Italian Polka	Rachmaninoff

THURSDAY. Prospect Park.

Tunbridge Fair	Piston
Pageant for Band	Persichetti
Symphony for Band	Gould
Canzona for Band	Mennin
Irish Fantasie	Rogers
Second Swedish Rhapsody	Leidzen
Flashing Eyes of Andalusia	Sousa
The Belle of the Ball Waltz	Anderson
March, Hail Brooklyn	Goldman

FRIDAY. Central Park.
Repeating Thursday's program.

SATURDAY. Prospect Park.

Grand March, Cleopatra	Mancinelli
Prelude and Chorus, Mefistofele	Boito
Il Sole, from Iris	Mascagni
Excerpts from La Boheme	Puccini
Overture, Italian in Algiers; Inflammatus, from Stabat Mater	Rossini
Symphonic Poem, Universal Judgment	De Nardis
Excerpts from Aida	Verdi

OPERA
LEMONADE OPERA
141 West Thirteenth Street

TONIGHT, 8:30 P. M., Don Pedro. Performances nightly except Mondays.

PUNCH OPERA
Cherry Lane Theatre

WEDNESDAY, 8:30 P. M. George Antheil's Volpone. Performances nightly through next Sunday.

Moore, Victoria; Myers, Pierce, Falk, Roussin, Thompson, Hart, Miller. Conductor, Rex Wilder.

LA PUMA WORKSHOP
270 West Eighty-ninth Street

WEDNESDAY, 7:45 P. M. La Boheme. Admission free, reservations in advance.

AMATO OPERA THEATRE
159 Bleecker Street

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, La Boheme. Admission free; reservations in advance.

SALMAGGI OPERA
Randall's Island Stadium

SATURDAY, 8:45 P. M., Madama Butterfly.

OTHER EVENTS
TODAY

SANDOR BALINT, violinist; PAUL KESSLER, tenor, Brooklyn Museum, 2 P. M.

CLARICE CRAWFORD, mezzo soprano; JOSEPH CRAWFORD, tenor; Carl Fischer Hall, 3 P. M.

THURSDAY

VERDI'S REQUIEM, presented by the Summer Session Chorus of Teachers College, St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, 8:30 P. M.

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS
Theatre-Concert Hall
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch.

Overture to the Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Jupiter Symphony	Mozart

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch.

Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists conducted by Hugh Ross; Symphony in C minor, No. 95; Military Symphony	Haydn

NEXT SUNDAY, July 26, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch.

Divertimento (after Couperin)	Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin	Ravel
Classical Symphony	Prokofieff
La Creation du Monde	Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer)	Foss

Roman Totenberg, violin soloist at Stadium tomorrow.

Isaac Stern, violin soloist at Tanglewood this afternoon.

Rail Excursions

The New Haven Railroad is offering one-day excursion tours for the Berkshire Festival Sunday afternoon concerts at Tanglewood. The package price of $6.95 includes round-trip rail transportation, bus transportation, general admission to the concert and all taxes. Trains leave at 8:20 a. m., arriving at Stockbridge at 12:15 p. m. Returning, they leave Pittsfield at 7:30 p. m., arriving in New York at 11:30 p. m. Tickets must be purchased in advance.

---

physician and surgeon.

Rooms Needed For Tourists; Visitors Increasing

LENOX—As a result of an "overwhelming" number of requests for rooms over the recent week end, Mrs. John M. O'Brien of the Kiwanis Information Center yesterday issued an appeal for more local people to register rooms for tourists.

Every room registered at the center was taken by 1.30 PM Saturday, Mrs. O'Brien reported. Some local observers claim there were more people in town this week end than during Tanglewood's Shed concerts of previous years. Sunday's "small" concert proved so popular it was moved to the Shed.

Until the recent week end, business at the information center, located in the Academy Building, had been slow compared to previous years. But Friday afternoon it began to pick up, according to Mrs. O'Brien, and by Saturday afternoon people who called at the center were sent to other towns. The center can accept rooms only within the town of Lenox for registration.

The center closed at 5.30 PM Saturday though it was not scheduled to close until 9 PM.

Hours this week are from 9 to 5 but Friday and Saturday they will be from 9 AM to 9 PM. Sunday the hours will be 9 to 3 and next week the center will go on the 9 to 9 schedule throughout the week. Mrs. O'Brien is assisted at the center by Miss Mary Reynolds.

---

gation.

Magazine Writer Takes Crack at County Hotels

[illegible]

[illegible] would be neither [illegible] around.

Tanglewood [illegible] quality of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the acoustics of the shed and its top-flight program, he said. Editor Marek feels that Tanglewood does not compare with [illegible] Salzburg festival. Tanglewood [illegible] not nearly so beautiful or interesting as medieval Salzburg, he states.

Tanglewood

Tonight
8.30—Sonata recital by Ruth Posselt, violin, and Gary Graffman, piano, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Theatre. Open to friends of Mrs. Coolidge and the Berkshire Music Center.

4—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Wednesday, July 22, 1953 ★★

Tanglewood Film, BSO Tour Draw Students to Center

New York State leads the Berkshire Music Center registration with 100 students at Tanglewood. Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Ohio are next with 90 students. Nineteen each come from Connecticut and New Jersey, 18 from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

As a result of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's continental tour last spring, when auditions were held for the first time in 10 cities on its route, enrollment from California increased to 10; Utah, 5. The New Orleans auditions produced seven students and there are five from Florida. Forty-one states and 11 foreign countries are represented.

From other countries have come 19. In add[illegible]

[illegible]

Former students [illegible] throughout the world total [illegible]

This Clipping From
GENEVA, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio and TV, Day by Day

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . .but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
JUL 12 1953

Second All-Bach Program In Tanglewood Hall Today

Chorus and Soloists in Cantata No. 28; Doriot Anthony Soloist in Suite No. 2; Isaac Stern Featured Artist in Mozart Concerto Saturday

Lenox, July 11—The second 1953 Berkshire Festival all-Bach concert in the Tanglewood Theater-Concert Hall, at 2.30 p. m. tomorrow afternoon, will open with the Boston Symphony Orchestra's first performance of the Cantata No. 28, with the festival chorus conducted by Hugh Ross, and Sara Mae Endich, soprano; Betty Allen, also; John McCollum, tenor; ac Morgan, bass. Doriot Anthony will be soloist in the Suite No. 2, in B minor, for flute and strings. The program concludes with the Suite No. 3, in D major.

ISAAC STERN

Concerts This Week

A chamber music program by students is scheduled for tomorrow morning and a forum for composition students of Aaron Copland, Carlos Chavez, Irving Fine and Lukas Foss tomorrow evening.

The first of three concerts given to the school by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge will be Wednesday evening, a recital by the Baroque Trio, consisting of Fernando Valenti, harpsichord. Julius Baker, flute; Daniel Saidenberg, cello. The program includes works of Telemann, Domenico Scarlatti, Lotti, Loeillet, Rameau. Anyone who contributes to the support of the school by becoming a member of the Ssociety of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, is invited to all school events.

At the opening exercises of the school last Sunday Charles Munch, its director, urged nearly 400 students who will spend the next six weeks in concentrated study and participation in music to take responsibility for developing and expressing the inner life of the 44 states and eight foreign countries from which they come. "The arts are a civilizing strength, and civilization, despite its failures, is a just goal of the human spirit," he declared.

The Friday evening symphony concert by the student orchestra of Department 1, the Sunday morning chamber music of Department 1 students (July 19) and the composers' forum the same evening, by Department 2 students, will be held as usual.

Mozart Programs

The second week end of festival concerts, Saturday evening at 8.30 and next Sunday afternoon at 2.30, will be devoted to the works of Mozart. Mr. Munch will lead members of the Boston Symphony, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist. In the Concerto for Violin, in G (K. 216) on Saturday evening, and will team with Joseph de Pasquale, violinist of the Boston Symphony, on Sunday afternoon in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Another feature of the week end will be the first performance anywhere by the Boston Symphony of the Divertimento in D, for strings (K. 136), with which Mr. Munch will open the Sunday afternoon

---

NEW YORKER
NEW YORK, N. Y.
JUL 4 - 1953

IN THE COUNTRY

Berkshire Festival—Opening performances of the season, which will run through Sunday, Aug. 16—Charles Münch conducting the Boston Symphony in two all-Bach programs, the second one with Doriot Anthony, flute. (Theatre-Concert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Saturday, July 11, at 8:30, and Sunday, July 12, at 2:30.)

Tanglewood Concert on CBS

N.Y.H.T. 7/22

Special to the Herald Tribune

LENOX, Mass., July 21.—Sunday afternoon's Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood will be held in the large Music Shed, instead of in the smaller Theater-Concert Hall as originally scheduled, because the first ninety minutes of the concert will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System in its World Music Festivals series.

The part of the program to be played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch which goes on the air includes Richard Strauss' Divertimento, Op. 86; Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Prokofiev's Classical Symphony and Milhaud's "Le Creation du Monde." Lukas Foss' "Parable of Death" will follow. The concert begins at 2:30.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 19 1953

PROGRAMS OF THE WEEK

STADIUM CONCERTS
LEWISOHN STADIUM

MONDAY. Conductor, Alexander Smallens; Gordon Manley, pianist; Roman Totenberg, violinist. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.
Leonore Overture No. 3 .... Beethoven
Piano Concerto No. 1 .... Brahms
Psyche .... Franck
Symphonie Espagnole .... Lalo

TUESDAY. Conductor, Miguel Sandoval; Jose Greco and his Company of Spanish Dancers, with Lola de Ronda, Luis Olivares, Julio Torres, Malena Vargas, Angel Soler, Chinin de Triana, Roger Machado.
Espana .... Chabrier
Baile de Luis Alonzo .... Gimenez
Danza del Contrabandista .... Sandoval
Intermezzo from Goyescas .... Granados
Malaguena .... Albeniz
Guitar Solo and Alegrias .... Traditional
La Petenera .... Machado
Jota from the Three-Cornered Hat .... De Falla
Bolero .... Ravel
Madrid—1890 .... Chueca
Nights in the Gardens of Spain .. De Falla
Cana .... Traditional
Batuque .... Fernandez
Cordoba .... Albeniz
Danza Espanola .... Sandoval
El Cortijo .... Breton

WEDNESDAY. Conductor, Smallens; Michael Rosenker, violinist.
Overture to Euryanthe .... Weber
Siegfried Idyll .... Wagner
Till Eulenspiegel .... Strauss
Overture, 1812 .... Tchaikovsky
Violin Concerto in A minor .... Dvorak

THURSDAY. Brahms program. Conductor, Smallens; Claudio Arrau, pianist.
Academic Festival Overture; Symphony No. 2; Concerto No. 2 in B flat.

SATURDAY. Conductor, Julius Rudel; Jarmila Novotna, soprano; Charles Kullman, tenor.
Light Cavalry Overture .... Von Suppe
Wine, Women and Song; Excerpt from the Gypsy Baron; Perpetuum Mobile; Excerpt from the Great Waltz; Emperor Waltz; Overture to Die Fledermaus; Pizzicato Polka; Tritsch-Tratsch Polka; The Blue Danube; Radetzky March .... Strauss
Vienna, City of Dreams .... Sieczynski
Marche Militaire .... Schubert
Love's Own Sweet Song, from Sari; Duet from Gypsy Princess .... Kalman
Duet from Gypsy Love .... Lehar

GUGGENHEIM MEMORIAL CONCERTS
GOLDMAN BAND

TONIGHT. Central Park. All concerts begin at 8:30 P. M., unless otherwise noted.
Marche Troyenne .... Berlioz
Overture, Tannhauser .... Wagner
Concert Waltz; March, The League of Composers .... Goldman
Jesu, Joy of Man' Desiring .... Bach
March; Sea Songs .... Vaughan Williams
Waltzes; excerpts from Die Fledermaus .... Strauss

MONDAY. Central Park.
Sleepers Awake; Fugue in A minor ... Bach
Choral Prelude .... Bach-Stokowski
Fugue a la Gigue .... Bach-Holst
Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring; Toccata and Fugue in D minor .... Bach
March .... Bach-Grainger
Excerpts from Die Walkuere ...... Wagner
Acceleration Waltz .... Strauss
Overture, William Tell .... Rossini

WEDNESDAY. Central Park.
Pomp and Circumstance .... Elgar
Prelude and Chorus, Mefistofele ... Boito
Entr'acte, from Orestes .... Taneiev
Russian Sailors' Dance .... Gliere
Soirees Musicales .... Britten
New World Symphony (first movement) .... Dvorak
Introduction and Tarantella; March, On Guard .... Goldman
Waltz, Love Songs .... Strauss
Valse .... Brahms
A Dream .... Bartlett
Italian Polka .... Rachmaninoff

THURSDAY. Prospect Park.
Tunbridge Fair .... Piston
Pageant for Band .... Persichetti
Symphony for Band .... Gould
Canzona for Band .... Mennin
Irish Fantasie .... Rogers
Second Swedish Rhapsody .... Leidzen
Flashing Eyes of Andalusia .... Sousa
The Belle of the Ball Waltz .... Anderson
March, Hail Brooklyn .... Goldman

FRIDAY. Central Park.
Repeating Thursday's program.

SATURDAY. Prospect Park.
Grand March, Cleopatra .... Mancinelli
Prelude and Chorus, Mefistofele .... Boito
Il Sole, from Iris .... Mascagni
Excerpts from La Boheme .... Puccini
Overture, Italian in Algiers; Inflammatus, from Stabat Mater. Rossini
Symphonic Poem, Universal Judgment .... De Nardis
Excerpts from Aida .... Verdi

OPERA
LEMONADE OPERA
141 West Thirteenth Street

TONIGHT, 8:30 P. M., Don Pedro. Performances nightly except Mondays.

PUNCH OPERA
Cherry Lane Theatre

WEDNESDAY, 8:30 P. M. George Antheil's Volpone. Performances nightly through next Sunday.

Roman Totenberg, violin soloist at Stadium tomorrow.

Isaac Stern, violin soloist at Tanglewood this afternoon.

Moore, Victoria; Myers, Pierce, Falk, Roussin, Thompson, Hart, Miller. Conductor, Rex Wilder.

LA PUMA WORKSHOP
270 West Eighty-ninth Street

WEDNESDAY, 7:45 P. M. La Boheme. Admission free, reservations in advance.

AMATO OPERA THEATRE
159 Bleecker Street

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, La Boheme. Admission free; reservations in advance.

SALMAGGI OPERA
Randall's Island Stadium

SATURDAY, 8:45 P. M., Madama Butterfly.

OTHER EVENTS
TODAY

SANDOR BALINT, violinist; PAUL KESSLER, tenor, Brooklyn Museum, 2 P. M.

CLARICE CRAWFORD, mezzo soprano; JOSEPH CRAWFORD, tenor; Carl Fischer Hall, 3 P. M.

THURSDAY

VERDI'S REQUIEM, presented by the Summer Session Chorus of Teachers College, St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, 8:30 P. M.

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS
Theatre-Concert Hall
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch.
Overture to the Marriage of Figaro; Sinfonia Concertante (K. 364); Eine kleine Nachtmusik; Jupiter Symphony .... Mozart

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch. Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists conducted by Hugh Ross; Symphony in C minor, No. 95; Military Symphony .... Haydn

NEXT SUNDAY, July 26, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch.
Divertimento (after Couperin) .... Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin .... Ravel
Classical Symphony .... Prokofieff
La Creation du Monde .... Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer) .... Foss

---

Rail Excursions

The New Haven Railroad is offering one-day excursion tours for the Berkshire Festival Sunday afternoon concerts at Tanglewood. The package price of $6.95 includes round-trip rail transportation, bus transportation, general admission to the concert and all taxes. Trains leave at 8:20 a. m., arriving at Stockbridge at 12:15 p. m. Returning, they leave Pittsfield at 7:30 p. m., arriving in New York at 11:30 p. m. Tickets must be purchased in advance.

---

physician and surgeon.

Eagle 7/21

Rooms Needed For Tourists; Visitors Increasing

LENOX—As a result of an "overwhelming" number of requests for rooms over the recent week end, Mrs. John M. O'Brien of the Kiwanis Information Center yesterday issued an appeal for more local people to register rooms for tourists.

Every room registered at the center was taken by 1.30 PM Saturday, Mrs. O'Brien reported. Some local observers claim there were more people in town this week end than during Tanglewood's Shed concerts of previous years. Sunday's "small" concert proved so popular it was moved to the Shed.

Until the recent week end, business at the information center, located in the Academy Building, had been slow compared to previous years. But Friday afternoon it began to pick up, according to Mrs. O'Brien, and by Saturday afternoon people who called at the center were sent to other towns. The center can accept rooms only within the town of Lenox for registration.

The center closed at 5.30 PM Saturday though it was not scheduled to close until 9 PM.

Hours this week are from 9 to 5 but Friday and Saturday they will be from 9 AM to 9 PM. Sunday the hours will be 9 to 3 and next week the center will go on the 9 to 9 schedule throughout the week. Mrs. O'Brien is assisted at the center by Miss Mary Reynolds.

---

gation.

Magazine Writer Takes Crack at County Hotels

While terming the Berkshire Music Festival the country's most important summer music event, the editor of Good Housekeeping magazine sharply criticizes county hotelkeepers.

George Marek, writing in the August issue of the national publication, charges that guests are far from comfortably housed and fed. "At the height of the season," he says, "many Berkshire hotel-keepers treat the public discourteously, do not respect reservations and serve bad food at ridiculously high prices."

Every year the hotelmen seem to be completely surprised by the avalanche of visitors, the music editor wrote adding that the county's hotels, restaurants, boarding homes and tourist camps should be placed under a co-ordinating authority who would make sure you would be neither bilked nor pushed around.

Tanglewood succeeds through the quality of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the acoustics of the shed and its top-flight program, he said. Editor Marek feels that Tanglewood does not compare with the Salzburg festival. Tanglewood is not nearly so beautiful or interesting as medieval Salzburg, he states.

Tanglewood

Tonight

8.30—Sonata recital by Ruth Posselt, violin, and Gary Grafman, piano, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Theatre. Open to friends of Mrs. Coolidge and the Berkshire Music Center.

4—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Wednesday, July 22, 1953 ★★

Tanglewood Film, BSO Tour Draw Students to Center

New York State leads the Berkshire Music Center registration with 100 students at Tanglewood. Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Ohio are next with 90 students. Nineteen each come from Connecticut and New Jersey, 18 from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

As a result of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's continental tour last spring, when auditions were held for the first time in 10 cities on its route, enrollment from California increased to 10; Utah, 5. The New Orleans auditions produced seven students and there are five from Florida. Forty-one states and 11 foreign countries are represented.

From other countries have come 19. In addition to nine Canadians there are representatives from Mexico, France, Israel, Sweden, Japan, Korea, Holland, Bolivia, Latvia and China. Serge Blanc, of Paris, who returned this season, is concertmaster of the student orchestra.

From Pusan, South Korea is John Kim, president and conductor of the Republic of Korea Naval Symphony Orchestra and Chorus. A composition pupil with Mexico's composer-conductor Carlos Chavez is Tossi Ichiyanagi of Tokyo. As a result of seeing in Shanghai in 1950 a U.S. State Department film on Tanglewood, Miss Lily Hsia is a member of the opera department.

On invitation of the federal government, through a Smith-Mundt grant to study conducting, is Herbert Blomstedt of Stockholm. Fernando Illanes is a chorus student from Bolivia; Johannes Emmer Riedel is a Study Group student from the Hague. George [illegible] and Olga Zilboorg of Mexico City are studying violin and cello. [illegible] God, a trumpet player, and [illegible] Wiesel, a cellist, are from Israel. Endel Kalam of Latvia [illegible] in Indianapolis, is a viola player.

Range in Age From 17 to 65

Ranging in age from 17 to 65 the majority of students are from 19 to 24. Their vocations are [illegible]. For the first time in the [illegible] history the U.S. Armed Services are officially represented by Warrant Officer John [illegible] of Arlington, Va., assistant conductor of the U.S. Navy Band, a student of orchestral conducting under Leonard Bernstein.

From the academic field come Dr. Robert Smith of the Bates College, Lewiston, Me., faculty; Edward W. Hill, director of Music at Bradford Junior College; and Mrs. [illegible] Taylor, professor at Pennsylvania State College.

Three husband and wife teams are included and one set of twins. Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] of Davidson, N.C., take advanced study in clarinet and piano; Mrs. Charles Lawrie, Lake Geneva, Wis., attends general music classes while her husband studies opera coaching with Boris Goldovsky; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kleinfeld of Cleveland, Ohio, play in the orchestra; and Robert and Rodney Pierce of Wichita, Kan., are receiving advanced training in French horn and oboe from senior members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The list includes Miss Theresa Green of Baltimore, three times winner of the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scout award.

Former students, scattered throughout the world total 4217.

This Clipping From
GENEVA, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio and TV, Day by Day

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . .but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

THE HARTFORD TIMES, MONDAY, JULY 20, 1953

All-Mozart Program In Tanglewood's Fourth Concert

By CARL E. LINDSTROM

[illegible] The Hartford Times

Lenox, Mass.—At about [illegible] Sunday afternoon [illegible] of rain over the [illegible] Hills resulted in [illegible] heat a maneuver [illegible] executed at Tanglewood [illegible] and smoother than [illegible]

[illegible] nds were already well [illegible] and the lawns around [illegible] -Concert Hall pretty [illegible] staked for the fourth [illegible] the season, the second [illegible] Mozart program. [illegible] announcement sent [illegible] streaming across the [illegible] to the Big Shed which [illegible] 6,000-capacity was unable to shelter quite all of the [illegible] It was all right anyway [illegible] it didn't rain.

* * *

SOME CONCERN whether the Boston Orchestra, reduced to [illegible] proportions, would be able to protect itself under these [illegible] was dissipated by the [illegible] proven accoustics of [illegible] pavilion and more particularly by the incomparably [illegible] of the Boston [illegible] Without question the [illegible] more advantageously [illegible] more listeners than [illegible] have been possible at the [illegible] Listening from the [illegible] Saturday night for part of [illegible] am. I marvelled that [illegible] thousand people would [illegible] money and miss so much of the music. Patently the [illegible] of a Summer evening and a romantic setting [illegible] more than compensating.

In familiar pieces the Bostonians under Munch are without equal. The little serenade (Eine Kleine Nachtmusik) for instance was exquisitely turned out. These great string players perform with the homogeneity of a string quartet. The military precision of their bowing, which has been ridiculed by those who prefer the ripe stickiness of what for want of a better phrase might be called the "progressive" school, produces nevertheless, clean, sweet music. You got it, too, in the "Jupiter" Symphony which concluded the Sunday program and especially in the irrepressibly merry "Figaro" overture which opened it.

In the remaining number the orchestra's function, in spite of the description "symphony concertante," was mainly the production of a flattering back drop for solo violin and viola, the first in the hands of Isaac Stern and the second played by the orchestra's first chair violist, Joseph de Pasquale.

The solo melodies are built almost entirely of echoing, imitative material. Echoing is perhaps the word because Mr. Stern's instrument seemed ever assertive to the point of brilliance and Mr. De Pasquale's tone docile and often pale. I would like to have heard them closer to dynamic parity. Perhaps the violist was nervous. Both were rousingly acclaimed by players and audience alike.

Saturday's Concert

The wilting heat of Saturday evening was proof against fans, iced drinks and deshabille. The Berkshires when hot are tropically sticky.

There is no corrective except the music of Mozart.

When Charles Munch appeared before his string players (for the first time in Tanglewood memory in their shirt sleeves) there were 1,100 perspiring persons in the Theater-Concert Hall and a half-dozen thousand others on the humid lawn outside, looking for all the world like the fallen legion on a Biblical battlefield.

The crisply curling strains of the D major Divertimento breathed out into the heavy evening air. The tones were small but etched like the horns of the crescent over the pine tops. One drew breath sharply as under the prick of cool spray and after that everyone breathed less heavily. Fans stopped wagging. The climate had changed.

The complete removal from terrestial pressures was effected by Isaac Stern who, strange to say, did not play a cool Mozart (the G major Violin Concerto) nor yet an objective, classical Mozart. His whole concept was emotional and, in the microcosm, dramatic. His fiddle and bow—and there is not a more precisely masterful technique in the violin world—spoke a various language, startlingly expressive and far removed from the marmoreal monotony that even the biggest musicians resolutely associate with Mozart. The rapture was so swift and buoyant that all his listeners remained in the heady stratosphere till he finished. They applauded excitedly in spite of the re-enclosing heat and upon his third recall burst into typical Tanglewood shouts. Mr. Stern was a decided success.

By and large, this all-Mozart program, the second half of which comprised the B flat Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments and the "Prague" Symphony, had a gentle humanity rather than nobility, intimacy rather than bigness. Even the Symphony was not distinguished for sonority, but rather for sense and design.

They say Mr. Munch likes warm weather. That is easy to believe after the Saturday night concert and Sunday's too.

Ruth Posselt, Gary Graffman Coolidge Soloists Tomorrow

Gary Graffman

Ruth Posselt

Miss Ruth Posselt, violin, and Gary Graffman, piano, will appear in a sonata recital tomorrow evening at 8.30 in the Tanglewood theatre-concert hall. The second of a series of three weekly chamber music concerts presented to the Berkshire Music Center by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the event will be open to her friends and members of the Society of Friends of the school.

In private life the wife of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Miss Posselt is one of the school's chamber music faculty. She made her debut in Carnegie Hall, New York, at the age of nine. She has played repeatedly with orchestras under the late Serge Koussevitzky, Charles Munch, Pierre Monteaux, George Szell, Vladimir Golschmann, Victor deSabata, Eugene Goosens, Sir Ernest MacMillan and Walter Handl. She constantly appears with smaller ensembles and in solo recitals.

Contemporary composers, including Hindemith, Piston, Barber, Hill, Dukelsky and Rivier have written concertos expressly to be performed by her. At the age of 15 she was the winner of the Schubert memorial prize over 165 other violinists, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' award. She was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia, and was introduced to Spain by the great cellist, Pablo Casals.

Rachmaninoff Award Winner

A native New Yorker, Mr. Graffman, at the age of eight won a 10-year scholarship to the Curtis Institute, from which he graduated in 1946. He received the Rachmaninoff award in 1947, entitling him to a Carnegie Hall concert the following year. He has since won the Leventritt contest in 1949 and a Fullbright grant in 1950, and has appeared with major orchestras such as the Philadelphia, New York Philharmonic, Cleveland, Buffalo Chicago, Indianapolis, Tulsa and Birmingham. He toured this spring with the Little Orchestra Society of New York, playing five different concertos.

Tomorrow's program will be:

Sonata in E .... Paul Hindemith
Sonata in A major .... Gabriel Faure
Sonata in E major .... J. S. Bach
Sonata in F minor ...... Serge Prokofieff

Tanglewood

Tonight

8.30—Opera scenes by Berkshire Music Center students. Theatre.

[210]

Tanglewood Soloist

JORGE BOLET, pianist, is soloist in Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat Minor," which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform in the Sunday afternoon, August 2, concert, 2:30 P.M., of the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux is guest-conductor of the all-Tchaikovsky program.

This Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS

JUL 18 1953

Composer

LUKAS FOSS

Lukas Foss, distinguished young American composer, will conduct his own cantata, "Parable of Death," the afternoon of the 26th, at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood. Vera Zorina will be narrator.

Music Eagle 7/23

Ruth Posselt, Graffman Win Critic's Nod

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE SECOND of the three Wednesday evening concerts being given at Tanglewood th the generosity of Mrs. Eliz Sprague Coolidge was play the theatre-concert hall night by Ruth Posselt, vio and Gary Graffman, pianist. chose a program represen of several eras and school gave identifiable charact each one. Each artist is known, at least in this vi for solo appearances so tha semble work of this natur another facet of their art to glewood and Berkshire audi It was all the more remar therefore, that they play true chamber musicians an merged their talents and e ence in the more individu type of playing.

* * *

HINDEMITH'S sonata opened the evening and i well placed, preceding the A major, so that the co between unadorned, even i siderate, music and grace suavity could be observed s side. Hindemith's music h ungrateful, for the perform well as to the listener, wh Fuare is constantly rewa Of course, Faure was writi another epoch. It const astounds anyone who open reference books to note tha Faure precedes the Franck ata. Faure wrote his as a y man and first performe with a violinist of the famo ardot family, at the Troc for the 1878 Paris Expositio

The possibilities for the of the beautiful slow move were magnificently graspe Miss Posselt. The first ment can beguile a perfo into instrumental excesses also a superficiality which not uncover the more hea expressiveness available in F Mr. Graffman was thus se with his opening sentence the violin seemed to strive more here for smooth tone than for reaching penetration.

* * *

THE BACH E major one of the magnificent w musical literature, is not in its distribution of the mers' allotments and Gr properly deferred, with artistry to Miss Posselt's and grand playing. It great satisfaction to see th phrases emerge accordi plan as well as to hear the tone she produced in the i erable instances Bach affo Prokofieff's F minor Opus 80, is more eviden more is needed, of the inexh ble fertility the late prolific sian possessed. While he to have turned out page page of manuscript, much daily columnist, there is a interest in what he writes even while he was filling it was never mere musical dling. This sonata does bring to the surface any above-mentioned type of m wise-cracks so often appare his other works. The first ment keeps the violin i deepest register but most tively so, while the pia granted a bravado and bom to heroic episode. Mr. Gra exploits it with great fl and exhilaration.

The third and final conc this Coolidge series will be next Wednesday evening b Hungarian quartet.

Cir. (D 47,103)

This Clipping From WOMEN'S WEAR DAILY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JACOB'S PILLOW LISTS 3D WEEK DANCE PROGRAM

First performance and variety of dance fare are again the keynote of the Jacob's Pillow bill for the 3rd week of Ted Shawn's dance festival in the Berkshires near Lee, Mass. John Butler & Co., Donald McKayle & Co., and dance comedian Iva Kitchell will be seen for five performances—Thursday matinee, July 16, and matinees and evenings on both Friday and Saturday, July 17 and 18.

John Butler, who won acclaim for the dances he has created for the New York City Opera Company, has just formed a concert company which will perform the ballets from various City Center productions, "Bluebeard's Castle," "Pagliacci," and "Aida." The new group will also dance the first performances of Mr. Butler's "Masque of the Wild Man," set in a medieval court where the insane were forced to gambol and caper for the grotesque delight of the noble ladies and gentlemen.

Donald McKayle, who scored last season on Broadway with "Games," his group dance of the play games and street songs of the children of Harlem, will present his company in that work, and also in the premiere of "Nocturne," a dance set to the music of the famed blind street musician, Moondog, who performs nightly in a Sixth Avenue jeweler's doorway.

"Poison Iva" Kitchell, as she is known to her "friends," will dance "Sonatina Roccoco"; "Chorus Girl"; "Maisie at the Moovies"; "Soul in Search"; and an ethnic work of West Indian origin, "Pseudo-Voodoo".

Cir. (D 9,796)

This Clipping From
TORRINGTON, CONN.
REGISTER

JUL 10 1953

Music School Concert

The Tanglewood Trio, members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and ~~Bruce Simonds~~, pianist and dean of the Yale Music School, gave the mid-season concert at the Norfolk Music School Wednesday afternoon, July 8. The trio is composed of Gottfried Wilfinger, violinist; George Humphrey, viola; and Karl Zeise, violincello.

That the artists have had wide experience in ensemble playing was evident in the fact that, while each part could be heard individually, there was a blending of tone, spontaneous flow of rhythm, control of dynamics, and authority with which the musical messages were conveyed.

The first selection on the program was Faure's Quartet for Piano and Strings in C Minor, Opus 15. Between the first and last movements which were of impressive breadth, the touching sadness of the Adagio and the lively, bubbling rhythm of the Scherzo were conveyed. The tone achieved by the pianist in this part was more than sprightly, it was spritely!

A Divertimento for String Trio by Dittersdorf, a contemporary of Hayden, presented a change of style and mood. Its bright inventiveness lost nothing in the interpretation.

However, the great performance of the afternoon was reserved for the great work on the program, Brahms' Quartet for Piano and Strings in A Major, Opus 26. From a powerful beginning it progressed unswervingly through the profound and portentious Adagio and the exciting Scherzo to a triumphant end.

The applause at the finish was an ovation and a grateful tribute from music lovers, who overflowed into the foyer after every seat in the auditorium had been filled.

THE HARTFORD TIMES, MONDAY, JULY 20, 1953

All-Mozart Program In Tanglewood's Fourth Concert

By CARL E. LINDSTROM
Special to The Hartford Times

Lenox, Mass.—At about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon a lack of rain over the Berkshire Hills resulted in [illegible] neat a maneuver [illegible] executed at Tangle[illegible]ter and smoother than [illegible]

The grounds were already well populated and the lawns around the Theater-Concert Hall pretty well claim-staked for the fourth [illegible] of the season, the second all-Mozart program. A simple announcement sent the crowd streaming across the grounds to the Big Shed which with its 6,000-capacity was unable to shelter quite all of the customers. It was all right anyway because it didn't rain.

* * *

SOME CONCERN whether the Boston Orchestra, reduced to chamber proportions, would be able to project itself under these conditions was dissipated by the long-since proven accoustics of Saarinen pavilion and more particularly by the incomparably spun texture of the Boston strings. Without question the music was more advantageously heard by more listeners than would have been possible at the [illegible] hall. Listening from the [illegible] on Saturday night for part of the program, I marvelled that so many thousand people would pay their money and miss so much of the music. Patently the beguilements of a Summer evening and a romantic setting were more than compensating.

In familiar pieces the Bostonians under Munch are without equal. The little serenade (Eine Kleine Nachtmusik) for instance was exquisitely turned out. These great string players perform with the homogeneity of a string quartet. The military precision of their bowing, which has been ridiculed by those who prefer the ripe stickiness of what for want of a better phrase might be called the "progressive" school, produces nevertheless, clean, sweet music. You got it, too, in the "Jupiter" Symphony which concluded the Sunday program and especially in the irrepressibly merry "Figaro" overture which opened it.

In the remaining number the orchestra's function, in spite of the description "symphony concertante," was mainly the production of a flattering back drop for solo violin and viola, the first in the hands of Isaac Stern and the second played by the orchestra's first chair violist, Joseph de Pasquale.

The solo melodies are built almost entirely of echoing, imitative material. Echoing is perhaps the word because Mr. Stern's instrument seemed ever assertive to the point of brilliance and Mr. De Pasquale's tone docile and often pale. I would like to have heard them closer to dynamic parity. Perhaps the violist was nervous. Both were rousingly acclaimed by players and audience alike.

Saturday's Concert

The wilting heat of Saturday evening was proof against fans, iced drinks and deshabille. The Berkshires when hot are tropically sticky.

There is no corrective except the music of Mozart.

When Charles Munch appeared before his string players (for the first time in Tanglewood memory in their shirt sleeves) there were 1,100 perspiring persons in the Theater-Concert Hall and a half-dozen thousand others on the humid lawn outside, looking for all the world like the fallen legion on a Biblical battlefield.

The crisply curling strains of the D major Divertimento breathed out into the heavy evening air. The tones were small but etched like the horns of the crescent over the pine tops. One drew breath sharply as under the prick of cool spray and after that everyone breathed less heavily. Fans stopped wagging. The climate had changed.

The complete removal from terrestial pressures was effected by Isaac Stern who, strange to say, did not play a cool Mozart (the G major Violin Concerto) nor yet an objective, classical Mozart. His whole concept was emotional and, in the microcosm, dramatic. His fiddle and bow—and there is not a more precisely masterful technique in the violin world—spoke a various language, startlingly expressive and far removed from the marmoreal monotony that even the biggest musicians resolutely associate with Mozart. The rapture was so swift and buoyant that all his listeners remained in the heady stratosphere till he finished. They applauded excitedly in spite of the re-enclosing heat and upon his third recall burst into typical Tanglewood shouts. Mr. Stern was a decided success.

By and large, this all-Mozart program, the second half of which comprised the B flat Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments and the "Prague" Symphony, had a gentle humanity rather than nobility, intimacy rather than bigness. Even the Symphony was not distinguished for sonority, but rather for sense and design.

They say Mr. Munch likes warm weather. That is easy to believe after the Saturday night concert and Sunday's too.

Ruth Posselt, Gary Graffman Coolidge Soloists Tomorrow

Gary Graffman

Ruth Posselt

Miss Ruth Posselt, violin, and Gary Graffman, piano, will appear in a sonata recital tomorrow evening at 8.30 in the Tanglewood theatre-concert hall. The second of a series of three weekly chamber music concerts presented to the Berkshire Music Center by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, the event will be open to her friends and members of the Society of Friends of the school.

In private life the wife of Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Miss Posselt is one of the school's chamber music faculty. She made her debut in Carnegie Hall, New York, at the age of nine. She has played repeatedly with orchestras under the late Serge Koussevitzky, Charles Munch, Pierre Monteaux, George Szell, Vladimir Golschmann, Victor deSabata, Eugene Goosens, Sir Ernest MacMillan and Walter Handl. She constantly appears with smaller ensembles and in solo recitals.

Contemporary composers, including Hindemith, Piston, Barber, Hill, Dukelsky and Rivier have written concertos expressly to be performed by her. At the age of 15 she was the winner of the Schubert memorial prize over 165 other violinists, and in 1929 won the National Federation of Music Clubs' award. She was the first American artist permitted to make a concert tour of Soviet Russia, and was introduced to Spain by the great cellist, Pablo Casals.

Rachmaninoff Award Winner

A native New Yorker, Mr. Graffman, at the age of eight won a 10-year scholarship to the Curtis Institute, from which he graduated in 1946. He received the Rachmaninoff award in 1947, entitling him to a Carnegie Hall concert the following year. He has since won the Leventritt contest in 1949 and a Fullbright grant in 1950, and has appeared with major orchestras, such as the Philadelphia, New York Philharmonic, Cleveland, Buffalo, Chicago, Indianapolis, Tulsa and Birmingham. He toured this spring with the Little Orchestra Society of New York, playing five different concertos.

Tomorrow's program will be:

Sonata in E	Paul Hindemith
Sonata in A major	Gabriel Faure
Sonata in E major	J. S. Bach
Sonata in F minor	Serge Prokofieff

Tanglewood

Tonight

8.30—Opera scenes by Berkshire Music Center students. Theatre.

Tanglewood Soloist

JORGE BOLET, pianist, is soloist in Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat Minor," which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform in the Sunday afternoon, August 2, concert, 2:30 P.M., of the Berkshire Festival, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux is guest-conductor of the all-Tchaikovsky program.

From Clipping From
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
EVE. NEWS
JUL 18 1953

Composer

LUKAS FOSS

Lukas Foss, distinguished young American composer, will conduct his own cantata, "Parable of Death," the afternoon of the 26th, at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood. Vera Zorina will be narrator.

[210]

Music Eagle 7/23

Ruth Posselt, Graffman Win Critic's Nod

By JAY C. ROSENFELD

THE SECOND of the three Wednesday evening concerts being given at Tanglewood through the generosity of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge was played in the theatre-concert hall last night by Ruth Posselt, violinist, and Gary Graffman, pianist. They chose a program representative of several eras and schools and gave identifiable character to each one. Each artist is better known, at least in this vicinity, for solo appearances so that ensemble work of this nature was another facet of their art to Tanglewood and Berkshire audiences. It was all the more remarkable, therefore, that they played as true chamber musicians and submerged their talents and experience in the more individualistic type of playing.

* * *

HINDEMITH'S sonata in E opened the evening and it was well placed, preceding the Faure A major, so that the contrast between unadorned, even inconsiderate, music and grace and suavity could be observed side by side. Hindemith's music here is ungrateful, for the performer as well as to the listener, whereas Fuare is constantly rewarding. Of course, Faure was writing in another epoch. It constantly astounds anyone who opens his reference books to note that this Faure precedes the Franck sonata. Faure wrote his as a young man and first performed it, with a violinist of the famous Viardot family, at the Trocadero for the 1878 Paris Exposition.

The possibilities for the violin of the beautiful slow movement were magnificently grasped by Miss Posselt. The first movement can beguile a performer into instrumental excesses and also a superficiality which does not uncover the more heartfelt expressiveness available in Faure. Mr. Graffman was thus seduced with his opening sentence and the violin seemed to strive more here for smooth tone than for reaching penetration.

* * *

THE BACH E major sonata, one of the magnificent works in musical literature, is not equal in its distribution of the performers' allotments and Graffman properly deferred, with gallant artistry to Miss Posselt's broad and grand playing. It was a great satisfaction to see the long phrases emerge according to plan as well as to hear the lovely tone she produced in the innumerable instances Bach affords.

Prokofieff's F minor sonata, Opus 80, is more evidence, if more is needed, of the inexhaustible fertility the late prolific Russian possessed. While he seems to have turned out page after page of manuscript, much like a daily columnist, there is always interest in what he writes, and even while he was filling space, it was never mere musical doodling. This sonata does not bring to the surface any of the above-mentioned type of musical wise-cracks so often apparent in his other works. The first movement keeps the violin in its deepest register but most effectively so, while the piano is granted a bravado and bombastic to heroic episode. Mr. Graffman exploits it with great flourish and exhilaration.

The third and final concert in this Coolidge series will be played next Wednesday evening by the Hungarian quartet.

Attendance At Second Series Breaks Record

The 10,100 attendance at the second series of early Berkshire Festival concerts in the Tanglewood theatre was more than 50 per cent above that of even date in 1952, and 2900 more than for the opening series this season. The 17,300 total for the two 1953 week ends topped the attendance for the same series in 1952 by 4700.

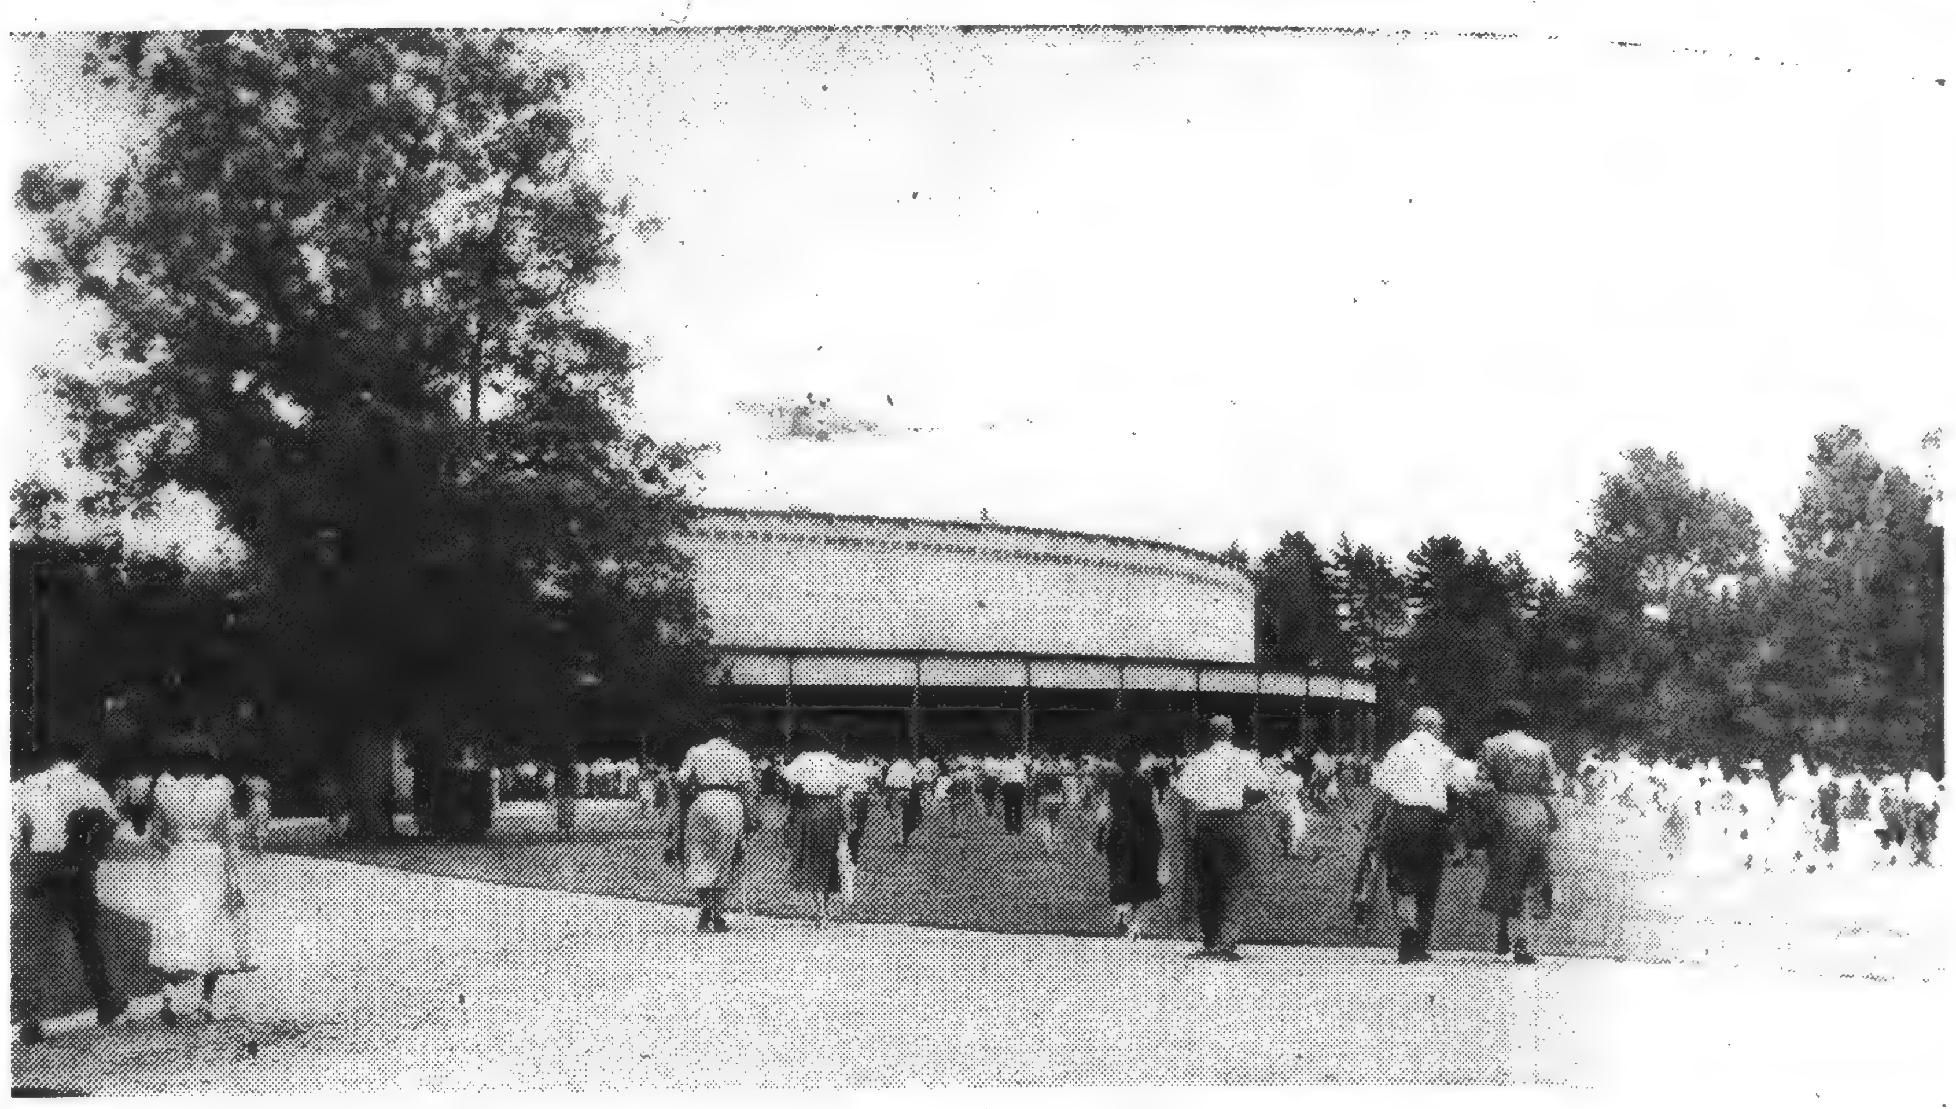
All attendance figures at Tanglewood so far this year have set records.

Tourist Trade Over Week End Busiest of Year

GREAT BARRINGTON — Last week end was by far the busiest of the tourist trade season in this area, according to the local Chamber of Commerce.

The booth on Main Street serviced 279 people Saturday for room accommodations and other aid. At least 300 were actually aided. By 7 PM Saturday, there were no vacancies in town.

Most visitors were here for the horse show or were visiting camps in the area. Last summer, the only week end on which accommodations were exhausted was the last series of the Tanglewood concerts, according to Chamber figures.



Plouffe

THE SCENE CHANGES: For the first time in the history of the so-called small concerts at Tanglewood, Boston Symphony Orchestra officials yesterday afternoon switched the Mozart concert from the theatre-concert hall to the Music Shed. Threatening weather and the heat played a part in making the decision to shift to the larger structure.

10—The Berkshire Evening Eagle, Wednesday, July 22, 1953

Mexican Composer To Conduct His Choral Work Tomorrow

Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer-conductor, who is teaching composition at the Berkshire Music Center, will make his first public appearance at Tanglewood tomorrow evening, when he will conduct a chorus of 40 students of the choral department, known as the "small choir," in his own composition, "Arbolucu." The concert will be open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose contributions help to support the school.

Mr. Chavez, who has been Mexico's director of fine arts since 1946, is permanent conductor of the Mexico City symphony orchestra, which he organized in 1928.

Composed in 1942

"Arbolucu" was composed in 1942 at the request of Hugh Ross, who heads the music center's choral department. It is a setting for chorus of a Spanish folksong from the collection of more than 1000 Spanish and Portuguese songs made in 1933-4 by Kurt Schindler, founder of New York's Schola Cantorum.

On the same program, the other newcomer to the Tanglewood faculty, Mrs. Lorna Cooke deVaron, conductor of the chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, will make her debut in the capacity of assistant to Mr. Ross. A three-season Tanglewood student, Mrs. DeVaron will conduct Aaron Copland's "The Lark."

James Aliferis of the University of Minnesota, who also assists Mr. Ross, will conduct Vaughan Williams' "O Clap Your Hands." Philip Treggor of Storrs, Conn., William Byrd, Cincinnati, Ohio, George Manos, Washington, D.C., Virginia Mead, Pittsburgh, Pa., James Owens, Danbury, Conn., Adrian Ketcham, Tallahassee, Fla., and Kalman Novak, Cambridge, student choral conductors, also will appear on the podium for the first time at Tanglewood.

The Program

Motet, Jesus, Priceless Treasure .... Bach
Philip Treggor, William Byrd and George Manos, conductors.
Ehre sei Gott .... Liebholdt
Virginia Mead, conductor.
O Vos Omnes .... Vittoria
James Owens, conductor.
Abide With Us .... P. S. Barnard
Hear My Cry, O God .... Boatright
Adrian Ketcham, conductor.
Fire, Fire My Heart .... Morley
Kelman Novak, conductor.
117 Psalm (Praise the Lord, All Ye Nations) .... D. S. Cooper
With trumpets, timpani and organ.
Lark .... Copland
Baritohe solo: McHenry Boatwright.
Lorna Cooke DeVaron, conductor.
Arbolucu, Te Sequeste .... Chavez
Conducted by the composer.
O, Clap Your Hands .. Vaughan Williams
With brass, percussion and organ.
James Aliferis, conductor.
Student orchestra,
With Arthur La Brew, organist.

Burgin To Conduct Students

Eagle 7/23

Richard Burgin, concertmaster of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and head of the chamber music department of the Berkshire Music Center will conduct the student orchestra in Sibelius' Symphony No. 1 at 8.30 tomorrow evening in the Music Shed.

The first half of the program will consist of the opening movement of Brahms' violin concerto, with Serge Blanc of Paris, concertmaster of the student orchestra, as soloist, and Endel Kalam of Esthonia, an auditor in the conducting class, as conductor. Mr. Kalam currently is a member of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Concert music for string orchestra and bass, by Paul Hindemith, for several seasons a member of the Tanglewood composition faculty, will be conducted by Harold Blumenfeld of St. Louis, pupil of Leonard Bernstein.

Members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, are invited.

Castle Hill Concerts

Special to the Herald Tribune

IPSWICH, Mass., July 22.—William Warfield, baritone, will give the first performances of Aaron Copland's arrangements of five old American songs tomorrow and Saturday nights in the Castle Hill concert series here, with the composer at the piano. He will also sing two arias from Heinrich Schuetz' "Symphoniae Sacrae" in this program with the New York Brass Ensemble under Samuel Baron's direction. The ensemble will also play works of Monteverdi, Gabrieli, Hindemith, Beethoven and Poulenc.

Eagle 7/23

The Right Idea

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

France has the right idea. She has chosen the universal medium of music to unite a divided world. Perhaps if other countries would follow her example and share their artists the endless quarrels of a battle-scarred humanity would cease.

This is the story of a young violinist, Serge Blanc. Although he came here on a full scholarship from the Koussevitzky Fund, he was actually sent here on official business. The Fine Arts Department of the French Ministry of Propaganda chose him to represent France as ambassador of good will.

They could not have made a happier choice. Blanc has justified the faith of both countries at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood where he is dazzling critics and audiences alike as concertmaster of the young symphony. His astonishing virtuousity, his mature musicianship, his devotion to France and, above all, his unbounded enthusiasm for the United States are cementing Franco-American friendship no end.

Born in Paris, Serge Blanc began the study of violin at five. At ten he entered the Paris National Conservatory and at 13 won Le Premier Prix de Violon, against all comers, old and young! He played with the Pasdeloup Concert Association at 14 and at the ripe old age of 15 he concertized throughout a war-torn Europe where even the paper for his programs was at a premium. In 1949, Blanc was made a laureate of the great international Marguerite Long and Jacques Thibaud Concours (he is called "le nouveau Thibaud") and in 1952, he played sonata recitals with Georges Enesco in England and France.

Although the young violinist maintains a dignified reticence about his hardships, the sacrifices and terrors he and his parents endured during the Hitler occupation of France make a tragic story. But they played their part in giving him compassion and understanding—the very soul of music. He is too wise and too old for one so young. But he tears out his heart — and yours — when he plays.

RUTH ALEXANDER.
Canaan, N.Y.

* * *

Blanc is playing the Brahms violin concerto Friday night at 8.30 in the Shed with the student orchestra. Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are entitled to admission.—Ed.

CARLOS CHAVEZ TO LEAD CHORUS AT TANGLEWOOD

Makes His First Appearance There Tonight, Directing Own Composition

Carlos Chavez, eminent Mexican composer-conductor, who has been his country's director of fine arts since 1946, and who is permanent conductor of the Symphony Orchestra of Mexico City which he organized in 1928, will make his first public appearance at Tanglewood this evening, when he conducts the chorus of some 40 students of Department II, known as the "small choir" of the Berkshire Music Center, in his own composition, "Arbolucu." The concert is open to friends of the summer school of music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, whose contributions help to support the school.

Mr. Chavez has joined Aaron Copland this summer as teacher of composition at the school. "Arbolucu" was composed in 1942 at the request of Hugh Ross, who heads the Berkshire Music Center's choral department, and is a setting for chorus of a Spanish folksong, from the unique collection of more than 1000 Spanish and Portugese songs made in 1933-4 by Kurt Schindler, founder of New York's Schola Cantorum.

On the same concert, the other newcomer to the Berkshire Music Center's faculty this summer, Mrs. Lorna Cooke DeVaron, conductor of the chorus of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, will make her Tanglewood debut in her new capacity, conducting Aaron Copland's "The Lark." Mrs. De Varon was a Tanglewood music student for three years, during the summers of 1946-7-8.

James Aliferis, of the University of Minnesota, who also works under Mr. Ross' direction in the school's choral department, will conduct Vaughan Williams' "O Clap Your Hands," a composition with brass, percussion and organ.

The student choir concert will also mark the first appearances on the podium of the following student choral conductors: Philip Treggor of Storrs, Conn.; William Byrd of Cincinnati; George Manos of Washington, D. C.; Virginia Mead of Pittsburgh; James Owens of Danbury, Conn.; Adrian Ketcham of Tallahassee, Fla.; and Kalman Novak of Cambridge.

Tanglewood

SCHEDULE FOR THE WEEK

Tomorrow Night

* 8.30—Opera Scenes, Theatre.

Wednesday

* 8.30—Sonata recital by Ruth Posselt, violin and Gary Graffman, piano, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge. Theatre.

Thursday

* 8.30—Concert by small choir, Theatre

Friday

* 8.30—Symphony concert by student orchestra, Music Shed, conducted by faculty and students.

Saturday

8.30—Berkshire Festival concert, Charles Munch conducting chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony members. Theatre.

Sunday

*10:00—Chamber music concert by students, Chamber Music Hall.

2.30—Berkshire Festival concert, Charles Munch conducting chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony members in all-Haydn program. Theatre

PM

* 8.30—Composers' forum, Aaron Copland moderator, Chamber Music Hall

*—Open to Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose voluntary contributions help to support the school

Tonight

8.30—Students' forum on "The Problem of Communication in contemporary Music," Aaron Copland, moderator. Speakers: conductor - composer-pianists Leonard Bernstein and Lukas Foss, teachers of conducting at Berkshire Music Center; Barney Childs composition student; and Leonard Rosenman, commissioned to write opera at Tanglewood.

First Opera Scenes Tomorrow Night

The first evening of opera scenes of the season by students at the Berkshire Music Center will be held tomorrow evening at 8.30 in the Tanglewood theatre. Staged by Boris Goldovsky, opera department head, and Miss Sarah Caldwell, his assistant, the performance will be open to Friends of the school, whose voluntary contributions help to support it.

The program will consist of scenes from Mozart's "The Magic Flute"; Scarlatti's "The Rake's Reform"; Verdi's "Aida" and "Falstaff", Gounod's "Faust" and Benjamin Britten's "Albert Herring."

Miss Christina Cardillo of North Adams, who is a Tanglewood student for the second season, will appear as one of the three Spirits in the Mozart opera and as Doralice in "The Rake's Reform."

A feature of the production will be the "workshop costumes," designed by Laura Zirner for the workshop of the University of Illinois, where she and her husband, Ludwig Zirner, are on the faculty. Mr. and Mrs. Zirner are heading the associates' section of the department.

The costumes are clothing units, assembled to indicate character, style and period. They are all of one size, and may be adjusted to fit the figure through the use of elastic, pins and draping. Circular pieces of material are formed into capes, collars and ruffles; straight pieces into belts, sashes or shawls, for example.

Workshop settings, also Mrs. Zirner's creation, on loan to Tanglewood by the University of Illinois, are of screens, frames and furniture elements, assembled to indicate the acting area rather then to perform realistic scenery.

Developed for economy and workability, the simple costumes and set make possible the presentation of opera for young singers.

In the week-end audience were Miss Margaret Bourke-White of New York, Life magazine photographer and writer; and two Boston Symphony Orchestra trustees: President of the board and Mrs. Harry B. Cabot, who had come from their summer home in Northeast Harbor, Me., and Judge and Mrs. Harry Kaplan of Boston.

Paintings on Exhibition

For the current week in the reception room at the Tanglewood main gate is a collection of paintings by Harry Lane of West Stockbridge.

A year-round resident of the Berkshires since 1949, Mr. Lane was acting director of the Berkshire Art Center last summer, and has been instrumental in assembling group shows of local artists, including those at Tanglewood and a recent one at the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge.

A native of New York, Mr. Lane studied in Munich, Germany, and Paris. Examples of his work are hung in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; the Worcester Museum; and in the collection of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. He has painted murals in the U.S. Post Offices of Port Washington, N.Y., and Oakdale, La.

[2]

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

NEWPORT NEWS, VA
PRESS
7/12/53

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

This is the week-end when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire Hills, which the ~~Boston Symphony~~ has made famous as its Summer home.

As in the Summer or two past, much of the music will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the musically informed are wondering is: "How many more Summers will Munch conduct in Tanglewood?"

Man of music — Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center.

That is related, of course, to the question of how much longer Munch conducts in Boston, for the two positions are very much interrelated.

That, indeed, is the nub of the matter: for while Boston has been happy with Munch and Munch has been happy in Boston, it is a ground pattern of Boston activity that the Winter music director take a leading part in the Summer doings at Tanglewood. And that is the point at issue, according to those who know.

Munch finds the Winter schedule a taxing one (he missed most of the season before last because of a breakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the Summer. That is hardly possible as matters now stand.

THIS ADMITTEDLY is a peculiar problem and one that could hardly have been anticipated when Serge Koussevitzky evolved the pattern of activity that has brought both honor and financial advantage to the founding fathers of Boston, as well as the satisfaction of establishing an educational institution of the first importance.

The Berkshire Music Center was a particular passion of Koussevitzky and, in many ways, his most durable monument. It doesn't appear to be the first for Munch and can't possibly be the second.

When, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together.

One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a great tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

IF IT WORKED OUT that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky to begin his long, distinguished career.

Koussevitzky, too, had his limitations of repertory when he came to Boston, even as Cantelli has; but he persisted to have a widespread following for his repertory if not the widest repertory for his following.

JORGE BOLET, pianist, soloist in Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-flat minor, which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform in the Sunday afternoon, August 2, concert of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux is guest-conductor of an all Tchaikovsky program.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 26 1953

Boston Symphony Tanglewood Bill

The complete Boston symphony Orchestra will be heard in the second half of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on the next three Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30 (July 31, Aug. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16). Charles Munch will conduct six of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will conduct next Sunday and Leonard Bernstein will conduct Aug. 8 and 15. Mr. Bernstein and Mr. Munch will conduct the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" benefit program for the Berkshire Music Center Thursday night, Aug. 13. The first ninety minutes of the Sunday programs will be broadcast as part of the CBS "World Music Festivals" series.

THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
JUL 10 1953

SIBELIUS' FIRST AND SEVENTH

Columbia's recorded performances of the Helsinki Sibelius Festival concluded with a program containing the First and Seventh Symphonies and the incidental music to Mæterlinck's "Pelleas et Melisande." Conductor Leopold Stokowski directed the Helsinki City Symphony Orchestra in readings strictly dyed in his own particular kind of tonal brilliance; what the composer, who was listening to the broadcast, must have thought of this version we do no know, but I suspect that the direction of his lifelong friend Robert Kajanus would have been much more acceptable to him. Despite the marked differences between the first and seventh symphonies, they are both characteristic of Sibelius' art and like all of his music strongly individual in substance and utterance. It is known that Sibelius has long been at work on an eighth symphony but why it has never been released is one of the minor mysteries of the day. The seventh is perhaps the most emphatic statement of the composer's musical attitude; certainly it is his ripest work and one deserving more hearings than it has had lately.

The coming broadcasts will be devoted to the Holland Festival and then to the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. The latter has always been noted for its attention to new music and especially to new works by American composers. If, as has been announced, the whole series will be recorded, listeners will have before them the prospect of a real feast of music, and if the series will go on to include the Prades Festival in France our musical summer will be truly a memorable one. For that festival, as all the world knows, is directed by Pablo Casals and brings together some of the world's finest artists; this summer's series should be particularly rewarding.

, , ,

BOSTON, MASS.
POST
JUL 13 1953

Music in Review

BY TUCKER KEISER

Reprint from late editions yesterday's Post

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD, July 11—The six-week season of the Berkshire Music Festival—now beginning its 16th season in the invigorating mountain climate of western Massachusetts—opened tonight with the performance in the Tanglewood Theatre of five Brandenburg concertos by J. S. Bach.

Working with a diminished orchestra while many of the Boston Symphony musicians are engaged at the Esplanade concerts, Charles Munch has made it a practice to commence the festival season with works by Bach, a composer for whom the conductor has profound sympathy.

So evident is it that this sort of music is the conductor's metier, that the Chamber concerts are among the most popular of the whole series. Consequently, it will be necessary to move the concerts from the intimate theatre to the more spacious shed during next year's festival.

The featured instrumentalists in these Concerti Grossi were four first-chair players of the Boston Symphony: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the orchestra and concertmaster, as well as Lucas Foss, pianist. Mr. Foss, whose "A Parable of Death" will be performed on Sunday afternoon, July 26, has been a familiar figure at Tanglewood as a teacher of composition, piano soloist, and conductor.

Last night's concert marked the first appearance at our internationally famous Berkshire Music Center of Miss Anthony, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony.

Superb Horn-Playing

In the six Brandenburg concertos, Bach has handed down to posterity an encyclopedia of human experience ranging from sad adagios to exhilarating chase allegros. In Concerto Number One in F Major, which opened the program the concertina calls for two horns—and what superb horn playing this requires.

Tonight Mr. Munch added the extra burden of an excessively fast tempo in the third movement which kept the audience biting their fingernails and betting how soon the concerto would break down. Yet it must be admitted that the conductor did infuse into the reading of this concerto a woodsy autumnal feeling of the case.

Also in F major, Concerto Number Two provides in the concertina a diabolically difficult high trumpet part which can become overpowering. Since the other solo instruments are oboe, violin and flute, instruments easily dominated by a brass cousin, the conductor has to keep the trumpet in musical focus rather than let it run away with the piece.

Mr. Munch's frequently exhibited love for a keen, piercing trumpet sound led him astray in this concerto by allowing Roger Voisin, truly one of the great trumpeters of our day, to drown out the other soloists as well as the rest of the chamber ensemble. However, in the adagio, a colloquy between violin, oboe and flute, we heard perhaps the most moving music of the concert.

The Concerto in G, Number Three, a joyful composition, with no small group opposed to a larger, was a marvellous example of a demonstration of what Schweitzer calls "terraced plains of sound." The complicated musical lines were never startling or lost in the sudden shifts from piano to forte.

After intermission, the dark-hued Concerto Number Six in B-Flat Major continued the high level of performance. Here we have the lower strings, sounding rich and clean. The final item was Concerto Number Five with flute, violin, and piano as the concertina. This is the most festive and grandly conceived of the six. Lukas Foss joined the members of the orchestra in his admired performance of the solo keyboard role.

Tomorrow afternoon is the second in the series of all-Bach programs. Cantata Number Twenty-Eight with soloists and the Berkshire Festival Chorus, Suite Number Two in B Minor with Doriot Anthony as soloists, and Suite Number Three in D Major will be performed.

This Clipping From
CORNING, N. Y.
LEADER
JUL 2 - 1953

James Fassett's Vocation A Nice Job But Hard Work

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (P—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest [illegible] in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . .but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlands of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Fes

---

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 26 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS
The Shed
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch, John McCollum, tenor.
Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86. ......Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin ....Ravel
Classical Symphony ....Prokofiev
La Creation du Monde ....Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer) ....Foss
FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Zino Francescatti, violinist.
Overture to Leonore, No. 3 .....Beethoven
Violin Concerto ....Mendelssohn
Appalachian Spring ....Copland
Bolero ....Ravel
SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Overture to Manfred ....Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2 ....Foss
Italian Symphony ....Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes by Weber ....Hindemith
NEXT SUNDAY, Aug. 2, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Jorge Bolet, pianist.
Serenade for Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto in B flat minor, Tchaikovsky

---

PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio-TV ....Day By Day

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . . . But sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the ~~Berkshire festival~~ at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS' radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon.

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the international festival of music and drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

[212]

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS
12 1953

NEWPORT NEWS, VA
PRESS
7/12/53

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

This is the week-end when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire Hills, which the ~~Boston Symphony~~ has made famous as its Summer home.

As in the Summer or two past, much of the music will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the musically informed are wondering is: "How many more Summers will Munch conduct in Tanglewood?"

Man of music—Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Music Center.

That is related, of course, to the question of how much longer Munch conducts in Boston, for the two positions are very much interrelated.

That, indeed, is the nub of the matter: for while Boston has been happy with Munch and Munch has been happy in Boston, it is a ground pattern of Boston activity that the Winter music director take a leading part in the Summer doings at Tanglewood. And that is the point at issue, according to those who know.

Munch finds the Winter schedule a taxing one (he missed most of the season before last because of a breakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the Summer. That is hardly possible as matters now stand.

THIS ADMITTEDLY is a peculiar problem and one that could hardly have been anticipated when Serge Koussevitzky evolved the pattern of activity that has brought both honor and financial advantage to the founding fathers of Boston, as well as the satisfaction of establishing an educational institution of the first importance.

The Berkshire Music Center was a particular passion of Koussevitzky and, in many ways, his most durable monument. It doesn't appear to be the first for Munch and can't possibly be the second.

When, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together.

One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a great tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

IF IT WORKED OUT that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky to begin his long, distinguished career.

Koussevitzky, too, had his limitations of repertory when he came to Boston, even as Cantelli has; but he persisted to have a widespread following for his repertory if not the widest repertory for his following.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE
JUL 26 1953

Boston Symphony Tanglewood Bill

The complete Boston symphony Orchestra will be heard in the second half of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on the next three Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30 (July 31, Aug. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16). Charles Munch will conduct six of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will conduct next Sunday and Leonard Bernstein will conduct Aug. 8 and 15. Mr. Bernstein and Mr. Munch will conduct the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" benefit program for the Berkshire Music Center Thursday night, Aug. 13. The first ninety minutes of the Sunday programs will be broadcast as part of the CBS "World Music Festivals" series.

This Clipping From
CORNING, N. Y.
LEADER
JUL 2 - 1953

James Fassett's Vocation A Nice Job But Hard Work

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP) James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . .but sometimes it ia hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals"

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

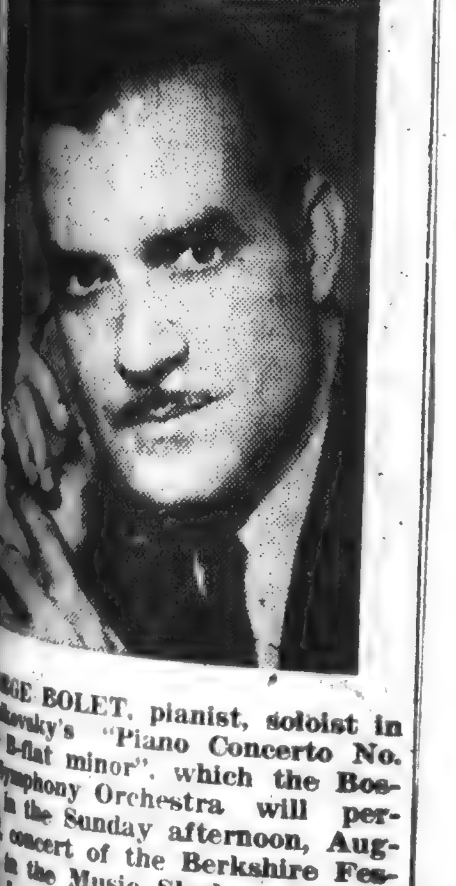
After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlands of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Fes

---



BOLET, pianist, soloist in kovsky's "Piano Concerto No. B-flat minor", which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform in the Sunday afternoon, August concert of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux -conductor of an all Tchaik- program.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio-TV ....Day By Day

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . . . But sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the ~~Berkshire festival~~ at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS' radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon.

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the international festival of music and drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
JUL 10 1953

SIBELIUS' FIRST AND SEVENTH

Columbia's recorded performances of the Helsinki Sibelius Festival concluded with a program containing the First and Seventh Symphonies and the incidental music to Mæterlinck's "Pelleas et Melisande." Conductor Leopold Stokowski directed the Helsinki City Symphony Orchestra in readings strictly dyed in his own particular kind of tonal brilliance; what the composer, who was listening to the broadcast, must have thought of this version we do no know, but I suspect that the direction of his lifelong friend Robert Kajanus would have been much more acceptable to him. Despite the marked differences between the first and seventh symphonies, they are both characteristic of Sibelius' art and like all of his music strongly individual in substance and utterance. It is known that Sibelius has long been at work on an eighth symphony but why it has never been released is one of the minor mysteries of the day. The seventh is perhaps the most emphatic statement of the composer's musical attitude; certainly it is his ripest work and one deserving more hearings than it has had lately.

The coming broadcasts will be devoted to the Holland Festival and then to the Berksh~~ire Festiva~~l at Tanglewood. The latter has always been noted for its attention to new music and especially to new works by American composers. If, as has been announced, the whole series will be recorded, listeners will have before them the prospect of a real feast of music, and if the series will go on to include the Prades Festival in France our musical summer will be truly a memorable one. For that festival, as all the world knows, is directed by Pablo Casals and brings together some of the world's finest artists; this summer's series should be particularly rewarding.

This Clipping From
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 26 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

The Shed
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch; John McCollum, tenor.
Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86 .... Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin .... Ravel
Classical Symphony .... Prokofiev
La Creation du Monde .... Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer) .... Foss

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Zino Francescatti, violinist.
Overture to Leonore, No. 3 ..... Beethoven
Violin Concerto .... Mendelssohn
Appalachian Spring .... Copland
Bolero .... Ravel

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Overture to Manfred .... Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2 .... Foss
Italian Symphony .... Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes by Weber .... Hindemith

NEXT SUNDAY, Aug. 2, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Jorge Bolet, pianist.
Serenade for Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto in B flat minor, Tchaikovsky

---

BOSTON, MASS.
POST
JUL 13 1953

Music in Review

BY TUCKER KEISER

Reprint from late editions yesterday's Post

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD, July 11—The six-week season of the Berkshire Music Festival—now beginning its 16th season in the invigorating mountain climate of western Massachusetts—opened tonight with the performance in the Tanglewood Theatre of five Brandenburg concertos by J. S. Bach.

Working with a diminished orchestra while many of the Boston Symphony musicians are engaged at the Esplanade concerts, Charles Munch has made it a practice to commence the festival season with works by Bach, a composer for whom the conductor has profound sympathy.

So evident is it that this sort of music is the conductor's metier, that the Chamber concerts are among the most popular of the whole series. Consequently, it will be necessary to move the concerts from the intimate theatre to the more spacious shed during next year's festival.

The featured instrumentalists in these Concerti Grossi were four first-chair players of the Boston Symphony: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the orchestra and concertmaster, as well as Lucas Foss, pianist. Mr. Foss, whose "A Parable of Death" will be performed on Sunday afternoon, July 26, has been a familiar figure at Tanglewood as a teacher of composition, piano soloist, and conductor.

Last night's concert marked the first appearance at our internationally famous Berkshire Music Center of Miss Anthony, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony.

Superb Horn-Playing

In the six Brandenburg concertos, Bach has handed down to posterity an encyclopedia of human experience ranging from sad adagios to exhilarating chase allegros. In Concerto Number One in F Major, which opened the program the concertina calls for two horns—and what superb horn playing this requires.

Tonight Mr. Munch added the extra burden of an excessively fast tempo in the third movement which kept the audience biting their fingernails and betting how soon the concerto would break down. Yet it must be admitted that the conductor did infuse into the reading of this concerto a woodsy autumnal feeling of the case.

Also in F major, Concerto Number Two provides in the concertina a diabolically difficult high trumpet part which can become overpowering. Since the other solo instruments are oboe, violin and flute, instruments easily dominated by a brass cousin, the conductor has to keep the trumpet in musical focus rather than let it run away with the piece.

Mr. Munch's frequently exhibited love for a keen, piercing trumpet sound led him astray in this concerto by allowing Roger Voisin, truly one of the great trumpeters of our day, to drown out the other soloists as well as the rest of the chamber ensemble. However, in the adagio, a colloquy between violin, oboe and flute, we heard perhaps the most moving music of the concert.

The Concerto in G, Number Three, a joyful composition, with no small group opposed to a larger, was a marvellous example of a demonstration of what Schweitzer calls "terraced plains of sound." The complicated musical lines were never startling or lost in the sudden shifts from piano to forte.

After intermission, the dark-hued Concerto Number Six in B-Flat Major continued the high level of performance. Here we have the lower strings, sounding rich and clean. The final item was Concerto Number Five with flute, violin, and piano as the concertina. This is the most festive and grandly conceived of the six. Lukas Foss joined the members of the orchestra in his admired performance of the solo keyboard role.

Tomorrow afternoon is the second in the series of all-Bach programs. Cantata Number Twenty-Eight with soloists and the Berkshire Festival Chorus, Suite Number Two in B Minor with Doriot Anthony as soloists, and Suite Number Three in D Major will be performed.

[212]

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS
1953

NEWPORT NEWS, VA
PRESS
7/12/53

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

This is the week-end when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire Hills, which the ~~Boston Symphony~~ has made famous as its Summer home.

As in the Summer or two past, much of the music will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the musically informed are wondering is: "How many more Summers will Munch conduct in Tanglewood?"

That is related, of course, to the question of how much longer Munch conducts in Boston, for the two positions are very much interrelated.

That, indeed, is the nub of the matter: for while Boston has been happy with Munch and Munch has been happy in Boston, it is a ground pattern of Boston activity that the Winter music director take a leading part in the Summer doings at Tanglewood. And that is the point at issue, according to those who know.

Munch finds the Winter schedule a taxing one (he missed most of the season before last because of a breakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the Summer. That is hardly possible as matters now stand.

THIS ADMITTEDLY is a peculiar problem and one that could hardly have been anticipated when Serge Koussevitzky evolved the pattern of activity that has brought both honor and financial advantage to the founding fathers of Boston, as well as the satisfaction of establishing an educational institution of the first importance.

The Berkshire Music Center was a particular passion of Koussevitzky and, in many ways, his most durable monument. It doesn't appear to be the first for Munch and can't possibly be the second.

When, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together.

One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a great tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

IF IT WORKED OUT that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky to begin his long, distinguished career.

Koussevitzky, too, had his limitations of repertory when he came to Boston, even as Cantelli

Man Munch,
the Bo
chestra
Berksh has;

widesp repert ertory

NEW YORK, N. Y.
ERALD TRIBUNE
6 1953

mphony
od Bill

Boston sym-tra will be econd half of Festival in the
Tanglewood,
on the next and Saturday and Sunday
2:30 (July 31, 9, 14, 15, 16).
conduct

GLENS FALLS, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio-TV Day by Day

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals . . . but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of Summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon 2:40-4 P. M.

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

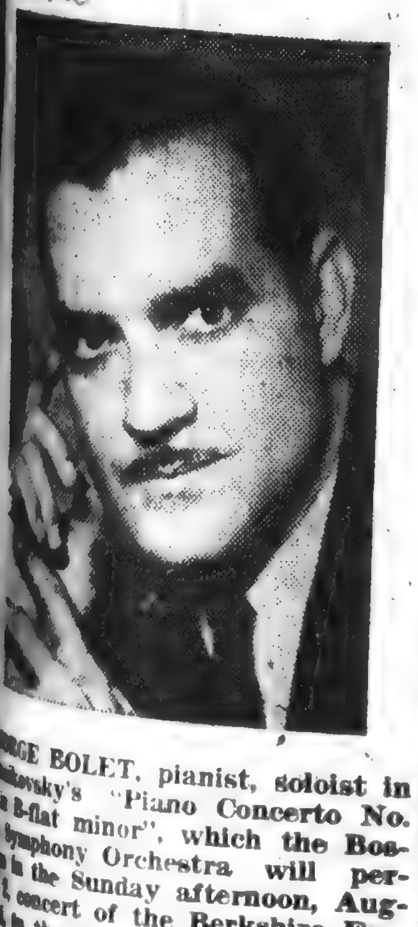
After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlands of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

tival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

Munch and one by Pierre Monteux

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Fes



RGE BOLET, pianist, soloist in kovsky's "Piano Concerto No. B-flat minor", which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform the Sunday afternoon, Aug concert of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux, conductor of an all Tchaikovsky program.

THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
JUL 10 1953

SIBELIUS' FIRST AND SEVENTH

Columbia's recorded performances of the Helsinki Sibelius Festival concluded with a program containing the First and Seventh Symphonies and the incidental music to Mæterlinck's "Pelleas et Melisande." Conductor Leopold Stokowski directed the Helsinki City Symphony Orchestra in readings strictly dyed in his own particular kind of tonal brilliance; what the composer, who was listening to the broadcast, must have thought of this version we do no know, but I suspect that the direction of his lifelong friend Robert Kajanus would have been much more acceptable to him. Despite the marked differences between the first and seventh symphonies, they are both characteristic of Sibelius' art and like all of his music strongly individual in substance and utterance. It is known that Sibelius has long been at work on an eighth symphony but why it has never been released is one of the minor mysteries of the day. The seventh is perhaps the most emphatic statement of the composer's musical attitude; certainly it is his ripest work and one deserving more hearings than it has had lately.

The coming broadcasts will be devoted to the Holland Festival and then to the Berkshire ~~Festival~~ at Tanglewood. The latter has always been noted for its attention to new music and especially to new works by American composers. If, as has been announced, the whole series will be recorded, listeners will have before them the prospect of a real feast of music, and ies will go on to include the estival in France our musical will be truly a memorable one.
festival, as all the world knows, ted by Pablo Casals and brings some of the world's finest artists;
mmer's series should be particu-
ewarding.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 26 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

The Shed
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch; John McCollum, tenor.
Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86 ....Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin ....Ravel
Classical Symphony ....Prokofiev
La Creation du Monde ....Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer) ....Foss

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Zino Francescatti, violinist.
Overture to Leonore, No. 3 .....Beethoven
Violin Concerto ....Mendelssohn
Appalachian Spring ....Copland
Bolero ....Ravel

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Overture to Manfred ....Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2 ....Foss
Italian Symphony ....Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes by Weber ....Hindemith

NEXT SUNDAY, Aug. 2, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Jorge Bolet, pianist.
Serenade for Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto in B flat minor, ...Tchaikovsky

PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio-TV ....Day By Day

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . . . But sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the ~~Berkshire festival~~ at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS' radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon.

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the international festival of music and drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

BOSTON, MASS.
POST
JUL 13 1953

Music in Review

BY TUCKER KEISER

Reprint from late editions yesterday's Post

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD, July 11—The six-week season of the Berkshire Music Festival—now beginning its 16th season in the invigorating mountain climate of western Massachusetts—opened tonight with the performance in the Tanglewood Theatre of five Brandenburg concertos by J. S. Bach.

Working with a diminished orchestra while many of the Boston Symphony musicians are engaged at the Esplanade concerts, Charles Munch has made it a practice to commence the festival season with works by Bach, a composer for whom the conductor has profound sympathy.

So evident is it that this sort of music is the conductor's metier, that the Chamber concerts are among the most popular of the whole series. Consequently, it will be necessary to move the concerts from the intimate theatre to the more spacious shed during next year's festival.

The featured instrumentalists in these Concerti Grossi were four first-chair players of the Boston Symphony: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the orchestra and concertmaster, as well as Lucas Foss, pianist. Mr. Foss, whose "A Parable of Death" will be performed on Sunday afternoon, July 26, has been a familiar figure at Tanglewood as a teacher of composition, piano soloist, and conductor.

Last night's concert marked the first appearance at our internationally famous Berkshire Music Center of Miss Anthony, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony.

Superb Horn-Playing

In the six Brandenburg concertos, Bach has handed down to posterity an encyclopedia of human experience ranging from sad adagios to exhilarating chase allegros. In Concerto Number One in F Major, which opened the program the concertina calls for two horns—and what superb horn playing this requires.

Tonight Mr. Munch added the extra burden of an excessively fast tempo in the third movement which kept the audience biting their fingernails and betting how soon the concerto would break down. Yet it must be admitted that the conductor did infuse into the reading of this concerto a woodsy autumnal feeling of the case.

Also in F major, Concerto Number Two provides in the concertina a diabolically difficult high trumpet part which can become overpowering. Since the other solo instruments are oboe, violin and flute, instruments easily dominated by a brass cousin, the conductor has to keep the trumpet in musical focus rather than let it run away with the piece.

Mr. Munch's frequently exhibited love for a keen, piercing trumpet sound led him astray in this concerto by allowing Roger Voisin, truly one of the great trumpeters of our day, to drown out the other soloists as well as the rest of the chamber ensemble. However, in the adagio, a colloquy between violin, oboe and flute, we heard perhaps the most moving music of the concert.

The Concerto in G, Number Three, a joyful composition, with no small group opposed to a larger, was a marvellous example of a demonstration of what Schweitzer calls "terraced plains of sound." The complicated musical lines were never startling or lost in the sudden shifts from piano to forte.

After intermission, the dark-hued Concerto Number Six in B-Flat Major continued the high level of performance. Here we have the lower strings, sounding rich and clean. The final item was Concerto Number Five with flute, violin, and piano as the concertina. . This is the most festive and grandly conceived of the six. Lukas Foss joined the members of the orchestra in his admired performance of the solo keyboard role.

Tomorrow afternoon is the second in the series of all-Bach programs. Cantata Number Twenty-Eight with soloists and the Berkshire Festival Chorus, Suite Number Two in B Minor with Doriot Anthony as soloists, and Suite Number Three in D Major will be performed.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS
1953

NEWPORT NEWS, VA
PRESS
7/12/53

world of music

BY IRVING KOLODIN, music editor, The Saturday Review

This is the week-end when music-making begins in the spacious areas of Tanglewood, near Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire Hills, which the ~~Boston Symphony~~ has made famous as its Summer home.

As in the Summer or two past, much of the music will be conducted by Charles Munch, music director of the celebrated orchestra; what the musically informed are wondering is: "How many more Summers will Munch conduct in Tanglewood?"

That is related, of course, to the question of how much longer Munch conducts in Boston, for the two positions are very much interrelated.

That, indeed, is the nub of the matter: for while Boston has been happy with Munch and Munch has been happy in Boston, it is a ground pattern of Boston activity that the Winter music director take a leading part in the Summer doings at Tanglewood. And that is the point at issue, according to those who know.

Munch finds the Winter schedule a taxing one (he missed most of the season before last because of a breakdown incurred by overwork) and would prefer to rest in the Summer. That is hardly possible as matters now stand.

THIS ADMITTEDLY is a peculiar problem and one that could hardly have been anticipated when Serge Koussevitzky evolved the pattern of activity that has brought both honor and financial advantage to the founding fathers of Boston, as well as the satisfaction of establishing an educational institution of the first importance.

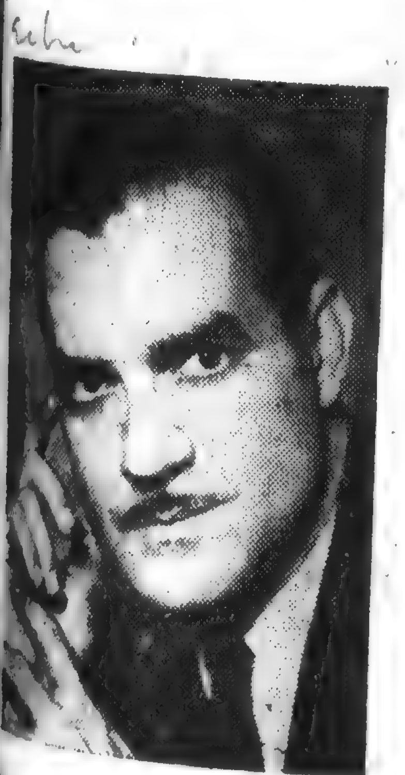
The Berkshire Music Center was a particular passion of Koussevitzky and, in many ways, his most durable monument. It doesn't appear to be the first for Munch and can't possibly be the second.

When, then, if Munch and the Boston board come to an amiable settlement of this schism of interests and part with mutual expressions of regret, thoroughly sincere for once? That is a question that is agitating the minds of conductors from coast to coast and causing more restless tossing of nights than heat, humidity and the high cost of living together.

One mind that isn't agitated is that belonging to Guido Cantelli, who earned considerable favor during a great tour in Boston last season, and might be considered "ready" by 1955.

IF IT WORKED OUT that way, it would be a singular instance of historical repetition, for it should not be forgotten that, in its last crisis (after the dismissal of Karl Muck in 1916), Boston had several years of stand-by administration under Pierre Monteux before engaging the fairly youthful Serge Koussevitzky to begin his long, distinguished career.

Koussevitzky, too, had his limitations of repertory when he came to Boston, even as Cantelli



RGE BOLET, pianist, soloist in kovsky's "Piano Concerto No. B-flat minor", which the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform in the Sunday afternoon, August 2, concert of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Pierre Monteux, guest-conductor of an all Tchaikovsky program.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
HERALD TRIBUNE

6 1953

mphony
od Bill

e Boston symstra will be second half of Festival in the t Tanglewood, on the next and Saturday 0 and Sunday 2:30 (July 31, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16). conduct

---

SALAMANCA, N. Y.
REPUBLICAN PRESS
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio-TV Day by Day

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . .but sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS's radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the Philharmonic Orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon (2:40-4 p. m.)

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire Festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner festival in Bayreuth.

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburg to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the Highland Games, the military tattoo and highlights of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Scotland.

THE ARGONAUT
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
JUL 10 1953

SIBELIUS' FIRST AND SEVENTH

Columbia's recorded performances of the Helsinki Sibelius Festival concluded with a program containing the First and Seventh Symphonies and the incidental music to Mæterlinck's "Pelleas et Melisande." Conductor Leopold Stokowski directed the Helsinki City Symphony Orchestra in readings strictly dyed in his own particular kind of tonal brilliance; what the composer, who was listening to the broadcast, must have thought of this version we do no know, but I suspect that the direction of his lifelong friend Robert Kajanus would have been much more acceptable to him. Despite the marked differences between the first and seventh symphonies, they are both characteristic of Sibelius' art and like all of his music strongly individual in substance and utterance. It is known that Sibelius has long been at work on an eighth symphony but why it has never been released is one of the minor mysteries of the day. The seventh is perhaps the most emphatic statement of the composer's musical attitude; certainly it is his ripest work and one deserving more hearings than it has had lately.

The coming broadcasts will be devoted to the Holland Festival and then to the ~~Berkshire Festival~~ at Tanglewood. The latter has always been noted for its attention to new music and especially to new works by American composers. If, as has been announced, the whole series will be recorded, listeners will have before them the prospect of a real feast of music, and ies will go on to include the estival in France our musical will be truly a memorable one. festival, as all the world knows, ted by Pablo Casals and brings some of the world's finest artists; immer's series should be particuewarding.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 26 1953

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

The Shed
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by ~~Charles Munch~~; John McCollum, tenor.
Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86. ....Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin............Ravel
Classical Symphony ....Prokofiev
La Creation du Monde..........Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer)....Foss

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Zino Francescatti, violinist.
Overture to Leonore, No. 3.....Beethoven
Violin Concerto ....Mendelssohn
Appalachian Spring ....Copland
Bolero..........................Ravel

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Overture to Manfred ....Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2................Foss
Italian Symphony ....Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes by Weber ....Hindemith

NEXT SUNDAY, Aug. 2, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Jorge Bolet, pianist.
Serenade for Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto in B flat minor. ....Tchaikovsky

---

PAWTUCKET, R. I.
TIMES
JUL 2 - 1953

Radio-TV ....Day By Day

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP)—James Fassett listens to music and gets paid for it. He has probably the nicest job in the world, seeing many foreign countries, listening to wondrous music festivals. . . . But sometimes it is hard work.

For five months a year Fassett travels, visiting seven important music festivals in Europe and the ~~Berkshire festival~~ at Tanglewood, Mass. His job is making tape recordings of these extraordinary musical events, which he later broadcasts on CBS' radio survey of summer music, the "World Music Festivals."

These programs replace the philharmonic orchestra program over CBS every Sunday afternoon.

In a letter from Norway, Fassett reports he is going on to Holland to record operatic bits in the Hague and Amsterdam. Then he returns to Massachusetts for four broadcasts in the Berkshire festival, three conducted by Charles Munch and one by Pierre Monteux.

"After that I will go back to Salsburg," Fassett wrote. "I will do two Sunday broadcasts of the Richard Wagner Festival in Bayreuth. We will do several scenes from the 'ring' operas with Wagner's two grandsons, Wolfgang and Wieland conducting the excerpts."

After that, Fassett will fly to Edinburgh to broadcast the Glyndebourne Opera, the highland games, the military tattoo and highlights of the international festival of music and drama in Scotland.

"My work is not always easy," Fassett wrote. "In Rome I wanted to record the sound of the famous fountain of Trevi. I didn't want the sounds of taxis, bicycles and people, but only the falling water. We set up our recording equipment three hours before dawn, but it required more than an hour before we could make onlookers be quiet enough so we would get only the sounds of the fountain."

BOSTON, MASS.
POST
JUL 13 1953

Music in Review

BY TUCKER KEISER

Reprint from late editions yesterday's Post

Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD, July 11—The six-week season of the Berkshire Music Festival—now beginning its 16th season in the invigorating mountain climate of western Massachusetts—opened tonight with the performance in the Tanglewood Theatre of five Brandenburg concertos by J. S. Bach.

Working with a diminished orchestra while many of the Boston Symphony musicians are engaged at the Esplanade concerts, Charles Munch has made it a practice to commence the festival season with works by Bach, a composer for whom the conductor has profound sympathy.

So evident is it that this sort of music is the conductor's metier, that the Chamber concerts are among the most popular of the whole series. Consequently, it will be necessary to move the concerts from the intimate theatre to the more spacious shed during next year's festival.

The featured instrumentalists in these Concerti Grossi were four first-chair players of the Boston Symphony: Doriot Anthony, flute; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Roger Voisin, trumpet, and Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the orchestra and concertmaster, as well as Lucas Foss, pianist. Mr. Foss, whose "A Parable of Death" will be performed on Sunday afternoon, July 26, has been a familiar figure at Tanglewood as a teacher of composition, piano soloist, and conductor.

Last night's concert marked the first appearance at our internationally famous Berkshire Music Center of Miss Anthony, the first woman ever to become a principal with the Boston Symphony.

Superb Horn-Playing

In the six Brandenburg concertos, Bach has handed down to posterity an encyclopedia of human experience ranging from sad adagios to exhilarating chase allegros. In Concerto Number One in F Major, which opened the program the concertina calls for two horns—and what superb horn playing this requires.

Tonight Mr. Munch added the extra burden of an excessively fast tempo in the third movement which kept the audience biting their fingernails and betting how soon the concerto would break down. Yet it must be admitted that the conductor did infuse into the reading of this concerto a woodsy autumnal feeling of the case.

Also in F major, Concerto Number Two provides in the concertina a diabolically difficult high trumpet part which can become overpowering. Since the other solo instruments are oboe, violin and flute, instruments easily dominated by a brass cousin, the conductor has to keep the trumpet in musical focus rather than let it run away with the piece.

Mr. Munch's frequently exhibited love for a keen, piercing trumpet sound led him astray in this cencerto by allowing Roger Voisin, truly one of the great trumpeters of our day, to drown out the other soloists as well as the rest of the chamber ensemble. However, in the adagio, a colloquy between violin, oboe and flute, we heard perhaps the most moving music of the concert.

The Concerto in G, Number Three, a joyful composition, with no small group opposed to a larger, was a marvellous example of a demonstration of what Schweitzer calls "terraced plains of sound." The complicated musical lines were never startling or lost in the sudden shifts from piano to forte.

After intermission, the darkhued Concerto Number Six in B-Flat Major continued the high level of performance. Here we have the lower strings, sounding rich and clean. The final item was Concerto Number Five with flute, violin, and piano as the concertina. . This is the most festive and grandly conceived of the six. Lukas Foss joined the members of the orchestra in his admired performance of the solo keyboard role.

Tomorrow afternoon is the second in the series of all-Bach programs. Cantata Number Twenty-Eight with soloists and the Berkshire Festival Chorus, Suite Number Two in B Minor with Doriot Anthony as soloists, and Suite Number Three in D Major will be performed.

ELD UNION, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1953

MUSIC PROGRAM AT TANGLEWOOD JULY 22-AUG. 2

Ruth Posselt Plays Tonight; Haydn Program Saturday Night

The music of Haydn will be played next Saturday evening, July 25, at 8.30 p. m., and works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud and Lukas Foss next Sunday afternoon, July 26, at 2.30 p. m., Saturday's concert in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, during the third week end of Berkshire Festival concerts, and Sunday's in the big Music Shed. These will be the orchestra's last concerts in the 1152-seat theater, and the following week the major festival concerts will commence in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform, with Charles Munch conducting. Hugh Ross will lead the Haydn Theresa Mass, and Mr. Foss will conduct his cantata, "A Parable of Death."

Concert to Be Broadcast

The July 26 concert will be the first of four Sunday afternoon Festival performances to be broadcast nationally by CBS Radio from Tanglewood, as the only American event in the network's "World Music Festivals" program, which includes highlights from seven European summer festivals. The first portion of the program Tanglewood audiences will hear, from 2.30 to 4 p. m. EDT, will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, CBS radio director of music, as commentator.

A feature of the week end will be the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' "A Parable of Death," which was commissioned for Vera Zorina by the Louisville Orchestra last season, which the composer will conduct with Miss Zorina as narrator, John McCollum as tenor soloist and the Festival chorus of Berkshire Music Center students participating. The text is translated by Anthony Hecht from "Stories of God" by the Austrian writer Rainer Maria Rilke. Miss Zorina, well known ballet star, will make her first appearance at Tanglewood. She has narrated Honegger's "Jeanne d'Arc au bucher" with the Boston and other orchestras.

Following are the details of the Tanglewood program for Wednesday, July 22, through Sunday, Aug. 2:

Wednesday, July 22, *8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall—Sonata recital, Gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge; Ruth Posselt, violin; Gary Graffman, piano:

Sonata in E. ....Paul Hindemith
Sonata in A major, Opus 13 ....Gabriel Faure
Sonata in E major ....J. S. Bach
Sonata in F minor, Opus 80 ....Serge Prokofieff

Thursday, July 23, *8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall—Small Choir Concert by students of Department II.

Friday, July 24, *8.30 p. m., Music Shed—Orchestra concert by students of Department I.

Saturday, July 25, 8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall—Berkshire Festival Concert, Charles Munch, conductor:

Haydn ....Theresa Mass, with chorus and soloists (Conducted by Hugh Ross) (Lois McCauley, soprano; Beatrice Krebs, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Lee Cass, bass)
Haydn ....Symphony in C minor, No. 95
Haydn ....Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100

Sunday, July 26, 2.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall—Berkshire Festival Concert, Charles Munch, conductor:

Strauss ....Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86
Ravel ...."Le Tombeau de Couperin", Suite
Prokofieff ......"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25
Milhaud .."La Creation du Monde"
Foss ...."A Parable of Death," for Narrator, Chorus, Tenor, Solo and Orchestra
Narrator: Vera Zorina (Conducted by the Composer)

Monday, July 27 *8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall — Opera scenes by students of Department IV.

Wednesday, July 29, *8.30 p. m., Theater-Concert Hall — Hungarian Quartet, Gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge; Zoltan Szekely, violin; Alexander Moskowsky, violin; Joseph Reilich, viola; Vilmos Palotai, cello:

Quartet in G major, Opus 77, No. 1 ....Joseph Haydn
Quartet No. 1 ....Walter Piston
Quartet in B-flat major, Opus 130 ....Ludwig van Beethoven

Thursday, July 30, *8.30 p. m., Music Shed—Orchestra concert by students of Department I.

Friday, July 31, 8.30 p. m., Music Shed—Berkshire Festival Concert A-1, Charles Munch, conductor:

Beethoven ......Overture to "Leonore," No. 3
Mendelssohn ..Violin Concerto in E minor
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)
Copland ...."Appalachian Spring"
Ravel ...."Bolero"

Saturday, Aug. 1, 10 a. m., Music Shed—Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, conductor; public rehearsal (benefit, pension fund): *3 p. m., Music Shed—Organ Recital, E. Power Biggs; *4 p. m., Barn—Concert of renaissance and baroque music by students of the Tanglewood Study Group; 8.30 p. m., Music Shed Berkshire Festival Concert A-2, Charles Munch, conductor:

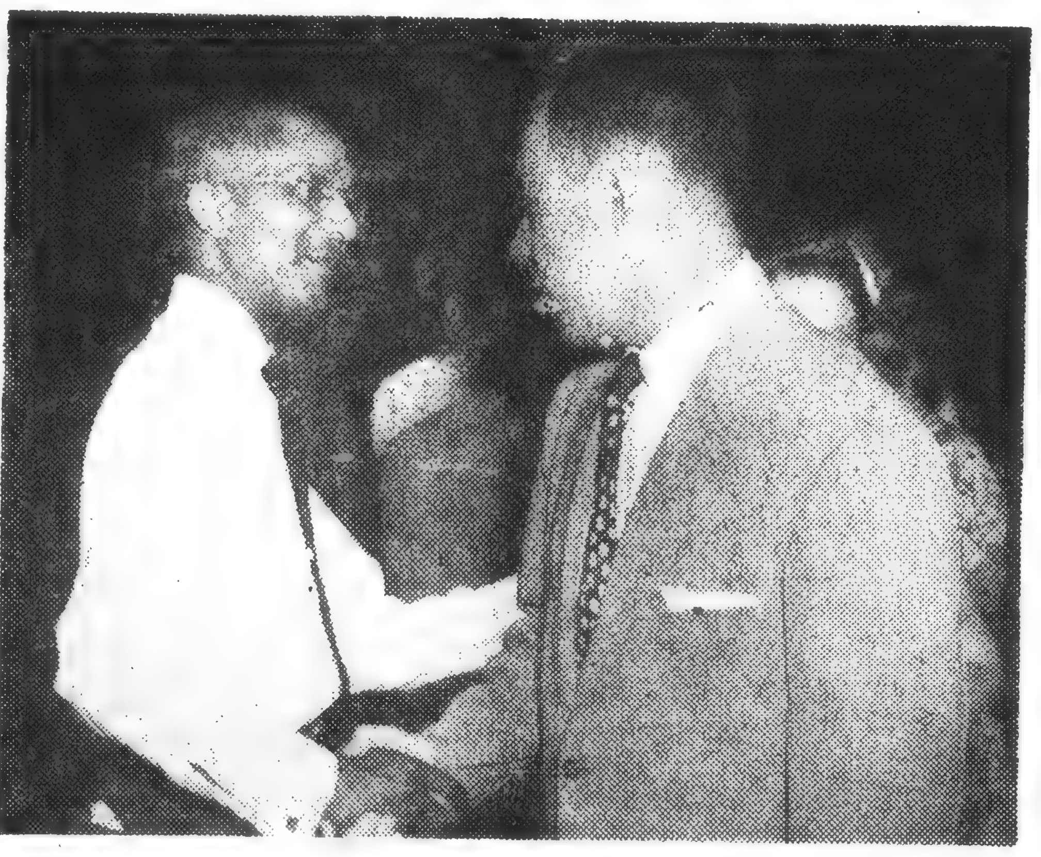
Schumann ....Overture to "Manfred"
Foss ....Piano Concerto No. 2
(The Composer as Soloist)
Mendelssohn ....Symphony No. 4, "Italian"
Hindemith ..Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber

Sunday, Aug. 2, *10 a. m., Chamber Music Hall—Chamber music concert by students of Department I; 2.30 p. m., Berkshire Festival Concert A-3, Pierre Monteux, guest conductor:

Tchaikovsky ....Serenade for Strings
Tchaikovsky ....Symphony No. 5, in E minor
(Broadcast coast-co-coast by CBS Radio, (James Fassett, commentator)
Tchaikovsky ..Piano Concerto No. 1, in B-flat minor
(Soloist: Jorge Bolet)

*Concerts open to members of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center whose contributions help to support the school.

Visiting Preacher at Wesley



Egbert C. MacLeod, pastor of the Union Methodist Church in Boston, greets worshippers in Wesley Methodist Church, after preaching there Sunday. He is associated with the Cooper Community Center of Negroes in Roxbury.

VIOLINIST

RUTH POSSELT

Ruth Posselt, violinist and Gary Graffman, pianist, will present a sonata recital in the theater-concert hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, Wednesday night at 8.30. Admission is free to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center and to invited guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge.

Pittsfield, Massachusetts, Friday, July 24, 1953.

REHEARSAL: The quartet rehearses with Hugh Ross, conductor of festival chorus for performance of Haydyn's "Theresa Mass" tomorrow night with chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony members in the Tanglewood theatre. From left to right: John McCollum, tenor; Beatrice Krebs, contralto; Mr. Ross; Lois McCauley, soprano; Lee Cass, bass.

Conference Answers Critic

Eagle 7/23

John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference today sharply replied by letter to a charge made by the editor of Good Housekeeping magazine which criticizes county hotelkeepers. The article, written by George Marek, appears in the August issue of the magazine.

"As the director of an agency that yearly does an outstanding job in handling visitors' accommodations at NO COST," Mr. Downing's letter states, "I challenge you to substantiate the content of your article."

'Ballooning'

"Further," it contains, "I charge you with the ballooning of isolated cases as if they were the rule rather than the rare exception that they are."

Answering Marek's charge that the county's hotels, restaurants, boarding homes and tourist camps should be placed under a co-ordinating authority "who would make sure you would be neither bilked nor pushed around," Mr. Downing replied that he did not "agree that such protection is needed," but pointed out that the Berkshire Hills Conference does represent most of the innkeepers, and "would welcome reports of any individual or establishment that indulged in such conduct as you portray."

'Hardly Justification"

Complaints from the thousands of persons who do business with the Conference annually number less than one per cent, Mr. Downing said, "hardly justification for such an indictment as you propose in your article."

Downing's letter requested a reply "either to substantiate your charges, or to let me know how you intend to correct this misrepresentation of the Tanglewood area, its citizenry and its institutions."

Tanglewood

Tonight

8.00 Symphony concert by Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, Richard Burgin and students conducting. Music Shed. Open to Friends of Berkshire Music Center.

Eagle 7/23

Tanglewood

Tonight

8.30—Concert by small choir of Berkshire Music Center, conducted by Carlos Chavez, composer; James Aliferis and Mrs. Lorna Cook DeVaron, of choral faculty, and students.

Open to Friends of Berkshire Music Center.

To Honor Chavez

Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer-conductor and guest teacher of composition at the Berkshire Music Center, will be honored tonight by the Small Choir, after the concert in which he will conduct the 40 choral students in his "Arbolucu."

This Clipping
NEW BEDFORD, MASS.
STANDARD-TIMES
JUL 19 1953

Mass by H
To Be Presente
Premiere o
Set at Ta

THE HARTFO

It Takes M

Speci

By CARL E. LINDSTRO

THE man up front in Orchestra is Charle was Serge Koussevitzk Paur, Gericke — back was the first conducto men who have created

But there are more so complex an organ orchestra. In fact the roots in a subsoil of bu and a virtuosity in de all three of which seem in people who fancy those who are actually

The genius behind
Symphony is a man probably has missed v given by the orchestra
by relatively few peo
— fewer perhaps tha ognize most of the first

He is George Judd though, and signally w a Chevalier of the Leg
tation was made la
Charles Roux, French C
He was recognized in versity with the degree

GEORGE JUDD lo
Munch. The differ
ference in mien betw
Parisian. Actually Mr Bostonian as he could working with an orche
so many Frenchmen century's association many ways was more and proved it by Munch is enough of a immediate acceptance cessor, a feat that nobo could do.

Finding out wh orchestra as the Bo necessarily somethin
most important functi seem not to have requ

Does a conductor
he is to get it, those duce the money and not know what the ar point of childishness seem to be enterpris vision. Only a diplom
the one for the other man up front who is prophet of an ideal.

Though he would Tanglewood and all t a monument to the
George Judd as it is Koussevitzky. Dream be built out of physic

NO PRESIDENTIAL managed with su hand and such quizzi as a meeting between press just when the ne and the orchestra we

The blunt facts orchestra wanted a u paid well over any p status of BSO was a amour propre. The m
the squeeze on by for by the orchestra. Si source of revenue, th

I sat in on th developed a health Choosing his word honestly he came tioning a three-fo respect and friend complete, straigh peased the Boston
the bloody battle th
the union, to such the interview by sa
Mr. Petrillo was

THERE WAS th was begun to truly New Engla is actually what Symphony has p
ford than all th
Orchestras combi
harmonic, the WF
Symphony Orche
Hartford Sympho

It is not allow of a meeting her was a quasi-social was apparent a green-eyed suspic fectly feasible des ton Symphony t would have made a sinecure.

Anybody wh
sion might, in re are here being the point. Geor thorniest probl seem never to the meeting a Orchestra con
England orche

THE HARTFORD TIMES. WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1953

It Takes More Than Music to Make a Symphony

Special Artistry George Judd's

By CARL E. LINDSTROM

Charles Munch and George Judd

Genius: In front of and behind the arras

THE man up front in the Boston Symphony Orchestra is Charles Munch. Before him it was Serge Koussevitzky and Monteux, Muck, Paur, Gericke, back to George Henschel who was the first conductor in 1881. These are the men who have created the musical values.

But there is more than musical values in so complex an organization as a symphony orchestra. In fact the artistic values have their [illegible] in a symbol of business acumen, diplomacy and a virtuosity in dealing with human nature, all three of which seem to be congenitally lacking in people who fancy themselves musicians and those who are actually the anointed.

The genius behind the arras of the Boston Symphony is a man who in the past 35 years probably has missed very few Hartford concerts given by the orchestra, but would be recognized by relatively few people in Bushnell Memorial — fewer perhaps than those who would recognize most of the first desk players.

He is George Judd. He has been recognized, though, and signally when he recently was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. The presentation was made last week by M. Francois Charles-Roux, French Counsel General in Boston. He was recognized in June, too, by Bates University with the degree, Doctor of Humanities.

*

GEORGE JUDD looks a good deal like Charles Munch. The difference is just about the difference in men between a Bostonian and a Parisian. Actually Mr. Judd is a good French Bostonian as he could not escape being after working with an orchestra whose roster counts so many Frenchmen and after a quarter of a century's association with Koussevitzky who in many ways was more French than the French and proved it by his musical predisposition. Munch is enough of a Bostonian to have won immediate acceptance as Koussevitzky's successor, a feat that nobody thought any conductor could do.

Finding out what the manager of such an orchestra as the Boston Symphony does is necessarily something of an engima because his most important functions are those which must seem not to have required doing at all.

Does a conductor expect the impossible? If he is to get it, those people who alone can produce the money and other impossibilities must not know what the artist is unreasonable to the point of childishness. Unreasonableness must seem to be enterprise; and childishness to be vision. Only a diplomatist of rare gifts can sell the one for the other and when sold it is the man up front who is the artistic law and the prophet of an ideal.

Though he would be the first to deny it, Tanglewood and all that it implies is as much a monument to the sagacity and quiet skill of George Judd as it is to to the dream of Serge Koussevitzky. Dreams are not realized; they must be built out of physical stuff.

* *

NO PRESIDENTIAL press conference was ever managed with such shrewdness on the one hand and such quizzical persistence on the other as a meeting between Mr. Judd and the Boston press just when the negotiations between Petrillo and the orchestra were coming to a head.

The blunt facts were that no players in the orchestra wanted a union contract since all were paid well over any possible scale. The nonunion status of BSO was a festering wound to Petrillo's amour propré. The musician's Caesar simply put the squeeze on by forbidding any more recordings by the orchestra. Since this was an important source of revenue, the result was inevitable.

I sat in on that press conference and there developed a healthy respect for Mr. Judd's gifts. Choosing his words warily but precisely and honestly he came out of that gauntlet of questioning a three-fold victor: He had the reporter's respect and friendship for having given them a complete, straight forward story; he had appeased the Boston brahmins, who remembered the bloody battle that Col. Higginson fought with the union, to such an extent that he could end the interview by saying genially: "I found that Mr. Petrillo was really not a bad fellow at all."

* * *

THERE WAS the time, too, when a movement was begun to make the Boston Symphony a truly New England Orchestra. That, of course, is actually what it always has been. The Boston Symphony has played more concerts in Hartford than all the various Hartford Symphony Orchestras combined. That includes the old Philharmonic, the WPA symphonic era, the Hartford Symphony Orchestra (ancien regime) and the Hartford Symphony Orchestra (Second Empire).

It is not allowable to report the proceedings of a meeting here some 15 years ago since it was a quasi-social occasion. Suffice it that there was apparent a disposition to look with such green-eyed suspicion upon the grand, but perfectly feasible design of the Friends of the Boston Symphony that the diplomatic challenge would have made the Moscow embassy look like a sinecure.

Anybody who was present at either occasion might, in retrospect, feel that the situations are here being magnified but that is precisely the point. George Judd has a way of solving the thorniest problems in such a way that they seem never to have existed. Nobody remembers the meeting above referred to but the Boston Orchestra continues to play here, not a New England orchestra merely but a world orchestra.

Tanglewood-by-the-Sea

A Boston family plans to go to Tanglewood by boat. The approach represents one of the diplomatic coups for which Boston Symphony Manager George E. Judd is noted.

A lady dropped in on him at Symphony Hall troubled because she had wanted to go to the Berkshire festival for years but her husband was so wrapped up in sailing their boat off Cape Cod that she had been unable to interest him in the land-locked charms of the Festival.

Mr. Judd after a moment's thought asked her why the family didn't embark in the boat, sail down Long Island Sound, around Manhattan and up the Hudson. By anchoring practically anywhere from Hudson, N. Y., north to Albany, they would be within 85 miles of Tanglewood: Just have the car sent over, live on the boat and commute to the Festival.

She bought a box for the series.

To become a world orchestra takes a deal of doing, too, and that is where George Judd must be given first place whether he likes it or not. Ever since 1935 the steady progress of the orchestra in national and international esteem has been part of his grand design. The tour of Europe, the gradual extension of the U. S. tours culminating in the trip to the coast last season, the expansion of the radio and recordings activity and, most recently, the educational broadcasts over WGBH fm are all attributable to the enterprise of Mr. Judd.

* * *

FLOWERS AND BIRDS are an absorbing interest. At his home, in Norwell, on the South Shore, near Hingham and Scituate, which he restored from an old house built by a sea captain, he has a large flower and vegetable garden, which he works in every chance he gets. He is especially proud of his roses, of which he has many choice varieties. Sometimes in the midst of the Tanglewood season he will sneak down to Norwell, just for a few hours, to see how the garden is getting on.

When he motors about the country he always carries his binoculars, in case he should see or hear an interesting bird. He likes to arrange flowers, and when he has entered an arrangement in a garden club exhibition, to please his friends who are members, he has often won prizes.

He is fond of good food and is an excellent cook, though he eats sparingly. He reads a great deal, especially biography and poetry.

George Judd likes to see other people happy. Although he hates noisy crowds, he has been known to spend a whole day on the beach at Scituate, jammed with people, so that two little boys, who were his guests, could have a day at the sea.

Characteristic was his response once to a leading question: Was there in the country any orchestra manager who held so long a tenure as his? (One knew very well that there wasn't.)

He answered quietly:

"There is no other manager in the country to whom the orchestra means so much as the Boston Symphony does to me."

BOSTON, MASS.
POST
JUL 19 1953

VIOLINIST — Isaac Stern is soloist in the all-Mozart programs at the Berkshire Festival, July 18-19.

News Around the Clock

And the Band Plays On

EVERYBODY SEES the man out front when the band begins to play. But the man behind the scenes is the one who makes the music possible. For an interesting study of the man behind the internationally famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, George Judd, left, see Page 9.

* * *

BOSTON, MASS.
EVENING GLOBE
JUL 17 1953

Honoris Causa

Low visibility is one way of getting good work done. It is practiced by some of our most effective citizens, and their preference for it is respected by their friends and colleagues.

The French Government, however, has seen fit to penetrate this blaze of obscurity in which Mr. George Judd has, for the more part, lived and worked as Manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, by awarding him the cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor at the hands of M. Francois Charles-Roux, the French Consul in Boston.

This choice could scarcely have been happier. When Mr. Judd took over the management, the radius of our orchestra was comparatively local to the northeastern part of the United States, although its repute had long been national and international. The orchestra has now appeared in person at some of the outer confines of that fame, a triumphal European tour last year, and this Spring an equally victorious transcontinental journey. Even locally its circuit has widened from Symphony Hall to Tanglewood, the festival and the music school, to FM and national broadcasting, to the recording of major works, and huge out-of-door popular concerts free on the Esplanade.

In an age when serious music in America has the momentum of a tidal wave, Mr. Judd is the judicious long-range planner, the daring innovator, the courageous sponsor of problematical enterprises. If asked to name a citizen who has gone far to vindicate the repute of this city as a great cultural center in the present century, and has helped to carry its name far in favorable light, his habitual low public visibility would not obscure the name of Mr. Judd.

July 23

Tanglewood Music Beats The Heat

MIDSUMMER REVERIE—This is not a picture at Coney Island. It is Tanglewood, the summer music mecca in Lenox, Mass. When dusk falls each couple is alone, so to speak, with great music played by a great orchestra, just for them. More than 6,000 have been counted on the greensward.

From West Hartford to the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood is less than a two hours' drive—and that's traveling along andante moderato rather than allegro vivace.

A couple of short cuts accelerates the tempo. Winsted's mile long main street can be bypassed by turning right at the first school beyond the bridge, turning left a couple of blocks along at the second school, passing by a third school and coming back out on Route 44 at a fourth school.

THE CALL BOARD

by

Richard N. Boulton

Another place to save a mile or two is at the northern edge of Great Barrington where Route 7 and a sizeable Tanglewood sign point Right-across the Housatonic river; here, by going straight to the town of Housatonic by way of Glendale some road-under-construction milage is eliminated. But be careful if you take this one as there's a right turn a few miles along.

Traffic northward last weekend was amazingly slim despite the heat-impelled exodus from the cities. Although there were almost 6,000 at the Saturday night concert, and that many again Sunday afternoon, most of the license plates were New York and Massachusetts. There were actually more Jersey cars in the parking lot around us than Nutmeg labels. But the driving was good, the music was superlative. Two days of Mozart, and the last number seemed as new and fresh as the first.

* * *

Mozart has been a favorite of mine ever since I met the girl I later married in the Mozart Bierstube in Yorktown; but never have I heard Mozart as played by the Boston strings. Last Saturday was almighty hot, and maybe Dr. Munch did flag a bit; but the artlessness of the master just seemed all the more ingenuous.

And anyway, the first program was, with the exception of the Prague symphony, a selection of the burgeoning Mozart rather than the later master of ingratiating tonal architecture. Sunday was the day for that.

Sunday's program began with a very sprightly reading of the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro". With a fresh night's sleep and some percussion to hold up the tempo, Dr. Munch breezed along with enthusiasm and elan. Then Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale joined in "Konzertante Sinfonia" that was as ecstatic as lovemaking or eating licorice. The antiphonal duet in the andante was almost too beautiful to listen to.

"Eine kleine Nachtmusik" began the second half at the same crisp pace; and the afternoon concluded with a Jupiter who hurled weary thunderbolts for two movements and then came to life in a precipitous finale that had bravos resounding through the glen. Tanglewood is about 60 miles from here, and is well worth walking both ways.

* * *

The concerts are scheduled for the 1152 seat hall with its deep pitch. They were originally designed to offer chamber works in an intimate setting, but so popular have they become that as many as 6,000 people bring blankets and camp chairs to lie under the stars amidst the formal gardens and towering pines and hear the fairy-like waftings of melody in the summers' night. Despite the fact there is no attempt to amplify the sound, the music can be heard at considerable distance, and people are much quieter than at say Lewissohn stadium or Robin Hood Dell. The picture above is not Coney Island, but Tanglewood, and when dusk falls each couple is alone—with great music played by a great orchestra, just for them.

The concluding week-end of this series begins with Papa Haydn. Saturday (July 25th) the Theresa Mass with the Berkshire Festival chorus, then Symphony No. 95 (C Minor), and 100 (The "Military" in G Major). Sunday begins with Strauss Divertimento after Couperin, continues with Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin" suite, and then goes into Milhaud's exciting "La Creation de Monde." Following the intermission, Vera Zorina narrates Lukas Foss' "A Parable of Death" based on a legend written by the Austrian poet Rainer Maria Rilke, and if I haven't turned in too much copy, maybe there's room for a picture of ex-ballerina Zorina and the young composer-pianist.

* * *

Music for Israel Concert Is Tuesday; Program Announced

The program for the Music for Israel benefit concert at 8.30 Tuesday evening at the Jewish Community Center will be Mozart's sonata for violin and piano in D major; Beethoven's trio for violin, viola and cello in G major, and Brahms' piano quartet in A major.

Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, honorary national chairman of Music for Israel, founded by her late husband, will address the audience.

Those attending the concert are invited to deposit on a table at the door any musical instruments or music which they can spare to be sent to students in Israel. Others having such contributions are asked to leave them at the center.

Proceeds of the event, in which Jean Bedetti, cellist; Leonard Bernstein, pianist; and William Kroll, violinist, and Joseph dePasquale, violist, will be the artists, will be sent as a Pittsfield contribution to the national office of Music for Israel. Donations have been received from summer visitors who attended last year's concert from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio. The committee hopes to make a Music for Israel concert an annual event.

---

eagle

TANGLEWOOD

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

By the

7/23

BOSTON SYMPHONY

Orchestra

CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director

Next Sat., July 25 (Theatre) at 8:30 HAYDN Program
Sun., July 26 (Shed) at 2:30—20th Century Program

Reserved Seats $4 and $5

SHED—Fri. and Sat. Eves. at 8:30, Sun. Afts. at 2:30

OPENING Concert by full Orchestra July 31
Soloist—Zino Francescatti, Violin

SHED CONCERTS: July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
General Admission To All Festival Concerts—$2
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES

Tanglewood Concert On WDRC July 26

[illegible]

MERIDEN, CONN.
RECORD
JUL 3 - 1953

Berkshire Music Center Will Open Sunday

The Berkshire Music Center, the summer school of music maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Berkshire Festival, will open its eleventh season, a six-week course of music studies for advanced students and professionals, at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Sunday afternoon.

Charles Munch music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and director of the Berkshire Music Center, will arrive from Paris to address students and guests at opening exercises, commencing at 3:30 p. m. in the Theatre - Concert Hall.

Dr. Lewis Perry, chairman of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center, whose contributions help to support the school, and an orchestra trustee, will preside. There will be a brief address by Henry B. Cabot, orchestra board president, Composer Aaron Copland, who is assistant director of the school, will introduce the faculty.

As at every opening of the school since its founding by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitzky in 1940, Hugh Ross, director of its choral department, will lead the students in "Alleluia" composed for the school's opening in 1940 by Randall Thompson.

Tea will be served in the Tanglewood garden following the exercises.

This Clipping From NEWBURGH, N. Y.
NEWS
JUL 9 - 1953

Berkshire Festival to Open July 11

The opening Berkshire Music Festival concerts at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., is this weekend, July 11-12 with Charles Munch conducting all-Bach programs. The concerts will be held in Theater-Concert Hall. The Bach Contata 28 with soloists Sara Mae Endich, Betty Allen, John McCollum and Mac Morgan will be performed.

On July 15, at 8:30 p.m., the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Baroque Trio will perform. Members of the trio are Ferando Valenti, harpsichord; Julius Baker, flute and Daniel Saidenberg, cello.

On July 18 at 8:30 p.m. and July 19 at 2:30 p.m. the concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be devoted to the works of Mozart, with Isaac Stern, violinist.

The final weekend of Theater-Concert Hall performances is July 25 with an all-Haydn program; and July 26, featuring works of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff,

Inquirer July 23

Part Of Sunday's Tanglewood Concert To Go On The Air

Because next Sunday's (July 26) Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. will be broadcast nationally by CBS Radio, it will be given in the Music Shed instead of in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

The Sunday afternoon concert by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, will be the first of four Sunday afternoon Festival performances to be heard on the air as the only American event in the network's "World Music Festivals" program, which includes highlights from seven European summer festivals. The first portion of the program Tanglewood audiences will hear, from 2:30 to 4:00 P.M. will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, CBS Radio Director of Music, as commentator.

Broadcast exigencies which make the change of location necessary ill necessitate a prompt start of the program at 2:30 P.M.; also will preclude any interruption of the opening orchestral selection on each of the Sunday programs to seat latecomers. Seatholders are cautioned they cannot be seated until after the conclusion of the entire opening number, July 26, which runs 20 minutes; August 2: Tchaikovsky's "Serenade for Strings" runs 25 minutes; August 9: Schubert's "Symphony No. 5, in G-flat" runs 24 minutes; August 16: Schubert's Symphony in B minor (Unfinished)" runs 21 minutes.

Patrons holding seats for the Theatre-Cancert Hall on Sunday will be admitted to the reserved seat locations in the Music Shed marked in red on their ickets. General admission seat-holders will be seated in unreserved sections of the Shed.

The part of Sunday's program that will be broadcast over CBS includes Richard Srauss' Divertimento, Op. 86, Ravel's Le Tombeau de Couperin Suite, Prokofieff's Classical Symphony and Milhaud's La Creation du Monde.

The second part of the program will be the New England premiere of Foss' A Parable of Death, a cantata for narrator, tenor, orchestra and chorus, conducted by the composer. Vera Zorina will be the narrator, John McCollum will be tenor soloist, and the chorus will be the Berkshire Festival Chorus.

Boston Symphony Orchestra At Tanglewood

Charles Munch will open the major series of the 1953 Berkshire Festival concerts with the full 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra in the great Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. on Friday, July 31. Nine concerts will be given Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30 through August 16th.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.
TRANSCRIPT

JUL 10 1953

IN BOSTON SYMPHONY—Miss Doriot Anthony, first flautist of Boston Symphony orchestra, who will be soloist Sunday afternoon at second concert of 1953 Berkshire Music festival which opens tomorrow evening at Tanglewood, ~~Lenox.~~ Miss Anthony is first woman ever to occupy a first desk in famed Boston orchestra.

This Clipping From
HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

JUL 19 1953

Tanglewood Concert Programs

A month ago, The Courant published the programs for the six week ends of concert to be given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Charles Munch at Tanglewood.

In response to many requests from persons who neglected to save the listing at that time, we reprint here the programs for the remaining concerts:

Concerts in the Theater

This afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, an all-Mozart program—Overture to "Figaro"; Sinfonia Concertante, soloists, Isaac Stern, violin and Joseph de Pasquale, viola; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik"; "Jupiter" Symphony.

Saturday, July 25, at 8:30 o'clock, all-Haydn program—"Theresa" Mass, conducted by Hugh Ross; Symphony in C Minor, No. 95; "Military" Symphony, No. 100.

Sunday, July 26, at 2:30—Strauss, Divertimento after Couperin; Ravel, "Le Tombeau de Couperin"; Prokofiev, "Classical" Symphony; Milhaud, La Creation du Monde"; Foss, "A Parable Of Death", conducted by the composer, with Vera Zorina as narrator.

Concerts in 'The Shed'

Friday, July 31, at 8:30—Beethoven, Overture No. 3, to "Leonore"; Mendelssohn, Violin Concerto in E Minor, Zino Francescatti, soloist; Copland, "Appalachian Spring"; Ravel, Bolera.

Saturday, August 1, at 8:30—Schumann, Overture to "Manfred"; Foss, Piano Concerto No. 2, Lukas Foss, soloist; Mendelssohn, "Italian" Symphony; Hindemith, "Metamorphosis on Themes By Weber."

Sunday, August 2, at 2:30, All-Tschiakowsky program conducted by Pierre Monteux of the San Francisco Symphony—Serenade For Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto No. 1, Jorge Bolet, soloist.

Friday, August 7, at 8:30—Berlioz's "Romeo And Juliet", dramatic symphony with Jennie Tourel, Nichola Moscona, soloists, and chorus.

Saturday, August 8, at 8:30, Koussevitzky Memorial Concert, conducted by Leonard Bernstein Moussorgsky, prelude to "Khovanstchina"; Haydn, Symphony No. 102; Mahler, "Resurrection" Symphony.

Sunday, August 9, at 2:30—Schubert, Symphony No. 5; Barber, Adagio For Strings; Strauss, "Don Quixote"; Milhaud, Concerto No. 1, for 'cello, Gregor Piatigorsky, soloist; Wagner, Overture to "Tannhauser".

Friday, August 14, at 8:30—Brahms, Requiem, Lois Marshall, soprano, William Warfield, baratone.

Saturday, August 15, at 8:30—Leonard Bernstein conducting Sibelius' Fourth Symphony, Chavez's "Sinfonica Indica", and Brahms' Second Symphony.

Sunday, August 16, at 2:30—Schubert, "Unfinished" Symphony; Chabrier, "Bourree Fantasque"; Wagner, Prelude and "Love Death" (Tristan and Isolde), "A Siegfried Idyll", and excerpts from Act III, "Die Meistersinger"; Ravel, Piano Concerto for Left Hand, Seymour Lipkin, soloist, and "La Valse".

Programs are all subject to change.

Sunday's Concert in the Shed; BSO Will Broadcast Program

Charles Munch will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Tanglewood Music Shed Sunday afternoon in the final concert of the early Berkshire Festival. Scheduled originally for the theatre-concert hall, like all of the programs by the chamber orchestra, the location of the performance will be changed to accommodate the broadcast by CBS on its "World Music Festivals" program.

Because of the broadcast also the audience who are not in their places at 2.30, when the concert will start promptly, will not be seated until the conclusion of the opening number, Richard Strauss' Divertimento (after Couperin), which runs 20 minutes.

Patrons holding seats for the theatre-concert hall will be admitted to the reserved seat locations in the Music Shed marked in red on their tickets. General admission ticket-holders will be seated in unreserved sections of the Shed. The arrangements will be the same as those of last Sunday, when the location was changed due to threatening weather, the heat and the size of the audience.

The broadcast will be heard on the air from 2.30 to 4, with commentary by James Fassett, CBS radio director of music. The concert, with the three on following Sundays, will be the only American events in the network's Festivals program.

MUSIC FOR ISRAEL: This group is making plans for the Music for Israel concert July 28 at the Jewish Community Center. Meeting at the Lenox home of Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky are left to right, Mrs. Irving Rubin, Howard Udel, Mrs. Pasquale Cioffi, Mrs. Stanley Shapiro, Mrs. Koussevitzky, Mrs. Henry de Sola Mendes, Jay C. Rosenfeld and Miss Helen Coates. Soloist will be Leonard Bernstein.

[216]

Eagle 7/25

Guest Conductors Featured In Week-End Festival Program

Charles Munch, Berkshire Festival conductor, will yield his baton, after the intermission of the last pair of early festival concerts tonight and tomorrow afternoon, to two members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty.

Zorina To Narrate

This evening, Hugh Ross will conduct members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with the Festival chorus and a vocal quartet in Haydn's "Theresa Mass." Tomorrow Lukas Foss will lead the orchestra and the chorus in his own composition, "A Parable of Death," in which Vera Zorina will be narrator and John McCollum will sing the tenor role.

This evening's all-Haydn program will open with the Symphony in C-minor, composed in 1791 and probably first performed in London in the same year. Written shortly before Mozart's death, it is said in parts to resemble his operas. It has no introduction, but opens with a concise, dramatic theme, according to the orchestra's program annotator, John Burk.

The second number will be the Symphony in G-major, called the "Military" symphony. Mr. Burk writes, "This is the most cheerful of symphonies, having after the opening adagio not a grave note in its whole course."

The Theresa Mass was the fourth of six masses written in 1799 for the chapel services in the church at Eisenstadt. It was composed in Vienna for the name-day of Princess Marie Hermenegild Esterhazy and was named for Maria Theresa, wife of Emperor Francis II of Austria, who was a singer and admirer of Haydn.

The quartet in the Mass will be composed of Lois McCauley, soprano; Beatrice Krebs, contralto; John McCallum, tenor, and Lee Cass, bass, students in the Tanglewood opera department.

Modern Music Tomorrow

In the only program of modern music of the early festival series, the work of two former members of the school's composition faculty will be presented tomorrow afternoon. Darius Milhaud, whose "La Creation du Monde" will be played, was guest teacher the season of 1949. Mr. Foss, a student in the early years of the school, and later pianist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, now on its conducting faculty, for several seasons taught composition.

Tomorrow's program also includes Richard Strauss's "Divertimento (after Couperin)"; Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin" Suite, and Prokofieff's "Classical Symphony."

"A Parable of Death" was written in Rome while the composer was a student at the American Academy. Commissioned by the Louisville (Ky.) Orchestra, it was first performed by that group last March. A month later it was introduced to New York by Robert Shaw, and again was performed at the Ojai (Cal.) Festival in May.

Miss Zorina, a native of Berlin, who made her stage debut in Norway in a ballet at the age of six, was a ballerina in the Broadway productions of "I Married an Angel," "Louisiana Purchase" and "On Your Toes." Since entering the career of a narrator with symphony orchestras, she has created the role of Joan of Arc in the first American performance of Honegger's "Jeanne d'Arc au Bucher," which she repeated with Mr. Munch and the Boston Orchestra. In private life she is the wife of Goddard Lieberson, president of Columbia Records.

Jazz Poem Tomorrow

Mr. Munch owns the original manuscript of "La Creation du Monde," which was composed in 1923 following Mr. Milhaud's first visit to the United States and his introduction to Harlem jazz. Especially interested in the dance, he planned the work as a ballet, with scenario by Blaise Cendrar, and wrote it for a small group of instruments. Tomorrow's performance will be the first by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

When Leonard Bernstein conducted the work with the New York City Symphony in 1945, Miles Kastendiek in the Christian Science Monitor wrote. "Some may call this long-haired version of our popular music a 'jazz poem.'"

A few seats remain in the theatre for tonight's performance. General admission will be available for listening from the lawn. As tomorrow's performance will be broadcast over the CBS network, it will be held in the Music Shed, where holders of general admission tickets may sit in the unreserved section. Due to broadcasting, late-comers will not be seated until the end of the first number.

Tanglewood

Tonight

8.30—Berkshire Festival all-Haydn concert, Charles Munch and Hugh Ross conducting. Theatre-concert hall.

Tomorrow

AM

*10.00—Chamber music concert by students of Berkshire Music Center. Chamber Music Hall.

String Quartet in G minor..Haydn
Nancy Heaton and Janine Ganoung, violins; Elizabeth Phillips, viola; Olga Zilbcorg, cello.

Soli for Oboe, Clarinet, Trumpet and Bassoon ...... Carlos Chavez
Rodney Pierce, oboe; Saul Eichner, clarinet; Calvin Torrey, trumpet; Robert Koper, bassoon.
Conducted by composer.

String Quartet No. 2 ..... Bartok
Serge Blanc and Stanley Dombrowski, violins; Nancy Pease, viola; Camilla Heller, cello.

PM

2.30—Berkshire Festival concert, Charles Munch, conducting. Music Shed.

PM

* 8.30—Composers' forum, Aaron Copland, moderator, Chamber Music Hall.

Lyric Sonata for violin and piano,
John Kennedy, Huntington, L.I.
William dePasquale, violin.
Composer as pianist.

Piano Sonata,
David Tecklin, White Plains, N.Y.
Composer as pianist.

Two Song Cycles,
Charles Wilson, Toronto
Leo Goebel, soprano.
William Livant, piano.

String Quartet,
Joseph Weiss, Los Angeles, Cal.
Stanley Dombrowski and Carl Williams, violin; Endel Kalam, viola; Arthur Lessing, cello.

Monday

* 8.30—An evening of opera scenes, from Mozart's Don Giovanni and La Finta Giardiniera; Verdi's Aida, Don Carlo, La Traviata and Othello; Puccini's Madame Butterfly and, La Boheme; Stravinsky's The Rake's Progress (two). Theatre.

*Open to members of the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

Ever-Mounting Debt

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

"He builded better than he knew." The thousands who go to Tanglewood prove that these words of Emerson are true of Serge Koussevitzky. The creator of the Berkshire Music Center and the Koussevitzky Foundation who brought the Boston Symphony Orchestra to unchallenged height, made real here a vision of what good music could do for the people.

Tanglewood presents a rare combination of nature and art. Today it not only attracts visitors and students from all our states but from the countries overseas. This region owes an ever-mounting debt to Dr. Koussevitzky as well as his widow, Olga Koussevitzky, a soul dedicated to make his ideals prevail. Their benefactions have blessed those at Tanglewood who have had in its beauty a glimpse of the wonder and glory that life could offer. In our materialistic age, let us be grateful that the Berkshires offer a spiritual experience.

OLIVE A. COLTON.

Curtis Hotel,
Lenox.

Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the BOSTON SYMPHONY Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
Next Sat., July 25 (Theatre) at 8:30 HAYDN Program
Sunday, July 26 (Shed) at 2:30 - 20th Century Program
Reserved Seats - $4 and $5
SHED - Fri. and Sat. Eves. at 8:30 - Sun. Afts. at 2:30
OPENING Concert by full Orchestra July 31
Soloist - Zino Francescatti, Violin
July 31, Aug. 1, 2 - 7, 8, 9 - 14, 15, 16
For tickets address Box Office,
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600
(General Adm. to all Festival concerts $2; sold day of concert)

Catskill, N. Y., July 23, 1953

The presentation of Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony at Tanglewood Sunday, under the direction of Charles Munch, revealed to us complexites and subtleties which we had not previously found in this composition. Although, as the program notes say, the music is not of an Olympian mood, it has passages which remind one of Bethoven in his deep moments, as well as those of great melody and harmonic beauty.

The Tanglewood powers transferred the concert from the small hall to the big shed, to shield the audience from mild threats of Jupiter Pluvius, and the intense brightness of Phoebus Apollo. The all-Mozart program suffered somewhat from the change, as the small Mozartian orchestra sounds best in smaller quarters.

The symphony and the always delightful, simple and spirited "Eine kleine Nachtmusik" for string only, stood the transfer well. Isaac Stern and Joseph de Pasquale were violinist and violist in the less familiar "Konzertante Sinfonie." The audience seemed to like this, but we thought the performance lacking in authority and found our attention wandering to the oppressive heat.

Music:

Tanglewood: Saturday evening, July 25, 8:30, all Haydn program including: Theresa Mass with chorus and soloists (conducted by Hugh Ross); Symphony in C minor, No. 95 and Sympathony in G (Military), No. 100. Sunday afternoon, July 26, 2:30, program includes Strauss Divertimento; Ravel "Le Tombeau de Couperin"; Prokofieff "Classical" Symphony; Milhaud "La Creation du Monde" and Foss, "A Parable of Death" for Narrator, Chorus, and Tenor, conducted by the composer.

Sunday afternoon concerts at 4:00 at the Maverick in Woodstock and at Music Mountain, Falls Village.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival—July 23 matinee, July 24 and 25 matinee and evening, Alicia Markova, Myra Kinch and La Meri and Di Falco.

Kiwanis To Hear BSO Manager

George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will speak at the Kiwanis Club luncheon at 12.15 tomorrow at the Sheraton Hotel. His subject will be the Berkshire Festival.

Our Hilltown Neighbors

By DAVID J. MALCOLM

7/26

This has been a pretty good week. The phoebes have been unusually generous in the renditions of one of our favorite songs; the blueberry pie season opened with that nice lady down the road leaving a pie, hot out of the oven, on the back porch while our back was turned; a gentle breeze has stirred at our homemade weather vane on the shaded corner of the veranda, convincing us that we were really not uncomfortable even during those hottest days; and George Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, informs us that we were missed at Tanglewood on Sunday, but "perhaps we can make it up in part to you by the broadcasts from 2.30 to 4 on Sundays beginning the 26th." The only flies in the ointment, as it were, are those beautiful pictures of delicious food that continue to torture us every time we pick up a magazine. There ought to be a law against them.

We pass on Neighbor Judd's information about Tanglewood being on the air on Sundays as a reasonable substitute for being unable to attend in person. Also, with the thought in mind that, with our new radio—the recent gift of our colleagues in school work—we are not half as badly off as we sometimes like to think we are, regarding our enforced absence from so many things this summer.

* * *

PAGE EIGHTEEN

Weekend Program Of Berkshire Fete

The music of Haydn will b[illegible] played tonight at 8:30 and works [illegible] of Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prok-[illegible]ofieff, Milhaud and Lukas F[illegible] will be performed Sunday after-[illegible]noon at 2:30 in the Theatre-Con-[illegible]cert Hall, Tanglewood, Lenox, during the third weekend [illegible] Berkshire Festival concerts. These will be the orchestra's [illegible] concerts in the 1152-seat theatre (next week the major Festival concerts will commence in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Members of the Boston Symphony [illegible]

Music

TANGLEWOOD, LENOX, MASS
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
Charles Munch, Music Director
This Sat., July 25 [illegible]
HAYDN Program [illegible] at 2:30—20th Century Program [illegible]
Reserved Seats $[illegible]
SHED—Fri. & Sat. E[illegible]
Afts. at 2:30 OPENING C[illegible]
Orchestra July [illegible]
Soloist—Zino Francescatti [illegible]
July 31, Aug. 1, 2—[illegible]
For tickets [illegible] wood, L[illegible] (General A[illegible] sold on da[illegible]

NYT

Boston Symphony Tanglewood Bill

The complete Boston symphony Orchestra will be heard in the second half of the Berkshire Festival in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., on the next three Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 and Sunday afternoons at 2:30 (July 31, Aug. 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16). Charles Munch will conduct six of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will conduct next Sunday and Leonard Bernstein will conduct Aug. 8 and 15. Mr. Bernstein and Mr. Munch will conduct the annual "Tanglewood on Parade" benefit program for the Berkshire Music Center Thursday night, Aug. 13. The first ninety minutes of the Sunday programs will be broadcast as part of the CBS "World Music Festivals" series.

Berkshire Festival

Boston Symphony Orchestra
Charles Munch [illegible]
Tanglewood [illegible]
[illegible]
Wednesday [illegible]
Quartet [illegible]
1 Haydn Quartet [illegible]
Friday 8.30 [illegible]
Beethoven [illegible]
Saturday 8.3[illegible]
Schumann [illegible]
Sunday [illegible]
(Pierre Mo[illegible]
Bolero [illegible]

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
by the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
TODAY (Shed) at 2:30—20th Century Program
Reserved seats $4 and $5
SHED—Fri. & Sat. Eves. at 8:30. Sun. Afts at 2:30. OPENING Concert by full Orchestra July 31. Soloist—Zino Francescatti, Violin.
July 31, Aug. 1, 2-7, 8, 9—14, 15, 16
For tickets address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600. (General Admission to all Festival concerts $2, sold on day of concert).

Concert to Be Broadcast

7/26

The Berkshire festival concert, scheduled for Sunday afternoon at Tanglewood, will be presented in the Music Shed because the program will be broadcast nationally over the Columbia system, the first of four programs scheduled to be airwaved. The program was originally scheduled to be given in the theater-concert hall.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, will be heard during the program. James Eassett, CBS radio director of music, will be announcer. The program will start at 2.30.

She use to [illegible] to her friends it was one of [illegible] of enjoyments each year [illegible] the beautiful [illegible] shires, and [illegible] such pleasant [illegible] she was a [illegible] Miss Adams [illegible]

Last Esplanade Concert Honors City of Bangor

The last Esplanade [illegible] the silver [illegible] wound [illegible] Bangor. [illegible] Roswell [illegible] town [illegible] conductor [illegible] "Greeting [illegible]" The [illegible] heard [illegible] Gov. Burton M. C[illegible] lating the orchestra [illegible] years and [illegible] "We [illegible] having a [illegible] orchestra [illegible]

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass.
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
NYT
by the 7/26
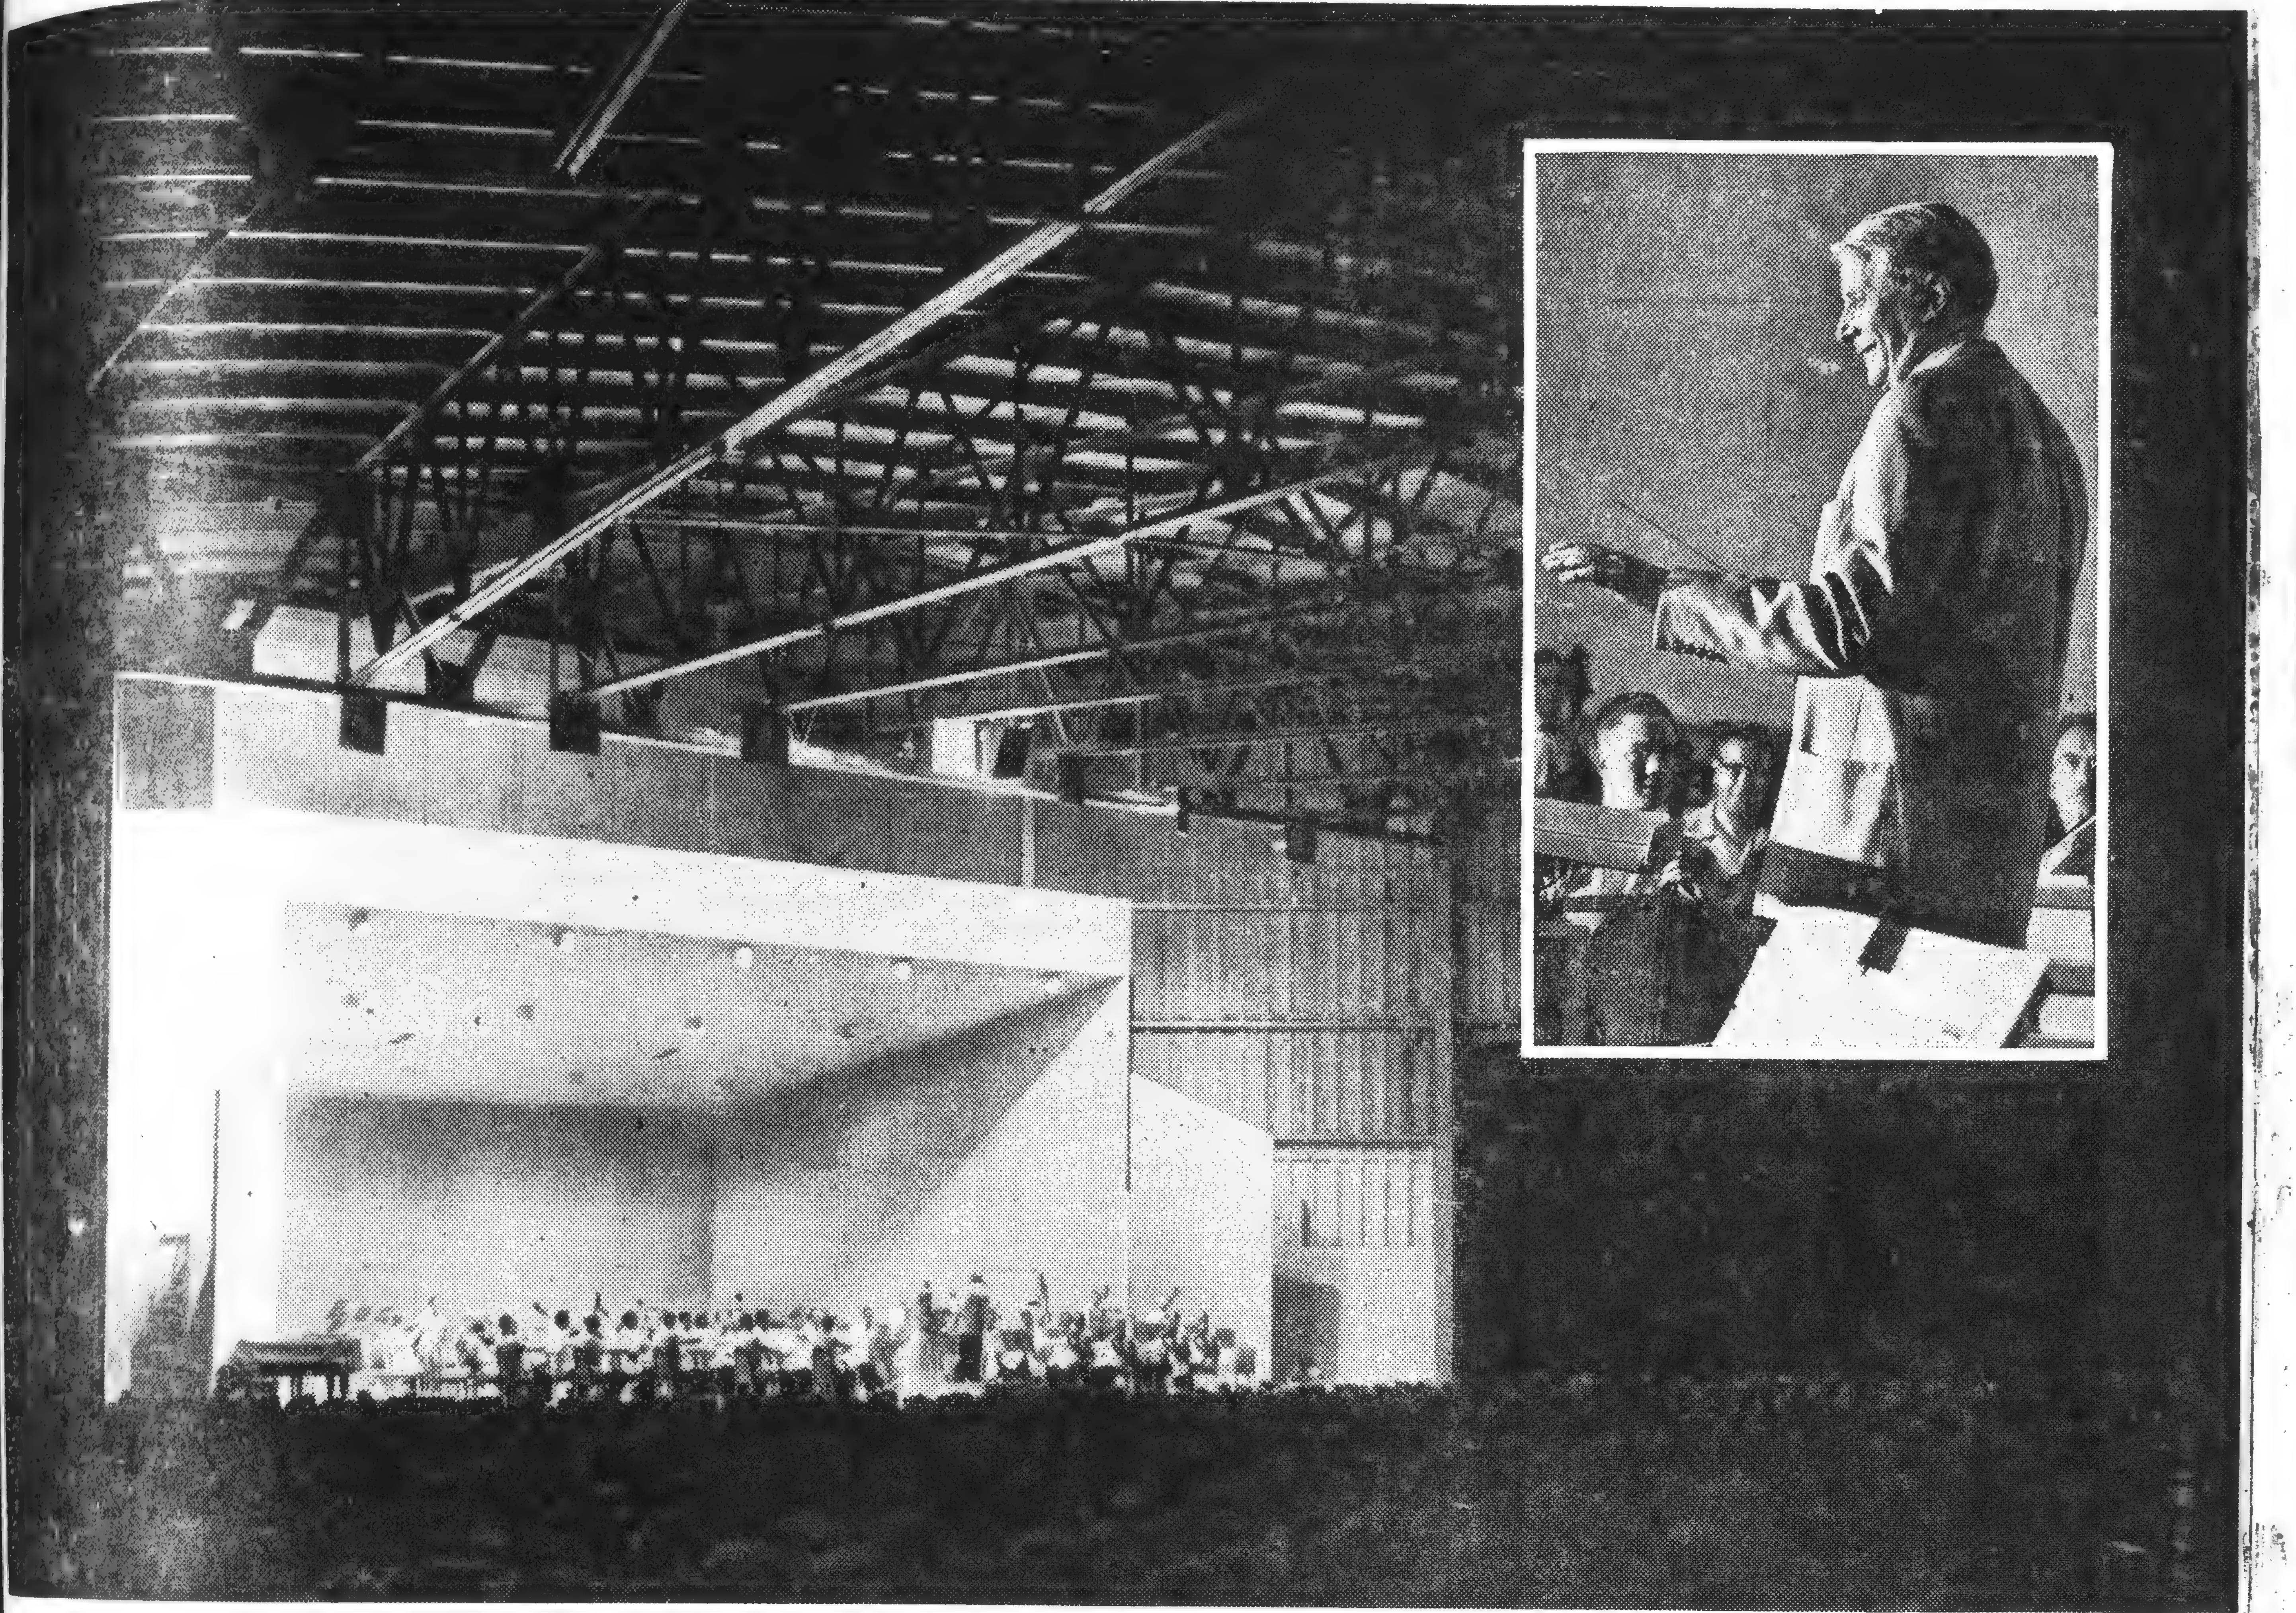
BOSTON SYMPHONY
ORCHESTRA
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
TODAY (Shed) at 2:30—20th Century Program. Reserved seats $4 and $5.
SHED—Fri. & Sat. Eves. at 8:30. Sun. Afts. at 2:30.
OPENING Concert by full Orchestra July 31.
Soloist—Zino Francescatti, Violin.
July 31, Aug. 1, 2—7, 8, 9—14, 15, 16.
For tickets address Box Office.
Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Phone Lenox 600.
(General Admission to all Festival concerts, $2; sold on day of concert.)

TANGLEWOOD
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
Tonight (Theatre) at 8.30 HAYDN Program
Sun., July 26 (Shed) at 2:30—20th Century Program
Reserved Seats $4 and $5
SHED—Fri. and Sat. Eves. at 8:30, Sun. Afts. at 2:30
OPENING Concert by full Orchestra July 31
Soloist—Zino Francescatti, Violin
SHED CONCERTS: July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
General Admission To All Festival Concerts—$2
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

[217]

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, JULY 26, 1953.

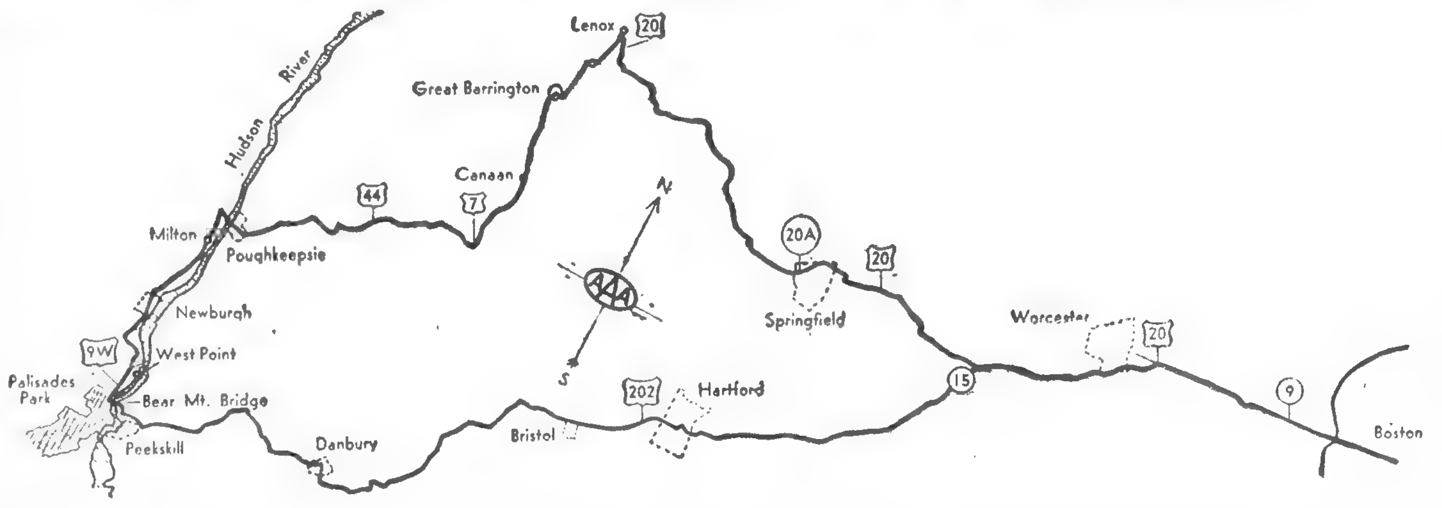
THE MAIN PHASE OF BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL OPENS AT TANGLEWOOD FRIDAY



Clemens Kalischer

The Music Shed, where the concerts take place, looks like this when the program is on. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, of course, is on the stage. The conductor on opening night will be Charles Munch (inset).

HERE'S A SCENIC TOUR FOR WEEK OR WEEKEND



[illegible] is a driving trip you can [illegible] a week or a weekend, [illegible] on the time you have. [illegible] Massachusetts Division AAA [illegible] experts who planned this [illegible] took in all the sights com[illegible] in just three days.

Leave the Boston area on Route [illegible] off on Route 20 and [illegible] familiar territory to [illegible] on these American [illegible] Association jaunts.

[illegible] you cross the Char[illegible] turn off on Route [illegible] Bristol. You'll have [illegible] to stop briefly at either [illegible] Park in the eastern part of [illegible] Rockwell Park, west [illegible]. There are scenic [illegible] both parks as well as a [illegible] youngsters to wade [illegible]

BEAR MOUNTAIN BRIDGE

[illegible] drive to Danbury, [illegible] the Berkshires, [illegible] surrounded by wooded [illegible] this hat manufac[illegible] you cross the Con[illegible] into New York and [illegible] 30 miles on you reach the Bear Mountain Bridge. There [illegible] as here where you [illegible] down rocky precipices [illegible] Hudson River. Across [illegible] you have your choice [illegible] Palisades Park's scenic drives [illegible] cliffs high above the [illegible] can visit Bear [illegible] Park five miles [illegible] West Point. This is a favorite summer playground, with year-round accommodations, restaurant, bathing, boating and picnicking.

As you drive on to West Point, on Route 9W, and then on the Storm King Highway, you'll see below you in the river an amazing assemblage of ships as far as the eye will reach. This is the Navy's "mothball fleet," ready to mount guard.

The AAA says don't miss a tour of West Point. 'You'll see a complete museum of ordnance and captured battle flags, the Cadet Chapel, Fort Clinton, and Trophy Point. At Fort Clinton is a monument to Thaddeus Kosciuszko, the Polish patriot who first used West Point as a military post in 1778.

Further on, past Newburgh, is the little town of Milton, where the AAA suggests you spend the night after a leisurely dinner. Beyond this town you'll cross the Hudson again and go through Poughkeepsie on Route 44, turning north to Route 7 at West Cornwall. North again, you'll invade Canaan, then Sheffield, on the way to the popular resort city of Great Barrington. Lunch here, says the AAA.

Another 15 miles will take you to Lenox, where the famous Berkshire festival features the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood. You'll be able to get a ticket to the grounds on Sunday afternoon and hear thrilling symphonic music on Aug. 2, Aug. 9 or Aug. 16, at 3 in the afternoon.

It will take you the rest of the evening to get home, so plan to leave before the end of the concert, taking Route 20, alternate 20 through Springfield, and then 20 again until it joins familiar Route 9 just outside of Worcester. Route 9 will take you home, tired but still excited.

TANGLEWOOD
BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL
By the
BOSTON SYMPHONY
Orchestra
CHARLES MUNCH, Music Director
Tomorrow (Theatre) at 8:30 HAYDN Program
Sun., July 26 (Shed) at 2:30—20th Century Program
Reserved Seats $4 and $5
SHED—Fri. and Sat. Eves. at 8:30, Sun. Afts. at 2:30
OPENING Concert by full Orchestra July 31
Soloist—Zino Francescatti, Violin
SHED CONCERTS: July 31, Aug. 1, 2; 7, 8, 9; 14, 15, 16
General Admission To All Festival Concerts—$2
Address Box Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. (Phone Lenox 600)
Or England Brothers, Pittsfield

TANGLEWOOD CONCERTS

The Shed
Lenox, Mass.

TODAY, 2:30 P. M. Boston Symphony Orchestra conducted by Charles Munch. John McCollum, tenor.
Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86, Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin............Ravel
Classical Symphony ....Prokofiev
La Creation du Monde...........Milhaud
A Parable of Death (narrated by Vera Zorina; conducted by composer)....Foss

FRIDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Zino Francescatti, violinist.
Overture to Leonore, No. 3.....Beethoven
Violin Concerto ....Mendelssohn
Appalachian Spring ....Copland
Bolero ....Ravel

SATURDAY, 8:30 P. M. Conductor, Munch; Lukas Foss, pianist.
Overture to Manfred ....Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2................Foss
Italian Symphony ....Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis on Themes by Weber ....Hindemith

NEXT SUNDAY, Aug. 2, 2:30 P. M. Conductor, Pierre Monteux; Jorge Bolet, pianist.
Serenade for Strings; Symphony No. 5; Piano Concerto in B flat minor, Tchaikovsky

---

2:30-4, WCBS—WORLD MUSIC FESTIVALES—Boston Symphony; Charles Munch, Conductor; James Fassett comments, from the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Mass.:
Divertimento (after Couperin)..Strauss
Le Tombeau de Couperin........Ravel
Classical Symphony ....Prokofieff
La Creation du Monde.......Milhaud

WCBS—World Music Festivals: Tanglewood, Mass.

Major Berkshire Series Open Friday

With Charles Munch conducting the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings, July 31 and August 1 at 8:30 p.m. and Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Sunday afternoon, August 2 at 2:30 p.m., the major series of the Berkshire Festival opens this week in the 6,000-seat Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Nine concerts will be given over three weekends, until August 16.

Three innovations mark the Shed series this season: the concerts commence on Friday evenings instead of the previous Thursdays, thus making it possible for music-lovers who travel some distance to concentrate the complete series in their weekend; the Sunday afternoon programs commence at 2:30 p.m. instead of the former 3 o'clock; and the first hour-and-a-half of the Sunday program will be broadcast nationally by CBS Radio from Tanglewood as the only American event in the network's "World Music Festivals" program, which includes highlights from seven European summer festivals. The first portion of the Sunday program 2:30 to 4:00 p.m., will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, CBS Radio Director of Music, as commentator.

The Series A programs are:

Friday, July 31:—Charles Munch
Beethoven . . . Overture to "Leonore", No. 3
Mendelssohn Violin Concerto in E minor
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)
Copland ...."Appalachian Spring"
Ravel .... "Bolero"

Saturday, August 1—Charles Munch
Schumann ......Overture to "Manfred"
Foss . . . . . . Piano Concerto No. 2
(The Composer as Soloist)
Mendelsshon . . . . . Symphony No. 4 "Italian"
Hindemith . . . Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber

Sunday, August 2:—Pierre Monteux
Tchaikovsky . . . Serenade for Strings
Tchaikovsky . . . Symphony No. 5. in E minor
Tchaikovsky . . . Piano Concerto No. 1. in F-flat minor
(Soloist: Jorge Bolet)

7-26

Series of Major Concerts Will Open Friday Night

Music Shed Scene of Series A Programs, Also of This Afternoon's Concert of Modern Works; Francescatti Soloist Friday, Lukas Foss Saturday

Lenox, July 25—With Charles Munch conducting the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings, July 31 and Aug. 1 at 8.30 p. m. and Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2 at 2.30 p. m., the major series of the Berkshire Festival opens this week in the 6000-seat Shed at Tanglewood. Nine concerts will be given over three week ends, until Aug. 16.

The 16th Berkshire Festival since the summer concerts were inaugurated, and the 14th since the Boston Symphony participated, has been drawing record crowds, what with the accessibility of Berkshire County from Vermont on the north, Massachusetts on the east, New York state on the west, and Connecticut on the south. Tanglewood concerts averaged an estimated 9500 in 1952.

VERA ZORINA

Three Innovations

Three innovations mark the Shed series this season—the concerts commence on Friday evenings instead of the previous Thursdays thus making it possible for music lovers who travel some distance to concentrate the complete series in their week end; the Sunday afternoon programs commence at 2.30 p. m. instead of the former 3 o'clock; and the first hour-and-a-half of the Sunday program will be broadcast nationally by CBS Radio from Tanglewood, as the only American event in the network's "World Music Festivals" program, which includes highlights from seven European summer festivals.

The first portion of the Sunday programs 2.30 to 4 p. m., starting tomorrow, will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, CBS radio director of music, as commentator.

Next week end will introduce to Tanglewood audiences the noted violinist Zino Francescatti, soloist on Friday evening; and the first eastern performance in its revised form of Lukas Foss' Piano Concerto No. 2, with the composer as soloist. Jorge Bolet will be soloist next Sunday afternoon in an all-Tchaikovsky concert. This week's Shed programs:

Friday

Overture to "Leonore," No. 3 ... Beethoven
Violin Concerto in E Minor ... Mendelssohn
(Soloist: Zino Francescatti)
"Appalachian Spring" .... Copland
"Bolero" .... Ravel

Saturday

Overture to "Manfred" .... Schumann
Piano Concerto No. 2 .... Foss
(The composer as soloist)
Symphony No. 4, "Italian" ... Mendelssohn
Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber .... Hindemith

Student Concerts

The regular weekly concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, open to members of the friends of the school whose support helps to maintain it, will be held as usual: Informal chamber music concert (Dept. I students), Monday afternoon in the Chamber Music Hall; opera scenes (Dept. IV students), Monday evening in the Theater-Concert Hall; orchestra (Dept. I students) Thursday evening in the Music Shed; demonstration by Tanglewood Study Group students, Saturday afternoon in the Barn; chamber music (Dept. I students), Sunday morning in the Chamber Music Hall.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are also invited to two other events, a chamber music concert by the Hungarian Quartet, gift of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, Theater-Concert Hall, Wednesday evening; and an organ recital by E. Power Biggs, Music Shed, Saturday afternoon. General admission of $1 is charged for the public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday morning for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The concert tomorrow afternoon in the Music Shed will be devoted to music of 20th-century composers Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, Vera Zorina as narrator, and the festival chorus. The first half of the Sunday program will be heard nationally on CBS radio stations.

Broadcast exigencies which make the change of location necessary will necessitate a prompt start of the program at 2.30 p. m.; also will preclude any interruption of the opening orchestral selection on each of the Sunday programs to seat latecomers. Seatholders are cautioned they cannot be seated until after the conclusion of the entire opening number. The "Divertimento" Op. 86, by Richard Strauss, to be presented tomorrow, runs 20 minutes; Tchaikovsky's Serenade for Strings to be heard Aug. 2, runs 25 minutes.

HUDSON, N. Y.
STAR

JUL 16 1953

ALL MOZART PROGRAM SET FOR TANGLEWOOD

The two programs to be given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this week-end will be devoted to the works of Mozart.

Charles Munch will lead members of the orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist.

At the first of the all-Mozart concerts at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, Mr Stern will be soloist in the Concerto for Violin in G (K. 216).

The first performance anywhere by the orchestra of the Divertimento in D for Strings (K. 136) will be given at the second program at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. At this concert, Mr Stern will team with Joseph DePasquale, violinist of the orchestra, in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Mr Munch has chosen Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, as soloists for Brahms' "Requiem," which the orchestra will perform August 14.

ORD, MASS., JULY 26, 1953

Soloist, Guest Conductor

ZINO FRANCESCATTI

PIERRE MONTEUX

Appearing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood next weekend will be violinist Francescatti, soloist in Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E Minor Friday night, and Monteux, guest conductor at next Sunday afternoon's concert.

Tanglewood Broadcast Is Today

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 25—Because tomorrow's Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood, Lenox, will be broadcast nationally, it will be given in the Music Shed instead of in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The Sunday afternoon concert by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, will be the first of four Sunday afternoon Festival performances to be heard on the air, as the only American event in the CBS World Music Festivals program, which includes highlights from seven European Summer festivals. The first portion of the program Tanglewood audiences will hear, from 2:30 to 4 p. m. will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, network radio director of music, as commentator.

Tomorrow's radio program is as follows:

Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86 .... Richard Strauss
"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite .... Ravel
"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25 .... Prokofieff
"La Creation du Monde" .... Milhaud

Also slated is Foss' "A Parable of Death," a cantata for narrator, tenor, orchestra and chorus. It will not be broadcast.

Major Concert Series to Open

Record Crowds Due At Tanglewood Shed

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 25 [illegible] cert series of the 1953 B[illegible] Festival opens [illegible] the 6,000-seat Music S[illegible] at Tanglewood.

Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra [illegible] Festival music director [illegible] the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony in programs [illegible] day and Saturday [illegible] Monteux will be guest [illegible] for next Sunday's 2:30 p. [illegible] cert.

Record crowds [illegible] tending the pre-seas[illegible] in the Theater-Concert Hall [illegible] this year, the 16th Berkshire Festival since Summer concerts were inaugurated in the hills of Western Massachusetts and the 14th in which the Boston Symphony has participated.

Larger Crowds Due

Major series concerts at Tanglewood last year attracted an average of 9,500 p[illegible] last season. This year, even larger crowds are anticipated. Concertgoers who do not have reserved seats may purchase general admission on the day of the concert and picnic on the grounds [illegible] open on concert [illegible] at 6 p. m. and on Sunday [illegible] 12:30 p. m.

Three innovations [illegible] the Music Shed [illegible] The concerts com[illegible] Friday evenings inst[illegible] previous Thursd[illegible] possible for mus[illegible] some distance [illegible] complete seri[illegible] end; the Sunday [illegible] programs start at 2:30 [illegible] 3, and the first [illegible] Sunday program [illegible] cast nationally [illegible]

The Tanglewood [illegible] be the only [illegible] the network's [illegible] Festivals program [illegible] highlights [illegible] Summer festivals.

Next week [illegible] Tanglewood [illegible] violin[illegible] soloist [illegible] first Eastern [illegible] revised [illegible] certo No. 2 [illegible] as soloist [illegible] soloist next Sunday [illegible]

Programs Announced

Complete [illegible] weekend's concerts [illegible] Friday [illegible] ducting [illegible] to "Leonore [illegible] sohn's Violin [illegible] minor (soloist Z[illegible] Copland's "Appalachian [illegible] and Ravel's "Bolero."

Next Saturday [illegible] conducting [illegible] ture to "Manfred" [illegible] Concerto No. 2 [illegible] Symphony No. 4 [illegible] Hindemith's [illegible] morphosis of [illegible]

Next Sunday [illegible] conducting [illegible] Strings," Sym[illegible] minor and [illegible] 1 in F-flat [illegible] Bolet [illegible]

Tanglewood [illegible] rade" Aug 13 [illegible] fit for the Berkshire [illegible] ter, which includes [illegible] tivities by every department of the Summer season of music maintained by the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood a lawn supper and an evening concert by the orchestra, 6 to 11 p. m., will be followed by dancing on the lawn.

Isaac Stern, the celebrated violinist, will perform Beethoven's Concerto in D major, with Mr Munch conducting, at the "Tanglewood on Parade" concert. The second half of the program, to be conducted by Leonard Bernstein, head of the Berkshire Music Center's conducting classes, will offer as soloists baritone William Warfield and his wife, soprano Leontyne Price.

"Tanglewood on Parade" is held in aid of the Music Center, now in its 11th season. All ticket holders will be invited to attend demonstrations by the school's symphony orchestra, chorus, chamber music, opera department and Tanglewood Study Group.

HAYDN PROGRA
AT TANGLEWO
WELL RECE

Union July

Boston Symphony,
shire Festival Cho Rated Superb

By WILLARD M. CL

Tanglewood, July 25—La
we listened to the music of
during the two concerts to his music. Tonight m of the Boston Symphony Or and members of the Berksh tival Chorus, directed by Munch and Hugh Ross res ly, provided a program o by Joseph Haydn, who was a young man when Moz
born.

"Father of Symphon

Haydn has been calle rightly, the "Father of th phony." Tonight we found as the orchestra and Munch provided two splend formances of his Symphon Minor, No. 95 and the Sy in G Major, No. 100. Kn milarly as "Military." T something very wholeso honest about the music of Haydn and there is also a dance of wit, sometime earthy. His symphonies ne cut performance, whole-hea votion to the music, and what they received tonig

The C Minor Symphony
only one of the London be in the minor key and only one which dispenses introduction. This is a warm and moving sympho its was unfortunate that necessary to let in later after the first movement.
mood was lost and it too to re-establish it, even tho slow movement of this sy is both elegant and rich ment. Particularly rewa the minuet with its solo for cello over a light acc
ment of plucked strings.

Mr. Munch took the fina at breath-taking pace, but clear with the contrapunt play seldom roughened.
relatively short, terse sy Haydn said what he had expressively and without to elaboration or redunda

The "Military" Sympho
Major was composed in 1
of the second six compo the impresario Salmon of It gets its title largely f allegretto which replaces al andante as the secon ment. In the allegretto drum, cymbals and trian bine in what the 18th listeners termed "Turkish Another martial note is the trumpet call which the end of the movement repeated theme of the is derived from the Fr manza "La Gentile en J ette," a tune which may heard in Haydn's "La
Symphony.

Haydn could toss off a sy in no time at all, but he great deal of time in wri relatively few masses posed. All these masses stamp of a deeply religi
ing and humble sincerity.
under the direction of Hu
the Berkshire Festival Cho the "Therese" mass in B
jor. The soloists were Lois ley, soprano; Beatrice contralto, who has sung i field; John McCollum, te Lee Case, bass; one of vocal quartets to appear concerts in some seasons.
loists have no so airs,
nate as a quarter with th

Hugh Ross is a skilled and this season he has a group of fine young voices
with.

The result is that to heard some fine choral accurate as to pitch, well and spirited. One could ha this mass without spirit.
"Gloria" is one of the filling epics to be heard.
the music is straight forwa cise and admirably moulde text.

Tomorrow afternoon we jump into the 20th Century shall hear works by Ravel fieff, Milhaud Strauss and Foss. The latter will co composition "A parable with Vera Zorina as narr

SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, MA

Tanglewood Soloist

ZINO FRANCESCATTI

noted violinist will be the soloist Friday evening in the first ert of the major series in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox. will perform the Mendelssohn violin concerto in E minor, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

MUSIC FOR EVERY-BODY

2.30 to 4.00 — WHYN — Charles Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the first of four "live" broadcasts from the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood. The program will include the Richard Strauss "Divertimento" after Francois Couperin; Ravel's interpretation of "Le Tombeau de Couperin," the Prokofief "Classical Symphony" and Milhaud's "La Creation du Monde."

as pure sound than on a ion screen and seems into press this clear advant-er its rival. The CBS broad-of the music festivals, with nts by James Fassett, have ignally successful.

Cir. (D 13,686)

This Clipping From
NORWALK, CONN.
HOUR

JUL 16 1953

BERKSHIRE QUARTET TO BE IN WESTPORT

The Berkshire Quartet, sponsored by the Southshore Music Club, will offer a concert Friday night, July 24, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bernhard, Sylvan road, Westport.

The quartet, made up of Fritz Magg, Albert Lazen, Urico Rossi and David Dawson, was formed in 1948, from the older Gorden Quartet, and the name was chosen by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, who elected the group to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the Berkshire Chamber Music Festival.

Hungarian Quartet To Play In Coolidge Concert Finale

The third and final chamber music concert of the series which Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge is donating to the Berkshire Music Center will be held at 8.30 tomor-evening in the Tanglewood tre. The program, by the Hunan Quartet, of quartets by Jo-Haydn G-major, Walter Piston
4) and Beethoven (B-flat or) will be open to friends of Coolidge and the Society of nds of the Berkshire Music ter.

ne Hungarian Quartet, formed 935, and now making its home ae United States, is composed of an Szekeley and Alexander kowsky, violinists; Denes Ko-zay, viola; and Vilmos Palotai, pupil of the Hungarian master Hubay, Mr. Szekely is the vio-t to whom Bela Bartok dedied his only violin concerto. Also upil of Hubay, Mr. Koromzay first place at the Vienna Conservatory, and was well known in European capitals through his sonata recitals.

Mr. Moskowsky, who is Russian-born, was taught by Leopold Auer, teacher of Heifetz, Elman, Zimbalist and Milstein. He was professor at the Amsterdam Conservatory when he joined the quartet, after some years as solo violinist with European orchestras. Mr. Palotai had been soloist in the Bremen Philharmonic and was a professor in the Prague Conservatory when he joined the quartet at the invitation of Mr. Szekely, a classmate at the Budapest Conservatory.

On a Sunday Afternoon
World Music Festivals—
Charles Munch, Boston Symphony from Tanglewood

2:30 p. m.—WEEI. World Music Festivals—Boston Symphony Orchestra broadcast conducted by Charles Munch from Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

[219]

Series of Major Concerts Will Open Friday Night

Music Shed Scene of Series A Programs, Also of This Afternoon's Concert of Modern Works; Francescatti Soloist Friday, Lukas Foss Saturday

Lenox, July 25—With Charles Munch conducting the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony Orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings, July 31 and Aug. 1 at 8.30 p. m. and Pierre Monteux as guest conductor on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2 at 2.30 p. m., the major series of the Berkshire Festival opens this week in the 6000-seat Shed at Tanglewood. Nine concerts will be given over three week ends, until Aug. 16.

The 16th Berkshire Festival since the summer concerts were inaugurated, and the 14th since the

VERA ZORINA

Boston Symphony particip been drawing record crow with the accessibility of County from Vermont on Massachusetts on the e
York state on the west, necticut on the south. Ta concerts averaged an 9500 in 1952.

Three Innovation

Three innovations mark series this season—the commence on Friday eve stead of the previous T
thus making it possible f lovers who travel so to concentrate the con in their week end; the ernoon programs co
2.30 p. m. instead of o'clock; and the first half of the Sunday pro broadcast nationally
dio from Tanglewood.
American event in th
"World Music Festival which includes highligh en European summer

The first portion of programs 2.30 to 4 p.
tomorrow, will be hear
with James Fassett, director of music, as c

Next week end will Tanglewood audiences
violinist Zino Frances on Friday evening; a

Piano Concerto No. 2
(The composer a Symphony No. 4, "Italian" Symphonic Metamorphosis
Themes by Weber ...

Student Con

The regular weekl
students of the Ber Center, open to me friends of the school helps to maintain it, usual: Informal ch concert (Dept. I stu day afternoon in the sic Hall; opera scen students), Monday e
Theater-Concert Hal
(Dept. I students)
ning in the Music She tion by Tanglewood
students, Saturday aft Barn; chamber music
dents), Sunday mor
Chamber Music Hall.

Friends of the Ber Center are also invite events, a chamber m
by the Hungarian Qu
Mrs. Elizabeth Sprag
Theater-Concert Hall, ...day evening; and an organ recital by E. Power Biggs, Music Shed, Saturday afternoon. General admission of $1 is charged for the public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra on Saturday morning for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund.

The concert tomorrow afternoon in the Music Shed will be devoted to music of 20th-century composers Richard Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff, Milhaud, and the New England premiere of Lukas Foss' cantata "A Parable of Death," with the composer conducting, Vera Zorina as narrator, and the festival chorus. The first half of the Sunday program will be heard nationally on CBS radio stations.

Broadcast exigencies which make the change of location necessary will necessitate a prompt start of the program at 2.30 p. m.; also will preclude any interruption of the opening orchestral selection on each of the Sunday programs to seat latecomers. Seatholders are cautioned they cannot be seated until after the conclusion of the entire opening number. The "Divertimento" Op. 86, by Richard Strauss, to be presented tomorrow, runs 20 minutes; Tchaikovsky's Serenade for Strings to be heard Aug. 2, runs 25 minutes.

HUDSON, N. Y.
STAR
JUL 16 1953

ALL MOZART PROGRAM SET FOR TANGLEWOOD

The two programs to be given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this week-end will be devoted to the works of Mozart.

Charles Munch will lead members of the orchestra, with Isaac Stern, violinist, as soloist.

At the first of the all-Mozart concerts at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, Mr Stern will be soloist in the Concerto for Violin in G (K. 216).

The first performance anywhere by the orchestra, of the Divertimento in D for Strings (K. 136) will be given at the second program at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. At this concert, Mr Stern will team with Joseph DePasquale, violinist of the orchestra, in the Sinfonia Concertante, for Violin and Viola (K. 364).

Mr Munch has chosen Lois Marshall, soprano, and William Warfield, baritone, as soloists for Brahms' "Requiem," which the orchestra will perform August 14.

SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, MA

Tanglewood Soloist

ZINO FRANCESCATTI

This noted violinist will be the soloist Friday evening in the first concert of the major series in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox. He will perform the Mendelssohn violin concerto in E minor, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

MUSIC FOR EVERY-BODY
BY
SIGMUND SPAETH

This is the season of the year when both radio and television fall into the doldrums, apparently unaware of how much help they could get from music to tide them over the starless summer months. Radio has at least discovered that a symphony orchestra is more effective as pure sound than on a television screen and seems inclined to press this clear advantage over its rival. The CBS broadcasts of the music festivals, with comments by James Fassett, have been signally successful.

Hungarian Quartet To Play In Coolidge Concert Finale

The third and final chamber music concert of the series which Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge is donating to the Berkshire Music Center will be held at 8.30 tomorrow evening in the Tanglewood theatre. The program, by the Hungarian Quartet, of quartets by Joseph Haydn G-major, Walter Piston (No. 4) and Beethoven (B-flat major) will be open to friends of Mrs. Coolidge and the Society of Friends of the Berkshire Music Center.

The Hungarian Quartet, formed in 1935, and now making its home in the United States, is composed of Zoltan Szekeley and Alexander Moskowsky, violinists; Denes Koromzay, viola; and Vilmos Palotai, cello.

A pupil of the Hungarian master Jeno Hubay, Mr. Szekely is the violinist to whom Bela Bartok dedicated his only violin concerto. Also a pupil of Hubay, Mr. Koromzay won first place at the Vienna Conservatory, and was well known in European capitals through his sonata recitals.

Mr. Moskowsky, who is Russian-born, was taught by Leopold Auer, teacher of Heifetz, Elman, Zimbalist and Milstein. He was professor at the Amsterdam Conservatory when he joined the quartet, after some years as solo violinist with European orchestras. Mr. Palotai had been soloist in the Bremen Philharmonic and was a professor in the Prague Conservatory when he joined the quartet at the invitation of Mr. Szekely, a classmate at the Budapest Conservatory.

On a Sunday Afternoon
World Music Festivals—
Charles Munch, Boston Symphony from Tanglewood

2:30 p. m.—WEEI. World Music Festivals—Boston Symphony Orchestra broadcast conducted by Charles Munch from Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

[219]

...ORD, MASS., JULY 26, 1953

Soloist, Guest Conductor

ZINO FRANCESCATTI PIERRE MONTEUX

Appearing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood next weekend will be violinist Francescatti, soloist in Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E Minor Friday night, and Monteux, guest conductor at next Sunday afternoon's concert.

Tanglewood Broadcast Is Today

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 25—Because tomorrow's Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood, Lenox, will be broadcast nationally, it will be given in the Music Shed instead of in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The Sunday afternoon concert by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting, will be the first of four Sunday afternoon Festival performances to be heard on the air, as the only American event in the CBS World Music Festivals program, which includes highlights from seven European Summer festivals. The first portion of the program Tanglewood audiences will hear, from 2:30 to 4 p. m. will be heard on the air, with James Fassett, network radio director of music, as commentator.

Tomorrow's radio program is as follows:

Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86 .... Richard Strauss
"Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite .... Ravel
"Classical" Symphony, Op. 25 .... Prokofieff
"La Creation du Monde" .... Milhaud

Also slated is Foss' "A Parable of Death," a cantata for narrator, tenor, orchestra and chorus. It will not be broadcast.

Major Concert Series to Open

Record Crowds Due At Tanglewood Shed

Special to The Standard-Times

LENOX, July 25—Major concert series of the 1953 Berkshire Festival opens next week in the 6,000-seat Music Shed at Tanglewood.

Charles Munch, Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor and Festival music director, will lead the entire 104-piece Boston Symphony in programs at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor for next Sunday's 2:30 p. m. concert.

Record crowds have been attending the pre-season concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall here this year, the 16th Berkshire Festival since Summer concerts were inaugurated in the [illegible] Western Massachusetts and the 14th in which the Boston Symphony has participated.

Larger Crowds Due

Major series concerts at Tanglewood last year attracted an average of 9,500 persons last season. This year even larger crowds are anticipated. Concertgoers who do not have reserved seats may purchase general admission on the day of the concert and picnic on the grounds which open on concert evenings at 6 p. m. and on Sundays at 12:30 p. m.

Three innovations mark the Music Shed series this season. The concerts commence on Friday evenings instead of the previous Thursdays, making it possible for music lovers who travel some distance to concentrate the complete series in their week end; the Sunday afternoon programs start at 2:30 instead of 3, and the first 90 [illegible] of the Sunday programs will be broadcast nationally by CBS.

The Tanglewood programs will be the only American events in the network's World Music Festivals program, which includes highlights from seven European Summer festivals.

Next weekend will [illegible] Tanglewood audiences [illegible] noted violinist Zino Francescatti as soloist on Friday [illegible] first Eastern performance of the revised form of Foss' Piano Concerto No. 2 [illegible] as soloist. Jorge Bolet [illegible] soloist next Sunday [illegible]

Programs Announced

Complete [illegible] weekend's concerts [illegible]

Friday, Charles Munch conducting—Beethoven's Overture to "Leonore" No. 3, Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E minor, soloist Zino Francescatti; Copland's "Appalachian Spring" and Ravel's Bolero.

Next Saturday, Charles Munch conducting—Schumann's Overture to "Manfred," Foss' Piano Concerto No. 2, Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4 "Italian," and Hindemith's "Symphonic Metamorphosis" of [illegible]

Next Sunday, Pierre Monteux conducting—[illegible] Strings" [illegible] minor and [illegible] in F [illegible] Bolet [illegible]

Tanglewood [illegible] Parade" Aug. [illegible] fit for the Berkshire [illegible] ter, which [illegible] tivities by [illegible] the Summer [illegible] maintained by the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood, a [illegible] supper and an evening concert by the orchestra, 6 to 11 p. m. will be followed by dancing on the lawn.

Isaac Stern, the [illegible] violinist, will perform Beethoven's Concerto in D major with Mr Munch conducting at the Tanglewood on Parade concert. The second half of the program, to be conducted by Leonard Bernstein, head of the Berkshire Music Center's conducting classes, will offer as soloists baritone William Warfield and his wife, soprano Leontyne Price.

"Tanglewood on Parade" is held in aid of the Music Center, now in its 11th season. All ticket holders will be invited to attend demonstrations by the school's chorus, symphony orchestra, chamber music, opera department and Tanglewood Study Group.

HAYDN PROGRA AT TANGLEWO WELL RECEI

Boston Symphony, shire Festival Chor Rated Superb

By WILLARD M. CLA

Tanglewood, July 25—Last
we listened to the music of during the two concerts d to his music. Tonight me of the Boston Symphony Orc and members of the Berkshi tival Chorus, directed by C Munch and Hugh Ross resp ly, provided a program of by Joseph Haydn, who was a a young man when Mozar
born.

"Father of Symphony"

Haydn has been called, rightly, the "Father of the phony." Tonight we found ou as the orchestra and C Munch provided two splendi formances of his Symphony Minor, No. 95 and the Sym in G Major, No. 100. Know milarly as "Military." The something very wholesome honest about the music of J Haydn and there is also an dance of wit, sometimes earthy. His symphonies need cut performance, whole-heart votion to the music, and th what they received tonight

The C Minor Symphony
only one of the London gro be in the minor key and i only one which dispenses wi introduction. This is a l warm and moving symphony its was unfortunate that it necessary to let in later c after the first movement, fo mood was lost and it took to re-establish it, even thoug slow movement of this symp is both elegant and rich in ment. Particularly rewardin the minuet with its solo pass for cello over a light accom
ment of plucked strings.

Mr. Munch took the final p at breath-taking pace, but a clear with the contrapuntal play seldom roughened. I relatively short, terse sym Haydn said what he had t expressively and without re to elaboration or redundan

The "Military" Symphony
Major was composed in 179
of the second six compose the impresario Salmon of L
It gets its title largely fro allegretto which replaces th al andante as the second ment. In the allegretto the drum, cymbals and triange bine in what the 18th Ce listeners termed "Turkish" m Another martial note is stru the trumpet call which occurs the end of the movement. Th repeated theme of the move is derived from the French manza "La Gentile en Jeune ette," a tune which may al heard in Haydn's "La R
Symphony.

Haydn could toss off a sym in no time at all, but he sp great deal of time in writin relatively few masses he posed. All these masses bea stamp of a deeply religious ing and humble sincerity. To under the direction of Hugh the Berkshire Festival Chorus the "Therese" mass in B-Flat jor. The soloists were Lois M ley, soprano; Beatrice Kr contralto, who has sung in Sp field; John McCollum, tenor Lee Case, bass; one of the vocal quartets to appear at concerts in some seasons. Th loists have no so airs, but nate as a quarter with the ch

Hugh Ross is a skilled cond and this season he has a siz group of fine young voices to
with.

The result is that tonigh heard some fine choral sin accurate as to pitch, well bala and spirited. One could hardly this mass without spirit, fo
"Gloria" is one of the most filling epics to be heard. A the music is straight forward.
cise and admirably moulded t
text.

Tomorrow afternoon we tak jump into the 20th Century and shall hear works by Ravel, Pr fieff, Milhaud Strauss and Leo Foss. The latter will conduct composition "A parable of dea with Vera Zorina as narrator.

HAYDN PROGRAM AT TANGLEWOOD WELL RECEIVED

Boston Symphony, Berkshire Festival Chorus Rated Superb

By WILLARD M. CLARK

[illegible] 25. Last week [illegible] music of Mozart [illegible] concerts devoted [illegible] Tonight members [illegible] phony Orchestra [illegible] the Berkshire Festival [illegible] cted by Charles [illegible] Ross respectively [illegible] program of music [illegible] who was already [illegible] when Mozart was [illegible]

"Father of Symphony"

[illegible] called, and [illegible] of the Symphony [illegible] found out why [illegible] and Charles [illegible] two splendid performances [illegible] Symphony in C [illegible] and the Symphony [illegible] 100. Known familiarly [illegible] "Military." There is [illegible] wholesome and [illegible] music of Joseph Haydn [illegible] is also an abundance [illegible] sometimes quite [illegible] symphonies need clean [illegible] whole-hearted devotion to the music, and that is [illegible] received tonight.

The C Minor Symphony is the only one of the London group to [illegible] minor key and is the [illegible] one which dispenses with an [illegible]. This is a lovely [illegible] and moving symphony and it was unfortunate that it was necessary to [illegible] in later comers [illegible] the first movement, for the mood was lost and it took time to re-establish it, even though the slow movement of this symphony is both elegant and rich in sentiment. Particularly rewarding is the minuet with its solo passages for cello over a light accompaniment of plucked strings.

Mr. Munch took the final presto at breath-taking pace, but all was clear with the contrapuntal interplay seldom roughened. In this relatively short, terse symphony, Haydn said what he had to say expressively and without recourse to elaboration or redundancy.

The "Military" Symphony in G Major was composed in 1794, one of the second six composed for the impresario Salmon of London. It gets its title largely from the allegretto which replaces the usual andante as the second movement. In the allegretto the bass drum, cymbals and triange combine in what the 18th Century listeners termed "Turkish" music. Another martial note is struck by the trumpet call which occurs near the end of the movement. The oft repeated theme of the movement is derived from the French Romanza "La Gentile en Jeune Lisette," a tune which may also be heard in Haydn's "La Reine" Symphony.

Haydn could toss off a symphony in no time at all, but he spent a great deal of time in writing the relatively few masses he composed. All these masses bear the stamp of a deeply religious feeling and humble sincerity. Tonight, under the direction of Hugh Ross, the Berkshire Festival Chorus sang the "Therese" mass in B-Flat Major. The soloists were Lois McCauley, soprano; Beatrice Krebes, contralto, who has sung in Springfield; John McCollum, tenor and Lee Case, bass; one of the best vocal quartets to appear at these concerts in some seasons. The soloists have no set airs, but alternate as a quarter with the chorus. Hugh Ross is a skilled conductor and this season he has a sizeable group of fine young voices to work with.

The result is that tonight we heard some fine choral singing, [illegible] to pitch, well balanced and spirited. One could hardly sing this mass without spirit, for its [illegible] is one of the most ear [illegible] to be heard. Again, the music is straight forward, con[illegible] and admirably moulded to the [illegible]

[illegible] afternoon we take a [illegible] the 20th Century and we [illegible] works by Ravel, Prokofieff, Richard Strauss and Leonard [illegible] The latter will conduct his composition "A parable of death" with Vera Zorina as narrator.

SUNDAY REPUBLICAN, SPRINGFIELD, MASS., JULY 26, 1953

Time Out at Tanglewood

Pictured above is a trio of Berkshire favorites seen after a Boston Symphony rehearsal session at Tanglewood in Lenox. Left to right are: James Stagliano, 1st horn; Joseph De Pasquale, 1st viola, and Harry Shapiro, horn.

A Happy Occasion

Charles Munch, left, musical director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and director of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, congratulates George E. Judd, manager of the orchestra, upon his receiving from the French government the order of the Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Mr. Munch is a recipient of the Legion's highest rank, that of Commandeur.

BOSTON, MASS.
MORNING GLOBE

JUL 19 1953

This Week's Berkshire Programs Held in Theatre-Concert Hall

Charles Munch conducts members of the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood ~~today in a~~ program devoted to music of Mozart. Soloists will be the orchestra's first violist, Joseph De Pasquale, and violinist Isaac Stern. The performance will be in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

(Violinist Ruth Posselt will give a sonata recital with pianist Gary Graffman Wednesday evening in the Concert Hall. The regular weekly concerts by students of the Berkshire Music Center, will be held: opera scenes, Tuesday evening, in the Theatre-Concert Hall; small choir, Thursday evening, in the Theatre-Concert Hall; orchestra, Friday evening, in the Music Shed; chamber music, Sunday morning, in the Chamber Music Hall; and composers' forum, Sunday evening, in the Chamber Music Hall.

Charles Munch will conduct two concerts next week-end, at 8:30 on Saturday and Sunday nights in the Concert Hall. Saturday's program will be devoted to Haydn; Sunday's to modern works, including Lukas Foss' "A Parable of Death."

The programs:

Saturday—Theresa Mass, with Chorus and Soloists, Conducted by Hugh Ross; (Louis McCauley, soprano; Beatrice Krebs, alto; John McCollum, tenor; Lee Cass, bass); Symphony in C minor, No. 95; Symphony in G ("Military"), No. 100.

Sunday—Strauss, Divertimento (after Couperin), Op. 86; Ravel, "Le Tombeau de Couperin," Suite; Prokofieff, "Classical" Symphony, Op. 25; Milhaud, "La Creation du Monde"; Foss, "A Parable of Death," for Narrator, Chorus, Tenor Solo, conducted by the Composer. (Narrator: Vera Zorina; tenor soloist: John McCollum).

The first Music Shed concerts by the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra take place on the evenings of July 31 and Aug. 1, and the afternoon of Aug. 2, with Charles Munch conducting the first pair and Pierre Monteux as guest conductor for the final one. Soloists are Zino Francescatti, violinist (July 31); Lukas, Foss, pianist (Aug. 1); Jorge Bolet, pianist (Aug. 2).

---

aturday.
TANGLEWOOD, LENOX: One-man show paintings by Harry Lane closes today.
BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE. STOCK-

Tanglewood Tales

Lenox, July 25—Vera Zorina, known best to her public as the lovely ballerina of Broadway's "I Married an Angel" and "Louisiana Purchase," and of such film musicals as "On Your Toes," is carving a new career as a narrator with symphony orchestras, and in this capacity will be making her debut at Tanglewood this week end. In private life the wife of Goddard Lieberson, president of Columbia Records, Miss Zorina is a week-end guest at Elm Court, Lenox. Tomorrow afternoon, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Tanglewood's Music Shed, she will narrate Lukas Foss' new cantata, "A Parable of Death," which was commissioned for her by the Louisville, Ky., Symphony Orchestra, and which with the composer conducting will have its New England premiere tomorrow here.

Miss Zorina, who was born Brigitte Hartwig in Norway, and who adopted the Russian "nom de danse" when she joined the late Col. de Basil's Ballet Russe in 1934, has created the role of Joan of Arc in the first American performance of Arthur Honegger's "Jeanne d'Arc au Bucher" (Joan of Arc at the Stake) when Charles Munch presented it in concert form with the N. Y. Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra in 1948-49, and later that season repeated the role with Mr. Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. She has also done the part with the Philadelphia, Hollywood Bowl, Louisville, Cincinnati symphonies, and Royce Hall University, Los Angeles, and Midwest Music Foundation, Chicago. She has also narrated Stravinsky's "Persephone." "Jeanne d'Arc au Bucher" and "A Parable of Death" have just appeared on records with Miss Zorina.

Week-end guests of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood are Paul Feigay, director of the Ford Foundation's Television Workshop, New York, and his assistants who produce the "Omnibus" program on Sunday afternoons, to discuss the appearance of the orchestra on television next winter.

The Berkshire Music Center's two newest students are from Oslo, Norway. Arnold and Karen Johnstaf bring the summer enrollment of husbands and wives to four couples. Arnold is an organ builder, choir conductor and teacher at the Oslo Conservatory, his wife is piano and organ teacher at the Conservatory, and assistant organist at the Oslo Cathedral. Both are studying organ at the Berkshire Music Center under E. Power Biggs.

Two Tanglewood opera students have just won coveted soloists' roles with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in forthcoming Berkshire Festival concerts. Theresa Green, of Baltimore, a scholarship student of opera dramatics, has been chosen by Leonard Bernstein to sing the soprano role in Mahler's "Resurrection" Symphony, with Jennie Tourel, alto, on the memorial concert for Serge Koussevitsky on Saturday night, August 8. John McCollum, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., will have the tenor role, with Miss Tourel and bass-baritone Nicola Moscona, in Tanglewood's first performance of the complete dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet" by Berlioz on Friday night, August 7. Miss Green, in private life Mrs. Gilbert Coleman of New York City, is 24, is a Marian Anderson award-winner, has been a scholarship pupil at Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, has won a John Hay Whitney Fellowship, and three times has won the Arthur Godfrey "Talent Scout" award on his popular television program. She made a most favorable impression in a scene from "Aida" in the opera department's first program at Tanglewood Tuesday night.

Mr. McColum is probably Tanglewood's busiest young singer of the summer. He sang a solo role in the Bach Cantata No. 28 on July 12; sings a lead in the Haydn Theresa Mass tonight; does the tenor solo in Lukas Foss' "A Parable of Death" this Sunday; and will have several roles in the summer's opera productions. He is 31, an opera department dramatic student on scholarship, sang Falstaff in Boston in March with Mr. Goldovsky's New England Opera Company, and is the regular soloist at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York.

Two Tanglewood Department I students move into the spotlight this week end at the regular student orchestra concert Friday night. Serge Blanc, of Paris, performs the first movement of Brahms' violin concerto, which will be conducted by Endel Kalam, an Esthonian who is now a resident of Indianapolis and is violist in that city's symphony orchestra.

Anna Russell, the international concert comedienne, who will be presented by William Miles at the Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, in two afternoon concerts, August 13 and 14, will be a guest of the Berkshire Music Center at its annual Tanglewood on Parade gala August 13 night, and will draw door prize lucky numbers.

Berkshire Footlights

